A neceſſary Advertiſement to the Reader.

TO prepare the Reader to receive the deſigned benefit of this work, it will be firſt uſefull to preſent him with a ſcheme, or brief Table of the ſeverals, which here are offered to him, and will be reducible to three heads; The firſt concerning the Original Text, The ſecond concerning the verſion or Tranſlation; The third concerning the Expoſition of it. In every of theſe, if all that hath formerly been obſerved, and written by others, had here been ſummarily repeated, it would have given a vaſt, but unneceſſary bulk to this Volume, And therefore for thoſe things, which have been already thus largely inſiſted on, (whether by the Antients, S. Chryſoſtome, and the Greek Scholiaſts, or, among the many later writers on this ſubject, by the moſt judicious and learned Hugo Grotius, in his admirable Comments on the Goſpels, as alſo in the Poſthumous Annotations on the other parts of the New Teſtament, which for a great part bear his ſignature upon them) the care hath been to leave the Reader, from their own hands, to receive the account, and reap the benefit of their excellent labours (which are every where to be met with) and not to adde one Volume more to the great number of thoſe, which are already inriched with the ſpoils, and ſwelled by the tranſcribing of others obſervations.

1. In the firſt place, that concerning the Greek Text; Many learned men, eſpecially Lucas Brugenſis, and Robertus Stephanus, have uſed great induſtrie to obſerve the various readings of the many Manuſcript Copies, which had been diligently collected, and compared. And theſe are already to be had by thoſe that pleaſe to conſult them. Yet becauſe this Kingdome of ours hath been enriched with ſome monuments of Antiquity in this kind, which were probably deſigned by God for more honourable uſes, than onely to be laid up in Archives, as dead bodies in vaults, and charnel-houſes, to converſe with duſt, and worms, and rottenneſs, Some of theſe I have choſen to adviſe with, and from them to offer ſometimes a various reading, yet not permitting this to ſupplant or turn out that which hath vulgarly been received, but letting it in the inner margent, that thoſe that have judgment may, as they ſee cauſe, make uſe of it.

The firſt MS. which I have my ſelf twice compared, I found in the place of my Education, in the Librarie of S^t Mary Magdalene College in Oxford, a fair and an antient Copie.

The ſecond is that more known in the King's Librarie at S^t James's, preſented to our late Soveraigne by Cyrill the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, written in Capital letters by a very antient hand, of Thecla, as it is thought, and now happily prepared for the preſſe by the great pains, and judgment of M^r Patrick Young, from whoſe hands the moſt Reverend Father in God the Archbiſhop of Armagh having long ſince received a Copie of the various readings, was pleaſed to communicate them to me.

The third is the Greek and Latine MS. of the four Goſpels, and the Acts, found ninety years ſince in a Monaſterie at Lions in the time of the Civil Warre in France, and twenty years after preſented by Theodore Beza, as a monument of venerable Antiquity, to the Univerſity of Cambridge, the variations of which from the vulgar printed Copies I alſo acknowledge to have received from the favour of the moſt Reverend Archbiſhop of Armagh. What hath from any of theſe appeared uſeful to be propoſed, is in the inner margent of this Book tranſlated, and ſet over againſt the Text, with an [or] in the front of it, as the Characteriſtick note to diſtinguiſh it from the changes of the Engliſh Tranſlation, which, without that mark, are put in the ſame margent.

2. In the next place concerning the Tranſlation, The firſt part of my task was to prepare a new one out of the Original Greek, ſuch as ſeemed to me moſt agreeable, and on which my preſent underſtanding of the Text is founded; And to authorize, or give confidence to ſuch an undertaking, I had in my proſpect not only the two Engliſh Tranſlat: the one in the Book of Liturgie, the other in the Bibles, but the examples alſo of many learned men, as well thoſe that live in the obedience of the Biſhop of Rome (whoſe great, I ſhall adde,* juſt value of the vulgar, is notwithſtanding ſufficiently known) as others of the Reformed Churches; Such of both ſorts are Cardinal Cajetane, M^r Calvine, who tranſlate from the original, what they comment upon; So doth Oleaſter, and Mercer, and Forerius, and Eraſmus, and Malvenda a late Spaniſh Frier, in his ſeven Volumes of Comments on the Bible, I need not adde Junius, and Tremellius, and Beza, and Caſtellio, the Authors of the Spaniſh, the Italian, the French Tranſlations, and many more, who have all made uſe of that liberty. Yet conſidering my own great defects, the incompetencie, and diſproportionableneſs of my ſtrength and few years conſideration to the length and weight of this work, and knowing that as oft, and as farre as I differed in my ſenſe from other men, ſo often and in the ſame diſtance did other men differ from me, and having before my eyes, from the fate of other men's attempts in this kind, (which I could not induce my ſelf to approve of) great reaſons to forecaſt, and foreſee mine own hazards, and (though not to diſcern, yet) to fear and ſuſpect many miſadventures therein, and ſo to paſſe that more early cenſure on my ſelf, which from others, which ſaw not with my partial eyes, I had cauſe to look for; Upon theſe, I ſay, and ſome ſtore of other conſiderations, I made choiſe of the courſe, which now is taken, in ſtead of obtruding a new, retaining the known Tranſlation of our Bibles, and (after the manner which was formerly uſed in our Bibles of the larger impreſſions, of noting ſome other rendrings in the Margents) annexing, where it ſeemed uſefull, another Tranſlation of ſome words or phraſes, with this * or †, or other like marks of reference, to the words in our vulgar Text; And this is done alſo in the inner Margent; And where the matter is of any difficulty or weight, the reaſons of the change are more largely offered, and are to be found in the Annotations, referred to by ſome letter of the Alphabet a. b. c. &c. ſet over the top of the word in the Text; But when the matter is more perſpicuous, or leſſe weighty, ſo that the bare affixing of the Greek words is a ſufficient reaſon for the rendring them, then that only courſe is taken, and the Greek being affix'd to the Engliſh in the margent, the Reader is left to judge of it, and to make that advantage of the change, which he ſees cauſe for, without any prejudice to other rendrings.

* See the moſt excellent Paulus Fagius in his Praef. to the Targum of the Pentateuch.

3. Thirdly, for the Explication of thoſe difficulties in the phraſe, or ſenſe, which this this divine writing is ſtill capable of, two waies have been taken, which appeared moſt profitable, 1. by way of Paraphraſe, and 2^dly^, of Annotation. The firſt in compliance with the wants, and deſires of the moſt ignorant Reader, For whom it appeared expedient, whenſoever any part of the Text ſeemed capable of clearer words than thoſe wherein the Tranſlation had expreſſed them, ſo often to affix to thoſe obſcurer words a perſpicuous Paraphraſe, which is accordingly done in the outer larger margent of every verſe, and ſo much of the verſe as is explained, is included in one, if it be from the beginning of the verſe, or, if not, in two brackets, after this manner [ ] ſo that the reſt of the Text, which is excluded by the brackets, may coherently be read with the Paraphraſe of that which is included, and the ſenſe continue undiſturbed by that means. This in the hiſtorical parts of this Book is contrived within the bounds of convenient brevity, and ſometimes being wholly omitted, is yet ſupplied by ſome note of reference to any parallel place, where it had been before explained: But in the Epiſtles, where the Apoſtles reaſoning is cloſe, or the tranſitions not very diſcernible, and in the Revelation, where the obſcurities of the Prophetick ſtyle require a greater circuit of words to explicate them, there the Paraphraſe is more enlarged; and ſo it is in like manner, as oft as the length of that ſeemed ſufficient to remove the difficulty, or obſcurity of the Text, without any farther trouble to the Reader. Beſides this, whenſoever any appearance of difficulty ſtill remained, which had not been cleared by the former methods, the only reſerve hath been by way of Annotation, affixt in Columnes at the end of every Chapter, and referred by ſome Letter to that part of the Text to which it belongs, and there anſwered by the ſame letter both in the Text and Margent. Theſe Annotations are generally deſigned for the ſatisfaction, and uſe of thoſe, who have ſome underſtanding of the Original languages of the Bible, and therefore the ſeveral words, or phraſes ſo explicated, are in Greek ſet down in the margent of the Annotations, and all of them collected into an Index at the end of the Book, (and for the uſe of the Engliſh reader, the like Index of every word or phraſe ſo explained, is annext in that language alſo.) And by comparing of thoſe Original languages, the Hebrew words, or phraſes with the Greek which are uſed to render them, by conſulting the Gloſſaries of the beſt Grammarians, Heſychius and Phavorinus eſpecially (who have a peculiar title to this buſineſſe of explaining words in the New Teſtament) and by taking notice of ſome cuſtomes among the Jewes, and Grecians, and Romans, and by adding ſometimes the teſtimonies of the Antients, when they appeared moſt uſefull, and when my ſlender collections enabled me to annex them, and by ſome other means which the Reader will diſcern, (that eſpecially of weighing the Context, and comparing one Scripture with another) and by the bleſſed aſſiſtance and influence of Gods grace and providence upon all, this whole work hath been made up, and the difficulties of theſe divine writings in ſome meaſure explain'd, with as much brevitie as the matter ſeemed capable of, purpoſely abſtaining from all doctrinal concluſions and deductions, and definitions on one ſide, and from all Poſtillary obſervations, and accommodations, moral, or myſtical anagogies on the other ſide (both becauſe theſe latter are infinite, and becauſe every man is allowed (within the bounds of ſobriety) thus to apply ſcripture for himſelf, as his ſeveral taſt, and Genius ſhall ſuggeſt to him), and generally contenting my ſelf with the one primarie, and literal ſenſe of each place, unleſſe when there appeared ſome uncertainty, and juſt reaſon of doubting betwixt two or more ſenſes, which ſhould be preferred. One thing only it will be needfull to adde here, that the leſſe curious Reader, which deſires only to underſtand, and comprehend the plain ſenſe of the Scripture, and without any more adoe to apply it to his ſouls health, ſhall not need to tyre himſelf with the larger trouble of the Annotations, which of neceſſity contain many things above the underſtandings of the more ignorant. But for thoſe whoſe curioſitie ſhall demand the reaſons of any leſſe obvious interpretations, or ſuggeſt to them a willingneſſe of any farther ſearch, it will be neceſſary that the Annotations be read, as oft as there are any, And if at any time they ſeem to be wanting (in which particular I am not ſecure, but that much more may be fitly added in the opinion of other men, than to me ſeemed neceſſary) I ſhall firſt deſire that reſort be made to the known Commentators, eſpecially to the moſt excellent Hugo Grotius, from whom, as oft as I had nothing to adde, I purpoſely avoided to tranſcribe any thing, And if by this method he find not ſatisfaction, I muſt firſt beſeech his pardon for my miſtake in thinking that ſufficiently cleared, which was not, and then his free, and charitable advertiſement of the particulars, that what is now wanting may find ſome way of ſupply, either by ſome additional ſheets, or in a new impreſſion.

In order to which, As I am abundantly convinced of the defects, and miſcarriages of this work, (and have my ſelf, on ſecond thoughts, already diſcerned ſome things fit to be amended, after they were paſt the preſſe, and accordingly in the notes on the later books made ſome light variations from what had formerly been ſaid) and have now nothing farther left toward the repairing all others of the like ſort, but a ſincere deſire to receive benefit by all the admonitions, and directions, that any charitable Chriſtian (Father, or brother) ſhall, upon this my ſolemn requeſt, pleaſe to afford me, together with my promiſe of all readineſſe, to cut off, whatſoever I ſhall by impartial weighing, diſcern to want that diſcipline, So I beſeech, and importune the charity of thoſe, who have greater abilities, to contribute every one his talent toward the diſcovery of all the receſſes of this ſacred writing, that at length (though not yet) this Repoſitorie and Magazine of all ſaving knowledge, and divine obſervation, being clearly underſtood, and reſcued from the many unſound reſolutions and poſitions, which the gloſſes of men have obtruded on it, the reſult may be the compoſing of all diviſions, and factions in the Church of Chriſt, the thinking and minding of the ſame things, the obliging and engaging of our ſouls to the purſuit of that one neceſſarie, the performance of an early, cheerful, uniform, ſincere, conſtant obedience, and practiſe of all that Chriſt came from heaven to propoſe to us.

The hope, and intuition of which, as it was the main deſigne projected in undertaking of this work, ſo it will be the Readers only juſtifiable aime in peruſing it, and the only qualification, which will render him capable of reaping any fruit by the prayers, and miniſterie of thoſe which attend on this very thing, among them, of

OR,
Divine Illumination.

§. 1. THat which Jo: Beverovitius, a Phyſitian of Dort, thought neceſſary to be ſtated by the votes of the Learned of his age, before he would hope his profeſſion could finde any conſiderable entertainment among men, viz. whether there were a fatall period of every man's life, beyond which it were not in the compaſſe either of art, or ſobriety, or good managery to extend it, and as little in the power of diſeaſe, or intemperance, or even the plague, or ſword to ſhorten it; hath been matter of ſome conſideration to me in this work. For as in the deſigning of his time, and ſtudies it was prudently foreſeen by him, that one ſuch popular error being imbibed, and improved, as farre as it would fairly yeild, muſt needs be the defaming of his medicaments, and the blaſting of his whole profeſſion, as one great impoſture, ſo after the pains and travail that this work hath coſt from the time of the firſt thought, and deſignation of it, (at the beginning of my entrance on the ſtudy of Divinity) to this preſent day of the Nativity of it, I cannot look on it without ſome apprehenſion, that it may run the ſame hazard which we read of the child in the Revelation, c. 12. to be devoured, as ſoon as born, if one falſe pretenſion, which hath of late been ſomewhat proſperous in this Nation, and is utterly unreconcileable with the deſigned benefit of this, or any the like work, be not timely diſcovered, and removed.

§ 2. And the Pretenſion is this, That the underſtanding or interpreting the Word of God, or the knowing of his will, is not imputable to the uſe of ordinary means (ſuch are the aſſiſtance of God's Spirit joyned with the uſe of Learning, ſtudy, meditation, rational inference, collation of places, conſulting of the Original Languages, and antient Copies and Expoſitions of the Fathers of the Church, analogy of received Doctrine; together with unbyaſs'd affections and ſincere deſire of finding out the truth, and conſtant prayer for God's ſpecial bleſſing on, and cooperation with theſe and the like means) but either to the extraordinary gift of the Spirit in Prophecying, Preaching, and Expounding, or to illumination, not Prophetical or ſimply extraordinary, but ſuch as is thought to be promiſed to a new life, the work of the Spirit of God in the heart of every Saint of his, which conſequently ſuperſedes the uſe of all external Ordinances to ſuch, even of the written Word of God it ſelf contained in the Canon of the Scripture.

§ 3. Had this Pretenſion truth in it, I muſt confeſſe my ſelf, who do not pretend to any ſuch extraordinary gift, or inſpiration, obliged to acknowledge the great impertinency of all this inſuing work, the perfect vanity of the whole deſigne, and every part of it, and therefore am concerned (as far as the hazard of having laboured in vain) to examine the grounds, and manifeſt the falſeneſſe of this pretenſion, and that in this method, and by theſe degrees.

§ 4. Firſt, by ſurveying the Scripture grounds or proofs, which are producible in favour of it; Secondly, by ſetting down the form of ſound doctrine in this matter; Thirdly, by ſhewing the great neceſſity of oppoſing this, and adhering to the true doctrine. And theſe theſe are likely to enlarge this Poſtſcript beyond the bounds that would regularly belong to it, but will carry their Apology along with them.

§ 5. The firſt ground or proof is fetch'd by the Pretenders from Joel 2.28. cited and applied by S^t Peter, *Act.*2. to the times of the Goſpel, It ſhall come to paſſe afterward (or, * in the laſt days) ſaith God, that I will pour out my Spirit, (or, † of my Spirit) upon all fleſh, and your ſons, and your daughters ſhall prophecy, your old men ſhall dream dreams, your young men ſhall ſee viſions, and alſo upon the ſervants, and upon the hand-maids in thoſe days will I pour out my Spirit, (or, of my Spirit) and they ſhall prophecy. Whatſoever can bee collected from this place to the benefit of the pretenders, will receive a ſhort and clear anſwer by conſidering the time to which this prediction (and the completion of it) belonged, and that is expreſsly the laſt days, in the notion, wherein the Writers of the New Teſtament conſtantly uſe that phraſe, not for theſe days of ours ſo far advanced toward the end of the world, (which yet no man knows how far diſtant it ſtill is) but for the time immediately preceding the deſtruction of the Jewiſh polity, their City and Temple; That this is it, appears not onely by the mention of Sion, and the deſtruction approaching it, in the beginning of that Chapter in Joel, which ſignifies it to belong to Jeruſalem that then was; but alſo by two farther undeceivable evidences, 1. By the mention of the wonders (immediately ſubjoined) in the heavens, and the earth, &c. as forerunners of the great and terrible day of the Lord, the ſame that had been before deſcribed in Joel v.2. &c. and applyed by Chriſt, in the very words, to this deſtruction of Jeruſalem, *Mat.*24. 29, 30. 2^dly, By the occaſion, for which S^t Peter produceth it, Act. 2. 14. the effuſion of the holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, v. 2. 4. which, ſaith he, was no effect of drunkenneſſe in them, but the very thing which was foretold by that place of Ioel before that great and notable day of the Lord, that was to fall upon that people to an utter deſtruction. This being a prediction of what ſhould come before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the completion whereof was ſo viſible and remarkable in that age, to which by the Prophet it was aſſigned (and this as a peculiar character of thoſe times wherein the Goſpel was to be firſt propagated by this means, and to which it had a propriety, as a laſt act of God's miraculous and gracious œconomy for the full conviction of this peoples ſin, before they were deſtroyed) it muſt needs be impertinently and fallaciouſly applyed to any men or women, old or young, of this age, ſo diſtant from that, to which it belonged, and ſo well provided for by the ordinary means, the ſettled office of Miniſtery in Chriſt's Church, as to have no ſuch need of extraordinary.

§ 6. A ſecond proof is taken from 1 Cor. 12. 7. To every man is given the manifeſtation of the Spirit to profit withal, or, πρὸς τὸ συμφέρον, for the benefit, and profit of the Church. But this is ſoon cleared by the Context, which begins to treat v. 1. περὶ πνευματικῶν of, or concerning thoſe that have the Spirit, ſo πνευματικὸς the ſpiritual clearly ſignifies c. 14. 37. being joyned with προφήτης prophet, and ſo it is expreſt to ſignifie here v. 3. where ἐν πνεύματι λαλῶν ſpeaking in, or by the Spirit] is ſet as an inſtance of the πνευματικὸς the ſpiritual (and 'tis but a miſtake to render it ſpiritual things, the Greek πνευματικῶν belonging as directly to perſons, as things, being of the maſculine as well as of the neuter gender.) Now for theſe πνευματικοὶ ſpiritual men, or thoſe that have the ſpirit] 'tis well known that they were thoſe, which for the firſt planting of the Goſpel were by the deſcent of the Spirit indow'd with extraordinary gifts of miracles, of healing, of prophecying, of ſpeaking with ſtrange tongues, which they had never learnt; all which, and more are here mentioned v. 8 9, 10. and when theſe are exerciſed or made uſe of by any, this is called φανέρωσις πνεύματος the manifeſtation of the Spirit the Spirit of God manifeſting it ſelf hereby to be in ſuch a man after an extrordinary manner. And then I need onely add that the ἑκάστῳ to every one] in the front of the verſe, cannot in any reaſon be interpreted in the full extent of every man, or every Chriſtian, for then the moſt wicked would have their part in it, nor yet of every Saint, for there is nothing in the Text, which can ſo reſtrain it, but onely of every ſuch man as is ſpoken of in this diſcourſe, i. e. every πνευματικὸς, ſpiritual man, every one that is thus endew'd with extraordinary gifts of tongues, &c. for of ſuch it is here peculiarly ſaid, that the manifeſtation of the Spirit, the exerciſe of thoſe gifts is given, or deſigned by God for the benefit or advantage of the Church. And ſo this is of no force for the Enthuſiaſt, nor applyable to any, but thoſe who were thus extraordinarily endow'd by the Spirits deſcending upon them, which was a privilege of that age, for the planting of the Church, and not to be hoped for, (nor without ſacrilege pretended to) in any other.

§ 7. A third proof is taken from Joh. 6. 45. out of Isa. 54. 13. where it is foretold of the Christians, that they shall be all taught of God. For the understanding of the full importance of this Text, two frequent known Idiomes of the sacred style must be observed, 1. That verbs of knowing or understanding (such is learning or teaching) do ordinarily include the will or affection also, so as to know God, is to obey and serve him. 2dly, That verbs active (see note on 1 Thess. 3 a.) and passive (see note on Mat. 11. b.) but especially adjectives participial, do frequently include a real passion, or an effect wrought in the subject of the action or passion. And by the virtue of these two observations (frequently exemplified in the Annotations) the phrase διδακτοὶ θεοῦ, taught of God] will signifie διδακτοὶ θεοῦ those that by the attractions of his prevenient grace yeilded to, and made use of by them, are perswaded to be his followers or disciples, and so belongs not at all to the matter to which it is applyed by the Advocates of New Light, (see note on Mat. 15. d.) That this not onely may be, (which is sufficient to repel the force of the argument drawn from hence) but certainly is the entire importance of this place, appears by the Context in the Evangelist, 1. By the Antecedents, No man, saith Christ, *v.*44. can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me, draw him, and I will raise him up at the last day: where the Father's drawing, and, in the same sense, the Father's giving to Christ, v. 39. denotes this effect of the preventing grace of God, received in the humble pliable heart, and that as necessary to the undertaking the faith of Christ, or discipleship. And to this is this testimony out of Isaiah applied. It is written in the Prophets, They shall be all taught of God, i.e. all that sincerely come to Christ, that embrace the Christian religion, are such as were formerly spoken of, drawn by God, given to Christ by God, taught of God, by his prevenient grace so fitted and prepared, that they follow Christ, become his Proselytes and Disciples, when he is proposed to them. 2dly, By the consequents, Every one therefore that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me, where, as the coming unto me, is all one with the coming unto me, i. e. unto Christ *v.*44. so they that had heard and learned of the Father, being all one with the taught of God, must needs be they on whom the effect of that hearing and divine doctrine was wrought, i. e. those who were obedient to God's grace, disposing and fitting them with such a temper, that they should be ready and willing to be Christ's Disciples (see note on John 6. d.) 3dly, By the importance of the Prophecy from whence 'tis cited, Isa. 54. 13. where in a Prophecy of the Christian Church, (the flourishing condition thereof described v. 11, 12.) two things are affirmed of the children, i. e. members thereof, 1. Their obedience to God, they shall be taught of the Lord, they shall be disciples, followers, servants of God; and 2dly, their prosperous state, [and great shall be their peace] and those joyned in one, v. 14. In righteousnesse shalt thou be established] where, as establishment (farther express'd by security from oppression) is all one with their great peace, so in all reason is their righteousnesse equipollent with their being taught of God. And so still according to all the imaginable ways of judging, this, which we have given, is the importance of that phrase, and not that which is pretended from it. Nay, if the Text be again observed, it would be a foul absurdity, that would be consequent to that interpretation of it, that God the Father should be said thus immediately to teach them, who upon being so taught, are said to come to Christ, For 'tis certain Christ was set forth by God, as the teacher of his will, and that was the end of God's drawing any man to Christ, that he might receive the full knowledge of his will from thence, which it were impertinent, and even impossible for him to do, who were first taught by God in this sense. (Of another notion of the word θεοδίδακτοι a little varied from this, see 1 Thess. 4. 9.) Justin. 4 c.

§ 8. A fourth ground is fetch'd from the purport of the New Covenant, set down Heb. 8. 11. out of Jer. 31. 34. They shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord, for they shall all know me from the least to the greatest. But these words can no way belong to this matter, as will appear, if it be but considered, that that which is here promised, is somewhat wherein the state of the Gospel is opposed to that of the Law, which, if the not teaching be literally understood, it cannot be. For as in the Law, Moses taught God's will unto the people, and after him those that sate in Moses chair, so Christ also taught it under the Gospel, and the Apostles after him, which could not be, unless others were taught and instructed by them. And therefore that cannot be the sense of it. The words indeed belong to a matter very distant, They are a description of Christ's easie and gracious yoke (Mat. 11. 30.) as that is set out by the opposition to the imperfect, more burthensome, and lesse agreeable yoke of the Mosaical perforperformances, v.8. There were in that many πτωχὰ στοιχεῖα beggerly elements for beginners, many things improvable and capable of being hightned, and changed to the better by Chriſt's reformation, it was not ἄμεμπτος faultleſſe, v.7. and therefore when God deſigns to reform it, he doth it μεμφόμενος v.8. complaining of the defects of it, and incompetency toward the end. And then this New Covenant, which was to be introduced in ſtead of it, is ſet off and illuſtrated by the oppoſition to it, But this is the Covenant which I will make with the houſe of Iſrael after thoſe days, or in the latter days, i. e. at the coming of the Meſſias, ſaith the Lord &c. which as it is evidently a notation of the ſecond covenant betwixt God and the whole Chriſtian Church, and ſo ſufficiently removed from this of New Light, ſo can it not be applied to any peculiar gift of prophecy, of preaching, &c. appropriated to ſome men, but muſt have ſuch a notation, as will be common to the whole houſe of Iſrael in the antitype, i. e. to all Chriſtian profeſſors, not only the Saints of God, For with all ſuch is the covenant made in this gracious manner (though many of them doe not perform their parts, the condition of it) for otherwiſe they could not be ſaid to count the blood of it an unholy thing, *Heb.*10.29. The plain meaning of the words is, that it is a moſt gracious covenant, that God now meant to make with Chriſtians; and the graciouſneſſe of it was to conſiſt not only in the abundant mercy and pardon for ſin, which there would be afforded, v. 12. above what the Moſaical purgations and other obſervances could pretend to, but eſpecially in the agreeableneſſe of the precepts to the mind of man, to the humane rational ſoul; there ſhould be no need of taking ſuch pains (as among the Jews was taken) to inſtruct men in the multitude of obſervances, required of them, which yet under Moſes was abſolutely neceſſary, becauſe the things commanded were ſuch, as, unleſſe they had been known to be commanded by a Divine Lawgiver, and to that end frequently inculcated to that people, no man would have diſcerned himſelf obliged to perform; but the duties now required by God of inward purity (not of external circumciſion and purifications) were of their own nature able to approve themſelves to a rational creature, as moſt excellent and moſt elegible; written, as it were, in every mans own heart, if he would be patient to conſult them there; And then as this can no way be applied to new light, ſave as that ſignifies the light which Chriſt brought with him when he came into the world to inlighten every man, viz. the conſtant eſtabliſh'd duties of Chriſtian life univerſally revealed by Chriſt's preaching and promulgating this ſecond covenant, ſo it belongs not to any extraordinary way of revealing or expounding this covenant, or any part or branch thereof (there being no need of that after Chriſt had ſo plainly revealed it, and commanded his Apoſtles to preach it over the world) but onely to the agreeableneſſe (to the human ſoul) of that which was already revealed, the matter of this covenant. The ſame alſo is the importance of the former words, v.10. I will give my laws into their minds, and I will write them on their hearts, i. e. The Laws which ſhall now be given the Chriſtian Church, as God's Covenant with them, ſhall be laws of ſpiritual internal obedience, for the regulating, and ſubduing, and mortifying of their affections, impreſſed and inſcribed on their hearts (which muſt now be kept pure, as the fountain, from which all actions ſpring) whereas the former Moſaical ordinances reached onely to the fleſh, or outward members, and by that means did not conduce much either to inward or outward purity of the heart or actions.

§ 9. Another ſort of places there are, which more immediately belong to the ſecond branch of the pretenſion (and that which is more frequently preſſed) the privilege that the Saints have, by being ſuch, of underſtanding much more of the will of God, then any other can pretend to doe. And a firſt ground is that of *Joh.*7.17. If any man will do his (i. e. God's will) he ſhall know, &c. How little this place doth favour the pretenders of New light, will preſently appear 1. By conſidering what it is that here it is ſaid that the pious man, or the doer of his Fathers will ſhall know, viz. whether the doctrine which Chriſt preacheth, be of God or no. This was not matter of new Revelation, but the doctrine which Chriſt had already revealed and publiſhed to the world, and ſo could want no new light to make it known; Nay, for the paſſing judgment of that doctrine thus revealed by Chriſt, whether it were agreeable to the will, and ſent by the appointment of the Father, he had given them ſufficient means to proceed and conclude regularly, there was no need of any extraordinary diſcerning Spirit, the miracles which he did in the preſence of all, and the voice from heaven at his baptiſme, gave full authority to all that he ſaid, were matter of abundant conviction to all pious men, that it was the good pleaſure of God which he now taught, and there was nothing more wanting to be-

get beleif, but hearts duly qualified with piety and humility, which was neceſſary to render them a ſubactum ſolum, a ſoil, in which good ſeed being skilfully ſown, might take root, and bring forth plentifully. And that is the importance of the former part of the verſe, Ἐάν τις θέλῃ τὸ θέλημα μοῦ ποιεῖν, if any man will, or take pleaſure, (ſee *Mat.*27. note g.) to doe his will; The character of the pious man, of that preparation of the heart, which was required to fit men to a cheerful entertainment of Chriſt's doctrine, when it was already convincingly revealed to them. Which indeed is but proportionable to what * Hierocles, and the Philoſophers were wont to ſay of the neceſſity of curing and purging the eye, before it would be able to behold a bright or illuſtrious object, meaning the depoſiting of prejudices, and prepoſſeſſions and paſſions and prides, but eſpecially of all habits of ſin, which, while they are upon the ſoul, are the blinding of it, permit not practical truths, (eſpecially thoſe of an higher fourm, ſuch as thoſe of Chriſt's, requiring the purity of the eye and heart) to have any admiſſion with them: According to that of Ariſtotle, that as thoſe which are of raw and unruly affections, when they are taught moral precepts, λέγουσιν ἀπιθοῦσι, ſay them by road, but beleive not a word of them, ſo the habit and cuſtome of any vice is φθαρτικὴ ἀρχῶν corruptive of principles, makes men begin to queſtion, or not to underſtand thoſe practical dictates, which human nature, and common notions had furniſhed them with. This advantage indeed (very conſiderable) toward the underſtanding of truths already revealed, humility and piety hath, above pride and impiety; but as thoſe that take themſelves to be the only Saints of the earth, have but a weak claim to one of theſe, (and perhaps as weak to the other, which is never ſeated but in an humble breaſt) ſo if they had the beſt claim of any men now in the world, it would not raiſe or intitle them to the gift of revelation, any more than of tongues and miracles, of new light, than of ſpeaking Arabick, removing mountains, or foretelling things to come.

* Prof. Com: εἰς χρυσᾶ ἔπη

§ 10. Two other places there are in the next chapter *Joh.*8. which ſound as much for the intereſt of the pretenders, and ſignifie as little, v.31,32. If ye continue in my word, &c. ye ſhall know the truth, and the truth ſhall make you free. But that muſt be expounded by another idiome of the ſacred dialect (taken notice of and exemplified *Mat.*9. note d.) when one thing only being deſigned to be ſaid, another is premiſed preparative to it. And ſo here to them that continue in Chriſt's word, i. e. in conſtant obedience to it, the promiſe is, that the truth ſhall make them free, i. e. that the doctrine of Chriſt being thus continued in, ſhall procure them a moſt valuable freedome. To which continuing in Chriſt's word, the receiving the knowledge of the truth being preparative, it is accordingly ſet down before it, but not as part of the promiſe, being neceſſarily preſuppoſed in the condition; Chriſt's word] v.31. and the truth] being all one, and the knowing it pre-required to continuing in it. However nothing of new light can poſſibly be intimated by this knowing the truth; but only that which by Chriſt's preaching was made known unto them.

Γνώσεσθε ἀλήθειαν

§ 11. The ſecond place in that chapter is v.43. Why doe you not underſtand my ſpeech? Even becauſe you cannot hear my word. But that hath no more aſpect on this matter, than the former had: 'Tis only the rendring an account of the reaſon, why Chriſt's expreſſions ſeemed ſtrange unto them, why they did not acquieſce and beleive all he ſaid unto them, but ſtill diſputed againſt it, viz. the diſagreeableneſſe of his doctrine to their carnal humors and fancies, their impatience of ſuch ſevere precepts, as he came to propoſe to them.

Λαλιὰν τὴν ἐμὴν οὐ γινώσκετε

§ 12. Another ground is fetch'd from 1 *Cor.*2. in many verſes thereof, (which are ſufficiently cleared and vindicated to their proper ſenſe by the ſeveral Paraphraſes upon them) but eſpecially v.15. He that is ſpiritual judgeth all things, &c. But how little that belongs to the juſtifying this claim, will ſoon be diſcerned by inquiring who is the ὁ Πνευματικὸς, or ſpiritual there; without queſtion ſuch an one, as is ſaid to have received the Spirit which is of God, v.12. Such were the Apoſtles and others of that time, which by the deſcent of the holy Ghoſt were taught, and inſtructed in all things, which belonged to their office to reveal to the world, to whom they had Commiſſion to preach. And of ſuch an one there is no queſtion, but that he ἀνακρίνει πάντα, diſcerneth all things, comes to the knowledge of all thoſe parts of God's will, which have before been kept cloſe with God, as myſteries which the Angels knew nothing of it, but are now by Chriſt and his Spirit (which, ſaith he, ſhould teach them all things) convincingly made known, to have been the ſubject of the antient prophecies: And the arguments that ſuch an one uſeth to convince others, being not fetch'd from human reaſon, or the Artiſt's Topicks of probation, but only from proofs afforded by this Spirit of

Ἀνακρίνει πάντα

God, miracles, gifts of tongues, voices from heaven, old prophecies &c. it therefore follows, that as he by theſe means comes to know theſe myſteries, ſo no worldly wiſe man, Philoſopher, or the like, called the ψυχικὸς, animal man, before, is qualified to argue or diſpute againſt him, And ſo this hath no propriety or peculiarity of aſpect on theſe future times, wherein as that which was revealed to thoſe Apoſtles is ſufficiently communicated to us by ordinary means, in the writings of the Scripture, ſo there can be no need or uſe of extraordinary.

§ 13. Others are pleaſed to argue from 1 *Joh.*3.24. Hereby know we that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us. But that will ſoon vaniſh, if we obſerve the notion of πνεῦμα Spirit, (enlarged on in note on *Lu.*9.d.) in many places of the New Teſtament, for the temper abſolutely, or more ſtrictly a gratious, pious temper, or diſpoſition of minde, and ſo the Spirit which he hath given us, may there very commodiouſly ſignifie that gratious charitable diſpoſition, which being ſo eminently in Chriſt, is by his example & his precepts recommended, & by our continuing in his diſcipleſhip, communicated to us, and wrought in us. The underſtanding it ſo in that place is very agreeable to the former part of the verſe, He that keepeth his commandements, dwelleth in him, and he in him, i.e. every obedient ſervant of his continueth in Chriſt, i. e. adhereth to Chriſt, and Chriſt continueth in him, and ſo he receiveth all gratious influences from him, particularly that of charity or loving his fellow-Chriſtians, as Chriſt gave us commandment, v. 23. that ſpecial piece of Chriſtian temper, ſo largely exemplified, and ſo ſtrictly required by Chriſt of all his Diſciples. And ſo again we ſee the phraſe uſed, c.4.13. By this we know that we abide in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath given us of his Spirit. The ground of that ſpeech is laid v.12. If we love one another, God abideth in us, and his love is perfected in us, i. e. our charity to others is an evidence of our continuing to receive divine infuſions and influences from God (for love or charity is ſuch) and that a proof, that we have tranſcribed and imitated that love, which he hath exemplified to us, for this is meant by his love being perfected in us, as his ſufferings are filled up and perfected in us, when they are imitated by us, when we ſuffer for well doing, as he did, The end of a copie or pattern being this, that we ſhould tranſcribe it, and ſo the taking it out, imitating it, as we ought to do, the only way of perfecting it. And ſo that whole verſe is but a Paraphraſe on that ſpeech of Chriſt's, By this ſhall all men know that ye are my diſciples, if ye love one another, Chriſt bringing his ſcholars and followers up in the practiſe of this duty, beyond all others. And upon this is built that which immediately follows, and ſo it muſt be interpreted by it, By this we know that we abide in him, and he in us, ὅτι, becauſe, or that he hath given us of his Spirit, i. e. this is a ſure κριτήριον by which we may conclude our living like diſciples of his, our not having forſaken him, as other uncharitable Gnoſtick hereticks appear to have done, and ſo likewiſe his continuing to communicate his influences to us, as to diſciples he is wont, that we are like him in this ſpecial grace of charity, the quality that is ſo remarkable in him. And ſo this is very remote from the Enthuſiaſt's pretenſions.

§ 14. One eſpecial reſerve there is ſtill behind from 1 Iohn 2.20. Ye have an unction from the holy One and ye know all things, and v. 27. in words not much varied and to the ſame ſenſe, The anointing which ye have received of him, abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you; But as the ſame anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lye, and even as it hath taught you, remain in him ſtill, or, as we read, ye ſhall abide in him; That the full meaning of the Unction's teaching or having taught them all things, is their having been inſtructed by thoſe on whom the holy Ghoſt (which was to teach them all things) had deſcended, and confirmed by the gift of miracles, abiding at that time in their Churches, hath been ſhewed at large note on *Act.*10.d., and that takes away all the pretenders title from this place. But beſide this, it is evident by the Context, what it was, that this Unction was ſaid to teach them, viz. that Jeſus was the Chriſt contrary to the Gnoſtick hereticks v.18. which denyed it, and are therefore called Ἀντίχριστοι Antichriſts, They, ſaith he, v.19. went out from us, theſe hereticks that denyed Jeſus to be Chriſt, But ye have an unction &c. and ye know all things (the all things here, being according to the ordinary Scripture ſtyle, to be interpreted only of all thoſe things which are there ſpoken of) Ye have certain and infallible evidences, that Ieſus is the Chriſt, From whence he immediately concludes again, that they that have denyed this are lyars and Antichriſts v. 22. and puts them in minde of that which had firſt been taught them and ſufficiently evidenced unto them from the beginning of the Goſpels being preached unto them v.24. in oppoſition to theſe falſe doctrines which had ſince been infuſed amongſt them, v.26. to whom again he oppoſeth the unction v.27. And ſo ſtill here is nothing in the leaſt degree favourable to the pretenſions of the Enthuſiaſt.

§ 15. Some other places I find to be mention'd, which are yet farther removed from this matter, for which they are pretended, as Gal. 3. 14. that we might receive the promiſe of the Spirit, through faith. What is meant there by the promiſe of the Spirit, i.e. the Spirit promiſed his diſciples by Chriſt at his parting from the world, appears at the beginning of that chap. v. 2,3. viz: the powers of working miracles &c. and ſo 'tis interpreted v.5. He therefore that miniſtreth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, And this may fitly be ſaid to be received through faith, both as that is oppoſed to the Moſaical œconomie, under which there were not then thoſe powers in the Church of the Jewes, as it is ſaid v.2. Received ye the Spirit by the works of the Law, or by the hearing of faith? and according to Chriſt's promiſe to beleivers, Theſe ſignes ſhall follow them that beleive, in my name they ſhall caſt out devils, &c. Mar. 16.17. And ſo this place belonging to thoſe miraculous operations of the Spirit in thoſe times, uſefull for the erecting of a Church, can no more be applicable to beleivers in theſe times, than the ſpeaking of tongues, and gifts of healing &c. which are not imagined by theſe pretenders to belong to them by force of this place.

§ 16. Somewhat different from this is that other of Epheſ. 1. 17. (and parallel to that Col. 1. 9.) that the Father of glory would give you the Spirit of wiſdome and revelation in the knowledge of him, the eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned &c. In this place there is little of difficulty, ſave that ἐν ἐπιγνώσει αὐτοῦ is not rightly interpreted in the knowledge of him, whereas it ſhould be, [to the acknowledgment of him] as the end of the wiſdome and revelation, not the matter of it. That it is ſo, appears by the following words, The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned, that ye may know—— Where as the enlightning of their underſtandings is anſwerable to the Spirit of wiſdome and revelation, ſo the phraſe [that ye may know] is anſwerable to [ἐν ἐπιγνώσει] and ſo renders ἐν (as it is ordinarily uſed for εἰς) to, not in the knowing, or acknowledging of him. Which being præmiſed, the plain meaning of the words is, that the Apoſtle having heard of the Epheſians proficiency in the faith of Chriſt, praies that they may come to farther growth yet, even to all abundance of all ſorts of Chriſtian knowledge, underſtanding the higheſt ſpiritual truths, called wiſdome, and interpreting of prophecies of the Old Teſtament, called Revelation, and both theſe as extraordinary (χαρίσματα) gifts at that time, and ſo called the Spirit of wiſdome and revelation, and this for this end, that Chriſt might be fully diſcern'd, and the truth of his doctrine acknowledged, by this means; In the ſame manner as ch. 4. 11. it is ſaid of Chriſt that he gave ſome Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, ſome Evangeliſts, ſome Paſtors and teachers, (each of theſe furniſhed with extraordinary gifts, ſuch as here are named) for the building of the body of Chriſt (i. e. his Church) untill we come to the unity of the faith and acknowledgment of the ſon of God—— that ye be no more toſt &c. All which ſhews the high, extraordinary waies that were then afforded by God, by the deſcent of the Spirit, (for the building of a Church, and confirming the faith of weaklings againſt the invaſion of hereticks, which fell off, and denied Chriſt) and were here by the Apoſtle pray'd for to the Church of the Epheſians, but cannot be extended as a promiſe to the Enthuſiaſt now that ſuch gifts ſhall be, or are afforded him.

§ 17. Beſide theſe of the New Teſtament, other places are produced out of the Old, as from Pſal. 25. 9. The meek will he teach his way, and v. 12. what man is he that feareth the Lord? him ſhall he teach in the way that he ſhall chooſe, and v.14. The ſecret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will ſhew them his covenant: But all theſe belong to a matter very diſtant from what the Enthuſiaſt pretends, viz: the benefit and advantage, that accrues to all thoſe that ſincerely and diligently obſerve the lawes of God. The meek v. 9. are certainly the obedient, and ſo the man that feareth the Lord v.12,14. and for the promiſes that belong to ſuch, they are all to the ſame purpoſe, under ſeveral expreſſions, God will teach them his way, and teach them in the way that he ſhall chuſe, i. e. direct and aſſiſt them in doing that which ſhall be acceptable in his ſight (not make known his lawes of life by way of Revelation to them, for they were certainly made known to them already, and ſo here 'tis ſuppoſed, for otherwiſe how can they be ſaid to keep them? v.10.) and then ſhew them his covenant, and communicate his ſecret to them, i.e. afford them (in the practiſe of piety and virtue) thoſe taſts of the ſweetneſſe of it beyond all other courſes, that they ſhall by experience find how excellent, and (for it ſelf, abſtracted from the eternal reward) how deſireable a thing it is to follow God's waies, and not our own corrupt appetites. This muſt needs be the meaning of ſhewing them his covenant, that covenant, whereby he promiſeth all good things to them upon their obedience, which Covenant was already made known to them, and could no otherwiſe now be ſhewed them, but by their diſcerning the graciouſneſſe of it; And for the ſecret of the Lord, that is this ſweetneſſe which reſults from the obeying his precepts, like that of Manna from heaven (called hidden Manna) agreeable to every man's taſt, ſavourie to every rational ſoul. That this is the full meaning of it, appears by v.10. where all the paths of the Lord (thoſe wherein he is ſaid to guide and teach the meek v.9.) are ſaid to be mercy and truth, i.e. made up of goodneſſe in the higheſt degree (ſo ſaith Kimchi of חסד mercy, that it is יתרון השובה the abundance, or excellence of goodneſſe) and of agreeableneſſe to the underſtanding or upper ſoul of a man (to the common impreſſions that are in him) to ſuch as keep his Covenant and his teſtimonies, i.e. obſerve, and practiſe them, and thereby have that excellencie experimented to them, which wicked men, which never come to practiſe and trie what it is to doe as God directs, never apprehend to be in it. To this purpoſe there are infinite teſtimonies in this book of the Pſalms, *Pſal.*19.9,10. The judgments of the Lord are more to be deſired than gold, yea than much fine gold, ſweeter alſo than honey and the honey-comb, moreover by them is thy ſervant taught, and in keeping of them there is great reward, Where 'tis manifeſt what the judgments are, the commands and rules of life, ſuch as are to be kept or obſerved, and all benefits, and pleaſures, and advantages preſent, and future, are the conſtant reſult, and reward of that obſervance, So again v.7. The law of the Lord is perfect (hath all kind of goodneſſe in it, ſo the Hebrew ſignifies, and the Greek τελειον) converting or reſtoring the ſoul, bringing the man to himſelf again, from that degenerous condition of the ſinner (ſo unworthy of the rational creature, that it renders him a very fool and unreaſonable) to that honourable ſtate of piety and virtue, and ſo making wiſe the ſimple, changing the Sinner-fool into the Scripture-wiſe, i.e. pious virtuous man. To which purpoſe, ſee the 13 part of Pſal. 119. And to the confirming this Interpretation of this and the like places, I ſhall uſe one argument taken ab abſurdo, from the abſurdity which would follow from making them inſtrumental to the Enthuſiaſts claims; For it is well known that God revealed his will in thoſe daies by Prophets particularly called, and deſigned, and commiſſionated to that purpoſe; And if any thing was to be done, which had not been ſufficiently declared by the ſtanding known Lawes, or when thoſe had been remarkably deſpiſed, and neglected, a man of God was choſen and ſent from heaven with ſuch new Revelations: Which was no way agreeable to, or reconcileable with this other method, of God's revealing all his ſecrets to every pious, obedient ſervant of his, for then there would have been no need of any other.

§ 18. Of the ſame nature with theſe, are thoſe others that are produced out of the Pſalmiſt, *Pſal.*111.10. A good underſtanding have all they that doe his commandements (where yet our margent reads farre otherwiſe, and ſo as takes away all appearance of force from it, Good ſucceſſe have they &c.) Pſal. 119. 18. Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law; and ſo Prov. 2. 7. God layeth up ſound wiſdome for the righteous, and ch.3.32. Gods ſecret is with the righteous, All perfectly agreeable to the former Texts, and vindicated from the Enthuſiaſts miſpriſions by the Interpretations that have been affixed to them. As for that of Prov. 28. 5. they that ſeek the Lord underſtand all things,] it muſt be explain'd by the Context, not to belong to all things indefinitely, but, as hath been ſaid, and as it is ordinary in the Scripture-ſtyle (ſee 1 Cor. 13. 7.) all the things that are there ſpoken of, i.e. the judgments of God in the former part of the verſe, his wiſe and juſt proceedings againſt the wicked, and his rewarding of piety, ſo that no man ſhall have any reaſon (to call the proud happy) to praiſe the wicked v. 4. and ſo the plain meaning of the place is, that whatever the Atheiſtical ſinner thinks, of God's neglecting the government of the world, from whence he takes courage and confidence to ſin, yet the truly pious man is able to contend with (v.4.) and confute him, he finds experimentally the reward of the righteous, and knows that which the Atheiſt will not acknowledge, that there is a God that judgeth the earth, and ſo that is nothing to the purpoſe to which it is produced by the pretenders.

§ 19. And as little that of the Prophet, *Iſa.*35.8. of the high way, the way of holineſs, and the wayfaring men though fools, ſhall not erre therein. For (beſides that that Propheeie might have a completion in Iſrael, and muſt not needs be extended any farther, then to what it primarily belonged) this meaning of it, as figuratively it is applicable to the Chriſtian Church, is moſt obvious, that the duties by God required of us, are ſo plain and evident, that he that ſets himſelf to the practiſe of them, be he of never ſo ſlow an underſtanding, ſtanding, cannot chooſe but know them; Or elſe that the condition of the Covenant now required of us under Chriſt, is not ſuch, as that any man through weakneſſe, or ignorance, or involuntary error, ſhould ever miſcarry, or loſe his part of the promiſe of that Covenant; Onely deliberate ſins againſt Grace, and againſt Knowledge are imputed to any man to his ruine.

§ 20. So for the promiſe of putting a new Spirit in them, Ezech. 11. 19. that is interpreted evidently by the latter end of the verſe, I will give them an heart of fleſh, i.e. give them that meaſure of my grace, which ſhall work a reformation in them, that they walk in my ſtatutes and keep my ordinances, as it follows v. 20.

§ 21. Laſtly for that of Hag 2. 5. My Spirit remaineth with you, 'tis evident that God's power, and mighty work of delivetance, ſuch as had been ſhewn in reſcuing the Iſraelites out of Ægypt, is the thing there meant by my Spirit, for thus the words are introduced (being ſpoken of the re-edifying of the Temple) According to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Ægypt, ſo my Spirit remaineth among you, and therefore as an effect of confidence in that power, it follows, Fear ye not; which can no way pertain to the pretenſions of the Enthuſiaſt.

§. 22. Having taken this view of the chiefeſt of thoſe places, which have been deemed favourable to the pretenders of New light, and diſcovered the miſtakes of them, I proceed to the ſecond branch of my method, the ſetting down the form of ſound doctrine in this matter, and that will be moſt fitly done by theſe ſteps and degrees.

§ 23. 1. That all knowledge of God's will is confeſſedly (as every good gift) from God, communicated by thoſe means and degrees, which God hath been pleaſed to chooſe, the light of nature, the revelations, and oracles, and voices from heaven to the fathers, and at laſt by his own ſon Jeſus Chriſt, and his Apoſtles commiſſionated by him, which being the laſt method, or way of revelation which we have reaſon to expect, our whole duty is hereby reſolved to be contained and ſet down in thoſe laws of the Old, but eſpecially of the New Teſtament, which make up the Chriſtian Canon or Rule.

§ 24. 2^diy^, That any farther light, than that which is thus afforded us, cannot in any reaſon be pretended to by any, or ſo as may ſatisfie himſelf or others, unleſſe it may appear by means ſufficient to convince a rational man, 1. In general, that it is agreeable to the œconomie under the Goſpel, that any one, after Chriſt and his Apoſtles, and others of that firſt age extraordinarily endowed, ſhould to the end of the world be called to the office of a Prophet, as that ſignifies one that is ſent to make known de novo, to publiſh God's truth or will unto men: And 2. that he particularly is ſuch a Prophet, and ſo ſent, and by authentick teſtification of divine miracles, or of mighty works, which neither man nor devil can work without the aſſiſtance of an omnipotent power, demonſtrated and evidenced to be ſo.

§ 25. 3^dly^, That if it ſhould now be affirmed, that any man is, or ſince the Apoſtles age hath been, thus endowed, It would be under a very ſtrong prejudice from the contrary opinion of the whole Church of God for 15 Centuries, who having received the Books of the Old and New Teſtament for the one conſtant durable Canon of faith, muſt be ſuppoſed to reſolve, that nothing elſe ſhall ever be added to that Canon, i. e. no new Revelations ſhall ever be made, (for if they ſhould, our faith muſt be regulated by them as well as by any part of God's word already received) and therefore in all reaſon this affirmation muſt be teſtified by Arguments or proofs fit to out-balance ſo great an authority, which cannot be by any one mans affirmation of himſelf, whoſe teſtimony in this matter is of no validity, and yet 'tis evident that there are no other.

§ 26. 4^thly^, That the underſtanding the word of God contain'd in the Scripture, is no work of extraordinary illumination, but muſt be attained by the ſame means, or the like, by which other writings of men are expounded, and no otherwiſe. In other writings ſome things are ſo plain, that by the ſtrength of common reaſon, any man that is maſter of that, and underſtands the language wherein they are written, may underſtand them; others have ſuch difficulties in them, ariſing either from the conciſeneſſe or length of ſtyle, or ſublimitie of the matter of the diſcourſe, or intermixture of old forgotten cuſtomes &c. that there will be need of proper helps in each of theſe to overcome the ſeveral difficulties: And ſo it is in the underſtanding of Scripture, thoſe places that are plain, want no farther illuminating either of the medium or of the eye, to diſcern or underſtand the meaning of them: And for the ſearching to the bottome of the greater depths, 'tis as certain that the uſe of humane means doth ordinarily aſſiſt and conduct us ſucceſsfully (as obſervation of the uſage of the word or phraſe in other places, conſidering the cuſtomes of the people, the ſcope of the writer, and many the like) and when it doth not ſo, 'tis viſible that it is from my want of ſuch aſſiſtances, which when I after come to meet with, I get through the difficulty, and by growth in knowledge, and obſervation doe come as perfectly to underſtand the more abſtruſe paſſage to day, as I did the more perſpicuous yeſterday. And indeed if extraordinary illumination were required to underſtand the more difficult places of Scripture, it could not be denied to be neceſſary to all the moſt eaſie alſo (It being evident that the plaineſt precept in the original language, which alone is the word of God, is as inexplicable by him that underſtands not Greek or Hebrew, as the cloſeſt ſubtileſt arguings in S. Paul's Epiſtle) and ſo no man ſhould be acknowledged to underſtand any part of God's will, but the Saint that knows all of it, a ſuppoſition moſt evidently contrary to thoſe many Texts of Scripture, which ſuppoſe men to know the will of God, which they doe not practiſe.

§ 27. 5^ly^, It is moſt true that there is need of the concurrence of God's aſſiſtance, and bleſſing, his grace and his providence to the uſe of all ordinary means to render them ſucceſsfull to us, and ſo there is need of God's illuminating Spirit to aſſiſt our weak eyes, our dark faculties; But then this Illumination is but that which is annexed to the uſe of the means, and not that which works without them, and this act of his providence is a ſuggeſting of means which had not otherwiſe been thought of, had not God by his good hand directed to them, which he doth not by any inſpiration, but by offering of occaſions which humane induſtrie is left to improve, and if it doe not, receives no benefit by them; And ſo ſtill this is the old light which hath commonly been afforded the diligent, no new illumination for the Enthuſiaſt. And of this ſort of illumination three things are obſervable, 1. That it is not diſcernible to be ſuch in the principle, but only in the fruits of it, 'tis not (nor can it without miracle be) known by any, that it is divine illumination, nor conſequently that it is true (the ſuggeſtions of my own phanſie, nay of the devil may be miſtaken for it) but only by the agreeableneſſe of it with thoſe truths, which are already revealed from God, and that are by other evidences, then that of the private Spirit, known to be ſo revealed, Nay that agreeableneſſe with divine, is not alwaies ſufficient to define it an illumination, for my phanſie may and doth ſometimes ſuggeſt truth, and the devil that knows much truth, may, when 'tis not his intereſt to lie, help men to the knowledge of truth, and ſo in the Oracle he often did; However that truth is again to be examined by humane, rational means, not by the Spirit, for if it were, that ſecond ſentence or judgment of the Spirit would again want other means to diſcern whether that were a true Spirit or no; 2^dly^, That thoſe Illuminations come not ſo irreſiſtibly, but that they may be oppoſed by humane interpoſitions, prejudices, prepoſſeſſions, pride, opinionating &c. and ſo ſtill it will be at every turn uncertain, whether they be thus reſiſted or no, and till that be revealed by ſome new light alſo, it will ſtill be unevident which is the truth of God, to which the illumination, or the providence aſſiſts, or directs any; And 3^dly^, that the illuminations ordinarily afforded by God are proportioned not to his all-ſeeing knowledge, but to our capacities, and our real wants, and ſo, as his ſanctifying grace is not given in ſuch a degree, or manner, as to preſerve us impeccable, ſo neither his illuminations, as to render us inerrable or infallible; But it being certain in both, that God is not wanting to us in neceſſaries (as he doth not bind himſelf to abound to us in ſuperfluities) the onely concluſion from thence will be, that where God affords not his grace, he requires not of us thoſe performances, to which that grace was neceſſary, and ſo that he will ſupply by his pardon what was wanting in our ſtrength (and ſure he will pardon errors of weakneſs as well as ſins of weakneſs, humane neſciencies, as wel as humane frailties) and not that he will give all light, when by not exacting all knowledge, that light was rendred unneceſſary for us.

§ 28. 6^ly^, That God's illuminations being proportion'd to our wants, and not to our ambitions, or wantonneſſes, it will be ſufficient that they be afforded to thoſe who are by him regularly called and ſent to ſome office in his Church of inſtructing and teaching others, thoſe others being left to ſuch more moderate degrees, which are agreeable to their more private condition, and the ſupplies which are allow'd them from the Paſtor, whoſe lips are to preſerve knowledge, and they to ſeek the law at his mouth; And as this advantage belongs not to the Ahimaaz, who runs, or aſſumes authority to himſelf, when he is not ſo ſent, but only to him that can ſhew the regularity of his miſſion, ſo neither to him unlimitedly, but onely ſo farre as may competently fit him for the diſcharging his office, which is, the calling ſinners to repentance, and directing and confirming them in Chriſtian practiſe (and a moderate moderate proportion of knowledge may be as competent for that, as a greater measure of Illumination, he that hears not plain duty from Moses and the Prophets. neither will he repent though one were sent from the dead) Nor to him without use of the ordinary means, studie &c. Nor to him without possibility of error, through his humane weakness; nor of heresie, and even Apostasie, through the vicious habits in his own heart, which this light doth not dissolve or dispel, but leaves to be mortified by other means.

§ 29. 7^thly, The sanctifying Spirit of God being received and employed effectually to the mortifying of carnal sins, and all filthiness of the spirit also, pride, obstinacy, faction, singularity, ambition, vain-glory, sluggishness, and all irregular passions and interests &c. is an excellent preparative to the receiving benefit from God's illuminations, and the truly humble pious man is, cæteris paribus, more likely to be led into all profitable, or practical truths, than he who hath all or any of those clouds of darkness in him: But this again not so that the pious man shall be able to acquire knowledge without humane means, to understand the Bible in the original without many years studying of those languages, wherein it was written, or to divine the meaning of Scripture without the assistance of those that have searched into the depth of it, nor so as to be infallible in what he doth use means to search, when those means are perhaps imperfect (and will always be so till he comes to the state of vision) and so incompetent to find out the truth, or else his parts incompetent for the judging or fathoming of it, It being evident in the most pious man, what S. Paul personates in himself, 1 Cor. 13. that we now see as in a glasse darkly, and know but in part, v. 12.

§ 30. 8^thly, That after all this the common illuminations of God's Spirit are imparted as God's sun and rain, to the unthankfull and unjust and wicked, as well as to the Saints and holy ones (we know the Devils science acquired by natural means is great beyond any mans, and could not be so, unless either those natural means were able to carry him as farre as common illuminations doe others, or else the illuminations afforded one, be also communicated to the other) The chief differences are 1. in the use of their knowledge, the one useth it to the benefit of himself and others, the other useth it not at all to his own advantage, but abuseth it to the destruction of others. 2^dly, The one through humility and many other virtues is kept from the assuming knowledge, where he hath none, or of boasting it, where he hath, and so is preserved from many errors and foul misadventures, which the arrogance of another betraies him to; but still these differences and others arise from the qualifications of the recipient, not from the degrees of the illuminations. If illuminations, of themselves, were competent to purge the heart, and prepare them for that holiness without which no man shall see the Lord, it might then be reasonable to extend God's promise of more grace to the humble, by way of reward for their humility, to the more illuminated: But the use of illuminations being to fit some men to instruct others (and that being reconcileable with the eternal perishing of the instructers, 1 Cor. 9. 27.) there appears not any reason of extending that promise from sanctifying grace, to that which is so distant from it, the increase of light and knowledge being so frequently, what the Apostle affirms in his time, the betraying and ruining of humility, 1 Cor. 8. 2. that it cannot regularly be looked on as the reward of it.

§ 31. It now remains that in the last place I proceed in few words to demonstrate the great necessity of opposing and rejecting the Enthusiasts pretensions, and adhering to the true doctrine. And that will be done by considering the dangers consequent to those pretensions.

§ 32. 1. That of diminishing or increasing the Scripture or Canon of the written word, whensoever the Enthusiast (who by his trusting on a broken reed is of all men the most likely to fall often) shall mistake in interpreting any part of it. For the new light, if it be from heaven, being as certain to discover truth, as it is certain that God cannot ly, what soever is taught by it, must necessarily be as true, as that holy Scripture it self, and if it be the interpretation of any particular parcel of Scripture, and yet vary from the true sense of it, it must consequently (to every one that believe it) take out so much of God's word out of the Canon, as that parcel did truly contain, and add as much to it also as that false interpretation amounts to: which being as often iterable, as there be places of Scripture explicable; or mistakable by the Enthusiast, these substractions and additions may also be infinite, and as many different new Canons of Scripture, every yeer made, as there be, or may be assuming pretenders to interpretation, and those are infinite also. And this is one competent danger.

§ 33. A second danger is, that by the possessing of men's minds with this opinion of new light, or the voice of God's Spirit within them, the authority of the whole written word of God in effect is ſuperſeded and evacuated: This we ſee already to be the fruit of this pretenſion in many, who calling the Scripture the Letter, and the voice within them, the Spirit, apply to theſe two that place of 2 Cor. 3.6 the Letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life, the concluſion from whence is naturally & inevitably this, that the Scripture, when it differs from the Enthuſiaſts phanſie, is pernicious, and mortiferous, and no antidote ſufficient againſt it, but the following the dictates, be they never ſo corrupt and carnal (as when they are contrary to God's written word, it muſt be expected they ſhould be) of a mans own heart. And then, as when there was no King in Iſrael, it was an eaſie deduction, that every one ſhould do that which was right in his own, not in God's eyes, ſo it is to be expected that when this Theocraty (God's governing men's lives by the written word) is caſt off, all villanies and abominations ſhould ſtraight poſſeſſe thoſe hearts, which have betaken themſelves to this riotous liberty. And ſo we find it affirmed of the Gnoſticks by S. Peter and S. Jude, (as the general obſervation of the Apoſtles) that they ſcoffed and derided the revealed promiſes of God, walking after their own ungodly luſts, every man following his own inordinate appetite, & theſe very men, when they did all this, calling themſelves the ſpiritual, and the knowing (ſo Γνωστικοὶ ſignified, and that γνῶσις knowledge was the interpretation of the myſteries in the Scripture, after their own phanſie, miſcalled the Spirit, directly the New light which now we ſpeak of) A conſequent whereof it was, that they ſeparated from all the Orthodox Chriſtians, and joyned with the Jewes to perſecute them.

God

§ 34. A third danger, moſt immediatly conſequent to this pretenſion, is the making God oppoſite and contrary to himſelf, as he muſt be, if he be thought to own all the gleams of New Light, that ſhine in their ſeveral hearts that pretend to it, For theſe are moſt frequently different, and often contrary the one to the other (as appears by the multitude of opinions and contrarietie of practiſes, which this one fruitful mother of monſters hath brought forth all equally pretending to the wiſdome that cometh from above) and that not onely in ſeveral men, but in the ſame men at ſeveral times ſeeing and unſeeing the ſame things; which how injurious it is to God, who can more change, than ly, need not be here manifeſted.

§ 35. A fourth danger is confuſion among men, continual diſturbances of Kingdomes or States, the Governors whereof having no other authority than what is founded on, or agreeable to the word & wil of God, It will ſtill be in the power of each pretender to deliver oracles out of his own breaſt, as immediate dictates of God, quite contrary to the ſafety and intereſt of that Government, whatſoever it is, which is at any time any where eſtabliſhed. And ſo the peace of kingdomes muſt be as uncertain and mutable, as the phanſies of men, and the laws as ambulatory as Teſtaments, while the Teſtator lives, every illuminate breaſt pretending to come like Moſes from God in Sinai, with new tables of Divine commandments, which in all reaſon muſt ſuperſede the old, be they never ſo firmly eſtabliſhed.

§ 36. The ſum of this matter is, that it being evidently conſequent to this pretenſion, that the voice of the Devil may be miſtaken for the dictate of the Spirit of God, there is nothing ſo vile, or monſtrous, earthy, ſenſual, devilliſh, but may paſſe for divinely inſpired by theſe means; and if it be regular to worſhip him as God, whom we own as ſuch, it may by immediate conſequence bring in among the Chriſtians the ſame worſhip of Devils, which had long poſſeſſion of the heathen Temples, thoſe being by the worſhippers beleived, and adored as the true God, becauſe they gave reſponſes out of the cave, delivered Oracles &c. unto them.

§ 37. How far the ſober attempt and endevour of interpreting obſcure places of Scripture, by the aſſiſtance of God's Spirit cooperating with humane means, is removed from all theſe dangers, I ſhall not need to ſhew in more words, than theſe, that what is here offered to the Reader, in this enſuing volume, pretends no otherwiſe to challenge his beleif, than it ſhall ſatisfie his underſtanding, that it probably is what it pretends to be, and then if he receive dammage by us in any thing, it is by his own raſhneſſe and over great eaſineſſe of beleif, which he muſt in reaſon endeavour to put off in exchange for ſome prudence and diligence of ſearch, before he enter into this temptation.

THE

THE NEW[a] TESTAMENT OF Our Lord, and Saviour JESUS CHRIST.

a. or Covenant

Annotation.

THE Title of this whole Book [ἡ καινὴ Διαθήκη, the New Teſtament or Covenant] which is prefixt in ſome Copies, (in others with this addition [of our Lord and Saviour Ieſus Chriſt] in others with ſome variation of the form, [Τῆς καινῆς Διαθήκης ἅπαντα, All the books of the New Covenant]) by whomſoever it was affixt to theſe books or writings following, doth referre to the conſent of the Catholick Church of God, and that tradition, which giveth teſtimony to theſe Books, as thoſe, and thoſe only, which complete, and make up the new Canon; And the word Ἅπαντα] ſignifies, as in the Titles of other Authors, ἅπαντα τὰ διδάγματα, all the Books or Writings, that have been written, and by God's providence derived to the Church, ſo as by it to be received in canonem, i. e. into the number of thoſe writings, which are unqueſtionably acknowledg'd to be the writings of the Apoſtles and Diſciples of Chriſt; All others as Apocryphal (of dubious and uncertain Authority) being excluded out of this Catalogue. Now for the word [Διαθήκη] here, how it is to be rendred, and what is the peculiar notion of it, is a matter of ſome difficulty. Two things eſpecially it ſignifies in this Book, a Covenant, and a Will, or Teſtament; a Covenant, Mat. 26. 28. Mar. 14. 24. Lu. 22. 20. as may appear by the adjunct [καινὴ New,] which notes the oppoſition of this to the Old, and ſo that this is, what the Old was, i. e. not a Teſtament, but a Pact or Covenant; Not a Teſtament (to which death is ſuppoſed neceſſary, Heb. 9. 16. but could there have no proper place) but a ſtipulation betwixt God, and his people the Iewes, promiſing mercies, and requiring duties of them. And ſo the Hebrew ברית which is rendred by Διαθήκη, ſignifies a Covenant, but never a Teſtament. So again 2 Cor. 3. 6. καινὴ Διαθήκη is oppoſed to παλαιὰ v. 14. which Old was written in Tables of ſtone, v. 3. and ſo appears to be the Law given to the Iewes, and that was clearly a Covenant, not a Will, or Teſtament. So again Ier. 31. 31. (from whence the writers of the Goſpels, and S. Paul ſeem to have derived the word) there is mention of a New Covenant, καινὴ Διαθήκη; That muſt be a New Covenant, becauſe it is oppoſed to a former, v. 32. which former, being that of God the Father with the Iewes, is a Covenant ſtill, and not a Teſtament, for the reaſon forementioned, and ſo is there deſcribed to be a kind of Marriage-Covenant, as between an husband and ſpouſe, not a Teſtament between a Teſtator and heire. And the truth is clear, that Baptiſme, and the Lord's Supper, being the ſacraments of this καινὴ Διαθήκη, this New Covenant, as Circumciſion was of the παλαιὰ, the Old or former, theſe are fœderal rites, or ceremonies (Baptiſme ἐπερώτημα 1 Pet. 3 22. and the Lord's Supper in effect ſo alſo) ſtipulations and promiſes, which again referre to a Covenant, and not to a Will or Teſtament. So Gal. 4. 24. Δύο Διαθήκαι, I conceive, are Two Covenants (though the relation which the Apoſtles diſcourſe there hath to the κληρονομία v. 7. & 30. inheritance may ſeem to look toward a Teſtament) for the main drift of that place is, to repreſent to us the Law and the Goſpel, the Law as a Codex of ſervile tasks, the Goſpel of gracious promiſes, the latter outdating the former, but yet ἀνίσοιχον and anſwerable to it; and conſequently the Law being a Covenant, not a Teſtament, ſuch alſo muſt be the notion of the Goſpel, in that place, and the very inheritance it ſelf being part of the promiſe made to Abraham, is agreeable enough to the word under the notion of a Covenant, and not of a Teſtament, part of the Evangelical Covenant being God's promiſe in Chriſt to receive us by adoption as ſons, and (if ſons, then heirs) to beſtow the inheritance upon us. One place indeed there is in theſe Books, where Διαθήκη infallibly ſignifies a Will or Teſtament, Heb. 9. 16, 17. as appears by the Death of the Teſtator mentioned v. 16. But of thoſe two verſes it is obſervable, that the notion of [Teſtament] is there taken in by way of accommodation, as a ſecond ſenſe of the word, ſuperadded to the former of a

1. Διαθήκη

[Covenant]

[Covenant] in which it is uſed v. 15, 18, 20. it being ſaid of Chriſt, v. 15. that he is the μεσίτης Mediator, or Sponſor of this καινῆς διαθήκης new Covenant, not Teſtament, that of Mediator being farre from this of a Teſtator. And beſides, that καινῆς διαθήκης, the New] there, is oppoſite to the [πρώτη, the firſt] in the end of the verſe, and ſo muſt be in the notion of a Covenant ſtill, becauſe the πρώτη, the firſt] was only a Covenant, and not a Teſtament, the Author of it there being clearly God the Father, in whom Death, the ratification of Teſtaments, could have no place. This again farther appears by what is ſaid of it, v. 18, & 19. For there the διαθήκη, which was ſaid to be conſecrated with blood, was the Tables of the Law, the Commandements. v. 19. and will fitly be rendred there [Covenant] not [Teſtament] v. 20. It being the conſtant cuſtome and practiſe of the Eaſtern Nations to uſe blood in the ſtriking of any Pact or Covenant, but not in making every Will or Teſtament, and to that the expreſſe teſtimony of Exod. 24. 6. which is there cited, doth belong, the ſprinkling of blood being the ceremony following Moſes's rehearſing the Commandements to the people, Exod. 20, & 21, & 22, & 23. as the ſanction of a Covenant. So that although it be evident, that διαθήκη v. 16, 17. doe ſignifie Teſtament, yet it is as clear, that, as in all the other forementiond Texts, ſo alſo in the verſes antecedent, and conſequent to theſe, it ſignifies Covenant alſo, and even in theſe not Teſtament, excluſively to Covenant, but Covenant & Teſtament ſuperadded to it, Covenant in the other verſes, and then, by extending the uſe of the word to its full latitude, Covenant and Teſtament both. Upon this conſideration, and in reverence to the uſage of the Latine and Weſtern Churches, who generally have uſed Teſtamentum in this place (though ſome have uſed Inſtrumentum to contain both, and others Fœdus, Covenant only) and that by reteining the word Teſtament, I may be ſure alſo to retain that comfortable intimation, viz. that in the Goſpel unſpeakeable gifts are given or delegated to us antecedently to all conditions required of us (ſuch are Chriſt's giving himſelf for us, calling us, and giving us ſufficient grace to come unto him) Upon theſe grounds, I ſay, it is not amiſſe to take in both the words in the rendring of this Title, that of Covenant, as being moſt agreeable to the uſe of the word in the ſacred Dialect, and moſt agreeable to the nature of the Goſpel, which is, (as all Covenants made with inferiors are laws) νόμος Χριστοῦ, the law of Chriſt, νόμος πίστεως, the law of faith, a new law, requiring a condition of faith and obedience in us, without which the Goſpel is not the ſavour of life, a Goſpel of mercy to any; and withal that of Teſtament alſo wherein the Chriſtian's inheritance is ſeal'd to him as to a ſon and heir of God's, and wherein the death of Chriſt as of a Teſtator, (Heb. 9. 16, 17.) is ſet down at large by way of ſtory, and as it is appliable to our benefit.

THE

THE [a]GOSPEL according to St. [b]MATTHEW.

Annotations.

WHat the word Εὐαγγέλιον in Greek (which we render Goſpel) ſignifies among Authors, is ordinarily known, viz. from εὖ and ἀγγέλλω, good news, or good tidings. Thus the Angel ſpeaks of the birth of Chriſt, in relation to all that ſhould follow after it, Lu. 2.10. Εὐαγγελίζομαι ὑμῖν χαρὰν μεγάλην I bring you good tidings of great joy, i.e. very joyfull good tidings. Only in this ſacred uſe of it, there ſeems to be a metonymie, or figure very ordinary, whereby the word that ſignifies good news, is ſet to denote the hiſtory of that good news, the birth, and life, and reſurrection of Chriſt, which all put together is that joyfull good news, or tidings. As for our Engliſh word Goſpel, which the Saxon read ȝoꝺꝛpel, that is compounded of God, and ſpel, the word ȝoꝺ among the Saxons ſignifying good, as well as God, and no difference being diſcernible in the writing of thoſe two words among them, unleſſe that when 'tis taken for God, it hath an e after it. So in the Treatiſe De Veteri Teſtamento, ȝoꝺe ẏꝛ eall ȝoꝺ, ⁊ ælc ȝoꝺ cimꝺ oꝼ him, God is all good, and all good cometh of him. According to the notion of moſt Nations, the Heathens calling God, Optimus, the beſt, and Chriſt according to the Jewiſh notion telling the young man, that there was none good, ſave God only. As for the other part of it [ſpell] it ſeems to ſignifie [word] among the Saxons, as when biȝꝛpel, *Deut.*28.37. & *Pſal.*79.14. ſignifies a by-word or Proverb, or as it is ſtill uſed in the North, by-ſpell. So in the Treatiſe de Vet: Teſt: Among Solomon's writings, an ẏꝛ panabole ꝥ ẏꝛ biȝꝛpell boc, One is Proverbs, i.e. by-ſpell book, and agein piꝛꝺomeꝛ biȝꝛpell, by-ſpell of wiſdome. Some remains of the uſe of this word are ſtill among us, as when a charm, carmen, ἐπῳδὴ, indifferently a verſe or a word, one or more lines of Scripture or otherwiſe, either ſpoken or written and hung about ones neck, on deſign to drive away a diſeaſe (according to the ſuperſtitious beleif, and practiſe of our Anceſtors) is ſtill among us called a Spell, from the antient uſe of it, as in Propertius, Poſſis ——) words ſignifie charms. And ſo this word ȝoꝺꝛpel, or by euphony, Goſpel, in Wicleifes tranſlation, and ever ſince, notes theſe good tidings delivered, as firſt by an Angel, and after by the Apoſtles by the word of mouth, ſo here in writing, by way of hiſtory alſo; and in brief ſignifies that bleſſed ſtory of the birth, life, actions, precepts, and promiſes, death, and reſurrection of Chriſt, which of all other ſtories in the world we Chriſtians ought to look on with moſt joy, as an Εὐαγγέλιον, or good word, i.e. a Goſpel.

Κατὰ Ματθαῖον, according to Matthew] is no more than this, That ſtory of Chriſt, which Matthew, one of Chriſt's diſciples, and Apoſtles, (who had aſſociated himſelf to Chriſt, as a diſciple of his, ever ſince he began to reveal himſelf, or to preach) compiled, and ſet down. This he is ſaid to have written eight years after the reſurrection of Chriſt, and that in the Hebrew tongue. Τὸ κατὰ Ματθαῖον ἅγιον εὐαγγέλιον σφὸς τοὺς ἐξ Ἰουδαίων ἐξεδόθη ὑπ' αὐτῶν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα διὰ γραμμάτων Ἑβραϊκῶν· διὰ τοῦτο δὲ, ὅτι Ἑβραίοις γράφων, οὐδὲν πλέον ἐζήτησε διηγῆσαι ἢ ὅσα ἀπὸ Ἀβραὰμ καὶ Δαυὶδ ἕως ὁ Χριστὸς· ἐξεδόθη δὲ μὴ χείρους ἐκεῖθεν τὴν τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἀναλήψεως, saith an antient MS. The holy Goſpel according to Matthem was ſet down by him for thoſe of the Jewes at Jeruſalem in Hebrew, and therefore, as writing to the Hebrews, he proceeds no farther in the Genealogie of Chriſt, then that he was from Abraham and David; Now this was ſet out by him eight years after the aſſumption of Chriſt. So another antient MS. ἐξεδόθη εἰς Ἱερουσαλὴμ φωνῇ Ἑβραΐδι, It was ſet out at, or delivered and ſent to Ieruſalem in the Hebrew language. And though that which we now have be only in Greek, yet being tranſlated into that language either by himſelf, or ſome Apoſtolical perſon (that it might be of farther uſe, than only to thoſe of Ieruſalem, the Iewes, for whom it was firſt deſigned) and, as ſuch, univerſally without all contradiction, or queſtion received into the Canon of the New Teſtament by the whole Primitive Church, it is with the ſame reverence to be received by us, as if it had been firſt written in Greek, or as if we had the Hebrew ſtill remaining to us.

Having ſaid this of the firſt, it will not be amiſſe in this place, by the way, briefly to conſider, who were the Authors of all the four Goſpels, and what is generally obſervable of each of their writings.

For

For the firſt, it much tends to the advancing the authority of theſe books, to conſider, that two of them, the firſt and the laſt, were compiled by two Diſciples, and Apoſtles of Chriſt, who were perpetually preſent with him, and ſaw, and heard all the particular words and actions, which they relate, viz: Matthew and Iohn. And for the other two, Mark and Luke, though they were not ſuch diſciples, and Apoſtles immediately retaining to Chriſt, and continually attending on him, yet they were familiar and conſtant attendants, the former of Peter, one of theſe Apoſtles alſo, (who wrote his μ. χείρας I. ſaith that antient MS. ten years after the aſcenſion of Chriſt) the latter of Paul, who being call'd by Chriſt miraculouſly from heaven, was at that time by Chriſt put into a courſe of coming to an exact knowledge of the truth of this whole matter, (as appears by the ſtory of the Acts) and long after, when he was at Rome, ſay the Antients, Luke being by him inſtructed, wrote this Goſpel, which therefore, ſaith the MS. Ἰταλικῷ χαρακτῆρι γράφει, hath the Italick Character, or manner of writing diſcernible in it. To this may be added what the Eccleſiaſtick Hiſtorians ſay of Mark, that Peter did deliver, and, as it were, dictate this Goſpel to him, Ἰσέον ὅτι τὸ κατὰ Μᾶρκον Εὐαγγέλιον γνωρισθὲν τῷ Ῥώμῃ ὑπὸ Πέτρου, ſaith an antient MS. It is to be obſerved that the Goſpel according to Mark was dictated by Peter at Rome, according to thoſe verſes antiently written on his Goſpel,

Πέτρου μυηθεὶς τοῖς ἀπορρήτου λόγοις
Τῷ τῆς θεᾶς κάτωθεν εἰς βροτῶν φύσιν,
Ἓν ἢ τὸ δίπτυχον ἂν σταυρωθέντος φύσει,
Ταύτῃ κεκλῆσθαι συγγράμματος πιστώσατο
Ὁ δόλιχοδρόμων Μᾶρκος ἐν θεογενέσεσι.

Mark being inſtructed by S. Peter's preaching in the doctrine of the exinanition, or deſcent of Chriſt to our humane nature, wherein he was two-fold, God-man by nature, ſet this down accordingly, and now hath the ſecond place in the writings of holy ſcripture, i. e. of the New Teſtament. And of this there be ſome characters diſcernible in the writing it ſelf, As that ſetting down the ſtory of Peter's denying of Chriſt, with the ſame enumeration of circumſtances, and aggravations of the fault, that Matthew doth, when he comes to mention his repentance, and tears conſequent to it, he doth it (as became the true penitent) more coldly, than Matthew had done, only ἔκλαυσε he wept, whereas Matthew hath, ἔκλαυσεν πικρῶς, he wept bitterly. And for Luke, his profeſſion is, that he had made diligent enquirie, ch. 1. 3. and received his advertiſements not only from S. Paul, but alſo from thoſe who were both eye-witneſſes of what he writes, and ὑπηρέται, officers, inſtruments imployed by Chriſt in the particulars of the ſtory, and therefore is as creditable a witneſſe as their authority, from whom he had his inſtructions, can render him.

That which is generally obſervable of theſe four writings is this, that the three firſt of them write the whole ſtory from the birth of Chriſt till after his reſurrection, but two of them more largely, Matthew and Luke, the third, (Mark) more ſuccinctly, ſetting down the ſeries of the actions, rather than the ſermons, and paſſages delivered by him, And again though none of them agree throughout in obſerving the order, and ſucceſſion of the actions by them related, (ſee note on Mar. 5. a.) yet two of them doe agree in it one with the other, much more conſtantly, than the third with either of them, viz.: Matthew an Apoſtle, and eye-witneſſe, and Mark, from Peter, who was ſuch alſo, but the third, Luke, which wrote his ſtory out of collections, which he had from others, and compiled it himſelf, hath not ſo exactly obſerved the order, wherein the things were done, but only ſet down the things themſelves; And when, beſide that of the order, he hath ſometimes varied from the others in ſome words, or circumſtances (as, when others ſay 'twas a mayd that ſpake to Peter, and occaſioned his ſecond denying of Chriſt, Mat. 26. 71. Mar. 14. 69. he reads ἄλλη in the maſculine, Lu. 22. 57. and ſome other the like) theſe are generally ſo inconſiderable, and of ſo no-importance to the main matters of faith, the doctrines of the Goſpel, that they are rather arguments to demonſtrate that theſe writings were not contrived by any compact, or agreement of one with the other, but each of them apart, without conſulting, or knowing, what the other had done, which is a circumſtance that was neceſſary to make their teſtimonies ſeveral, and ſo to give them the greater authority from the number of them. As for the fourth, Iohn, his writing ſeems to have been deſigned to theſe two ends, 1. To demonſtrate, and declare the divinity of Chriſt (διηγεῖται ἡ θεὸν τὸν πάλαι ἀγαμογενῆ καὶ ἐνδοξον Χριστοῦ γενεάν, ſaith an antient MS. copie, he deſcribes the firſt and glorious age, or generation of Chriſt with the Father) as the other three had ſet down his humanity, and cleared the matter of his conception, and birth, of the Virgin, And 2^dly, to adde out of his own knowledge ſome remarkable things (eſpecially thoſe which moſt tended to the former deſigne) which had been omitted by the other three, to which purpoſe he ſaw it neceſſary to ſet down the ſtory of Chriſt's paſſion, and reſurrection, as the reſt had done, that ſo he might affix thoſe other circumſtances, which he deſign'd to adde unto them. This is all that I think neceſſary to præmiſe in this place of this matter.

S. MATTHEW.

CHAP. I.

Paraphraſe.

1. THE book of the [a] generation of Jeſus Chriſt, the ſon of [b] David, the ſon of Abraham,] 1. An hiſtory of what concern'd, or narration of the paſſages of the birth, life, death, and reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, who according to the prophecies foregoing of the Meſſias, ſprang from the line of David, and Abraham, to both whom he was particularly promiſed. a. b.

2. Abraham begat Iſaac, and Iſaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Judas and his brethren.

3. And Judas begat Phares and Zara of Thamar, and Pharez begat Eſrom, and Eſrom begat Aram.

4. And Aram begat Aminadab, and Aminadab begat Naaſſon, and Naaſſon begat Salmon,

5. And Salmon begat Booz of [c] Rachab, and Booz begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jeſſe. c.

6. And Jeſſe begat David the King, and David the King begat Solomon [of her that had been the wife of Urias.] 6. Of her that had been defiled by David, while ſhe was the wife of Uriah, but was now after Uriahs death taken to be Davids wife, and of her in that matrimony Solomon was born.

7. And Solomon begat Roboam, and Roboam begat Abia, and Abia begat Aſa,

8. And Aſa begat Joſaphat, and Joſaphat begat Joram, [and Joram begat Ozias,] 8. And Jehoram begat Ahaziah, Ahaziah begat Joas, Joas begat Amaziah, Amaziah begat Ozias, called alſo Azarias, See 1 Chron. 3.11.

9. And Ozias begat Joatham, and Joatham begat Achas, and Achas begat Ezekias,

10. And Ezekias begat Manaſſes, and Manaſſes begat Amon, and Amon begat Joſias.

11. And Joſias begat Jechonias and his brethren, [* about the time they were carried away to Babylon, 11. Immediatly before the time (ſee note on Mar. 2.b) that Jechoniah king of Judah, Jer. 24.1. and the Jews with him, were, at divers times, carried captive by the king of Babylon to his countrey.

* neer upon the tranſportation or remove to Babylon, ἐπὶ τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος

12. And after they were brought to Babylon] Jechonias [d] begat Salathiel, and Salathiel begat Zorobabel, 12. And after the time of their being carried or removed thither. d.

13. And Zorobabel begat Abiud, and Abiud begat Eliakim, and Eliakim begat [e] Azor, e.

14. And Azor begat Sadoc, and Sadoc begat Achim, and Achim begat Eliud, 15. And Eliud begat Eleazar, and Eleazar begat Matthan, and Matthan begat Jacob,

16. And Jacob begat Joſeph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jeſus, who is called Chriſt.

17. So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations, and from David untill the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations, and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Chriſt, are fourteen generations.] 17. So that the Genealogy here ſet down (not by enumeration of all the ſeverals which ſucceeded one another from Abraham to Chriſt, ſee v.8.but) in that manner as is ſufficient to deduce his pedegree from Abraham, and David, may, for memory ſake, be divided into three fourteens, one of thoſe from Abraham to David, before they were Kings; a ſecond from David to the captivity, whilſt they enjoyed the Regall power intire; the third from the captivity to Chriſt, when there were only ſome weak remainders of the Regall power among the Jews.

* For Mary his mother havingbeen betrothed to Joſeph. μνηστευθείσης, &c. before they came together, ſhe was found to be with child from or by the holy Ghoſt, in another ſenſe

18. Now the birth of Jeſus Chriſt was on this wiſe: [* When as his mother Mary was eſpouſed to Joſeph, (before they [f] came together) ſhe was found with child of the holy Ghoſt.] 18. His mother Mary had been betrothed to Joſeph, but was not yet married to him, and in this ſpace he diſcerned her to be with child, but knew not by whom it was, it being indeed conceived in her by a wonderfull miraculous manner, by the operation of the holy Spirit of God. f.

19. Then her husband Joſeph being [g] a † juſt man, and not willing [h] to make her a publick example, was minded [i] to put her away privily] 19. Then her husband Joſeph being a merciſull pious man and not willing to expoſe or ſubject her to that publick and ſhamefull puniſhment, which belonged among the Jews to thoſe women, whom the husbands when they firſt came in to them, found not to be virgins, was willing ſecretly to diſmiſſe her, that being not known to be betrothed to him, ſhe might only be lyable to the puniſhment of fornication, viz. infamy, not death. g. h. i.

20. proceeds from the powerfull work of the holy Ghoſt overſhadowing her, Luke 1. 35. and omnipotently working in her this conception.

20. But while he thought on theſe things, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared unto him † in a dream, ſaying, Joſeph thou ſon of David, fear not * to take to thee Mary thy wife, for that which is conceived in her [is of the holy Ghoſt.]

† by dream, κατ' ὄναρ. * to take Mary to thee to wife, παραλαβεῖν Μαριὰμ τὴν γυναῖκά σου (ſee note f.)

k. 22. (And hereby that prophecy, Iſa. 7. 14. had a notable completion, when the prophet ſaid to Ahaz,

22. (Now all this was done k that it might be fulfilled, which was ſpoken of the Lord by the prophet, ſaying)

l. 23. And as there the child in the prophet was called Emmanuel to ſignifie the preſence and protection of God to Ahaz, ſo ſhall the birth of this child be the coming of God among us.)

23. Behold a virgin ſhall be with child, and ſhall bring forth a ſon, [and l * they ſhall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.)]

24. Then Joſeph † being raiſed from ſleep, did as the Angel of the Lord had bidden him, and * took unto him his wife,

† when he was riſen, ἐγερθεὶς * took her to him to wife: ſee v. 20.

25. And ſhe brought forth this Jeſus, her firſt born (and, in all probability, her only) ſon (the word [till] being of no force to the contrary, as may appeare, 1 Sam 15. 35.) without ever being known by her husband, either before, or after the conception of him, (and, as tis piouſly beleived, though not affirmed in Scripture, remained a virgin all her life after) and on the eighth day, the day of circumciſion, and of impoſition of names, his name was called Jeſus by the appointment of his parents, according to the Angels direction.

25. And knew her not, till ſhe had brought forth her firſt born ſon, and † he called his name Jeſus.]

† or, ſhe, for ἐκάλεσεν bears either: ſee note l.

Annotations on Chapter I.

a. Γένεσις

The word γένεσις doth not here ſignifie peculiarly or preciſely the birth of Chriſt, for that is expreſſed by another word differing ſomewhat from this, v. 18. γέννησις from γεννάω to beget (ſo uſed v. 2. and ſo on, in every verſe after) whereas γένεσις is from γίνεσθαι, which ſignifies in a wider ſenſe, not only to be born, but alſo to be done, or come to paſſe. It is here anſwerable to the Hebrew תולדות, which though it come from ילד ſignifying to beget, (and ſo often ſignifies that peculiarly) yet the verb ſignifying alſo any inanimate production, any event, that time brings forth (as Prov. 27. 1. thou knoweſt not what a day יֵלֵד will bring forth, and Eccl. 4. 14. and even in his kingdome נוֹלַד רָשׁ he is made, or becommeth poor (not as we render it, he that is born in his Kingdome) and Job 11. 12. and man יִוָּלֵד ſhall become a wild Aſſes colt) proportionably the noun תולדה ſignifies event, accident, any thing that is done, or come to paſſe, and ſo likewiſe any ſuch event, or paſſage ſet down, or related, the hiſtory, or relation of it. So Gen. 2. 4. Theſe are the תולדות the things that came to paſſe, the ſtory, relation of the heavens and the earth, &c. i. e. not only the creation of them, but other paſſages following it. So Gen. 5. 1. the book of the תולדות βίβλος γενέσεως, the book of the ſtory of Adam his creation, and following life, as here βίβλος γενέσεως of the birth, and life of the ſecond Adam. So Gen. 37. 2. Theſe are the תולדות the ſtory of Jacob, where tis clear, that his own birth, or the procreating of his children is not the peculiar matter in hand at that time, that being paſt, c. 35. and Eſau's genealogy ſet after it, c. 36. but v. 1. his dwelling in Canaan, v. 2, 3. his love to Joſeph, and the paſſages conſequent to that. And accordingly Aben Ezra there obſerves, that the word noteth any event, any thing that befell Jacob, and ſo ſaith that excellent

* In Chald. Para: * P. Fagius, Non ſtatuit hic texere genealogiam ſtirpis Jacob, ſed potius miſerabiles caſus, & eventa, quæ ipſi acciderunt; He meant not to ſet down Jacobs genealogy, but the ſad events, that befell him. So Num. 3. 1. Theſe are the תולדות, the ſtory of the paſſages of Aaron and Moſes, &c. and ſo here not only of the birth of Chriſt (for that is but a very ſmall part of this book) nor yet only the genealogy of Chriſt, for though that here follow immediately, yet makes it not up any conſiderable part of this whole book, but the book of the ſtory of the birth, life, death, and reſurrection of Chriſt, of all the events that belong to that matter, recorded by that Evangeliſt, as Πράξεις Ἀποστόλων is all that befell the Apoſtles after.

b. Ἀβραάμ

The reaſon of the ſpeciall mention of David and Abraham here, without any between, is the ſpeciall promiſes which had been made to thoſe two, to the one of continuing the Kingdome to his poſterity; to the other of a numerous ſeed.

c. Ῥαχάβ

That Rahab was the wife of Salmon and mother of Booz, is not ſet down in the old Teſtament, nor mentioned in the genealogy in Saint Luke, but recited by this Evangeliſt either out of the Cabala or tradition, or elſe from ſome other written Authors of ſufficient credit among the Jewes; as the names of Jannes and Jambres, 2 Tim. 3. 8. appear to have been, and ſome others which ſhall be noted in their place.

d. Ἰεχονίαν

Of Jechoniah 'tis pronounced [Write this man childleſſe, Jer. 22. 30. which ſeems to infer that Salathiel was not his ſon, but his heir only. And thus hath the learned Grotius ſet it, Lu. 3. 23. that Joſias begat Jechoniah, i. e. Jehoiakim, Jehoiakim another Jechonias, that died childleſſe, Zedekias (his uncle) ſucceeding him, and Aſſir ſucceeding Zedekias, and then Salathiel the ſon of Neri was Aſſir's heir, and ſo is here ſaid to be begotten by Jechoniah. For that of leaving one heir, or ſucceſſour, is a kind of civill begetting, and which the Hebrew ילד will bear, as God is ſaid to have begetten ſons, whom he hath only adopted. And therefore when Jer. 22. 28. there is mention of Jechoniah's ſeed caſt into a land, &c. i. e. carried captive with him, and 1 Chron. 3. 17. when in his genealogy we read, The ſons of Jechoniah, Jechoniah, Assir, and Salathiel his son, this may be the meaning of it, that these were his heirs, or successours. Although others interpret it otherwise, either that his children should be cut off, or at least that none of his seed should sit upon the throne of David, which is there rendered as the reason of Jeremies speech, For no man of his seed shall prosper, verse 30.

c. Ἀδείν In a very ancient Hebrew copy of this Gospel, this verse is somewhat varyed, thus, And Eliakim begat Abner, and Abner begat Azor, &c. by which interposition of Abner the fourteen generations are compleated, in which otherwise there will seem to be defect, Salathiel probably being the first of this third fourteen, and not Jechoniah (as Salomon was the first of the second, and not David) from whom to Christ there will then be but thirteen, if Abner be not thus added to supply. Another way there is of making up the fourteens by putting in Jachim v. 11. (as Rob: Steph: finds and sets down in his Var: lect:) Ἰωσίας ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰακείμ, Ἰακεὶμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰεχονίαν, Josias begat Jachim and Jachim begat Jechoniah, and to this the genealogy agrees, 1 Chron. 3. 15. and if this be taken, then Jechoniah must be first of the last fourteen, so that ἀπὸ τοῦ v. 17. shall signifie from the beginning of, or from the [ἐπὶ τῆς] v. 11. from that time, about or before the transportation; Of these and other the like questions both in the Genealogy here and in S. Luke, and especially for the according, and reconciling them with one another, I shall purposely abstein to speak more largely, both because, although they have great difficulties in them, yet the profit consequent to the resolving of them, is not proportionably great, and especially because this is a subject wherein very many learned men have already taken very excellent pains, (to whom I referre the Reader) especially the most excellent Hugo Grotius, in his annotations on the Gospels.

f. Συνελθεῖν What is meant here by the [Συνελθεῖν, or coming together] of Joseph and Mary, may be best determined by consideration of severall passages of the context, all which seem to fix it on his actuall marrying of her, which is called Συνοικεσιμὸς conjunction of two together, and ἀνδρὸς καὶ γυναικὸς Συνάφεια, the joyning of man and woman, and συζυγήσαντες τῷ βίῳ πάντες, a joyning of all that belongs to them, their whole estate, &c. and not to relate to the conjunction of bed, as the sound of the word might import. For first it seems to be that which was next in order of time to betrothing (μνηστευθέισης, πρὶν ἢ Συνελθεῖν, having been betrothed before they came together) This of her being with child, falling out in that space, which was betwixt the betrothing and Συνελθεῖν. Now after betrothing, marriage was the next, and therefore betrothing is called by Isidore, prima nuptia, the first marriage; and by S. Basil, ἀρχαὶ τοῦ γάμου, the beginnings of marriage, being (according to the definition of μνηστεία) μνήμη καὶ ἀπαγγελία τοῦ μελλόντων γάμων, a wooing and promise of the future marriage (in the notion of μνήμη from μνάομαι, ambio, procor, to woo) and that marriage was to intervene, before the use of the bed was imaginable. And betwixt betrothing and marriage there was wont to be a set space, Deut. 20. 7. in wch that, which is here related, might well fall out, her being, or appearing to be with child. Secondly, that which is meant by [Μνηστευθεῖσα Μαριὰμ τὴν γυναῖκα σου, taking to thee Mary to wife] v. 20. seems to be the importance of Συνελθεῖν, for thus the story lyes, she is with child between the betrothing, and the [Συνελθεῖν] thereupon he is afraid Παραλαβεῖν, to take her to him, till the Angel appears and dispells that fear. Now Παραλαβεῖν, to take to him; especially, as 'tis here Παραλαβεῖν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, to take her to him to wife, v. 20. & 24. signifies to marry, and is relative to נתן to give; which belongs to the father of the spouse, Tob: 7. 11. 13. (after the example of God in paradise, Gen. 2. 22.) because he delivers her into the bridegrooms hand, who was therefore called Petitor (despondet puellam qui petit, spondet petitoris pater, saith Donatus in Andr: Terent:) the suiter, and so λαβὼν τὴν γυναῖκα, he that takes her, in Strabo, is used for the husband, and so [to take a wife] signifies Deut. 20. 7. and simply to take, Tob: 7. 12. Take her and lead her away to her father; This, upon the Angels warning, he presently doth, being only betrothed before, and though he be called ἀνὴρ, her husband, v. 19. yet that implyes no more, then betrothing a wife, Deut. 20. 7. and so 'tis here used immediately after mention of the betrothing, v. 18. One other possible notion there is of the [Συνελθεῖν] his taking her into family with him; so in the Gospel for the Sunday after Christmass, it is rendered [before they came to dwell together] This is συμίζεσθαι εἰς τὸν οἶκον, among the Greeks, to bring home the Bride, which being joyned so closely with marriage, (Tob: 7. 12.) Ducere uxorem (which denotes that) doth among the Latines, signifie marriage also. As for that of the bed, not so much as a thought of that is medled with, yea or no, till the order of things require it, i.e. till after the marriage compleated; and then, under the phrase, so usuall in Scripture, of knowing, 'tis denyed, v. 25. He knew her not, &c.

The word Δικαιοσύνη answerable to the Hebrew, צדק, signifies ordinarily works of mercy, charity; g. Δικαιοσύνη of which when Maimonides sets down seven sorts or degrees, the seventh is distinctly צדקה righteousnesse: so Deut. 24. 13. צדקה both according to the context, and the Septuagint's rendring, is ἐλεημοσύνη, mercy. So when the † Rabbines say, † Abba c. 4. there are two thrones, one of judgment, לדין, the other of mercy, לצדקה, the latter is so styled by the Author to the Hebrews, c. 4. 16. the throne of mercy: so Psal. 112. 9. He hath given to the poor, and his righteousnesse, &c. that is, his bounty to the poor, precedent. So Isa. 58. 7, 8. and Mat. 6. 1. where we now read ἐλεημοσύνην, 'tis apparent (by the vulgar reading Justitiam) that δικαιοσύνην was an ancient reading, and that for almes in that place. Thus even in Heathen Authors. As when Iarchas the Indian and chief of the Brachmans in * Philostratus, doth scoffe at Apollonius Tyanæus, and the Grecians, that they apply the word δικαιοσύνη, righteousnesse, to any who doe not wrong others, when (saith he) among the chief offices of righteousnesse, and importances of that word, χρηστότης and ἀγαθότης, goodnesse and bounty are to be reckoned, and φιλανθρωπία, humanity. Proportionably to these acceptions of the word, the righteousnesse of Joseph here shall signifie not legall justice, but peculiarly goodnesse and clemency, of which this was an eminent expression in Joseph, which here follows.

* de vit: Apoll. l. 3. c. 7.

The Greek Παραδειγματίζειν signifies literally to defame or disgrace, to publicate or shew openly, as h. Παραδειγματίζειν an example or ſpectacle, and by conſequence (in Polybius and other good Authors) to inflict the puniſhment of death on any, becauſe thoſe, that are ſo puniſhed, doe (as Chriſt ſaith John 12.32. though accommodating it to a diviner ſenſe) draw all men unto them, i. e. attract the eyes of all ſpectators to behold them, by which phraſe he there notes that he was to die a condemned perſon, according to that of Iſa. 53. 8. (ſee note on Acts 8. c.) According to this double notion of the word, we find the proceſſe, Deut. 22. againſt a Damoſel taken to wife, and ſuſpected by him to be defloured before his coming in to her. For in this caſe he is firſt ſaid to give occaſions of ſpeech againſt her, and to bring an evil name upon her, i. e. to accuſe and publicate her, to make a publick buſineſſe of it, and that before the Elders of the city in the gate, i.e. the Judges, v. 15. ſaying plainly, v. 14. I found her not a maid. And if this prove true, ſhe is then to be ſtoned, v. 21. both theſe together make up the full importance of the παραδειγματίζειν here, and ſo here it muſt belong to the capitall puniſhment of ſuch a one, who being taken to wife appears to be no virgin, before the husbands accompanying with her, which ſure was Joſephs opinion of Mary at this time, till the Angel had told him otherwiſe, v. 20.

i. Ἀπολῦσαι, To put away] here muſt be taken not as an act of divorce, but ſo as without taking notice of the betrothing, which being ordinarily performed at home, might be kept from publick knowledge, and ſo her being with child needed not bring the puniſhment of one found by the husband to be no maid (Deut. 22. 2.) upon her, but only that which belonged to the unmarried. Ἀπολῦσαι

k. Ἵνα It muſt be here noted once for all, that the particle [ἵνα, that] doth frequently denote the conſequent, or event only, and not the end. This is a difference of ſome weight, and very often worthy, and neceſſary to be obſerved. For example, Ro. 5. 20. the Law came in betwixt, i.e. between Adam, and Chriſt) ἵνα πλεονάσῃ τὸ παράπτωμα, that ſin might encreaſe, not that that was the end, for which the Law was deſigned to be given, but becauſe this was the conſequent, or event of giving the Law, that mens offences, being now committed againſt a promulgate Law, received aggravation thereby. To the ſame ſenſe, is [εἰς τὸ τέλ] to be taken in many places, as Rom. 1. 20. the inviſible power, and Godhead is diſcerned [εἰς τὸ εἶναι αὐτοὺς ἀναπολογήτους] not [that they may be] as if that were the deſigned end, but [ſo that they are] (by way of effect, or conſequent) become without excuſe. And ſo here in this place, if it denoted the end, then the ſenſe of it would be, that all theſe actions of God, and diſpoſitions of infinite mercy in the birth of Chriſt, &c. were all deſigned by God to this end, that what was by one of his Prophets foretold, might be fulfilled; whereas indeed the great end deſigned by God in theſe actions, was the benefit and ſalvation of mankind, and ſo this the principall effect wrought by it. But becauſe, by the way, a prophecy was fulfilled, which being delivered upon another occaſion, had yet covertly foretold this glorious work of mercy, therefore 'tis alſo conſequent to this (though not the aim and deſign, unleſſe very remote and ſecundary) that this prophecie was fulfilled, and this is all, that is meant by the phraſe [Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled, which was ſpoken, &c.] i.e. by the doing of all this, (not yet to recite thoſe grand deſigns, and many gracious effects of it, after to be declared) it fell out, that an antient prophecie was eminently fulfilled; And this indeed in a high improved ſenſe, over and above that other vulgar ſenſe, which belonged to thoſe words, when they were delivered to Ahaz by God, and wherein they had then been performed to him (viz. as a ſign, that within the ſpace of time wherein a virgin might marry, and conceive, and bring forth, and the child come to the age of diſtinguiſhing good and evil, Iſa. 7. 14, 15, 16. that is, within very few years, Rezin and Pekah his two great enemies ſhould be brought low.) This obſervation of the importance of [ἵνα] will often be made uſe of in the enſuing paraphraſe, without farther troubling the Reader with the account of the reaſon of it, having here once done it. This the Grammarians have expreſſed by [ἵνα ἀποβατικὸν, and ἐκβατικὸν, [That] cauſal and [That] conſequentiall, the latter many times beſt rendred by [ſo that] though here the precedent words permit it not: See note on c. 4. 14. c.

Theſe words in Iſaiah had there a literall ſenſe (whither really to be then performed, or only in viſion, it is not certain) which is thus to be interpreted, that the child, given for a ſign to Ahaz, was to have this name impoſed upon him, Emmanuel, which ſignifies God with us: Not that that child then born in Iſaiahs time, ſhould be God, but (as Gen. 22. 14. the place where God provided the Ram inſtead of Iſaac, is called Jehovah jireh, God will ſee, or provide, which concludes not that the place was God, or that the place ſhould ſee, but only that that was to be a memorative of Gods ſeeing and providing, ſo here) that the impoſition of this name upon the child ſhould ſignifie (as a ſign given Ahaz to that purpoſe) that God would afford him his peculiar preſence, and aſſiſtance againſt his enemies. And ſo all is plain in the place of Iſaiah (as for the accommodation of it to this of the birth of Chriſt ſee note, k.) Onely it muſt be added, that if [καλέσουσι] be the right reading of the place, then there is a ſcheme of the ſacred dialect diſcernible in it, whereby [they ſhall call] is but a phraſe, for [he ſhall be called] as, Thou fool, this night ſhall they require thy ſoul, i.e. thy ſoul ſhall be required, and as of making friends of Mammon, 'tis added, that when ye fail, they may receive you, i.e. that you may be received into everlaſting habitations. And accordingly v. 21. for καλέσεις, thou ſhalt call, ſpoken to Joſeph, ſome copies have καλέσουσι, they ſhall call, i.e. he ſhall be called. But the antient copy which Beza ſent to the Univerſity of Cambridge, reads [καλέσεις, thou ſhalt call] in both places, and ſo in Iſaiah, from whence this place is taken, 'tis certainly [thou ſhalt call] whereupon though our Bibles read, a virgin ſhall conceive, and ſhall call, yet in the margent 'twas thought neceſſary to ſet it, thou, O virgin, ſhalt call. And ſo in the Epiſtle appointed by the Church for the Annuntiation of Mary, 'tis rendred. And thou his mother ſhalt call. And in the Goſpel for the Sunday after Chriſtmas, the 25 verſe of this chapt. which ſtands ambiguouſly in the Greek, is there determined to the mother, [till ſhe had brought forth her firſt begotten ſon, and called his name Jeſus.] καλέσουσι

CHAP. II.

CHAP. II.

1. NOW when Jesus was born in Bethleem of Judea, in the daies of Herod the king, behold there came * [a] wise men from the east to Jerusalem]

* learned men, or, Magi, μαγοι.

1. The birth of Christ, and the circumstances belonging to that, being set down in the former Chapter, here now succeed in this some passages pertaining to his childhood, and the first passage is, That after some time, not immediately after his birth, but whilest Mary and her son remained yet at Bethleem, certainly after the time of Maries purification at Jerusalem (mentioned by S. Luke) and return to Bethleem again, the Chaldeans or Arabian Astronomers came to Jerusalem,

2. Saying, [where is † he that is born [b] king of the Jews? for we have seen his [c] starre [d] in the east, and are come to worship him.]

† the king of the Jews which is born, ὁ τεχθεὶς βασιλεὺς, &c.

2. When we were in our countrey we saw a strange extraordinary starre rise in the heavens, which we never saw before, and discerning that it signified the birth of the Messias of the Jews (and of all other true sons of Abraham) foretold by Jewish prophets that he should be born (and that all kings should worship him, Psal. 72. 11.) we are come to bring presents to him, and worship him, and therefore we desire to be informed, where is the place of his birth, and where is he.

3. When Herod the king had heard these things he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him,

4. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where * Christ should be born.]

* the Christ is, or, must be born, ὁ Χριστὸς γεννᾶται.

4. And calling the Rulers of the Sanhedrin to him, (see note on Mar. 5. 22. a) he proposed this question to them, What place doe your books assign for the birth of your expected Messias? see note on Act. 15. c.

5. And they said unto him, In Bethleem of Judea, for thus it is written by the [prophet]

5. Prophet Micah, c. 5. 2.

6. And thou Bethleem † in the [e] land of Judah, art not the least among the [f] princes of Judah, for out of thee shall come a governour that shall rule my people Israel.]

† the territory of Iudah,

6. And thou Bethleem which art part of the portion of land assigned to the tribe of Judah in the division, known by the name of Bethleem Ephrata for its affinity to Ephrath, Gen. 35. 16. though thou wert in precinct, and worldly account, one of the least cities of Judah, yet art thou not now by any means the vilest, but the most honourable, for from thee shall proceed, or, in thee shall be born a Ruler, who shall govern my people Israel.

7. Then Herod when he had privily called the wise-men [g], * enquired of them diligently what time the starre appeared.

* learnt from them exactly

8. And he sent them to Bethleem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child, and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

9. When they had heard the king, they departed, and loe the starre which they * saw in the east, [† went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was]

* had seen, εἶδον, † led them along, προῆγεν αὐτούς,

9. Moved before them in the heavens as a guide to lead them to the place where the child was, and when it came to the point of the heavens which was just over the house, it stood still.

10. When they saw the starre, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.]

10. And discerning that the starre, which they had not seen so long, appeared again to them, in an horizon so farre distant from that, where they first saw it, and that it conducted them, and at last stood still, and pointed out the house to them, they rejoiced very exceedingly.

11. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshipped him, and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts [h gold,] and frankincense, and myrrhe.

11. Gold as an acknowledgment of a King: which also fell out opportunely, to fit the parents for the charge of their journey into Egypt, v. 13.

12. And being warned of God * in a dream, that they should not return to Herod, [they departed into their own countrey another way]

* by dream, κατ' ὄναρ

12. They went home a neerer and more private way (not that way which they came, through Jerusalem, which was about) and so were out of Herods reach, before he mist them.

13. And when they were departed, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there, untill I bring thee word, for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

14. And when he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt.]

14. And upon the Angels warning, after the departure of the Magi, or Astronomers, immediately he took the child and his mother in the night time, and went a private way into Egypt.

15. And was there untill the death of Herod, [that it might be fulfilled that was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son.]

15. And so that speech of Hos. 11. 1. which had one accomplishment in the people of Israels being carried into, and fetcht out of Egypt, was now again fulfilled in this true promised seed of Abraham, i. e. in Christ, (of whom Israel, called Gods first born, was a type) and in him, now that he was a child, as it was said in Hosea.

16. Then Herod when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men was exceeding wroth, and sent forth and slew all the children that were in Bethleem, and all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, [according to the time which he had * diligently enquired of the wise men.]

* learn'd, i. ἀκριβῶσαι, see note g.

16. According to the time of Christs birth, or according to the age which he had by conference with the Magi, calculated Christ to be of, viz. not two years old.

17. Then had that prophecy of Jeremy, c. 31. 15. (which was delivered firſt to expreſſe the captivity of Babylon and ſlaughters of Jeruſalem) another more eminent completion.

17. Then was fulfilled that which was ſpoken by Jeremy the prophet,] ſaying, 18. In Ramah was there a voice heard, lamentation and weeping and great
i. mourning, [i] Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, becauſe they are not.
19. But when Herod was dead, behold an Angel of the Lord appeareth in a dream to Joſeph in Egypt,
20. Saying, Ariſe and take the young child, and his mother, and go into the land of Iſrael, forthey are dead which ſought the young childs life.
21. And he aroſe and took the young child, and his mother, and came into the land of Iſrael.

22. Went into Galilee, where another of Herods ſons, that contended with Archelaus for the whole kingdome, had ſeated himſelf, having gotten that from him. He probably would not be inquiſitive or jealous againſt any, that ſhould be likely to dethrone Archelaus, and ſo there was not from him any apprehenſion of danger.

22. But when he heard that Archelaus did reign in Judah, in the room of his father Herod, he was afraid to go thither, notwithſtanding being warned of God in a dream, he [turned aſide into the parts of Galilee:]

23. And ſo by reſiding and dwelling in Nazareth, he was made capable of that title which is uſed of the Meſſias in the prophets, that he ſhould be Naſer, the branch of the root of Jeſſe, (or, as the word may bear, a Saviour) ſo often promiſed to that people.

23. And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth, [that it might be fulk. filled which was ſpoken by the prophets, He ſhall be called a [k] Nazarene.]

Annotations on Chap. II.

2. Μάγοι

The Greek μάγοι] ſignifies not only thoſe, which in our ordinary dialect we call Magicians, i.e. Sorcerers, but alſo φιλόσοφοι, σοφίσται, in Heſychius, generally learned men, ſtudents, and profeſſours of liberall ſciences, eſpecially of Aſtronomy, without any ill character upon them; Theſe were then famous among the * Perſians, and were both their Kings, and their Prieſts, and ſo among other Nations alſo, but eſpecially the Eaſtern, and were at that time honoured and known for the ſtudy of good learning, and ſo the [ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν, of, or from the eaſt] is perhaps to be joyned with μάγοι the wiſe, or, learned men of, or, from the Eaſt] (as οἱ ἀπὸ Θεσσαλονίκης Ἰουδαῖοι, the Jews of, or, from Theſſalonica, Act. 17. 13.) not to the word [came] as if they came from the Eaſt of Jeruſalem thither. Theſe are by an Ancient Heathen mentioned under the name of * Chaldeans, thoſe ſo much famed for skill in Aſtronomy. Now the time of their coming to Bethleem when it was, is not diſtinctly known, but may be concluded not to be the twelfth day from his birth, not only by the diſtance of Bethleem from their homes, but eſpecially by one circumſtance which is recorded. 'Tis here ſaid that immediately after theſe wiſe mens departure the Angel appeared to Joſeph, v. 13. and diſpatched them into Egypt, which could not be before the time of Maries purification, for then, ſaith S. Luke, they went up to Jeruſalem, Luke 2. 22. which cannot be ſuppoſed to be after their going into Egypt, nor betwixt the departure of the Magi, and their going thither, for that had been to throw themſelves into Herods hands at Jeruſalem, which they were commanded to avoid, by going into Egypt; From Hieruſalem it ſeems they returned to Bethleem, and there dwelt in an hired houſe, till after the coming and departing of the Magi, and therefore the tradition which makes the Epiphany, the twelfe day from the day of the Nativity, may mean it of that time twelvemonth (according to which it is, that upon exact enquiring the time of the ſtarres appearing, Herod v. 16. appoints the killing of all children from two years old and under. which probably he would not have done, if they had told him that the ſtarre appeared but few daies ſince.) Or elſe ſecondly, the word ἐπιφάνια ſignifying appearance, may denote the time of the firſt appearing of the ſtarre to them in their countries, v. 2. differing from that other appearance, v. 9. & that might well come to be exactly known by the Church, from the intelligence that was given by the Magi, v. 7. and that might be the very twelfe day after Chriſts nativity. But then thirdly, the Greek ἐπιφάνια is the word to ſignifie Chriſts appearance in the world, the nativity, which is among the Ancients commonly ſo ſtyled, ἐπιφάνια, and θεοφάνια, the appearing ſimply, or the appearing of God; and the feaſt of the Nativity being celebrated twelve daies, of which the firſt and the laſt according to the cuſtome of the Jews in their feaſts, were high, or chief daies of ſolemnity, each of theſe might fitly be called ἐπιφάνια, Epiphanie, in that ſenſe, and not only referring to the ſtarre, though not excluding, but containing it alſo, as a ſpeciall circumſtance belonging to the nativity.

* Μάγοι εκαλοῦντο παρὰ Πέρσαις οἱ φιλόσοφοι, οἱ φιλόθεοι, οἱ ἀρχὴ ζωροάστρου. Phavorin.

* See note c.

Whether the Angel of God had appeared to thoſe Magi, and told them that ſuch a perſon was born, who was, or, ſhould be King of the Jews (and that in an extraordinary manner, the Meſſias whom that Nation did according to Prophecies fully expect about this time) is utterly uncertain, being neither here nor any where elſe diſtinctly affirmed. Yet ſome way of revelation may probably be conjectured or ſuppoſed by their calling him, the King of the Jews, which they could not read in the ſtarre, unleſſe either the propheſie of Balaam, or ſome other of Daniel, &c. had directed them thus to apprehend, or unleſſe the Angel had appeared to them, as he did to the Shepheards, Luke 2. 11. ſaying, There is born to you this day a Saviour, which is the anointed Lord (i. e. Prince, or, King here) in the city of David, i.e. (in another phraſe, the ſame with this here) the King of the Jews, with an emphaſis on [the] The expected King, or, Meſſias. Theſe Magi then having ſome way apprehended and beleived thus much already, that this ſo honourable perſon, the deſire of all nations, the expectation of the very Gentiles, was born, came to Jeruſalem, and enquired for him, ποῦ ἐστι; where is this King, which is born? b. ὁ τεχθεὶς βασιλεὺς Ἰουδ.

His ſtarre ſignifies an extraordinary ſtarre appearing in the heaven, obſerved by thoſe Magi c. Ἀστὴρ αὐτοῦ in the field to differ from the ordinary ſtarres of heaven, and ſomeway interpreted to them to be the Index or finger to point out this miraculous birth, the δαδοῦχος to light him into the world. And for the confirming the truth of Chriſtianity by the conſent of Heathen writers, it is obſervable which we find in Chalcidius a very antient Writer, who lived a little after Chriſt's time, in his Comment upon Plato's Timæus, who relating ſome portentous ſignificancies of ſtars, adds (as the Latine, wch only is left us, reads) *Eſt quoque alia venerabilior & ſanctior hiſtoria, quæ perhibet ortu ſtellæ cujuſdam inſolite non morbi, * moreſque pranunciatos, ſed deſcenſum Dei venerabilis ad humana † ſervationis rerumque mortalium gratiam, quam à Chaldæis obſervatam fuiſſe teſtantur qui Deum nuper natum muneribus venerati ſunt. There is alſo a more venerable and ſacred hiſtory* (the Goſpel, no doubt) which mentions the riſing of one extraordinary ſtarre, by which was foretold, not the diſeaſes and (tempers, or) * manners of men, but the deſcent of a venerable God (or, of a God, who is to be reverenced) in favour to the preſervation of men (or, ſalvation, as it ſeems, he collected out of the word σωτὴρ in S. Luke 2.7.) and the benefit of mortalls here below, which ſtarre they teſtifie (the Goſpel again) to have been obſerved by the Chaldeans, (the Magi, v. 1.) who came to this God which was newly born and worſhipped and preſented him. As punctuall a concordant teſtimony, as could be imagined.

* perhaps moreſque † in Greek, no doubt, συντηρίας

* perhaps deeds

d. These obſervers learned in Aſtronomy and curious in their daily beholding the riſing and ſetting of the ſtarres, ſaw at this time a ſtarre riſe, which they never had ſeen before, and were amazed at it, as at a new prodigious ſight, which did certainly preſage ſomething of great conſideration: This riſing of the ſtarre may poſſibly be ſignified by ἀνατολὴ here, and [ἐν ἀνατολῇ] be rendred not [in the Eaſt] either here, or v. 9. but [at the riſing of it] or [when it aroſe] and that it ſhould be ſo rendred, may be gueſſed by the ortu ſtellæ, &c. in Chalcidius out of the ſanctior hiſtoria, i. e. out of this Goſpel, and 'tis obſervable to this purpoſe that among the Greek Aſtronomers, the riſing of ſtarres is called ἀνατολὴ and ἔωσφορὸς, (as ἀνατολὴ ἁλὸς, the riſing of the ſun, Apoc. 7.2.) and the ſetting of them δύσις, but the Eaſt is commonly expreſt in the plurall number ἀνατολαὶ, as 'tis here diſtinctly, v. 1. and the Weſt δυσμαὶ, and ſo they are uſed Mat. 8. 11. they ſhall come ἀπ' ἀνατολῶν καὶ δυσμῶν, and ſo Luke 13.29. and Mat. 24. 27. All this put together would make that of [ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, at the riſing of the ſtarre] both here, and v. 9. a probable rendring, but becauſe ἀνατολὴ in the ſingular doth once ſignifie the Eaſt. Revel. 21. 13. and becauſe the 9 verſe ſeems to ſet down the ſeverall places of the ſtarres appearance, now juſt verticall to the houſe where Chriſt was, as before ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, which ſeems to denote the place, where they firſt ſaw it, and whence they came, v. 1. It may therefore be rendred [in the Eaſt] in both places.

e. The word [γῆ] is the nominative caſe, and here ſignifies that portion (i. e. a part of it) which belonged to the Regall tribe, (as c. 4. 15. γῆ Ζαβουλὼν καὶ γῆ Νεφθαλεὶμ, is the portion of Zabulon and Nephthalim) and though it were a town or city, yet it is capable enough of that appellation, as the city of the Sodomites, and of thoſe of Gomorrha, is called by the ſame word, γῆ Σοδόμων, &c. c. 10. 15. and is vulgarly rendred the land, clearly the city of Sodome.

Τῆ Ζαβουλὼν

In ſtead of the Hebrew word in Micha 5. 2. rendred [the thouſands] the Evangeliſt hath here ſet ἡγεμόσιν, Rulers: The meaning of it will not be diſcerned, but by remembring a cuſtome of the Jews, among whom the People was diſtributed by chiliads or thouſands, ſo many in a town, or city, not that that number was ſo to continue, and not to exceed, but (as we ſee in our hundreds or wapentakes, which, as by the originall of the view of Frankpledge appears, was firſt an hundred families preciſely, but ſince hath much varied) only in relation to the firſt diſtribution. Hence it is, that ſuch a diviſion, or town, or city is in the old Teſtament phraſe call'd a chiliad, or thouſand, as in Micha it is, and Jud. 6. 15. where the ordinary tranſlation reads [My family is poor in Manaſſeh] but the Hebrew rendred in the margine is [My thouſand is the meaneſt, &c.] Of every ſuch Diviſion there was ſome Lord, or Chief, under whom the whole multitude were, as under a Patriarch, or head of a family, and ſuch was Gedeon, Jud. 6. 15. when he ſaith [My thouſand] and as it is ordinary for a King of any Nation in Authors to ſignifie not only the perſon of the King, but the whole people under him alſo; ſo here the ἡγεμόσιν, Rulers, in the Evangeliſt, are the very ſame with the thouſands in the Prophet, and each of them ſignifie the towns or cities of Judah, ſuch as Bethleem was, which is here ſpoken of, as the place where the Meſſias was to be born, according to that in Micha aforeſaid. Unto which alſo agrees that known Oracle that Ex Judæâ profecti rerum potirentur, Rulers ſhould come out of Judea, which is mention'd both by Tacitus and Suetonius (and by them falſly applied to Veſpaſian) and alſo by Cicero in l. 2 De Divinat: by Virgil in Eclog: 4. by Suidas in 'Ανγῦσ. Where as the [rerum potiri] is the direct rendring of the Hebrew לִהְיוֹת מוֹשֵׁל in Micha, and πεμαίνειν here (in the ſenſe wherein not only Homer calls Agamemnon ποιμένα λαῶν, and Xenophon alſo defines, ἐπιτελέσαι ἔργα οὐδὲν νομέως ἀγαθοῦ, ἢ βασιλέως ἀγαθοῦ, the two offices of a Paſtor and a King are neer, and anſwerable one to another; but wherein Ezechiel alſo deſcribes the Regall power by that of Shepheards, c. 34. 23. 37. 24.) ſo the [ex Judeâ profecti] is the very literall rendring of the [ἐκ σοῦ ἐξελεύσεται] here.

f. Ἡγεμόσιν

g. 'Ακριβολογοῦμαι is to enquire diligently, ἀκριβῶς ἐξετάζειν, ver. 8. but ἀκριβῶ with an accuſative of the thing, as ἀκριβῶ τοχρὸν, or ἀκριβῶ χρόνον, here, ſignifies to learn exactly by enquiry, ἀκριβῶς ἔσεσθαι, to know exactly, ſaith Phavorinus, and ἀκρίβεια, ἡ ἀκριβὴς κατάληψις, the accurate knowledge of any thing, ſaith Heſychius.

h. Among the gifts that Abraham gave to the ſons of Chethura, there were (ſay the traditions of the Jews) Gold, Frankincenſe, and Myrrhe, which he had received from the Kings of Sodome and Gomorrha, as Epiphanius cites it out of them in the Expoſition of the Cathol: Faith, and therefore (ſaith he) their poſterity in Magodia, a region of Arabia, preſented the ſame gifts to Chriſt at his Nativity.

Χρύσον, λίβανον, σμύρναν

i. That which is here cited out of Jeremy 31.15. Φωνὴ κλαυθμοῦ was there a prophetick and figurative ſpeech ſpoken of the captivity of Babylon, and the ſlaughter at Hieruſalem (a city of the tribe of Benjamin the ſon of Rachel) long after Rachels death, who therefore did not really weep, but is ſet to expreſſe a lamentable ſlaughter, and ſo alſo it hath here a ſecond completion in this killing of the Infants in Bethleem; the people of the Jews being by an ordinary Synecdoche capable of the title of Benjamin, becauſe in the breach of the Kingdome the two tribes of Judah and Benjamin make up that people, and therefore Rachel, Benjamins mother, is alſo here figuratively brought in, lamenting this ſlaughter as of her children, and that the more properly, becauſe ſhe was buried in Bethleem, *Gen.*35.19.

k. Ναζωραῖος That he ſhould be called a Nazarene, as that ſignifies an Inhabitant of (or one that ſprang from) the city Nazareth, is no where found to be affirmed in the Prophets of the old Teſtament. That which is here obſervable, is, 1. That there is an Hebraiſme ordinarily to be diſcerned in the word [κληθήσεται, he ſhall be called] The Hebrew word דבר ῥῆμα λόγος ſignifies promiſcuouſly a word and a thing, and is rendred ῥῆμα or λόγος, word, when it denotes a matter, or thing. So *Exod.*8.12. על דבר, ὅτι λόγῳ Ραζάχων, about the word, i.e. the buſineſſe of the frogs. So 1 Kings 14.19. the reſt of the acts of Jeroboam, are in the Hebrew ויתר דברי πλειονων ῥῆμα, and v. 29. λοιπὰ λόγων, the reſt of the words. So Tob: 1.1. βίβλος λόγων, the book of the words, i.e. a Commentary or ſtory of the actions. And ſo 1 Kings 11.41. So Luke 2.15. ῥῆμα τοῦτο γεγονὸς, this word, i.e. thing, which is done. So Acts 8.21. Marke 1.45. Luke 1.37. By the ſame analogy and proportion the two words κληθῆς and יקרא [to be called] and [to be] are all one (as names and perſons, Acts 1.15. and Luke 6.22. *Revel.*3.4. & 11.13.) So *Iſa.*56.7. and *Mar.*11.17. My houſe ſhall be called, i.e. ſhall be to all people an houſe of prayer, i.e. there ſhall be a court, or Atrium in it for the Gentiles, as well as for the Jews, and ſo Saint Luke reads it οἶκος ἐυχῆς ἔσται, it is an houſe of prayer. So *Iſa.*9.6. his name ſhall be called wonderfull, i.e. he ſhall be a wonderfull perſon, ſo Lu. 1.32. he ſhall be called, i.e. he ſhall be the ſon of the higheſt, & v.36. κεκλημένη στείρα, ſhe that is called, i.e. that is barren, and *Apoc:*19.13. his name is called, i.e. he is the word of God, and *Mat.*5.19. he ſhall be called, i.e. he ſhall really be the leaſt, &c. So Gen. 21.12. In Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called, i.e. the ſeed to which the bleſſing belongs, ſhall be from Iſaac. And accordingly here [he ſhall be called] is no more then [he ſhall be.] Secondly, it muſt be obſerved that the Evangeliſt accommodates unto this matter (of his dwelling in Nazareth) a title by the Prophet oft applied to the Meſſias, that of נצר ſurculus, a branch, and ſo (by that Hebraiſm) the meaning of theſe words [κληθήσεται Ναζωραῖος, he ſhall be called a Nazarean] will be no more then this, [He ſhall be that Netſer in the Prophets,] paraphraſed in the Targum by משיחא Meſſiah, but by the Greek rendred ἄνθος, a flower, Iſa. 11.1. perhaps by a miſtake of נץ for נצ flos, leaving out the ר, or elſe in a wider acception of ἄνθος, for any branch, or plant. From whence, no queſtion, it is that Phavorinus ſpeaking of this word Ναζωραῖος, beſides the ordinary acceptions of it, adds ἢ κατὰ τινὰς ἄνθος, ſome uſe the word for a flower, referring to the Greek rendring of נצר in Iſaiah, but applying it to Ναζωραῖος in the Evangeliſt, which no doubt ſignifies that learned Grammarians opinion, that נצר and Ναζωραῖος are all one. But beſide this acception of the word for a branch or plant, it may alſo be obſerved that the radix נצר ſignifying ſervavit, and God being called by a name coming from that radix, Job 7.20. Prov. 24.12. it may alſo poſſibly intimate the title of Saviour, which is ſo often given him in the Prophets, and which is the importance of נוצר and the Arabick Nazir a defendour, or protector, according to which 'tis clear that Iſ. 60. where the Hebrew reads נצר a branch, and the Targum נצבא a plant, the Greek reads φυλάσσων keeper, taking it for נצר without points. But the former notation of the word, as it referres to the branch of the root of Jeſſe, is that which is to be preferred in this place, and the meaning of the [ἵνα πληρωθῇ] that by his dwelling in Nazareth he came to be ſtyled הנצרי or Nazaren, i. e. that true branch, of which the Prophets, *Iſa.*11.1. *Jer.*23.5. & 33.14. *Zach.*6. 12. & 3.8. Iſa. 4.2. had ſo often ſpoken. This I conceive to be the trueſt notion of the word Ναζωραῖος, both becauſe the Jews call Chriſt הנצרי with צ from the Hebrew נצר with צ, and becauſe this only can be ſaid to have been foretold διὰ τῶν Προφητῶν, by the Prophets. Others indeed think it not improbable that it ſhould referre to the word נזר with ז, which ſignifies ſeparavit. For thus alſo the Greek ζ in Ναζωραῖος and Ναζαρὲθ, (which are indifferently uſed in the Goſpels) would bear, and to this purpoſe it is obſerved, that when Gen. 49.26. & Deut. 33.16. Joſeph is called נזיר אחיו one ſeparated from his brethren, the Latin reads Nazoræus fratrum ſuorum: and it may be conſidered to this purpoſe, how fitly Joſeph was a type of Chriſt, as he is repreſented to us in this chapter. As Joſeph was by his brethren ſold into Egypt, ſo is Chriſt by the perſecution of Herod driven thither: As Joſeph was ſeparated from his brethren and caſt out from among them, ſo was Chriſt for fear of Archelaus ſeparated from his own tribe of Judah, and conſtrained to dwell in Nazareth of Galilee, whoſe name may denote that flight or ſeparation: and laſtly, as נזיר in Zachary 7.3. is uſed for an afflicted humbled perſon, one ſeparate from the comforts of life, his daily bread, ſo is this applyable to Chriſts being brought up in Nazareth, a vile place (Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?) and ſo a ſpeciall part of Chriſts humiliation to live there. This other accompt of the word I cannot farther commend to the Reader; yet thought it not amiſſe to mention it, as it is. The former of the Branch] is moſt commodious and ſatisfactory; All the difficulty is, how this dwelling in Nazareth ſhould be ſaid to be deſign'd to the fulfilling of that prophecy, which referres not at all to his dwelling there. In anſwer to which, it is firſt to be remembred, (what was ſaid on c.1. note k.) that the word [ἵνα that] is here ἐκβατικὸν not ἀποτελεσμικὸν, and notes no more then this, that by this paſſage of ſtory, thoſe paſſages of the Prophets received a completion; and ſecondly, that prophecies are ſometimes ſaid to be completed or fulfilled, when ſtrictly and properly (or in the primitive ſenſe of the words of the Prophet) they are not fulfilled, but only in a large acception of them, ſo as

by way of accommodation they may be applyable to what is come to passe, or that the thing done may reflect or referre to such words in the Prophets, or bring them to the minds of men. Thus doth the Author to the Hebrews from the interpretation of Salem, of which Melchisedek (the type of Christ) was King, conclude Christ to be the prince of peace, Isa. 9. And then why may not the Evangelist here from his dwelling in Nazareth (and so being capable of the title נצר) conclude as properly that the appellation נצר that Isaiah foretold of him, did now appear to belong to him (though not in that sense in which twas first affirm'd of him, yet) by way of accommodation? which it will doe more discernibly, if it be considered, that as Cinnereth in Iosuah (retained by the Hierusalem Targum, Num. 34. 15.) was after chang'd into Genuesareth the valley of branches, (and therefore Christs abode and conversation was so much about that Lake; by which he shewed himself to be truly that branch so oft prophecy'd of) so in all probability that city in the tribe of Nephthali which is called En Hazor, Ios. 19. 37. was after contracted and lightly changed into Nazor and Nazareth to signifie the city of the branch, or where the Messiah [the branch] should be brought up, and accordingly this becomes Christs vulgar title, Ναζωραῖος, Mat. 26. 71. Mar. 10. 47. Luke 18. 37. 24. 19. John 18. 5, 7. and 19. 19. and seven times in the Acts, and Ναζαρηνὸς (in the same notion) sometimes, Mar. 1. 24. 14. 67. 16. 6. and Luke 4. 34.

CHAP. III.

Paraphrase.

1. IN those daies came John the [a] Baptist preaching in the wilderness of Judea]

1. Now before Christs entring upon the first part of his office, that of preaching the will of God, called his prophetick office (in which he continued till his crucifixion) it was necessary to set down the office of John Baptist, who proclaimed his coming before-hand as his harbinger, or forerunner, and at whose baptizing of Christ, the holy Ghost visibly descended on him, and consecrated him to this prophetick office. And thus it was, while Jesus continued at Nazareth, though many years after his first coming thither, John the Baptist preached in the desert called the desert of Judea (differing from other deserts mentioned in the Scripture, under the name of Maon, Engaddi, Ziph, the desert of Idumea, &c.) by a river side neer Enon and Salim. a.

2. And saying, [b] Repent ye, for the [c] kingdome of heaven is at hand.]

2. Not giving them any new precepts of life, but charging them with their breaches against the rule or law which they had already, and accordingly saying to all that people, Reform, and amend your lives, for the kingdome of the Messias, so long looke for, is now approaching, and so the time that God shall come to execute most visible judgments on this land (even to an utter destruction, if ye repent not at this preaching of John and Christ) and withall bestow most eminent and remarkable preservations upon all penitent believers, b. c.

3. For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias, saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths streight,]

3. And this according to that which Isaiah c. 40. saith, He shall preach in the wilderness of Judea, and the summe of his preaching shall be, The approach of the Lords coming to receive his kingdome, and upon his being rejected, coming with his hosts against the obdurate and rebellious, to destroy them that would not let him reign over them. See note c.

4. And the same John [had his [d] rayment of camels hayre, and a leathern girdle about his loynes, and his meat was locusts and * [e] wild honey.]

* field honey

4. Wore a rough garment made of Camels haire (such as Elias had, 2 Kings 1. 8. and was thence called an hairy-man) or of sackcloth, Rev. 11. 3. agreeable to his being in the wilderness, and nothing to gird it to him, but (as Elias again) a peice of leather made of some beasts skin, and he eate nothing but either a larger sort of grashoppers, called locusts, Lev. 11. 22. (or else, as some think, green herbs) and field honey, i.e. neither bread nor wine, Mat. 11. 18. Luke 7. 33. but only such as the wilderness, or as the wood brought forth. d. e.

5. Then went out to him Jerusalem and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan

6. And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins]

5, 6. And upon this fearfull denouncing of his against the Jews, a great multitude of Jews of all parts went out to him, and confessed their sins, which might justly bring down these judgments on them, each acknowledging his own particular guilts, and promising reformation. And he received them by baptism, or immersion in the water of Jordan, promising them pardon, upon the sincerity of their conversion, and amendment, or reformation of their lives.

7. But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, [O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?]

7. O yee, that are more like to broods of venemous creatures, then the progeny of Abraham, who hath admonished you to make use of this means to escape this destruction approaching?

* worthy, or meet fruits of repentance, ἄξιον τῆς μετανοίας

8. Bring forth therefore * fruits meet for repentance.

8. See that your reformation be sincere, producing fruits worthy of the stock from which you glory to spring (i.e. of Abraham, v. 9. who is your father indeed, but from whom you are so farre degenerated, that you are become broods of vipers, v. 7.) or absolutely (as Acts 26. 20.) meet, fit seasonable fruits, such as may avert or prevent those judgments.

9. And †[f] think not to say within your selves, We have Abraham to our father, for I say unto you that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.]

9. And say not, or, doe not please and satisfie your selves in saying or thinking, that you have the priviledge of being children of Abraham, which will be able to secure you; For God hath not such need of children of Abraham, that he may not destroy them, he can, without breach of promise to him, destroy them all, and then out of the obdurate Gentile world (or, if he please, out of the stones in the streets) produce and raise up a people to himself, followers of the faith of Abraham, and so as pretious to God, and to whom the promises made to Abraham as truly belong, as to the proudest Jew among you. f.

10. * And

10. But now are Gods judgments come home to this people, and ready to ſeize upon the whole nation, and ſhall actually fall upon every unreformed ſinner among you. See note on Acts 15. c. (In this how every ſort of people are concerned: ſee Luke 3.10. &c.)

10. * And now alſo the axe is layd to the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewen down, and caſt into the fire.

* But the axe is even already. ἤδη δὲ καὶ ἡ ἀξίνη

g. h. 11. But, this is not all I have to ſay to you, beſide this warning you to repent, I am alſo ſent to tell you, that the Meſſias is now at hand, ready to enter on his office. And indeed all that I doe, is to preach repentance, and to receive proſelytes after the Jewiſh manner, with water, the only ceremony that I uſe, but Chriſt, who, though he comes after me, is much ſuperiour to me, and whoſe diſciple or ſervant I am not worthy to be, (he being that great prophet foretold by Moſes, that all muſt hear under pain of utter exciſion, and accordingly reforming and hightning Moſes's law, which I have not meddled with, ſave to call you to repent of the breach of it) he ſhall come in greater pomp, ſhall firſt ſend the holy Ghoſt to come down viſibly on ſome of you his choſen diſciples who ſhall beleive in him, and to whom he ſhall entruſt all power in his Church after him) thereby not only to aſſure them of the truth of his doctrine, but alſo to conſecrate them to his ſervice (ſee note on Acts 1. a.) to preach his doctrine to the whole world (but firſt to all the cities of Jury) And this ſhall be another manner of initiating of diſciples, mine with water, but his with fire, which will purge thoſe things which water will not, and this fire perhaps an emblemie of ſomething elſe; For immediately after that, by that time they have preached through all the cities of Jury, he ſhall alſo come down with fire, or flaming judgments on the obdurate unbeleivers, v. 12. (ſee Acts 2. 17, 19. &c.) and at the end of the world, reward every man according to his works.

11. I indeed [baptize you with water unto repentance, but he that cometh after me is mightier then I, whoſe ſhoos I am not worthy to * h bear, he ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt, and with fire.]

* remove, or carry,

i. 12. He comes like an husbandman to threſh and winnow with ſuch inſtruments in his hands which will ſever the wheat from the chaffe, the good from the bad, the good he will preſerve, but the refuſe he will deliver up to the wind and fire, to be utterly deſtroyed.

12. Whoſe * i fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather the wheat into his garner, but will burn up the chaffe with unquenchable fire.]

* winnowing inſtrument

13. While John was thus a preaching, and baptizing, and had gathered good ſtore of diſciples, Jeſus cometh

13. Then cometh Jeſus] from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him,

14. And John beſought him it might be otherwiſe,

14. But John forbad him,] ſaying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comeſt thou to me?

15. To doe all thoſe things which are by God required of all under this ſtate of Johns miniſtery, (ſee note on Rom. 1. a.) and by ſo doing, i.e. by my receiving baptiſm from thee, God hath determin'd to inaugurate me to my office of preaching the Goſpel, by ſending down his Spirit upon me at that time, and giving me teſtimony from heaven; upon this John permitted him and baptized him, and accordingly it came to paſſe.

15. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto him, Suffer it to be ſo now, for thus it becometh us [to fulfill all righteouſneſſe. Then he ſuffered him.]

k. 16. For Jeſus as ſoon as he was baptized, went out of the water before John, and aſſoon as ever he came out of the water, he fell down on his knees in prayer to his father, Luke 3.21. and whilſt he was praying, behold the heavens (ſee Acts 7. 56.) either really, or after ſome remarkable manner of appearance, parted aſunder viſibly before Chriſt, and the Spirit of God deſcended upon him, as a dove deſcends upon any thing, viſibly hovering, and lighting upon him, (ſo Mark 1. 10.) and John Baptiſt ſaw and diſcerned what was done, Jo. 1. 32.

16. And Jeſus, when he was baptized, [went up ſtraightway out of the water, and loe the heavens were opened unto him, and he ſaw the Spirit of God deſcending * k like a dove, and lighting upon him.]

* as it were,

l. 17. And as the heavens parted aſunder, a thunder came out, and (joyned with it) a voice, delivering theſe words, This is &c. i.e. This is my ſon whom I have ſent on purpoſe to reveal my will by him, and whatſoever he teaches, comes from me, and is perfectly my will or law.

17. And loe a voice from heaven ſaying, [l This is my beloved ſon, in whom I am well pleaſed.]

Annotations on Chap. III.

a. Βαπτιστὴς

That we may underſtand the meaning of the title Baptiſt, we muſt firſt know what was meant by the waſhings among the Iewes. Their frequent every day waſhings I now ſpeak not of, but referre them to their proper place, Mark 7.3. Thoſe which we now ſpeak of were thoſe of the whole body, of which ſort were firſt the waſhings of the Prieſts, when they went into the Temple to miniſter or officiate, for that they never did after the building of the Temple, but they firſt waſht their whole body. At the going into the Tabernacle waſhing the hands and feet was ſufficient, Exod. 30.20. but not ſo after the building of the Temple: ſee Cod: Ioma, c.3. They bring the Prieſt to the houſe of waſhing, לבית הטבילה, which was without the Temple over the water-gate, There (as it follows §.3.) the Prieſt waſhes, and though he be under no legall uncleanneſſe, yet he never enters, but he waſhes firſt, and (§.4.) he puts off his cloathes and goes down, and waſhes. The waſhing of his hands and feet, which was oft repeated (10. time in a day §. 3.) was done in the Temple, over the houſe of Happarvah, as 'tis there called; but this firſt waſhing of the whole body was conſtantly uſed, before the entrance into the Temple (four times more in the Temple on the day of Expiation) for it was not lawfull to come in thither without waſhing firſt, an imitation of which are the waſhings and luſtrations among the Gentiles. A ſecond ſort was the waſhing of the proſelytes, who were to be received into the Church or Temple of the Iewes, and ſo to be waſht at their entrance, as the Prieſts at their going into the Temple. Thoſe Proſelytes I mean, which being not born of Iewiſh but heathen parents became proſelytes of juſtice, i. e. receiv'd the Iewiſh religion, and ſubmitted to their whole Law, were circumciſed &c. Theſe men were admitted by the Iewes, not only by circumciſion and (while the Temple

Προσήλυτος

Temple ſtood) by ſacrifice, but alſo with this ceremony, or ſolemnity of waſhing, i.e. ablution of the whole body, done ſolemnly in a river, or other ſuch great place, or receptacle of waters; ſo ſaith the Talmud of Iethro Moſes his father-in-law, בהגיור במילה ובטבילה בפיום He was made a Proſelyte by circumciſion, and immerſion in water, Tr: Repudii, and the manner of this immerſion is ſaid to be, that they ſhould ſit in water up to the neck, and in the while learn ſome of the precepts of the Law, both hard and eaſie. This ceremony of their initiation was never upon any occaſion reiterated, ſay the Iewiſh writers (ſee note on Iob: 13. 6.) and belonged not only to thoſe which being of years came over from Heatheniſm to the Iewes religion, but alſo to their children-infants, if their parents, and the conſeſſus under which they were, did in behalf of their children deſire it, and on condition, that the children, when they came to age ſhould not renounce the Iewes religion. Nay, the native Iewes themſelves were thus baptized, ſo ſaith the Talmud, Tr: Repud: ישראל לא באו לבריות אלא בשלשה דברים בטילה ובטבילה ובהרצאות הקרבן אף הגרים כיוצא בהם The Iſraelites doe not enter into Covenant but by theſe three things, Circumciſion, and Baptiſm, and Peace-offering, and the proſelytes likewiſe. Now theſe that were thus initiated, did put off all their former relations, not only their former worſhips and manners, but their relations of kindred, &c. and came forth, as if they had been New born, of a New mother, as the Talmud oft expreſſes it. So that he which was kin to him before, ſhall from thenceforth ceaſe to be ſo, i. e. to be ſo accounted by him. To which I ſuppoſe our Saviour referres, when he ſpeaks of leaving father and mother and wife and children, &c. Mark 10. 29. Luke 18. 29. and when he talks of being born again of water, &c. To this no queſtion belongs that of Tacitus Hiſt: l. 5. ſpeaking of thoſe that went over to the Iewes religion, nec quicquam prius imbuuntur, quam contemnere Deos, exuere patriam, parentes, liberos, fratres vilia habere, they are taught by their firſt admiſſion to diſpiſe, i.e. to forſake their fathers and mothers, children and brethren, &c. And the Iewes have a ſaying, that he that hath married a wife too neer of kin to him, if he turn proſelyte to the Iewes, and receive their baptiſm, he is no longer neer of kin to the woman, and ſo may now lawfully live with her. Of this cuſtome of baptizing proſelytes among the Iewes, we have a clear teſtimony in Arrian the Stoick Philoſopher in his Epicteti, l. 2. c. 9. where the Proſelyte Iew is by him ſtyled βαπτιστὸς, dipt, or baptized, and he that is not really converted to their religion, but only λόγῳ in word, or outward profeſſion and ſhew, is by him called ψευδοβαπτίστης a counterfeit baptized perſon. Having ſaid thus much of the cuſtome among the Iewes, 'tis now moſt eaſie to apply it to the practiſe of Iohn, and after of Chriſt, who certainly took this ceremony from them. Hence was Iohn's baptiſm, as theirs, in a river, in Iordan, Mark 1. 5. in a confluence of much waters, as in Ænon, Iohn 3. 23. becauſe, as it is added, there was much water there, and therefore as the Iewes writing in Greek call thoſe Lakes wherein they waſh themſelves κολυμβήθρας, ſo in the Chriſtian Church the βαπτιστήριον, or veſſel which conteined the baptiſmal-water, is oft called κολυμβήθρα a ſwimming, or, diving place, with ſome reference alſo to that ἐν τῇ κολυμβήθρᾳ, Iohn 5. 2. where the cures were wrought on them that went down into it, (ſee note on Iohn 13. 10. and on 1 Cor. 15. 29. d. and Iohn 3. 10.) The other parts of the parallel will eaſily apply themſelves, all that is proper to this place is only this, that Iohn preaching repentance to the Iewes in the deſert, received all that came unto him, as new Proſelytes, forſaking their old relations, i. e. their ſins, and in token of their reſolved change put them into the water, dipped them all over, and ſo took them out again, and upon the ſincerity of their change promiſed them remiſſion of their ſins, and told them of the Meſſias, which was ſuddenly to appear among them, and warned them to beleive on him.

This μετάνοια is not only ſorrow for ſin, or wiſhing it undone. but a change of mind, μετάνοιαν ἢ τῆς converſion, Mal: 4. 6. and reformation, μετάνοια ἀπὸ πονηρῶν ἔργων, Heb: 6. 1. Repentance not only for but, from dead or ſinfull works. Both very neceſſary. b. Μετάνοια

The phraſe βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν, or τοῦ Θεοῦ, the kingdome of heaven, and, of God] ſignifies in the New Teſtament the kingdome of the Meſſias, or that ſtate or condition, which is a moſt lively image of that which we beleive to be in heaven, and therefore called by that name For as Gods regall power exerciſed in heaven conſiſts in aſſiſting, defending, and rewarding all his faithfull ſubjects, and in warning, puniſhing, and deſtroying his obdurate enemies, ſo this kingdome of the Meſſias is an exact Image, or reſemblance of it; And being, as 'tis elſwhere affirm'd, not of this world, a ſecular kingdome, but conſiſting eſpecially in ſubduing the world to his dominion, That is done firſt by the deſcent of the Spirit, and preaching the Goſpel, by his word powerfully working in ſome, and bringing them unto the faith, and then by his iron rod executing vengeance on others, viz: the contumacious and obdurate (to this purpoſe that parable deliver'd by Chriſt, Luke 19. 12. on occaſion of their thinking that the Kingdome of God ſhould preſently appear, v. 11. is very conſiderable: ſee the place.) And particularly thoſe of the Nation of the Iewes after the crucifixion of Chriſt. And accordingly this kingdome of God will generally ſignifie theſe two together, not only the firſt alone, but, in conjunction with it, that other more tragicall part of it alſo. That 'tis uſed ſo here may be diſcerned not only by that which is ſaid in Malachi by way of prophecy, of Iohns preaching, c. 4. 5. that he ſhould come before the great and terrible day of the Lord, (ſee note on c. 17. a.) i.e. before the fatall deſtruction of this people, and alſo in Iſaiah, that when he cryed in the wilderneſſe, this was part of his crying [Prepare ye the way of the Lord:] noting him an antecambulo, or forerunner of Chriſt's coming (which what it ſignifies will be explained, Mat. 24. b.) and again, Every valley ſhall be exalted, and every hill brought low; Which although it were literally ſpoken by the Prophet, of the reducing the people from captivity to their own country, (expreſſing it by the former deliverance and paſſage out of Egypt through uneven craggy waies in the deſert, which yet by Gods conduct were made paſſable to them, and they brought at laſt to Ca- c. naan) and myſtically of the removing all obſtacles in our way to felicity and bliſſe, yet may farther be applied to this of the Roman armies coming againſt Jeruſalem, and perhaps be explained by that paſſage in Joſephus de Bell: Jud: l.6.c.12. that the high and low places were made plain for the coming of the Roman Army, and engines againſt Jeruſalem, but alſo by that which follows here v.10. as the explication of this text of the Baptiſts [and now alſo the axe is laid to the root of the tree, every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and caſt into the fire] and again v.7. by the ὀργὴ μέλλουσα [the wrath ready to come upon them] which is proportionable or parallel to the approaching kingdome of heaven, as the exhortation v.8. of bringing forth meet fruits of repentance, is to μετανοῆτε, repent, and ſo directly in that prophecy of Malachi's concerning the coming and preaching of John Baptiſt, Mal. 4. 5, 6. the ſumme of his preaching is expreſſed by the effect of it, He ſhall turn the heart of the fathers to (or, with) the children, and the heart of the children to (or, with) their fathers, i.e. ſhall convert all ſorts of Iewes, young and old, fathers and children, preach converſion and repentance to them, leſt I, (i.e. God) come and ſmite the earth (or, land) with a curſe; Where, as Gods coming is interpreted by his ſmiting Judea (curſes and inflictions on that land) ſo is this denunciation of thoſe judgments, part of that Baptiſt's ſermon, and the repentance or converſion by him preach'd, the only means to avert them. And ſo likewiſe in Iſa: 40. the revealing the glory of the Lord, &c. v.5. may be 1. the preaching of the Goſpel, and then the viſibleneſſe of Gods judgments on all the Jewes in Judea, and the 6^t^, 7^th^, and 8^th^ verſes very fitly referre to the ſudden deſtruction of that people, as the withering of graſſe or fading of flowers upon Gods blowing upon them, whereby his diſpleaſure is expreſſed. To which yet his preſervation of the remnant (as here his gathering the wheat into his garner v. 12.) his protecting of the few beleivers (ſo that not an hair of their heads ſhall fall, Luke 21. 18.) is immediately annex'd v. 9,10,11. And accordingly [the kingdome of God] here is not ſo to be reſtrain'd to the punitive part, but that it alſo contein under it that other peice of Regality, which conſiſts in protecting of ſubjects, and rewarding them which doe well alſo, which ſhould be moſt viſible at the time of his puniſhments on the obſtinate, his burning the chaffe with unquenchable fire. To this purpoſe the words of Saint Luke, c.21. v.18.31. are moſt remarkable, where ſetting down diſtinctly the ſigns and forerunners of the deſtruction of the Temple and that people, and among thoſe prognoſticks, the great perſecutions which the Diſciples ſhould find from the Jewes, he bids them then cheerfully look up, v.28. for their ἀπολύτρωσις Redemption, deliverance from theſe hazards and preſſures, draweth neer, and, with a ſhort parable interpoſed to expreſſe it, he adds v.31. Know that the kingdome of God is at hand, this kingdome ſurely here, which now approached, but ſhould then be more neer, wherein the judgment of God ſhould be moſt viſible in judging betwixt the wheat and ſtraw, burning up the refuſe, deſtroying the impenitent unbelieving Jewes, but protecting and ſetting ſafe on the ſhore all the diſciples and believers, and that by the very deſtruction of theſe their brethren, who were their chiefeſt perſecutors, v.16. This ſenſe will be the more unqueſtion'd, if it be obſerv'd, that when Chriſt himſelf begins to preach, he uſed theſe ſame words, c.4.17. by which it is clear, that Chriſt's preaching the Goſpel was not the only thing meant by this kingdome (as 'tis generally ſuppoſed) becauſe that was then actually preſent, when Chriſt ſaith only [ἤγγικα, it is nigh approaching] And if it be ſaid, that ἤγγικα in the preter tenſe, expreſſed by the Latine, appropinquavit, may ſignifie that it hath been neer, but now is preſent; Then firſt I anſwer, that that grammaticall nicety will not be applyable to many other places of Scripture, where that tenſe is uſed. 2. That even the full Grammaticall importance of it will be made up by rendring it [it hath for ſome time been approaching] that peoples ſins long calling for it. 3^ly^. Luke 21. 31. (which was long after this, and withall a prediction of a time then future) 'tis then but ἐγγύς ἐστι the kingdome of God is nigh. And as by Chriſt, ſo when the Apoſtles are ſent out by him the ſame ſtyle is ſtill preſcrib'd them, Mat. 10. 7. As you go, preach, ſaying, The kingdome of heaven is at hand. And as it is to this ſame ſenſe affirmed by Chriſt, that he came to ſend a ſword ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν i.e. a ſlaughter on the land of Judea, Mat. 10. 34. ſo when this commiſſion of the Apoſtles is ſet down by S. Luke, 10.11. to thoſe that receive them not, they are appointed to uſe a direfull ceremony, ſhaking off the duſt from their feet againſt them, and telling them the importance of it, that the kingdome of God is nigh upon them, ἐφ' ὑμᾶς, v. 11. and upon the back of that, v. 12. (Verily I ſay unto you, it ſhall be more tolerable for Sodome in that day (i. e. not in the day of judgment to come, for that belongs to each particular perſon, not whole cities together, but) in that day of the kingdome of God, then for that refractary city. Gods dealing with Sodome in the day of their deſtruction with fire and brimſtone, ſhall be acknowledg'd to have been more ſupportable, then his dealing with ſuch contumacious impenitent cities of Judea; So Mat. 16.28. The Son of man coming in his kingdome] belongs not to the tranſfiguration, as 'tis by many miſtaken, but to a coming in the glory of his father to reward and puniſh, v. 27. (and is call'd the kingdome of God coming with power, Mark 9. 1.) and that belongs clearly to the ſcope of the place, viz: to arme his followers that they ſhould not be terrified with the malice of the Iewes v.25. or tempted to deny Chriſt, Luke 9.29. So Luke 19.11. when 'tis ſaid, they thought the kingdome of God ſhould preſently appear, Chriſt's parable concluding with the bringing forth and ſlaying the enemies before him, applies it directly to this purpoſe v.27. and ſo what he adds v 43. at his entrance into Ieruſalem. So Luke 17.20. when he anſwers that the kingdome of God comes not with obſervation, i.e. in a pompous remarkable manner, ſo as Kings are wont to come with their court and train attending, which all men come out to look after, and crie, Lo here, i.e. it is come, &c. it is clear by the conſequents that it belongs to this matter, 1. the preaching of the Goſpel among them, then already begun, v 21. and then the deſtroying of unbeleivers, v. 22. 24. &c. The way by which this phraſe comes thus to ſignifie, is this, becauſe there be ſeverall offices of a

King, the exercise of the power of the Sword, as well as of making Laws, of punishing and rewarding as well as of reigning, he is ἔκδικος εἰς ὀργὴν Rom. 13.4. an Avenger to inflict punishment, and so he is expres't at his ἐκδίκησιν, Lu: 18.7. speaking of this matter. In this respect it is that the Governours of the Jews were call'd Judges; inflicting of punishments or judgments (which is one part) giving denomination to the whole regall office, and so Lu: 10. these three phrases, [the kingdome of God] v. 11. and [that day] i. e. the time of his exercising that regall power v. 12. (or as Saint Marke reads it, ἡμέρας κρίσεως, Mar: 6. 11. the day of executing judgment) and in the same matter [κρίσις ver. 14. judgment simply] are all phrases of the same significancy to note the destruction here threatned, with which there was also mercy mingled, and preservation to some. See Lu: 17. 34. and 21. 28. The same thing is expres't by other phrases, the coming of Christ, the end, the end of all things, the conclusion of this age &c. which in their due places shall be observ'd.

d. Κεμήλου τρίχας. This garment ἀπὸ τριχῶν καμήλου, of Camels haire used by John the Baptist, seems to be no more then a garment of haire-cloth, made of haire rude and raw, not of haire softned, and dreſt, or spun into a thred. The difference betwixt these two is the same that betwixt flax rude or unprepared, and the same dreſt or spun, one having much more of coursnes's and asperity then the other; or between that which we now call haire-cloth, which is made of rude, undrest haire, and chamlet or grogoram, that is made of it, when 'tis softned, and spun, and prepared. That the former is that which is here mention'd, may appear, 1. by the design of it, used by John, as here set down by the Evangelist, to signifie the austerity of his habit, as well, as that, which follows, is of his diet; (and so interpreted by all the Ancients,) which it would not be, had it been thus dress't and softned. 2ly. It is to be considered, that as he was Elias, that was foretold should come, so his habit, and his diet, and the wilderness (as well as the matter of his prophecy, fire from heaven, judgments on the impenitent) were to represent Elias. Now of Elias we read, his habit thus described, 2 Kings 1. 8. He is an hairy man, and girt with a girdle of leather about his loynes, where the haire, being joyned with the leathern girdle, or zone, may most probably be interpreted (both of them) to the same matter of his habit, or manner of attire, enquired of v. 7. (and so 'twill be a complete description of that, this haire-cloth, and leathern zone being all the clothes that he had visible about him, as it was of the Baptist here) and not of the form, or manner, or constitution of his body, that he was like Esau, a man with much haire growing upon him, for that alone would have been but a very imperfect description of him, nothing else of his body being mentioned, and on the other side, only a leathern girdle about his loynes, which as it cannot be applied to the form or fashion of his body, but must necessarily denote his attire, so it would be a very imperfect description of that, if nothing else of that kind were joyned with it. 3ly. This was the mourning habit, sackcloth and haire-cloth (if among them they differed at all) differing but little, both of them garments of the greatest coursnes's, and austerity. And then as in the Christian Church, from the Jewish, he that excommunicated, or pronounced sentence of anathema against any, is said to mourn or bewayle him, 2 Cor: 12, 21. so the Prophets that came to foretell judgments upon a Nation, did put on such mourning habits to denote the sad errands they came about. That was Elias's errand then, and John Baptist's now, of the axe laid to the root of the tree &c. and thus the two witnesses in the Revelat: c. 11. (that are described, like Elias v. 5. the fire cometh out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies, relating to his calling for fire from heaven, and again v. 6. they have power to shut heaven that it shall not rain, as Elias had) are said to prophecy clothed in sackcloth v. 3. which sackcloth Rev. 6. 12. hath the epithet of τρίχινος hairy bestow'd upon it, expressing the materialls of it to be of haire, which they used for their mourning habit. To this clearly referres that of the false prophets, that they wore rough garments to deceive, Zach: 13. 4. The rough garments, the token of the prophet, as the deceiving is all one with the false. As for their conceit who think John's garment here to have been a skin of a camel with the haire on, such as the sheep-skins and goat-skins Heb: 11. it is sufficiently confuted by the Evangelist, who makes the clothing, and the girdle of different matters, using different forms of speech to expresse them by, which there is no reason to think would have been done, if they had been both of the same.

e. Μέλι ἄγριον. The μέλι ἄγριον, or field honey is a kind of extemporary diet (as water out of the spring) such as was to be found in woods, running out of trees where bees were, so 1 Sam. 14. 25. there is δρυμὸς μελισσῶν & πρόσωπον τῆς ἀγροῦ, where our English, out of the Hebrew, read [they came to a wood, and there was honey upon the ground, and v. 26. εἰσῆλθεν ὁ λαὸς εἰς τὸν μελισσῶνα, καὶ ἰδοὺ ῥέοντα μέλι, when they came into the wood, behold the honey dropt, and v. 27. Ionathan dipt his rod, εἰς τὸ κηρίον τοῦ μέλιτος, in a combe of honey. In which place, that which is δρυμὸς μελισσῶν & a wood of honey in the Greek, is by an Hypallage mel sylvestre, wood-honey, the very thing that is here μέλι ἄγριον, field-honey or wood-honey (agri and sylvæ being oft promiscuously used for any places (remoter from towns) open and unenclosed, though they be not woodlands. So in Virgil, sylvis egressus, Æne: 1. and sylvestrem musam, Eclog: 1. in relation to the mountains or downs, where they fed their flocks) which sense of the μέλι ἄγριον] makes it also not improbable, that ἀκρίδες, which here are joyn'd with it, as the Baptists only food, may signifie ἀκρόδρυα or ἀκρέμονες, i. e. πάντες οἱ τῶν δένδρων τερμοὶ, or καρποὶ δενδρικοὶ, all fruits of trees in Phavorinus, i. e. fruits of the wilder trees, or indeed herbes or leaves, To which purpose I shall referre the Reader to Steph: Forner: ver: quotid: l. 6. c. 27. Thus doth Isiodore Pelusiote interpret it with great earnestnesse against the other rendring of it. Αἱ ἀκρίδες ἡ ζῶά εἰσι, ὡς τινες ἄσοφοι ἀμαθῶς, μὴ γινώσκοντες, ἀλλ' ἀκρέμονες βοτανῶν καὶ φυτῶν. Ep: 5. the word, which we render locusts, signifies not living creatures, as some have ignorantly conceived, No by no means, but the tops of herbs and plants. And to this purpose is it, that Burchardus (p. 330.) in his Description of the Holy Land, saith, that he hath found in the Monasteries of Palestine, neer Iordan, a food which the Monks there uſe, of a ſort of herbs call'd locuſtæ, the ſame, ſay they, which the Baptiſt fed on. Though the truth is, Origen, Clemens, Ambroſe, and Hilary interpret ἀκρίδες locuſts as a ſort of graſhoppers, and it appears by Leviticus c. 11. 22. that they were uſed for food, being reckoned among the clean creatures, and by Pliny Nat: Hiſt: l. 11. and Athenæus, l. 4. that the Æthiopians and ſome others fed on graſhoppers, but thoſe ſalted and dried, ſaith Pliny, which cannot well be ſuppoſed of the Baptiſt here, whilſt he continued in the wilderneſſe. 'Tis more probable, that as the Sarmani or Σαμοναῖοι in Clem: Alex: Strom: l. 1. or Germanæ in Strabo call'd ὑλόβιοι (thoſe that lived in the woods, (not as 'tis falſly read ἀλλόβιοι) and neither inhabited cities, nor had houſes) ἀκρόδρυα σιτῶν), καὶ ὕδωρ ταῖς χερσὶν πίνοντι, eat herbs, and drink water in their hands, ſo the Baptiſt here abſtein'd from wine, fed on this victus parabilis, food that wanted no dreſſing (ὅπερ οἱ νῦν ἐγκρατεῖται, ſaith he, as the Encratites of his time) which Strabo, out of Megaſthenis Indica, expreſs't by ὑλόβιοι ζῶντες ἐν ταῖς ὕλαις ἀπὸ φύλλων καὶ καρπῶν ἀγρίων, they that lived in woods upon leaves, and wild fruits.

f. Δοκεῖν — The phraſe [μὴ δόξητε λέγειν] is no more then μὴ λέγητε, ſay not, or, as S. Luke reads c. 3. 8. μὴ ἄρξητε λέγειν, begin not to ſay. For ſo δοκεῖ, and videtur is oft an expletive. So 1 Cor. 10. 12. ὁ δοκῶν ἑστάναι, He that truly ſtands (not only ſeems or thinks himſelf to ſtand) for none elſe are capable of falling, ſo 1 Cor. 11. 16. If any man δοκεῖ φιλόνεικος εἶναι (not ſeem to be, but really) be contentious; ſo Heb: 4. 1. Let us fear, μή δοκή τις ὑστερηκέναι, leſt any man (not ſeemingly, but really) come ſhort. So Lu: 8. 18. the [ὃ δοκεῖ ἔχειν, that which he ſeems to have] being compared with Mat: 13. 12. καὶ ὃ ἔχει, even what he hath, and Mat: 25. 29. and Mar: 4. 25. appears to ſignifie [that which really he hath] (though he make not the right uſe of it) otherwiſe it could not be taken from him. So Mar: 10. 42. οἱ δοκοῦντες ἄρχειν they that think or ſeem to rule, is rendred by Saint Matthew 20. 25. οἱ ἄρχοντες the Rulers. So in the ſtory of Suſanna v. 5. οἱ ἐδόκουν κυβερνᾶν, not they which ſeem'd, but that really did govern. So in Procopius on 1 Kings, οἱ δόξαντες εὐσεβεῖν is applied to the pious Kings, Aſa, Joſaphat, &c. Thus in humane Authors [δοκεῖ] is the form of affirming any thing. If there be any farther force in this word, then only as an expletive, then (according to another notion of δοκεῖ) it will beſt be rendred, doe not pleaſe, or, ſatisfie your ſelves in ſaying, as δοκοῦντα is explain'd by ἀρέσκοντα, Phavor: ſee note on Mar: 2. a. and Note on Act: 16. a.

g. Βαπτίζειν ὕδατι — John's Baptiſm by water previous and preparatory to Chriſt's baptiſm by the Holy Ghoſt and fire, ſeems to be imitated by the Devil and his worſhippers the Indians in * Philoſtratus, who had, ſaith he, a well, whoſe water they eſteem'd ſacred, and endued with ſecret virtue, "Ορκιον δὲ νομίζουσιν τῇ φρέατι Ἰνδικῇ πάσῃ, which was counted ſacramentall to all the Indians, nigh unto which, ſaith he, there was a veſſel of fire in which the Indians were purged from their involuntary ſins, whereupon their wiſe men call the well, The well of conviction, or, reproof, and the fire, The fire of pardon, or, expiation. And ſo the Brachmans, before they ſacrificed, uſed to anoint themſelves ἀλειφόμενοι φαρμάκῳ, which ſo heated their bodies, that they ſent out fume and ſweat in great abundance, as if they had, ſaith he, been * waſht with fire.

That which is here βαστάσαι, is not, as in other places, βαστάζειν βάρος, the bearing of a burthen or weight (the Labourers or Porters office) but as a Miniſteriall Office, either 1. to remove things, that are not of preſent uſe, out of the way; the ſame that in other places is expreſs't by ἆραι, as ἆραι κράβαττον to take away, or put aſide the bed, as being no longer uſefull; and by this means it will here be all one with λῦσαι τὸν ἱμάντα τῆς ὑποδήματος, to looſe the latchet of the ſhooe, Mar: 1. 7. and John 1. 27. that looſing being in order to taking it off; Or elſe 2ly, as Lu: 10. 4. βαστάζειν ὑποδήματα to carry ſhooes was ordinary in journeys, ſo might it fitly be the diſciples office to doe ſo, and ſo either way the meaning of the Baptiſt's ſpeech is, that he was unworthy to be Chriſt's diſciple, for the diſciples of any prophet among the Iews were to ſerve him as his miniſters, to perform to him his ordinary neceſſary ſervices, ſo Joſuah was unto Moſes, Exod: 24. 13. and in Joſephus l. 1. So Eliſha miniſtred unto Elias, 1 Kings 19. 2. and poured water on Elias hands (this being ſet down as the diſciples office among their conſtitutions) and ſo when Chriſt ſaith he was among them as he that miniſters, Luke 22. 27. That of miniſtring referres to the office of a diſciple. And ſo when they are call'd the ſons of the prophets, it is in the Hebrew notion, wherein בָּנִים and שַׁמָּשִׁים, ſons, and ſervants, or miniſters are all one.

h. Βαστάζειν

i. Πτύον — Πτύον ſignifies a winnowing inſtrument, ξύλον ἐν ᾧ διαχωρίζουσι τὸν σῖτον ἀπὸ τῆς ἀχύρου, a piece of wood, by which they ſeparate the wheat from the chaffe, ſaith Heſychius. The Hebrew reads מִזְרֶה ventilabrum from זָרָה diſperſit, ventilavit, referring in generall to winnowing or holding up to the wind, but not peculiarly to the manner of doing it. The Syriacke hath רְפִשָׁא raphſho, and ſo the Arabick alſo. In which languages the word is ſaid to have two ſignifications, 1. to note a ſhovel or ſuch like inſtrument with a broad head, as a paddle &c. wherewith the ſurface of the earth is plained or pared. So 'tis in the Arabick proverb, Men al rapſh elal' arſh, from the ſhovel to the throne, from the meaneſt profeſſion to the greateſt dignity; 2. (as * Ieſu Bar Ali defines it) an inſtrument with a broad head, wherewith corn is moved or winnowed or ſtirr'd up to cleanſe it. Accordingly the Greek πτύον Heſychius expreſſes firſt by σφῦραξ, and then σφῦραξ, ſaith he, is ὄργανον ὀδοντικὸν, an inſtrument with teeth, and again he explains it by τριαῦνα, and τριαῦνα he defines to be λόγχη τριῶν ὀδόντων, a ſpeare, or pike, having three teeth or ſharps, a three-tooth'd pitchfork uſed to ſtirre or throw up corn, when they make up their floors; and in another place he makes it all one with τριβόλῳ, which being by the Grammarians ſaid to be τριβόλης, i.e. τρία ἔχων βέλη, that which hath three darts, quod tres cuſpides habet, it appears to be directly all one with τριαῦνα. The reſult of all this Grammaticall diſcourſe is this, that the word πτύον here is ſet to denote that γεωργικὸν ὄργανον ὀδοντικὸν that inſtrument with teeth ſomewhat like our pitchfork, with which they managed the buſineſſe of winnowing their corn, ſtirring it up, that the chaffe when the corn is out of it, having no weight in it, may be driven away with the wind, if there be any, and if there be none, they had an inſtrument, as we have now ſayles, to make a wind, and then that blowes away the chaffe without any other helps then of ſtirring it up that the wind may have force on it. Thus Iſa: 30. 24. the corn is ſaid to be winnowed בורורו (which, ſaith Kimchi, ſignifies Pala, quâ grana, per ſpatium longiuſculum in ventum illata, à ventilatore purgantur, (as M^r Fuller renders him) and accordingly we render it a ſhovel) ובמזרה and (with the fan, we read, i.e.) with that inſtrument here ſpoken of, that ſtirres up the corn for the wind, that that may drive all the duſt and chaffe away; the word that the Hebre where uſeth. This is diſtinctly and properly the manner of the διακαθαίρειν & ἀλῶνα, the throughly cleanſing of the threſhing floor, which here followes. For ſo at this day in thoſe parts under the Turks dominion (and alſo in Spaine, where, by the inhabiting of the Moors, who are baſtard-Jewes, many Jewiſh cuſtomes are retained) the threſhing floor is in an eminent place in the open field, large enough to be compared with that of Araunah, 2 *Sam.*24. where David built an Altar. Thither, after gathering their corn, they bring it, then have they a pair of wheels of iron, joyned with an axle-tree, and dented, or toothed, like a ſaw, and ſometimes an heavy board or plank, about the bigneſſe of an ordinary door, driven on the lower ſide, full of ſharp ſtones, or pieces of flints (the מורג and חרוץ Iſa: 41. 15. which the Greek renders τρίχυσι ἀμάξης ἀλοώσης, and *Iſa:*28.27. חרוץ, and גלגל the threſhing inſtrument and the cart wheel) and one of theſe the oxen draw over it, ſo at once with their feet treading out the corn, and with theſe breaking the ſtraw into ſmall parts, which is the ordinary food for their cattell all the year. This they take away and put up in bags. As for the chaffe the wind drives that away, as 'tis Pſal: 1.4. and Job 21.18. and *Iſa:*41.16. ἀνεμώσεις, καὶ πνεῦμα λήψεται

* Syro-Arab: Lex:

αὐτὰ, thou ſhalt * winnow them, and the wind ſhall take them. Only in caſe of the winds turning, when they fear that it will bring all the chaffe back again upon the floor, they put fire to it at the wind-ſide, and that creeps on and never gives over, till it have conſumed all the chaffe, and ſo is a kind of ἄσβεστον πῦρ here, a fire never quenchable, till it have done its work. To this deſcription of their practiſe many places in the old Teſtament agree. The threſhing the mountains Iſa: 41. 15. referres to the cuſtome of threſhing floors in ſuch eminent places, and ſo ſetting the hills as chaffe, winnowing or diſperſing them as chaffe upon a hill, and the wind carrying them away v.16. So *Jer:*4.11. a drie wind of the high places in the wilderneſſe, not to winnow, nor to cleanſe, even a full wind from thoſe places &c. a full wind, in ſtead of winnowing or cleanſing the wheat from the chaffe, carrying all away. So Prov: 20. 21. 'tis ſaid of the wiſe King, that he ſcattereth the wicked, and bringeth the wheel over them, ſcatters them as he that winnows, and that he may doe ſo, brings firſt upon them the wheel or threſhing inſtrument. The ſame גלגל wheel that we had even now in *Iſa:*28.27. joyned with the threſhing inſtrument. And Pſal: 83. 13. O my God make them like a wheel, and as the ſtubble before the wind, both parts referre to this cuſtome alſo, make them as a threſhing wheel is wont to make the corn, driving one part from another, and then the wind comes and drives away the ſtubble and chaffe, and then follows, as the flames conſume the mountains (that is, ſet the chaffe on the mountains on fire, and burn it, lick it quite up) perſecute them ſo with thy tempeſt &c. ſo Iſa: 5.44. as the fire conſumeth the ſtubble, and the flame devoureth the chaffe. According to this notion of winnowing, and burning the chaffe, this verſe accords with the generall matter of John Baptiſt's preaching, viz: Chriſt's rich promiſes of all merciſull reception and preſervation to thoſe that ſhall repent and receive the Goſpel, and threatning of all judgments upon the impenitent Jewes, formerly expreſs't by the kingdome of God approaching, and again by the axe layd to the root of the tree, ready to hew it down, and that attended with caſting into the fire, as here the chaff is with burning with fire unquenchable. And ſo it was fulfill'd on the Jewes even in this life (as it was oft foretold) the godly true penitents that received Chriſt, through theſe tribulations were preſerved, when the reſt that could not bear, or hold out the tryall, all that the wind of temptation, falſe doctrine &c. carryed away, were generally deſtroyed, the corn layd up in a garner, and the chaffe devoured with the fire.

That the Spirit came upon Chriſt in the body or ſhape of a Dove, cannot, I think, be concluded from this place, nor from the parallel *Mar:*1.10. but only that the Spirit deſcended, and came or lighted on him, as a Dove uſes to doe on any thing, firſt hovering and overſhadowing it. And whereas 'tis added by Saint Luke, σωματικῷ εἴδει, that will be beſt rendred in, or, with a bodily appearance, and joyned with καταβῆναι, i.e. the Spirit deſcended ſo, as might be (and was really) ſeen (εἶδε in Matthew and Marke he ſaw him deſcend) ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν as it were a dove, i.e. as a dove viſibly deſcends, and lights on any thing, or, in a manner ſomewhat reſembling a dove (ſo ὡσεὶ ſignifies, as *Act:*2.3. the divided tongues ὡσεὶ πυρὸς, as it were of fire] doth not denote them to be of fire, at leaſt to have the effects of fire, burning &c. but either in the colour, or form like that of fire) not defining any ſhape, wherein the Holy Ghoſt appeared. That the Holy Ghoſt both here and in other places did viſibly appear, there is no doubt; That he did in the caſe of Mary at the time of her conception of Chriſt, ἐπέρχεσθαι come upon her, and ἐπισκιάζειν overſhadow her, is affirmed Luke 1.35. and that is perfectly agreeable here to this of deſcending ὡσεὶ περιστερὰν as a Dove uſes to doe, when it comes down and viſibly lights on any thing. Nay other glorious appearances of God are expreſs't in other places, in the ſame manner, as when the bright cloud (i.e. an appearance of ſhining light, as broad as a cloud) ἐπεσκίαζεν αὐτοὺς, Mat: 17. 5. thus hovered over or overſhadow'd them. So again Mark 9. 7. Luke 9.34. and accordingly in the tabernacle were the Cherubims of glory, thoſe officers or miniſters of this appearance of God, overſhadowing or hovering over the propitiatory, or covering of the arke, *Heb:*9.5. And ſo 2 *Pet.*1.17. This voice at this time deliver'd [This is my beloved ſon &c.] is ſaid to have come from the magnificent glory (gloriâ majeſtaticâ præſentiæ, the glory of the majeſtatick preſence, ſo frequent in the Targum) i.e. from this cloud, where the Angels were, and wherein Elias and Moſes appeared, and ſo in the 3d v. of that chap. δόξα glory ſeems to denote the appearing of the Holy Ghoſt, as ἀρετὴ virtue, or power, Chriſt's after-miracles, In the like manner, as we find πνῦμα ſpirit and δύναμις power in other places, and as learned men, in rendring the Jewiſh writers, interpret שכינה Gods inhabiting or appearing among us (ordinarily rendred glory) by Spiritus ſanctus the holy Ghoſt. But by all this there is no more expreſs't but only the manner of this appearance, or how he viſibly was ſeen, or appeared to deſcend; but for the ſhape wherein the Holy Ghoſt appeared, here is yet nothing expreſs't, That which ſeemeth moſt probable is this, That the holy Ghoſt took not on him here any bodily ſhape, but yet appeared to be preſent (as God is ſaid to be preſent in any place in the old Teſtament i.e.) by the appearance of Angels, which being the courtiers of heaven, where they appear, there God is ſaid peculiarly to be preſent. Hence it is, that the well Lahairoi, where the Angel appeared to Hagar, *Gen.*16.7.14. is by the *Hieruſalem-Targum Gen.*24.62. ſtyled Beer (the well) ubi manifeſtata illi fuit præſentia Domini majeſtatica, where the majeſtatick preſence of the Lord, or the preſence of God in majeſty, was manifeſted to her. And ſo the ſanctuary where, by the Cherubims, God exhibited himſelf, is called by the ſame phraſe, Gloria majeſtaticæ præſentiæ Domini, The glory of the majeſtatick preſence of the Lord, *Gen.*40.34. So in the delivering of the Law, which, the Author to the Hebrews c.2.2. ſaith was ſpoken by Angels, God ſaith *Ex:*19.11. the Lord will come down in the ſight of all the people, and I have talked with you, c.20.22. Now how thoſe Angels, the good Angels, the courtiers of God appeared, may be collected in generall from their title Ἄγγελοι φωτὸς Angels of light, in reference to a lucid, ſhining, flaming appearance (as the Philoſopher ſaith, that if God would take upon him a body, it would certainly be light) but more diſtinctly from the ſtory of it, Mat. 28.3. His appearance was as lightning, and his garment white as ſnow (as Luke 9.29. 'tis ſaid of Chriſt on mount Tabor, his cloathing was λευκὸς ἐξαστράπτων white and flaſhing, as lightning doth) i. e. a bright ſhining cloud (ſuch as in Exodus is call'd a cloud by day, but fire by night, a pillar of cloud Deut. 31.15.) or fiery appearance in the midſt of a white cloud, as of a garment, i.e. cloathed or encompaſs'd with it, which is directly νεφέλη φωτεινή, the lightſome cloud, even now mention'd, and ſo generally the Schechinah, by which the Hebrews uſe to expreſſe Gods preſence on earth, is rendred δόξα glory from Exod. 24.16. the glory of the Lord abode, &c. (ſee note on Rom. 1. i. and c. 9. b. and Jo. 1. b.) and that glory generally expreſs'd by Painters by the rayes, or beams of the ſunne, or light, becauſe that is the liveliеſt reſemblance of it, as 'tis ſet down *Lu.*2.9. δόξα περιέλαμψεν the glory of the Lord ſhone about them, which is added to the mention of the Angels coming to them. And ſo God's promiſe of coming to the people on Sinai the third day, c.19.11. is thus performed v.16. there were thunders and lightnings and a thick cloud upon the mount. And agreeable to this it is, that in that other viſible deſcent of the holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, *Act.*2.3. Καὶ ὤφθησαν αὐτοῖς διαμεριζόμεναι γλῶσσαι ὡσεὶ πυρὸς, ἐκάθισέ τε ἐφ' ἕνα ἕκαστον αὐτῶν, there were ſeen by them tongues parted or divided, as of fire, and it, i.e. the fire (or that ſo like fire,) ſat, or reſted on every of them. That which appeared was cloven, or divided tongues as of fire, ſeverall flaſhes or beams as of fire, in the ſhape of tongues divided, as it is eaſie to conceive by a flame cleft aſunder in many places, according to the naturall motion of flames, of which every part as it extends it ſelf in longitude, grows more pyramidall, and ſo divides from the part next to it, and one of theſe diviſions did, as it were, lambere, lick, and ſo reſt upon the head of every of the Apoſtles, according to the Hebrews phraſe or idiome, who for flame of fire, uſe לשון אש the tongue of fire, Iſa. 5.24. becauſe a flame is of that form, ſay they. Somewhat like this hath the appearing of Angels generally been in the Scripture, ſee *Exod.*19.18. where God deſcends on the mount in fire, gloria præſentiæ divinæ in flammâ ignis, ſaith the Jeruſalem-Targum, the glory of the divine preſence in a flame of fire, which is but the explication, and rendred as the reaſon of what was ſaid before v. 16. of the lightning and thick cloud, or thick cloud, or darkneſſe where God was, Gen. 20. 21. and therefore Pſal. 104. 4. his miniſters (i.e. Angels miniſtring to him) are ſaid to be a flaming fire. Thus in the firſt mention of it Gen. 3.24. the Jeruſalem-Targum reads, gloriam divinæ præſentiæ ſupra duos Cherubinos collocavit, he placed the glory of the divine preſence upon two Cherubims, where in the Hebrew we find the two Cherubims and לַהַט הַחֶרֶב (a flaming ſword we read it, but it may perhaps be better rendred) a flame of ſword, i. e. of ſeparation, diviſion, φλὸξ διαμερισμοῦ, for ſo the Hebrew חרב which is rendred ſword, ſignifies diviſion, as is exemplified by Mat. 10. 34. compared with Luke 12. 51. where inſtead of μάχαιραν ſword in one, is διαμερισμὸς diviſion in the other, and then that φλὸξ διαμερισμοῦ, flame of diviſion, or partition there (ſignifying that appearance to be a bright ſhining as of fire, and that parted one from another in many places, to turn every way, ſaith the text) will be ſomewhat anſwerable to the word διαμεριζόμεναι divided, in the Acts, in reſpect of the diviſion of the fire (that appeared) in ſeverall branches, but certainly in reſpect of the fire. By all that hath been ſaid the meaning of the words in this place may be conceived to be this, The heavens were opened to Chriſt, and the Spirit of God (it ſelf inviſible, and taking no bodily form or ſhape upon him) was by John ſeen to deſcend upon him as a Dove deſcendeth and lighteth on any thing, or as it were a dove, that which appeared, ſomeway reſembling a dove with the wings ſpread abroad and hovering over one; viz: Angels, the token of God's, or the holy Ghoſt's preſence, appeared in a bright ſhining cloud, or a flaſh of lightning in a cloud, and this ſtooped down upon him, and with that lightning, thunder, and with that thunder a voice v.17. (ſee note on Acts 10. b.) And this the ſolemnity of his conſecration, impoſition of hands, as it were, from heaven, by which he received his commiſſion to his prophetick office, which he after communicated to his Apoſtles, in a manner ſomewhat like Acts 2.2.

Μάχαιρα Διαμερισμὸς

Thoſe words of the Father from heaven both here, and at the transfiguration c. 17. (οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱός μου ἀγαπητὸς ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα, this is my beloved 1.

Sonne

Sonne in whom I am well pleased] were by him deliver'd with an intention, that they should be understood to relate to that prediction before deliver'd concerning the *Messias Isa.*42. 1. This will not so easily and so clearly appear by comparing these words with that prophecy, either in the Hebrew, or the Greek, (because for [beloved] here, and c. 17. 'tis [chosen] there, for [ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα, In whom I am well pleased] here, and c. 17. the Septuagint there have [προσδέξατο αὐτὸν ἡ ψυχή μου, My soul hath accepted him] for [ὁ υἱός μου, my sonne] here, and c. 17. 'tis there in the Hebrew [עבדי my servant,] and in the Septuagint, ὁ παῖς μου, agreeable to that, though capable of being rendred my son also) as by comparing that of Isaiah with Mat. 12. 18. for in that place of Matthew, where those words of that Prophet are purposely recited, we find all these words [ἰδοὺ ὁ παῖς μου ὁ ἀγαπητός μου εἰς ὃν εὐδόκησεν ἡ ψυχή μου, behold my sonne or servant, beloved—in whom my soul (i. e. I) is well pleased] which differ very little from those voices from heaven in this, and that other place, save that the [ἰδοὺ behold] of emphaticall promise in the prophet, is here chang'd into [οὗτός ἐστι, this is] as fitter to point him out now present; and παῖς an equivocall word for a sonne, or servant, is changed into υἱὸς which is a sonne only. To this may be added that one part of these words in Isaiah [δώσω πνεῦμα ἐπ' αὐτὸν, I have given my Spirit upon him] was here really supplied at this time, the holy Ghost coming visibly upon him, and in like manner [κρίσιν ἀπαγγελεῖ, he shall declare judgment] in the close of that verse, Isa. 42. 1. is equivalently supplied Mat. 17. 5. in [ἀκούετε αὐτοῦ Hear him] he having then begun that office of declaring or preaching, which consequently was then to be heard by them.

Psal

CHAP. IV.

Paraphrase.

1. THen was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the [a] Devil.]

1. And immediately after his baptism, 2.

and before he entred on his prophetick office, that Christ might give an evidence of his piety, and trust in God, and of his constancy, it was thought fit that some triall should be made of him, And to that end, by incitation or impulsion of the Spirit of God (of which he was full, Luke 4. 1.) he went up from Jordan farther in the desert, not voluntarily putting himself upon temptation, but doing it according to Gods appointment.

2. And when he had fasted fourty dayes and fourty nights, he was afterward an hungred.]

2. And being there he was enabled by the miraculous power of God to continue fourty daies and nights without eating or drinking any thing, as Moses and Elias, the two great prophets, had done, and after that, that he might be the fitter for the insuing tryall of his trust in God, made on him by Satan, he was as sharply assaulted with hunger, as any man at any time is, for want of meat.

3. And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the son of God, command that these stones be made bread.]

3. And the Devil laying hold, and taking advantage of that opportunity came and said unto him, If thou art the Son of God, make use now of that power to thy own relief, and turn these stones into bread.

4. But he answered and said, It is written, [Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.]

4. Bread or ordinary means of sustaining men, is not of necessity to the life of man, God can feed and uphold him by other means, whatsoever he please to make use of to that purpose, his bare word and nothing else, Deut. 8. 3.

[a] the battlement.

5. Then the Devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him on [a] [b] pinacle of the Temple,

5, 6. Then Satan, as 'tis most probable, b.

6. And saith unto him, If thou be the son of God cast thy self down, For it is written, He shall give his Angels charge concerning thee, and † in their hands they shall [a] bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.]

carried him in the aire, without doing him any hurt, unto Jerusalem, being permitted by God to doe so, and set him on the battlement of the Temple; and urging a verse of the Psalme to him, Ps. 91. 11. he perswaded him to cast himself down from thence, by that means to testifie that he was the Son of God; for if he were so, this he might doe securely.

7. Jesus said unto him, [It is written again, Thou shalt not [c] tempt the Lord thy God.]

7. It is sufficiently manifest to me, that I c.

am the Son of God, and cared for by him. I shall not require any more signs to prove it, nor expresse any doubt of his power, and goodnesse toward me, as the Israelites did, Exod. 17. 7. saying, Is the Lord among us, or no? To which the prohibition of tempting God referres, Deut. 6. 16. which is the text quoted in this place, a prohibition not of too much, but too little confidence, of doubting of Gods presence among them.

8. Again the Devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, [and sheweth him all the kingdomes of the world, and the glory of them.]

8. And from thence gives him a view of all that was to be seen from thence, and addes a representation of many of the other kingdomes of the world, in as splendid and inviting manner as he could, and all this in a moment of time, Luke 4. 5. not one after another, that so they might amaze and affect him the more with their splendor, and on a suddain prevail upon him, which otherwise would not be so likely to doe it.

9. And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down, and worship me.

10. Then said Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan, for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

† dismisseth, ἀφίησιν

11. Then the Devil † leaveth him, and behold Angels came and ministred unto him,]

11. Then for a while Luke 4. 13. Satan left tempting him, (afterwards setting himself more industriously on all stratagems to take away his life) and as the Devil left him, the good Angels came and waited on him, ministring to his hunger, or bringing him meat, as to Elias was done.

12. After this, not immediately, but having gone once into Galilee, and done many things there, ſet down Jo. 2. &c. and having before that entertained ſome diſciples, or conſtant followers, John 2.2. by name Philip, John 1.43. (for this and much more was done before Johns being caſt into priſon, John 3.24. ſee note c.) when he heard of the impriſonment of John, he went a ſecond time into Galilee.

12. Now when Jeſus heard that John was * caſt into priſon, he departed into Galilee,] * delivered up, παρεδόθη

13. And leaving Nazareth he came and dwelt in Capernaum, which is upon the ſea coaſt, in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthali.

16. The people which ſate in darkneſſe ſaw great light, and to them which ſate in the region, and ſhadow of death, * light is ſprung up. * did the light ariſe, ἀνέτειλεν.

17. Now began Jeſus to enter on his prophetick office (conſiſting of three things, preaching or making known the will of God, intertaining diſciples, doing of miracles: the firſt here, and more largely Mat. 5. 6, 7. and in his many parables, the ſecond v. 18. &c. the third, as neceſſary to confirm his doctrine, on all occaſions from time to time, till his death, and departure hence) and the ſumme of that office was to bring ſinners to repentance by giving them warnings from God, promiſes to allure, and threatnings to fright them to it.

17. From that time Jeſus began to preach, and to ſay, Repent, for the kingdome of heaven is at hand.]

18, 19, 20, 21, 22. And as Jeſus was walking by the lake of Geneſareth (ſee note on Luke 8. c.) he ſaw two brethren that were fiſhers, Simon who was afterwards ſurnamed Peter, and Andrew his brother, a waſhing their net upon the ſhore, Luke 5.2.

18. And Jeſus walking by [the ſea of Galilee] ſaw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, caſting a net into the ſea (for they were fiſhers.)

19. And he ſaith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fiſhers of men]

20. And they ſtraightway left their nets, and followed him.

21. And going on from thence, he ſaw other two brethren, James the ſon of Zebedee and John his brother in a ſhip, with Zebedee their father, mending their nets, and he called them, and having ſpent ſome time in diſcourſe with them, or preaching to them, he went a little farther, and ſaw two other brethren, James and John with their father Zebedee, all of the ſame trade, and they were in their boats mending their nets, having newly waſht them on the ſhore alſo, Luke 5.2. and now returned to their boat again, And ſoon after this, having done a great miracle, ſet down diſtinctly Luke 5.3.&c. (ſee note a. on that chap.) he called all the four, commanding them to follow him, promiſing to make them fiſhers of men, or to inſtate them in a calling (and endue them with powers) of gaining and converting of men, and they all forſook their boats and trades, obeyed and followed him.

22. And they immediately left the ſhip and their father, and followed him.

23. And Jeſus went about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Goſpel of the kingdome, and healing all manner of ſickneſſe, and all manner of diſeaſe among the people.

24. And his fame went throughout all Syria, and they brought unto him all ſick people, that were taken with divers diſeaſes and torments, and thoſe which were poſſeſſed with Devils, and thoſe which were [lunatick,] and thoſe that had the palſy, and he healed them.

24. affected with any diſeaſe, on which the changes of the moon had influence. whether madneſſe, or falling ſickneſſe, ſee note on c. 17. b.

25. And there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jeruſalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan.

2. διάβολος

The Hebrew שטן, an adverſary, may be taken either in the generall, or elſe as it conteins under it two ſpecificall notions, one of an adverſary in foro, an accuſer, and eſpecially a falſe accuſer, the other of a treacherous perſon, that conſults and ſtudies to miſchief others. In the generall it is often met with, and applied to the Devil, our Enemy, indefinitely. In reference to the ſpecificall notions, it is accordingly rendred by the Septuagint, ſometimes διάβολος, accuſer, ſometimes ὀπτήβολος, betrayer, and in 1 Mac. 1. 36. the word διάβολος accuſer, is uſed, where the ſenſe, and the mention of the ſore ſnare v. 35. enforceth, and requireth ὀπτήβολος, treacherous perſon, and yet our Engliſh renders it in the generall) according to the more comprehenſive nature of the Hebrew, to which it is anſwerable) an adverſary. Thus in the New Teſtament doth the word διάβολος prevail, and is commonly uſed to ſignifie not in the ſpeciall either a Calumniator, or, inſidiator (though it ſometimes ſignifies one of them, perhaps the latter Joh. 6. 70. One of you διάβολός ἐστι, means to betray me, and the former Eph. 4. 27. Let not the ſun go down upon your wrath, neither give place τῷ διαβόλῳ to the Calumniator, who is then wont to interpoſe, and widen the Breach, and ſo certainly 1 Tim. 3. 11. μὴ διαβόλους not Calumniators, and 2 Tim. 3. 3. and Tit. 2. 3.) nor yet the Devil under that one peculiar notion, as a lyer or calumniator, but ſo as the Greek be of the ſame latitude with the generall comprehenſive Hebrew word שטן, and as 'tis all one with ἐχθρὸς enemy, and ἀντίδικος adverſary, or ἀντίδικος plaintiffe, and ἀντικείμενος oppoſer, in other places, and ſo it may beſt be rendred Satan (reteining the Hebrew in the tranſlation, as the Septuagint oft doe) i. e. that evil ſpirit, which ſets himſelf as an adverſary againſt all good men, and endevours to doe all miſchief that he can.

b. Πτερύγιον] ſignifying literally a little wing, doth here note the exterior circuit of the top of the houſe, which compaſſeth it in (and is thence call'd πτερὰ Deut. 22. 8.) to keep men from danger of falling from the roof, and is therefore in the Law preſcribed in their buildings, that thou bring not blood blood upon thy house. It is by the Grammarians explain'd by ἐξονίειον, and that defin'd to be τὸ ἐπάνω τῆς τοῦ ναοῦ ἀναπλάσεως ζῶσιν, a kind of girdle on the top of the Temple to encompasse it, which is clearly the battlement, not the pinacle, see note on c.10. h.

c. That the phrase of [tempting God] signifies not too much, but too little confidence, a diffidence, and incredulity, may appeare by the severall places wherein the phrase is used. Thus the Israelites tempting of God in Exodus and Deuteronomy, is generally doubting of Gods care, and providence, and power, and wisdome, of wch they had had so many arguments, and assurances, and promises from him. And so *Num.*14. the tempting God ten times, v.22. is all one with not beleiving him in all his signs, which he did in the midst of them, v.11. and what that unbeleif was appears by their words ver.2. Would we had died in Egypt, and, Wherefore hath God brought us into this land? thinking (it seems) that God would not go along with them, but permit them to be devoured by the people of the land (see v.9.) So Psal. 78. their provoking, and tempting of God, v.18, 19. is first their doubting whether God could, and would prepare them a table, v. 20. give them bread, provide them flesh in the wilderness, v.21. when by their own confession he had evidenced his power, and will sufficiently in giving them streams of water out of the rock, and v.42. they tempted God, &c. which is explain'd v.43. by [They thought not of his hand, and of the day when he delivered them, --how he had wrought his miracles in Egypt] v.44. i.e. by their forgetting, or not considering the arguments they had had for the beleiving, and depending on him: and so again, after he had cast out the nations, &c. done all for them imaginable, yet v. 57. they tempted the most high God, &c. so Isa. 7. when Ahaz saith, he will not tempt the Lord, the words signifie, that he needed no farther arguments to alcertain him of the truth of what there was promised. Where yet Ahaz seems to have spoken ironically, he will ask no more signes, beleiving the thing impossible, and therefore is reprehended by the Prophet for incredulity, and wearying of God, and making it necessary for him to give a sign, v. 13, 14. And thus clearly the phrase is used in this place, where the Devil perswading Christ, by casting himself down from the battlement to make tryall, whether God would deal with him as a son, i. e. preserve him, or no, Christ that needed no such evidences of his being the Son of God, Mat. 3.17. replies that this is that tempting God, which is forbidden in Deut: So *Mat.*16.1. and Luke 11.16. the Pharisees asking a sign from heaven, to demonstrate that he was the Messias, are said πειράζειν, to tempt Christ, a note of their infidelity, and so censured by Christ, an evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign, *Mat.*16.4. and beyond the miracles which he had already done among them, he will now show those Pharisees no more, but only that great convincing one of his resurrection from the dead v.5. Sometimes this phrase is used in a notion a little different from this, not in relation to any promises of God, but of any other part of his will revealed, and notes any act of infidelity, any contrariety to the revealed will of God, whether in point of doctrine, or practice, Of doctrine, so Acts 15.10. When Peter had given them convincing evidences and arguments (from the example of God toward Cornelius) that God required not the Christian Gentiles to be circumcised, he adds, Now therefore why doe you tempt God, to lay a yoke &c. i.e. your continuing to desire to lay that yoke on the Gentile Christians, after such evidences of Gods will to the contrary, is an act of infidelity, and a kind of tempting of God. So also of practice 1 Cor. 10. 9. Neither let us tempt Christ, i. e. let us not by our provoking sins dare God, trie his patience, whether he will make good upon us his threats against sinne, so Mal. 3. 15. they that tempt God, are all one with the proud sinners, contumacious offenders, which are also said to weary him c.2. 17. So Acts 5. 9. Why have ye agreed to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? i.e. to commit a sin, which is in effect a trying, or experimenting whether the Apostles Peter, &c. had the Spirit of discerning their fraud or no, and consequently of punishing.

That which is here ὁδὸν θαλάσσης is in the Greek Isa. 9.1. (whence this verse is cited) οἱ κατοικοῦντες ἐν χώρᾳ σκιᾶς θανάτου, the rest that dwell by the sea side. Now for this whole place that is here cited out of the Prophet, and said to be fulfilled by that which here happened, it must first be remembred, what hath been said, note on c.1. k. that prophecies, beside the literall sense of them, have sometimes another affixed to them, to which when they are accommodated, they are said πληροῦσθαι, to be fulfill'd, i.e. to have a more eminent accomplishment, And so here. For these words had in Isaiah c. 9. 1. a clear literall sense, belonging to that time, viz: That God having threatned by his Prophet a sore calamity to Judah and Jerusalem from Sennacherib King of Assyria, begins in these words a little to soften it, thus, Nevertheless the dimness (or mist, or twylight) shall not be to her, to whom the vexation shall be (i.e. to Jerusalem which shall be thus afflicted) according to the first time, wherein he lightly afflicted the land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthali, and the latter time, wherein he more grievously afflicted the way of the sea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the nations; i.e. this that shall befall upon Judah, though sharp, shall not be comparable to either of those two other, the first, the more tolerable of the two, when Zabulon and Nephthali &c. were carried into captivity by Tiglath Phalassar king of Assyria. 2 *Kin.*15.29. the second, not then come, which should be much more heavy, when the rest of the tribes should be carried away by Salmanassar into Assyria, 2 Kin. 17. The people that walk in darkness, i.e. Judah and Jerusalem, wasted and befieged by Sennacherib, have seen, i. e. should see, a great light, i. e. have an illustrious remarkable deliverance, the siege being raised by an Angel, and Sennacherib's army destroy'd, and to them that were in the shadow of death, i. e. expected verily to be destroyed, hath the light appeared, i. e. this deliverance is befall'n. This whole passage, belonging to that matter, is here by the Evangelist applied to Christ's preaching in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthali, only by way of accommodation. This preaching of his being the great light, and the state of ignorance, that before they were in, the shadow of death and the darkness; All the difficulty is, to give any account, how this should here be applied to Zabulon &c. when in Iſaiah they were not to have this deliverance, but only Judah, and they were only mention'd to comfort Judah, that they were and ſhould be more terribly afflicted then Judah, and had none of the light, or comfort, But the account muſt be, that ſuch prophecies as theſe, thus accommodated to Chriſt, are accompliſh'd in an higher ſenſe, then that wherein they were literally ſpoken, and here this light, i.e. the preaching of Chriſt came and ſhone on theſe, as well as on Jeruſalem, nay in the firſt place, before he went thither, and conſequently in the application here, the great light is applied to them, (though in the letter of the prophecy it belonged not to them.) Which being perfectly true, is all that is ſaid by the Evangeliſt, only the words of the Prophet, not in the literall, but an higher ſenſe, applied to them, by way of accommodation, which differs from the citation of a teſtimony. To which this may alſo be farther added, that now that land of Zabulon, and Nephthali, was not inhabited by Iſrael, for they were carried captive, never to return again, 2 Kin. 17. 20. 23. and none left but the tribe of Judah only, 18. and ſo that prophecie that ſpake of the light ſhining to Judah, did here literally belong to them, i.e. to thoſe of Judah, which after their return from Babylon inhabited theſe parts, which before belong'd to Iſrael.

c. Γαλιλαία τ̃ ἐθνῶν

That which is here Γαλιλαία τ̃ ἐθνῶν is in Iſaiah 9.1. גליל הגוים the circumference of the nations, or that part of Paleſtine which is fartheſt from Jeruſalem, and hath the Nations round about it, from גלל volvit, circumduxit, and ſo by the Targum 'tis rendred תחום confinium, the confines of the Gentiles, becauſe round about that part of Paleſtine, the Egyptians, Arabians, Phenicians inhabited neer the ſeaſide, in reſpect of Traffick. Thus we find Gen. 14. 1. βασιλεὺς ἐθνῶν the King of the nations, which will be confeſs'd to belong to the Nations adjoyning to that region, if you compare it with Joſ. 12. 23. where though our Engliſh, out of ſome Hebrew copies, reads, the King of the Nations of Gilgal, yet the Septuagint reading [βασιλέα ἔθνῶν Γαλιλαίας] ſhew that they read מלך גוים גלגל the King of the Nations of the confines, ſuch were the Tyrians, Sydonians, and other Gentiles, and accordingly we read that King Solomon gave twenty cities in that part to Hiram the King of the Tyrians, בארץ הגליל in the land of the confines, 1 Kings 19. 11. Thus Joſ. 13. 2. we read גלילות of the Philiſtines, where the Targum reads תחומי the confines again, the Septuagint ὅεια borders, and Joel 4. 4. Tyre and Sydon, and all the גלילות circumambient regions of the Gentiles, where though the Greek reads, as here, Γαλιλαία ἀλλοφύλων, Galilee of the Gentiles, yet the Targum more exactly תחומי the confines, or that part of Paleſtine which bordereth on the Nations. And ſo when the Evangeliſt S. Luke had ſaid, that Jeſus return'd into Galilee c. 4. 14. he adds, And the fame went out καθ' ὅλης τ̃ περιχώρου, through all the ambient region, ſo again v. 37. there went a noiſe of him εἰς πάντα τόπον τ̃ περιχώρου, i.e. into all that circumambience of the Gentiles; And ſo ſaith * Joſephus of the Galileans πανταχόθεν ἔθνεσιν ἀλλοφύλοις κεκυκλωμένοι they are encompaſs't with ſo many other ſtrange (or heathen) Nations. Theſe ambient Nations are meant by ὁδὸν ἐθνῶν the way of the nations c. 10. 5. i.e. thoſe ambient nations next to Galilee, Tyre &c. in oppoſition to Judea, there expreſt by [the houſe of Iſrael.]

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. V.

1, 2. Chriſt now in a more eminent manner ſets upon his prophetick office, and there being a great multitude preſent, he went up into a mountain, as a place of advantage to ſpeak moſt audibly, and there ſeating himſelf as a prophet or teacher, a company of his conſtant followers, all that received and obeyed his doctrine (not only the twelve, which were afterward choſen to be his Apoſtles) came cloſe up, and communed with him, And to them he addreſſed his ſpeech, ſaying, (for the explication of this whole Sermon, ſee Pract: Catech: l. 2. &c.)

a. 1. AND ſeeing the multitudes he went up into a mountain: and when he was ſet, his [a] diſciples came unto him,

2. And he opened his mouth and taught them, ſaying]

3. Bleſſed are all they that, how high ſoever their condition is in this world, are yet in mind, affection, and converſation humble and lowly, and they which, when they are in worldly poverty, bear it willingly, not only of neceſſity, for to theſe belongs the riches, and thoſe the greateſt, even of a kingdome, and that of heaven, (ſee Luk. 6. 21. Yours is the kingdome of heaven)

3. Bleſſed are the poor in ſpirit, for theirs is the kingdome of heaven.]

4. For they are of a fit temper, and capacity to receive that comfort, which Chriſt and the Spirit offer to all that are capable of it, and accordingly their preſent ſadneſſe ſhall be repaired here, and moreover rewarded with future joyes, Luke 16. 25. whereas thoſe that have moſt of the carnall jollities of this world, that have enjoyed all their good things here, have a ſad arrear of mourning which expects them in another world.

4. Bleſſed are they that mourn [for they ſhall be comforted.]

b. 5. The quiet-ſpirited perſons and they that live in obedience to government, for they ordinarily ſhall live quietly, and receive the protection, and benefit of Government, and invading no mans goods, or life, ſhall generally enjoy long life and tranquillity in the earth. Or when the exerciſes of this virtue in ſome ſingular conjunctures of time brings loſſes, or death upon them, they ſhall be richly rewarded in another world, and be made amends abundantly there for all that the practice of this virtue hath brought upon them.

5. Bleſſed are [the meek, for they ſhall inherit the [b] earth.]

6. Whoſe appetites are removed from the meaner inferiour objects of our thirſts (which may raiſe but never ſatisfie our appetites) from the worldlings importunate deſires, ambitions and covetings, to the eager and impatient purſuit of the favour of God, and of piety of the higheſt kind, that way of ſalvation now propoſed to men by Chriſt (ſee note on Rom. 1. b) For theſe ſhall be ſure to obtein what they purſue, and to be fully ſatisfied in the acquiſition,

6. Bleſſed are they [which doe hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſſe, for they ſhall be filled.]

7. Bleſſed

7. Bleſſed are [the mercifull, for they ſhall obtein mercy.] 7. They that are compaſſionate, and pitifully affected to the wants of other men whether of their ſouls, or bodies, apt to relcive, and to pardon, to give and to forgive, for as they ſhall deal with others, God ſhall deal with them, in their time of want, and requeſts they ſhall have pity ſhown to them abundantly, Luke 6. 38.

*8. Bleſſed are [the pure in heart, for they ſhall [c] ſee God.] 8. They whoſe eye of their ſoul is not defiled by looking after fleſhly or worldly luſts, nor pollured with other foul mixtures, for by this purity they are fitted for that viſion of God, which none elſe can attein unto, Heb. 12. 14. c.

9. Bleſſed are the [[d] peace-makers, for they ſhall be called the children of God.] 9. Peaceable, that love and labour for peace, for they are like to God, as children to parents, and like the only begotten Son of God, that great peace-maker, and ſhall have the priviledges that belong to ſuch, the childrens portion, that of grace in this life, and of the inheritance in another. d.

10. Bleſſed are they [which are perſecuted for righteouſneſſe ſake, for theirs is the kingdome of heaven.] 10. That ſuffer for the diſcharge of a good conſcience, for the conſtancy of their obedience to any of Gods commandements; for their ſufferings here ſhall be hereafter rewarded with a kingdome, though they are oppoſed and perſecuted by men, they ſhall be own'd, and crown'd by God, as his Martyrs, or Confeſſors.

11. Bleſſed are ye [when [e] men ſhall revile you, and perſecute you, and ſhall ſay all manner of evil againſt you * falſly for my ſake.] 11. When ye ſhall be reviled, and perſecuted, and have all kind of evil reports calumniouſly raiſed againſt you, becauſe you are conſcientious and conſtant Chriſtians. e.

* or, for righteouſneſſe ſake, for in ſtead of ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, the Greek and Latine MS. reads ἕνεκεν δικαιοσύνης, propter juſtitiam.

12. Rejoice ye and [be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven, for ſo perſecuted they the prophets which were before you.] 12. Exult or leap for joy; for God will reward upon you not only your integrity, and your patience, but their multiplied revilings and ſlanders with a multiplied recompenſe in another world. For thus were the Prophets before you dealt with, thoſe that came with commiſſions immediatly from God, with whom if ye communicate in doing well, and ſuffering patiently, ye ſhall proportionably partake of reward with them.

13. Ye are the ſalt of the earth; but if the ſalt † [f] have loſt its ſavour, wherewith ſhall it be ſalted? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be caſt out, and trodden under foot of men.] 13. You diſciples, all ſorts of true Chriſtians, (ſee note a.) are the men that by your doctrine, and exemplary piety, and charity are to keep the whole land, the whole world from putrefying, But if your lives grow unſavoury or noyſome, what means is there imaginable to repair or recover you? None certainly, And then are ye (unſavoury Chriſtians) the moſt unprofitable refuſe creatures in the world, and ſo ſhall be accounted of, (Mark 9. 50. Luke 14. 34.) and dealt with accordingly. f.

14. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is ſet on a hill cannot be hid.] 14. As a city ſet upon an high illuſtrious place is ſeen by all that travail neer it, and by them enquired after what it is, ſo the Chriſtian Church (which is a moſt conſpicuous ſociety in reſpect of the difference of their lives from other men) cannot chuſe but be taken notice of by the reſt of the world, and either attract them by their good, or diſcourage and deterre them by their evil examples, Iſa. 60. 11. Phil. 2. 15.

15. Neither doe men light a candle and put it under a buſhel, but on a candleſtick, and it giveth light unto all that are in the houſe.] 15. It is my deſign in you, (in the doctrine which ye are to preach, and the exemplary lives which you are to live) to ſet up a torch or eminent luminary, like the ſun in the firmament, for all the world to be enlightned by it, and directed in the actions of their lives, Now ye know, 'tis not mens meaning, when they light a candle, to put it under that which will cover, and ſhut up the light of it, but to ſet it up at the beſt advantage, ſo that it may diſpenſe its light moſt freely to all that are within reach of it. And ſo muſt ye diffuſe your doctrine and examples to all the heathen world, whoſe ignorance, and ſins render them anſwerable to the dark parts of the houſe, which yet the candle, when it comes to them, doth illuminate.

16. Let your light ſo ſhine before men, that they may ſee your [good works,] and glorifie your father which is in heaven. 16. Honeſt, honourable, commendable actions ſuch as are not practiſed by other men.

* diſſolve, or pull down, καταλύσω. † perfect, fill up.

17. Think not that I am come [to * deſtroy the [g] law and the prophets, I am not come to deſtroy, but [h] to † fulfill.] 17. To take any thing from the Law and the Prophets, i. e. the rule of duties, toward God and man, in force among the Jewes, to looſe mankind from the obligations that formerly lay upon them (v. 18, 19. and note f.) to permit, much leſſe to cauſe any one morall command to be evacuated, but to repair and make up whatſoever is any way wanting, to reſtore whatſoever hath been taken from it by falſe interpretations of thoſe which have ſtriven to evacuate ſome parts of it, to require more explicitly, what was obſcure before, and where there is any need, to encreaſe and adde unto the Law. g. h.

* Iota ἰῶτα † untill all things be done, ἕως ἂν πάντα γένηται

18. For verily I ſay unto you, [Till heaven and earth paſſe, one * jot or one title ſhall in no wiſe paſſe from the law, † till all be fulfilled.] 18. Till the world be deſtroyed and all things come to an end, no one leaſt particle ſhall depart from the Law, or be taken away, or looſe its force, or obligation. i.

* looſe, or, diſſolve one of the leaſt of theſe commandements, λύσῃ μίαν τῶν ἐντολῶν τούτων τῶν ἐλαχίστων

19. Whoſoever therefore ſhall [* break one of theſe leaſt commandements, and ſhall teach men ſo, he ſhall be called the leaſt in the kingdome of heaven, but whoſoever ſhall doe and teach them, the ſame ſhall be called great in the kingdome of heaven.] 19. By his practiſe and doctrine evacuate any one of the leaſt commands of the law, or which I ſhall now deliver to you, he ſhall be the leaſt, (ſee note on c. 8. k) i. e. be deſpiſed, and rejected by God in the day of judgment (which is called Gods Kingdome, 2 Tim. 4. 1. Mat. 25. 1.) or, he ſhall be caſt out of the Church, be thought unworthy of having his name retained in the catalogue of Chriſtians here, or Saints hereafter, (as among the Jews he that did teach, and doe contrary to the determination of the Conſiſtory, i. e. who, being a Doctor of the Law, did teach any thing to be lawfull, which the determination of the Conſiſtory made to be unlawfull, he was looke upon as a rebellious Elder, and was by law to be put to death. But whoſoever ſhall himſelf practiſe and teach others to practiſe all, not neglecting the very leaſt of them, ſhall be rewarded in an eminent manner here, and at the day of judgment; ſhall be a principall Chriſtian here, and Saint hereafter, advanced to the dignity of judging others; and to the glory attending it in heaven.

20. For

20. Shall abound more above the ordinary practiſe of men, then the actions, or righteouſneſſe of the Scribes and Phariſees abounds.

20. For I ſay unto you, that except your righteouſneſſe [ſhall exceed the righteouſneſſe of the Scribes and Phariſees,] ye ſhall in no caſe enter into the kingdome of heaven.

k. 21. Delivered by Moſes in the Law to the Jews, that they ſhould commit no murther, and that he that did ſo, ſhould be lyable to be tryed for his life, pleadable in the leſſer Sanhedrim (the houſe of twenty three men, who had the cognizance in capitall and greater matters) obnoxious to capitall puniſhment, that particularly of the ſword.

21. k Ye have heard that it was [ſaid * by them of old times, Thou ſhalt not kill, and, whoſoever ſhall kill, ſhall be † in danger of the judgment.]

* to, τοῖς ἀρχ.
† lyable to ὑποχ. τῇ

l. 22. For a light cauſe, or above the proportion of the cauſe, or immoderately for any cauſe, he ſhall be deemed to deſerve that puniſhment, which is anſwerable to capitall, viz: the loſſe of eternall life (except repentance prevent it, and relief from the death of our high prieſt) But he that ſhall call his brother empty worthleſſe fellow, that ſhall vilifie, deride, and ſcoffe other men, ſhall be lyable to the great Senate of ſeventy two, where the puniſhment is ſtoning, ſeverer then the former, and ſo proportionably in another world to a yet deeper degree of hell. But he that permits his paſſion to break out into virulent rayling, ſhall be lyable to that degree of puniſhment in another world, which is anſwerable to the burning in the valley of Hinnom, which was a puniſhment farre greater then the other two, and ſo notes a very great degree of eternall torments. For in that place 'twas the cuſtome to put their children into hollow brazen veſſels over the fire, and therein to ſcald them to death, crying out lamentably, very many together.

22. But I ſay unto you, that whoſoever is angry with his brother [* without a cauſe ſhall be † in danger of the judgment; and whoſoever ſhall ſay unto his brother, Racha, ſhall be in danger of the ‖ councell, but whoſoever ſhal ſay, Thou fool, ſhall be in danger of + hell fire.]

m. 23,24. If therefore at any time thou art a bringing, or haſt brought to the Prieſt thy offering for atonement of ſin, thy peace-offering to be received by him, and offered for thee upon the altar, and, as thou art there ready to preſent thy offering to the Prieſt, thou calleſt to mind that thou haſt done any man any injury, doe thou in that minute ſtop, and leave thy offering unpreſented to the Prieſt, and betake thy ſelf firſt to that perſon, whom thou haſt thus injured, uſe means to reconcile him, to make him friends with thee, to obtein his pardon, to work thy reconciliation with him, and then come and complete thy intended atonement.

23. Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there remembreſt that thy brother hath ought againſt thee,

For it is much better for thee to want thoſe delights or advantages at this preſent, then that by the enjoying them, thou ſhouldſt plunge thy ſelf body and ſoul into everlaſting perdition.

For whatſoever is uſed above theſe neceſſary expreſſions, and confirmations, (as any kind of oath uſed in diſcourſe between men, be it, by the heaven, the earth, &c.) proceeds from ſome evil principle, ſometimes from your vainglorious humour, delighting in ſuch big-ſpeaking (founded in an opinion, that fearing to ſin is a poor-ſpirited thing) ſometimes from want of reverence to the name of God, ſometimes from the faithleſneſſe of men, but moſt commonly from the Devil, that evil one, who hath many ſnares to catch ſouls, and inſnare them in idolatry, or errour, or unbeleif, and the uſe of the forementioned forms of ſwearing may tend to this end undiſcernibly; and beſides, the not obſerving exact truth in all our converſation (which makes us not fit to be truſted without oaths) and the incredulity of men, (that they will not beleive without them) and ſo the pride, and irreverence alſo, are all the works of the Devil, in which reſpect (as alſo, becauſe there is no part of our ſenſitive appetite, to which oaths doe properly afford any delight, or pleaſure) the oaths that come from any one of theſe, may be ſaid to be from him, eſpecially all needleſſe promiſſory oathes, to which Chriſts ſpeech eſpecially belongs.

The

a. Μαθηταὶ The word μαθητὴς signifies a ſcholar, or learner, that hath entred into any ſchool of knowledge, the relative to a maſter or teacher; And though the twelve, which were afterwards Apoſtles, be ordinarily known by this title of οἱ μαθηταὶ the diſciples, by way of excellence, yet doth it not from thence follow, that thoſe twelve were the onely Auditors of this Sermon (or if they had been, that the doctrine here preached, belongs onely to Apoſtles, and their ſucceſſors in the Church, becauſe thoſe very twelve, were as yet but μαθηταὶ learners, not Apoſtles, till they were ſent out to preach, *Mat.*10.1. and after to govern and rule the Church in Chriſt's ſtead) but rather the contrary, c.7.28. where at the concluſion of this Sermon, 'tis ſaid, ἐξεπλήσσοντο οἱ ὄχλοι the multitudes (of his diſciples or learners, thoſe that now heard, and received his doctrine, though perhaps not abſolutely the ὄχλοι c.5.1. the promiſcuous multitude, the ὄχλοι πολλοὶ c.4.25. the many troops that follow'd him, but, I ſay, the multitudes of Diſciples, that beleived on him) were aſtoniſht at his doctrine, ἦν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτούς, for he taught them: thus *Lu.*6.17. it is ſet down diſtinctly ὄχλῳ μαθητῶν a multitude of Diſciples (out of which, 'tis ſaid, he choſe twelve, v.13. ſignifying that there were more Diſciples then thoſe twelve) in oppoſition to the πᾶν πλῆθος τοῦ λαοῦ, &c. the great multitude of people from all Judæa, &c. that came to hear, and to be healed of him; So oft in other places, the word [μαθητὴς diſciple] is apply'd to all that entred into his ſchool, as well as to the twelve. So c.8.21. 'twas a Diſciple which ſaid, Lord, ſuffer me firſt to bury my father, but ſure none of the twelve, and ſo in many other places. From all which 'tis clear, to whom the doctrine and precepts of this Sermon belongs, as alſo who are the [ὑμεῖς γε] who are ſaid to be the ſalt of the earth, &c. v.13. not the Apoſtles peculiarly (for as yet there were none ſuch) but all Chriſtians, which were then in the world, and ſo in like manner all that ſhould ſucceed them in that title, all that enter Chriſts ſchool, that profeſſe his doctrine, and ſo follow him as obedient Diſciples.

b. Ἡ γῆ] very often hath a peculiar criticall ſignification in the Goſpels, and referres to the land of Judæa, and here by being promis'd to the meek and obedient, looks diſtinctly on the fift Commandement, and in it on the Land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee, i.e. a fruitfull proſperous beeing here on earth: which is here ſaid to belong by promiſe of God peculiarly to the meek; And though ſometimes it proves not ſo, when in time of civil diſſenſions, the ſupreme Governours are reſiſted and perhaps overcome (for then the meek or obedient conſcientious ſubjects, are commonly involv'd in the worſt (becauſe in the Princes) condition, are deprived of their part in this promiſe, turn'd out of their κληρονομία, inheritance or portion) yet becauſe this is an irregular and extraordinary caſe, (in reſpect of which this generall rule is capable of exception) and becauſe this is a particular tryall, fit to befall a righteous man, to ſee whether his eſtate will tempt him out of his duty, and becauſe the Godly mans πᾶν τὸ πάλαι, temporall felicity, that is promis'd to him, is alwaies with this reſervation, unleſſe it be fitter for his turn, that God make ſome experiments by afflicting of him (which, if he be found faithfull in ſuch tryalls, will encreaſe his glory and abundantly recompenſe the loſſe of this earth here, by the land of the living hereafter,) and becauſe the hundred fold promiſed in this life, i.e. the moſt fruitfull Canaan-harveſt, the κληρονομία τῆς γῆς the inheriting of this plentifull land, is diſpenſed μετὰ διωγμῶν with an allay or mixture of perſecutions, therefore, I ſay, the truth of this promiſe ſtill remains good, that the meek ſhall poſſeſſe the earth, that obedience to ſuperiours hath generally (though with the exceptions premiſed) the promiſe of this life, and on the other ſide the [κραυγὴ] or cry, which, ſaith Procopius on Iſaiah c.5.7. is the direct contrary to this, murmuring, diſobedience, ſedition, &c. is there, ſaith he, the peculiar cauſe of deſolation, even of temporall infelicities.

The ſeeing God] here may perhaps not look ſo farre off, as the beatificall viſion in another world, but be firſt fulfill'd in the work of grace, in opening our eyes to behold the wonderfull things of Gods law, for this belongs peculiarly to the purity of heart, as that excludes both hypocriſie, and uncleanneſſe, filthineſſe of the fleſh and ſpirit. Thus, ſaith Origen, did God exhibit himſelf to be ſeen of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, not to the eyes of their bodies, ἀλλὰ καθαρᾷ καρδίᾳ, to the pure heart, contr: Celſ: l.8. p.285. Many excellent Diſcourſes toward this purpoſe we have from the light of nature among the Pythagorean Philoſophers, Porphyry, Iamblichus, Plotinus, Marinus, when they ſpeak of their καθαρσιὰ, particularly in Hierocles his pref: on the Golden verſes. c. Ὀψονται θεὸν

The word ποιεῖν to doe, or work, in ſacred dialect, doth oft ſignifie the habit or bent of the mind, with the conſequent actions; ſo [ἁμαρτίαν ποιεῖν] to commit, or live indulgently in ſin, and [ποιεῖν δικαιοσύνην] to have a ſincere inclination or reſolution of mind (which is never ſine effectu, utterly uneffectuall) toward righteouſneſſe, as that ſignifies the practiſe of Chriſtian virtues. Thus εἰρηνοποιοῦντες, James 3.18. they that work Peace, are peaceable-minded men, and ſo proportionally the compound [εἰρηνοποιοὶ] peace-makers, is uſed in this place, in the ſame ſignification. As for the [κληθήσονται υἱοὶ, (which followes,) they ſhall be call'd ſons] that muſt be rendred according to the importance of the word [καλεῖσθαι] to be called, i.e. to be, mention'd on Mat. 2. k. (And ſo 'tis uſed 1 John 3.1.) and υἱοὶ θεοῦ, ſons of God, both here and v.45. are they which partake of (and reſemble him in) ſome ſpeciall divine excellencies (as ſons of God are imitators of him, *Eph:*5.1.) ſuch as peaceable-mindedneſſe here; Juſt as υἱοὶ Ἄρεως ſons of Mars, are good ſouldiers, and ſons of Neptune, men of a ſavage and tyrannous diſpoſition. And ſo 'tis obſervable, that John 8.39. the ποιεῖν ἔργα to doe the works, and θέλετε ποιεῖν being willing, or delighting to doe them, v.44. are evidences of ſons. d. Ποιῶν

As [κληθήσονται ὄνομα, they ſhall call his name,] c.1.23. ſignifies his name ſhall be called, (and ſo in other places there noted) ſo here [ὅταν ὀνειδίσωσιν] when they ſhall perſecute, and revile you, ſignifies when ye ſhall be perſecuted, &c. and v.12. [οὕτω γὰρ ἐδίωξαν τοὺς Προφήτας, for ſo they perſecuted the Prophets, without any intimation who the Perſecutors were) is [ſo were the Prophets before you perſecuted.] See note on Luke 16.9. e. Ὀνειδίσωσιν

The Hebrew word תפל ſignifies two things, firſt ἄναλον, inſipidum, unſavoury, and then, by a Metaphore, f. Μωρανθῇ Metaphore, μωρὸν foolish, and here one of those is taken for the other, and so [μωρανθῇ] used for being saltlesse, insipid, unsavoury, ἄναλον γενηται, having lost all its saltnesse, all of that quality, that belongs to that creature.

g. Νόμος. The use of the word νόμος law] in the new Testament is very observable, and the severall notions of it may perhaps be reducible to two heads: for first it signifies in one generall notion the whole way of œconomy among the Jewes under the old Testament (taken precisely by it self, without opposition to the reformation wrought after by Christ,) That way that men were then put into, in order to their eternall weal. Thus in this chap. v. 17. I came not to dissolve the law &c. but πληρῶσαι to perfect it, i.e. not to destroy or pull asunder that former fabrick under the old Testament, but to reform and improve it in some things, wherein it may be better; And so v. 18. when he saith, One Iota or title shall not passe from the law, till all be done, i.e. till the end of the world (and again v. 19. when of him that looseth any of the least of these commandements, he saith, that he shall be the least in the kingdome of heaven) 'tis clear that the law there signifies the old Testament-course; the religion of the former age, which indeed Christ came to review, and reform, to bring substance in stead of shadows, to make clearer revelations, clearer or higher promises and precepts, (which he calls πληρῶσαι to fill up) but not λῦσαι to pull asunder or dissolve it; This Justin Martyr excellently sets down in his discourse with Tryphon the Jew. Some things there were, saith he, (not only permitted, as that of divorce &c. but) διατεταχθέντα ordained and appointed you, διὰ τὸ σκληροκάρδιον τοῦ λαοῦ, because of the hardheartednesse of that people, as circumcision, and other such outward observances, to interpose some checks, or stops in their course of carnality, and impiety, that they were so bent to, that they would not mind the τὰς αἰωνίους καὶ φύσει δικαιοσύνας καὶ εὐσεβείας, those eternall and naturall rules of justice and piety. Now these things being thus required of them by the Law of Moses, they again abused contrary to Gods design, placed all piety in those externall performances, and neglected the naturall justice and piety signified, and meant by God to be secured, and not betray'd by them. This therefore Christ comes to reform, to require the substantiall duties, in stead of the shadowes that darkly signified them, and all the changes wrought by Christ were of this nature, Reformations; And so, we know, pulling out weak, or broken Timber in a building, and putting in better, and stronger, is not pulling down of a house, but only repairing it, so farre was Christ's design from destroying of it. And it is observable that in that place of v. 17. the Prophets are added to the Law, and so both in that, and many other places, the Law and the Prophets together signifie the religion of the former age, simply taken; as that differs from Christianity, which was the altering some things in it to the better, reforming and mending of it; so Mat. 7. 12. This is the law and the prophets, i. e. this is a prime part of the Jewish religion or doctrine, and c. 11. 13. the Prophets and the Law prophecied till John, i. e. the Jewish religion continued in every part, till John the Baptist, and Luke 16. 16. the same is again repeated, and Matth. 22. 40. all the law and the prophets] i. e. the whole doctrine of that religion. Thus Matth. 12. 5. Matth. 22. 36. and 23. 23. Luke 2. 22. 23. 24. 39. Luke 10. 26. and 16. 17. and 24. 44. and so generally throughout all the Gospels, and most places in the Acts it signifies, viz: the religion of the Jewes; only with this difference, that sometimes the context pointeth to one part of it, sometimes to another, but to any of these parts still, as they are in conjunction with the other parts, and so with the whole body of their religion. In the Epistles (and perhaps in some of the places of the Acts, as when there is mention of ζηλωταὶ τοῦ νόμου, Zelotes of the law, and the like) some variation may be observ'd, and that will give us the second notion of the word, as 'tis set opposite to the Gospel. For though Christ had told them, and that most truly, that he came not to destroy the law, but only to reform and perfect it in all respects, yet such was the blindnesse and obstinacy of the Jewes, and their zeal for every ceremony in the law, and their pride in discriminating themselves from all other men, by that priviledge of having, and observing the law, just as 'twas given to Moses (i. e. the Jewish religion in every title) that when Christ would make reformations, telling them the true significations of their types, and giving them substance for shadowes, they look't upon Christ and his Disciples after him, as enemies of the religion of the Jewes, and set up their more imperfect legall observances (which were only burthens to exercise, and imploy them in time of their minority, and had nothing of reall good in them, and might well be left off, especially when God in Christ declared his will, that they should, and gave excellent morall, substantiall precepts in stead of them) against all Christ's scheme, or form of reformation. Which dealing of theirs was the same in effect, as if that God, that first design'd the frame of the Temple, should after appoint some little things to be alter'd in it (very much to the better, from that which was lesse, to that which were more usefull and agreeable) and to that end, to pull out some little pins, to take down some partitions, and the like, to take off wood, and put Gold in stead of it; and the people that first received that Temple from God (and observed, and valued it only for his sake) should now oppose the so usefull alterations, and reformations, as destructive to this Temple of Gods erecting, and be zealous for the punctuall retaining of that old form, against God himself in this new designation. This was the practise of the Jewes generally in Christ's time, nay even of a great number of those, that had received and beleived on Christ, for though they rejected not what he taught, but follow'd him, became his disciples, took him for (and clave to him as) the Messias, yet many of them, (especially those that had any thing of the Pharisee in them before their conversion) would have all the Mosaicall rites observed by all Christians, Acts 15. 2. Which was in effect, as if they should accept of a reformation, and embrace all the new things which Christ brought in, but withall require to keep all the old ones too, those which he took out, to put those in in the stead; Or as if he, that had his burthen made easier by God, should call for his harder heavier burthen again, and oppose God and all his faithfull servants, nay perſecute them (as the zealous Judaizing Chriſtians, and Gnoſticks after did) becauſe they would not agree with them to impoſe theſe heavier tasks on all men. How unreaſonable this was, is eaſily diſcern'd, but however by this means it came to paſſe, that a great contention did in the infancy of the Church ariſe, betwixt the Judaizing zelots, and the Orthodox meek diſciples of Chriſt, The former were for the obſervation and continuance of every ceremony of the Judaicall law, obliging all the very Gentiles as many as accepted of the faith of Chriſt, to undertake the obſervance of it, to be circumcis'd, &c. The latter aſſerted the liberty of the Gentiles, who were never under that Jewiſh yoke, and for the Jewiſh converts, inſiſted on Chriſt's reformation, and conſequently the abolition and non-obligation of thoſe ſhadowes, which he had changed for that, which was ſo much more excellent, Rom. 7.4. The Judaizers yet farther preſs't the great prerogative, that the Jewes had beyond all others, in having that Law of Moſes, meaning by it that exact form, as it was given by him, and as that was oppos'd to Chriſt's reformation, or the ſame now review'd and reform'd by Chriſt. Nay becauſe the promiſes made to Abraham were by them ſuppos'd to belong to all the Jewes, which ſtuck cloſe to that old Moſaicall form, and to none elſe, and to help them to juſtification, to the favour of God, and pardon of ſins. *Mat.*3.8,9. (though they liv'd in many ſins unreform'd, and thoſe ſuch, as were of farre greater moment, Mat. 23.23. then the omitting the ceremonies of the law could ever be deemed, which they ſo vehemently ſtood for) therefore they more and more enhaunſed and preſs'd the neceſſity of retaining every pin in the Temple, every ceremony of the Moſaicall law, as it was before Chriſt's reformation; And with them the Gnoſticks ſoon complyed, and generally inflam'd the unbeleiving Jewes againſt all the Orthodox Chriſtians, that did not: And againſt theſe hereticks, and thoſe boaſters of this law, as a prerogative beyond all others, (theſe aſſertors of Moſes's old form againſt Chriſt's review and reformation) the Apoſtles wrote the greateſt part of moſt of their Epiſtles, And ſo in them, though the word be very oft uſed in the former notion for the Jewiſh religion, not as 'tis oppos'd to, but as 'tis perfected by the Goſpel, (and that ſo often, that 'twere tedious to name them) yet doth the word νόμος, the law, and ἔργα νόμου, the works of the law, many times ſignifie (that, which I now ſet down for the ſecond notion of the word) this old form of the Jewiſh religion (as it was, before it was reformed by Chriſt in thoſe particulars forementiond) and that in oppoſition to the new form, as it now ſtands reform'd, and hight'ned, alter'd and improv'd by Chriſt; Thus *Rom.*2.17. [ἀναπαύῃ τῷ νόμῳ] (ſpeaking to, and of the growing ſect of the Gnoſticks, or Judaizers) He reſts in, depends on, and boaſts of the law, diſcriminates himſelf from all others, not only Gentiles, but Chriſtians, which Judaize not, and though he commit groſſe ſins againſt the very law, v.21,22. yet he thinks to be juſtified by being a punctuall aſſertor of the externall obſervances of the law, againſt all things elſe, even againſt Gods own reformations. So *Rom.*3.20. By the works of the law no fleſh ſhall be juſtified before him, i.e. by obſervation of the form preſcribed by Moſes, as it differs from Chriſt's reformation, or by bare obſerving the outward, ceremoniall, without the inward, ſubſtantiall part of it, the circumciſion, without the purity, Rom. 2.28,29. For, as it follows, by that is ἐπίγνωσις, the diſcerning or acknowledging of ſin, the law of circumciſion ſhews a man his obligation to inward purity, and his being circumciſed is an accuſation of him for every impurity he commits, farre from juſtifying him in the commiſſion of it. So again v.21. χωρὶς νόμου (as v.28. χωρὶς ἔργων νόμου) without the law, or, without the works of the law, i.e. without that punctuall obſervation of the Moſaicall form, the righteouſneſſe of God (or, God's way of juſtifying men) is manifeſted. Where 'tis obſerveable, that this way of juſtifying χωρὶς νόμου, without the law, taken in this ſecond ſenſe, is ſaid to be teſtify'd by the [νόμου καὶ προφητῶν] the law and the prophets, in the firſt ſenſe; It being often intimated by them, that not the outward ceremony, but inward purity was that which is acceptable to God. So again v.27. νόμου ἔργων, the law of works] oppoſed to νόμου πίστεως, the law of faith, the outward to the inward law; where yet v.31. having oppos'd them in that ſecond notion, he makes them friends again in the firſt notion of the law, In which, ſaith he, Chriſt did not aboliſh, but only perfect, and ſo eſtabliſh the law, highten the former duties, and require more elevated performance of them, then was before beleived to be under precept; and for the ceremoniall, change them from the externall to the internall performance of them; and ſo likewiſe for the judiciall requiring the equity of them, i.e. that which among us is proportionable to that, which appeared to be Gods will among them, as farre as the variation of circumſtances, makes prudent, or reaſonable for us. So again Rom. 4.13. ὁ διὰ νόμου ἡ ἐπαγγελία τῷ Ἀβραάμ, the promiſe to Abraham was not by the law; The law there ſignifies the command of circumciſion, *Gen.*17.10. which being after the giving the promiſes to him, Gen. 12.2,7. and 13.14. and 15.1,4,6. and 17.2. it could not be ſaid, that that was the foundation of the promiſes made to Abraham, (ſo Gal. 3.17, 18.21.) and ſo *Rom.*4.14,15,16. So again Rom. 6.14,15. where [ὑπὸ νόμον, under the law] under the Moſaicall yoake of legall performances, ſuch as Chriſt reform'd and alter'd, is oppos'd to [ὑπὸ χάριν, under grace] that ſtate under Chriſt's reformation. So *Rom.*7.4. you are dead to the law, or, the law to you, you are no more bound to it, and v.6. we are freed from the law, i.e. from thoſe parts of it, wherein Chriſt's reformation hath made a change. So *Rom.*8.3. [τὸ ἀδύνατον τοῦ νόμου, the inability and weakneſſe of the law] points to that ſecond notion of the law, before 'twas perfected by Chriſt. So Gal. 2.16. three times ἔργα νόμου, the works of the law] in the ſame ſenſe, as was explain'd, *Rom.*3.20. So again c.3.2.5. 10.11.13. and in many more places in that chapter, (onely with this light change, The law without the mercy, or pardon of ſin brought in by the Goſpel, The law taken alone, as excluſive of the other, For by that, Curſed is every one, that continues not in all &c. And in this ſenſe is v 13. the curſe of the law, that puniſhment, that the law brings on every ſinner, and none but the Goſpel frees us from.) So *c.*4.21. and *c.*5.4.18. So νόμος ἢ ἐντολῶν, the law of commande- mandements] Ephes. 2. 15. (though νόμος ἐντολῶν σαρκικῶν, the law of a fleshly commandement, Heb. 7.16. belong to another matter, speaking of Melchisedek and Christ typified by him, and denotes a law making provision for the mortality of Priests, appointing them in succession) that Codex or body of commandements under Moses, before Christ's reformation. So *Phil.*3. 6,9. *Heb.*7.19. And because this law of Moses was written and set down in the Scripture of the old Testament, and so oppos'd in that respect to the law of nature in the hearts of the Gentiles, and all men (call'd ἄγραφος νόμος the unwritten law) therefore as the word νόμος or law is used, so in the same notions the word [γράμμα writing] is used also. Sometimes in the first notion of νόμος, for the law or religion of the Jewes. So Rom. 2. 27. σὺ ὁ διὰ γράμματος καὶ περιτομῆς, thou that hast literally observ'd the law of Moses, and art circumcis'd, and v. 29. (with a little change) ἐν πνεύματι, οὐ γράμματι, the circumcision in the spirit, not in the letter, or, writing, i.e. the spirituall circumcision, purity of the heart, and not that outward commanded by Moses's law. So *Rom.*7.6. we serve in the newnesse of the spirit, i.e. according to this new reformed law, which looks most to inward purity, and not ἐν παλαιότητι γράμματος, in the oldnesse of the letter or writing, which required externall circumcision, &c. So 2 Cor. 3. 6. God hath fitted and prepared us to be ministers of the new Testament, οὐ γράμματος, ἀλλὰ πνεύματος, not of the writing, but of the spirit, i.e. not of the law, as it signifies the externall body of the Mosaicall constitutions unreformed, but of the Spirituall or Evangelicall law, the law of faith, or, the law, as Christ hath reformed it, or the Covenant of mercy and pardon of sin under the Gospel: For, as it follows, γράμμα ἀποκτείνει, that law, as it is in Moses, unreform'd by Christ, brings death, but no life, condemnation, but no justification, or pardon unto the world; But the Spirit, i. e. this new reformed law, ζωοποιεῖ, gives life, enables to gain life, to come to justification or salvation. And so again v.7. Διακονία θανάτου ἐν γράμμασι, the ministration of death in the writing, i.e. in the Mosaicall or written law, as it stands there unreform'd by Christ, and opposite to the διακονία πνεύματος, v.8. the administration of the Spirit, i.e. this new, reformed, Evangelicall law; which, either first, because it comes neerer to the soule, and requires purity there, whereas the Mosaicall law deals most in externall purifications, or 2ly, because the Holy Ghost came down first on Christ, then on the Disciples, to confirm this new Evangelicall course under Christ, in opposition to the former, under Moses, or 3ly, because in this Evangelicall administration there is grace given to enable us to perform what is now requir'd (and that grace is a gift of Gods Spirit,) for one, or all these reasons. I say, it is called πνεῦμα, the Spirit. Thus much in this place of the word [νόμος law] and, (by occasion of that) of γράμμα and πνεῦμα letter and spirit, which may help to the understanding of many places, and will not need to be repeated again, when we come to them.

h. Πληρῶσαι. The Greek word [πληρῶσαι] is answerable to the Hebrew כלה which signifies not only מלא, to perform, but מלא, to perfect, to fill up, as well as to fulfill; and so is rendred sometimes by one, sometimes by t'other. And the Greek it self is so used in like manner; when it referres to a word, or a prophecie, then it is to perform, to fulfill, 2 Chron. 36.22. 1 *Mac.*2.55. In other cases it is to fill up, to compleat, to perfect, *Eccles.*33.16. and 39.12. 2 *Chron.*24.10. and *Mat.*23.32. This the ancient Greek Fathers expresse by the similitude of a vessel, that had some water in it before, but now is filled up to the brim, and again of a picture, that is first drawn rudely, the limbs only and lineaments, with a cole or pen, but when the Painter comes to draw it to the life, to adde the ζωγράφησις to the σκιαγραφία, then it is said to be fill'd up. This may farther appear by what Christ here adds. Except your righteousnesse, i.e. Christian actions, and performances, exceed the righteousnesse of the Scribes and Pharisees, i.e. go higher then that strictest sect of the Jewes, and the Doctors among them thought themselves obliged to, or taught others that they were obliged, they shall not enter into the kingdome of God, passe for Christians here, or prove Saints hereafter. This same truth is at large exemplified in the remainder of this chapter, by induction of severall particulars of the law, first barely set down by Christ, and then with Christ's improvement added to them, in this form of speech, But I say unto you] Thus when Rom. 8. 3. it is said that God condemn'd sin in the flesh, i. e. shew'd a great example of his wrath against sin, by what Christ suffer'd on the Crosse for our sins, the reason of Gods doing so, is rendred v 4. that the δικαίωμα τοῦ νόμου, Ordinance of the Law, circumcision, &c. πληρωθῇ ἐν ἡμῖν, might be perfectly perform'd in us, i.e. in a higher degree then by the Jews it was thought to oblige; And that it is the generall interpretation of the antient Church-writers, (especially the Greeks) down to S. Augustine, may appear by these few of a multitude of testimonies; Irenaus l. 4. c.27. Dominus naturalia legis non dissolvit, sed extendit, sed & implevit, Again, sed plenitudinem & extensionem, Again, super extendi decreta, & augeri subjectionem, And again speaking of Christ, adimplentis, extendentis, dilatantis, which are all the sense of πληρῶσαι here. So S. Basil on Psal. 15. calls Christ πολύτροπα νομοθετῶν. See the author of the Constitutions l. 6. c. 23. So in Chrysostom Tom.3. p.93. Ἐν καινῇ νόμοι μένειν καὶ σὺν πολλῷ μείζονι. And that Christ's giving of lawes was πλήρωσις καὶ ὁλότης, and that Christ did not here recite all the Commandements of the Decalogue, because he meant not πάντας ἀνελεῖσαι. So that it was then μείζονα ἐντολῶν χορὸς, & οὐ τὰ αὐτὰ καὶ ἡμῖν καὶ παλαιοῖς καὶ ἡμῖν σκιάματα. So Theophylact, that Christ came not καταλύειν σκιαγραφίαν, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ἀναπληροῦν. So Oecumenius, ὅ τε αὐτὰ ἐν νῷ ἐντιτάττεσθαι, ἅπερ οἱ πάλαι ἐν νόμῳ. So Tertullian, Christi legem supplementa necessaria esse disciplinæ servatoris l.3. cont: Marc: c.16. And, Ampliandæ, adimplendæque legi adjutricem Christus præfecit patientiam. l. de pat: And, Christus Dei creatoris præcepta supplendo & conservavit & auxit l.4. cont: Marc: And, Legem sistimus, scilicet in iis quæ & nunc Novo Testamento introducta, etiam cumulatiore præcepto prohibentur, pro non mœchaberis, qui viderit &c. So S^t Aug: serm: in mont: l.1. Christus implevit addendo quod minus habet, & sic perficiendo confirmavit, & dum fiunt quæ adduntur, multo magis fiunt, quæ permissa sunt ad inchoationem. And, qua à me adduntur, qui non veni ſolvere ſed adimplere, And, non ſecundum illa minima, ſed ſecundum ea quæ dicturus ſum, Quæ ſunt autem iſta? ut abundet juſtitia &c.

i. Κεραία. Κεραία] is thought by ſome to referre to the Hebrew Chirec, by others to ſome corners of the Hebrew letters, from whence their Criticks were wont to deduce great myſteries. But the word muſt be reſolved to be of a Greek origination, and there it ſignifieth ἀρχὴ γράμματος (for ſo ſure we muſt read in Heſychius, not κερία, ἀρχὴ γράμματα, but κεραία ἀρχὴ γράμματος) the beginning of a letter, which is leſſe, then the leaſt letter, iota, which went before; Thus (ſaith Plutarch l.2. adverſus Col:) did Epicurus contend with Democrates περὶ συλλαβῶν καὶ κεραιῶν, about ſyllables and theſe, where moſt probably they ſignifie pieces of letters, as ſyllables are pieces of words. Thus is the word uſed in Heſychius for any the leaſt part of any thing, thus he renders κόρρος (mention'd here c. 7. 3.) κεραία ξύλου λεπτὸν, a thin minute piece of wood, of ſome, but very little length. The Hebrew reads קוץ, which the Rabbines frequently uſe for the little ſtalk or taile of any fruit. The Syriack hath ſerto, which Ferrarius interprets minima linea, and ſo the Arabick Chatta, linea or lineola, the leaſt ſtroke or part of a letter. And accordingly it is here ſet to denote any the ſmalleſt inconſiderable parts, any minutia in the law. The word is here joyned with ἰῶτα, the name of a Greek letter, which cannot be tranſlated into Engliſh any otherwiſe then that it is a Greek [ι] and therefore I have retein'd it in the margent, as Alpha and Omega two greek letters are retein'd in the rendring of the Apocalypſe.

k. Ἀκρίβ. There were three waies among the Hebrews of interpreting Scriptures, firſt שְׁמִיעָה hearing, ἀκρίβεια, when any fact is recited, or Hiſtoricall ſenſe explicated, which to have heard is ſufficient without any more. 2ly. אַגָּדָא myſticall expoſition. 3ly. מָשָׁל parabolicall expoſition. The firſt of theſe belongs to thoſe paſſages of Scripture, which were plain matters of fact, as here plain commands of the Decalogue, without any other expoſitions on them, then the bare reciting them out of the book; And to ſhew that this, and that of adultery v.28. and that of perjury v.33. were commands of the Decalogue, and that that of the lex talionis, law of retaliation v. 38. and loving friends, and hating enemies v.43. (which two, though they agree with the reſt in the ἠκούσατε, yee have heard, yet differ in the τοῖς ἀρχαίοις, to them of old) were doctrines of Moſes law, though not of the Decalogue (as that of Divorce having neither the [ἠκούσατε, yee have heard] nor the [τοῖς ἀρχαίοις] to them of old time, is neither) to ſhew this, I ſay, it is that Chriſts form here ſtill begins with ἠκούσατε ye have heard, in reference to the שְׁמִיעָה hearing, foremention'd, which belong'd to ſuch; and ſo, in like manner, his form of addition [ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, but I ſay to you] is an intimation of the Rabbine's forme, when having ſet down anothers doctrine, they make obſervation upon it, ואני אומר And, or, But I ſay.

l. Ῥακά. The word Ῥακὰ is an Hebrew word, and ſignifies vaine, or empty, and being applied to any man, is a word of contumely, calling him empty, deſpicable, witleſſe fellow, this is here forbidden by Chriſt, and (as an unſupportable wound to anothers reputation, which is generally priſed next to life, often preferr'd before it) is by him thought fit to be ſuperadded to the old command of not killing. And that this is an elevation of Chriſt's doctrine above the heathen theology, may appear by a known paſſage in Homer Iliad α'. where Minerva forbids Achilles ſtriking Agamemnon, Ἀλλ' ἄγε λῆγ' ἔριδος, μηδὲ ξίφει χεῖρα ἐρύσσῃ, Leave off contending, and draw not thy ſword, yet gives leave to reproach him, and counſells to contumelious words, Ἀλλ' ἤτοι ἔπεσιν μὲν ὀνείδισον, &c. which is here moſt ſtrictly prohibited by Chriſt.

The words [καταλλάγηθι, and διαλλάγηθι] in the paſſive voice have a peculiar ſenſe in the New Teſtament; In ordinary Greek Authors they ſignifie to be pacified, reconciled, but contrariwiſe in theſe (according to the notation of the reciprocall conjugation, Hithpahel, among the Hebrews) to reconcile himſelf to another, i. e. to appeaſe, get the favour of that other. So 1 *Cor.*7.11. ἀνὴρ καταλλαγήτω let her appeaſe, reconcile her ſelf to her husband, So *Rom.*5.10. If we being enemies καταλλαγέντες τῷ Θεῷ, were reconciled to God, i.e. reſtored to his favour (God pacified toward us) So 2 Cor. 5. 20. καταλλάγητε τῷ Θεῷ, take care that God be reconciled unto you, and ſo here διαλλάγηθι τῷ ἀντιδίκῳ σου, take care that he be reconciled to thee, pacifie him, reconcile thy ſelf to him, for that which goes before, is, not that he hath done thee injury, but thou him, when thy brother hath ſomewhat againſt thee] In which ſenſe alſo that other phraſe v.25. [ἴσθι εὐνοῶν,] literally [be well minded] is to be taken, not that thou think well, of thy injur'd brother (for that is not the buſineſſe of that place) but that thou ſeek his favour and forgiveneſſe, his accord, and agreement with thee, that he may think well of thee, and be reconcil'd to thee. See Note on *Mar.*14.54. f. So in like manner the active καταλλάσσω is (not, as in other Authors it ſignifies, to appeaſe, but) to reſtore any man to anothers favour, 2 *Cor.*5.19. All this is to be made up, by obſerving the importance of the Hebrew רצה in the ſeverall conjugations.

m. Καταλλάττεσθαι, Διαλλάγηθι. Ἐυνοῶν. Καταλλάσσω.

n. Ὑπηρέτης. The word ὑπηρέτης Officer, or Sergeant, which is here uſed, and ſo in like manner *Joh.*18.3. is alſo uſed Luke 4. 20. in another ſenſe, by which compared together, it appears that the ſame men which in the Conſiſtory, or Court of Judgment among the Jewes, were Apparitors, or, Sergeants, were alſo in the Synagogues imployed, (as Deacons) to miniſter, to bring, and take away the books, &c. So the very word διάκονος that we ordinarily render Deacons, doth *Mat.*22.13. ſignifie the officers, that take, and carry men to priſon, and (as it was the Lictor's office) bind men hand and foot, &c. In ſtead of ὑπηρέτης here, is πράκτωρ Luke 12.58. i.e. the Sergeant or Lictor that executes the ſentence, to which any man is adjudg'd by the Court of Juſtice.

o. Βλέπετε. Βλέπειν here ſignifies not to ſee, but to behold, conſider, look upon with ſome intention, or earneſtneſſe, or voluptuous deſigne. Proportionably to what we find of this word, when 'tis applied to other matters, As *Epheſ.*5.15. βλέπετε, ſee, i.e. take heed very diligently πῶς ἀκριβῶς &c. that you walk accurately. And very frequently in that ſenſe for taking heed. Saint Chryſoſtome here reads, ἡ ὑμεῖς βλέπετε, βλέπων, he that looks upon, and as Theophylact renders it by ſtandeth and looketh earneſtly, ſo he by maketh it a buſineſſe to doe ſo, hunts after, feeds his eyes with the ſpectacle, nails them to handſome facies, and again, looks that he may deſire. An example of this there is in the two Elders Suſ: v.32. who being denied the farther enjoying of their luſts, command to uncover her face, that they may be filled with her beauty. And ſo 1 Eſdr: 4. 19. they gape and even with open mouth fix their eyes faſt on her, And Eccluſ. 9.5. and 8. μὴ καλλιμάνθανε, gaze not, look not on a maide, as if thou wert a learning her, filling thy phanſy with her beauty, leſt thou be inſnared by her complexion, colour, or beauty in her cheeks, for ſo I ſuppoſe the right reading (ϕιμυθίοις not ὀπλίμοις) imports. So Eccluſ. 41.21. καλανίσης contemplating another mans wife and θεωρία (not, as 'tis renderd, being overbuſie, but) a curious earneſt beholding his maide, as the word is uſed 1 Tim. 5 13. and Eccluſ. 42.12. Look not earneſtly on any man for beauty, and ſo the Fathers generally uſe θεωρία, to this matter, And ſo in humane authors. Ἐρωτικοῖς ὀφθαλμοῖς εἶδε, καὶ τὸ κάλλος θεωρήσας, Niceph: Baſilac: διηγ. β. Looks with amorous eyes, and earneſtly beheld his beauty, and ſo ἐν τῇ ψυχῇ ἐθαλάμευσε πολὺ τὸ ἔρωτα, bedded her love in her heart, it being dangerous to let it out, The very thing call'd here, committing adultery in the heart. The thing then here forbidden by Chriſt is the delight or pleaſure of looking on carnall objects, which pious men of the Old Teſtament have abſtein'd from, as Job 31.1. but is now moſt ſtrictly prohibited by Chriſt. Thus ſaith * Athenagoras) τὸ ἁπλῶς ἰδεῖν, μοιχεία, to behold with pleaſure is adultery to a Chriſtian, μὴ τὰς ὥρας τῶν παρθένων θεωρᾶζειν, 'tis not lawfull to behold curiouſly the beauty of virgins, * Cat: in Job. and ſo ἐμβλέπειν θεωρητὴν ὅλως ὀλισθηρὸν in † Clem: Alex: and ἐξὸν ἀκολάστως, the incontinence of the eye is forbidden the Chriſtian, ſaith S. Chryſoſt:

The form of the preface here, being no more then [ἐῤῥέθη it hath been ſaid] without either the [ἀκούσατε, ye have heard] or [ἀρχαίοις, to them of old] doth note that the matter here recited was no precept, given either by Moſes in the law, or by any other after him, to that antient people, but that it was only a permiſſion, by allowing impunity in the דבר ערות, the caſe of nakedneſſe, or turpitude, Deut. 24. 1. to this the Phariſees diſtinctly referre c.19.7. and Mar: 10.7. Why then did Moſes command &c. where yet all that Moſes did command, is only this, that he that doth put away his wife (in the caſe, which for the hardneſſe of their hearts he permits v. 8. but allowes not, much leſſe commands) ſhall doe it formally, and legally, giving her a bill of Divorce, that by that means the divorced woman may marry again, and bring forth children by ſome other man. 'Tis true indeed there were ſome licentious doctrines, brought after into the ſchooles by ſome of their Doctors, or latter Interpreters of Moſes, One ſort of them, which acknowledg'd it to be allow'd in no other caſe, but that of nakedneſſe, or turpitude, did yet extend the word turpitude to almoſt every matter of diſlike; another ſort extended the liberty, or allowance (without any reflexion on that of turpitude) to משום כל דבר, κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν, Mat. 19.3. for, or, upon every cauſe, But the context here ſeems not to referre to theſe Doctors, but peculiarly to the permiſſion afforded by Moſes (and the command of giving the Bill of Divorce) Deut. 24. which indulgence, or impunity is here, and Mat. 19. retrenched by Chriſt, and ſtrict command given, both that no cauſe but that of fornication ſhall be competent for divorce, and that no Chriſtian ſociety ſhall grant that toleration, which only for the hardneſſe of their hearts was then afforded the Jewes.

The word ἀντιστῆναι] may here ſignifie (in a notion, wherein ἀντὶ, in compoſition, imports vicem referre,) repayment of injury, violence, &c. as in the word ἀντιπάσχειν, ἀνταποδιδόναι to ſuffer by way of retaliation, and give by way of recompenſe, &c. and ἀντικαλεῖν to invite him again, who had invited thee Luk: 14. 12. So doth Tertullian ſeem to render it, leſt vicem referre prohibentur, Apol: c. 37. when we are injur'd we are forbidden to make returnes, the ſame that Rom: 12.17. is called κακὸν ἀντὶ κακοῦ ἀποδιδόναι, to repay evil for evil, which is there the interpretation of ἐκδικοῦντες ἑαυτοὺς, v. 19. avenging themſelves. And 'tis obſervable that the word is apply'd in the Old Teſtament to impleading, or proſecuting at law, as Jer. 49.19. where the Hebrew reads עורר, diem dicere, to implead, the Greek have, τίς ἀντιστήσεταί μοι; who ſhall reſiſt me? So Jer: 50.44. and ſo the word עמד, when 'tis rendred ἀντιστῆναι, to reſiſt, Iſ: 5.8. it ſignifies impleading in judgment, and Obad: 11. to uſe violence againſt any. So ענה which ſignifies any kind of return to another in word or action (and is ordinarily rendred ἀποκρίνομαι or ἀνταποκρίνομαι to anſwer,) is rendred ἀντιστῆναι to reſiſt, as Deut. 19. 18. Iſ. 3.9. and 59.12. Jer. 14.7 by which (as 'tis here ſet in oppoſition to the lex talionis, law of retaliation, the eye for eye v. 38.) it will appeare that in caſes of this nature (a light contumely, &c.) not only private revenge is interdicted Chriſtians, but alſo the exacting of legall revenge before the Magiſtrate. But beſide this [ἀντιστῆναι] ſignifies ordinarily violent and armed reſiſtance, Re. 13.2. and ſo in Heſychius [ἀντιστάμενον] and [ἀντιστρατιώτην] reſiſting, and waging warre, are all one; and ἀντίσχεται, is ἀντιστῆναι ἐν τῇ μάχῃ, in the Old Gloſſary, ἀντίσχομαι obſto, obſiſto, reſiſto, and ſo in Homer, —ἀλλ' ἴτ' ὀπὶ ἀντίσχετε, Iliad: π'. and 'tis not certain that it ſignifies any otherwiſe here, and then the matter of precept will be, that in injuries (of this nature again) we may not for the ſecuring our ſelves from more, flie to any violent reſiſtance; Patience at the preſent, and depending on Gods providence for the future, doth much better become a Chriſtian. An example of this doctrine we have James 5. 6. where the juſt man is impleaded (even capitally) condemn'd, and executed, which is the higheſt, that can befall, and yet οὐκ ἀντίσσεται ὑμῖν (in a word equivalent with this notation of this) he makes no violent reſiſtance, prepares not to oppoſe your violence with the like, and then all bloody and violent means to avert and repay injuries (eſpecially ſuch ſlight injuries as are here mention'd) are here utterly forbidden. As for the τῷ πονηρῷ, that is plainly the Greek of לרשע, which Exod. 2. 13. is rendred diſtinctly [ἀδικοῦντι] to the injurious, as καλαπονούμενῳ the paſſive, is he that receives injury, Act. 7.24. See note, t.

χιτῶν, which is rendred a coate, but more properly a ſhirt or ſarke, and ἱμάτιον the upper garment; perhaps it may be cleared by finding the notation of the former χιτῶν, for then the latter ἱμάτιον being a more generall word for any kind of garment, will be here regulated by analogie with that: For the originall of [χιτῶν] there is little doubt, but it is Hebrew, differing ſo little from their כתונת; The Hebrew word notes it to be linnen, and it is the name of the Prieſt's inner garment among them, and ſo χιτὼν τὸ ἐνδότερον, ſaith Moſcopulus on Heſiod p. 70. it ſignifies the inner garment, and a phraſe in Saint Jude v. 23. [ἀπὸ τῆς σαρκὸς ἐσπιλωμένον χιτῶνα] ſignifies it to be next unto the fleſh, the ſame which the Latines call camiſia, and the Greekes ſometimes ἀκανθάμισον, and Heſiod hath given it the Epithet of πεμπώνηλα, ὕφεσν ποδήνη, i.e. a long garment, ſaith Moſcopulus. Thus in Homer's Iliads, χλαῖναν τ' ἠδὲ χιτῶνα τά τ' ἀιδῶ ἀμφικαλύπτει, the outer and inner garment, both which cover the ſhame. So in Iſiodore Peleuſiota, χιτὼν τὸ ἔνδυτὸν, is the ſhirt which covers the nakednеſſe, which, ſaith he, was it, which Joſeph's miſtreſſe rent from him, and brought to her huſband for an evidence of his attempting to defile her. The ſame Hebrew כתונת is, by tranſpoſition of letters, the Latine tunica (by which 'tis often rendred) as the writers of the origination of words have obſerved, and that, though it be ſometimes otherwiſe applied, agrees in the uſe of it alſo with the Greek and Hebrew; Tunica ſignifying principally the inner linnen garment, next the body, as when 'tis proverbially ſaid, Tunica proprior eſt pallio, and when 'tis in the Poets uſed for a ſhirt or ſmock, as when Propertius ſaith of the Goddeſſes,

——quas Paſtor viderat olim
Idaeis tunicam ponere verticibus.

This being the meaning of χιτὼν, the inner linnen garment next the body (Tunica ποδήρης ex lino (ſaith Saint Hierom ad Fabiol:) uſque ad crura deſcendens, ſuch, ſaith he, as the ſouldiers camiſia, cloſe to their body, that they may run or fight, or doe any ſervice the more expeditely, and, agreeably to that, the Roman ſouldiers are ſaid to be μονοχίτωνες to have no other garment on, when they fought) there will now be little doubt, but that ἱμάτιον will ſignifie the upper exterior garment, the Hebrew מעיל or Latine pallium, which was the covering of the כתונת or χιτὼν or tunica, and therefore in Plautus in Aulul: when they are a ſearching one for ſomewhat loſt, 'tis firſt, agedum, excutedum pallium, then when that is done (when the upper garment is taken off, and yet the thing not found) it followes, ne inter tunicas habeas, ſignifying pallium to be the upper, tunica to be the under garment. So Acts 9. 39. we find together χιτῶνας, and ἱμάτια, all that belonged to the clothing of the poor widowes there, the under and the upper garments. So in the enumeration of the High-prieſts garments, Cod: Jom: c. 7. §. 5. there be four garments mentioned of the Prieſt, and כתונת χιτὼν, is the firſt of them, and then, ſaith he, the High-prieſt addes foure more to theſe, which are all upper garments, worne over the other, and מעיל is one of thoſe, as here ἱμάτιον is added to χιτὼν, And in Heſiod, χλαῖνα ὕφεσν χλαμύδα, ſaith the Scholiaſt, τὸ ἐκτὸς ἢ παχύτερον, the outward garment thicker and warmer then the other, and it is to be obſerved that this latter was both more uſefull and prizable (μαλακὼ ſaith the Poet) then the former, being (as Joſephus ſaith of the High-prieſt's Pall, and ſo Rev. 1. 13.) a long garment down to the ground, and as Maimonides addes, כדבר בגדי הגדולים as the garments of noble men. And ſo Mat. 11. 8. ſpeaking of theſe, under the title of μαλακὰ ἱμάτια, ἰδοὺ, ſaith he, οἱ τὰ μαλακὰ φοροῦντες ἐν τοῖς οἴκοις τῶν βασιλέων εἰσὶ, the faſhion was for courtiers to wear them, and ſo they go generally for garments of peace, and ἐν ἱματίῳ ἡδεῖ in Plutarch, and ἐν ἱματίοις βίος in Theophraſtus, ſignifies ſuch a life, and then that is the gradation here, If any man ſue thee, and take away thy lower or inner garment, let him take away thy upper garment alſo, rather then thou by oppoſing violence, or revenging thy ſelf on him, think to ſecure thy ſelf from farther greater damage. The truth is, if Chriſt's diſcourſe were of his forcible taking away the garment from thee, it would be more reaſonable that the upper garment ſhould be firſt named, and the inner garment after it, becauſe that is the order of pulling off, and accordingly S. Luke ſetting it down with ſome change, and ſpeaking of the caſe of forcible taking away, he inverts the order and ſets ἱμάτιον firſt, and then χιτῶνα, Lu. 6. 29. but our Saviour here ſpeaks of civil violence, uſing a ſuite at law as the engine to rob thee, and then 'twas fitteſt to name that firſt, which was leaſt pretious or conſiderable, and afterward that which was more valuable, that ſo the duty of this text might be enforced, which was, that in caſe of any leſſer inconſiderable injury done to us, we ſhould not meditate revenge, or flie to force, though by that pacifick means we incurre the danger of a farre greater loſſe.

Ἀγγαρεύειν] is a Perſian word (and cuſtome) to take up men, as we take up poſt-horſes, to carry our Burthens from ſtage to ſtage (and ſo the word is uſed, c. 27. 31.) which when one hath performed, another is taken up in his ſtead for the next Poſt. Theſe ſtages are each of them a Paraſange, called ἀναπαύλαι ſaith * Agathias, becauſe when men came to the end of them, they did refreſh themſelves, and returne home. Now the μίλιον or mile, which is here mention'd for the ſuppoſed ſtage, is but the fourth part of a paraſange (or thereabout) the paraſange being, ſaith he, thirty ſtadia, and the μίλιον, but ſeven or eight, to ſignifie (as in the former the ῥάπισμα was a light ſupportable injury, or rather a contumely only, and the taking away the cloake, a robbery again ſupportable to him, that hath the coate left, and, perhaps, a great Eſtate alſo, ſo) here the oppreſſion or invaſion of liberty ſpoken of, to be but a petty damage, going but a quarter of an ordinary poſt (and no burthen mention'd neither) and they that are ſo impatient of ſuch tolerable injuries, as to oppoſe force or meditate revenge for them (which ordinarily brings greater ſufferings upon them, and ſo is farre from gainfull to them that uſe it) eſpecially to break into open violence upon ſuch light grounds, are directly contrary to this practiſe of patience here commanded, and preſcribed to all Chriſtians.

The πονηροὶ] here again anſwerable to enemies, v. 44. (and in the notion mention'd in Note on v. 39.) are the injurious; as on the other ſide [ἀγαθοὶ good] are the friendly or kind, differing from

CHAP. VI.

Paraphrase.

1. [a] TAke heed, that ye doe not your almes before men, [to be [b] seen of them, otherwise ye have no reward of your father which is in heaven.] 1. To be beheld or look't on by them, If you doe not thus take heed, you will lose that reward which God in heaven hath layd up for the Almes-giver. a. b.

*assemblies, or, places of concourse, ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, see note d.

2. Therefore when thou dost thine almes, doe not sound a trumpet before thee, as the Hypocrites doe, in the * synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verely I say unto you, [They † have their reward.] 2. The prayse of men is their reward, the only one which they are likely to have for this performance, which is thus by them design'd to their owne glory. From God they are sure to receive none, by receiving this they acquit God of all farther payment.

3. But when thou dost almes, [let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth,

4. That thine almes may be in secret; And thy father which seeth in secret, himself shall reward thee openly.] 3, 4. Watch over thy self as one that is very apt to fall into this sin, to doe works of mercy vainglorioufly, and therefore doe them as secretly as you can, and let not thy deareſt bosome-friend, which is to thee, as thy left hand, know what thou dost in this kind (unlesse so farre as he shall be necessary to assist thee in the doing of it, or as his knowing of it may some other way be ordinable to the glory of God, without any reflexion of any praise on thee from him or other) and God which beholds that which was thus done by thee in secret, shall give thee that very reward for thy secret piety, which the vainglorious person designes to himself, (but cannot so readily obtein, as by this contrary way thou thalt) make payment to thee in the sight of men and Angels.

* places of concourse

5. And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be [as the hypocrites are; for they love to pray [c] standing in the * [d] synagogues, and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men,] Verily I say unto you, They have their reward. 5. Like them, which pray with the same design, that stage-players act on the stage, to gain applause by so doing. For all their joy in praying is to doe it in places of greatest resort, where they may be most visible, as they that stand in the meeting of two streets, choose that as the place of best advantage, to be seen by those which passe in either street. c. d.

6. But thou when thou prayest [enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy doore, pray to thy father which is in secret, and thy father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.] 6. Retire from thy worldly company (as Jacob Gen.32. 24. when he wrestled with the Angel) and with thy doores shut to thee, pray there to thy heavenly father, which is himself invisible, and seeth thee, how secret soever thou art, and consequently that which is done by thee in secret, and he that is thus the beholder of thy closet-devotions, shall reward thee before men and Angels.

7. But when ye pray [e], [use not vaine repetitions, as the heathen doe, for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.] 7. Doe not lengthen your prayers with idle tautologies, after the manner of the heathen, which think they shall have their prayers granted through the multiplicity of words used by them in their devotions. e.

8. Be not ye therefore like unto them: For your father [knoweth what things you have need of, before ye aske him.] 8. Hath no need of your expressions to tell him your wants, and therefore is not likely to be wrought on, by the length and multiplicity of them.

9. [After this manner therefore pray ye, Our father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.

10. Thy kingdome come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.] 9, 10. I shall therefore set you a pattern, after which to form your prayers. Our father which remainest in thy throne in heaven, and there art praised by the Angels and Saints, which reignest there, and art perfectly obeyed, grant that thy name may be hallowed, thy throne may be set up and acknowledged, thy holy will and commands obeyed here below on earth also, by us thy sons, and servants, sincerely, and readily, and in some proportion, to what is there in heaven.

11. Give us [this day our [f] daily bread.] 11. The necessaries of our lives from day to day, or that which is proportion'd to every mans being, or sustenance. f.

12. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. 12. And punish not on us all the sinnes wherewith we have offended, and provoked thee to punish us, as we doe most freely forgive all the injuries, which have by others been done to us.

* bring † the evil one, τὸ πονηρὸν ‖ for ever and ever, see note on Lu:1.6.

Permit us not to be brought into any temptation or snare, suffer us not to be intangled in any dangers or difficulties, which may not be easily supported by us. g.

14. For it hath been well obſerved by the wiſe men among the Jewes, that our pardoning of thoſe who have injur'd us, is rewarded by God with hearing of our prayers for his forgiveneſſe. See Ecclus. 28. 2,3,4,5. & Mat. 5. 7.

14. For if [ye forgive men their treſpaſſes, your heavenly father will alſo forgive you.]

15. But if ye forgive not men their treſpaſſes, neither will your father forgive your treſpaſſes.

h. 16. They put on faſting, or mournfull countenances, unwaſh't faces, or perhaps they cover or veil their faces, that they may diſcover or reveal their faſting.

k. 19. 'Tis a great vanity to hoard or treaſure up any of the poſſeſſions of this world, for they are all, whether cloth, or fruit, or mony, ſubject to thoſe three caſualties of moths, vermin, and theeves, every one the worſe, ſome loſt, by keeping.

l. 22,23. As the eye is the candle of the body, lightens and directs it, ſo hath liberality of mind a moſt obſervable influence upon the whole Chriſtians life, and actions, ſerving them with light and directions, toward the making them all very Chriſtian; But where, in ſtead thereof, covetouſneſſe is gotten in, there is commonly nothing but darkneſſe, i. e. a life aliene from Chriſt, from the temper which he requires; If then that moſt eminent leading virtue in Chriſtianity, thy charity, or liberality be extinct, and turn'd into the contrary, that of covetouſneſſe, what a deep darkneſſe ſhalt thou walk in, though the light of the Goſpel ſhine round about thee?

24. No man can ſerve two maſters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other, or elſe [he will [m] hold to the one, and deſpiſe the other; Ye cannot ſerve God and Mammon.]

25. Be not fearfull or anxious for the future, nor doubtfull of God's providence in allowing you the neceſſities of life, food and rayment, for 'tis ſo much more eaſie to give food, then life, and rayment, then a body, that ſure God, who was ſo able, and ſo kind to doe the one, will not be unable or backward to doe the other to all that depend upon him faithfully.

33. But ſeek ye firſt the kingdome of God and his righteouſneſſe, and all theſe things ſhall be added unto you.

33. But let your principall and firſt care be to approve your ſelves the obedient ſervants of God, performing all thoſe things with all diligence and exactneſſe, which are required to render you acceptable in his ſight, and then for the neceſſaries of this life (though ye now which follow me have no way to lay in for your ſelves) I promiſe you that they ſhall not be wanting to you, I will take care they ſhall be brought in unto you.

34. Take therefore no thought for the morrow, for the morrow ſhall take thought for the things of it ſelf, ſufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.

34. Be not therefore beforehand immoderately doubtfull, or ſollicitous concerning your future ſubſiſtance, be not ſollicitous for that to day, which may be ſoon enough cared for to morrow, only labour and pray for that which is ſufficient for the preſent time; and when the future comes, then take care, and pray for that, let that have the proportion of care and prayer, which is due to it, layd, or charged upon it, and let not the preſent have the charge, and burthen of the future alſo, having enough of its own trouble and turmoyle belonging to it; (Thus is this whole diſcourſe directly deſigned by Chriſt to prohibit all anxiety for the future in a Chriſtian, though not abſolutely all care or proviſion for the preſent neceſſities of life, or the prudent managing of ſtore, and poſſeſſions, when God gives ſuch, Every day, as it comes, requiring that duty from us, to preſerve that life of our ſelves (and thoſe that belong unto us) which God hath beſtowed on us.)

a. Προσέχειν] with an Accuſative caſe, is σημαῖς τηρεῖν, to watch, or obſerve carefully, ſaith Phavorinus. and may poſſibly here be ſo, there being no neceſſity, that the conſtruction ſhould run thus, προσέχετε μὴ ποιῶν, take heed that you doe not, but as probably προσέχετε ἑαυτοῖς, look to your almes, μὴ ποιεῖν not to doe it, or, that thou doe it not, &c. But yet becauſe the phraſes uſed in theſe books are not alwaies to be judged by the uſe in other Authors, and becauſe Saint Matthew uſeth [προσέχετε] in all other places, a little diverſly from the reſt of the writers of the New Teſtament, thoſe generally joyning unto it a dative caſe; but Saint Matthew leaving it out, and underſtanding it, therefore 'tis poſſible it may be ſo here alſo; and ſo the reading will be neither [προσέχετε ἐλεημοσύνην, look to your almes] nor [προσέχετε μὴ ποιῶν, look that you doe not,] but underſtanding [ἑαυτοῖς] look to your ſelves, that you doe not, &c. So when Saint Matthew reads προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης, c. 16. 16. and 11. 12. take heed of the leaven, Saint Luke reads, προσέχετε ἑαυτοῖς ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης, take heed to your ſelves of the leaven &c.

Προσέχειν.

Ἐλεημοσύνη. As for the word ἐλεημοσύνη, from whence our Engliſh word [Almes] is form'd, that is any act of pity or mercy, eſpecially of liberality to them which want, for which ſome copies read δικαιοσύνη righteouſneſſe, which as it is all one with ἐλεημοσύνη, and, in the tranſlation of the Old Teſtament, uſed promiſcuouſly for it (according to the notion of the Hebrew צדקה forementioned, Note on c. 1. g.) ſo doth it ſignifie this charity, to be an act of duty and righteouſneſſe required of all Jewes and Chriſtians, and not to be omitted (by them which are able) without ſin.

b. Θεαθῆναι The word [θεαθῆναι] imports ſuch a beholding or looking on, as is on a ſtage or Theatre, for men that act parts, or ſtrive for maſteries, whoſe reward conſiſts only in the θεαθῆναι, and δοξασθῶσι, v. 2. the applauſe, and praiſes, and approbation of the ſpectators, which appears to be the meaning of the word here, by the concurrence of all the circumſtances, 1. by the μισθὸς reward, twice uſed immediately, v. 1. 3. By being thus looked on, they have their reward, as in thoſe ſpectacula or prizes 'tis wont to be, where the conqueroure hath no other acquiſition or κτῆσιν, but the reputation of the victory, with a crown of leaves, of no kind of value, to expreſſe and teſtifie it. Then 2ly. to this, I ſuppoſe, referres the mention of the σαλπίζειν, v. 2. the ſounding of the Trumpet before him, a ſolemnity with which the ſtage-players, and gladiators were brought into the Theatre, and by which the company were call'd together, χρῆν σαλπιγγι κελεύσαντας πολὺν ὄχλον δι' αὐτῶν, they uſe the trumpet calling the multitudes with it, ſaith Phavorinus, and this uſe of it among the Jewes, to call the people together, is oft mentioned by Moſes. This might yet 3ly. be farther probable by the mention of [οἱ ὑποκριταὶ] (the very word that ſignifies thoſe Actors or ſtage-players primarily, and is only by a figure brought to that ſignification which now ordinarily belongs to the word hypocrites in Engliſh) but that this word in the New Teſtament is in ordinary uſe for hypocrites, as we now ſpeak, and not for perſonators, or Actors. But then 4ly. theſe were wont to have their trumpet ſound in the Market-place, and places of concourſe (which is the meaning of συναγωγαὶ here, not ſacred Aſſemblies, or Synagogues) and ἐν ταῖς ῥύμαις in the ſtreets, places where men are wont ordinarily to paſſe, and where to meet, (as Heſychius renders ῥύμη all one with ἀγορὰ) where the ſounding of the trumpet may moſt probably be a means of calling together all men, that dwell in that place or neighbourhood.

Θεαθῆναι.

Σαλπίζειν.

Ὑποκριταὶ.

Συναγωγαὶ.

Ῥύμη.

The word [ἑστῶτες] may poſſibly reſerre to that particular poſture of ſtanding, which was uſuall in prayer, as among the ancient Chriſtians, ſo among the Jewes before them, whence it is that עמידה ſtatio, is reckon'd by them as one of the ſeven names of prayer. So Manahem ſpeaks of Abrahams ſtanding, i. e. (ſaith he) praying before the Lord, and thence is the proverbiall ſpeech of Rabbi Judah in Muſarim, without עמידה ſtation, the world could not ſubſiſt. And beſides the poſture of ſtanding might be more convenient for their turne of being more and farther ſeen by men. But the truth is, both the Greek ἑστῶτες, and the Hebrew belong promiſcuouſly (not to ſtanding only, but) to every or any poſture of the body. So Mat. 16. 28. ſome of thoſe that ſtand (i. e. that are) here, as עומדים ſignifies eſſe, to be, or adeſſe, to be preſent; and ſo

c. Ἑστῶτες.

Καθίζειν. Jo: 12. 19. ὄχλος ὁ ἑστὼς, the people that ſtood (i.e. were preſent) (in like manner as καθίζειν to ſit is uſed for any poſture, or without relation to any, no more then ſimply to abide, as Lu. 24. 49. καθίσατε ἐν τῇ πόλει tarry in the city) and ſo in this very matter, Mar: 11. 25. ὅταν στήκητε προσευχόμενοι, when you ſtand praying, i.e. when you pray. So in Heſychius, ἕστακα or ἕστηκα, κεῖμαι, ἵσταμαι, ἵστα, to ſtand, i.e. to be placed, ſituate, to be, yea and ἕστηλε, ἐνδιέτριβε, he ſtood, that is, he ſat, to take it quite off from the notation of ſtanding. So ſaith S. Chryſoſtome of the ſea, ὥσπερ ἀσφαλῶς ἑστηκυῖαν, οὐσανεῖ δεδεμένην. Cat: in Job: it ſtood as firmly, as if it were bound, which the Learned tranſlator renders rightly, firmiter & in tuto ſitum eſt, it was placed firmly, and ſo the Latine, ſto, as well as exiſto, is often uſed as a verb ſubſtantive only, to ſuſtein a participle, without reference to any poſture. * p. 544.

d. Συναγωγαὶ. That the word Συναγωγαὶ ſignifies not what we call in Engliſh Synagogues (by them meaning places ſet apart for divine ſervice) but any place of publick concourſe, will be very probable in theſe places following; Beſides the two in this place v. 2. & 5. (where 'tis joyned with ῥύμαι ſtreets, and γωνίαι πλατειῶν, Angles of the ſtreets) ſee c. 10. 17. c. 23. 6. and 34. Mar. 12. 39. c. 13. 9. Lu. 8. 41. c. 11. 43. c. 12. 11. c. 20. 46. c. 21. 12. Acts 9. 2. c. 22. 19. c. 24. 12. c. 26. 11. Jam. 2. 2. and therefore Munſter's Hebrew of Matthew having מקהלותיהם here is literally rendred [in frequentiis] to note, as the Hebrew doth primarily, any place where the people are met together, for though עדה ſignifie ſome ſpeciall congregated aſſembly, and be therefore the word uſed by the Syriack for ἐκκλησία, the Church, c. 16. 18. yet קהל ſignifies every kind of meeting, either civill for Judicature, (Mat. 10. 17. and 23. 34. Lu. 12. 11. Acts 9. 2. James 2. 2. and in ſome other of thoſe places, where this word Συναγωγὴ is to be rendred Conſiſtory) or even for ordinary affaires of trading, &c. (as Συναγωγὴ and Συναθροίζειν are all one) and ſo it is moſt commodious to render it in this place. See note on James 2. b.

e. Βαττολογήσητε The Greek [βαττολογέω] is literally, to doe as Battus did, which what it is, is deſcribed by Suidas in theſe words, Βαττολογία ἡ πολυλογία, Battologie is multiplying of words (juſt agreeable to this verſe which ſets theſe two words as Synonymous) ἀπὸ Βάττου τινὸς μαχροὺς καὶ πολυστίχους ὕμνους ποιήσαντος, ταυτολογίας ἔχοντας, The word is taken from one Battus, who made long hymnes, conſiſting of many lines, full of Tautologies. Whence Heſychius, βαλολογία (it ſhould be βαττολογία) ἀργολογία, ἀκαιρολογία, empty, idle, unſeaſonable diſcourſe. 'Tis ſure enough that Chriſt ſpake not Greek in this Sermon, and ſo reſert'd not to the name or ſtyle of Battus, but the Evangeliſt, or his Tranſlator thus rendred his Syriack expreſſion, by this proverbiall Greek word. Munſter's Hebrew reads it לא תרבו את דברים doe not multiply words, viz: above that which is fit and ſeaſonable. The peculiar notation of this phraſe in this place, will be beſt diſcerned by the practiſe of the heathens, which is here referr'd to, [ὥσπερ οἱ ἐθνικοὶ, as the heathens doe] and that practiſe is beſt repreſented in their tragedians, as in Æſchylus, who hath neer a hundred verſes at a time, made of nothing but Tautologies, ἴω, ἴω, and φεῦ, φεῦ, and ἴ, ἴ, ἴ, ἴ, in their crying to their Gods. So 1 Kings 18. 27. The Idolatrous worſhippers cried in the ſame words from morning till noone, O Baal heare us. And Acts 19. 34. for two houres ſpace, The Great Diana of the Epheſians. Of this kind generally were their charmes and Incantations, and therefore Polybius calls the uſing of ſuch repetitions, θεοὺς τοὺς Θεοὺς μαγγανεύειν, to ſet upon their Gods to charme them. This thoſe heathens did to two ends, 1. to make their Gods heare them, not knowing how farre off they might be, which Elias referres to, 1 Kings 18. 27. Cry aloud, for perhaps your God is aſleep, &c. and they look not on it as an Irony, but follow his advice, v. 28. 2ly. that they may underſtand and remember their petitions the better, both which Chriſt mentions here, v. 7. & 8. So that the things here forbidden in prayer (and eſpecially in private prayer, ἐν ταμείῳ and ἐν κρυπτῷ, in the cloſet, and in ſecret, v. 6.) are firſt ἀργολογία, a cold unſeaſonable lengthning out of time with tautologies, when it is not any effect of zeale, 2ly. the care of verball, not reall eloquence in prayers, for that will come under πολυλογία, much ſpeaking. But ſtill not all repetition, or length, or eloquence, for of all theſe we have approved examples in the Scripture, and they are each of uſe for the quickning and enflaming devotion, eſpecially in publick prayers, And even in Poetry it is obſervable, that what was unskilfully done by Battus, and ſo became ridiculous in him, being yet done dextrouſly by others, is a great ornament of verſe, that of Repetition.

f. Ἐπιούσιον. The word ἐπιούσιος is capable of a double origination, either from the word ἐπιοῦσα, the day approaching, whether that be the now-inſtant day, or elſe the morrow, that is (in the Scripture ſenſe of the Hebrew מחר) the future, the remainder of our lives, how long, or how ſhort ſoever. Thus in Phavorinus, ἐπιοῦσα is explained by ἐφεξομένη approaching, or coming on, and ἐπιοῦσα νύξ notes the future events, as oppoſed to παροῦσα the preſent, in Niceph: Baſilac: διηγ. 11. If the word be derived from hence, then the ἄρτος ἐπιούσιος will denote as much as ſhall be ſufficient, or proportionable for the future, or the remainder of our lives, which we pray that we may receive this day, i.e. as S. Luke interprets it, τὸ καθ' ἡμέραν, day by day. Another way there is of deducing this word, from ἐπὶ & οὐσία, that which is agreeable for my being, or ſubſiſtence, or condition in the world, ἐπιούσιος ἄρτος, ὁ τῇ ἐκάστῃ οὐσίᾳ ἡμῶν ἁρμόζων, ſaith Phavorinus, that which Solomon calls food convenient for him; and ſo in either ſenſe (but the firſt is more according to analogie of derivations) that which is ſufficient, and agreeable for the remainder of our lives, the daily ſuſtenance, and neceſſaries of our bodies, and eſpecially of our ſoules.

g. Εἰσενέγκῃς εἰς πειρασμόν. לא תביאנו לידי נסיון, to enter into temptation,] ſignifies to be ſo involved in ſtraights or difficulties, as that one cannot extricate himſelf, c. 26. 41. and proportionably here εἰσφέρειν εἰς πειρασμὸν] is to bring men, or ſuffer them to be brought into ſuch an eſtate; Contrary to which is God's promiſe, 1 Cor. 10. 13. of [ποιήσει σὺν τῷ πειρασμῷ καὶ τὴν ἔκβασιν] giving a way of eſcaping, or getting out together with the temptation, and that is it which we here pray for, in aſſurance of Gods fidelity in performance. Ἐκβασιν. Εἰσφέρῃς.

h. Ἀπαλλάξον. What ἀπαλλάξειν here ſignifies will be ſomewhat uncertain, uncertain, becauſe in this very Chapter, v.19. it is uſed again in a ſenſe, which will hardly be accommodated to this place, howſoever we ſhould render it. A probable way to hit upon the right in both places, will be, to conſider the diverſity of the matter, and accordingly to apply the word in the diverſe ſignifications of it. In that other place 'tis clear that it muſt ſignifie ſome kind of taking away, ſpoiling, or conſuming (for that is proper to the moth, and the βρῶσις, whatever that ſignifies) and ſo Heſychius renders it φθορομιῶσαι, either as that is feeding upon, φθορομία, φθοβόκωπις, feeding, ſaith he, or as 'tis preying upon, ſnatching, carrying away, φθορμάς, ἁρπάζῃ, κλαπῇς, and ſo ἀφανισμὸς is uſed for any kind of conſuming, whether by Death or otherwiſe, as γηρῶσαν ἐγγὺς ἀφανισμῷ, that which is old is neer dying, *Heb.*8.13. and in the Pſalme, Before I go hence and be no more ſeen, or, be taken away; and ſo ᾅδης the ſtate of the ſoule ſeparate from the body, or, the ſtate of Death, is expreſs'd by ἀφανισμὸς, as a word of the ſame origination and notion with it, one being deduced from the privative particle, and ἰδῶ, video, to ſee, and the other from the ſame particle, and φαίνω, appareo, to appear, and ſo both ſignifie death, the vaniſhing of the ſoule into ſoft ayre, as the Atheiſt (which beleiv'd no future life) calls death, Wiſd: 2.3. or in the Chriſtians notion the departure from the body. And thus the word is uſed not only for totall deſtruction, but for being loſt, or out of the way for a while. So ſaith Thomas Magiſter, ἀφανίζῃ ἀντὶ τῆς ἀφανὴς ὅτι κρύβῃ γίνῃ, Φιλόφρων ἐν τῷ ἑαυτῷ, οὐχ ὡς ἀπολλύοιτο, ἀλλ' ὡς ἀφανιζόμενος εἰς μίαν ἡμέραν, not that they are deſtroyed or gone, but that they diſappeare for one day. But this notion of the word cannot at all belong to this place, where the hypocriticall faſters, that deſire their devotions ſhould φανῶσι be ſeen and commended by men, are ſaid to be σκυθρωποὶ of a ſad countenance, and ἀφανίζῃ πρόσωπα, to uſe their faces, contrary to thoſe which anointed their heads, and waſhed their faces (which ſignifies an abſence of all mourning at leaſt) The moſt then that the matter of the place will direct us to, toward this enquiry, will be only this, That this ἀφανίζῃ πρόσωπα, as it is elegantly joyned with [ἵνα φανῶσι νηστεύοντες, being diſcern'd to faſt] being uſed as a means to make others beleive, that they are in a condition of ſadneſſe and faſting, and of ſadneſſe, as that may be an evidence, and reporter of their faſting, ſo it may poſſibly ſignifie only negatively, they doe not anoint, and ſet out themſelves, as men ordinarily doe, when no ſad occaſion forbids it, and that this is it, one probability the context affords, for that which is ſet oppoſite to this v.17. and preſcribed as the way of avoiding that hypocriticall practiſe, is, to anoint the head, and waſh the face, which makes it probable, that their hypocriſie conſiſted in not doing ſo, or neglecting to doe ſo. But beyond this perhaps it may denote ſomething poſitive. And to this purpoſe it may be obſerved, that Heſychius renders it ἀφανίσαι, κρύψαι, to hide, or cover, So 'tis known that that of hiding, or veiling, or covering the face, was cuſtomary among the Jewes, and hath been ſo among other nations in time of mourning, and ſo ſtill among us the uſe of hoods in cloſe mourning is obſerved, and veiles are generally the garment of mourners. Thus not only in Horace——

he covered his head, as if his ſon were come to an untimely death; but particularly in the Scripture, The King covered his face, and cryed &c. the deſcription of David's lamentation for Abſolom, 2 Sam. 19. 4. and ſo Haman, Eſth: 6. 12. mourning, and having his head covered. So *Ezech:*24.7. make no mourning, cover not thy lips, and ſo v.22. and ſo Mich. 3. 7. it being the cuſtome of mourners, caput, faciem, os, labra tegere, to cover the head, the face, the mouth, and the lips. And then why may not this be the meaning of [ἀφανίζειν πρόσωπα] here? which literally ſignifies, to hide or cover, ſo that it doe not appeare. So ſaith Phavorinus ['Αφανίζῃ] is not only τὸ φθείρῃ ὁλόλυ, totally periſhed, but alſo τὸ κρύβῃ, ἢ μὴ φαίνῃ, when a thing is hidden and appears not, and ἀφανίζας τὸ ἀφανὲς ποιῆσαι, to make inviſible, and ſo 'twill be proper to affirm, by its contrariety to ἐμφανίζειν, to make manifeſt. And this may ſeem to be a proper, and firſt notion of the word, which comes to ſignifie other things by deduction from this. And this will be very proper to the turn, by hiding, or covering, or veiling the face, to ſignifie mourning, or ſadneſſe, or humiliation, and by that to publiſh their faſting, which they ſhould keep ſecret. Another notion of the word ἀφανίζῃ is ordinarily pretended for [diſfiguring, or diſcolouring their faces] for ἀχεσπάλα, paleneſſe, but this, as it will hardly be exemplified either in ſacred, or profane Writers, ſo will it not be found, that the Jewiſh hypocrites uſed any ſuch arts, either in time of mourning or faſting; neither is it eaſily defined or explained, what particular way of diſfiguring it is, which is meant by it.

The interdict of unction and lotion among the Jewes, belongs only to daies of mourning and humiliation. Thus the Miſchna Cod: Joma c.7. §.1. On the day of Expiation, that great day of humbling the ſoul, אסור באכילה ובשתיה וברחיצה ובסך they are interdicted meat and drink, and waſhing and anointing, and ſo in like manner, בתשמיש המטה the companying of husband and wife, to which agrees that of S. Paul, 1 Cor. 7. 5. that the husband and wife are not to deprive one another, but for a ſeaſon upon conſent, that they may σχολάζῃ τῇ νηστείᾳ καὶ τῇ προσευχῇ, be at leiſure for faſting and prayer, (and accordingly the Greek, and Latine Church have made Canons to that purpoſe, ſee Balſamon ad Can: 3. Dionyſ: Alex: and Gratian: Decret: par: 2. cauſâ 33. *quaſt:*4.) by which it appears that this anointing and waſhing are not feſtivall Rites, but uſuall at all times, ſave only of faſting. So Dan. 10. 3. deſcribing his faſt [neither did I anoint my ſelf at all] is joyned to his [I eat no pleaſant bread, neither came any fleſh or wine into my mouth] and ſo of David, 2 *Sam.*12.20. when he made an end of mourning for the child, 'tis ſaid, he aroſe from the earth, and waſhed, and anointed himſelf, and eat bread, to ſignifie that the omiſſion of thoſe, was a ceremony of his mourning, and faſting, and ſo 2 *Sam.*14.2. the widow of Tekoa, that is to feign her ſelf a mourner, is bid to put on mourning apparell, and not anoint her ſelf with oyle. By this and many other teſtimonies appeareth the daily uſe of anointing, and waſhing, and not that they were uſed onely on feſtivall daies, though then they were uſed moſt liberally,

i. 'Αφανισμὸς

k. βρῶσις. The word βρῶσις is directly Greek for the Hebrew חסוּל from חסל conſumpſit, comedit, to conſume or eat, for which the Septuagint read κατέδυ) Deut. 28. Hence is the noun uſed for the locuſts, or whatſoever it is, that ſtrikes and devoures the corn, Joel 1.4. 1 *Kin.*8.27. *Pſal.*77.57. and is rendred βρυχὸς, and ἀκρὶς, and ἐρυσίβη, and in Latine, rubigo, ruſt, not that which Iron is ſubject to, but that which ſpoils corn, and is called ſmutte among us. And ſo this will be a proper ſenſe for the word βρῶσις here, yet ſo that in a greater latitude it may belong to all other vermin, which devour corn in the barn or garner, yea and the Caterpillers that eat up plants, and all other fruits alſo. And then all the 3 ſorts of earthly riches, which humane providence is wont to ſtore up, are here noted, 1. Garments, 2. Corn and fruits of the earth, and 3. Gold, and Silver, and Jewels, all ſubject to theſe three ſorts of ſuch great uncertainties, as make them unfit to be kept or treaſur'd up, only fit for the preſent uſe of themſelves and others; the poor mans ſtomach, or back, or purſe, being the ſafeſt ſtore-houſe, wherein we can lay them up, and that by Malachi called Gods ſtore-houſe, and our liberality to them, the laying up our riches, or treaſures in heaven, here v.20. 'Tis true the word [ruſt] doth ſeem to referre to metalls, which are ſubject to it, and if we took it in that ſenſe, it would be agreeable to the ſound of θησαυρίζετε θησαυρὸς, Laying up treaſures, forbidden at the beginning of the verſe, garments and metalls being the chief treaſures, and ſo reckon'd *Ja.*5.3. where after ἱμάτια, and χρυσὸς, and ἄργυρος, garments, gold and ſilver, followes θησαυρίζετε, treaſure up. So Achan of the treaſure of Jericho, purloin'd (to adde to his own treaſure) a wedge of Gold, and a Babyloniſh garment; and agreeably to this, the uſuall preſents that ſubjects gave to their Kings, and the ξενία which great perſonages gave to their gueſts, as teſſeras amicitiæ & hoſpitalitatis, tokens of friendſhip and hoſpitality, at their departing, were either apparell or metalls. So Naaman, 2 Kings 5. offer'd Elizeus, talents of Gold, and changes of rayment. And Alcinous and other Phæacian Princes gave to * Ulyſſes, at his departure, each a talent of Gold, and a rich veſtment, and ſo in Iſocr: ad Nicoc: in the beginning. And for garments and cloaths it was wont to be a great treaſure in this Kingdome, till the vanity of changing faſhions made it otherwiſe. So in records and ancient wills among us, the bequeathing of garments took up a great part. And accordingly the offices about the Wardrobe were of eminence in the Kings court, as thoſe other about the treaſury or Exchequer alſo. Notwithſtanding all this, the former ſenſe of [ruſt] (as it belongs to corn, and fruits of the earth, and the many accidents that thoſe are ſubject to) ſeems to be the thing here moſt pertinent and proper. For firſt the notion of βρῶσις in the Bible belongs only to this rubigo, not ærugo; and ſo ſecondly, the notion of θησαυρίζειν to treaſure up, and θησαυροὶ treaſures, here doth not referre to the pretiouſneſſe of commodities (though the fruits of the earth alſo be called τίμιος pretious, *Jam.*5.7.) but to the ſollicitude, or μέριμνα in making proviſion for the time to come, which is the literall notation of θησαυρίζειν, πρόνοια εἰς ἄυριον, laying up for tomorrow, and the particular thing here look't to in Chriſts prohibition; and thirdly, the fear of ruſt to their Gold and Silver would not be very conſiderable, in reſpect of the damage, nor conſequently ſo great an argument to deterre them from hoarding it, as ruſt to their corn would be, and theeves to their money; fourthly, the ruſt of their money is rather threatned as a witneſſe againſt them to condemn them (as coveting the poſſeſſion, but not making uſe of it, in liberality to them that want it) *Jam.*5.3. then for marring their metall; and laſtly, the word there uſed by S. James for the ruſt of their money, is ἰὸς, not βρῶσις.

1. ἁπλότης. 'Απλότης ſimplicity] in the New Teſtament, generally ſignifies liberality, *Rom.*12.8. 2 *Cor.*8.2. c.9.11. and 13. as ἀφελότης alſo, Acts 2.46. (by the ſame analogie, that τέλειος perfect, *Mat.*5.48. is all one with ἐλεήμων *Lu.*6.36. from the latitude of the Hebrew * תם, for that ἀφελὴς and τέλειος are ſynonymous, appears by Heſychius, who renders it καθαρὸς, ὁλόκληρος, pure, and perfect) ſo in Phavorinus not only ἁπλῆς ſingle] is rendred ἐλεύθερος free or liberall, but ἐλευθεριότης liberality, back again rendred χρημάτων ἁπλῆ δόσις, or ἀρετὴ τῆς ψυχῆς ἐυδαπάνητος εἰς τὰ καλὰ, a liberall beſtowing of money, or giving of wealth, or, the virtue of the mind, conſiſting in a diſcreet laying out of what a man hath, upon good, and proper objects; clearing this matter, that ἁπλότης ſignifies liberality. Then for the applying this epithet to the eye here, 'Tis 1. that the ſimilitude may go on in the ἀνταπόδοσις or ſecond part of it; 2. becauſe the eye is that part of the body, which hath moſt to doe with wealth, as appears by Eccl: 5.11. What good is there to the owners of riches, ſave the beholding them with their eyes? and therefore Covetouſneſſe is call'd the luſt of the eye, 1 *Joh.*2.16. 3ly, becauſe the phraſe is moſt agreeable to the dialect of Scripture, Deut. 5.9. *Prov.*23.6. and 28.22. *Eccluſ.*14.8, 9, 10. wherein πονηρὸς ὀφθαλμὸς the evil eye ſignifies envie, as that is the contrary to all liberall diſpoſition, in the ſenſe, wherein ἀφθονίστρος χεὶρ, in Ariſtophanes, he who hath little of envie in his hand, and ἄφθονος he that hath no envie, ſo frequent a title of God's in Damaſcen (the father of the Greek ſchool) ſignifies bounty, and liberality. And in that ſenſe, I ſuppoſe, πονηρὸς is taken c.7.11. for niggardly, covetous, or, illiberall, the contrary to ἁπλῆς liberall here, in the notion, wherein רַע evil is uſed in Hebrew, when 'tis ſet oppoſite to צַדִּיק and חָסִיד the righteous, and mercifull, and is proverbially ſaid to ſay, That which is thine, is mine, and that which is mine, is mine own. So on the contrary, טוב עין, the good eye, is by us rendred bountifull, and by the Greek ἐλεῶν & πτωχὸν, pitying the poor, *Prov.*22.9. and ſo ἀγαθὸς good, Mat. 20.15. If this ſenſe be embraced, then theſe two verſes will perfectly connect with antecedents, and conſequents

* See note on *Mat.*5.45.

πονηρὸς ὀφθαλμὸς.

all

all to the same matter of liberality, otherwise they will cause a direct chasme, or hiatus in the context.

m. Ἀντέχομαι] here used, is by Phavorinus rendred ἀντιλαμβάνομαι to help, and so by Hesychius; and ἀντέξεσθαι, ἀντιλήψεσθαι, who also adds φροντίζειν to care for. The former of these notions may be accommodated to this place of a Servant toward a Master, whose office is to assist his Master in all his business, and accordingly it is applied to servants, 1 Tim. 6. 2. δουλευέτωσαν ἀντιλαμβανόμενοι τῆς εὐεργεσίας, let them serve them, assisting them in well doing. But being set opposite to despising, perhaps that of caring for may be the fitter notion of it.

n. Ἡλικία] signifies μέγεθος σωματος, and μέτρον, the quantity or stature of the body, and again the habit of body, and consequent to that, the verdure of age and beauty, as when ἡλικίαν διαφθείρειν, in Heraclitus ἐπὶ δεκ: α'. signifies to destroy their beauty or youthfull colour, but especially stature, as in Niceph: Basilac: ιγ'. p.167. ἡ ἡλικία ὑψηρεφὴς, of a stature reaching to the clouds. So ἀνὴλιξ tall, being spoken of Pyrrhus, p.310. μέγας τῇ ἡλικίᾳ, of Nestor, p.307. ἡλικίαν πεδάγωνος, foursquare, as broad as high, of Diomedes, p.307. ἡλικίαν σύμμετρος, a proportionable stature in Is: Porphyrogen: p.206. And so also doth it ordinarily signifie age (and so doth קוֹמָה Kaumto, which the Syriack here uses, statura, item annus ætatis, stature, as also the year of ones age, saith Ferrarius) and may possibly doe so here, 1. because the Dehortation, which this is brought to enforce, was particularly that concerning sollicitude for the life, and to that this will be very proper, of our not being able to adde, by all our sollicitude, the least proportion to our age, to enlarge the period of life πῆχυν ἕνα, one cubit, i. e. one smallest measure or proportion, beyond what God hath set us. 2ly. It will be observable, that one cubit being here set down as a very small measure, and therefore the Hebrew readeth [even one cubit] would yet be a very great proportion, being applied to the stature of the body: Nay such as are come to their full growth (as the farre greatest part of Christ's auditors were) could not thus hope to adde one thousandth part of a cubit to their stature. but on the other side a cubit will seem but a small part to the many yeares of a long life, and he that is of the fullest growth, may yet hope to enlarge the period of his life, and to that generally mens sollicitude is applied, by diet, Physick, &c. to acquire long life, not to encrease their stature. 3ly. The word πῆχυς cubit is ordinarily a measure of the longitude of any space, Jo. 21. 8. Jos. 3. 4. and so saith * Eustathius, μέτρον μῆκος γῆς, πῆχυν, &c. and generally the same is said of other measures of the ground, &c. and particularly of a race (to which mans life is compared, Job 9. 25. and 2 Tim. 4. 7.) in the Scholiast on Pindar, Ὀλυμπ: ὁ: 13. Στάδιον, saith he, ὁ τόπος ἐν ᾧ ἔτρεχον, ἦν δὲ πῆχων τριακοσίων διάστημα, &c. The race, as it signifies the place wherein they run, was the space of 300. cubits.

* in Is. 1.

o. Κοπιᾶν

The word κοπᾶν doth properly belong to husbandry-labour, plowing, sowing, &c. So 2 Tim. 2. 6. κοπιῶντα γεωργὸν, the husbandman labouring, and Joh. 4. 38. θερίζειν ὃ οὐκ ὑμεῖς κεκοπιάκατε, to reap what you have not labour'd, i. e. plough'd, and sowed, &c. and so here of flax, which is first sowed, and pluck'd &c. before it comes to spinning.

p. Χορτὸς

Χορτὸς signifies any thing that growes in the field, or garden; here the genericall word is restrain'd by the context, and referring to the lilies of the field v. 28. doth signifie [a flower] (see note on c. 7. e.) one day glorious and beautifull in the field, and the next day, or soon after, cut down, and used for the heating of ovens, or furnaces.

CHAP. VII.

Paraphrase.

1. JUdge not, that ye be not judged.] 1. The sin of judging is very rife among the Jewes (see note on Rom. 2. a.) against this therefore you are to be forewarned. Observe not other mens words or actions severely, or without mercy, lest you suffer the same from others which you doe to them, and would be most unwilling to suffer from them, nay feel the like severity from God, when he comes to judgment, Jam. 2. 12.

2. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged, and] with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. 2. For you have reason to expect to be dealt with, both by God and man, as you your selves deal with others in this particular; and this generally is so observable, that it is become a proverb, among you, (see note on c. 10. b.) that with &c.

* small thin shiver of wood, 3. And why beholdest thou the *[a] mote that is in thy brothers eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?] 3. How strange a thing is it, that thou should'st look so severely on the light faults of others, who hast for the most part so much vaster crimes to be censur'd and reform'd in thy self? this makes thy censuring others very unreasonable in thee. a.

4. Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye, and behold a beame is in thine own eye? 4. Which way in reason shalt thou ever be fit so much as to reprehend, or direct another to amend any the least fault, much lesse to judge him, when thou art thus guilty of greater faults thy self? Thy continuing still guilty of such greater sins argues either no need of having his lesser faults reformed, or thy no skill to assist him therein.

5. Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beame out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brothers eye.] 5. The beginning with other men, and neglecting the reforming of thy self, is a piece of hypocrisie, Take care to reform thy self first, then wilt thou be better able to work a reformation of any even the smallest sin in another.

6. Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest [b] they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rent you.] 6. And for this matter of reprehending others, (all holy advises and admonitions out of Gods word) because they are a very precious deed of charity, (and so in like manner, for all other holy things, the word, and prayer, and the use of the sacraments, &c. by way of analogie with that of reprehension, here particularly spoken of, v. 4.) take care, they be not cast away upon those that are incorrigible, and will but return thee reproaches, and contempt for them, as swine tread under feet the most precious jewels, that are offer'd them, and as dogs often tear them, that give them what is most precious. b.

7. And that your ſelves may be blameleſſe, free from the greater, and leſſer guilts, (and ſo for all other things you want) apply your ſelves to God in prayer, and that will be a means of obtaining it, Lu. 11.9.13. Ja.5.6.

7. Ask, and it ſhall be given you: ſeek, and ye ſhall find: knock, and it ſhall be opened unto you.]

8. For prayer, if joyned with conſtancy, and importunity, never miſſeth to obtain that which is moſt for his benefit to receive, and therefore ſhall not fail to obtain grace.

8. For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that ſeeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it ſhall be opened.]

c. 9, 10. Any father will give his ſonne which asks him profitable things, thoſe things, for which he asks, at leaſt will give him other things as good or better, but by no means worſe, or hurtfull (nay if he ask ſuch, he will not give them.)

9. Or what man is there of you, whom if his ſon aske bread, [c] will he give him a ſtone?

10. Or if he aske a fiſh, will he give him a ſerpent?]

11. If you therefore which are not alwaies willing to give, and doe not alwaies know what is good for your children, doe yet not make ſuch ill returns to your childrens requeſts, as to give them ſerpents for fiſhes, how much more ſhall God be ſure to give you thoſe things, that are beſt for you? (though not alwaies in kind what you ask for, becauſe that is not alwaies ſuch, yet) grace which is alwaies ſo.

11. If ye then being * evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more ſhall your father which is in heaven, give good things to them that ask him?]

* envious, niggardly; ſee note on c.6.1.

12. Another branch of prime Chriſtian duty required of you is this, that whatſoever you would eſteem reaſonable that other men ſhould doe to you, if you were in their, and they in your condition, the ſame you muſt now think your ſelves obliged to doe to them, for this equity is taught you by your own law, and Scriptures in force among the Jewes: ſee note on Mat.5.g.

12. Therefore all things whatſoever you would that men ſhould doe to you, doe ye even ſo to them, for this is the law and the prophets.]

13. Let all your care be to ſet your ſelves upon the Chriſtian courſe, be it never ſo ſtrict (for 'tis eaſie to enter on a vicious courſe, and go through with it, and there are multitudes good ſtore, which paſſe that way to eternall deſtruction, and damnation)

13. Enter ye in at the ſtrait gate, for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to deſtruction, and many there be which goe in thereat.]

14. And there will be all need of your care, becauſe the entrance, and whole courſe of a Chriſtians life is made up of perfect ſtrictneſſe, in oppoſition to the looſneſſe of the world, and that makes ſo few to chooſe it.

14. Becauſe ſtrait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be which find it.]

15. Take heed of falſe teachers, that, when they come to infuſe their doctrines into you, weare ſheep-skins, as the prophets oft uſed to doe, thereby pretending the greateſt innocency and meekneſſe, that can be, but deſign and intend the direct contrary, devouring and rapacity. See Acts 20.29.

15. Beware of falſe prophets which come to you in ſheeps cloathing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.]

16. Ye ſhall certainly know them and diſcern them, if you take notice of, and weigh the doctrines, which, when they have gotten ſome authority with you, they will preſently endevour to infuſe into you. They that make no other uſe of their being counted prophets, but to infuſe higher degrees of all kind of piety and charity into you, ye may reſolve they are ſent from God, for the Devil would never help men to credit and reputation in the world, who ſhould make uſe of it only to the advancement of picty. But if their deſign be to infuſe into their followers any ſeeds of impiety, injuſtice, uncleanneſſe, uncharitableneſſe, ſedition, rebellion, &c. Let their pretences, and behaviour be never ſo fair, be ſure they are falſe prophets.

16. Ye ſhall know them by their fruits:] Doe men gather grapes of thornes, or figs of thiſtles?

17. Even ſo every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

18. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

19. Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and caſt into the fire.

20. Wherefore by their fruits ye ſhall know them.

21. And though in words they take upon them to be the only ſervants, ſons, and ſaints of God, as hereticks and ſchiſmaticks ordinarily doe, yet theſe words of theirs, and their confident calling on God, are not ſuch fruits, by which you can judge well of them, For 'tis not every one which beleiveth on me, which acknowledgeth me, which looketh for ſalvation from me, that

21. Not every one that ſaith unto me, Lord, Lord,] ſhall enter into the kingdome of heaven, but he that doth the will of my father which is in heaven.

22. at the day of judgment, Lord we are the men which thou by thy power haſt enabled to foretell things to come, and by the ſame, to exorciſe Devils, and doe all kind of miracles.

22. Many will ſay to me [in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophecyed * in thy name? and in thy name have caſt out Devils? and in thy name, done many wonderfull works?]

* by, or in, or

d. 23. ſaying, I never knew you,

23. And then will I profeſſe unto them, [d I never knew you;] depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

24. beleiveth and entertaineth all theſe commands here contained in this Sermon, (beginning c.5.1.) and practiſeth them, he is like a prudent builder, that laid the foundation of his houſe on a rock (ſee note on c. 10. b.)

24. Therefore whoſoever [heareth theſe ſayings of mine and doth them, I will liken him to a wiſe man, which built his houſe upon a rock,]

c. 25. Land-floods that proceeded from that ſuddain rain.

25. And the rain deſcended, and [the c floods] came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that houſe, and it fell not, for it was founded upon a rock.

26. And

26. And every one that heareth theſe ſayings of mine, and doth them not, [ſhall be likened] unto a fooliſh man, which built his houſe upon the ſand.

26. Shall be like, and by all men known and reputed to be like

27. And the rain deſcended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that houſe, and it fell, and great was the fall of it.

28. And it came to paſſe when Jeſus had ended theſe ſayings, the people were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine.

29. For he taught them, as one having authority, and not as the Scribes.]

29. For all this Sermon of his, whether ſpoken continuedly, or with pauſes between, was delivered by him as by one which had extraordinary power and miſſion, prophetick at leaſt, which ſince Ezra's time had been intermitted (as the Jewes confeſſe) and not as the Doctors of law among the Jewes.

Annotations on Chap. VII.

2. κάρφος. What [κάρφος] here ſignifies, will appear by two waies of judging, firſt by the judgment of the Greek Grammarians. Heſychius renders κάρφος, ξύλα λεπτὰ ἢ ξηρά, thin, drie pieces of wood, and then taking it in that notion of a thin piece of wood, the leaſt ſplinter or ſhiver imaginable, of very little, yet of ſome length, 'twill be here very fitly uſed, and ſet oppoſite to the δοκὸς, the beame, the biggeſt and longeſt piece of wood, which is uſed. The ſecond way is by comparing the next verſe (which is the varying the phraſe a little) with a proverbiall ſpeech among the Jewes, in and before Chriſt's time (ſet down afterward with ſome variation in the Talmud, thus) They which ſay to others טול חיסם מבין שניך take out the ſmall piece of wood out of thy teeth, are anſwer'd טול קורה מבין עיניך take out the beame out of thine eyes. To check the importunity of thoſe, who are alwaies cenſuring and condemning others for ſmall matters, reprehending for trifles, when they are themſelves guilty of thoſe things, which are much more to be reprehended.

b. ἐπιστρ. There is in theſe words obſervable an ἐπιστροφὴ or ἀναστροφὴ, a going back, ſpeaking firſt to the ſecond of the two things propoſed, and then after to the firſt, As it is very frequent with the Prophets in the Old Teſtament, and not ſeldome uſed in the Writers of the New. So Mat. 12. 22. the blind and the dumb both ſpake and ſaw, i.e. the blind ſaw, and the dumb ſpake, and c. 18. Chriſt having mention'd the three degrees of admonition, by one alone, by two or three, and by the Rulers in the preſence of the aſſembly, v. 15, 16, 17. he then reſumes to ſpeak ſomewhat farther of each of theſe, and begins firſt with the laſt, what, in caſe of ſuch refractarineſſe, the Rulers of the Church are to doe, Verily I ſay unto you, Whatſoever ye ſhall bind on earth &c. v. 18. And then v. 19. (in reference to the ſecond thing mention'd, the admonition in the preſence of one or two v. 16.) Again, Verily I ſay unto you that if two of you ſhal agree upon the earth &c. it ſhall be done unto them of my Father; From which, before he proceeds back again in the firſt place to the firſt, of the private admonition, Peter asks a queſtion, which introduces the diſcourſe, which was proper to have been deliver'd on that ſubject. So c. 23. 16. Chriſt having mention'd ſwearing by the Temple firſt, and then by the Altar v. 18. he after reſuming them both again, v. 20. begins firſt with that of the Altar, and then that of the Temple, after it. So in that c. 23. 25. having mention'd firſt the outſide of the cup and platter, and then the inſide v. 26. he returns firſt to the cleanſing of the inſide, then the outſide of it. So Rom. 2. 12. S. Paul having affirm'd two things, the firſt of the Gentiles that had not the Law, that they ſhould periſh without it, the ſecond of the Jewes that had the Law, that they ſhould be judged by it, he v. 13. ſpeaks firſt of the ſecond, for the hearers of the Law, &c. and then v. 14. of the firſt, For when the nations &c. So Rom. 14. having ſet down two heads of diſcourſe, that the ſtrong ſhould not ſet at nought the weak, Nor ſecondly, the weak judge, or condemn the ſtrong v. 3. he reſumes the latter firſt v. 4. who art thou that judgeſt, and then v. 10. returns to the former, and thou why doſt thou ſet at nought thy brother. So 1 Cor. 6. 11. After the generall of waſhing, which contains, the two ſubſequent, ſanctifying, and juſtifying, the mention of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is firſt named, belongs to the latter, that of juſtification, and the Spirit of our God, to the former, that of ſanctifying. So 2 Cor. 2. 15. Having mention'd the σῳζομένοις firſt, them that are ſaved, and then ἀπολλυμένοις them that periſh, he goes back v. 16. firſt to the latter, to thoſe a ſavour of death unto death, and then to the former, to thoſe a ſavour of life to life. So Philem. 5. hearing of thy love, and faith, which thou haſt toward the Lord Jeſus, and toward all Saints, 'tis apparent, that the Saints are the object of the love, and the Lord Jeſus of the faith. So Heb. 5. where in the four firſt verſes there are three things propounded of an high Prieſt, 1. that he offer for ſin, 2. be compaſſionate to ſinners, and to that end be himſelf infirm, and offer for himſelf, as well as the people, 3. that he be called to this office by God himſelf, To theſe three, all applied to Chriſt, the Apoſtle ſpeaks particularly, and to the laſt firſt, So likewiſe Chriſt glorified not himſelf to be an high Prieſt &c. v. 5, 6. Then to the ſecond v. 7, & 8. who in the daies of his fleſh offer'd up prayers &c. and then to the firſt laſt, v. 9. being made perfect he became the author of eternall ſalvation &c. So Heb. 9. 1. having named two things, the ordinances of worſhip, and the worldly ſanctuary, he dilates firſt on the laſt of them, v. 2, 3, 4, 5. For there was a tabernacle made &c. and then after comes back to the former, v. 6. Now when theſe things were thus ordain'd, the Prieſt went alwaies &c. So Heb. 10. 33. having mention'd two acts of ſuffering in them, the firſt perſonall in themſelves by reproaches, and afflictions, the ſecond by way of ſympathy with the Apoſtles, in the next ver. he reſumes both, but firſt the latter, for ye had compaſſion on me in my bands, and then the former, took joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods. So 2 Pet. 3. where the Atheiſts objection conſiſts of two parts, 1. that God hath not made good his promiſe concerning his coming v. 4. 2*ly*, as a proof of that, that there had been no ſenſible mutation ſince the beginning of the world, in the latter part of the verſe, The Apoſtle makes anſwer firſt to the latter, v. 5,6,7. and then comes back, and ſatisfies the former alſo, v.8. &c. And, to inſtance no more, two examples of this there are moſt clearly here in this place, The firſt in the ſixt and ſeventh verſes, for having mention'd two things, v. 5. pulling out the beam in thine own eye, i.e. reforming a mans own ſins; 2ly, caſting out the mote out of the brothers eye, i.e. reprehending faults in other men, he ſpeaks firſt to the latter of theſe, the matter of reprehenſion, v.6. and then v.7. returns to the former, the means that muſt be uſed for the reforming our ſelves, prayer for grace, which ſhall ſo ſurely bring it. The ſecond here in the ſixt verſe, where having mention'd the Dogs and the Swine, he firſt ſpeaks of the Swine, and after of the Dogs, for certainly the treading belongs to the Swine, and the rending to the Dogs; for the Swine doe not uſe to turn, and rend, but the Dogs doe; (and therefore Munſter's Hebrew read's it וישובו הכלבים and the Dogs returning &c.) and Dogs doe not tread under their feet what is caſt to them, as Swine doe. Theſe are both proverbially ſpoken, to expreſſe, how ſure good charitable reprehenſions are, to be caſt away upon incorrigible ſinners, according to that of the Satyriſt,

d. *Ὅτι] here and in ſome other places, hath a peculiar notion, neerer an Expletive, then a cauſall, and is beſt rendred by the Latine, ſcilicet, the Engliſh, Thus, or the like, as a form only of introducing the ſpeech that comes after. He ſhall ſay unto them, what ſhall he ſay? Why, or thus he ſhall ſay, I know you not, &c. So c.10. 7. and ſo c.26. 72. He denied with an oath, ὅτι οὐκ οἶδα, which will be beſt rendred [ſaying, I know him not] ſo v.74, 75. In all which places, if it ſhall be rendred [that] the words will not be coherent, but if it be rendred [ſaying] or elſe quite omitted, as an expletive, and not rendred at all, the ſenſe will be perſpicuous. Thus I conceive is ὅτι to be taken Rom. 3. 8. καὶ μὴ (καθὼς βλασφημούμεθα, καὶ καθώς φασί τινες ἡμᾶς λέγειν) ὅτι ποιήσωμεν &c. and why ſhould we not ſay (as they ſay we doe) to wit, Let us doe evil &c.

The word ποταμοὶ doth not peculiarly ſignifie rivers, i. e. ſtreams or chanels, either beginning from ſprings, or proceeding from the ſea, but is a generall word, of which, as thoſe rivers are one ſpecies, ſo are land-floods or torrents, that ariſe from any tempeſtuous, ſuddain rain, another, and the latter of theſe is here meant, being joyn'd to the deſcending of the rain, and accompanied with the blowing of the winds. Thus in Homer, Ἰλ. Ν'.

Ὡς δ' ὅτε χείμαῤῥοι ποταμοὶ κατ' ὄφρυσφι ῥέοντες
As, when the torrent rivers running down from the mountains—— Where ſaith Euſtathius, the word ποταμοὶ is a genericall word, χείμαῤῥοι, a ſpecificall, ποταμὸς being of two ſorts, 1. ἀένναος, a continuall river that flowes from a ſpring, and 2. χείμαῤῥους that comes in a torrent from a tempeſtuous rain (ὄμβειον ὕδωρ, rain water there in Homer) and therefore he concludes τοῦτο ποταμὸς χειμάῤῥους ἔλαττον ἔχει τῷ γένει τὸ εἶδος, ὁμοίως τῷ βοῦς ταῦρος. The word ποταμὸς hath the adjective [χειμάῤῥους] added to it, the ſpecificall word to the genericall, as if to βοῦς the word ταῦρος were added. And ſo as βοῦς is ſometimes taken peculiarly for a bull, though it be a more generall comprehenſive word, and ſignifie an oxe alſo, ſo doth ποταμὸς here ſignifie a land-flood or torrent, though in its own amplitude it ſignifie a river alſo, juſt as χόρτος the genericall word for graſſe and flowers &c. is yet by the context reſtrained to ſignifie flowers peculiarly, c.6.30.

CHAP. VIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. After the finiſhing of this Sermon of his, there was great reſort unto him, not only for his doctrine, but his miracles of cures &c.

1. When he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him.]

a. 2. Fell down and beſought him that he would pleaſe to make uſe of his power, whereby he was confident that he was able to cure his leproſie.

2. And behold there came a leper and [* a worſhipped him, ſaying, Lord if thou wilt, thou canſt make me clean.]

* fell down before him

3. He was cleanſed or cured from his leproſie.

3. And Jeſus put forth his hand and touched him, ſaying, I will, be thou clean. And immediately [his leproſie was cleanſed.]

b. c. d. 4. Be ſure thou divulge not this to others, but according to the Law ſhew thy ſelf to the Prieſt, and offer the offering required of all ſuch, as are thus cleanſed from leproſie; This Jeſus ſaid to him on deſign, that it might by this means be a teſtimony to aſſure them, 1. that he was the Meſſias, 2. that he was God, 3. that he oppoſed not the law given by Moſes.

4. And Jeſus ſaith unto him, [b See thou tell no man, but goe thy way c ſhew thy ſelf to the Prieſt, and offer the gift that Moſes commanded, d for a teſtimony unto them.]

5. A commander of a troop of an hundred ſouldiers.

5. And when Jeſus was entred into Capernaum, there came a [Centurion,] beſeeching him, e. 6. And ſaying, Lord, my ſervant lyeth at home ſick of the palſie, grievouſly * * tormented.

* affected, puniſhed,

7. And Jeſus ſaith unto him, I will come and heal him.

8. But of this I am aſſured, that one word of thine will as eaſily cure him, as if thou ſhouldſt thy ſelf come perſonally.

8. The Centurion anſwer'd and ſaid, Lord, I am not worthy that thou ſhouldſt come under my roof, [but ſpeak the word only, and my ſervant ſhall be healed.]

9. For

9. For I am a man under authority, having ſouldiers under me. And I ſay to this man, Goe, and he goeth, and to another, Come, and he cometh, and to my ſervant, Doe this, and he doth it.]

9. For I am a man, who, though I am under other mens authority, that of the chief Commander, and of the Emperour, yet have under me ſouldiers for my military commands, and ſervants for my domeſtick, and whatſoever I command them, is done by them as ſurely, as if I did it my ſelf, how much more canſt thou with thy word command health (who art the word, which healeth all things, Wiſd. 16. 12.) without troubling thy ſelf to come down to my houſe?

10. When Jeſus heard it, he marvelled and ſaid to them that followed, Verily I ſay unto you I have not [found ſo great [f] faith; no not in Iſrael.]

10. Found any Jew ſo fully perſwaded of my power, or that behaves himſelf ſo much like a beleiver, as this Gentile. f.

11. And I ſay unto you, that [many ſhall come from the eaſt and weſt, and ſhall [g] ſit down with Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob in the kingdome of heaven:]

11. Many from all parts of the world will come in, and beleive on Chriſt, partake of this ſpirituall feaſt, and be made to ſit down with Abraham the father of the faithfull, and the reſt of the Patriarchs of the Jewiſh nation. g.

12. But the children of the Kingdome ſhall be caſt out into utter darkneſſe, there ſhall be [h] weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.

11. And the Jews themſelves to whom this Meſſias was primarily ſent, will disbeleive, and be puniſhed accordingly, ſhut out of the ſpirituall feaſt, out of the Church here, and heaven hereafter, deprived of the light and cheertull heat, that is wont to be in houſes of feaſting, and left to utter darkneſſe (the cold of the night, and winter, without) ſtupid blindneſſe here, and eternall darkneſſe hereafter. h.

13. And Jeſus ſaid unto the Centurion, Goe thy way, and as thou haſt beleived, ſo be it done unto thee; And his ſervant was healed the ſelf ſame houre.

14. And when Jeſus came into Peter's houſe, he [ſaw his wives mother layd, and ſick of a feaver:]

14. Found his wives mother ſick of a feaver and layd to bed under it.

15. And he touched her hand, and the feaver left her, and ſhe aroſe and [miniſtred unto them.]

15. Provided for them, what was neceſſary for their entertainment.

16. When the even was come.] they brought unto him many that were poſſeſſed with devils, and he caſt out the ſpirits with his word, and healed all that were ſick:

16. When by the approach of the evening-coole it was more convenient,

17. That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by Eſaias the prophet ſaying, [Himſelf [i] took our infirmities, and bare our ſickneſſes.]

17. He was ſo affected with all the miſeries that befell us, that out of compaſſion to us, he made uſe of his divine power to heal even our bodies of the diſeaſes that were on them. i.

18. Now when Jeſus ſaw great multitudes about him, he gave commandement to depart unto the other ſide;

19. And a certain Scribe came and ſaid unto him, Maſter, I will follow thee whitherſoever thou goeſt;

20. And Jeſus ſaith unto him, The Foxes have holes, and the birds of the ayre have neſts; but the ſon of man hath [not where to lay his head.]

20. No place or dwelling of his own to reſt in, or entertain any follower.

21. And another of his diſciples ſaith unto him, [Lord, ſuffer me firſt to goe and bury my father.]

21. Lord I deſire, and firmly purpoſe to be a conſtant follower of thine, But for a time I beſeech thy leave, that I may abide at my fathers to perform the laſt rites of funerall obſequies unto him. k.

22. But Jeſus ſaid unto him, Follow me, and [let the dead bury their dead.]

22. Leave that office to be performed by others who are not imbarked in this more holy, and divine imployment; For as in the Law the Nazarites and the Prieſts might not meddle with the interments even of their parents, but others might lawfully doe it, others that were not Nazarites or Prieſts might bury one another, So thou that art a conſecrated perſon, the departing to bury a deceaſed friend, though it be a Father, or to receive an inheritance or legacy from him, is an imployment unfit for thee.

23. And when he was entred into a ſhip, [his diſciples] followed him,

23. His diſciples and none elſe.

24. And behold there aroſe a great tempeſt in [the ſea,] inſomuch that the ſhip was covered with the waves; but he was aſleep.

24. The lake, ſee note on Lu.8. c.

25. And his diſciples came unto him, and awoke him, ſaying, Lord ſave us, we periſh.

26. And he ſaith unto them, Why are ye fearfull [O ye of little faith?] Then he aroſe and rebuked the winds and the ſea, and there was a great calme.

26. Ye that in the due ſeaſon make not uſe of that promiſe in the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 107. 23, 28. and apprehend not the fulfilling of it in, and by Chriſt, ye that have ſo poor an opinion either of my power, or care of you, as to doubt of my preſence to ſecure you.

27. But the men marvelled] ſaying, What manner of man is this, that even the winds, and the ſea obey him?

27. And at this they were wonderfully amazed and terrified, Mar. 4. 41. Lu. 8. 25.

28. And when he was come to the other ſide, into [the countrey of the Gergeſenes,] there met him two poſſeſſed with devils coming out of the [l] tombs, exceeding fierce, ſo that no man might paſſe by that way.

28. That country where Gergeſa and Gadara (Mar. 5. 1.) lie neer together, ſee Mar. 5. 10. l.

29. And behold, they cried out, ſaying, [What have we to doe with thee, Jeſus thou ſon of God? Art thou come hither to torment us before the time?

29. Be quiet, let us alone, we deſire not to have any thing to doe with thee, thou ſon of God and Saviour of mankind, Our time is not yet come of being remanded to our priſons, doe not thou haſten and precipitate it.

30. And there was a good way off from them an herd of many [m] ſwine feeding, m.

31. And thereupon the Devils knowing that Chriſt would caſt them out, and by that miracle ſo farre ſhew forth his power, that it would probably bring all the country to beleive on him, deſired to prevent this, and thereupon fell on this project, which might incenſe the countrymen againſt him (as it proved in the event, v. 34.) and in order to it beſought Chriſt,

31. So the Devils beſought him,] ſaying, If thou caſt us out, ſuffer us to goe away into the herd of ſwine.

32. See Mar. 5. 13. Lu. 8. 32.

32. And he ſaid unto them, Go, and when they were come out, they went into the herd of ſwine, and behold the whole herd of ſwine ran violently down a ſteep place into the ſea, and periſhed in the waters.

33. Gave them notice of the loſſe of their ſwine, and telling the occaſion of it, let them know how as their ſwine were loſt on one ſide, ſo two men poſſeſt with Devils were recover'd, and that Chriſt had done this ſince his coming thither.

33. And they that kept them, fled, and went their waies into the city, and [told every thing, and what was befaln to the poſſeſſed of the Devils.]

34. Hereupon the whole city as being very much concern'd in that which had happened, came out to meet, and ſee Jeſus which did ſuch miracles, and in ſtead of being wrought on, by his cure on the men, to deſire his continuance among them, the conſideration of the loſſe of their ſwine made them deſire, and beſeech him

34. And behold, the whole city came out to meet Jeſus: and when they ſaw him, they beſought him] that he would depart out of their coaſts.

a. Προσκυνῶν, προσπίπτει, ſaith Heſychius, and Phavorinus, it ſignifies to fall down, as ſuppliants doe to any.

b. Ὅτε μηδὲν ἐώων. What was the reaſon why Chriſt ſo oft commanded the concealing of his miracles, and of his being the Meſsias, will beſt be conjectured, by conſidering the ſeverall places, where this is mentioned. Firſt here to the Leper cured by him, See thou tell no body. v. 4. Then Mat. 9. to the blind reſtored to ſight, he charged them, ſaying, See ye tell no man. v. 30. And as yet there is no reaſon diſcernible in the Contexts, unleſs perhaps in this latter, when they obeying not his command, but his fame ſpreading, the Damoniacks coming to him, he cures them, which the Phariſees hearing of, ſay, He caſts out Devils through the Prince of Devills. v. 34. For 'tis poſſible that Chriſt foreſeeing the Phariſees perverſneſs, and blaſphemy, and that they would proceed to the crucifying of him, in ſtead of being convinced by his Miracles, did, in mercy to them, and to leave them the excuſe of ignorance, Lu. 23. 34. Act. 3. 17. forbid the divulging them, leſt they ſhould come to the eares of thoſe, that would make ſo ill uſe of them. Next: c. 12. 16. He charged them that they ſhould not make him known. Whom did he charge? Mar. 3. 12. the words are ſet immediately upon the mention of the Devills falling down to him, and ſaying, Thou art the Son of God. But that being but a paſſage which comes in incidentally upon the mention of his caſting out Devills, among his other cures, which he wrought on many, v. 10, 11. tis not neceſſary that the [αὐτοῖς them] muſt belong to the Devills immediately precedent, but may belong to the [πολλοὶ] many, or multitude, that were cured by him; or if to the unclean ſpirits, then ſtill thoſe muſt ſignifie the men that were poſſeſt with them, or elſe how could they fall down before him? v. 11. and ſo 'tis poſitively ſaid v. 12. that he charged them, i.e. either the ὄχλοι πολλοὶ many multitudes, or ἅπαντες πάντες, all they that were cured by him. In this one place two circumſtances there are, which ſeem to give ſome light to the matter in hand, concerning the reaſon of his charge to be concealed. For firſt v. 14. upon his former miracle on the withered hand, wrought on the Sabbath day, The Phariſees went out and conſulted againſt him, how they might kill, or bring a capital charge againſt him, and when Jeſus knew this he withdrew himſelf, v. 15. this not for fear of death, οὐ διὰ φόβον θανάτου, ſaith Origen againſt Celſus, but becauſe (his coming into the world being for the benefit of men) he would not die, ἕως ὅτου ὁ ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν θάνατος καιρὸς ἦν, till the convenient ſeaſon were come of dying, more for man's advantage, then he had hitherto lived, (To the ſame purpoſe is Chriſt's telling his mother Joh. 2. 4. My hour is not yet come, ſee Joh. 2. 2.) It followes therefore v. 15. that as great multitudes followed him, ſo he healed them all, i. e. he did not ſo withdraw himſelf, as to omit doing any good, but for the preſent, ſo as to avoid oppoſition and diſputing (which he had met with, v. 2. and 10.) yea and death it ſelf, of which there was now danger, unleſſe he would either thus before-hand, or at the inſtant of danger, by miracle withdraw, or unleſſe he would make uſe of his omnipotence to preſerve himſelf, which he would not doe, being come not to reſiſt, but to lay down his life, which yet he deferred to doe, his time being not yet come, And upon this it follows diſtinctly, v. 16. and he charged them that they ſhould not make him known, which notes that to be the reaſon of his prohibition in this place, becauſe he would decline, and fairly avoid (perhaps the diſpute with perverſe, and treacherous Phariſees, aſſuredly) the Death, which they were providing for him: and ſo ſaith Origen in that place, οὐκ ἀγνοῶν δεῖ τὸ μετ' ὀλιγωρίας ἀκατασκέπτως καὶ κινδύνους, μὴ ὀμόσαι ἀνητὸν χωρεῖν, 'Tis no degenerous thing in Chriſt to avoid dangers by providence, and not to go among them. The ſecond circumſtance in this place, which may help to give light to it, is the prophecy which is cited juſt on the back of theſe words, v. 16. That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by Eſaias the prophet, c. 42. 1. The ſumme of the words of Iſaiah is, that the Meſſias ſhould, when he came, in the diſcharging of his office behave himſelf very quietly and ſtilly, never ſet himſelf out magnificently (as other princes doe) againſt all oppoſers, never uſe any ſecular force to defend himſelf, but manage it ſo, as was moſt agreeable to that Goſpel, which he came to proclaim, meekly and mercifully dealing with ſinners and weaklings, and never giving over, till he had ſo rooted the Goſpel on earth, that it ſhould never never be gotten out again, but extend to the Gentiles, and be beleived on, and embraced by them. Which prophecy being here fulfilled, not all of it in this one interdict of his, but in the whole paſſage laſt rehearſed, doth yet ſo farre reflect on this particular, that that part of the prophecy (of his preaching, and making known the will of God to as many as were likely to receive benefit from it, his not reſiſting, not contending with others, his meekneſſe and not conteſting with the Phariſees) may be fulfilled in it, and ſo that may paſſe for one part of the reaſon of his prohibition; which being added to the former circumſtance, makes up this entire reaſon of his doing it, viz: Chriſt would not have his miracles divulg'd, becauſe, when they were ſo, the Phariſees ſtill came and diſturb'd him, oppoſed him (and he had not a mind to conteſt with them, and it was a great mercy to them that he would not, being likely to doe no good upon them) and would probably have proceeded to cut him off (if he did not thus withdraw, or defend himſelf) before he had done what he was ſent for, i.e. preach't the Goſpel to all the Jewes, and made it known (as it appears he did at this time, by that withdrawing, *Mar.*3.8.) to the Gentiles alſo. But beſides theſe another paſſage there is, which muſt be taken in, being of ſpeciall conſideration to this purpoſe, and that is Lu. 9. 21. parallel to Mat. 16.20. and *Mar.*8. 30. The matter in hand in two of thoſe places, is, Chriſt's asking his Diſciples what the opinion of the world was concerning him; and at laſt, what was their own opinion, whereupon Peter anſwers, that he was the Chriſt of God, v.20. On which it immediately followes, that he ſtraitly charged them, and commanded them to tell no man that thing, v.21. Why he gave now ſo ſevere an interdict of this promulgation (when his miracles, and all that he did, and taught, had hitherto tended to the evidencing of this) the reaſon was certainly this, leſt the Diſciples witneſſing, or proclaiming it might be taken for a thing compacted between them; And thoſe that were not wrought upon and convinced by his miracles, would be more likely to be alien'd by this. And beſides Chriſt knew that he was to be rejected, and to ſuffer death (and ſo it followes in all the three Goſpels) and conſequently not to be beleived on by the chief of the Jewes, And ſo the proclaiming of his divinity, till they had that great addition of his reſurrection, to adde to their own teſtimony, was not yet ſo ſeaſonable. This was the occaſion of the like ſpeech Mar. 9. 30. where paſſing through Galilee (where formerly he had freely preacht, and done miracles) he now was not pleaſed, that any man ſhould know it, For, as it followes v. 31. he ſaid to his diſciples, The ſon of man is deliver'd into the hands of men, &c. And this very thing Chriſt in effect tells the Phariſees themſelves, for when they deſire a ſign from him, that he was the Meſſias, he tells them, that they ſhall have no other ſigne but that of the prophet Jonah, Matth. 12.39. which referring clearly to that of his riſing from the grave the third day, ſignifies that he would uſe no more means now to convince them, till by his reſurrection from the dead, his divine power, and the completion of the types and prophecies in him, ſhould be moſt convincingly made known to them, and this I conceive to be the reaſon of his then prohibiting them to tell that he was the Meſſias, becauſe having been thus long rejected by the Rulers, &c. (and the prophecies of his dying, containing a prediction that they ſhould ſtill reject, and at length put him to death) it was in all reſpects moſt fit, that the moſt convincing evidences of his being the Meſſias (of which the Apoſtles had ſtore, particularly, and above others, Peter, and James, and John had that of the voice from heaven, at the tranſfiguration, and would in all reaſon adde them to evidence that truth, and not content themſelves with the bare affirmations that he was ſo) ſhould be reſerved and not yet publiſht; till after his death and reſurrection, that ſo his riſing from the dead being added to his former miracles, and to his infinite meekneſſe and charity, demonſtrated by his death, might be able to convince the moſt pertinacious, obdurate heart, which certainly would not now (having ſo oft reſiſted the like) be perſwaded by his miracles or preaching, much leſſe by the teſtimony of his own Diſciples, but might afterwards poſſibly be wrought upon, (As indeed ſome of them were, A great multitude of the Prieſts, Acts 6. 7.) by the evidence of his reſurrection, and they that were not, are left utterly unexcuſable. And thus in the parable, *Lu.*19. The King takes poſſeſſion of his kingdome, i.e. Chriſt goes to heaven, before he proceeds to execution againſt his enemies that would not have him reigne over them; v. 15. 27. According to this it is, that at the tranſfiguration c. 17. when thoſe three Apoſtles had received that clear teſtimony by a voice from heaven, This is my beloved ſon, &c. he commands them to tell it no man (not abſolutely, but with this particular reſtraint, which implies the cauſe of it) till the ſon of man be riſen from the dead, telling them withall, as here, that it was prophecied of him, that he muſt ſuffer, &c. ſo Mar. 9. 12. In which paſſage, the three Diſciples being taken up alone into the mount with him, and commanded to tell it no man, the phraſe [No man] will moſt probably be interpreted in the greateſt latitude, [no not to the reſt of the Diſciples] and the reaſon of that ſtrict prohibition will be this, that the deſigned uſe of this viſion being the working of faith in the obdurate, and the ſeaſon of making that uſe of it being not yet come, till after the reſurrection, it was uſeleſſe to be revealed to the whole number of the twelve, who believed already, and ſo needed it not for themſelves, and were not to be permitted to preach it to others, if they had known it.

The leper continued without the camp or city, 6.
On the day of his cleanſing, he was led to the outſide of the camp, and in the latter ages, to the gate of Jeruſalem, and the Prieſt went out to meet him, and performing ſome rites for him, afterwards received him into the city or camp, and by degrees into the ſanctuary. This was the form or manner of ſhewing himſelf to the Prieſt, (who, as the περσῶται among the Ægyptians, was exerciſed in all kind of knowledge, particularly in that of being able to judge of diſeaſes in the body) and this ſhewing was neceſſary to every one, that had been leprous, though never ſo perfectly cured, *Lev.*14.2. and therefore Chriſt in obedience to the Law, here requires it of him. ἀκρίβειαν τῆς ἰατρικῆς.

d. εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς

The phraſe [εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς, for a teſtimony to them] may poſſibly, connect with [λέγει ὁ Ἰησοῦς Jeſus ſaith] in the beginning of the verſe, and [λέγει αὐτῷ, he ſaith unto him] Mar. 1. 44. not with [προσέταξε Μωσῆς, Moſes commanded] next before it. Or which is more probable, it may ſtand alone by it ſelf after all; and that not only the comma after Μωσῆς, but alſo the ſenſe makes probable, viz: that this whole action of Chriſt in curing the Leper, and ſending him to the prieſt, &c. was for a teſtimony unto them, i. e. to the multitudes there, v. 1. (and ſuppoſed Mar. 1. 39. though not expreſt) that he was the ſon of God. For the Jews themſelves confeſſe that Leproſy is the finger of God, a diſeaſe peculiarly of his ſending and removing, and that tis not lawfull for the Phyſician (or any but the Prieſt by God appointed, and directed in his courſe) ſo much as to attempt the cure of it. Thus ſaith R. Menachem in Lev. 13. And therefore in the anſwer to John Baptiſts queſtion, whether Chriſt were the Meſſias, or no, one part of it is, that the lepers are cleanſed, that being as peculiar an act of Gods, as that the dead are rayſed, in the following words, Mat. 11. 5. So 2 Kin. 5. 7. the King of Iſrael being ſent to by the King of Syria to recover Naaman of his leproſy, He rent his clothes, and ſayd, Am I a God to kill and make alive, that this man ſends to me, to recover one of his leproſy? But if the Comma after Μωσῆς] be conceived not to belong to that place, either in Matthew, or Mark, then no queſtion it muſt referr to Moſes's order to the Leper of ſhewing himſelf to the prieſt, and offering a gift, for that was by the Law deſigned as a cleare μαρτύριον or teſtimony, that the cure of leproſy was a peculiar work of Gods; Tis true indeed there is another ſenſe, of which the words are thought capable, that his ſhewing himſelf to the Prieſt, and being by him examined and pronounced cleane, might be a ſufficient teſtimony to the man, that the cure was perfectly wrought, and no impoſture in it, or again a teſtimony to the Prieſt, either of Chriſts being the Meſſias, who had wrought that cure, or of his not oppoſing the law, by ſending his patient to ſubmit to thoſe Ordinances, which the Law in that caſe provided, But the former interpretation ſeems rather to be the importance of the place, becauſe of the [αὐτοῖς] in the plural, the multitude, to whom the teſtimony was deſign'd, and not in the ſingular to him, either the Prieſt, or leper. And for the laſt, that of the Prieſt, it ſeems alſo to be refiſted by the former part of the verſe, where the command to tell no man, will not be obeyed, if he ſo tell the Prieſt, that it be by him taken notice of that the cure was wrought by Chriſt, which it muſt be, if it were a teſtimony to him and the reſt, and would probably have brought that danger, that Chriſt ſeem'd willing to avoyd. See note b.

e. βασανίζεσθαι

βασανίζεσθαι] doth not always ſignify torment, or ſharpe paine, for here the palſy is not ſuch, but any great diſaffection or diſeaſe of body, or commonly any puniſhment, As v. 29. and ſo c. 18. 34. βασανισταὶ lictors, gaolers, according to that of the old Gloſſary, βασανίζω, not only crucio, torqueo, to torment, but coerceo too, agreeable to that of impriſoning.

f. πίστις

There are five acceptions of the word πίστις Faith in the New Teſtament, Firſt, the Faith, or beleiving that Chriſt was able to cure diſeaſes, &c. So here, and c. 9. 22. Act. 14. 9. and under this head the faith of the Diſciples, by which they beleived Chriſt ſo far, as that by his delegated power, they were able to do the like miracles, Mat. 17. 20. & 21, 22. Mar. 11. 24. 1 Cor. 13. 2. and perhaps c. 12. 9. where faith as a χάρισμα, or gift of the Spirit, is joyned with the gift of healing.

Secondly, the beleif of all that is revealed by God, and that is in effect the true religion, either before Chriſts birth, (and then tis the faith of God) Heb. 11. 3. 30, 31. and referred to v. 6. Or after, and then 'tis the faith of Chriſt, Rev. 14. 12. Or beleif of the truth, i. e. that truth now revealed by Chriſt, 2 Theſſ. 2. 13. and when this is not ſo complete as it ſhould be, for want of light, then tis weak faith, or weakneſſe in faith, Ro. 14. 1. To this many places belong, 1 Theſſ. 3. 2. 5. 2 Theſſ. 1. 3. Ja. 2. 1. Jude 3. Rom. 1. 5. Acts 6. 7. and 14. 22. So Lu. 18. 8. where by reaſon of the perſecution of that faith, Chriſt foretels, that there ſhall be (at his coming to act vengeance on his enemies) very little Faith upon the earth, i. e. in the land of Judæa, and Samaria. So Lu. 22. 32. And as this Chriſtian faith contains in it doctrines in oppoſition to the Moſaical law, ſo tis uſed Ro. 3. 27, 28. c. 4. 15. As it comprehends Chriſts precepts, ſo tis Ro. 16. 26. and as promiſes, ſo tis uſed Gal. 3. 14. 1 Cor. 15. 14. Heb. 11. 1. And this laſt branch of it comprehendeth Hope alſo, whoſe object are thoſe Promiſes, and ſuppoſes, and includes a ſincere care of performing the condition, now required under the Goſpel, without which as the promiſes belong not to any, ſo the Faith is but an imperfect, and falſe Faith, which will never availe any.

Thirdly, the dictate of Conſcience, rightly perſwaded, or aſſured of the lawfulneſſe of what a man doth, and that either to one particular action, Ro. 14. 22, 23. or univerſally to the generall current of the life, Heb. 10. 22.

Fourthly, in a more limited ſenſe tis a Confidence in prayer, that what we ask, as we ought to do, we ſhall receive, (Ja. 5. 15.) and as an aſſociate of that, depending on Gods proviſion for things of this life, the want of which is called ὀλιγοπιστία, littleneſſe of Faith, Mat. 6. 30. this being one promiſe of the Goſpel, that they who ask, ſhall receive, and that all theſe things (the neceſſaries of life) ſhall be added to them, that firſt ſeek the righteouſneſſe of Gods kingdome, or of the Goſpel.

Fiftly, Fidelity, and that either in God, making good his promiſe to us, Ro. 3. 3. 1 Cor. 1. 9. & 10. 13. 1 Theſſ. 5. 24. Or in man toward other men, Mat. 23. 23. Gal. 5. 22. ſervants toward maſters, Tit. 2. 10. ſo πιστὸς the faithfull ſteward, Mat. 25. 21. Lu. 14. 17. 1 Cor. 4. 7. or of men toward God, 2 Tim. 4. 8. where keeping the faith, after fighting, and finiſhing the courſe, muſt needs be conſtancy, and fidelity, (ſee note on Ja. 1. 2.) from whence the word πιστὸς moſt commonly draws its ſignification, being frequently taken not for beleiving but faithfull, ſee Heb. 2. 17. & 3. 2. 1 Tim. 1. 12. Rev. 2. 10. and ſo ἄπιστος is ordinarily unfaithfull, Lu. 12. 46. all one with hypocrites, Mat. 24. 51. In this acception it is that it notes ſincerity of reſolution of Chriſtian life, which God, that ſees, accepts, though, for want of occaſion, or tryall, as yet it be not expreſt in action, and ſo approved to men.

men, So 1 *Pet.*1.7. and *Phil.*1.29. and thus when Abraham's faith was tried, firſt by a hard command of going out of his country, then by an incredible promiſe of a Child from barren old Sarah, then again by a hard command of ſacrificing his Son, theſe three being but trialls of his faith, upon which it was approved to be ſincere (and ſo he juſtify'd) 'tis now apparent, that before theſe tryalls, he had faith, which then, before it was tryed, was nothing but this reſolution of obedience &c. or, a ſincere giving himſelf up to God in praparatione animi, in purpoſe of mind, or reſolution; and if it had fail'd in any of thoſe tryalls, would then have loſt its acceptance with God, but failing not, was approved. This, I conceive, is the faith, which in S. James muſt, when opportunity ſerves, be ſhewed or demonſtrated by works, James 3.18. and if in that caſe it doe not, is a dead faith, v.20. but ſuppoſing it ſincere, though yet not tried, then it is that which I now ſpeak of, and is then oppoſed to works, not as thoſe note 1. the ceremonies of the Moſaicall Law, or 2ly. perfect, unſinning obedience, but as they ſignifie actuall performance. To this there is a place of a venerable ancient Writer, Cyrill of Jeruſalem, which is very appliable, who having ſaid of the Theif on the Croſſe, ὀλίγα δικαιοπραγῆσαι ὁ λῃστὴς, ἀλλὰ περιλαμβάνει ὁ θάνατος, he was willing to doe well, but death prevented him, anſwers him preſently in the perſon of Chriſt, ἀ τὸ ἔργον περιαίρω μόνον, ἀλλὰ ἣ πίστιν ἀποδέχομαι, The work is not the only thing which I expect (or, which I ſo require, that nothing elſe will ſerve the turn) but I have accepted thy faith. By which it appears, that faith in his acception, is that faithfull reſolution then begun, though, through want of life, no works followed it. Thus when faith denotes profeſſion of faith (or of ſome duty to be performed by a Chriſtian, as 1 Tim. 5.11.) this is either ſincere, and then accepted, as in that Theif (and is then oppoſed to works, only as a leſſe to a greater, or imperfectius magis perfecto, the more imperfect, to the more perfect, James 2.22.) or unſincere and hypocriticall, and is then oppoſed to works, as falſum vero, falſe to true, and ſo * faith and life are ordinarily oppoſed in the Fathers.

* πίστις ἀργὴ βίου

Beſides theſe five, the word is alſo ſometimes uſed in a looſer ſenſe, for beleiving the doctrine of God and Chriſt, howſoever acquir'd; whether from ſenſible experience, *Jam:*2.19. or from ocular demonſtration, *Joh:*20.25. or from relation, as when 'tis ſaid to come by hearing.

g. ἀνάκλισις

The cuſtome of ἀνάκλισις, accubitus, lying along at meat, ſo uſuall among the Gracians and the Romans, though it be not mention'd in the Old Teſtament (but, on the other ſide, Tables were in uſe, at which they ſate, ἐκάθητο, *Eccluſ.*31.13. and ſo ſaith * Philo diſtinctly of Joſeph's brethren, ἐκάθητο they ſate, μήπω τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἐν τῷ συμποσίοις ζωπυρεῖσθαι κλισίαις χρωμένων, the cuſtome of lying along at meat, being not then come in among men) yet under the time of the New Teſtament (and before) it was come in among the Jewes alſo; Many places there are in the New Teſtament, where this uſe appears, and that both within doores, on beds, and abroad (in the fields, and in Gardens) on the ground, ἐπὶ χόρτῳ χλωρῷ Mar: 6.39. upon the green graſſe, which is v. 40. deſcribed by ἀνάκλισις πρασιαὶ πρασιαί, they lay along rank by rank in ſeverall areolæ or beds. For ſo are πρασιαὶ φυλῶν χάριτες πεφάσθαι (ſaith the Scholiaſt on * Homer, upon ἴρδεσθε κοσμῷ) πρασιαὶ) four-ſquare diviſions, which, from thence, we vulgarly call Beds in gardens, becauſe they were ſo uſed, as the κλιναὶ beds, in the houſes (ſee note on Mar: 6.40.) The manner of this lying at meat is deſcribed by many, and ſhall no farther be recited here, then as will be uſeful to explain ſome paſſages in the Evangeliſts. The chief perſon lay at the head of the bed, (which the Evangeliſts call πρωτοκλισία lying firſt, the chief or firſt place of dignity) with his feet behind the back of the next to him, (by which advantage it was, that the woman came behind, and waſh't and kiſs't Chriſt's feet) ſo that the hinder part of the head of the ſecond lay in the boſome, or touched the breaſt of the firſt. Thence we read of John, *Joh.*13.23. ὃν ἀνακείμενον ἐν τῷ κόλπῳ Ἰησοῦ, ἦν ἀνακείμενος οὖν κόλπῳ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, v.25. he lay in the boſome, and leaned on the breaſt of Jeſus, (viz: at ſupper time, Joh: 21.20. compared with v.1, and 4, and 12.) i.e. lay next to him. An argument both of John's dignity (which I ſuppoſe the reaſon, that he mentions not his name, when he ſpeaks of it himſelf, v.23.) as when Lazarus is ſaid to be in Abraham's boſome, i.e. at that ſupper of the Lamb next (in dignity and height of glory) to the Father of the faithfull, *Lu:*16. and 2ly of Chriſt's ſpeciall love to him, as the cuſtome was for the moſt tenderly beloved, the wife, &c. in ſinu virorum diſcumbere, to lie at meat in the boſome of the husband, ſaith * Cicero, and Zonaras of Heliogabalus, ἐν κλίσεσι * in Verr: 1. αὐτῷ ὡς ἀφωμένη ἐκάθητο, ſhe ſate lying in his boſome as his beloved, and in * Juvenal, * Sat: 11.

and in Catullus, intus accubans, and therefore 'tis there added ὃν ἠγάπα ὁ Ἰησοῦς, whom Jeſus loved. And ſo *Joh:*1.18. when the only, i.e. beloved Son of God is deſcribed, 'tis with this mark upon him, ὁ ὢν εἰς τὸν κόλπον τοῦ πατρὸς, He that is in the boſome of the father, i.e. in reference to this cuſtome, he that is next unto him, and ſo knows moſt of his mind, as is intimated Joh: 13.24. By all this 'tis clear what is meant by ἀνακλιθῆναι μετ' Ἀβραὰμ &c. in this place, (which Euthymius expreſſes by ἀνακλιθῆναι ἐν τοῖς κόλποις τοῦ Ἀβραὰμ &c. lying in the boſome of Abraham &c.) viz: The Gentiles coming in to partake of that ſpirituall feaſt of the Patriarchs (who were the firſt to whom this Meſſias was promiſed, and to whoſe poſterity he was accordingly firſt raiſed up, Acts 3.26.) when the ſons of this kingdome, i.e. the Jewes themſelves, to whom theſe priviledges were deſigned and promiſed, are caſt out into an eſtate of obdnration and deſtruction, as it there followes.

That κλαυθμὸς is deduced from κλαίω clamo, to cry, there is no doubt, and that both of them ſignifie (more then weeping or ſhedding of Teares) crying out, and ejulation, ſee Numb: 11.10. (where 'twas that which was heard by Moſes) Job 30.31. the voice of them that wayle, or crie out in lamentations, Ezr: 3.13. The noiſe of the weeping, or wailing of the people, and ſo Iſa: 65.19. Jer. 31.16. As for βρυγμὸς which followes, though by that which Heſychius ſaith of βρύχω (ὀδῶσι πίζοντα ζῶον ἀπολλύειν, ὡς ἐν βίῳ συμβαίνει) it might be thought to signify chattering of teeth, proper to a state of cold, and agreeable to the second notion of Hell, by some mention'd from Iob 24. 19. Gehenna nivis, the hell of snow, as the other is Gehenna ignis, the hell of fire, yet the notion of βρύχω Act. 7. 54. for anger, or rage, which is proper to that of gnashing the teeth, and the mention of fire joynd with it, Mat. 13. 4. & 50. which cannot agree with chattering, do sufficiently justify the ordinary rendring, gnashing, or, grinding of teeth, as in pain or rage is usuall.

i. Ἀδύνατ ἐλαβι. This place of Scripture cited here by the Evangelist out of Is. 53. 4. is principally fulfilled in the sufferings of Christ on the Crosse, where he bare our sins in his own body, i. e. suffered the punishment of them; and tis so applyed 1 Pet. 2. 24. Yet here tis applied also to Christs healing the sick, and with a kind of Sympathy bearing their corporall Infirmities, and removing them from the patient (and both these kinds of bearing our diseases were requisite in our perfect high Priest, Heb. 5. 1. & 4. 15.) by which tis apparent that the same prophetick scripture may truly and fitly belong to two or more events, and beside the first, literall, have a double remarkable πλήρωσις, or eminent completion.

k. Ἀντανάκλασις. There is a figure in Rhetorick, called ἀνάκλασις, whereby it hath been usuall in all sorts of Authors to affect to use the same word twice in the same place, though it be oft-times in a different sense. In the holy writers there are frequent examples of this. Psal 18. 26. With the froward thou wilt shew thy self froward, where frowardnesse, or peevishnesse, being a fault, and piece of stubborn, ill nature, cannot properly be affirmed of God, to whom yet those words belong (as appears by the next words, And the afflicted people thou wilt save v. 27.) The only meaning is, that those that deale frowardly or stubbornly with God, shall be punished by him, and that there expresst (by this figure now mentioned) [thou shalt shew thy self froward] only by reason of the word [froward] præceding. So in the Prophet, If ye walk contrary to me, I will also walk contrary to you, where [walking contrary] in the first place is their obstinacy, or frowardnesse against God, in the second, Gods punishing, sending judgements on them, thus expresst by this figure. So Jer. 33. 17. upon the mention of the word [liberty] follows [Liberty to the sword &c. i. e. destroying, quite contrary to the liberty before spoken of. So Mat. 5. 19. Whosoever shall break one of these least commandements (the iota or title mentioned before) &c. he shall be least in the kingdome of God, i. e. indeed, shall not be admitted at all, which by this figure is thus expres'd, in relation to what went before, He shall be the least, as, he breaks the least; without which, that would not have been the style in all likelyhood. Thus Isai. 65. 11. Yee are they that furnish the drink-offering to that number, Therefore will I number you to the sword, &c. Thus Mat. 12. 50. upon mention of his mother and brethren seeking him, which was literally true of Mary &c. Christs reply is, in another, not a literall sense, Whosoever doth the will of my father, the same is my brother, and sister and mother. So 1 Cor. 8. 2. speaking of the knowing of God, in the vulgar ordinary sense of knowing, he adds v. 3. but if any man love God, he is known of God, in another notion of knowledge for approbation, and in the same kind again, Gal. 4. 9. Now after ye have known God, or rather are known of God, and Rom. 14. 13. Let us no longer judge one another, i. e. censure, separate from communion, but rather judge this, quite in another sense, as judging signifies thinking fit, and resolving, and Rev. 22. 18, 19. ἐάν τις ἐπιθῇ, If any man shall adde to these things, ἐπιθήσει ὁ θεὸς, God shall adde to him the plagues &c. and so ἐάν τις ἀφαιρῇ, If any man shall take away, God shall take away his part out of the book of life. Agreeable to these is this phrase here, on mention of the dead father præceding, Let the dead bury their dead, but follow thou me, i. e. (not, let the dead, but) let others do that office, interre the dead, but thou, that art a consecrated person, must do that, to which thou art consecrated, which in all probability, if it were not a proverbiall speech known among them, was yet the imitation of some other proverb as [Like to like, the living to the living, the dead to the dead &c.] which are not always to be required to the literall sound of the words, wherein they are expresst.

'Twas usuall for the Devils to abide in the tombs to confirme in men that vain perswasion of the souls of men (after Death) being turn'd into Devils, (see Hieron: Magius miscellan: l. 4. c. 12.) and for divers other ends, for which the solitude of such places was advantagious to him, none using to come thither, but to bury their dead. l. Δαιμονιζόμενος, ἐκ τῶν μνημείων.

That there were swine among the Gadarens, contrary to the Jewish customes, will not bee strange, when tis remembred that Gadara is by Iosephus numbred among the ἑλληνίδες πόλεις, Grecian Cities, which Pompey took away from the Jews (see Is: Casaub: ad Baron: p. 219.) and that the greatest part of the inhabitants were Syrians, not Iews, by the affirmation of the same Iosephus, l. 2. de Bello Iudai: c. 33. See Constant: l' Emper: de legibus, p. 181. m. Γαδάρα.

4. And Jeſus by his divine power, as ſearcher of hearts, diſcerning whither their thoughts or words whiſpered among themſelves, and not ſpoken audibly, ſaid unto them, Why doe you paſſe ſuch malitious cauſeleſſe cenſures?

5. For whether is eaſier to ſay, Thy ſins be forgiven thee, or to ſay, [Ariſe and walk?]

5. Be cured of thy palſie, and walk about.

6. But that ye may know [that the ſon of man hath power on earth to forgive ſins,] (Then ſaith he to the ſick of the palſie) Ariſe, take up thy bed, and go unto thy houſe.

6. That Chriſt in this ſtate of exinanition, hath authority to forgive ſins here, to men that lie under puniſhment of them, and conſequently to deliver from their bond thoſe that were deliver'd up to Satan, and ſo tormented by him. (This power given to Chriſt on earth in the commiſſion received from his Father, v.8. to be from this time continued on the earth, and accordingly committed by Chriſt, at his departure, to the Apoſtles, Joh: 2[illegible]. (and in them to their ſucceſſors) that what they forgive on earth, ſhould be forgiven in heaven, and the bonds looſed.)

7. And he aroſe, and departed to his houſe.

8. But when the multitudes ſaw it, they [marvelled, and glorified God, which had given ſuch power unto men.]

8. were amazed to ſee it, and acknowledged it an incomprehenſible mercy of God, to ſend a Prophet to them with ſuch a commiſſion, power of pardoning ſin, and that teſtified by doing an abſolute miracle, v.6.

16. No man putteth a piece of * new cloth unto an old garment; for that which is put in to fill it up, [taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worſe.]

*undreſs'd, unfull'd, unworn, ἀγνάφου

16. diminiſhes the beauty or handſomneſſe of it, and there is made by that meanes a worſe breach (either becauſe the new cloth teareth from the old, or becauſe in a pieced garment, if the piece doe not look like the cloth, the rent is more diſcernible, and the parts more divided and different one from the other, then if it had not been pieced at all (both theſe are ſet down Lu. 5.36.) and this proves well that point in hand, both that joy and mourning doe not well together, and that young novice diſciples, that were not yet renewed by the coming of the Spirit upon them, and ſo were not ſtrong enough for ſuch, muſt not preſently be overwhelmed with ſevere precepts, ſuch as faſting &c. leſt they fall off, and be diſcouraged.

17. Neither doe men put new wine into old f bottles, elſe the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles periſh: [but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preſerved.]

19. And Jeſus aroſe and followed him, and ſo did his diſciples.

20. (And] behold, a woman which was diſeaſed with an iſſue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment.

20. And as Jeſus was a going to the Rulers houſe to cure his daughter, 27. And when Jeſus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and ſaying, [Thou ſon of David,] have mercy on us.

28. And when he was come into the houſe, the blind men came to him. And Jeſus ſaith unto them, Beleive ye that I am able to do this? They ſaid unto him, Yea, Lord.

29. Then touched he their eyes, ſaying, According unto your faith, be it unto you.

(This very fitly at this point of time, immediately before Chriſt proceeds to ordination of the twelve, c. 10. 1.)

37. Then ſaith he unto his diſciples, [The harveſt truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few.

38. Pray ye therefore the lord of the harveſt, that he will ſend forth labourers into his harveſt.]

a. κν. The particle ἐν (and ἐνδὸς) is oft uſed in the ſacred writings, not for within, but amongſt, ſo c. 16. 7. where their διαλογισμος, or diſpute was not mental, but verbal, for tis added [λέγοντες ſaying] and many the like. One eminent place there is Ex. 17. 7. εἰ Θεὸς ἐν ἡμῖν; is the Lord among us? and from thence 2 Cor. 13. 5. Do you not diſcern your ſelves, that Ieſus Chriſt ἐν ὑμῖν ἐστί; is amongſt you? Do not the many miracles of Chriſt done before you give aſſurance, that Chriſt is among you? But yet here it may be in the other ſenſe, So as εἶπεν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, ſaying within themſelves, be all one with ἐνθυμήσεις their thoughts and thinking in their hearts, v. 4. ſo v. 21. ἔλεγε ἐν ἑαυτῇ is, without doubt, ſpeaking within her ſelfe.

b Τελώνιον

Τελώνιον ſignifies a Publicanes ſtall, and the Syriacke read בית מכסא the houſe of Publicanes, literally a tole-booth, the Engliſh tole coming from the greek τέλος, and booth being the Hebrew בית very little varyed.

c. Τελῶναι

Τελῶναι Publicanes were infamous perſons among the Jews, not only becauſe they dealt, and (by neceſſity of their trade) converſed with the Gentiles (whence perhaps the ἁμαρτωλοὶ ſinners, here joyn'd with them, note heathens, call'd ſinners of the Gentiles, Gal. 2. 15. and as publicans and ſinners here, ſo we read publicans and heathens, c. 18. 17.)

c.18 17.) but alſo in reſpect of their calling, that of hiring the tributes at a price, and rayſing gain to themſelves by exaction, πλούτου ἐργασία ἄχρημος, the Publicans trade is filthy and ſordid, ſaith * Artemidorus, joyning with them κλέπλας, λῃςὰς. ζυγοκρυςὰς, ψηφολογιςὰς, theeves, cheats, &c. and ſo that of the Poet, Παῦλος πλώνας πᾶσιν ἐῶν ἅρπαγας, all Publicans are theives, all rapacious, or robbers, and the Hebrews have a proverb, Have not a wife out of a family in which there is a publican, becauſe they are all מוכסין i. e. publicans, theives, wicked ſinners. According to this is Zacheus's confeſſion of his former life, Lu. 19. 8.

* Oneirocr. l. 4. c. 44. & c. 59.

d. Ἴδιωμα λόγου

Among the Idioms or peculiar formes of writing obſervable in the ſacred writers, This may be one, that when one thing only appeares by the context to be deſigned, and meant, another thing is yet delivered, as preparative to that, that by it, either by way of Compariſon or oppoſition, &c. the one principal thing deſigned may be more ſet out. Thus Exod. 20. 9, 10. in the fourth commandement, in which the Sabbatick reſt is the only thing deſigned, that is introduced with a [ſixe days ſhalt thou labour, and do all that thou haſt to do] which being not the matter of that commandement, is there ſet, only to prepare for the enſuing reſt, [but the ſeventh day is the Sabbath &c.] and muſt not be extended any farther, and is beſt interpreted by way of compariſon, thus, As thou haſt ſix days allowd thee to labour &c. So the ſeventh muſt be looked on as a reſt to that God, which hath been ſo liberal to thee. So here the diſciples of John deſigning to ask one queſtion, why Chriſt, and his diſciples faſt not, what is the reaſon of that, 'tis not to be thought, that they would ask concerning their own faſting, being well enough ſatisfied of the reaſon of that, viz. the practiſe of all pious Jews for a long time, and yet is this other queſtion firſt asked, and ſet as preparatory to the other [why doe we and the Phariſees faſt oft, and thy diſciples faſt not?] which cannot therefore be better interpreted then thus by way of compariſon, Why doe not thy diſciples faſt, as well as we? So Mar. 12. 10. If a woman ſhall put away her husband, and marry another, ſhe commits adultery, Where it is not to be thought in the power of a wife to put away her husband, but only of the husband to put away the wife, as being ſuperior, and having authority over her, but becauſe it is poſſible for a woman, the wife of one, to yeild her ſelf to be married to another, and in what caſe ſoever ſhe doth ſo, ſhe committeth adultery, that being the thing there in hand, deſigned to be ſpoken of by Chriſt, the former of putting away the husband] is mentioned without any weight ſet on it, to prepare for the latter important part, and is onely ſet to continue the oppoſition with that which had preceded, the husband's putting away his wife, v. 11. So Eph. 4 26. Be angry and ſin not, let not the ſun go down on thy wrath, where 'tis not the Apoſtles meaning ſo much as to permit anger, but that is only ſet down, as a preparative to the conſequent [not ſinning] i. e. moderating that paſſion, and not letting it dwell upon us, which is the only thing in that place deſigned to be commanded us. So Ja. 1. 9. Let the brother of low degree rejoice, or boaſt, that he is exalted, and, or, but the rich that he is brought low, where the matter of the diſcourſe from v. 2. being exhortation to rejoice in afflictions, inforced by the advantages of them v. 3, 4. and backt with directions how to practiſe it, by praying to God for wiſdome, v. 5. and perſeverance in the faith, required to the obtaining anſwer to his prayers, v. 6, 7. 8, (and ſo ſtill kept to the ſame matter of rejoicing in afflictions) it followes v. 9. Let the brother, i. e. the Chriſtian, of low degree rejoice, that he is exalted, which is not at all to the point in hand, but onely as it prepares for that which followes (by way of oppoſition to it) but let the rich rejoice, or, boaſt in his being made low, which cannot better be interpreted according to the ſenſe, then thus, As glad as a poor man would be of being made rich, ſo glad let the rich be of his being brought low. So Rom. 6. 17. where giving God thanks that they had received, and obeyed the Chriſtian faith, he prepares for it with that, which would not probably have been matter of his thanksgiving [God be thanked that ye were the ſervants of ſin] were it not to introduce the only deſigned matter, that followes [but ye have obeyed from the heart the form of doctrine delivered to you.]

e. Thoſe which were the ſpeciall gueſts of a marriage feaſt, were by cuſtome to goe and fetch the bridegroom, and wait on him to the marriage feaſt, as we ſee the practiſe of it 1 Mac. 9. 37. ſo Mat. 25. 1. the ten virgins took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom; and thoſe that were ready at his coming, v. 10. went in with him εἰς γάμους, i. e. to the marriage feaſt. (for ſo the word γάμος and γάμοι, which we render marriage, ſignifies, Mat. 22. 3. Jo. 2. 1. not a marriage, but a marriage-feaſt in Canah of Galilee. So there were in Homer three ſorts of feaſts, of which γάμος was one, Εἰλαπίνη, ἠὲ γάμος, ἐπεὶ ἒκ θεσμὸς πέλει ἀμφίς. Odyſſ: α'. 224 and Ἦ γάμῳ, ἢ ἐράνῳ, ἢ εἰλαπίνῃ τινὶ δαιτός, Odyſſ: λ'. 415 whereupon ſaith Euſtathius, ἀνὰ εἰλαπίνη, ᾗ ὁ γάμος, ᾗ ὁ θεσμὸς οὐδὲν εἶδος ἑαίδος, Theſe three are ſeverall ſpecies of feaſts. So γάμους ἄγειν in * Philo, ſo nuptias celebrare in the civil law, the marriage feſtivity.) Theſe ſpeciall gueſts which attended theſe nuptiall ſolemnities, are call'd παράνυμφοι, and πάροχοι in * Phavorinus, and here the ſons or children of the (νύμφων, i. e. πάρεδροι ἐν τῷ νυμφικῷ the) place, in which the Bridegroom and Bride are; Theſe I ſuppoſe are the φίλοι νυμφίου Joh. 3. 29. the friends of the bridegroom, which, ſaith Phavorinus, τῷ ὀχήματι ἅμα τῇ νύμφῃ καὶ τῷ νυμφίῳ ὀχοῦνται, are carried in the ſame chariot with the bride and bridegroom, or elſe goe with them πεζῇ on foot, and of theſe ſome performed ſome nuptiall offices to the bridegroom, (as to be the Kings friend, 1 Kin. 4. 5. is a ſpeciall office of neerneſſe about the King.) So we find in * Julius Pollux, καλεῖται δὲ καὶ τῶν νυμφίων φίλων, θυρωροὶ &c. One of the bridegrooms friends is call'd the Doorkeeper. Of theſe it is here ſaid, that as long as the bridegroom is with them, i. e. as long as the marriage feaſt is celebrating (parallel to which is the time of Chriſt's abode on this earth, marrying himſelf to his Spouſe, this Church of his) It is not imaginable that they ſhould mourn or faſt, but when this marriage-feaſt was turned into a funerall obſequy, then ſhould they faſt in thoſe daies. ἌρχωνRulers

h. This cuſtome of having muſicall inſtruments in funeralls came to the latter Jewes from the rites and manner of the Gentiles. For though in the * Miſna, Rabbi Jehuda ſaith, that at the funerall of the wife there ſhould be inſtruments at leaſt, beſides the perſon which began the lamentation, yet this teſtimony of his is but of the latter times, ſuch as this in this verſe, And in the Old Teſtament there is no mention of any ſuch cuſtome. They were wont indeed to mourn for the dead, *Eccluſ.*22.10. and to commend them, thereby to excite the living to the imitation of their virtues, or that they may lay it to heart, Eccl. 7.2. (And ſo 'twas at the death of Tabitha, where the widows wayled, and ſhewed the coats and garments, which her liberality had provided for the poor in her life-time) and many other ceremonies they uſed, as you may find Ezech. 24. 17. and Jer. 16. 6,7. As 1. tearing their fleſh, 2ly. ſhaving their heads bald, 3ly. the Neighbours ſending in good cheer, which is in Ezechiel, eating the bread of men, or (as אֲנָשִׁים would be better rendred) of mourners, and in Ieremy (not יִפְרְסוּ ★ tearing, but) * breaking bread to the mourner, to comfort him, and, as it followes, giving the cup of * Ἀλωτ: β'. conſolation to drink, ſo ſaith * Ioſephus of Archelaus, πενθήσας ἡμέρας ἑπτὰ τὸν πατέρα καὶ τῷ δήμῳ δεῖπνον ἐτοίμασεν πολυτελῆ τῷ πένθει ἁρμόττον, he mourned ſeven daies for his father, and made a ſumptuous funerall feaſt for the multitude, and he addes that this cuſtome among the Iewes was the impoveriſhing of many, and that upon a kind of neceſſity, for if any man omitted it, he was counted no pious man, So the meat of mourners, *Hoſ.*9.4. and εἰδώλων νεκρῶν, the funerall feaſt, in the Epiſtle of Ieremy, v.32. and to that perhaps belong the σιτία βεβωμένων ἐφεστίμενα τάφῳ, the meſſes of meat ſet on the ſepulchre, Eccluſ. 30.18. But all this while no mention of inſtruments of muſick in funeralls, among the ancient Iewes of the old Teſtament, But on the other ſide the uſe of muſick in lamentation is mention'd among the ἄκαιρα, unſeaſonable things, Eccluſ. 22.6. Songs of lamentation they had, Ier. 9. 17. Amos 6.15. *Ier.*34.5. Jer. 22. 18. but theſe were perform'd only by the voice, not by inſtruments, * De jure Reg: p.162. ſaith * Schickard. This cuſtome of Inſtruments in funeralls was heathen, and came in but late among the Iewes, Among the Heathen there is frequent mention of it, both among the Romans, under the ſtyle of † Sicinnium, and in Apuleius, monumentarii choraulæ, and among the Grecians under that of πομβάυλοι, and in Ariſtot: l. 5. de gen: Anim: ἀιδζοντες, and in Lucian εἰς τὸ μιλῶ ἐπαιδζοντες, and in Artemidorus l.1. c.58. ἀυλῶν πυθικοῖς ἀυλοῖς πένθος σημαίνει. As for (that which here follows the mention of minſtrels) the company keeping a ſtirre, That belongs to the γόοι and ὀδυρμοί, the wailing of the reſt of the company, and may be explained by an expreſſion in Homer, where after θρηνων ἐξάρχοι, the beginners of Lamentations, followes --κλαίον ἀμφίαλοι δ' ὀμωῇ, and again -ἐπὶ δ' ἐστενάχοντο γυναῖκες, the women or the company ſtood about wayling. The * Muſicians beginning, and all that were preſent following in the θρηνωδίᾳ, which † Lucian calls τὸν ἐπὶ τοῖς ἀυλοῖς συρφετὸν, the beating their breaſts to the muſicall inſtrument. And that this was the cuſtome about Chriſt's time is clear by * Joſephus, who ſpeaking of the taking of Ioppe by Veſpaſian, ſaith, that the Iewes mourned for it thirty daies, and adds πολίτας μισθοῦς τοὺς ἀυλητὰς, οἳ θρηνῶν ἦρξαν ἀυλοῖς, they hired Muſitians, who began the lamentations to them. This following in the lamentation (which was done by the voice only) is expreſs't by κλαίον καὶ ἐπιθρηνεῖτε, Lu. 8. 52. crying and wayling, and by that you will underſtand the meaning of that proverbiall ſpeech, *Mat.*11.18. ἐθρηνήσαμεν καὶ οὐκ ἐκόψασθε, we Θρηνεῖτε have begun the lamentation to you, and you have not followed it by wayling, but ſo as referr'd not to the heathen or latter Iewiſh cuſtome, where there was uſe of inſtruments, but to the pure ancient Iewiſh cuſtome, where, as was foremention'd, the lamentation was not begun with muſicall inſtruments, but only voices of old women, which in a * ſad modulation ſtrove to extort lamentation from thoſe that were preſent. Which cuſtome, it ſeems, the children in the ſtreets were wont to act or imitate. Thus much for the uſe of this cuſtome in the New Teſtament.

* κλαίουσι δὲ μέλεσι θρηνων ἐγκειμένοις τοῖς ἐπὶ τοῖς τεθνεῶσι. † emphaſis: p.792. * ἀλώσ. l.3. c.35. * Θρηνῶσι μεν.

The word ἐκβάλλειν which in ordinary Greek authors, and many times in the New Teſtament ſignifies to caſt out by violence, doth ſeverall times alſo, in the New Teſtament, ſignifie in a ſofter ſenſe, only to ſend or bring out. So not only in this verſe, and the places parallel to it, in the other Goſpels, but in this *chap.*v.38. ὅπως ἐκβάλῃ ἐργάτας, i. e. ἀποστείλῃ not caſt, but ſend forth labourers, ſo c. 12. 20. ἕως ἂν ἐκβάλῃ τὸν κρίσιν, untill he ſend forth judgment, and v. 35. ἐκβάλλει ἀγαθὰ καὶ πονηρὰ, ſends or brings forth good and evil things, and c. 13. 52. ὅστις ἐκβάλλει ἐκ τοῦ θησαυροῦ, whoſoever brings forth out of his treaſure, So Lu. 10. 35. ἐκβαλὼν δύο δηνάρια, he took out two pence, and Ioh. 10. 4. ὅταν τὰ ἴδια πρόβατα ἐκβάλῃ when he brings out his ſheep, for it is added, immediately, he goes before them. נפק ſignifies in Syriack, both to goe out, and to be caſt out, and *Mat.*8.12. where the Greek reads [ἐκβληθήσονται] ſhall be caſt out] the Syriack hath נפקון which is ordinarily rendred exibunt, ſhall goe out, and agreeably to this promiſcuous uſe of thoſe words we may obſerve *Rev.*14. that ἐξῆλθεν to ſend v. 15. is βάλλειν to caſt v.16. in the ſame matter. See chap.12.20. i. Ἐκβάλλειν

The word ἐμβριμώμενος that is here uſed, is rendred by Phavorinus ἐπιτιμῶσα, κελεύουσα, προστάξαι μετ' ἐξουσίας, to charge, to command, to appoint with authority, and ἐμβριμᾶσθαι, μετ' ἀυστηρότητος ἀπειλοῦντος, καὶ ἐπιτιμᾶν, ἢ μετ' ὀργῆς κελεύειν, commanding with auſterity, threatning, ſpeaking angrily, and Heſychius, μετ' ἀπειλῆς ἐπιτιμᾶν, commanding or charging with a threat, Thus again in Phavorinus, ἐμβρίμησις ἡ ψυχῆς λογικῆς τῆς θυμικῆς μέρους ὀργή, 'tis an act of the iraſcible part of the reaſonable k. l. It was the manner among the Iewes for divers men to contribute their talents to the expoſition of the leſſon which was read, This ordinarily belong'd to the ſons of the Prophets, who were brought up in learning the Law, and at thirty years old might be made Doctors (at which time, being then of Doctor's ſtanding, ſaith Irenæus, Chriſt began to preach, and not before, and proportionably Preſbyters were not made in the ancient Church till that age) and continued in that notion, or the other of Scribes, till they obtain'd the Spirit of prophecy at Gods hands, till which time they did ordinarily expound Scriptures, though not by Revelation. Anſwerable to which was that cuſtome or practiſe among Chriſtians mention'd 1 *Cor.*14. 29. And thus might Chriſt without pretenſion to any extraordinary power or authority, expound in their διδάσκειν Synagogues, which being the Doctors work is here call'd teaching, and differs (in the Chriſtian uſe of κηρύσσειν the word in the New Teſtament) from κηρύσσειν preaching (which followes) and εὐαγγελίζειν publiſhing or preaching the Goſpel, and μαθητεύειν parallel with it (as appeares by comparing Mat. 28.19. with *Mar.*16.15.) gathering of Diſciples, in other places. All theſe being the publiſhing ſomewhat to thoſe, to whom 'twas Newes (as here the Goſpel of the kingdome, i.e. the doctrine of Chriſtianity) the other (διδάσκειν) inſtructing congregations, that already profeſs't that doctrine, which is therefore by the Doctor onely farther explain'd to them, And ſo Act. 5.42. where you have διδάσκοντες and εὐαγγελιζόμενοι, teaching and preaching, the firſt referres to the ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ in the Temple, the 2d to the κατ' οἶκον in ſomewhat more private places (ſee note on *Act.*1. c.) the firſt to thoſe that were inſtructed in the doctrine of Chriſtianity already, the ſecond to thoſe that had not already received it, and ſo Act. 15.35. In proportion to which was that difference in the Chriſtian Church betwixt Evangeliſt and Doctor or Teacher, the firſt telling them the good newes, and planting the Goſpel, the other watering or inſtructing them farther in it, and ſo the word and doctrine are different, 1 *Tim.*5. 17. the firſt without the Church to unbeleivers, 2 *Cor.*5.19. *Mat.*13.19. *Mar.*4.14. c.2.2. *Act.*4.4. and 6.2. 1 *Pet.*2.8. the ſecond in it, or to thoſe that were already converted to the faith.

The Greek copies doe vary in this place, ſome reading it ἐκλελυμένοι, ſo the antient Greek and Latine MS. and that in Magdalen College in Oxford, and ſo both Chryſoſtome, and many very antient Copies have it, and then it would be rendred [toſt.] So the old gloſſary σκύλλομαι jactor, or elſe [wearied] σκύλλω fatigo, ſaith the ſame, and ſo the Greek and Latine MS. fatigati, or again troubled, vexed, moleſted, as 'tis in that place, Why troubleſt thou the maſter? Mar. 5. 35. and then ἐρριμμένοι joyned with it, will agree with it very well, for that ſignifies jactati, toſt, and ſo ῥιπτασμοὶ among the Phyſitians, are the toſſings of the ſick and tumblings on their beds; but our ordinary reading is ἐκλελυμένοι] which ſignifies looſed one from another, diſſolved, not keeping together in companies, ſo ſaith Heſychius, ἐκλελαμένοι, and after ἐκλελυμένοι, it ſhould ſure be ἐκλελυμένοι in each place, ἐξεφαμένοι, turn'd out of the way, gone aſtray, which is the thing here proper to ſheep wanting a ſhepherd, and is the notation of διασπορὰ diſperſion or diſbanding, *Act.*5.36. 'Tis true the word doth ſometimes note a diſſolution of ſpirits, (whether through faſting or going too much) a fainting, (as when tis joyned with κόπῳ, Heb. 12.3. and *Gal.*6.9.) and ſo it may ſignifie c.15.32. I will not ſend them away faſting, μήποτε ἐκλυθῶσιν, leſt they faint by the way. But the ſimilitude of the ſheep without a ſhepherd, inclines to the former notion of ἐκλελυμένοι, diſſolved, ſtraying one from another, if that be the right reading of it.

CHAP. X.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND when he had called unto him his twelve diſciples,] he gave them power againſt unclean ſpirits to caſt them out [a], and to heal all manner of ſickneſſe, and all manner of diſeaſe.

1. And ſelecting twelve of his followers, who ſhould continually be with him, and whom he might ſend out on any meſſage of preaching &c. Mar. 3. 15. (and who ſhould, after his death, undertake the whole work of preaching, &c.) he now ordains them to that office, and to that end. a.

2. Now the names of the twelve Apoſtles are theſe, [the firſt Simon, who is called [b] Peter, and Andrew his brother, James the ſon of Zebedee, and John his brother,

2. The name of the firſt was formerly Simon, or Simeon, which ſignifies hearkning or obedient (a name aptly noting his readineſſe to follow Chriſt, and become his diſciple) but by Chriſt he is now called Cephas (ſee Jo.1.43.) in Syriack, which ſignifies a ſtone, ſuch as might be fit in a building to be ſuperſtructed upon Chriſt the corner-ſtone, and that in the Greek is Petros, in Engliſh turn'd into the appellative Peter, and with him Andrew his brother, and James, and John, two ſons of Zebedee, after called Boanerges, b.

3. Philip, and Bartholomew, [Thomas, and Mathew the publican, James the ſon of Alphæus, and Lebbæus furnamed Thaddæus.]

3. Thomas Didymus, and Matthew or Levi, who had been a publican, James the ſon of Alphæus, and Lebbæus, or Judas, the brother of James, Lu. 6.16. who alſo was ſurnamed Thaddæus.

*Cannite, or Zelot, †deliver'd him up, ſee note on c.17.c.

4. Simon the *[c] Canaanite and Judas [d] Iſcariot, who alſo † betrayed him.

5. Theſe twelve Jeſus ſent forth, and commanded them, ſaying, Goe not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritanes enter ye not.

5, 6. Theſe twelve Jeſus furniſht them with a commiſſion which they ſhould uſe at preſent; as on occaſion he ſhould ſend them out to any city, and after his death, by going and preaching the Goſpel over all the cities of Judæa, againſt which time he now gave them command, ſaying, (when you goe about that work,) Preach the Goſpel firſt to the Jewes ſtrictly taken, the cities of the ſeed of Abraham through all Judæa, and till you have c. d.

6. But goe rather to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael.]

firſt preached through all their region (ſee Act. 13. 46.) goe not to any of the cities that border upon Galilee, nor to Samaria, nor to any other city from them, See note on c. 4. c.

7. A remarkable viſitation from heaven approacheth, as of notable puniſhments upon the unreformed, ſo of deliverance, and protection to the penitent among you, that ſhall timely receive the Faith of Chriſt.

7. And as ye goe preach, ſaying, [The kingdome of heaven is at hand.]

8. And wherever ye come, make uſe of the power which I now give you, with the ſame frankneſſe and liberality, that is uſed toward you, work all manner of healing mercifull miracles wherſoever ye come, to all that beg them from you.

8. Heale the ſick, cleanſe the lepers, raiſe the dead, caſt out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.]

c. 9. Make no proviſion of money, much or little,

9. Provide neither gold, nor ſilver, nor braſſe in your [c] purſes,]

10. Nor of victualls, nor cloaths to carry with you, nor of any thing for your defence by the way, For taking ſo much paines for the benefit of others, ye may very reaſonably expect to be entertained for all neceſſaries by them, who profit by you.

10. Nor ſcrip for your journey, nor two coats, neither ſhooes, nor yet * ſtaves, (for the workman is worthy of his meat).]

* a ſtaffe, ῥάβδον, ſee note c.

11. Whenſoever therefore you come into a town or village, inquire what pious perſon there is dwelling there, and there faſten your ſtation, and eat and drink what they ſet before you, Lu. 10. 7. and goe not from that houſe to any other, while you ſtay in the town.

11. And into whatſoever city or town ye ſhall enter, enquire who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye goe thence.]

12. ſay, Peace (i. e. all kind of proſperity) be to this houſe.

12. And when ye come into an houſe, [ſalute it.]

13. And if thoſe of the houſe be qualified to receive it, your bleſſing ſhall reſt upon it, but if not, your bleſſing ſhall return upon you, and they ſhall receive no advantage, but the contrary, by your coming among them on a deſign of ſo much charity.

13. And if the houſe be worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you.]

14. Depart from them, and uſe that expreſſion of ſhaking off the duſt from your feet as a teſtimony to them that in their rejecting, or not receiving of you, they have rejected the onely remaining means of their ſalvation, and as a teſtimony againſt them, that will one day be brought to give in a ſad evidence, the duſt ſhaken off from your feet, (as it ſignifies that you have been there, and thus been fain to depart from them) will lie very heavy upon them.

14. And whoſoever ſhall not receive you, nor hear your words, [when ye depart out of that houſe or city, ſhake off the duſt of your feet.]

15. I aſſure you, the puniſhment or deſtruction that will light upon that city, ſhall be ſuch, that the deſtruction of Sodome ſhall appear to have been more tolerable then that. See note on c. 3. c.

15. Verily I ſay unto you, that it ſhall be more tolerable for the land of Sodome, and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, then for that city.]

f. 16. And therefore though ye may be allowed to be as prudent and wary as may be to preſerve your ſelves, becauſe they among whom you goe, are ravenous as wolves, yet ye muſt moſt ſtrictly preſerve your innocence, uſe no forcible, or unlawfull means to preſerve your ſelves, becauſe ye are as ſheep.

16. Behold I ſend you forth, as ſheep in the midſt of wolves; [[f] be ye therefore wiſe as ſerpents, and harmleſſe as doves.]

17. Your greateſt danger will be from the Men, as they are called 1 Pet. 2. 4. thoſe you wott of, of the Jewiſh Sanhedrin, and Conſiſtories, for you ſhall be accuſed and brought before them, who if your offences be not conceived capitall, ſhall ſcourge you (according to Deut. 25. 2.) in their aſſemblies.

17. But beware of * men, for they will deliver you up to the † councels, and they will ſcourge you in their ‖ ſynagogues.]

* the men, τῶν ἀνθρώπων
† conſiſtories, συνεδρίοις
‖ aſſemblies, ſee note on c. 6. d. Jam. b.

18. But if they deſire to have you puniſht capitally, they will remove you from thence to the Roman governours, requiring you to be put to death (as 'twas with Chriſt Joh. 18. 30.) And this carrying you from the Jewiſh to the Heathen, from one Tribunall to another, will be a means to proclaim and teſtifie the Goſpel to Gentiles, as well as Jewes.

18. And ye ſhall be brought before governours and kings for my ſake, for a teſtimony * againſt them, and the Gentiles.]

* to them, αὐτοῖς

19, 20. Make no proviſion beforehand what anſwers ye ſhall give, ye ſhall at the time be directed what anſwers to make. And how ſuſpicious ſoever ye may be of your own abilities, yet this need not trouble you, for God will enable you to ſpeak that which is moſt fit and proper to be ſpoken by you, and ſure they that have God to enable and direct them, need not fear they ſhall want anſwers.

19. But when they deliver you up, [take no thought how or what ye ſhall ſpeak, for it ſhall be given you in that ſame houre, what ye ſhall ſpeak,

20. For it is not ye that ſpeak, but the Spirit of your Father, that ſpeaketh in you.]

21. And one Chriſtian (at leaſt ſuch as pretend to be ſo) ſhall accuſe, and deliver up another to the perſecutors, and forgetting all naturall affection, the neareſt kindred ſhall miſchief one another, and cauſe them to be put to death. See c. 24. 9, 10. & 2 Tim. 3. 3, 4.

21. And the brother ſhall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child, and the children ſhall riſe up againſt their parents, and cauſe them to be put to death.]

g. 22. And the Jews, wherſoever you come, ſhall perſecute you for preaching of Chriſt; but there is a fatall day approaching for theſe Jewes, and they that in deſpight of all theſe perſecutions, v. 18, 19, 20, 21, 22. ſhall ſtick faſt to their Chriſtian profeſſion, they ſhall, beſide their crown in another world, have a remarkable deliverance here out of that deſtruction, which univerſally lighteth upon all others.

22. And ye ſhall be hated of all men for my names ſake; but he that endureth to the end [g] ſhall * be ſaved.]

* eſcape.

23. When they thus perſecute you in one city, you may flee to another, and be aſſured from me, that by that time you have gone through all the cities of the Jewes, v. 6. this fatall day ſhall come upon your perſecutors, ſee note f.

23. But [when they perſecute you in this city, flee ye into another: For verily I ſay unto you, You ſhall not have gone over the cities of Iſrael, till the ſon of man be come.]

24. The

24. The disciple is [h] not above his master, nor the servant above his Lord.] 24. How reasonable it is for you to expect this ill usage among men, ye may judge by what ye see already, and shall more largely hereafter discern to befall me. The disciple cannot in reason expect to be better used then his master, nor the servant then his Lord. h.

25. It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the servant as his Lord: If they have called the master of the house Belzebub, how much more shall they call them of his houshold?] 25. The most that a disciple or servant can aspire to, is to come to his masters perfection, Lu.6.40. And if they have called me Belzebub, how much reason have you to expect, that they shall deal with you, as with the wickedst Apostates in the world, revile you proportionably, in your places and orders?

26. Fear them not therefore; for there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, and hidden that shall not be known.] 26. Be ye therefore courageous, not terrified by any thing that can befall you, this fear or foresight of the danger must not make you conceal any thing that I have taught you. See Mar.4.22.

27. What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in light: and what ye hear in the [i] eare, that preach ye upon the house tops.] 27. And therefore what I say now in parables to you, doe ye courageously publish to all, and what I more privately impart to you as my disciples, and not to the multitudes, c.5.1. doe you stand on the top of the houses, and proclaim from the battlements to the people in the streets, as publickly as ye can. i.

28. And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both body and soul in hell.] 28. And never be afraid of any man, armed with the most power or malice, for the utmost he can doe, is to kill your bodies, but your souls he cannot touch, And what an improvidence would it be in you, if to escape those terrors ye should neglect your duty, and so incurre that farre greater danger from God, who hath imployed you, whose punishments are farre more terrible, casting unprofitable servants bodies, and souls into eternall misery, and torment.

29. Are not two sparrows sold for a [k] farthing? and one of them shall not fall to the ground without your Father.] 29. Besides, consider, that all the power of men whom ye can fear, is restrained and bounded by God, on whose messages you goe, If he see it most for his glory and your good to permit them to kill you, what reason can you have to be afraid of death, and if he see it not fit thus to permit, be confident they shall never be able to touch you, 'Tis not all the malice of men, that can extend farther, then Gods providence sees fit to permit and order, even in the least matters. k.

30. But the very hairs of your head are all numbred.] 30. God hath the knowledge and care and overruling of all the least things that belong to you, or shall befall you.

31. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value then many sparrows.] 31. This is full ground of all confidence, and courage to you, your lives are dearly valued by God, and will not by him be negligently or prodigally wasted.

32. Whosoever therefore [shall confesse me before men, him will I confesse also] before my Father which is in heaven. 32. shall courageously preach my doctrine, when the preaching of it is persecuted, and when any particular duty taught by me, and required by me to be performed by all Christians, is so opposed by the world, that the practising it then may bring the utmost hazard upon him, shall then constantly adhere to that precept, and so confesse and honour me, how dear soever it cost him, I will be sure to own, and honour, and stick to him, declare those performances of his to his honour, before my Father in heaven, from whom he shall have the acclamation, and reward of a good servant.

33. But whosoever [shall deny me before men, him will I also deny] before my Father which is heaven. 33. renounce the faith of Christ, or obedience to him in time of danger, he must expect to be renounced by me.

34. Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace but a sword,] 34. Doe not deceive your selves with an imagination, as if the effect or design of my coming into the world, were to secure unto the Christian profession a perpetuall enjoyment of worldly quiet and prosperity upon earth, when all the malice of wicked men and devils are set against it, but rather reckon beforehand of persecution as your portion, and expect that your perseverance and constancy in this profession, may and very often will bring great outward calamities upon you for a season, even unto the killing of some of you.

35. For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law,] 35. The far more generall effect of my doctrine will be, (or, upon the publishing my doctrine will ensue) all manner of contention, quarrels and variance betwixt the dearest and neerest friends, either about acknowledging the truth of it, or adhering to it in time of danger.

36. And a mans foes shall be they of his own houshold.] 36. And the nearer men are to others in kindred &c. the more bitter will their hatred be against them (as against blasphemers, &c.) upon their receiving my doctrine, especially when it comes to be persecuted.

37. He that loveth father or mother more then me, is not worthy of me,] and he that loveth son or daughter more then me, is not worthy of me. 37. And he that preferres the advantages, which he can, and is like to receive from his parents, or any that are dearest to him, before those he expects from me, or, that values their kindnesse or good opinion more then mine, is no fit person for my service, no way qualified to be a disciple for me, for it is certain all such worldly interests will ever be soliciting against me.

38. And he that taketh not his crosse and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.] 38. Nay I must plainly tell you, that he that doth not provide for the utmost that can come, that is not content to suffer death it self (and therein to doe what I doe before him) rather then doe any thing contrary to Christian duty, is not competently qualified to be a disciple of mine.

39. This comfort mean while ye have,

39. He that findeth his life ſhall loſe it, and he that loſeth his life for my ſake, ſhall find it.

that as he that uſeth any way of compliance with the perſecutors, and ſo eſcapes their malice, and ſaves his life, ſhall gain little by this, but be involved in the deſtruction which awaits them, ſo on the other ſide he that ſhall hazard the utmoſt, that he may ſtick cloſe to me, ſhall be likely to fare beſt even in this world. For thus I foretell you it will be, ſome to comply with the perſecuting Jewes, and to eſcape their perſecutions will renounce Chriſtianity, and feign themſelves zealous Jewes, and ſo when the deſtruction falls upon the Jewes, as it certainly ſhall moſt heavily, they ſhall be involv'd in that deſtruction, and that is all that they ſhall get by that compliance, and puſillanimity. Whereas at the ſame time they that comply not, and ſo venture all that the Jewes malice can doe againſt them, ſhall by the deſtruction of their perſecutors be reſcued from that danger, and live to ſee a peaceable profeſſion of Chriſtianity, or if they doe not, have the loſſe of a ſhort temporary life rewarded with an eternall.

40. And therefore both to arme you a-

40. He that receiveth you, receiveth me, and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that ſent me.

gainſt this great error, and to ſatisfie one objection more, which will be apt to riſe in your hearts, (viz: that if Chriſtian doctrine will be ſo perſecuted, you have reaſon to expect that it will be look'd on ſtrangely by all others, and that no body will dare to receive you into their houſes) I now tell you, that how great ſoever your perſecutions are, and how dangerous a thing ſoever to profeſſe to be a follower of Chriſt, yet ſhall no man have reaſon to feare the entertaining of you, for the ſame protection that waits over you, v. 39. and the ſame reward that attends you, v. 32. ſhall alſo await thoſe that are thus kind, as to receive you, It ſhall be as if they had entertained not only Angels but Chriſt, and God himſelf, they ſhall be farre the ſafer, not in more danger for ſuch gueſts, according to that ſaying ſo ordinary among the Jewes, that every mans Apoſtle is as himſelf. (See note on Joh. 20. a.) what is done to ones proxy, is interpreted as done unto himſelf.

41. He that entertaineth (ſee note on 1 Tim. 1. c.) a Prophet in the name of him that ſent him

41. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet, ſhall receive a prophets reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, ſhall receive a righteous mans reward.

(one Prophet coming in the name of another Prophet, as Elizæus in the name of Elias, and the Apoſtles in the name of Chriſt) or in that one conſideration, becauſe he is a Prophet, or he that doth ſupport and enable a prophet to doe his work that ſent him, he ſhall receive the ſame reward, that he ſhould, if himſelf had been ſent to prophecy, (gain thereby an intereſt in his work, and ſo in the reward due to it) yea the ſame that he ſhould have had, if he had received him that ſent him, even Chriſt, and God which ſent Chriſt, ſee v. 40. And ſo likewiſe he that entertains any holy man ſent by another to plant holineſſe among men, ſhall receive the benediction, Gen. 30. 27. that attends the having a righteous man in ones houſe, or that of Lots entertaining the Angels, the meſſengers of God, or of Rahabs receiving the Spyes, i.e. ſhall himſelf be delivered by that means, when others are deſtroyed.

42. in this notion, becauſe he is a diſciple of Chriſt. (as Mar. 9. 41. in my name, becauſe you are Chriſts.)

42. And whoſoever ſhall give to drink to one of theſe little ones, a cup of cold water only, [in the name of a diſciple,] verily I ſay unto you he ſhall in no wiſe loſe his reward.

Notes on Chap. X.

a. Ἐκβάλλειν ἀντὶ μάστιγος, Συμεών. ἐν τοῖς νόμοις.

The Devils poſſeſſing men in thoſe daies, which was much more ordinary before the coming of Chriſt, and about that time, then it hath been ſince (Chriſt having much retrench't and reſtrain'd Satans power) had generally corporeall diſcernible effects attending it, diſeaſes of all kinds, Epilepſies, &c. And agreeably thereto, the Apoſtles delivering men up to Satan is ſaid to be [εἰς ὄλεθρον σαρκὸς to the deſtruction of the fleſh.] And therefore before any ſuch diſeaſe could be cured, the Devil muſt be caſt out. And accordingly here the ſame power is given to the Diſciples, to caſt out Devils, and to heal diſeaſes.

b. Vide Grot.

His name was Simon, but is now Joh. 1. 43. alter'd by Chriſt into כֵּיפָא which in Syriack ſignifies (as it is rendred in Greek) πέτρα a ſtone: Πέτρα, ſaxum, cautes, ſilex, ſaith the old Gloſſary, it ſignifies a ſtone, or rock, or flint, but in this place no more then a foundation-ſtone (for ſuch the Apoſtles were, Epheſ. 2. 20. Rev. 21. 14.) as that is layd upon the corner-ſtone, Jeſus Chriſt, And upon that, and other the like (the reſt of the Apoſtles ſtyled twelve foundations, Rev. 21.) all beleivers, as living ſtones, are built, 1 Pet. 2. 5. This Greek word πέτρα in the feminine is exactly all one with πετρος in the maſculine, as may appear not only by Mat. 16. 18. where that which is in the Greek [thou art πέτρος, and upon this πέτρα &c.] is in the Syriack [thou art Kipha, and upon this Kipha &c.] but alſo by other good authors in the Attick Dialect, particularly Homer, who four times uſeth πετρος for a ſtone, or petra: Ἰλ. υ'. 'tis taken for a great ſtone, μέγα ἔργον, ſuch a weight as two ordinary men could not have carried, and yet is taken up in Æneas's hand (χερμάδιον) to throw at Achilles. In two other places, Ἰλ. ν'. 'tis μυλοειδὴς πέτρη] not μύλος a mill-ſtone, for it was ſuch, as one flung at another, but from the figure, and weight of it, (that it was στρογγύλη,) only a very great one again, πολὺ μείζονα λᾶαν, not ſimply an huge ſtone, an immoveable rock, &c. but comparatively very big for that uſe of throwing: In the 4th place, Ἰλ. ω'. it is a ſtone which he could, and did take in one hand, ἑτέρῃφι, ſaith he. So Rom. 9. 33. πέτρα and λίθος, rock, and ſtone, are as perfectly all one, as πρόσκομμα and σκάνδαλον, ſtumbling, and offence, and both diſtinctly to be rendred not rock, but ſtone, ſuch as men are apt to ſtumble at. And ſo more clearly, 1 Pet. 2. 7. where the ſtumbling ſtone (πέτρα σκανδάλου) is made uſe of in the building, as a corner-ſtone. So Mat. 27. 51. the πέτραι which are rent in ſunder are the ſtones of the Temple, (the ſeverall parts of which, are there enumerated, the veyle, the ground, the ſtones, the timber, and the bodies of the interr'd.) And therefore for any concluſion from the criticall notation of the word πέτρα here, that it ſhould ſignifie a rock, and not a ſtone, I ſuppoſe no ground can be fetcht from hence; πέτρα and πέτρος being in the Grammar-notion abſolutely the ſame, and both of them ſet ſometimes to ſignifie ſuch a ſtone, as is made uſe of in a building, and is joyn'd it ſelf to the corner-ſtone, as here to Chriſt Jeſus, thereby helping to ſupport the ſuperſtructure, which is raiſed on it, as may appear both by the circumſtances of the context, Mat. 16. (where in reference to this name of his, Chriſt ſaith he will build his Church ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ upon this ſtone) and by *Eph.*2.20.where the Apoſtles are lookt on, as this foundation of the building (the Church) and *Rev.*21.14. as twelve foundations of it. 'Tis true indeed that in ſome other places πέτρα doth ſignifie a rock, as that notes a great immoveable mine of ſtone, as c.27.60. where the λαξεῦσιν hewing or cutting the tomb in (or, as S. Mark reads, out of) the πέτρα, notes it to ſignifie a mine, or rock of ſtone, in, or, out of which that tomb was cut out whole, or in one entire piece, and ſo πέτρα *Lu.*8.6. on which the ſeed fell, might poſſibly be an entire rock without any earth or moyſture in it, but Matthew and Mark read ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη, on earth which is ſtony, on ſtony ground, not making it one entire ſtone, but which had ſtore of ſtones in it. So *Mat.*7.25. the houſe founded and v.24. built ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν, upon a rock; Where it muſt be obſerved what place the πέτρα hath there in the building, and 'tis clear, that it is not there (as here) any part of the foundation, but as the ground whereon the whole building (foundation and all) is layd, as in the Antitheſis, v.26. the ſand is the ground, on which the other houſe is built. The houſe builded and founded upon a rock had its corner-ſtone, and all the reſt of the foundation cemented to a rock, or naturall mine of ſtone; and that made it ſo firm, that unleſſe the cement ſhould fail (which is not there ſuppoſed) or the rock move, that houſe could not move neither, but the other being built upon the ſand, (and therefore ſaid but to be built, whereas the former is ſaid to be built, and founded) could have no foundation on ſo fluid a bottome, as ſand, to which nothing can be faſten'd, and that is the cauſe, that it fell ſo ſoon. In theſe three places, and perhaps 1 *Cor.*10.4. πέτρα may ſignifie a rock, and accordingly the Gloſſary renders it cautes, as well as ſaxum. But in this, and the other places (when Peters title is concern'd in it) it cannot ſignifie a rock, either as that is abſtracted from building (for this here referres to building) or as that is ſuch, on which the whole building (foundation and all) is founded, as *Mat.*7. for that muſt ſuppoſe Peter antecedent to Chriſt himſelf (as that rock is to the whole foundation, and ſo to the corner-ſtone it ſelf, that houſe being not only built, but founded on the rock) which is too abſurd to be aſſerted or confuted. Thus much of the word Πέτρος, which thus became that Simons ordinary title, or agnomen, by which he was principally known and recorded to poſterity, Simon or Simeon, being, till his coming to Chriſt, his ordinary name.

c. Καννίτης Ζηλωτὴς

Many Greek copies have Καναναῖτης, others Καναναῖος, and Καναναῖος. The word comes not from the name of a place, as a πατρωνυμικὸν, but from קנא and קנאה zeale, from whence is Κανναῖος (which with the Greek termination, ος, is directly Καναναῖος) a Zelote. The Syriack hath קנענאי Kenonoyo, which ſeems to be the verſion of Καναναῖος. The matter is clear, that this Simon, *Lu.*6.15. and *Act.*1.13. is called Ζηλωτὴς the Zelot, And Καννίτης and Ζηλωτὴς are as perfectly the ſame, as Cephas and Πέτρος, Tabitha and Δόρκας, and the like. Of theſe Zelots ſo famous among the Jews, many mentions we have in ſacred Writ. Phinees is looked on, as the firſt, to whom that name was competible, for his ſlaying the uncleane paire in the very fact, which Mattathias in his dying ſpeech calls his ζηλῶσαι ζῆλον, having zeal, 1 Mac. 2. 54. And after him Elias in his apprehending the prophets of Baal, and ſlaying them 1 *Kin.*18. 40. which again Mattathias calls ζηλῶσαι ζῆλον νόμου, having zeal for the law, v. 58. And ſuch was this Mattathias, and his ſon Judas &c. which without any externall calling, took upon them to deſtroy the profaners of the Temple, and were thereupon call'd Maccabees, which ſignifies Zelots. In after times, from theſe beginnings great diſtempers, and flames broke out, A multitude of men under pretence of being zealous for the Law, and honour of God, under the name of ζηλωταὶ Zelots, committing all the riots, and bloodineſſe imaginable. See Joſephus ἀλώσ: l. 4. c.11. where he ſaith of them, that they killed many of the chief men of the nation, and ſtill when they did ſo, boaſted of themſelves ὡς ἀνορθώσεις καὶ σωτῆρας καὶ πόλεως γνησίους γεγονότες, that they were become the benefactors and Saviours of the people, Whoſe inſolence meeting with the timidity, and baſeneſſe of the peoples minds, advanced ſo farre, ὡς ἐπ' ἀυτοῖς καὶ τὰς ἱερωσύνας ἀφ' ὑπερόχων, that they took upon them to chuſe and ordain the high Prieſts, contemning the rules of birth by which thoſe were to ſucceed, and conſtituting ignoble obſcure men in thoſe places, that by that means they might have abetters and partners of their villanies. Theſe, ſaith he, c. 12. impoſed this name of Zelote upon themſelves ὡς ἐπ' ἀγαθοῖς διαπραξαμένοις, as if their undertakings were good, and honourable, and not (as indeed they were) ζηλωτὰς τῆς κρείττονος ἀφ' ἕρπων, καὶ ὑπερβαλλομένους, emulous of the worſt deeds imaginable, and even outſtripping all. Of theſe (as a ſect having its originall from Judas Gaulonita, and Sadducheus,) Bonavent: Corn: Bertram: in the end of his Book de pol: Jud: thus ſpeaketh, Zelotarum ſecta Judæis ipſis omnibus perniciosiſſima, ut quæ Judæorum omnium excidium, totiuſque rei publicæ Judaicæ proſtrationem non modo accelerarit, ſed & eam tam miſeram & calamitoſam effecerit. The ſect of the Zelots was moſt ſadly pernicious to the Jewes themſelves, and did not only accelerate the totall deſtruction of them, and the proſtration of the whole Jewiſh common-wealth, but withall made it ſo miſerable and calamitous when it came. Which ſtory of the Zelots in Joſephus agrees very well to this time, wherein Chriſt lived, and ſo there is little doubt, but that this Simon, was himſelf one of this ſect, and ſo call'd by that title, Simon the Zelote.

This title of his may either be taken from his country whence he came, a man of Carioth, (according to which it is that the antient Greek and Latine MS. generally reads ἀπὸ Καρυώτου Acariota, from Carioth,) Or elſe from the Syriack, which calls a wallet or purſe Secariat, and then סכריוטא Secariota, or Iſcariota may ſignifie ὁ ἔχων τὸ γλωσσόκομον, him that hath the wallet, which was the office of this Judas. d. Ἰσκαριώτης

The word ζώνη, that literally ſignifies a girdle, both in Greek, and Latine authors, ſignifies alſo a purſe, either becauſe that was wont to be ſowed, or faſten'd to the girdle, or becauſe the girdle being a looſe thing, like a ſcarfe, tyed about the middle, they uſed to wrap up their money within it, and ſo the gold and ſilver and braſſe (for ſuch were the Roman aſſes, and quadrantes) in their zones, are three ſorts of coines made of thoſe three metalls, the braſſe being coines of the leaſt value, for the leaſt commodities, or for common uſes and exchange, as Ζώνη.

gold and silver for higher purposes, and so under the prohibition of all these, is forbidden all greater, or lesser provision of money, to be carried out with them. These they are forbidden κτήσασθαι to possesse, i. e. to acquire, or any way to provide for themselves, against this journy, for so the word signifies to get, to purchase, Acts 22.28. and not only to possesse, κλάομαι, acquiro, saith the old Glossary, κτοῦμαι & adeptus, indeptus, and accordingly in Demosthenes, 'tis set opposite to φυλάττειν, to keep, Olynth: 2. This making provision of money for their journy, as they that goe on their own business are wont to doe, is forbidden the Apostles, who going on Christ's errand, are to expect and confide to be provided for by him, and so also for victualls, which sure is meant here by πήραν the scrip which was usuall for travellers, or any to carry victuals in. Thus 2 Kin. 4. 42. that which we read [eares of corn in the husk] the Greek read [παλάθας ἐν τῇ πήρᾳ αὐτοῦ, eares in his scrip, or sachel, thus rendring the Hebrew צקל, which some taking for a vestment, rendred it there a husk, as the garment of the corn, but surely not rightly, for that was sufficiently said in the [eares of corn] precedent. The Hebrew צקל is directly our English, sachel, and as there the eares of corn were brought in the sachel, and the bread (the twenty barley loaves) besides, some other way, so Mar. 6. 8. (the place parallel to this here) 'tis set distinctly, μὴ πήραν, μὴ ἄρτον, neither sachel nor bread, neither other kind of victualls in the scrip, nor so much as bread; The word πήρα is only thrice more in the old Testament, in the Apocryphall book of Iudith c. 10. 5. πήραν ἐπλήρωσεν ἀλφίτων, she filled the scrip or bag with parched corn, and c. 13. 10. πήραν τῶν βρωμάτων the sachel of victuals, and so again, v. 17. And so in all the places it notes a portage for victuals carried out with them, not as some have conjectured πτωχῶν πήρα, the poor man's, or, begger's scrip (which, saith the proverb, ἀ πίμπλαται), is never filled, and again, πτωχῶν ἀλάδες ἀεὶ κεναί, the poor men's sachels are alwaies empty) for sure Judith with her Maid went not, like beggers, with empty sachels, but, as it appears c. 10. 5. with rich provision along with them, and so the ἄρτον bread, added to πήραν the sachel, in S. Mark, enforces, the bread being certainly carried out with them, and the scrip to the same purpose that the bread, i. e. both of them for provision for the way. To that of asking or begging by the way, others have with more probability applied that of the ῥάβδον staffe, that follows, making that the character of a poor man or begger, So the Germans bettel stab, is their begging staffe, saith * Stuckius, (the word betten, saith he, coming from the Greek αἰτεῖν, to ask, or begge) and his best testimony is that of Juvenal, A tegete & baculo, to signifie from begging. As for that of Jacob's speech of himself, Gen. 32. 2. with my staffe I went over Jordan, (i. e. alone, without any companion) and Ulysses in Homer returning to his country with his σάκκον καὶ πήραν, his staffe and scrip, These doe not conclude for him, because Jacob doth not affirm that he begg'd, but that he travailed a single person, in opposition to the two bands, with which he returned: and so Ulysses is exprest by the Poet, not as a mendicant, but a solitary person, in opposition to the greatnesse, in which he had formerly been. It is therefore more reasonable to resolve, that the staffe is here look't on (as our Saviour prohibits it) as an Instrument of defence or offence, to secure them from assaults or dangers by the way, from which God is to be trusted to defend them, without any provision on their part. Thus in the story of Bel and the Dragon v. 26. Daniel undertakes to kill the Dragon ἄνευ μαχαίρας καὶ ῥάβδου, without sword or staffe, and Ezech. 21. 21. the Greek uses ῥάβδον for חץ, an arrow, or sharp instrument ordinarily rendred βέλος a dart, and when they render סקל by it, it then goes oft for a weapon of defence, as against a dogge, 1 Sam. 17. 43. And that it is to be taken here in this notion, may probably appear by Lu. 22. 36. where Christ referring to this direction of his for the Disciples journey, I sent you without purse, scrip, shooes] he saith, to expresse the distresses, that are now like to befall them, But now he that hath a purse, let him take it, and likewise his scrip, (now permitting what he had before prohibited) and he that hath no sword, let him buy one, in which words the sword seems to be set down in the place of the staffe, which is there omitted, and so concludes the use of the staffe here to be the same in generall, as of the sword (viz: for defence from assaults) though the sword be more advantageous for that purpose. One thing only I shall have need to adde, that the staffe was also among them, as among us, the companion of the way, either as an help and susteiner of weak travailers (and accordingly Exod. 21. 19. περιπατῶν ἔξω ἐπὶ ῥάβδῳ walk abroad upon his staffe, and Zach. 8. 4. where the Hebrew is משען fulcrum, a staffe to lean on) or universally for all, when משוה is rendred by it, and when 'tis ῥάβδος ἐν χειρὶ, the staffe in the hand, oft-times in the Old Testament. In which respect perhaps it is, that Mar. 6. 8. where this very commission is recited, they are commanded to carry nothing with them εἰ μὴ ῥάβδον, but a staffe; Which places, though they appear contrary one to another, are yet thus reconcileable, that they were not like sollicitous persons to carry the former kind of staffe that for defence, but the walking staffe they might, like ordinary travailers (and accordingly Lu. 9. 3. μήτε ῥάβδους neither staves, and so the Plantine Edition reads it here) in like manner as in Marke they are allowed to be shod with sandals (ὑποδεδεμένους Σανδάλια) for the journey or travaile, and yet in Matthew they are forbid κεκτῆσθαι ὑποδήματα to possesse shooes (i. e. provide or carry along with them any other then those sandals, which they wore) which 'twere a piece of sollicitude to doe. That all these were the ordinary viatieum for travailers (and accordingly are here forbidden by Christ, who means that they shall not need any such provision) will appeare by Maimonides in Halacha Beth Habbechira, c. 7. where speaking of them that came up to Jerusalem, and forbidding them to come into the Temple in their travailing guise, he expresseth it thus, No man may come into the mount of the Temple with a staffe or shooes, or with a wallet, or with money folded up in a wallet.

One idiome of the sacred Writers may be here taken notice of, who by words imperative, having the form of precept, doe oft-times mean no more then either prediction of what will befall, or else permission of what may lawfully be done by them. So here in the next the 17th verse, ἀποσχίσει ἀπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων,

Κτήσασθε

Πήραν.

* Antiq. convivi l. 1. c. 17. f.

ἀνθρώπων, take heed of the men] is no command of caution or prudentiall behaviour toward the Jewish Sanhedrin, nor was it ſo underſtood by the Apoſtles, who many times did avowdly profeſſe Chriſt before them, when it brought the utmoſt peril upon them; and that they ſhould be ſo uſed by them, is here foretold in the latter part of the verſe, they will deliver you up to the Councels, and they will ſcourge you in their Synagogues, i. e. ye ſhall be deliver'd up and ſcourged by them, and ſo that is all that is meant by ἀπὸ τ.] a prediction that their greateſt danger is from them. So Mat. 23. 32. καὶ ὑμεῖς πληρώσατε and doe ye fill up the meaſure of your fathers, a prediction what they would, no kind of command, what they ſhould doe. So c. 24. 16. Let them that are in Judea, flee unto the mountains, let him that is on the houſe-top not deſcend &c. and v. 20. Pray ye, that your flight be not in the winter, all in form of precept, yet none but the firſt of them is ſo much as an admonition, (and that onely of counſell, prudentially what was beſt for them) all the reſt are but ſo many forms of predictions of the ſuddain, and horrible dangers, that ſhould overtake all that continued in Judea, when that day of vengeance came. So Lu. 21. 19. ἐν τῇ ὑπομονῇ ὑμῶν κτήσασθε τὰς ψυχὰς ὑμῶν, In your patience or perſeverance poſſeſſe ye your ſouls, or lives, Poſſeſſe ye] i. e. there is no ſuch way to keep or preſerve your lives, as perſevering faithfull adherence to Chriſt. So v. 28. When theſe things begin, ἀνακύψατε καὶ ἐπάρατε τὰς κεφαλὰς — look up and lift up your heads, i. e. by thoſe ſignes ye may know that the worſt of your danger is then over, and your redemption draweth nigh. So Lu. 22. 36. Let him that hath a purſe, take it, and he that hath no ſword, let him ſell his garment and buy one, Where ſure there is no command of arming themſelves, or buying ſwords, (if there had, it would have been neceſſary to have had as many ſwords as men, whereas 'tis plain v. 38. that two are ſaid by Chriſt to be ſufficient for the whole company, and after, when Peter drew and ſmote with one of them, he was ſharply reprehended for it,) but only a prediction of the dangers they ſhould run, &c. So 1 Cor. 7. 23. μὴ γίνεσθε δοῦλοι ἀνθρώπων, be not ye made the ſervants of men] which is no precept againſt a Chriſtians ſerving another man, but only a liberty, or permiſſion, that he may lawfully keep, or enjoy his freedome, if he have it by birth, or donation, but not a precept impoſing a neceſſity on him that he muſt. By all which examples it may be conjectured, what weight muſt be laid upon the γίνεσθε φρόνιμοι ὡς ὄφεις, be ye wiſe, or prudent as ſerpents] not that it is a precept of the ſerpentine wiſdome, guarding, and ſecuring themſelves, for ſure 'twas lawfull for them, in the preaching the Goſpel, voluntarily to run the utmoſt hazards, but either by way of prediction, that the wolves, among whom they came, would be very ravenous, and ſo their danger great, or elſe by way of permiſſion, that (provided they kept themſelves perfectly innocent) they might be as wary and prudent as they pleaſed.

g. Ταυτάρκης ἐστ τέλος.

To endure to the end doth here clearly ſignifie a perſevering conſtant adherence to Chriſt, in deſpight of all the perſecutions, that ſhall befall them for the name of Chriſt. And for an encouragement to that, is here added the promiſe that this ſhall be the moſt probable courſe, in the event, to eſcape not only eternall wrath, but even preſent deſtruction here. This will appear by the context which runs thus, The Apoſtles are appointed to go preach firſt to the Iewes peculiarly, and not to any others, till they have done with them, v. 5. they are foretold what uſage they ſhall meet with among them, ſcourging and killing v. 17. and as a means to eſcape the ſharpneſſe of this ill uſage among them, is their flying from one city to another, v. 23. which will ſave or deliver them for the time, and before they ſhall have gone over all the cities of Iſrael, that fatall deſtruction, or coming of the ſon of man v. 23. ſhall be, and ſo ſhall ſuperſede their farther cruelty upon them, and withall involve all thoſe, who, to ſave themſelves, ſhall deny and forſake Chriſt; See v. 39. and Lu. 9. 24. That this is the meaning of σωθήσεται here, as 'tis in many other places, will appear both by Mat. 24. 13. where the ſame words are again uſed in that very buſineſſe, and by Mar. 13. 13. which is paralled to that place; And there theſe words [but he that endureth to the end, ſhall eſcape] are attended immediately with the mention of [the abomination of deſolation] in ſtead of which S. Luke ſets [the encompaſſing of Ieruſalem with armies] (ſee note on Mat. 24. 3.) and the advice to them, which are in Judea, to flie to the mountains, which is a character, by which we may diſcern, to what the eſcaping doth belong; And that σωθήσεται is not alwaies to be interpreted of eternall ſalvation, but of temporall eſcaping (any more then σωτηρία doth Act. 7. 25. where 'tis clearly the deliverance of the Iſraelites out of Ægypt by Moſes) and is directly anſwerable to the Hebrew reciprocall, וְיִמָּלֵט and וְהִנָּצַל, wch Gen. 19. 19. and in other places we render eſcaping, will appear hereafter on occaſion of the phraſe [οἱ σωζόμενοι] Act. 2. 47. and Lu. 13. 23. and 1 Pet. 1. 5. and 2 Pet. 1. 3. And this verſe being thus underſtood, will be all one with that famous prediction of the bird in the Capitol, Ἦρι πλεῖα κρανῶς (ſee Suetonius in Domit. c. 23.) ſpoken ſurely for the comfort of Chriſtians then, in reſpect of their perſecutions, but wreſted to Trajan and Adrian by the Hiſtorian.

Σωτηρία

This is a proverb, or known ſaying among the Hebrewes; Aben Ezra on Hoſ. 1. 2. ſets it down in Hebrew, thus, דֵּי לָעֶבֶד לִהְיוֹת כְּרַבּוֹ. It is enough or ſufficient for the ſervant to be as his maſter, i. e. he hath no reaſon to expect any better portion, hath all reaſon to be content with that. Many other ſuch proverbiall ſpeeches there are, falling from Chriſt, (as purpoſely making uſe of what was good among them, their cuſtomes, their proverbs, their forms of prayer and benediction) So that of Mat. 7. 2. In the meaſure you mete, it ſhall be meaſured to you again. For ſo in that part of the Gemara call'd Sanhedrim we find בְּמִדָּה שֶׁאָדָם מוֹדֵד בָּהּ מוֹדְדִים לוֹ In the meaſure that a man meteth, they ſhall mete to him in that. See c. 19. note c. and 2 Theſſ. 3. 10. and Rom. 14. b.

h. Παροιμίας ἐθνικαὶ.

This phraſe of [hearing in the ear] will be beſt explain'd by referring to the cuſtome of the Iewes mention'd by the Rabbins, who affirm that the Maſters among the Iewes were wont to have their Interpreters, who (as the φωνῆ) of the Oracles) did receive the Dictates of the Maſters, whiſper'd in the eare, and then publickly propoſe them to all; the Maſters dictating ſoftly, but the Interpreters delivering them aloud. Of this Elias Levita ſpeaks

i. Ἀκούειν ἐστ τὸ ὑπ.

in his Thisbi, on the word תרגם, and ſaith that the Interpreter is mention'd Exod. 4. 16. he ſhall be to thee as a mouth (where the Targum reads לתורגמן, the word which is among the Chaldees the title of an Interpreter) and adds that every Pſalme that is inſcribed משכיל, was received from a Maſter, and dictated by an Interpreter. So 'twas an enſigne of a Maſter, to have an Interpreter, In the Excerpta Gemara, tr. de Sanhed. c. 1. §. 7. Dixerunt Jehuda interpreti Reſh Lachiſh, adſta illi in concione, adſtitit, & ſe inclinavit juxta illum, & iſte nihil ei dictavit, Judah the interpreter of Reſh Lachiſh ſtood by him in the aſſembly, and bow'd himſelf to him, and he dictated nothing to him. And in Barachoth, c. 9 Rector Univerſitatis eris, adſtabitque tibi אמורא thou ſhalt be ruler of the Univerſity, and ſhalt have by thee an Interpreter. This Chriſt applies to himſelf and the Diſciples, making himſelf the Maſter, dictating to them the words of life, the New Covenant, which they conſequently are bound κηρύσσειν to proclaim to others, as ſo many κήρυκας, aloud, publickly, on the houſe-top, and not for fear keep in any part of it. As for the phraſe ἐπὶ τῶν δωμάτων on the houſe-top, that is taken from the cuſtome of their flat buildings, plain on the top with battlements about them (ſee note b. on c. 4.) by which means it was both ordinary and very convenient, when any thing was to be proclaimed to the people, to doe it from the top of an houſe, ſtanding on the battlements. So in Hegeſippus there is a remarkable * Eccl. Hiſt. l. 2. c. 23. place cited by * Euſebius, When, ſaith he, by the preaching of James the brother of the Lord, and Biſhop of Ieruſalem, many of the chief of the people believed in Chriſt, Many of the Phariſees and other ſects which believed not, came to him and perſwaded him that he would unſeduce the people, and to that end, at the Paſſeover, when all the people came up to Ieruſalem, they intreat him, thus, στῆσον ἐν τῷ τοίχῳ τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, ἵνα ἄνωθεν ἐν ὑψηλοῖς, καὶ ἐπακούσωσί σου πάντες τοῦ λαοῦ, ſet thy ſelf upon the battlement of the Temple, that from above (i. e. by the advantage of place, as the Latine Interpreter reads it, de ſuperiore loco) thou mayeſt be conſpicuous (or, known who thou art, becauſe by the title of James the Juſt he was ſo reverenced by all the nation, and known by them generally) and thy words eaſily heard by all the people. And accordingly ἔστησε δὲ τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, they ſet him upon a battlement of the Temple, in the very ſame phraſe, that is uſed of the Devil to Chriſt c. 4. 6. in order to the βάλε σεαυτὸν κάτω, caſting himſelf down; To that the ſetting him on the top of the battlement (and not within, ſo as to lean over it) was ſure moſt proper, and ſo 'tis certain that that is the meaning of it c. 4. and by conſequence (the phraſe being to a letter the ſame) in the ſtory of Iames in Hegeſippus alſo, where accordingly it followes ἀναβάντες κατέβαλον λέγοντες, they went up, and caſt him down (and ſo Euſebius cites it there out of Clemens ἀπὸ τοῦ πτερυγίου βεβλῆσθαι, he was caſt down from the battlement) though it ſeems τραυματισθεὶς οὐκ ἀπέθανε, he died not with the fall. From this circumſtance of that ſtory it is moſt probably concluded to be the cuſtome for thoſe that proclaim'd any thing from the houſe-top, to ſtand on the top of the battlements (which accordingly were of a ſufficient breadth to ſtand upon) and not ſo to ſtand within, as to ſpeak over it.

For Ἀσσάριον the Hebrew reads טבע קטן a little piece of money, the Syriack reads אסר Aſor, the Greek word ſo changed by them. The Arabick have Phals, which they uſe to expreſſe the leaſt piece of money that is, and accordingly for λεπτὰ δύο Mar. 12. 42. they read Phalſain the duall from that. CHAP. XI.

Paraphraſe.

1. to give inſtructions, and teach the Goſpel (ſee note on c. 9. 1.)

1 AND it came to paſſe, when Jeſus had made an end of commanding his twelve diſciples, he departed thence [to teach and to preach in their cities.] in the cities whither he now removed.

2. Now John Baptiſt being put in priſon, and in danger of being put to death, and hearing of the miracles done by Chriſt, though (Joh. 1. 34.) he had been ſufficiently convinced, that Chriſt was the Meſſias, and, after the teſtimonies given by him Joh. 3. 32. 36. cannot be imagined to lie open to any doubtings, Yet, to ſatisfie and confirm his diſciples, which were in danger to be thus aſſaulted, being tempted with their Maſters impriſonment and danger, hereupon he ſent two of his diſciples to know of Chriſt, if indeed he were the great Meſſias, or no, that, when he was cut off, his diſciples might not be ſhaken in their belief of Chriſt, but adhere and cleave faſt to him.

4, 5. To this Jeſus anſwered, by giving them the character of the Meſſias, as it lies in the Prophets of the Old Teſtament, of (All which they now ſee verified in him) and to thoſe other parts of curing diſeaſes and raiſing the dead, he added this farther branch, that the humbleſt and meaneſt perſons, thoſe of the loweſt condition, have the glad tidings of the Goſpel preacht to them, as good a ſhare in this bleſſed meſſage as the beſt, and peculiarly they above others are affected, and wrought on by the preaching of it.

c. 6. And for that which concerns their doubting of what before they had beleived, and that founded on John's preſent condition, Chriſt adds (over and above the words of the Prophets) Bleſſed is he, who doth not forſake, or fall off from me in this time (or by occaſion) of temptation, or affliction, (ſuch as now John is in, and) ſuch as ſhall oft befall Chriſtians in this world, Chriſt's office being not to deliver all men in this world out of ſuch, but to ſhew them the way to ſuffer patiently, and to conquer by ſuffering.

7. And

7. And as they departed, [Jesus began to say to the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wildernesse to see? a reed shaken with the wind?]

7. Jesus thought fit, upon this occasion, to give the people a right notion of John the Baptist, which consequently would give them a more perfect knowledge of himself, Johns office being wholly subservient to the revealing of Christ. Thus therefore he began to them, What was it that so many of you went out into the wildernesse to behold? was it a reed, such as the wind playes with there in the wilderneſſe, any trifle of so little moment and so ordinary to be seen there? Sure your going out to him was not on so childish an errand.

8. But what went ye out for to see? A man cloathed in soft rayment? Behold, they that wear soft cloathing, are in kings houses.]

8. Or was it any glorious gallant person in splendid array? sure such an one you would not have look't for in a desert, but a court, and you know 'twas quite contrary of him, You found him in an austere habit and diet, and therefore you cannot now imagine that he is troubled with the confinement or danger he is in, so that he should presently be cast into doubts, or be changed so soon to so much weaknesse of faith from so much strength, Certainly he that lived in a wildernesse and observed that habit and diet there, is not now troubled at all that he is from Herods court cast into prison.

9. But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and [d] more then a prophet.]

9. No, 'tis certain, you went out to him, d.. as to a prophet, and of him I must tell you, that he is a great Prophet, nay of a pitch beyond all the prophets that ever went before him, a direct herald, and harbinger of Christ.

10. For this is he, of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before [e] thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee.]

10. For himself was prophecied of by the e. other Prophets, that he should be the forerunner of the Messias, and when he came, he did accordingly, pointing at him, This is he &c. Joh. 1. 30.

11. Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women, there hath not risen a greater then John the Baptist; notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdome of heaven, is greater then he.]

11. Of him I shall freely say, that among all the Prophets or speciall persons which since the beginning of the world have been by God sent to any office in his Church, John Baptist is absolutely the greatest, honour'd with more signall revelations, then any of the old prophets, Joh. 1. 32. seeing the holy Ghost come down upon me &c. And yet let me tell you, that an Apostle of mine, the meanest or least of them, whether in respect of revelations (having to those of his, many others superadded) and the power of miracles, which John had not, Joh. 10. 41. and the holy Ghost visibly descending on them, or whether in respect of office, sent by Christ to testifie his resurrection, to convert first, and then to rule the Church after me, is to be look't on, as a farre greater person and more honourable officer, then John Baptist, who is no prophet himself, but only the forerunner, and so disciple, servant of a prophet.

12. And from the daies of John the Baptist * untill now, the kingdome of heaven [f] suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.]

* as yet, ἕως ἄρτι

12. And yet after all this so acknowledg'dly true of John, it is most sadly considerable, how after all Johns preaching of me, and all Judæa's going out to him, c. 3. 5. (and even the Pharisees and Sadducees many of them v. 7.) and their being baptized of him into the beleif of the Messias (first preached, and then pointed out by him, and testified, This is he) yet from that time till this, all this while to this houre, scarce any but the multitude, and meaner crowd of the Jewes, come into the Gospel, together with the Publicans, and Sinners, or Gentile men among you, who are looked on by the Jews as those, which have no right to the Messias, and so as violent persons, invaders, intruders. The wise and learned among you, who could not but know him to be a prophet, and consequently in any reason should have given the readiest obedience to his doctrine, and so according to his direction have beleived in me (as finding him so distinctly foretold by the prophets, as the forerunner of the Messias) doe not receive either of us. They were the men which received not the Baptist, c. 21. 24. 32. whereas all beside them (as tis there said v. 25.) the multitudes, Lu. 3. 10. the publicans v. 12. the souldiers v. 14. were very observant disciples of his; and in like manner ever since, the multitudes, and the publicanes, from whom 'twas least to be expected, they have beleived on me, but the principall men, Pharisees, and Doctors, &c. they oppose and blaspheme, v. 18. 19. And thus, as when a house is broken up by thieves, those of the family are deprived and all is parted among invaders, so is it now, the eminent Jewes are deprived of all their part in the Gospel, and only the more ignorant multitude, and the publicans, &c. they divide it among them. f.

13. For all the prophets and the law prophecied untill John.]

13. For the Law and Prophets all of them, i. e. the Writers of the Old Testament, had a propheticall relation to the Messias, darkly and afarre off, described Christ, in types and predictions, and so continued to doe, till John came, but he, beyond them all, by way of indication, pointed at him, as actually present, whom all others foretold as future, and at a distance.

* receive him, this. δέξασθαι, αὐτός

14. And if ye will * receive it, this is Elias, which was for to come.

14. And whether you will or will not receive him, take it, how you will, This is that Elias prophecied of in Malachi, to usher in a new state, and the Messias the prince of it.

15. He that hath eares to hear, let him hear.]

15. And the embracing of his doctrine or message, is a matter of huge concernment, and they that doe not embrace it, will not excuse themselves from the crime and punishment of obstinate wilfull blindnesse.

16. But whereunto shall I liken [this generation? It is like unto] children sitting in the markets, and calling unto their fellowes, 16, 17. the chief men of this age among the Jewes, the Pharisees, &c. Their dealing with John & Christ is just the same that ye have seen boyes playing in the streets, sportingly complain of, telling their fellows that they will doe nothing as they should, neither follow them in their mirth, nor their sadnesse. For just so these, whatsoever kind of messages God sends to them, they respect and obey them not, nay some great exceptions still they have to the messengers, to contrary sorts of them, contrary exceptions, first one exception they have to John, and then another quite contrary to Christ. g.

17. We have piped unto you, and ye have not daunced, we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.]

18. For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say he hath a devil.]

18. If John use a diet more austere then ordinary, then they that are the wise men among you, Pharisees, Doctors of the Law, look on him as a mad man, a melancholy, hypochondriacall person. See Job. 7. 6.

25. About that time it was, that Jeſus upon ſome occaſion taken, probably that of v. 19. founded on the cloſe of v. 5. (his being received by the meaner, and refuſed by the higher ſort) brake out into an affectionate expreſſion of thanks to God, that thoſe myſteries of the Goſpel, which the wiſe men of the world deſpiſed, (and were thereupon given up by God to their own wilfull blindneſſe) were yet by him revealed to the meaneſt and moſt ignorant, i.e. that God had ſo diſpoſed the way to heaven, that the moſt ignorant, and moſt humble, not the moſt illuminated, and moſt proud were moſt ready to receive, and embrace it.

a. Ἐρχόμενος The propheceyes of Chriſt as the Meſſias of the Jews, by them expected, (and alſo of the Gentiles, though by them not ſo diſcern'd) were ſo plain in the Old Teſtament under the title of Shilo coming &c. and yet the perſon or name of him ſo unknown, that he was by them wont to be expreſs'd by ſome circumlocutions particularly by this of [ὁ ἐρχόμενος he that cometh] as it appears by the continuing that phraſe both here, and Heb. 10. 37. Mat. 21. 9. Lu. 7. 20. 13. 35. Joh. 12. 13. and Lu. 19. 38. by ἐρχόμενος βασιλεὺς the coming king (and ſo the ſtate of Chriſtianity is βασιλεία ἐρχομένη the coming kingdome, Mar. 11. 10. and in Iſ. 9. 6. μέλλων αἰὼν the age to come, in the Septuagint's rendring) by which is diſtinctly meant the Meſſias entring on thoſe great offices, to which he was deſign'd and deſtin'd by God. Μέλλουσα οἰκουμένη, ἀιὼν.

It

b. It is an idiome ordinary in these Books of the Old, & new Testament, that passive verbs (by a Metonymie of the effect) comprehend & import the reality of the effect of the passion, or a willing reception of the impression, i. e. note the patient not only to receive influxes from the Agent, but to be effectually chang'd by the passion. So Isai. 65. 1. I am sought of them that asked not for me, Where 'tis clear that seeking, and asking for, are all one, Aske and ye shall have, seek and ye shall find, saith our Saviour, directly in the same sense, And therefore it cannot be imagined how they that have not asked for God, he may yet be truly affirmed to be sought by them. It remains therefore that [to be sought] must here be understood cum effectu, so as to have the effect of finding, attend it, and so 'tis distinctly interpreted by that which follows, I am found by them which sought me not, Where as [sought me not] is equivalent to [asked not for me] so [I am found] is directly all one with [I am sought] in the beginning of the verse. And accordingly Rom. 10 20. where these words of the Prophet are cited, in stead of [I am sought of them] the Apostle reads [I was made manifest unto them.] So ἐξίστημι, turned out of the way, Tit. 3. 11. signifies not only the being perswaded, and turned, and perverted by another, but the having really received the impression, being effectually wrought on, and corrupted by seducers. So [πειράζειν to be tempted] Gal. 6. 1. is [to be wrought on by temptation] or else the possibility of it would not be used, as an argument to inforce so much Christian care, and meekness toward him, who is overtaken in a fault. [So σκανδαλίζειν to be scandaliz'd] is to be wrought on (brought into sin, actually discouraged in the waies of Godliness) by the scandall laid in his way, (as in this very verse) and so here 'Ευαγγελίζειν to be Evangeliz'd] is to be wrought on by the preaching of the Gospel (not only to have it preach't to them,) which is peculiarly observed of the poor, humble-minded man, of whom 'tis therefore said, under the embleme of the little children, that of such is the kingdome of heaven, the Christian Church is made up of such (see Jam. 2. 5.) whereas the proud resist, and despise, and stand out against it. The vulgar Latine have rendred it agreeably to this sense, Evangelizantur pauperes, the poor are Evangeliz'd. Another sense there is, whereof the words are capable, thus, that the promises of Christ, and all the good newes and beatitudes of the Gospel pertain to the poor, humble soul. So Heb. 4. 2. ἡμῖν εὐαγγελιζόμενοι seems to signifie, The promises of the Gospel were offer'd to us. But this will be contain'd under the former sense, for if they have the Gospel preacht to them, and are effectually wrought on by it, then sure the Gospel pertains to them. The true and compleat sense of the phrase will thus best be fetch't out, These two verses, 4th, and 5th, are Christ's way of answering John, and assuring him that he is the Messias, by giving him the characteristicall marks of the Messias in the prophets, and shewing him how visibly they belong to him. The places in the Prophets, on which he pitcheth, are chiefly these three, first Isa. 29. 18, 19. where the Greek read ἀκούσονται ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἐκείνῃ οἱ κωφοὶ, in that day the deaf shall hear, καὶ ἀναβλέψουσιν τυφλῶν ὀφθαλμοὶ, καὶ ἀγαλλιάσονται οἱ πτωχοὶ διὰ κύριον ἐν εὐφροσύνῃ, and the eyes of the blind shall see (on occasion of which he further adds what was then frequently done of the same kind, the lepers are cleansed, and the dead are raised) and the poor shall rejoice because of the Lord with mirth. The second is Isa. 61. 1. The Lord hath anointed me εὐαγγελίσασθαι πτωχοῖς — καὶ τυφλοῖς ἀνάβλεψιν to proclaim glad tidings to the poor, and recovering of sight to the blind. The third is Isa. 35. 5, 6. Then the eyes of the blind shall be open'd, and the eares of the deaf shall heare, the lame shall leap, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing, By the two former the sense of [εὐαγγελίζονται] will be guess't at, one whereof makes it the mark of the Messias to preach to the poor, and so in the rendring of this place here this active office of Christ must be taken notice of, and then the reall passive sense also, as it belongs to us, must be superadded to it, proportionable to the poors joyfull receiving the Gospel, in Isaiah. So Psal. 68. 10, 11. God's providing for the poor, is express't by [the Lord gave his word, great was the multitude of preachers] and that referres to the first part, the preaching to them, And to the second, that of their receiving it, see Zeph. 3. 12, 13. the afflicted poor people shall trust in the name of the Lord, &c. see also Zach. 11. 11. The Hebrew edition both of Munster, and Mercer, reads עניים ישרו the poor are made blessed, But 'tis probable that that is a misreading for יבשרו they are Evangeliz'd, in either of the former senses.

Ἑτεροῖς ἕτερον ἐξίστασθαι

Πειράζειν

Σκανδαλίζειν

Εὐαγγελίζειν

The use of the word [σκάνδαλον scandall] in the sacred (being seldome, or never found in the antient profane) Writers, is once for all to be observed, It is either naturall (as generally in the Old Testament) or metaphoricall, (as chiefly in the New) It naturally signifies three things, 1. a trap, a gin, or snare to catch any thing: So in the Greek translation of Psal. 69. 22. the word is used (being joyned with two other words which signifie * snare and gin) and therefore in the place of Rom. 11. 9. where the same words are cited out of the Septuagints translation, and not out of the Hebrew text of the Psalme, it should be rendred by analogie, not stumbling block, but gin, or some other word belonging to this signification. In this sense it is used 1 Mac. 5. 4. where it is all one with snare, and it is farther interpreted by (laying wait by the way) to catch them treacherously. So again Wisd. 14. 11. the word is used, and explained by another word, signifying a trap or snare, the very same that is used in the Psalmes and to the Romans. 2ly, It signifies any obstacle, or hindrance laid in a mans way, by which the passenger is detained, or stopped, peculiarly a sharp stake, such as in time of warre men were wont to put in the fields, where their enemy should follow, to wound their feet or legs in the passage: against which being so ordinary in warre, they anciently used greaves of brasse, to defend their feet, or legs, 1 Sam. 17. 6. Thus is the word σκάνδαλον used, Judith 5. 1. where we render it impediments, a word somewhat too generall to signifie those sharp stakes, or other instruments to wound, or gall the passengers, which are known by the name of gall-trappes. 3ly, The word signifies a stone, or block in the way, at which men are apt (if they be not carefull, or if they goe in the dark) to stumble, and fall: and thereupon in the Old Testament it is taken for a fall, and so sometimes for sin, the fall of the soule, as Judith 12. 2. in which sense,

I conceive, 'tis uſed Judg. 8. 27. where 'tis rendred a ſnare, i. e. a ſin enſnaring, or occaſioning ruine. Beſide theſe three ſignifications there is no other, ſave once, Pſal. 50. 20. for ſlander, or calumny, or defamation. Now for the uſe of the word in the New Teſtament, the firſt place in which we find it is Mat. 13. 41. the Angels ſhall gather out all ſcandals, in a ſenſe borrowed from the ſecond ſignification of a ſharp ſtake, which he who hath once met with, and been galled by it, is wont to gather up, and caſt into the fire, as there it follows, the Angels for our ſakes ſhould doe, v. 24. (to which S. Paul alſo ſeems to allude 2 Cor. 11. 29. in putting ſcandalizing, and burning together) and denotes ſimply whatſoever may wound, or gall us in our Chriſtian courſe, and by that means cauſe us to ſlacken, or give over, or lie down in the ſervice of Chriſt, So Mat. 17. 27. Chriſt payes tribute, that he may not offend the Jewes, i. e. that they might not think him a contemner of the Temple, to which the tribute was due, and ſo forſake, and not beleive in him, that he might not diſcourage them from following him. So Mat. 15. 12. The Phariſees hearing a doctrine, that gall'd them particularly, ἐσκανδαλίζοντο, were offended, and forſook him, that doctrine drave them away from following him. So Mat. 18. 7. it muſt needs be that offences come, of hereſies, and exemplary ſins. So Mat. 18. 6. He that ſhall offend one of theſe little ones, i. e. he that ſhall occaſion their falling off into any ſin, or by contemning them, diſcourage them from the ſtudy of piety. So Chriſt crucified is ſaid a ſcandall to the Jews, i. e. they that followed him w^th^ the multitudes, when they ſaw him crucified, were quite diſcouraged, and fell away from him, reſolving that he was not the Meſſias, To which belongs this place here, and Lu. 7. 23. Bleſſed is he that ſhall not be offended in me, i. e. ſhall not be gall'd, and diſcouraged, and ſo fall off by ſeeing the ſufferings, that befall me, and await my diſciples or followers. So again Mat. 13. 57. Mar. 6. 3. It is ſaid, that the conſideration of his known, and mean birth occaſioned their being offended at him, i. e. their deſerting, and not beleiving of him, when the miracles, which he had done, inclined them ſomewhat to a valuing of him. So Ioh. 6. 61. when Chriſt talks of eating the fleſh of the ſon of man, they were offended, i. e. that ſpeech carnally underſtood, either that Chriſt was to die (which the eating his fleſh preſuppoſed, and they did not like to hear of, dreaming of a temporall glorious Meſſias) or that they were to turn Canibals, and eat mans fleſh, diſcouraged them from following him, at leaſt from taking him to be the Meſſias. So Gal. 5. 11. perſecution is called the ſcandall of the Croſſe, or that, upon which ſo many are diſcouraged from profeſſing the crucified Saviour, according to that in the parable of the ſower. Mat. 13. 21. Mar. 4. 17. upon the coming of perſecution preſently he is offended, i. e. galled, and falls off, and Mat. 24. 10. on the ſame occaſion, and in the ſame ſenſe. So Mat. 26. 31. Mar. 14. 27. this night (to wit of my attachment) ye ſhall all be offended becauſe of mee, i. e. fall back, and forſake me: and ſo in S. Peter's anſwer, v. 23. Although all men ſhould be offended, yet will I never be offended; upon which, that which Chriſt replies (before the cock crow, i. e. before morning, thou ſhalt deny me thrice) is an interpretation of the word [offended] and ſhews that [to be offended] is to deny Chriſt. And ſo Ioh. 16. 1. Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you, that ye ſhould not be offended; where Chriſt foretells the perſecutions, that ſhould befall them, that they might be forewarned too, and not fall off, when they befall them, And thus Rom. 14. 13. where πρόσκομμα ἢ σκάνδαλον are joyned, the firſt ſignifies the ſtumbling block, the 2^d^ the gall-trap, the firſt apt to keep one from coming to Chriſtianity, the ſecond to drive one away, to diſcourage in the courſe, both which the Iewiſh Chriſtians then did, by binding the Gentile converts to the Moſaicall Law, and the Gentile converts alſo by deſpiſing the ſcrupulous Iewes. And the ſame is the importance of v. 21. where [ſtumbling and ſcandalized] are put together. Other places there are which muſt be interpreted by bringing the metaphore from the firſt of the three ſenſes, as it ſignifies a ſnare, or gin. So Mat. 16. 23. Thou art an offence unto me, i. e. by expreſſing thy deteſtation againſt my ſufferings, thou laboureſt to bring me into an horrour, or fear of ſuffering, and ſo in effect tempteſt me to ſin. In the ſame ſenſe is that Rev. 2. 14. of Balaam, who taught Balak βαλεῖν σκάνδαλον, to lay a ſnare for the children of Iſrael to entice them by their daughters to Idolatry, and by Idolatry to intrap, and deſtroy them. In this ſenſe ſcandall is ſo perfectly all one with temptation, that, as a * learned man hath obſerved, the Æthiopick Interpreter of the New Teſtament, in ſtead of ſcandall puts a word that ſignifies * temptation, and the ſame that in the Lord's prayer is put for temptation: In this ſenſe is that of the eye, and foot offending us, Mat. 5. 29. 18. 8. Mar. 9. 47. i. e. when a mans eye, or any other member of his body proves a ſnare to him, an inlet to temptation. A third ſort of places there are that referre to the third mention'd acception of the word, as it ſignifies a ſtumbling block, ſo when the word [ſtone] is joyned with it, or the Greek word which ſignifies ſtumbling. So Rom. 9. 33. Chriſt is called a ſtumbling block, a rock of offence, i. e. an occaſion of fall, or ſin in many, and conſequently of increaſing their condemnation, as he ſaith, if he had not come, &c. they had not had ſin, i. e. had not been ſo great ſinners, had not been guilty of the great ſin of unbelief, and crucifying of Chriſt. So 1 Pet. 2. 8. Chriſt is called a ſtone of ſtumbling, and rock of offence, at which to ſtumble is to be diſobedient to Chriſt. So again 1 Cor. 8. 9. ſtumbling block to the weak, and ſo v. 13. To this may belong that other place 1 Ioh. 2. 10. where that phraſe [there is no ſcandall in him] ſeems to ſignifie, falls not into thoſe ſins, that ignorant men, or uncharitable (who are ſaid in the Antitheſis v. 11. to walk in the dark] are ſubject unto. By this brief view will appear the ſeverall acceptions, and notions of this word in all the places of the New Teſtament. As for the bleſſedneſſe, which is here attributed to thoſe which are not ſcandalized at Chriſt, diſcouraged, or gall'd by the perſecutions, which befall Chriſt and his followers, this is here ſuperadded by him to the other parts of the Character given him in the Prophets, purpoſely in conſideration of Iohns preſent condition, now being in priſon, which might occaſion ſome doubts to his diſciples, whether Chriſt, whoſe forerunner he was, were indeed the Meſſias, or no.

eleven degrees of prophecy, of which (saith he) only Nine were of true, gennine prophesy, or properly so called; the other two being sublime transcendent sorts, somewhat more excellent then ordinary prophecy. One of these he there defines to be that, which comes on the man without dream, or extasie, the speaking by the Holy Ghost. Of this sort was John the Baptist, who was clearly told by the Father (Mat. 3. 17. Joh. 1. 33. and by the descent of the Spirit of God) and accordingly proclaim'd as clearly to others, that Christ was the lamb of God, &c. so farre that he is said to speak only as a witnesse, not as a prophet, Joh. 1. 7. In this respect it is, that he is called by so many other styles, The voice of one crying, Mar. 1. 3. a proclaimer, a herald, v. 4. a messenger of Gods, v. 2. μέγας a great, illustrious person, Lu. 1. 15. and one filled with the Holy Ghost, and, by way of excellence, the prophet of the most high, v. 76. but never simply a prophet, unlesse it be Lu. 7. 28. where yet the words may be best rendred thus, that no prophet born of a woman is greater then John the Baptist, where Baptist, not Prophet is his only title (and therefore in the 11th verse of this Chapter, the word [Prophet] is left out of the expression) only a comparison made betwixt him and all the prophets, and so Lu. 16. 16. where 'tis said, that the prophets continued till John, not including him in that number, but referring him to the higher classis of a forerunner of Christ, or a preacher of the Gospel, for so it followes, From that time the kingdome of God, i. e. Christianity is preached, and to the same sense it is, that here he is said to be one, or somewhat ἐξαίρετον προφήτου, superior to a prophet, viz: in respect of the clearnesse of God's shewing Christ to him, and his revealing him to others, pointing at him, ἰδοὺ, behold. But yet because this office of forerunner was the office of disciples (see Mat. 26. 18.) and consequently John was only a disciple, and messenger imployed by Christ, therefore being compared with the Apostles, who were to be rulers of the Church, it is here said, that the least of them is greater then he, designed to a more honourable imployment.

c. That which is here [before thy face] is in Malachi c. 3. 1. [before my face] and so thereby it appears, that Christ (here referred to in the [thy]) is there all one with God the Father; or yet farther, that the [face of God] signifying often his coming, or his presence, (and sending before his face, sending an harbinger or forerunner in a journey, Lu. 9. 52.) this coming of Christ into the world, is the coming of God himself, this presence of his on the earth, the presence of God himself, and so the ἱλαστήριον or covering of the Arke noting the presence of God appears to have been meant as a type of Christ, Rom. 3. 25.

f. Βιάζεται] notes a thing being taken by one, that hath no legall acknowledg'd right to it, βιαίως κρατεῖ, saith Hesychius, it is taken and violently possest (βία signifying ἡ ἐκ ἁρπαγῆς ἀδικίαν, saith Phavorinus, injustice by over-ruling power) Thus when the people of Israel were forbidden to goe up to Sinai, their going up thither is in the Greek expres't by βιάζεσθαι Exod. 19. 24. Thus in the * Talmud, Two men had an inheritance equally divided betwixt them, and one of them carried his own part away, and his fellowes too, therefore they called him בן פריצא the son of violence, a violent dealer, the very βιαστὴς here. Thus the kingdome of heaven being as an Inheritance provided for all Jewes and Gentiles, and the Jewes being in a manner the elder brother, the Gospel being first by appointment preach't to them, the chief cities thereof, Corazin, Bethsaida, and Capernaum, nay Jerusalem it self have not been so carefull to look after it, especially the principall persons among them, Doctors and High-Priests, &c. but continue to contradict and oppose it, and then the multitudes and meaner sort of the Jewes, the people, which, say the Doctors, know not the law, and are accursed, and those that dwelt in Idumaea, Tyre, and Sidon, (see cap. 12. 15. compared with Mar. 3. 8.) and of Galilee, so despised by the Pharisees, that they said proverbially, no good thing comes out from thence (and besides them, the Publicanes and Sinners) they carry all away, and proportionably are called here βιασταὶ, violent persons; and the Gospel, which primarily, and (as 'twas by them conceived) legally belonged not to them (and therefore 'tis one of the Pharisees arguments against Christ's being the Messias [Have any of the Rulers or Pharisees beleived on him? but these people &c.] and another that he eat with Publicans and Sinners]) is now wholly enclosed and engross't by them. That this is the meaning of the verse, will appear by what followes, where 'tis said over again in other expressions. Parallel to v. 11. (where the office of John is extoll'd) is v. 13, 14. which discriminates him from the Law and the Prophets, i. e. all that went before him, and points him out as the famous Ἠλίας ὁ μέλλων, Elias that was to come, and parallel to this twelfe verse, (which, I say, contains the Doctors and Rulers contemning, and the multitudes, and Publicanes, and peoples receiving the Gospel) is v. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24. But that which will make this most manifest is, that Lu. 7. (where this story of the Baptist's sending to Christ, and Christ's testimony of him, and the parable here immediately following of piping and mourning is set down) in the very place of the words of this verse (which are not there repeated by him) he sets down these, καὶ πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ἀκούσας καὶ οἱ τελῶναι ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεὸν &c. And all the people (i. e. the common sort) and the Publicans justified God, having been (or, in that they were) baptized with the baptisme of John, but the Pharisees and the Lawyers, i. e. the chief men, those of the Sanhedrim or Consistories, the Rulers, or men in authority among them, rejected the counsell of God toward themselves, having not been (or, in that they were not) baptized of him. And if it be objected that many of the Pharisees, and Sadducees came to his baptisme, Mat. 3. 7. the answer is clear, that by Pharisees, &c. there, are meant some of the people, that were of those sects, and by the Baptist's wondring, and asking who had forewarn'd them to flie &c. 'tis clear, that the rest of them, the greatest and most considerable for number or quality, did not come; and as clear it is, that those were the men, that said of the Baptist, he had a devil, v. 18. of this chap. because those were they, that call'd Christ glutton and wine-drinker, a friend of Publicans and sinners; and therefore when S. Luke repeats the words of this verse (out of the place) c. 16. 16. it is πᾶς βιάζεται every one (i. e. the meanest, not the chief of the Jewes, and not only Jewes, but Publicans, &c.) forceth into it, robs the Rulers and Doctors of it, and those words are there said to be used by Christ, directly in reply to the Pharisees, who mock't and rejected his doctrine, ver. 14.

* Joma c. 4. fol. 30. 2.

g. Παιδάρια ἐν ἀγοραῖς

It was the custome of Children among the Jewes in their sports to imitate what they saw done by others upon greater occasions; And particularly the customes in Festivities, wherein the Musician beginning a tune on his instrument, the company danced to his pipe; and so likewise the customes in Funerals, wherein some old women beginning the mournfull song (as the preface among the Latines) the rest followed lamenting and beating their breasts, Alas my brother! Ah his glory! &c. (of this custome in funerals, see note on c. 9. h.) These did the children act and personate in the streets in play, and when one had begun to act the Musicians part, or another the old womans part, and the rest did not follow him in theirs, then was the occasion of this speech, which is here mention'd, We have piped &c.

h. Δικαιωθῆναι

The Scripture notion of the word δικαιοῦν (as of the Hebrew צדקת and the Syriack אודקת Ezdaadkat, wch are here used,) is known & vulgar, [justified, approved] And if that be here received, then the καὶ, and ! the ordinary copulatives, which are used both here, and Lu. 7. 35. must either be rendred [but] as those copulatives, especially the Hebrew !, sometimes are, or else this other importance, and connexion with the Antecedents they may have. The men of this age, i.e. the Rulers, and Pharisees, and Doctors, which reject the counsell of God toward them, i. e. God's wise and various methods of reducing them, Lu. 7. 30. doe quarrell and complain and except against all that is done, either by John, or Christ, v. 18, 17, 18. and by doing so, bear a testimony that this is the true wisdome of the Father, which according to predictions was to be refused by all the Great ones, and approved, and entertained only by the meaner sort, the Publicans, and the people, which in this part of the history, are by S. Luke said to have justified God, Lu. 7. 29. Πᾶς ὁ λαὸς ἀκούσας καὶ οἱ τελῶναι ἐδικαίωσαν τὸν Θεὸν, all the people that heard, and the Publicans, justified God. And then the υἱοὶ σοφίας children of wisdome] here are those that receive it, that pretending least to the wisdome of the world, have yet humility enough to receive this true wisdome which comes from above, when 'tis offer'd to them. And all these, as S. Luke reads v. 35. doe approve or justifie this wisdome, this counsell, these most gracious, and wise proceedings of God toward them. This rendring of the place is sure most agreeable to the Scripture style, and acception of δικαιοῦν, and also with the ordinary rendring of καὶ, (not but, but) and, and therefore is to be preferr'd as the cleerest interpretation. Yet if the use of δικαιοῦν, among antient Greek authors should be consider'd, another rendring there might be, which would be competible with the [καὶ and] as that ordinarily signifies, and agreeable to the context also. Phavorinus and Suidas, two learned Grammarians render δικαιῶ, καταδικάζω to condemn, and δικαίωσις, κατάκρισις, condemnation, and so Thucydides uses it, I. 3. ὑμᾶς αὐτοὺς μᾶλλον δικαιώσετε, you shall rather condemn your selves, and so the Greek Scholiast there understands it, and explains it by δικαίως καθ' ὑμῶν ἀποδείξεται ὅτι τυραννικὰς ἄρχετε, you shall demonstrate against your selves that you reign tyrannously, i.e. you shall condemn your selves So again l. 8. p. 499. τὸ δεσπόζειν ὅτι ζήτησις, ὅτι δικαίωσις ἐγγένηται, where the Scholiast saith, δικαίωσις ἀντὶ τῆς κόλασις, ἢ εἰς δίκην ἀπαγωγὴ, ἤτοι κρίσις, it is taken for punishing, impleading, judging. So in Hesychius, δικαιῶσαι, κολάσαι to punish (as the Judge doth when he gives sentence of punishment) and so Harpocration observes it, to signifie oft in Thucydides, Ὁ μέντοι Θουκυδίδης πολλάκις τὸ δικαίωσιν ἀντὶ τοῦ κολάσεως τίθεται, and so Julius Pollux too, and so Synesius uses it, Ep. 44. μείζων ὄντως ἀγαθὸν τὸ μὴ ἁμαρτεῖν, δεύτερον ἀγαθὸν τὸ δικαιωθῆναι, The greatest good is that men offend not, the second, that they be punish't who doe; which appears to be the sense by the πίσις and πίστις, that preceded. Thus doe our Northern and Scotchmen use the phrase [to be justified] for to be hanged, and our Common-law forms of commission to the Judges, are Precipimus tibi, quod tu justicies, we command thee that thou shalt justifie in condemning, as well as absolving. Should this notion of the word be here thought appliable, then the sense would be this. At the coming and preaching of Christ, and that wisdome from above, to the Jewes, the learned, and chief, and wisest among them, those of the Sanhedrim (which by an Hebraisme may be called the children of wisdome) either wisemen, or those which of all others pretended most to divine knowledge, i. e. the Pharisees, Doctors of the Law &c. Lu. 7. 30. rejected Christ, and all the waies of preaching the Gospel to them, and this they did universally, all, saith S. Luke (not all the Jewes, but) all the wisemen, all the sons of wisdome, Lu. 7. 35. These, though in reason they should have acknowledg'd Christ before all others, he being wisdome it self, and they the great pretenders to divine wisdome, did yet prove the greatest enemies, opposers, exceptours, arguers, quarrellers, against it, held out most impenitently, v. 21. and which way soever the addresse was made to them, they had still exceptions against it, v. 18, 19. and at length (in the Attick sense of the word δικαιῶν) caused him to be condemn'd and put to death, executed the wisdome of the Father, Christ himself, But the former appears (by comparing it with S. Luke) to be the sense of it.

i. Ἅδης

Ἅδης doth not signifie here, the place of Hell, but a state of perishing or dissolution; And becaus̄e this is the first place, wherein the word is used in this book, It will not be amiss, more largely to clear the notion of it: Among profane writers it is cleare that the word signifies not the place of the damned, no nor any kind of place, either common to both, or proper to either bliss, or woe, but only the state of the dead, Thus in * Cornutus ἐν ἅδῃ οὐκεῖν, is interpreted by ἐν ἀοράτῳ κεῖσθαι, to be no body knows where, according to the definition of death in Job c. 14. 10. man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? and agreeable to the Etymologie of the word, ἅδης quasi ἀιδὴς, an invisible state, (and so in the Rhetors, * Severus Sophista, &c. tis generally call'd not Ἅδης, but Ἀΐδης) And therefore, saith he, the meaning of that fable of Hades stealing Ceres's daughter, is the perishing of Corn in the earth, ὁ γὰρ νόμος ὅτι χρόνον τινὰ τῶν σπερμάτων κατὰ γῆς ἀφανισμὸς, the disappearing of the seeds in the earth for some time,

* Cornut: περὶ τῆς τῶν θεῶν φύσ: p. 10.

* Φησὶν ὁ Σεβῆρος ὁ σοφιστὴς

which word ἀφανισμὸς (directly the same with ᾅδης) is taken absolutely for death, 2 *Mac.*5.12. and is the periphrasis of death in the Psalmist, before I go hence, and be no more seen, and so Heb. 8.13. that which grows old, is ἐγγὺς ἀφανισμοῦ, neer to disappearing, or death. So * again Ἅδης is call'd Πλούτων, the rich man, ὅτι μηδὲν ἔστιν, ὃ μὴ πλουτῶν εἰς ἀΐδην κατοίσεται, καὶ αὐτῷ κῦμα γίνεται, because there is nothing which doth not at last come to it, and become its possession. The same is meant by him, when he defines Ἅδης the last ayre that receives souls, not referring to any particular place, but that state of the dead, which the Atheist, Wisd. 2. calls the vanishing as the soft aire; So Heraclitus * περὶ ἀΐδου: speaking of the helmet of Hades, which makes men invisible, he saith it is τὸ τέλος the end, or death of every man, εἰς ὃ ἀπελθὼν τελευτήσας ἀφανὴς γίνεται, to which he that comes, becomes invisible, Thus in those which are call'd the Sibyllin Oracles (if they were not written by a Christian) upon occasion of this close, --πρὶν δ' ἂν ὑποδύξαλο Ἅδης, Hades received them, this account is given of Ἅδης,

Ἅδην δ' ἄνδρα κέλευθος, ἐπεὶ σφῶϊν μόλεν Ἀδαμ
Γδουπήσαν θανάτῳ, γαιαδὲ μὲν ἀμφεκάλυψε.
Τύνηα δὲ πάντες ὅσοι χθονίοις γεγαῶτες
Ἀνέρες εἰν Ἀΐδαο δόμοις ἴσαν ἡγεμόνευον.

Where tis clear that Hades is the common state of the dead, when their bodies are laid in the grave, the condition not only of the wicked, nor only of the godly, but of the πάντες ὅσοι χθονίοις all mortall men, who, as there follows, εἰν Ἀΐδαο μολοῦντες Τιμὴν ἔχουσι, when they were gone to Hades, were honour'd by us. So in Philemons Iambicks

Καὶ γὰρ κατ' ᾅδου δύο τρίβους νομίζουσι,
Μίαν δικαίων, χἀτέραν ἀσεβῶν ἰδίαν.

There are two paths in Hades, one of the righteous, the other of the wicked. In the Scriptures of the Old Testament, the word is used accordingly, of Jacob, Gen. 37.35. κατάβήσομαι πρὸς τὸν υἱόν μου πενθῶν εἰς ᾅδου, I will goe (not to the grave, for he thought his son devoured by wild beasts, but) to Hades, i.e. out of this life to my son mourning. So Esth: 13.7. εἰς τὸ ᾅδου κατελθόντες] signifies to die, v.6. to be kill'd, for that heathen King cannot be thought to dream of hell. So Bar: 3.19. καταβάντες εἰς ᾅδου] is joyned with [ἀφανισθέντες] and so signifies death, being there set to note the vanishing transitory estate of men, who die, and are succeeded by others. So 3. Mac: πλησίον ᾅδου, μᾶλλον δὲ ἐγγὺς αὐτοῦ βαδίζοντες, They that are neer Hades, or the state of the dead, or rather are come at it. So when Act. 2. 27. out of Psal. 19. 10. we read of the soul in Ἅδης, as the soul signifies the living soul, so Hades must be the state of the dead, the state of separation of soul from body, So *Apoc.*6. 8. after the mention of death is added and Hades, i. e. continuance in death, of both which together 'tis accordingly said, that they had power to kill with sword &c. and c.20. 14. Death and Hades are cast into the lake of fire, and v.13. gave up those that were in it, which sure cannot be said of hell, from whence there is no release, So Eccles. 48. 5. he that raiseth the dead from death and Hades, sure rayses not out of hell; and so in the Song of the three childrens God's delivering them from Hades. And when Eleazar 2 Mac. 6. 23. desires his friend to bring him on his way to Hades. So 2. Esr: 4. 41. In Hades the chambers of souls, are like the womb of a woman, desiring to powr back the souls, that are departed from the bodies, to their wonted abodes again, as a woman that is come to her time, desires to bring forth. Thus every where doth this word signifie a state of death, destruction (denotes no place either of souls, heaven, or hell, or of bodies, the grave, but) the ἀφανισμὸς invisible state. And as in other places it is peculiarly the state of separation of soul and body, belonging to particular men, so in this place being spoken of a city, 'tis a state of destruction and desolation, to which that may as properly be said to descend (being a state of humiliation, or bringing low) as if it were a place to which a locall motion belonged. For so of Jacob it is said (and in the other premised examples) καταβήσομαι εἰς ᾅδου, I shall goe down to that state of death, which therefore probably is the right reading here (according to the antient Gr: and Lat: MS. καταβήσῃ, and not καταβιβασθήσῃ) humbled to this low estate, as before lifted up to heaven.

The word πάντα all things] here, though it may possibly signifie either all power given to Christ, or all things belonging to his office, yet by the context it rather seems to belong to persons, then things, for of those he peculiarly speaks under the title of babes v. 25. those single-hearted plain persons that beleived on him (for whom he there thanks God, as here he saith, they are given unto him) And the neuter gender will be no hindrance to this, being ordinarily used in this manner for persons, see c. 18. 11. where that that is lost, is these little ones v. 14. and whatsoever v. 18. is whomsoever, and so c.16.9. So 1 *Joh.*5.4. Apoc. 21.27. *Heb.*7.7.19. and c.12.13.

The word χρηστὸς signifies ἀγαθὸς good, and something more, good in the highest degree, and is rendred gracious 1 Pet. 2.3. Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XII.

1. On the morning of the Sabbath day, before the time of the

1. AT that time Jeſus went [on the ſabbath day thorow the corn, and his diſciples were an hungred, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat.]

publick ſervice, through corn-fields, and his diſciples, being hungry, pluckt the ears of corn, thereby to break their faſt, which among the Jewes was not cuſtomary, till the publick offices were paſt, (See note a.)

2. Thereupon, the Phariſees taking notice of it,

2. But when the Phariſees ſaw it they] ſaid unto him, Behold, thy diſciples doe that which is not lawfull to doe upon the ſabbath day.

3. Remember the ſtory of David 1 Sam. 21.6. and by that you will diſcern that the caſe of hunger will diſpenſe with the law, concerning holy daies, or things.

3. But he ſaid unto them, [Have ye not read what David did when he was an hungred, and they that were with him?

4. How he entred into the houſe of God, and did eat the ſhew-bread, which was not lawfull for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the prieſts?]

5. in the Moſaicall law of the Jewes religion, (ſee note on Mat. 5. g.)

5. Or have ye not read [in the law, how that on the ſabbath daies the prieſts in the temple profane the ſabbath, and are blameleſſe?]

how, when it is for the ſervice of the Temple, the Prieſt's uſe the Sabbath, as another day, doe works about the ſacrifice on that day, which, were it not for that end, were unlawfull?

6. And therefore if the Temple and the neceſſities of the ſervice thereof might give ſuch a diſpenſation to the law of the Sabbath, much more Chriſt (who is greater then the Temple) and the neceſſity of nature, and the ſervice due to Chriſt from his Diſciples.

6. But I ſay unto you, that in this place is one greater then the temple.]

7. And if you were not mercileſſe men, & ſo unlike that which God likes beſt in men,

7. But if ye had known what this meaneth, I will have mercy and not ſacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltleſſe.]

if you did conſider that which is ſo viſible in all Gods word, and methods, that God likes mercy toward them that ſtand in need of it, better then the offering to him the richeſt ſacrifices, you would rather have made a fair conſtruction of this action, which their neceſſity renders juſtifiable, and would be ſo acknowledged by any that had humanity or bowels in them, then, under pretence of zeal to the Sabbath, thus falſly charge the innocent.

a. 8. As for the ceremoniall obſervance of the Sabbath which you think is broken in this, God hath diſpenſed with it in caſes of this nature, of neceſſity, &c. And therefore the ſon of man, i.e. Chriſt which is here, and who as he is greater then the Temple v.6. ſo is the Lord alſo of the Sabbath, and for whoſe ſervice that is done which is here done, may, and doth diſpenſe with that ſtrict obſervation of it in many caſes, and now permits his diſciples to preferre their health or life, before the exact obſervance of the ceremonies, or reſt of that day.

8. For the [a] ſon of man is Lord even of the ſabbath day.]

9. And when he was departed thence, he went into their ſynagogue.

10. Is healing, and doing cures on the Sabbath day one of thoſe permitted things,

10. And behold, there was a man which had his hand withered, and they asked him, ſaying, [Is it lawfull to heal on the ſabbath daies? that they might accuſe him.]

of which thou ſpeakeſt? If he ſhould ſay it were, this they knew would (though the former would not) bear an accuſation in their Sanhedrim, being by them at that time counted utterly unlawfull.

11. In the ſmalleſt matter, if it be but of one ſheep, the practiſe is ordinary among you now, according to your preſent interpretations of the law, if that fall into a ditch, to dragge it our, to ſave it from drowning on the Sabbath day.

11. And he ſaid unto them, [What man ſhall there be among you, that ſhall have one ſheep, and if it fall into a pit on the ſabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?]

12. 'Tis therefore in all reaſon lawfull to work a cure on a man, to perform a charitable deed of ſaving life, &c.

12. How much then is a man better then a ſheep? [wherefore it is lawfull to doe well] on the ſabbath daies.

13. Then ſaith he unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand; and he ſtretched it forth, and it was reſtored whole, like as the other.

14. the Phariſees joyning with the Herodians, (either prefects of Herod the Tetrarch, or a ſect called by that name, See note on c.16. a. and c.22. c) went, and debated in counſell, and reſolved to charge a capitall crime againſt him, and ſo to have him put to death.

14. Then [the Phariſees went out and held a councell againſt him, how they might deſtroy him.]

15. to avoid this danger (as c. 4.12.) he went with his diſciples to a private place, the ſea of Galilee, Mar.3.7. yet great multitudes from Galilee and from Judæa, and from Jeruſalem, and from Idumæa, and beyond Jordan, and of thoſe that dwelt about Tyre and Sidon, Mar.3.8. and of all quarters round about that place,

15. But when Jeſus knew it, [he withdrew himſelf from thence: and great multitudes] followed him, and he healed them all.

16. And he commanded, that this ſhould not be celebrated, proclaim'd abroad, that no acclamations ſhould be uſed toward him, deſiring quietly to diſcharge his office of doing good, and healing, without more notice taken of him, and conſequently more conteſtations with the Phariſees, who, he ſaw, would not be wrought on by him, but deſired only matters of accuſation, and advantage againſt him, v.10. even to put him to death, v.14.

16. And charged them that they ſhould not make him known.]

He ſhall not ſet forth himſelf, or his regall power, as kings are wont to doe, magnificently, with a noyſe, or tumult, or proclamation before them in the ſtreets, calling all in queſtion, that do not preſently acknowledge them, but ſhall come in an humble, and lowly manner. (And 'twere ſtrange that he ſhould be deſpiſed by us for that, it being meerly for our ſakes, that he hath put on this condition, this humble guiſe is the fitteſt for the office, which he means to exerciſe, that being all mercy to the weak, &c.)

Thus they did, v. 15. compared with Mar. 3. 8. and this is by Eſaiah call'd waiting for his law c. 42. 4. willingly receiving and giving obedience to him.

22. Then was brought unto him one [poſſeſſed with a Devil, blind aud dumb] and he healed him, inſomuch that the blind and dumb both ſpake and ſaw. 22. whom the devil had caſt into a diſeaſe, which deprived him of ſpeech and ſight.

* Is not this, μήτι οὗτος.

23. And all the people were amazed, and ſayd, * Is this [the ſon of David?] 23. The Meſſias that was ſo oft foretold, and expected to be born of the family of David, and ſo he that ſhall deliver us, and reign over us?

24. But when the Phariſees heard it they ſayd, This fellow doth not caſt out devils, but by [f] Beelzebub [the Prince of the Devils.] 24. The ruler of the Devils, which conſequently is able to caſt out devils that are his ſubjects, inferiour to him. f.

25. And Jeſus knew their thoughts, and ſayd unto them [Every kingdome divided againſt it ſelf is brought to deſolation, and every city or houſe divided againſt it ſelf ſhall not ſtand.] 25. If any King mean to uphold his kingdome, he will not quarrell and fall out with his own ſubjects, and caſt them out, which are a doing him ſervice, ſuch diviſions and civill diſſenſions as theſe will ſoon deſtroy his kingdome, and therefore cannot probably be affirmed of any prudent Ruler, or Prince.

26. And if ſatan caſt out ſatan he is divided againſt himſelf, how ſhall then his kingdome ſtand?] 26. And Satans caſting out devils, which are about his buſineſſe, (poſſeſſing thoſe whom he would have poſſeſt) would be ſuch a civill diſſenſion and breach, as this. This is an argument againſt you, But then ſecondly

28. But if I caſt out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdome of God is come * unto you.] 28. But if it bee indeed by the power of God, that I doe all this (calld the finger of God Lu. 11. 20.) then it is clear, that, although you were not aware of it, yet this is the time of the Meſſias, whoſe miſſion God hath teſtified with theſe miracles, and would not have done ſo, if he had bee a falſe Chriſt. And then 3dly

29. Or elſe how can one enter into a ſtrong mans houſe, and † ſpoyle his goods? except he firſt bind the ſtrong man, and then he will ſpoile his houſe.] 29. My diſpoſſeſſing Satan of his goods, turning him out of thoſe whom he poſſeſſes, is an argument that I have maſtered him, and ſo that I do not uſe his power, but that mine is greater then his, and employed moſt againſt his will, and to his damage.

30. He that is not with me, is againſt me, and he that gathereth not with me, ſcattereth abroad.] 30. And 'tis proverbially known, that he that is not on ones ſide, that brings forces into the field, and is not for a mans aſſiſtance, he is certainly for his enemy, engages againſt him, doth him hart; and conſequently my caſting out devils, ſhews that I am Satans declared enemy.

31. Wherefore I ſay unto you, All manner of ſin and blaſphemy ſhall be forgiven unto men, but the blaſphemy againſt the holy Ghoſt, ſhall not be forgiven unto men.] 31. For this ſpeech of yours [that I work by Beelzebub] let me tell you, Phariſees, v. 24. that this malitious reſiſting, and holding out againſt the viſible work of God, and deſpiſing the miracles, that I have wrought by the Spirit and power of God, v. 28. is ſuch a crime, of ſo deep a dye, that it ſhall to them, that continue in it, be irremiſſible.

*age, nor in that to come.

32. And whoſoever [h] ſpeaketh a word againſt the ſonne of man, [i] it ſhall be forgiven him, but whoſoever ſpeaketh againſt the Holy Ghoſt, it [k] ſhall not be forgiven him, neither [l] in this * world, nor in the world to-come.] 32. Whoſoever ſhall ſay this againſt the ſonne of man, i. e. ſhall not receive me, as I am the ſonne of man, or before I am ſufficiently manifeſted by the Spirit or finger of God to be the Meſſias, he may by want of light, or manifeſtation, be excuſable, and by a generall repentance for all his ſinnes of ignorance, may receive pardon. But he that ſhall reſiſt the Spirit of God, manifeſtly ſhining in theſe miracles wrought by Chriſt, to the aſtoniſhment and conviction of all, but Phariſees, v 23. and ſhall impute thoſe miracles to the devill, which, by what hath been ſayd, ſufficiently appear to be the works of Gods own power, h. i. k. l.

If

If he repent not particularly of this, and come in, and acknowledge Chriſt thus revealed and manifeſted to him, there is no pardon or mercy to be had for him, neither in this age, nor at the coming of the Meſſias (by him ſuppoſed yet future) or, neither in this life, where he ſhall be puniſhed with ſpirituall death, Gods withdrawing of grace, nor in the other, where eternall death expects him.

33. For indeed they that do this, that impute the miracles, which by the power and finger and ſpirit of God are wrought by me, unto the devil, muſt, according to the old known rule of judging the tree by the fruit, be underſtood to affirm the ſame ill of him (i. e. the holy Ghoſt) whoſe productions theſe miracles are, as they affirm of the miracles themſelves, by pronouncing theſe to be diabolicall, they do by implication pronounce the holy Ghoſt to be an infernall ſpirit, and ſo God to be the devill, which is the higheſt, and the moſt irremiſſible blaſphemy imaginable.

33. Either make the tree good, and his fruit good, or elſe make the tree corrupt and his fruit corrupt: for the tree is known by his fruit,]

34. Yee are indeed a wretched ſort of people, Your language ſpeaks you what you are, viz. that your viperous hearts will not permit you to ſpeak any otherwiſe, (as [how can you] is uſed Jo. 5. 44. and of Chriſt, he could not doe miracles Mar. 6. 5. i. e. their unbeleif was a let and impediment to him) For as your hearts are, even ſo by conſequence will your language be, and therefore from ſo viperous a brood no better can be expected.

38. All that take upon them to be ſent from God, and expect to be received, bring ſome ſigns with them, miracles or ſomewhat of that nature to give them authority, we now deſire ſome ſuch from you.

38. Then certain of the Scribes and of the Phariſees anſwered, ſaying, Maſter, [we would ſee a ſign from thee,]

39. 'Tis the ſigne of a wicked infidel people to be alwaies unſatisfied, after ſo many miracles and manifeſtations, (ſufficient to prove me the Meſſias) ſtill to be requiring more, without ever being moved with what you have already; For ſuch as you there is but one ſigne, or token, or miracle behind, that of my reſurrection from death, after ye have crucified me; whereby you ſhall have my office aſſerted, after I am gone, and find Jonas's drowning and wonderfull reſtoring from the whales belly to have been a type of me, and that a moſt ſignificant one.

39. But he anſwered and ſaid to them, [An evil and adulterous generation ſeeketh after a ſign, and there ſhall no ſign be given to it, but the ſign of the prophet Jonas.]

n. 40. For as Jonas lay buried in the whales belly three daies, ſo ſhall Chriſt continue in the grave part of three naturall daies, or ſhall die in one day and riſe again the third day after it.

40. For as Jonas was three daies and three nights in the whales belly, ſo ſhall the ſon of man be n three daies and three nights in the heart of the earth.]

41. And they that are not convinced & brought to repentance by my reſurrection, and the preaching of my Apoſtles which ſhall be conſequent to that, their ſin and condemnation ſhall be much greater then that of the Ninivites was, for upon Jonas's recovery from the whales belly, and coming to preach to them, they repented, Jon: 3. whereas the reſurrection of Chriſt, and miſſion of the Spirit, and preaching of the Apoſtles over all Judæa after that, is a farre greater way of conviction, then that recovery and preaching of Jonas.

41. The men of Nineveh ſhall riſe up in judgment with this generation and ſhall condemn it, becauſe they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, * a greater then Jonas is here.]

42. The Queen of the ſouth ſhall riſe up in judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it; [for ſhe came from the uttermoſt parts of the earth to hear the wiſdome of Solomon and behold, * a greater then Solomon is here.]

* ſomewhat more, πλεῖον

43, 44, 45. But to you that having received ſuch means of converting & bringing you to repentance, ſuch miracles, and particularly caſting out devils, v. 22. (which occaſion'd all the diſcourſe ſince, and to which this is annext Lu. 11. 24.) have not yet walk'd worthy of them I ſhall now apply this parable, v. 43, 44, 45. the meaning of which is, That this nation (out of which I came to caſt out the power of Satan, and to bind the ſtrong man, and take from him his uſurped poſſeſſion and goods, for their proper Maſters uſe) doth appear ſo farre to reſiſt all my methods, as to blaſpheme that holy Spirit, by whom I work v. 24. and then what is to be look'd for, but that the Devils ejected (either by your own children, or) by me in my Fathers name, either out of any ſingle perſon, or nation, finding no where elſe in the heathen world, ſuch pleaſant deſireable habitations of reſt and contentment, as here among you (as a well watered ſeat is the moſt pleaſant) ſhall try their utmoſt, to reenter here, and when they come to doe ſo, finding that Chriſt hath not gotten any admiſſion, they ſhall with many more worſe then themſelves, make entrance, and take a durable poſſeſſion again, and ſo the ſtate of this people is like to be more deſperately damnable, then, before I came among you, it was, or then, if Satan had never been caſt out, it would have been.

43. When the unclean ſpirit is gone out of a man he walketh through drie places, ſeeking reſt and finding none.

44. Then he ſaith, I will return into my houſe, from whence I came out. And when he is come, he findeth it empty, ſwept and garniſhed.

45. Then goeth he, and taketh with himſelf ſeven other ſpirits, more wicked then himſelf, and they enter in and dwell there, and the laſt ſtate of that man is worſe then the firſt. Even ſo ſhall it be alſo to this wicked generation.]

46. While

46. While he yet talked to the people, behold, his mother and his brethren ſtood without deſiring to ſpeak with him.

47. Then one ſaid unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren ſtand without, deſiring to ſpeak with thee.]

46, 47. Whilſt he was on this ſevere diſcourſe ſo ungratefull to many of his auditors, it happened that his mother, the bleſſed virgin Mary, and ſome others of his neareſt kindred, were waiting without to ſpeak with him, and upon this occaſion one of his auditours, either to trie what he would ſay, or perhaps to interrupt him in his ſpeech, told him that his mother and kindred waited for him.

48. But he anſwered and ſaid to him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren?

48,49. To which he preſently replied (to ſignifie this office of his, to declare the will of his Father, to be dearer to him, then all relations, and withall to ſhew, that obedience to God, was the thing above all others moſt welcome to him) in theſe words, Who is my mother &c i.e. Ye are deceived in me, bare naturall or ſeculär reſpects ſway not with me in compariſon to the gaining of proſelytes to heaven.

50. For whoſoever ſhall doe the will of my Father which is in heaven, the ſame [is my brother, and ſiſter, and mother.]

50. becomes thereby the child of God, and conſequently, by that means, the brother and ſiſter of Chriſt, and beſides, Chriſt is alſo formed in him, and ſo he is the mother of Chriſt, anſwerable to the Virgin, in whom Chriſt was conceived. And therefore I doe moſt juſtly ſet that valuation on him, and in that reſpect more tend the teaching of ſuch, and converſing with them, then the paying a civility to thoſe, who are in carnall reſpects neareſt to me.

Notes on Chap. XII.

2. Τὸ διῤῥήδην

That by the phraſe [the ſon of man] in this place is not meant man in common, (as ſome very learned men have thought) but peculiarly Chriſt, is more then probable, not only by theſe words [a greater then the Temple is here] (aſſuming a greater liberty for his Diſciples from his preſence, and the neceſſity of their ſervice to him, then belonged to other ordinary Jews in all caſes, or then the Temple could give any ſervants of the Temple) but alſo by the uſe of this phraſe of [ſon of man] for Chriſt in Daniel, c. 7. 13. and in every other of the 88 repetitions of it in the New Teſtament. And although by the words, as they are in S. Mark, c. 2. 27. the contrary ſeemeth not improbable, where the ground of Chriſt's affirming that the Son of man is Lord of the Sabbath] is, becauſe the Sabbath is made for man,] as if the Sabbath's being made for man] did conclude him Lord of it, and conſequently that he was Lord, for whom it was made, i. e. Man in common, and not Chriſt; yet to this the anſwer is ready, that the caſe of which Chriſt there and here ſpeaks, being for the neceſſary uſe, and good of man, plucking and eating for neceſſity, and preſervation of life, That may be very fitly referr'd to by Chriſt, when he ſaith [The Sabbath is made for man] ſo that the phraſe [for man] ſhall ſignifie for the good of man, and import that the Sabbath being deſigned for the good of man, could not reaſonably be conceiv'd to oblige him to any thing ſo contrary to that, as is ſtarving, or debilitating of nature (ſo as to render him unable to diſcharge the duty of the calling.) And from thence that former concluſion of [man's being Lord of the Sabbath] will not follow, becauſe man is not Lord, or free diſpoſer of all thoſe things that are for his good, (for even all the morall precepts of God alſo are for mans good, and the King is ſaid to be for thy good; yet is not he ſubjected to thee, as to a Lord, no more then the morall law can be diſpenſ'd with by thee) The only proper concluſion from this notion of [the Sabbath's being made for man] will be this, that therefore he that gave that poſitive law, can diſpenſe with the obſervance of it (and conſequently Chriſt may doe it, as here he doth) in ſuch caſes which are for the good of man, as works of mercy (which being part of the morall eternall law, he preferres before the performance of theſe poſitive laws, which reſpect his own ſervice v. 7.) Nay that at the very making of it, it was diſpenſed with in ſome caſes, as thoſe v. 5. of the neceſſary ſervices of the Temple (and what is done here was for the ſervice of Chriſt, who is greater then the Temple) And ſo ſtill Chriſt, that ſon of man, who comes to doe good in the world, is in any reaſon ſo Lord of the Sabbath, as that he may uſe it, which way he will, for the uſe and good of man, and thus God did alwaies appoint it to be uſed, ſo as the Reſt might be broken, when any morall good requir'd it. And ſo likewiſe the ſtrict abſtaining from eating till the ſixt houre, or till their ſolemn ſervice was performed, which is ſaid to have been obſerved among the Jews upon their Sabbaths, at leaſt their great daies, and that cuſtome referr'd to by S. Peter, Act. 2. 16. when, it being the day of Pentecoſt, as this alſo was (ſee note on Lu. 6. a.) he proves that they were not drunk, as they were accuſed, becauſe it was yet but the third, not the ſixt houre of the day, before which they knew they did not uſe to eat or drink; And this ſeems to be the quarrell that the Jewes had here to the Diſciples, that, on the Sabbath day, they eat before the time, not that the reſt was broken by rubbing the eares of corn. Of this therefore ſaith Chriſt, that were it never ſo much a part of the law, or cuſtome of the Sabbath, yet in caſe of neceſſity, which implied charity, it was not of force, at leaſt was diſpenſable by his preſence, and for his ſervice. For of Gods temporary poſitive laws 'tis reſolved that he might, and did ſo diſpence with obedience to them, as the morall, eternall, indiſpenſable precepts were to take place of them. Thus the Hebrew בעל and the Greek κύριος [κυριεύω] is to have power of uſing any thing freely, and ſo may God doe with his poſitive precepts, diſpenſe with them, when he pleaſes, uſe and countermand them freely. And thus the Jewes, to whom Chriſt ſpake, underſtood his ſpeech, as appears by the queſtion that next follows v. 10. whether 'twere lawfull to heal on the Sabbath day, i.e. whether in this caſe (of curing) God had permitted working, or doing any thing on the Sabbath, which Chriſt anſwers diſtinctly, that the life or ſafety of one ſheep (according to their own doctrines) much more of a man, is to be preferr'd before the obſervation of the Sabbath. One other ſenſe is affix'd

to theſe words, as if by this phraſe of [the Son of man's being Lord of the Sabbath] Chriſt's power of aboliſhing the Sabbath were here aſſerted by him. But to this, I conceive, this place doth not belong, For although there is little reaſon to doubt of Chriſt's having this power, yet if Chriſt had ſpoken upon that head, of his power to aboliſh the Sabbath, then 1. he would not have defended his action by that which was already (while that law was in force) continually practiſed among them [which of you having &c.] And 2. if he had once aſſerted the abolition of the Sabbath, the Phariſees would have needed no other leſſer argument, nor conſequently have asked that other queſtion, to get matter of accuſation againſt him v. 10. To which again Chriſt's anſwer is the ſame, as to the former, For to both, his only anſwer is, that God preferres acts of charity before the outward ſtrictneſſe of ſabbatick reſt, To that belongs his ſaying Joh. 5. 17. that his Father worketh till now, and he worketh, i.e. that God the Father at the creating of the world did not ſo reſt on the ſeventh or Sabbath day, but that he worketh ever ſince in the acts of conſervation and providence, as he did then in creating on the ſix daies, and accordingly in imitation of him, v. 19. Chriſt may fitly doe the like, doe cures, i.e. preſerve, &c. As for any diſtinct text in the Goſpels for Chriſt's abrogating the Judaicall Sabbath, there is no more reaſon to expect it, then the like for Sacrifices, or Circumciſion, or the Judaicall Prieſthood, the ſubſtance being come, and the Temple, and that people deſtroyed, the ceremonies or ſhadowes, (Col. 2. 16, 17.) as farre as they were ſuch, ceaſed of their own accord, and no farther are they now abrogated, having never been obligatory to any, but that people.

b Αἱρετίζω ſignifies ſo to preferre before all others, as to chooſe, or aſſume to any office, προσλαμβανω, or ἄιρω πρὸς ἐμαυτὸν, I take to my ſelf, in Phavorinus; but in Iſaiah, whence this verſe is cited, 'tis ἀντιλήψομαι to ſuſtain, which ſeems rather to belong to it, that of choſen being after mention'd there, and rendred [ἀγαπητὸς beloved] here.

c. Κρίσις The word κρίσις in this place ſeems to ſignifie the whole Goſpel, the true religion, the true way of worſhipping and obeying God, the whole will of God under the Goſpel, and either is to bee rendred [Truth] out of the Hebrew משפט, If. 42. 1. (whence theſe verſes are taken) which Prov. 8. 20. is rendred ἀλήθεια truth (and ſignifies ſo, when 'tis rendred [κρίσις, judgement] Jer. 5. 4. Pſal. 37. 6. & Job. 3. and κρίμα, Iſai. 32. 26.) and oftentimes δικαιοσύνη righteouſneſs, which is all one with ἀλήθεια truth: and ſo in Heſechius κρίσιν, ἀλήθειαν (not, as 'tis falſe printed, ἀχολθίαν) judgement ſignifies truth: or elſe being rendred [judgement] it is to be taken in the ſame ſenſe, as if 'twere rendred truth, as indeed κρίσις judgement is the title of the prime Chriſtian virtue, Righteouſneſs, or equity in judging, Mat. 23. 23. And either way it here ſignifies the Goſpel, and ſo v. 20. alſo.

d. Κάλαμος τυπτόμενος The reed is the weak, infirme man, the bruiſing of that reed, is his falling into ſin, and the flaxe on fire i.e. burning in the illychnium, or lampe (ſee Iſa. 43. 17. Iud: 15. 14. 16. 9.) is the man again, the ſmoaking flax, (τυφόμενον) is when the flame is out, or burns darkly for want of oyle, and yet there remains ſome fire in the flaxe, and that Λίνον τυφόμενον ſmoakes, or ſhines dimmely, in ſtead of flaming; and anſwerable to that is the man, in whom grace is decayed, but yet not deſperately or irrecoverably gone out, ſome ſparks of good being ſtill left in him: and this perſon, in this eſtate, Chriſt is ſo farre from deſtroying, or triumphing over, that he doth moſt tenderly cheriſh, and labour to reſtore ſuch an one in the ſpirit of meekneſſe, to a firme habit of Chriſtian practiſe again. This is Chriſt's practiſe at his coming into the world, as deſigning to plant (not the unſinning, legall, perfect, but) the ſyncere, Evangelicall righteouſneſſe through the world, which is the meaning of the phraſe that follows [untill he bring forth (or, ſend forth) judgment into victory] the Hebrew If. 42. 3. is [he ſhall bring forth] and the word [untill] is taken out of v. 4. where the ſame ſenſe is repeated again, and judgement again ſignifies the Goſpel, i. e. Chriſtian, Evangelicall righteouſneſſe (ſee note c.) and though [εἰς νῖκος] in the old Teſtament ſignifies forever, Lam. 5. 20. 2 Sam. 2. 26. Iob 36. 7. Ier. 5. 3. Am. 1. 11. yet that is, when it renders לָנֶצַח which ſignifies both to victory, and to eternity, but here (ſeeming to be the Epitome or breviate of the following words v. 4. he ſhall not faile nor be diſcouraged) it moſt probably ſignifies victoriouſly, and notes that the Goſpel ſhall be ſo ſet up over the world, that he ſhall not faile, or be diſcouraged, i. e. either 1. the bruiſed reed ſhall not faile, or be broken worſe then it is, nor the flax be diſcouraged or quench't, or elſe 2dly, the Meſſias ſhall not faile &c. till he have ſet judgement on the earth, i. e. till he have ſet up the profeſſion of the Goſpel in the world, among the heathens, if the Jews will not receive it. By this rendring of it will appeare what is the meaning of לְאֱמֶת in the Hebrew of Iſaiah, and εἰς ἀλήθειαν (for ἀλήθειαν) in the Septuagint, ſure, that κρίσις εἰς ἀλήθειαν, judgement in truth ſhould be ſet for true judgement, and rendred ſo, He ſhall bring forth true judgment, and ſo 'twill remain, that εἰς νῖκος ſhall be the ſumme of the following words, v. 4. he ſhall not faile, nor be diſcouraged, till he have ſet judgement on the earth, and ſo the conſequents both in Iſaiah and here will be the ſame, There [and the Iſles ſhall wait for his law] here [and in his name ſhall the Gentiles truſt.]

e. Ἀργὸν ῥῆμα It is the cuſtome of all writers, very frequent in the ſacred dialect, to uſe phraſes whereby they underſtand much more, then they do expreſſe. An example of it we have in this verſe out of the prophet, where Chriſts not breaking the bruiſed reed] ſignifies his great mercy, and kindneſſe in repairing, and reſtoring and curing the bruiſed weakling, and ſo his not quenching the ſmoaking flax, is his enlivening, quickening, enflaming that fire or ſpark of grace or goodneſſe, which was almoſt quencht, So ἀργὸν ῥῆμα idle word v. 36. is much more then idle, vain, even blaſphemous ſpeeches, So Eph. 5. 11. where the Gentile foule abominations, taken up by the Gnoſticks, are called ἄκαρπα ἔργα τῦ σκότους, unprofitable works of darkneſſe, meaning ſurely not that they brought in no profit, or advantage, but the greateſt danger, and miſchief in the world. So ἄχρηστος δοῦλος, is a wicked, and not only an unprofitable ſervant. So ἄνομος] which properly ſignifies without law, and ἀνομία, a breach, or commiſſion againſt the Law, is oft ſet

to signifie the higheſt degree of obdurate profane ſinning, 2 Theſſ. 2. 8. being there ſpoken of Simon Magus the moſt blaſphemous Apoſtate. So though παραβαίνων] literally ſignifies to tranſgreſſe, and may belong to the leaſt ſin, as being a variation from the ſtrict rule of the Law, yet ὁ παραβαίνων, he that tranſgreſſes 2 Io. 9. (and ſo παράβασις, tranſgreſſor, ſince the ſolemn title of Iulian) ſignifies an Apoſtate, So 2 Tim. 3. 3. [ἀφιλάγαθοι, thoſe which do not love the good] is ſet to expreſſe the moſt virulent haters of the orthodox pious Chriſtians, So 1 Cor. 13. 6. where tis ſet down as the character of the charitable man, ὁ χαίρει ἐπὶ τῇ ἀδικίᾳ, he rejoyceth not in iniquity, the meaning is, he is very much troubled, and ſorrowfull, ſo ὁ φυσιοῦ. v. 5. ὁ φυσιοῦται, the charitable man is not pufft up] ſignifies much more then ſo, that he is extremely humble. So in the third commandement of the Decalogue, where 'tis ſaid of the perjured perſon, that the Lord will not hold him guiltleſſe, that ſure ſignifies, that God will look on him, and deal with him as a μαλακὰ ἀναστροφὴ moſt guilty, puniſhable perſon. And ſo 1 Pet. 1. 18. ματαία ἀναστροφὴ vain converſation, is moſt vitious, and enormouſly ill, and Rom. 1. 16. οὐκ ἐπαισχύνομαι I am not aſhamed, is I rejoice, and glory in the Goſpel of Chriſt. And Rom. 8. 8. They that are in the fleſh, (i. e. thoſe that follow their carnall appetites, in deſpite of the law) cannot pleaſe God, i. e. are very farre from pleaſing, being in profeſt enmity to him v. 7. muſt needs be hated and oppoſed by him. And v. 12. We are debters not to the fleſh to live after the fleſh, i. e. we are farre from all obligation to goe on any farther in any carnall courſe, 'tis more then time to give over that, as 1 Pet. 4. 3. the time paſt of our lives may ſuffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, i.e. 'tis abundantly ſufficient, much more then enough, to have ſpent ſo vilely. So Rom. 13. 10. where it is only ſaid of Charity that κακὸν οὐκ ἐργάζεται, it worketh no evil to the neighbour] the meaning certainly is, that 'tis ſo farre from doing ſo, that it worketh all the good it can, or otherwiſe it would not thence be concluded, that it were πλήρωσις τοῦ νόμου the filling up, and improving of the law.

f. Βεελζεβοὺλ. Beelzebub in Hebrew בעל זבוב, is rendred by the Greek of the Old Teſtament Βάαλ μύιαν, the prince of the flie or flies, the god of Ekron 2 Kin: 1. 2. and v. 6. being indeed an Idol, that the inhabitants of that city in Paleſtine worſhipped, and conceived to have power over all hurtfull flies, and to drive them out of their region. That this was the heathen Jupiter is not improbable, the title of μυίαγρος, μυοδὴς, ἀπομύαγρος, ἀπομυαγρεὺς, μυίαρχος and μυοδήκτης being beſtow'd on him by the heathens, i.e. he that caught, or, drove away flies. This Idol in * Pliny is call'd Achor Deus from Accaron or Ekron the name of that city, and, as he ſaith, the Cyrenians, when any plague of flies comes on them, ſacrifice and pray to him, and on that they die preſently. This is here called Prince of Devils, i. e. one that hath power over them (as 'twas, it ſeems, beleived) able to throw them out of thoſe, that were poſſeſs't with them, (whole legions together) like ſwarms of flies, which, with their Prince or chieftain, flie about in the upper and middle region of the ayre; This gives the reaſon of their ſpeech here, why they conceived Chriſt to caſt out Devils by Beelzebub, becauſe Beelzebub they thought to have that power, and therefore to have the name of Ruler, or Prince of Devils, and Chriſt vifibly caſting them out, they thought he operated by this power.

* Nat: Hiſt: l. 10. c. 28.

g. Τοὺς υἱοὺς] Your children here ſignifie either your Diſciples, i.e. ſpirituall children, or, your countrey-men, i. e. children of your nation naturally, and ſo he means the Jewes, who did pretend at leaſt to exorciſe and caſt out Devils in the name of the God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, the God of Jacob, which was their ordinary form of exorciſme; and which, it ſeems, the ſons of Sceva were willing to change into the name of the Lord Jeſus, in imitation of the Apoſtles Act. 19. 13. So in Juſtinus againſt Trypho the Jew, If, ſaith he, you invoke the name of any of your Kings, or juſt men, or prophets, or Patriarchs, the Devil will not obey you, but if you call upon the God of Abraham &c. and ſo exorcize, ἴσως ὑπακούσεται, perhaps he will obey; So ſaith Irenæus, By the invoking of the moſt high, and almighty, even before the coming of Chriſt, men were delivered from wicked Spirits, and à Dæmoniis univerſis, from all kinds of Devils; And ſo Tertull: contra Marcion: expounds this paſſage in S. Luke, that Chriſt affirms himſelf to caſt out Devils by the ſame power, by which their children did, in virtute ſcilicet creatoris, by virtue of the Creator. That there was this cuſtome among the Jewes (and ſo long continued) of charming and incantations, may farther appear by the latter remainders, (being (as appears by the Chriſtians renouncing them) abuſes of the true) which we find in the forms of renouncing Judaiſme, in the Liturgies of the Greek Church; where, after the mention of the ſeverall feaſts and Sabbaths, is added καὶ τὰ γνηλίαις, καὶ τὰ ἀπυδαῖς, καὶ τοῖς φυλάγμασι, καὶ τοῖς (not as 'tis read by Goar out of Allatius his Manuſcript, and that of Cryptoferrara, φυλακτηρίοις by him rendred obſervationibus, but without queſtion) φυλακτηρίοις ἀποτάσσομαι, I renounce all charms and incantations and defenſatives, &c. The Phylacteries there renounced being not thoſe (mention'd in this Goſpel c. 23. 5.) worn about them as remembrances of a part of the divine law, but ſuch Antidotes as we now ſpeak of, which they carried about them, to defend themſelves from Witchcraft, and Faſcinations, whether they were ſome written Characters, or the names of God, as the God of Abraham, the Lord of Sabbaoth, &c. From the Iewes the Ægyptians borrowed their magicall practiſes, ſaith Orig: cont: Celſ: l. 1. and l. 4. ὧν τοῖνυν δύναται τὰ ὀνόματα ζωπαθόμβρια τῇ τῶν Θεῶν φρονήσει, ὡς ὁ μόνον τοῦ ἀπὸ τῆς ὕλης χρῆσθαι ἐν τῇ περὶ Θεῶν ἐυχαῖς, καὶ ἐν τῷ καλεῖσθαι δαίμονας, τῷ, Ὁ Θεὸς Ἀβραὰμ, ὁ Θεὸς Ισαὰκ, καὶ ὁ Θεὸς Ιακὼβ, ἀλλὰ καὶ σχεδὸν καὶ πάντας τοὺς τὰ τοιαῦτα, καὶ μαγείαν φαγιαλδομένους, ἐυσεβεῖναι δοκεῖ ἐν τοῖς μαγικοῖς συγγράμμασιν ἡ πιστὴ τῷ Θεῷ ὁμολογία καὶ παράληψις τοῦ Θεοῦ ὀνόματος, &c. The names of Abraham &c. joyn'd with the name of God is not only of force in the Iewes prayers, and exorciſmes, but almoſt all others that dealt in conjurations, uſe them: and from thence the Ignorant ſort came to take Abraham for the name of a God, ſaith S. Chryſoſtome, becauſe of the form [Θεὸς Ἀβραὰμ] by them thus eaſily miſtaken. So in like manner the words Zebaoth and Adonai were ordinary among them, ſaith Origen, l. 4. and * Iamblicus calls theſe Aſſyria nomina, nomina, i. e. Hebrew names, as when Themiſtius ſaith the ſaying of [The Kings heart is in the hands of God] is taken out of the Aſſyrian books, he clearly means the Hebrew, the Book of the Proverbs, and the letters now uſed for Hebrew letters, are properly the Aſſyrian, which in their captivity they compelled them to uſe, inſtead of their own ancient letters, which only the Samaritane retaineth. The ſame incantations were by them alſo uſed in curing diſeaſes, as I remember, there is a famous one in Trallian for the cure of the Gowt, and Panſanias in his deſcription of the rites of the Pyretheia (mention'd by Strabo l. 15.) ſaith that in Lydia the Magician having laid wood on the altar, firſt puts a Mitre on his head, then ἐπᾴδουσιν ὅτι ὃ Θεὸν ἐπαΐει βαρβαρικῇ, χὠνόμασιν Ἑλλησιν, calls upon ſome kind of God in a barbarous form, not underſtood by the Grecians, ἐπᾴδῃ ὃ ἐπιχωρίῳ ἐκ βιβλίου he reads his charm out of a book (we might render it literally, out of the Bible) ἄνδρ ὃ πυρὸς ἀνάγκη πῶν ἀφθόνως τὴ ξύλα (as in the ſtory of Elias) and preſently the wood is ſet on fire, Eliac: a. Such forms as theſe 'tis not improbable that God was ſometimes pleaſed to proſper, when he was particularly call'd on, as the one true God, as he had revealed himſelf to his own people, and not as one of the falſe Gentile gods, and when 'twas thus, 'twas ſure the power of the true God, and not any virtue in the words, that did it. This Chriſt uſes as an argument ad homines, that they, who themſelves profeſs't to caſt out Devils by the God of Abraham, had no reaſon to ſay Chriſt did it by the Prince of Devils.

h. Βλασφημία σημαίνει τὸ

It is ordinary in the Hebrew dialect for [ſpeaking] to ſignifie [doing] and [word] to ſignifie [thing] and ſo here to blaſpheme or to ſpeak a word againſt the ſonne of man, and again againſt the Holy Ghoſt is to oppoſe and reſiſt them. Now the phraſe [Son of man] here belongs unto Chriſt, as he appear'd in the weakneſſe of humane ſtate; the ſon of Mary, conſidered without any ſuch light ſhining in him, to convince all men that he was the Meſſias, viz. Chriſt abſtracted from the great power of his doctrine and miracles, which when they did appeare, convinced the Auditors to an acknowledgment, that never man ſpake as he ſpake, and the beholders here, v. 23. and elſewhere, that ſure he was the Meſſias. This power (of his doctrine, and here particularly) of his miracles, is in the parallel place Luc. 11. 20. called the finger of God (which what it ſignifies is cleare by Exod. 8. 19. when that is ſaid to be truly the finger of God, i. e. a work of Gods own power, which the magicians by their ſorcery were not able to doe) and here v. 28. the ſpirit of God: which two phraſes [finger of God] and [ſpirit of God] appeare by theſe two parallel places compared, to be all one, and conſequently [To oppoſe, or to ſpeak againſt the πνεῦμα ἅγιον the holy ſpirit, or the πνεῦμα Θεῦ, Spirit of God] is in this place to oppoſe the power, and convincing light of theſe miracles of his, which manifeſted him to act by the power of God, and ſo were the Teſtimonies of God himſelf, that Chriſt was, what he affirm'd himſelf to be, the Meſſias promiſed. And that ſhews the ground of difference betwixt theſe two ſinnes [ſpeaking againſt the Son of man] and [ſpeaking againſt the Holy Ghoſt] the firſt was the not beleiving him to be the Meſſias, when, though he affirmed himſelf to be ſo, yet there was not that convincing light, and manifeſtation of his being ſo, but the ſecond was reſiſting this light thus brightly ſhining in him, acknowledging the miracles which he did, Joh. 11. 48. but rather then they would acknowledge them to be done by God (becauſe if they did that, they muſt receive him as the Meſſias, which they would not doe, becauſe he was not ſuch an one, as they had fancyed, and deſired he ſhould be, a temporall deliverer) affirming them to bee done by the Devill v. 24. which beeing their onely poſſible evaſion, (and that here confuted by Chriſt by three arguments, the firſt v. 26. the ſecond v. 27, 28. and the third v. 29. and 30.) hee now tells them, that this, if they continue in it, muſt needs bee a wilfull blindneſſe, and ſo not capable of that excuſe of ignorance or blinde zeale, of which the former ſinne was capable.

The difference of theſe two ſinnes beeing ſet downe, (note h.) it followes now that the former of theſe was a ſin, for which under the law of the Iewes there was place for ſacrifice, and ſo for forgiveneſſe (upon a generall confeſſion of all unknowne ſins, and asking pardon for them of God) It did not incurre that Sanction of Death, or exciſion from the people, and proportionably (in the Chriſtian anagogy) it was in the number, or of the nature of thoſe ſins, by which the ſinner, if before living ſpiritually, doth not ipſo facto become ſpiritually dead, nor incurre preſent obligation to death eternall, but by Chriſt's ſacrifice is preſerved from it, and if before he were ſpiritually dead, yet is not this ſuch, as is to him imputed, ſo as to fill up the meaſure of his iniquities, and bring utter deſertion upon him, but (as a ſin ἀκουσία διὰ ἄγνοιαν ψυχῆς of unaffected ignorance, Num. 15. 28.) is accordingly pardonable by a generall repentance (ſuch was that of Nathaniel Joh. 1. 4, 5. Can any good come out of Nazareth? which was ſpeaking a word againſt the ſon of man, and yet eaſily pardonable.)

i. Ἀκούσιον δὲ ἐστὶ

As that former kind of ſin was capable of mercy, ſo this ſecond was of a farre higher nature, none of thoſe ἀγνοήματα Ignorances, for which only ſacrifices were appointed under the law, Heb. 9. 7. Num. 15. 18. but parallel to thoſe, for which there was no ſacrifice accepted (ſee Heb. 10. 26.) but juſt vengeance, and puniſhment under the law, to which death without mercy was to be expected on the impenitent oppoſers, the ὑπεναντίοις, and ἀντικειμένοις adverſaries and deſpiſers, Heb. 10. 27, 28. Thoſe that ſin thus, are the ſoul that doth ought preſumptuouſly, or with a high hand, Num. 15. 30. (a hand lifted up, ſaith the Hebrew, a hand againſt Gods finger, Lu. 11. 20. or againſt the holy Spirit here) and ſo that reproaches the Lord there as the ſpirit, Heb. 10. 29. (which is juſt the βλασφημία or blaſpheming the ſpirit here, and ſo the Hebrew נאץ reproach there, is rendred blaſphemy by the Greek 2 Kin. 19. 22.) and ſo muſt be cut off from the people; And proportionably now under the Goſpel, ſuch a ſin as this ſhall not be forgiven, the offender thereby, if he were before ſpiritually living, certainly dyes ſpiritually, and ſo is cut off from God's true Iſrael (and by the Apoſtle's and the churches diſcipline is to be cut off from the congregation by cenſures) the ſacrifice of

of Christ's death typifyed by the legall ſacrifices, doth not obtain, that ſuch ſinners ſhould not fall into preſent ſpirituall death, and preſent obligation to eternall death, nor doth the ſpirit of meekneſſe, but the rod of excommunication belong to ſuch. Or if the offender were not before ſpiritually living, this addes unto his dead works, and ſo brings on him a new obligation to eternall death, Though the ſacrifice of Chriſt's death, if they repent of ſuch ſin particularly, and actually, (God giving them ſpace of life to do ſo) may and certainly doth raiſe them up from this ſpirituall death, and obligation to eternall, by juſtification. But without ſuch particular ſpeciall repentance from their ſin particularly retracted, they ſhall continue in death ſpirituall here, till they fall into eternall hereafter, which is now by Chriſt moſt clearly revealed againſt all wilfull ſin continued in impenitently, though it were not before ſo clearly revealed under the law. The iſſue of this whole matter, as farre as concern'd the Phariſees there, was this, that unleſſe their ſin were particularly retracted by repentance, and Chriſt received and acknowledged upon theſe miracles of his, or afterwards by the conviction, which the Holy Ghoſt ſhould work upon the crucifiers, they can never have pardon or remiſſion, not that they that were here guilty, ſhould never after repent, or upon repentance be accepted; This is not ſaid here, or in any other place, but rather the contrary is every where affirmed in the Scripture, which offereth repentance to all (and that ſo really, that by the grace of Chriſt and the Holy Ghoſt aſſiſting his word, they may receive it) and promiſeth pardon to all, be they never ſo great ſinners, ſo they doe amend their lives ſincerely, and lay hold on God's mercy in Chriſt; and this is particularly apply'd to thoſe Phariſees by force of Chriſt's prayer for his crucifiers (which was certainly heard) Father forgive them, i.e. deny them not the means of forgiveneſſe, the power of Repenting, and forgiveneſſe, if they ſhall repent, And accordingly the Apoſtles after teach that God had exalted Chriſt to his right hand to give repentance unto Iſrael, *Act.*5.31. i.e. to all Iſrael, *Act.*2.36, and 38. and particularly thoſe crucifying rulers, *Act.*3.17. whoſe ignorance is there, as on the croſſe by Chriſt, urged to make their caſe the more hopefull, not that it was not notoriouſly vincible and criminous, but that they had not yet received all thoſe means, and methods of the Holy Ghoſt for their converſion, the greateſt of all being yet behind, the raiſing up Chriſt from the dead, to be ſuch a ſign to move them, as Jonas was, whereupon v.38. &c. he tells them, that that only ſign more they ſhould have (though they were a malitious and adulterous generation) and when that was witneſs'd by the deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, and the preaching, and miracles wrought by that deſcent, then they that come not in to Chriſt, ſhall never be forgiven, nor be capable of any farther means of working repentance in them, this being indeed the laſt that ſhould ever be allow'd them.

l. "Αφεσις τῶν μὴ δυναμένων ἄφεσιν

This phraſe ſeems to referre to a perſwaſion of the Jewes that ſome ſins which could not be forgiven upon their ſacrifices (whether their daily ſacrifices, or that on the great day of expiation) and ſo were irremiſſible ἐν τούτῳ τῷ αἰῶνι, in this age, might yet be remitted, and pardon'd ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι, in that to come, which ſometimes ſignifies among them the age of the Meſſias, ſometimes the ſtate after death, (ſee note on Lu. 1.m.) But of this ſin unrepented of, ſaith Chriſt, there is no place for any ſuch hope; That opinion of yours, that every Jew hath his part in the age to come, as that notes the age of the Meſſias (there being now no farther Meſſias to be lookt for by you) ſhall ſtand you in no ſtead, if you ſtand out impenitently againſt all this light and manifeſtation of divine power, now evidently teſtifying, that I am the Meſſias. And for the ſtate after death, when that comes, and your ſentence is once paſt, there will be ſmall hope of relief, or releaſe for you.

m. Ἀργὸν

The word ἀργὸν] may bear proportion in ſenſe to the Hebrew אוֶן, which ſignifies vain indeed, but frequently falſe, becauſe that which is falſe, wants the ſolidity, and ſubſtance of Truth. So ματαιον λόγον καὶ ψεῦδη, vanity and lies, *Prov.*30.8. Or, as the Greek ἀργὸς is derived, quaſi ἄεργος, when the words are without deeds agreeing to them. Thus κενὸς λόγος vain ſpeech, Eph. 5. 6. is, not unprofitable, but falſe ſpeaking, ſuch as with which they are adviſed, that they be not deceived. But 'tis farther obſervable from the Scripture ſtyle, mention'd note e. (which uſes to ſignifie more, then the words literally import) that the word ἄκαρπος unfruitful *Eph.*5.11. and μάταιος vain, doe ſignifie not only the negation of, but contrariety to all profit, i.e. the greateſt wickedneſſe, and ſo may ἀργὸς here, And accordingly in this place R. Stevens mentions another reading, πονηρὸν in ſtead of ἀργὸν, every wicked word. Thus will the ἀργὸν ῥῆμα be the ſame with πονηρὰ evil things v. 35. and thus it may referre to the notion of πονηρὸν ῥῆμα uſed for reproach and contumely, c.5. 11. for ſuch was that againſt Chriſt v.24. that great contumely, and falſity of his caſting out Devils by the Prince of Devils. That it is ſome grand crime, not every word which tends not to ſome ſpeciall end of Chriſtian edification, appears by the next verſe, where they are affirm'd to be ſuch, as for which under Chriſt, men are ſure to be condemn'd, and not by evil works, or actions only.

n. τρεῖς ἡμέρας καὶ τρεῖς νύκτας.

That Chriſt was not in the earth three nights, it is clear, and therefore the way of interpreting this place muſt be taken from a figure, which expreſſes one whole thing by two parts of it. Thus the heaven and the earth in S. Peter 2 *Pet.*3.7. (ſee note b.) ſignifie the world; And the naturall day, conſiſting of night and day, and beginning among the Hebrewes at Evening, is here meant by this phraſe [night and day] and ſo Chriſt is ſaid to be three daies and three nights in the earth, though the firſt naturall day he was not in the grave, any part of the night, but the latter part of the Friday, all Saturday, and ſo much of Sunday as untill the Sun approached their Horizon. The reckoning of Daies by the Jewes was by the νυχθήμερον evening and morning, which made up the naturall day, And as it is practiſed in the buſineſſe of circumciſion, which was preciſely obſerved the eighth day, if the child were born in one day, though but half an hour before the end of it, i.e. before the beginning or evening of the next, that half hour was counted for one of the eight daies (becauſe, ſay they, legall daies are not accounted from time to time, or from houre to houre) ſo is it here, that part of Friday wherein he was buried, was the firſt day of this number. Thus when Lu. 9. 28. 'tis ſayd [about eight daies after] Mat. 17. 1. and Mar. 9. 2. 'tis [after ſix daies] i. e. after ſix daies complete, the firſt and the laſt being not complete, and ſo though numbered by one, yet omitted by two Evangeliſts, and accordingly the ſpace of theſe very three daies, of Chriſts lying in the grave untill his reſurrection, are, when 'tis prophetically mentioned by Hoſea, c. 6. 2. ſaid to be [after two days:] So a luſtrum and an Olympiad, though they contain but four complete years are yet ſaid to be five years, after the manner of our accounting a tertian, and a quartan Ague. See Nebriſſenſis quinquag. c. 25. and Iſ. Caſaubon againſt Baron. p. 16.

CHAP. XIII.

1. THE ſame day went Jeſus out of the houſe, and ſate by the ſea ſide.

10. And his Diſciples wondred that

10. And the Diſciples came and ſaid unto him, Why ſpeakeſt thou to them in parables?]

he ſhould ſpeake ſo myſtically and obſcurely to the people, and therefore asked him why he did ſo.

11. And he gave them this anſwer, The

11. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, Becauſe it is given to you to know the myſteries of the kingdome of heaven, but to them it is not given.]

underſtanding the higher and obſcurer parts of the Goſpel is a priviledge that belongs only unto you diſciples, which are beleivers already, which have already received and profited, and undertaken to direct your lives according to the rules of my doctrine communicated to you, but theſe which have not done ſo, are not yet fit for revealing of ſecrets to them, (that which is fitter for their turne, is to be incited by the darkneſſe of parables to enquire into the meaning of them, v. 13.)

12. Whoſoever hath to purpoſe, i. e. hath made uſe of any degree of grace or knowledge afforded him by God, ſhall have more given him (as in the ſeed that fell on good ground) he ſhall have an abundant encreaſe, as proverbially 'tis known of rich men, 'tis eaſie and uſuall for them to grow richer ſoon, by wiſe imployment, and laying out of their wealth, and every mans preſenting them, But whoſoever is poor ordinarily growes poorer: And ſo ſhall it be in the ſpirituall wealth, whoſoever imploys what he hath, he ſhall encreaſe by exerciſing his graces, and beſides, have addition from God, but whoſoever makes not uſe of what he hath, and ſo by his own fault falleth into poverty, he ſhall not onely be denyed more, but ſhall be deprived of what he hath, the meanes of grace ſhall be taken from him, and alſo grace it ſelf, (as to that meaſure, which is in all the children of God) upon his wilfull continuance in ſin againſt conſcience, And all degrees of it taken away, either when he ſhall have filled up the meaſure of his iniquities, or, (in all who die before effectuall repentance) at death.

13. Parables may be deſigned to ſeverall uſes,

13. Therefore ſpeake I to them in parables, becauſe they ſeeing, ſee not: and hearing they heare not, neither doe they underſtand.]

1. They are ſuch things that thoſe who deſire ſincerely to learn, may by induſtry, and examination of the parables, more fully diſcerne by them, then by the plaineſt ſpeech, and withall better carry it away, and retain the ſenſe of them; But ſecondly, They that willingly ſhut their eyes againſt the light, becauſe their deeds are evill, they doe not uſe to ſee, but underſtand and diſcerne leſſe by parables, then otherwiſe (and yet thirdly, If they have any deſire of learning left, parables will more excite and inflame a deſire of underſtanding, and enquiring after the meaning of them, then any thing elſe) and therefore doe I not ſpeake plainly to them, but in ſuch veiles as theſe, becauſe what hath formerly been without parables delivered unto them, as plainly as what is before their eyes, they have not made uſe of.

14. And ſo what Eſaias foretold of Gods dealing with an obſtinate people, although it was foretold of ſome of your anceſtors, yet hath a moſt eminent completion now, and is found moſt true of them, That they ſhall not receive ſo much profit, as otherwiſe they might, by what is repreſented or delivered to them; things ſhall be ſo ænigmatically and darkly repreſented to them as that they (having before ſhut their eyes, v. 13.) ſhall now diſcern but little.

14. And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Eſaias, which ſaith, By hearing ye ſhall heare, and ſhall not underſtand, and ſeeing ye ſhall ſee, and ſhall not perceive.]

15. For

15. For this peoples heart is waxed grosse, and their eares are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed, lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their eares, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them.]

15. And this is a just judgement of God's upon them, for their former obduration and obstinacy, in that they have hung down their eares (as creatures doe, that hearken not, whereas others hold them up) and shut their eyes against me, wilfully blinded themselves; for fear, as 'twere, that they should see, or hear, or understand, and by repentance and conversion become capable of my working cures of mercy on them, which otherwise I should infallibly doe, (and also, on God's part, lest such precious knowledge should be exposed to farther contempt.) See note on Mar. 4. a.

16. But blessed are your eyes, [a] for they see,] and your eares, † for they hear.

16. that by receiving what hath been already taught you, you are thus capable of these higher illuminations,

17. For verily I say unto you, that many prophets, and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them, and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.]

17. For though there have been many men imploy'd by God to reveal his will to others, and many so farre in Gods favour, that God hath made himself known very particularly unto them, as Abraham, and Moses, with whom he talkt face to face, yet the revelations now made to you, are infinitely beyond all those that were ever afforded men before.

18. Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower.]

18. You disciples therefore to whom it is given to know the mysteries v. 11. (from whence to this 18 verse all was spoken as in a parenthesis) Hear ye the meaning of this parable.

19. When any one heareth the word of the kingdome, and [c] understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart; † this [d] is he which received seed by the waies side.]

19. When the Gospel is preached to any, and he lates it not to heart, but by temptations is induced to live an unchristian life, This is it, that is meant by the seed, that is sown by the path-side, i. e. by that part of the parable mention'd v. 4.

† this is it which is sown by the path side.

20. But * he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it,]

20. But the sowing of seed on the stony ground denoteth him, that at the first hearing receives the Gospel with all greedinesse and joy, looking only on the smoother part of it, *that which is sown on stony ground, ὁ ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη σπαρείς, see note d.

21. Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while; for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended.]

21. But for want of an honest heart, a good soyle, where it may take deep root, for want of resolution to bear whatsoever the Gospel requires of them, they last but a little while, Assoon as ever Christianity is persecuted, assoon as any chargeable duty is required of them, immediately they are galled and discouraged from going any farther in the waies of piety, See note on c. 11. c.

22. * He also that received seed among the thorns, is he that heareth the word, and the cares of this world, and the deceitfulnesse of riches choke the word, and † he becometh unfruitfull.]

22. But the sowing of seed among thorns denoteth him, that of getting of riches) being in his heart, where the word is sown, suffocates it, and so renders the word in him unfruitfull, makes him live never the better for being a Christian.

* And that which is sown, ὁ εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας † it becometh ibid.

23. But * he that received seed into the good ground, is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it, which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty.]

23. But the sowing the seed in good ground denoteth him, that by hearing and understanding, and laying to heart the precepts of Christ, expresses the effects of it by bringing forth abundance of Christian practise all the life after, some in a greater measure then others, but all in a good proportion.

* that which is sown upon

24. Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, [The kingdome of heaven] is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field.

24. The state of the Gospel or succesſe of Christ's preaching in the world

25. But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed * tares [among the wheat] and went his way,

25. all through the whear, all over the ground,

* cockle ζιζάνια

26. But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the * tares also.]

26. This was not discern'd at the time, but when the corn came up, and began to eare, then beside the wheat that was sow'd, there appeared cockle also.

* cockle

27. So the servants of the housholder came and said unto him, Sir, [didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? From whence then hath it Tares?]

27. Certainly all the seed which thou didst sow in thy field, was good wheat, And yet we discern now a great deal of cockle among it, Whence should this be?

28. He said unto them, [An [e] enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we goe, and gather them up?]

28. Some malicious person hath done this, Hereupon the servants offer their pains if he please to accept them, to goe presently and weed up all the cockle.

29. But he said, [Nay, lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.]

29. No, for some of them are in such a conjuncture with the wheat, that the one cannot be pull'd up, but the other will follow, if it be done by you, that are not so able to discern them.

30. Let them both grow together [untill the harvest, and in the time of harvest, I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

30. untill my time of judgment, & then I will appoint the Angels my officers, saying

31. Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, [The kingdome of heaven is like to] a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field,

31. The state of the Gospel is of such a growing procreative nature both in the world, and in the heart of man, where 'tis received, that it is fitly resembled to

32. Which being one of the leaſt ſeeds that are, yet when it comes up proſperouſly, it becomes bigger then any thing that comes from a ſeed, and among the Jews growes into a tree with boughs large enough for birds to rooſt or lodge in. See note on Lu. 13. a.

32. Which indeed is the leaſt of all ſeeds, but when it is grown, it is the * greateſt among herbs and becometh a tree, ſo that the birds of the aire come and lodge in the branches thereof.] * greater then herbs; μείζων τῶν λαχάνων.

33. The Goſpel hath ſuch a ſecret inviſible influence on the hearts of men, to change them and affect them, and all the actions that flow from them, that it is fitly reſembled to leaven, ſo mixt throughly with the whole, that although it appeareth not in any part of it viſibly, yet every part hath a tincture from it.

33. Another parable ſpake he unto them, [The kingdome of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three meaſures of meale, till the whole was leavened.]

34. All theſe things ſpake Jeſus unto the multitudes in parables, and without a parable ſpake he not unto them,

35. I will powre out all thoſe myſterious truths which have been kept cloſe from all time, and now though in parables are revealed by me.

35. That it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the prophet, ſaying, I will open my mouth in parables, [I will f utter things which have been kept ſecret from the foundation of the world.]

f.

36. Explain, interpret.

36. Then Jeſus ſent the multitude away, and went into the houſe: and his Diſciples came unto him, ſaying, [Declare] unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, He that ſoweth the good ſeed is the ſon of man.

38. The field is this world, the place of our living here; that part of the parable, that concerning the good ſeed, ſignifies the Chriſtians: but that of the tares, ſignifies the wicked, ſeducers, ſuch were the Gnoſticks, and other hereticks of the firſt times, ſuch are all hereticks and ſchiſmaticks ſince.

38. The field is the world, the good ſeed are the children of the kingdome: but the tares are the children of the wicked one.]

39. The time when beleivers and unbeleivers (and ſeducers) ſhall be called to account, is, to this people, that ſolemne approaching time of their viſitation, as to all other people, the time of finall exciſions, and eſpecially the day of judgment.

39. The enemy that ſowed them is the devill, [the harveſt is the * end of the world] and the reapers are the Angels. * concluſion of the age συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνος.

40. At God's times of eminent diſcrimination, ſuch as his judgment on the Jews (ſee note on c. 24. c. and on Lu. 1, 1.) and ſuch the laſt dreadfull day of doome.

40. As therefore the tares are gathered and burnt in the fire: ſo ſhall it be [in the † end of this world.] † concluſion of this age.

41. Chriſt by his meſſengers and inſtruments of his juſtice ſhall deſtroy all hereticks and ſchiſmaticks, that any way keep others from the Chriſtian religion, and all that live profeſtly in any unlawfull courſe of contrariety to Chriſtian purity.

41. The ſon of man ſhall ſend forth his Angels, and they ſhall gather out of his kingdome all * things that offend, and them which doe iniquity.] * ſcandals τὰ σκάνδαλα.

42. And ſhall caſt them into a furnace of fire: there ſhall be wayling and gnaſhing of teeth.

43. The true pure Chriſtian profeſſors ſhine eminently in the Church here, and after in glory.

43. Then ſhall [the righteous ſhine forth as the Sun in the kingdome of their father.] Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

44. The Goſpel being by ſome not lookt after, is yet ſometimes met with by them, and becomes matter of infinite joy and deſire to them, and ſo is likened fitly to a treaſure, which a man finding caſually in a field, hid again or concealed it, and then deſigning to get it into his poſſeſſion, accounts no price that he can pay, too dear for it.

44. Again, [the kingdome of heaven is like unto treaſure hid in a field, the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and ſelleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.]

45, 46. Others there are which have followed the ſtudy of wiſdome, and thirſted after ſome inſtructer, and then the Goſpel of Chriſt comes as a rich prize doth to a merchant, which is in purſuit of rich merchandiſe, and meeting with a jewell for his turne, layes out all his eſtate upon it.

45. Again [the kingdome of heaven is like unto a Merchant man ſeeking goodly pearles.

46. Who when he had found one pearle of great price, he went and ſold all that he had, and bought it.]

47. caught fiſh of all ſorts, good and bad.

47. Again, the kingdome of heaven is like a net which was caſt into the ſea, and [gathered of every kind.]

48. That which was ſick, or unwholſome at the ſeaſon.

48. Which when it was full, they drew to ſhore, and ſat down, and gathered the good into veſſels, but caſt [the bad] away.

49. At the time wherein Chriſt ſhall come to work his revenge upon his enemies, not only at the deſtruction of the Jewiſh State (wherein that diſcrimination ſhall be made betwixt beleiving and unbeleiving Jews, reformed, and unreformed) but eſpecially at the final day of every mans doome, at the concluſion of the world.

49. So ſhall it be [at the end of the world, the Angels ſhall come forth, and ſever the wicked from among the juſt.]

50. And ſhall caſt them into the furnace of fire, there ſhall be wailing and gnaſhing of teeth.

51. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Have yee underſtood all theſe things? They ſay unto him, Yea, Lord.

52. Then

ª made a diſciple for, μαθητευθεὶς εἰς

52. Then ſaid he unto them, [Therefore every ª ſcribe, which is * inſtructed unto the kingdome of heaven, is like unto a man that is an houſholder, which bringeth forth out of his treaſure things new and old.]

52. Therefore if, over and above your knowledg in the law, ye have underſtood the things which I have told you of the nature of the Goſpel, the excellency of it beyond all other profeſſions, and the obligation to good life, ye are obliged to ſhew forth the effects, and to the old actions of your former life, acted by Jewiſh principles, to ſuperadde a Chriſtian practiſe, after the manner of the houſholder, who when he makes ſhew of his poſſeſſions, his proviſions, or wealth, brings forth, and ſhewes the fruit of the new, as well as the ſtore of the old year, his new, as well as old rayments, &c. and all little enough for the frank entertainment of his gueſts.

53. And it came to paſſe, that when Jeſus had finiſhed theſe parables, he departed thence.

54. And when he was come into his own countrey, he taught them in their ſynagogue, inſomuch that they were aſtoniſhed, and ſaid, Whence hath this man this wiſdome, and theſe mighty works?]

54. And coming to Nazareth where he was bred, he ſet about the work of publick teaching of them in their aſſemblies, which he did in ſuch manner, expreſſing ſuch knowledge, and doing ſuch miracles, that they which ſaw and heard, were amazed and aſtoniſht at it, ſaying, What means of knowledge hath he had by his education, and from whence can he be imagined to derive the power of doing ſuch miracles?

55. Is not this the carpenters ſon? is not his mother called Mary? And [his brethren] James, and Joſes, and Simon and Jude?

55. his firſt couſens

56. And his ſiſters, are they not all with us? [Whence then hath this man all theſe things?]

56. Whence then is it that he thus farre excells and ſurpaſſeth all them?

* ſcandalized at, ſee note on c. 11. c.

57. And they were [* offended in him. But Jeſus ſaid unto them, A prophet is not without honour, ſave in his own countrey, and in his own houſe.]

57. diſcouraged from following him any longer, whereupon Jeſus ſaid unto thoſe that were preſent, This is no ſtrange thing to me, for it is proverbially obſerved, that a Propher, or any ſent from God is not deſpiſed or undervalued ſo much any where, as among his own countrey-men and kindred, who knew his birth here below, but know not of his commiſſion from heaven.

58. And he did not many mighty works there becauſe of their unbeleif.

ª 2. Αὐξήσεις ἑκατόν

That great proportion of an hundred fold in the harveſt is no ſuch prodigious encreaſe, as men imagine. For though it were ſtrange that to the number of the buſhels of ſeed, there ſhould be an hundred times ſo many brought home by way of increaſe, becauſe a great deal of the corn that is ſowed, miſcarries, and comes to nothing, yet it is eaſie to obſerve, that from one ſingle corn (which is here referr'd to by the ὃ μὲν ἑκατὸν &c. and ὃς in Marke, i. e. one an hundred) there oft comes ſo many branches, and ſtalks, and grains in all thoſe ſtalks, as may eaſily and ordinarily make up the number ſometimes of thirty, ſometimes of ſixty, nay ſometimes of an hundred fold, though, the truth is, the hundred fold is the liberalleſt proportion, and ſo is ſet down as the higheſt degree of fruitfulneſſe in the good ground. See c. 19. 29.

b. Ἔχῃ

The word ἔχῃ ſignifies here, (as 'tis plain by the parable,) to uſe, to occupy, to traffick with grace, to take that care of it, which belongs to ſo great a treaſure, ſo ſaith Phavorinus in the word ἐνεχῶ; ἔχειν τὸ ὀπωσοῦν φέρειν καὶ φυλάττειν, To have] is uſed for to take care of, to keep, thus perhaps may χάειν ἔχειν] ſignifie Heb. 12. 28. though it be capable of another rendring, as there we ſhall ſee.

c. Συνίημι

Συνίημι ſignifies ordinarily laying to heart, thinking on, conſidering, ξυνάντα, Συνέλαβε, ſaith Didymus, and ſo Συμβάλλω Lu. 2. 19. ſeems all one with it; and ſo Suidas, Συνίημι ἀντὶ τοῦ νοῶ, to conſider or think on, and again σκόπει, βλέπε, Συνοῦ, and Heſychius, Συνίασιν, νοοῦσιν, So Ὀσίως: ὁ. Σεαυτῷ νῦν ξυνοῦ καὶ πίστευε, Conſider and pleaſe thy ſelf in private. And ſo Prov. 21. 12. the Septuagint renders Maſchil by Συνῶν, and ſo Pſal. 106. 7. and ſo here v. 15. conſider and turn, anſwerable to Ezech. 18. 28. becauſe he conſidereth and turneth away from his ſinnes.

d. Ὃς

That the ὅτὸς ὃς σπαρείς] ſignifies literally not Him that receives the ſeed, but that which is ſown, either ὁ σπόρος the ſeed in S. Luke, or ὁ λόγος the word or the like, appears both by the parable, in which anſwerable to it is the ἃ μὲν ἔπεσεν &c.] ſome fell, i. e. in ſowing fell, and alſo more particularly by the parallel place, Lu. 8 11. where 'tis ſaid, that ὁ σπόρος ἐστὶν ὁ λόγος, the ſeed is the word, and v. 14. in ſtead of the σπαρὲὶς ſown, is the τὸ πεσὸν, that which falls, which muſt needs be the corn, and not the ground, and in S. Mark c. 4. 19. 'tis clearly the corn (and not the man, or the ground) that becometh unfruitfull, and therefore 'tis clear that as [ὅτος he] referres to the whole precedent oration, [when any one heares &c.] ſo the [σπαρὲὶς ſown] is the whole of that part of the parable, the ſeed, and the ground, and the ſowing, and the fowles picking it up, all together, and then [ἐστὶ] ſignifies [is denoted by] Only 'tis true, that in the following expreſſion [ὅτός ἐστιν ὁ ἀκούων, this is he that heareth &c.] the word [is] is taken a little otherwiſe, and the phraſe ſignifies, this is it (i. e. the ſeed ſown in that ground, or in complexo the ſeed with its ground, is it) which denoteth, or, by which is denoted he that heareth &c. By both which 'tis obſervable, that in the Scripture Dialect, the word [ἐστὶ, is] or [ὅτός ἐστι, this is] doth either, as S. Auguſtine ſaith, ſignifie [ſignificat, ſignifies] or [ſignificatur, is ſignified] i. e. denotes one thing which is anſwerable to another, whether it be the ſigne, or the thing ſignified, ſometimes the ſigne, as v. 19. the ὅτός ἐστιν ὁ παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν σπαρείς, this is it that is ſignified by the ſeed ſown by the path ſide, and ſometimes the thing ſignified, as v. 20. ὅτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων, this is it which ſignifieth him which heareth the word, &c. and ſo v. 22. and 23.

e. Ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος

The phraſe [ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος literally enemy man] is here an Hebraiſme, the like as we ſhall find Heſt. 7. 6. the man adverſary, or adverſary man, is this wicked Haman, And ſo it reſtrains not the word here to a man, but leaves it in the latitude, that ἐχθρὸς alone would be, a man, or devil.

f. Ἐρεύξομαι

The word ἐρεύξομαι must be rendred, I will poure out, for, ſaith Heſychius ἐρεύξῃ, βρύσῃ, it ſignifies to ſend forth, ſo as a fountain doth water, or as a Tree its juice or moyſture. Thus נבע (which *Pſal.*19.2. and ſo *Pſal.*119.171. and *Pſal.*145.7. is rendred ἐρεύγομαι) ſignifies ſcaturire, or exundare, to pour forth water from within it, as here the κεκρυμμένα, what before was kept cloſe within.

g. Γραμματεὺς Μαθητὴς

The γραμματεὺς Scribe] here ſet oppoſite to [μαθητὴς diſciple] ſignifies him that is skilfull in the Moſaicall Law (as the diſciple is he that hath thereto ſuperadded the knowledge of the Goſpel) or any man conſider'd as furniſhed with ſacred inſtructions, and obſervations out of the Law, and the Prophets, and their διδασκάλους, any skill in the myſteries of the Old Teſtament, or Jewiſh religion; who when he becomes a Diſciple, or turns Chriſtian, he becomes furniſh'd with the myſteries of the New Teſtament; By this means he is here ſaid to be like the houſe-keeper, who for the maintaining of his family all the year long, is ſuppoſed to have a repoſitory for proviſions (which is here call'd his θησαυρὸς or ſtore-houſe) and there to have layd in proviſions of both ſorts, new and old, the new of daily purveyance, and the old which we call the ſtore. And being thus furniſhed, when any entertainment is to be made, he brings forth, and uſeth what is neceſſary of both. So for the furniſhing a table he brings forth his hot and cold meat, that which is new dreſt, and that which remains of former meals. And ſo in all other parts of œconomy, New and old garments in the wardrobe. Thus doth this knowing Jew, being now farther inſtructed by Chriſt, lie under an obligation of performing, as occaſion requires, all actions both of morall and Chriſtian virtues, but firſt and eſpecially of Chriſtian, which are the new, here firſt named, though the μαθητεύσας was laſt, by way of ὑστερον πρότερον, in other places frequently obſervable, See note on chap.7. b.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XIV.

1. AT that time Herod the Tetrarch heard of the fame of Jeſus,

2. though John the Baptiſt, when he li- ved, did no ſuch miracles, yet being put to death, and God thinking fit to raiſe him from death again, 'tis reaſonable to expect that God will aſſiſt him with a miraculous power to aſſure men that he was ſent from God, his riſing from the dead is ſo ſtrange a thing, that it muſt needs be attended with other miracles.

2. And ſaid unto his ſervants, This is John the Baptiſt, [he is riſen from the dead, and therefore mighty works doe ſhew forth themſelves in him.]

3. For Herod had laid hold on John, and bound him, and put him in priſon for Herodias ſake his brother Philips wife.

4. For John ſaid unto him, It is not lawfull for thee to have her.

5. a Prophet, or of ſomewhat a higher rank, more then a Prophet, c. 11. 9.

5. And when he would have put him to death, he feared the multitude, becauſe they counted him [as a prophet.]

6. Mar.6. note b.

6. But when Herods birth-day was kept, the daughter of Herodias daunced before them, and pleaſed Herod.

7. Whereupon he promiſed with an oath, to give her whatſoever ſhe would aske.

a. 8. upon the advice, impulſion, inſtigation of her mother, with whom ſhe conſulted what ſhe ſhould aske,

8. And ſhe [being before [a] inſtructed of her mother,] ſaid, Give me here John Baptiſt's head in a charger.

b. 9. This petition was very unacceptable to Herod, yet becauſe he had ſworn, and that it might not appear a levity, or inconſtancy to thoſe that were at the feaſt with him, when he made the oath, he gave appointment it ſhould be ſo.

9. And the king [b] was ſorry, nevertheleſſe for the oaths ſake, and them which * ſate with him at meat, he commanded it to be given her.]

* lay, συνανακειμένους

10. And he ſent, and beheaded John in the priſon.

11. And his head was brought in a charger and given to the damoſell: and ſhe brought it to her mother.

12. And John's diſciples took care of his buriall, and that being done came to Jeſus, whoſe forerunner John was, and told him what had befaln John, and (probably) continued with him as his diſciples.

12. And his diſciples came and took up the body and buried it, and went and told Jeſus.]

13. that the ſame might not befall him, before he had fulfill'd his office, for which he was ſent, (ſee c.12.15.) he departed by ſhip from thence, taking none but his Diſciples with him, and went to a place which was not inhabited, and when the people heard whither he was gone, they took a compaſſe by land, and came to him thither.

13. When Jeſus heard of it, [he departed thence by ſhip into a deſert place apart; and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities.]

14. was ſo kinde, as not to conceale himſelf from them any longer, but came to them, and when he was come,

14. And Jeſus went forth, and ſaw a great multitude, and [was moved with compaſſion toward them, and] he healed their ſicke.

15. the time of evening when every one gets him to his Inne and provides for his ſupper, is already paſt,

15. And when it was evening, his Diſciples came to him, ſaying, This is a deſert place, [and the time is now paſt] ſend the multitudes away, that they may goe into the villages and buy themſelves victualls.

16. But Jeſus ſaid unto them, They need not depart, give ye them to eate.

17. And they ſay unto him, We have here but five loaves and two fiſhes.

18. He

18. He said, Bring them hither to me.

19. And [he commanded the multitudes to sit down on the grasse,] and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven he [c] blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his Disciples, and the Disciples to the multitude.

19. he appointed the Apostles Mar. 6. 39. to dispose them meal-wise on grasse-plats there, c.

20. And they did all eate, and were filled; and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.

21. And they that had eaten were about five thousand men, [besides] women and children.

21. not counting

22. And straightway Jesus constrained his Disciples to get into a ship, and to goe before him unto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away.]

22. Upon this the multitudes designing to take him and proclaime him King, Joh. 6. 15. he presently sent his Disciples before him by sea to the wilderness, Mar. 6. 32. (which was on the same side with Bethsaida and Capernaum, whither it seems they went, Joh. 6. 17.) that so he might quietly dismisse the multitude.

23. And when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain apart to pray: and [*] when the evening [d] was come, he was there alone.

[*] The evening being ended. d

24. But the ship was now in the midst of the sea, tossed with waves, for the wind was contrary.

25. And [in the fourth watch of the night] Jesus went out unto them, walking on the sea.

25. towards the morning.

26. And when the Disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is [a spirit;] and they cryed out for feare.

26. Some spirit or phantastick shape, that seems there to walke bodily.

27. But straightway Jesus spake unto them saying, Be of good cheer: It is I, be not afraid.

28. And Peter answered him, and said, Lord, if it be thou, [bid me] come unto thee on the water.

28. Give me thy commission, and then I know I safely may.

29. And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water to goe to Jesus.

30. But when he saw the wind boysterous, he was afraid, and beginning to sink, he cryed, saying, Lord save me.

31. And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, [wherefore didst thou doubt?]

31. why did thy minde stand divided, flote between faith and diffidence? why didst thou stagger? why didst thou distrust my power, when I had bid thee come to mee?

32. And when [they] were come into the ship, the winde ceased.

32. Christ & Peter.

33. Then [they that were in the ship came and worshiped him,] saying; Of a truth thou art the son of God.

33. the rest of his Disciples came every one of them and adored him, and acknowledged his omnipotence,

34. And when they were gone over, they came into the land of [c] Gennesaret.]

34. Cinnereth, Deut. 3. c.

35. And when the men of that place [had knowledge of him,] they sent out into all that countrey round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased,

35. knew him, as having been there before, Lu. 5. 1.

36. And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment, and as many as [touched] were made perfectly whole.

36. touched it, or any part of his garment.

a προβιβάζω

The word προβιβάζω, saith Budæus, hath a peculiar notion for a client instructing an advocate in his cause, telling him the heads of his defence, and so it may properly signifie here, that Herodias instructed her daughter, what she should propose to the King by way of request; But besides this, Hesychius renders προβιβασθεὶς, πεισθεὶς, and in the old Glossary, προβιβάζω promoveo, provevo, and Suidas προβιβάζεις, ὁδηγεῖς, πείθεις, in all of these to stirre up, perswade, instigate. The Interpreters of the Old Testament use it for שנן to sharpen, Deut. 6. 7. and that belongs to the same sense.

b Ἔλυπήθη ὁ βασιλεύς.

Of Herods sorrow many motives, and reasons might be collected; One lesse observable might be, because this was his birthday feast; On such dayes they were wont to make merry, and entertain the people, and make it holy day from all secular employments, and they tooke speciall care to avoid all ill-omens, to have no quarrels nor contentions, no pleadings in foro, (Natalem colimus, tacete lites, Marti, l. 10. 87.) but especially no shedding of blood, no executions, counting it unfit to deprive any of life, that day, wherein they received theirs (Ἔδοξε τῷ μηδένα κολάζειν τῶν καλακειτων, ἄχρις ἂν ὀπωρᾶις, γυμνάσιοις, ἢ παννύχοις, &c. διεξέλθωσι, saith Philo against Flaccus) and if any hanged on the gallowes, or crosse before, they were then to be taken down. This was done by the Pagans, lest they should offend, or sadden, or displease their Genius, and Herod being more then half a Pagan, might well have this cause of griefe, and so be troubled to doe this on John Baptist this day. But beyond this, two other reasons of Herod's sorrow are set down by the Evangelists, one Mar. 6. 20. where 'tis said Herod feared John, and look't upon him as a just and holy man, and observed or bare a reverence to him, and thereupon reformed many things upon his instance, and took pleasure in hearing him, and that is mention'd as the obstruction obſtruction of Herodias's deſigne of killing him, v. 19. A ſecond reaſon is here mention'd v. 5. he feared the multitude, becauſe they counted John as a prophet, he was afraid to meddle with him, becauſe of his popularity, (as the Phariſees were, c. 21. 26.) Both theſe had an influence on Herod, and cauſed this reluctancy to his execution.

c. Εὐλογεῖν

That εὐλογῆσαι to bleſſe] ſignifies to give thanks, is ſufficiently known; And the ſame is otherwiſe expreſt by praiſing, glorifying, ſinging, confeſſing, calves of lips, but eſpecially giving thanks, and two of them together, ὁμολογοῦντες αἰνέσει, Col. 3. 16. with thanksgiving ſinging or praiſing. The only difficulty here is, whether the verb εὐλόγησε, he bleſt] be to be rendred ſo, as to joyne with the bread and fiſhes, or with the word [God] underſtood, i.e. whether it be, he gave thanks to God, or he bleſſed the bread, &c. praying for Gods bleſſing upon them. The ſenſe in either notion will be much the ſame, For if he bleſſed, or gave thanks to God, he is to be ſuppoſed alſo to have pray'd for his bleſſing upon them, and ſo if he gave thanks, or pray'd for bleſſing on them, it muſt be to God that this was perform'd. But the uſe of the phraſe in the New Teſtament inclines it (both here and Mar. 6. 41. and 8. 7.) to the latter notion, that of bleſſing the bread, giving thanks for it, For ſo 1 Cor. 10. 16. where it hath an accuſative caſe joyn'd with it, it is ποτήριον the cup, or pot, the cup of bleſſing ὃ εὐλογοῦμεν which we bleſſe, which makes it neceſſary to render the word in that place, not to give thanks ſimply, but to bleſſe, i.e. by giving of thanks, to ſeparate or conſecrate it to a holy uſe, as when Gen. 2. 3. 'tis ſaid of God, that he hallowed the ſeventh day, and bleſſed it. Thus 1 Sam. 9. 13. we read εὐλογεῖν τὸ θυσιαν to bleſſe the ſacrifice, i.e. by giving thanks to God to conſecrate it. And ſo Lu. 9. 16. 'tis clearly (without the notion of any extraordinary conſecration) of the loaves and fiſhes, εὐλόγησεν αὐτοὺς, he bleſſed them, and brake &c. And this is ἁγιάζειν to ſanctifie with prayer &c. 1 Tim. 4. 5. which belongs to the uſe of every creature, and not only of thoſe which are conſecrated to a peculiar uſe in the ſervice of God.

d. Ὀψία

The different ſignification of [ὀψίας γενομένης, the evening being come] in this verſe, from the ſame phraſe v. 15. may be obſerved; For betwixt that and this, the people were ſet to ſupper, and riſen again, the Diſciples ſent to take boat, and the multitudes diſmiſs'd by Chriſt, and all that being done, Jeſus goes by himſelf to the mount to pray, and then after that it followes [ὀψίας δὲ γενομένης, the evening being come.] The ſure way of underſtanding this muſt be by comparing theſe paſſages with the relations of the other Evangeliſts, S. John aſſignes not any part of the day to the former part of the action, but to the latter he doth, Joh. 6. 16. ὡς δὲ ὀψία ἐγένετο, when the evening was come, S. Mark in the firſt place hath a different phraſe, ἤδη ὥρας πολλῆς γενομένης, much time being now ſpent] c. 6. 35. and S. Luke another, ἡ δὲ ἡμέρα ἤρξατο κλίνειν c. 9. 12. Now the day began to waine,] In the latter place, S. Marke reads with S. Matthew, [ὀψίας γενομένης evening being come] and S. Luke proceeds not to that part of the ſtory. By this it is cleare, that the latitude of the word [ὀψία,] which we render evening, is it, which muſt reconcile the ſeeming difference. The evening and the morning were the firſt day, ſaith Moſes, and ſo 'tis clear that the ὀψία ſignifies all from the beginning of the evening, till the next morning, the ſpace of the Sun's being ſet, as the morning is of the Sun's being up. So Mat. 28. 1. ὀψὲ σαββάτων the evening of the Sabbath] is immediately attended with τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ εἰς μίαν σαββάτων, the light of the morning of the firſt day of the week, and here the firſt thing, after this laſt [ὀψίας γενομένης] is the fourth watch in the night, i.e. toward morning. According to this latitude, the declination of the day, the Sun-ſetting in S. Luke, and the much time being ſpent in S. Marke, is by S. Matthew call'd, ὀψία, v. 15. And the night time (for ſo it was, when they were a rowing in the river, and he at his prayers in the mount) is by all the three Evangeliſts, that mention it, called ὀψία too. See note on Mar. 14. c.

e. Γεννησὰρ.

The place called גִּנֹּסַר in Joſuah (and uſed by the Hieruſalem Targum Num. 34. 15.) was after commonly call'd Genezar, ſaith Joſephus, from the Chaldee גִּנְזַר, which was the rendring of that Hebrew; from both which put together, ariſeth the word here, Genezareth, i. e. the valley of branches; and this as the title of the whole province, which contain'd in it the Lake ſo call'd, and the city in the tribe of Nephthali, which Herod adorn'd with magnificent buildings and call'd it Tiberias in honour of Tiberius Caſar, and accordingly the Lake of Genezareth, is ſometimes call'd the Sea of Tiberias.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XV.

1. THen came to Jeſus Scribes and Phariſees which were of Jeruſalem, ſaying,

a. 2. before meat, as the Jews think themſelves obliged to doe.

2. Why doe thy diſciples tranſgreſſe the [a] tradition of the elders? for they waſh not their hands [when they eat bread.]

3. the obſervance and practiſe of thoſe

3. But he anſwered and ſaid unto them, Why doe you alſo tranſgreſſe the commandement of God by [your traditions?]

things, which are not taught by God, but by your ſelves delivered to your diſciples? Sure this muſt be acknowledged by you a great fault, who expect to have all your own ordinances obſerved ſo punctually.

b. 4. uſeth them ill in words or deeds, that lightly regards them, that refuſeth to doe ought for them, v. 9.

4. For God commanded, ſaying, Honour thy father and mother, and he that [b] curſeth father or mother] let him die the death.

c. 5, 6. But contrary to this your tradition is, that if a man can anſwer his parents, when they need any relief, I have bound my ſelf by an oath that I will not doe any thing to the relief of my father and my mother; or, O Father,

5. But ye ſay, Whoſoever ſhall ſay to his father or mother, It is a [c] gift by whatſoever thou mighteſt be profited by me,

6. And honour not his father or his mother, he ſhall be free. Thus have ye made the commandement of God of none effect] by your tradition.

Father, that by which thou shouldest be relieved by me, is a gift already devoted to God, and cannot without impiety be otherwise employed, and by this piety to God, I may be as profitable and helpfull to thee, for God will repay it upon me and thee in our needs, He hath said enough to his parents, or, he shall be free from that obligation to relieve them. (See note on 1 Pet. 3. c.) Here is a clear example to demonstrate that you that stand so for the observing of your traditions, doe make no scruple to evacuate the obligation of Gods commands.

7. Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophecy of you, saying,

8. This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips, but their heart is farre from me.

* injunctions, ἐντάλματα.

9. But in vain doe they worship me, teaching for doctrines the * traditions of men. 9. The service which they performe to me is little worth, and likely to receive a slender reward, when my commands are not heeded by them, but their own constitutions set up in stead of them, see Mat. 7.7.

10. And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear and understand.] 10. And leaving the Pharisees with some dislike, he calls the multitude, (who while he talk't to the Pharisees, stood at some distance) and speakes more hopefully of, and cheerfully to them, saying, To this matter of washing before meat, so insisted on by the Pharisees, do you consider what I now say.

11. Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man, but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man.] 11. Not that which is eaten, but that which is spoken, polluteth any man.

12. Then came his Disciples, and said to him, knowest thou that the Pharisees [were offended] when they heard this saying? 12. galled and discouraged from receiving thy doctrine,

13. But he answered and said, Every † plant which my [d] heavenly father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.] 13. To this he gave no other reply but this, All such as they, which come with such prejudices, as the Pharisees do, that prefer their own injunctions before the commands of God, v. 9. 'tis to be expected, that the telling them the truth will aliene them, All seed but that which falls on the good ground, and is there radicated in humility and piety, such as my father ownes the planting of, shall certainly come to nought, And consequently so must all faith in these opinionative men, and therefore 'tis not strange if they be galled, and depart from me, upon the noting and reproving of their errors. d.

14. Let them alone, they be blind, leaders of the blind, And if the blind lead the blind they shall both fall into the ditch.] 14. If this have galled and discouraged and drove them from me, let them go, They are stupidly and perversly ignorant themselves and take great pleasure to be accounted Doctors, and Rabbi's, instructors of the ignorant, and what can be the effect of this, but that the leaders, and they that are led by them, shall together ingulfe themselves in perdition.

15. Then answered Peter, and said unto him, [Declare unto us] this parable. 15. Tell us the meaning of

* Art all this while, ἀκμὴν.

16. And Jesus said, Are ye also * yet without understanding?

17. Doe not ye yet understand, that [whatsoever entreth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?] 17. every thing that we eate, first comes from without, and so is no part of us, is not imputable to us in respect of the principle, and then doth but passe or travell through us, is soon dispatched, and thrown out of the body again, and so be it never so grosse, never so unclean, it cannot pollute the eater, or least not comparably so much as that which hath the original from our selves, and hath some space of permanency there.

18. But those things which proceed out of the mouth, come forth from the heart, and they defile a man.] 18. But the clean, unsavory speeches 'tis clear that they proceed from the heart, and those that are there, i. e. in the heart, that spring from that fountain, which we are most concerned to keep pure, and which is most truly and properly ours, and imputable to us, those are the sort of things that may most reasonably be deemed to defile any man.

* wicked machinations, or, designes. † raylings, or, slanders. βλασφημίαι.

19. For out of the heart proceeds [e] * evill thoughts, murthers, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false-witnesse, † blasphemies. e.

20. These are the things which defile a man. [But to eat with unwashed hands defileth not a man.] 20. but so meerly corporeal and external a thing as omitting to wash before meat, cannot be thought to defile any man.

21. Then Jesus went thence, and departed into the coasts of Tyre and Sidon.

22. And behold [a [f] woman of Canaan came] out of the same coasts, and cryed unto him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord, thou son of David, my daughter is grievously vexed with a Devill. 22. an heathen woman born in Phenice, hearing of his miracles, and that he was now come thither, came to him on purpose f.

23. But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came, and [besought him saying, [g] Send her away,] for she cryeth after us. 23. entreated him (see note on Joh. 4. b.) saying, doe that for her that she desires, that she may be quiet. g.

24. But he answered and said, [I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.] 24. My mission is purposely to the Jewes, to reduce them to repentance, and so to shew my miracles among them.

25. Then came she and [worshipped him,] saying, Lord help me. 25. fell down, and besought him,

26. But he answered and said, It is not meet [to take the childrens bread, and to cast it to dogs.] 26. to work these miracles and cures on an heathen, which were destin'd to Gods people the Jewes.

* Yea, or, I beseech thee. 27. And she said, [h] * Truth, Lord, yet the dogs eate of the crumbes, which fall from their masters table.] 27. I beseech thee Lord, for although it be as thou saist, yet 'tis ordinary also that the dogs lick up the remainders and scatterings of the table, and so may the Gentiles be admitted to partake of thy mercies to the Jewes. h.

* desirest θέλεις.

28. Then Jesus answered and said unto her, O woman, great is thy faith; be it unto thee, even as thou * wilt. And her daughter was made whole, from that very [hour.] 28. instant point of time.

29. And

29. to the coaſt by the ſide of the ſea

29. And Jeſus departed from thence, and came [nigh unto the ſea] of Galilee, and went up into a mountain, and ſat down there.

30. deaf, and, by that, dumb, men that had loſt their limbs, and many more ſick of other diſeaſes.

30. And great multitudes came unto him, having with them thoſe that were lame, blind, [dumb, maimed, and many others] and caſt them down at Jeſus feet, and he healed them.

31. And they all, whether Jewes or Gentiles, acknowledg'd this to be a wonderfull work of mercy wrought by the God of Iſrael, and ſuch as no other God was able to doe.

31. Inſomuch that the multitudes wondred, when they ſaw the dumb to ſpeak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to ſee, [and they glorified the God of Iſrael.]

32. Then Jeſus called his diſciples unto him, and ſaid, I have compaſſion on the multitude, becauſe they continue with me now three daies, and have nothing to eat, and I will not ſend them away faſting, leſt they faint by the way.

33. And his diſciples ſay unto him, Whence ſhould we have ſo much bread in the wilderneſſe, as to * fill ſo great a multitude?

* feed, or ſatisfie, χορτάσαι

34. And Jeſus ſaith unto them, How many loaves have yee? And they ſaid, ſeven, and a few little fiſhes.

35. And he commanded the multitudes to ſit down on the ground.

36. And he took the ſeven loaves and the fiſhes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his diſciples, and the diſciples to the multitude.

37. And they did all eate and were * filled; and they took up of the broken meat that was left ſeven baskets full.

* ſatisfied, ἐχορτάσθησαν

38. And they that did eate, were four thouſand, beſides women and children.

39. And he ſent away the multitudes, and took ſhip, and came into the coaſts of i Magdala.

Notes on Chap. XV.

a. Νιπτῆς χερσὶ

A cuſtome this was taken up among the Jewes, and ſo ſtrictly commanded one another, that he that ſhould not obſerve it, was thought guilty of an heavy crime, and a capitall. So ſaith Rabbi Aquiba, He that takes meat with unwaſh't hands, is worthy of death, and therefore having, in priſon, water given him for his uſe, to waſh, and to drink, having by accident ſpilt one half of it, he waſht his hands in the remainder, thinking it more neceſſary to doe ſo, then to drink, and to die, then to violate the traditions of his Anceſtors. Hence is that of another Jew, Rabbi Joſe, that to eat with unwaſh't hands, is all one as to lie with a whore.

b. Κακολογῶν

The words of this ſecond Text, being by our Saviour taken out of Exod. 21. 17. and ſet down punctually out of the Septuagint, κακολογῶν, according to the ſcope of Chriſt, muſt have the extent of the ſignification of the Hebrew radix, קלל, and therefore it ſignifies 1. poſitively, doing, or, ſpeaking injuriouſly to any, and 2dly, privatively, lightly regarding in words, or deeds, and ſo not maintaining them in their need. For as this is the thing to which Chriſt's ſcope directs the ſignification of it here, ſo קלל the word uſed in all the Texts, to which this referres, Exod. 21. 17. Levit. 20 9. Prov. 20. 20. ſignifies vilipendere, contemnere, parvi facere, to ſlight, and contemne, and ſet at nought (as in Pihel moſt uſually maledicere) So Ezech. 22. 7. πατέρα καὶ μητέρα ἐκάκολόσαν, ſay the Septuagint, where we rightly render it, ſet light by father and mother, and although every part of this was not ſo farre meant, Exod. 21. 17. as to bring temporall death on all, that did thus neglect their parents, yet it is thus fitly extended by Chriſt in the following words, as bringing danger of eternall death on thoſe, who though they did not in plain words curſe their parents (which the Phariſees told them, was all that was meant by that text) would not yet doe ought for them, and ſo in S. Paul's judgment, 1 Tim. 5. 8. were worſe then Infidels. It is here farther obſervable, that ὁ κακολογῶν ſignifies here indefinitively, every man, whoſoever he be, not excepting any, under what vow ſoever, for ſo 'tis in Lev. 20. 9. איש איש אנשׁ אנשׁ, ſay the Septuagint, every man, or, what man ſoever.

c. Κορβᾶν δῶρον

A ſolemn form of devoting there was among the Jewes, called ἰυχὴ ἀφωρίας, and though very contrary to charity, yet frequent among them, to bind a man's ſelf by vow, or execration, that he will in nothing be beneficiall to his neighbour, his parent, &c. and this was called by them Corban, and is often in this ſenſe to be met with in the Miſnaioth, and in Maimonides, and is the word uſed in Mar. 7. 11. as all one with δῶρον a gift here. This was uſed among them even againſt their own parents, and, though quite contrary to the precept of honouring and relieving them, yet was by them thought obligatory to the fruſtrating of that commandement, and many caſes are ſet down, wherein it doth ſo, in Maimonides and the Rabbins, and that may very probably be that which is here charged on the Phariſees by Chriſt; But that which is more ordinarily received by the Ancients, and which Origen had from an Hebrew, is, that Corban and δῶρον are (in the ſenſe of it Lev. 1. 2. and 7. 14. &c.) a gift conſecrated to God, and ſo ſaith Theophylact the Phariſees (covetous greedy perſons) perſwading children to give nothing to their parents, but to conſecrate all to the treaſury of the Temple, taught them to ſay, O Father that which thou deſireſt to be profited by me (i. e. relieved) is a gift, i. e. conſecrated to the Temple, and ſo they divided with the children all that they had, καὶ οἱ γονεῖς καταλειμπάνονται ἀβοηθήτους the poor old parents were left without any relief in their old age. This interpretation is probable alſo. But in either way, the words in Greek have an ellipſis, which muſt be ſupplied by adding, ſhall be guiltleſſe, or, ſhall be free, i. e. from the obligation or puniſhment attending that that prohibition, or, there is no more required, or, this is enough, or the like.

d. φυτεία plantation] here ſignifies not one ſingle plant, but a garden, or nurſery of plants, And ſo fitly belongs to a multitude of men, a ſect, or ſort, as here of the Phariſees v. 12. which followed Chriſt, and heard his doctrine. The only difficulty is, what is meant by ſuch a plantation being planted, or not planted by God. And that will be beſt conjectured from the context, At one ſaying of Chriſt, the Phariſees were ſcandalized, gall'd, and diſcouraged from following him, or intertaining his doctrine, v. 12. And when Chriſt is told of this, his only anſwer is, Every plantation which is not planted by God, ſhall be rooted out, Where as their being ſcandalized, or diſcouraged from following him, is the rooting out of this plantation, ſo their manner of following, beleiving, intertaining of his doctrine is expreſt by Gods having not planted that plantation. The bottome of it is, That faith which comes from God, as founded on his teſtimony, and terminated in his doctrine, will extend it ſelf infinitly to all that ſhall come ſo teſtified, and ſo to the whole doctrine of Chriſt, as well as to any part of it, it being certain that God cannot lie, or bear teſtimony to any, that ſhall ſay any thing falſe, and as certain, that all Chriſt's doctrine, particularly this, v. 11. hath a tincture of divinity upon it. And therefore they that profeſſe to hearken to Chriſt, and to receive his doctrine in ſome things, but not in all, to follow him a while, and then to quarrell with his doctrine, when it agrees not with their humour, 'tis hereby evident, that the faith, which is in them, is not founded on Gods teaching, or teſtifying (ſee c. 16. 17.) is not his ſeed received into an humble, obedient, honeſt heart, (wch is a mould, that receives all that comes from God, and brings forth fruit abundantly c. 13. 23.) but is founded on ſome other principle, the gratifying their humours, or intereſts, &c. and accordingly as the ſeed that fell on ſtony ground, ſoon withered away, (that kind of beleiver, when tribulation came, was ſcandalized, fell off and forſook Chriſtianity,) ſo this kind of partiall, hypocriticall faith, of them that beleive Chriſt's doctrine no farther then they like it, is ſure not long to laſt, whenſoever a croſſe doctrine comes, as here, they are ſcandalized, and fall off from Chriſt, the plantation, being none of Gods, is rooted out. By this will be diſcern'd, what is meant by θεοδίδακτοι, being taught of God, by having any thing revealed from God, c. 16. 17. i. e. when, as God by his teſtimony of Chriſt, or the holy Ghoſts deſcent on the Apoſtles, teſtifies the truth of any doctrine, ſo the humble, obedient beleiver receives it, as God's, and without conſideration of any humane or carnall motives, imbraces it whatever it is, how ſtrange, or ungratefull ſoever.

e. διαλογισμοὶ] cannot well in this place ſignifie reaſonings, bare thoughts, without ſubſequent actions, becauſe they are here ſaid to come out of the heart, and to come out of the man, Mar. 7. 20. it may therefore poſſibly be wicked talking from λόγος ſpeech, and not λόγος reaſon, according to which it is, that Heſychius renders it διαλογία loquacity, garrulity, and ſo 'twould accord with the mention of the mouth v. 11. 18. 19. But it may well be that the mouth there may be uſed by a Synecdoche for the outward man, as in Marke 'tis ſet [one of the man] and then other circumſtances there are of the context, which will, I conceive, ſuggeſt another ſignification of the words, which may be moſt agreeable to them, Our Saviour here mentions ſeverall ſins againſt the ſecond Table, againſt the 7th Commandment, Adulteries, and fornications together, and by ſetting fornications after adulteries, I ſuppoſe he means a fouler ſort of that ſin, unnaturall uncleanneſſe, ſuch as is meant by πορνεία in many other places. Then againſt the eighth, Theſts of all ſorts, the word κλοπαὶ will belong to greater and leſſer kinds of that ſin, and ſo no other word is added to it. Then againſt the 9th, falſe witneſſe, and βλασφημίαι i. e. defamations and raylings, (as that word being annext to ψευδομαρτυρίαι certainly ſignifies here, and ſo in Cyrills Lexicon βλάσφημος, maledicus, βλασφημία, infamia, and βλασφημῶ, jurgo, maledico,) by which 'tis plain that he mentions the ſins againſt the ſeverall Commandments in the order wherein the Commandments are ſet, and in two of them he ſets down two ſeverall words to comprehend all the ſins againſt thoſe commandements; and the latter of the two an higher ſin then the former. This makes it very probable, that as φόνοι murthers,] the breach of the ſixt Commandment, is ſet immediately before adulteries, the breach of the ſeventh, and the word murthers ſignifying the higher part of that ſin, actuall bloodineſſe or killing, ſo the πονηροὶ διαλογισμοὶ ſhould be ſet to ſignifie that which is the degree next to actuall murther, and ſo note wicked machinations, or conſpiracies againſt the life of any man; and that not only from the force of the word πονηροὶ wicked, but of διαλογισμοὶ too, by which מְזִמָּה (vafricies, machinatio, ſtratagema) is rendred, Pſal. 139. which is in other places rendred ἐπιχείρημα conatus, machinatio, Jer. 23. 20. and 30. 20. and ſo the ordinary Hebrew word חשׁב for διαλογίζομαι, is ἐπιλογίζομαι, Exod. 31. 4. μηχανᾶσθαι 2 Chron. 26. 15. μηχανεῖον Zach. 7. 10. Thus Gen. 6. 5. with the wickedneſſe of man which was great on the earth, and for which the flood came, (by which is to be underſtood that violence mention'd v. 11. and 13. and that bloodguiltineſſe, which is particularly forbidden the ſons of Noah after the flood, Gen. 9. 6. and hedged in with a ceremoniall ordinance, v. 4.) is joyned the imagination of the thoughts of his heart, which was only evil continually, no doubt meaning theſe wicked bloody machinations, and ſo 1 Mac. 2. 63. διαλογισμὸς ἀνόμων is the heathen Tyrants bloody machination againſt God's people. Thus Lu. 6. 8. Chriſt knowing their διαλογισμοὺς (where that it ſignifies not their ſecret reaſonings of thoughts, appears by the parallel in Mat. 10. 12. where they openly ask him the queſtion, Is it lawfull &c.) it muſt therefore note their treacherous deſignes againſt him, to which this queſtion was ſubſervient, that they might accuſe him, And Lu. 2. 3. ἐκ πολλῶν καρδιῶν διαλογισμοὶ are the ſeverall deſignes and machinations of men, which lying hid in their hearts, are by the means there mention'd, the coming of Chriſt, brought forth ἐκ τῶν καρδιῶν out of their hearts, and ſo revealed. And thus Phil. 2. 14. διαλογισμοὶ are added to γογγυσμοὶ murmurings, and both of them together look on as ſins, that would much blemiſh the Chriſtian profeſſion among the enemies thereof, of, but above all, the uſe of the word in this ſenſe is moſt commodiouſly appliable to 1 Tim. 2. 8. where he commands all that pray in every place, to doe it, lifting up pure hands, without wrath and διαλογισμοῖ, where ſure as wrath ſignifies bloudymindednesse, malice &c. ſo διαλογισμοὶ is the contriving of that, the deſire of which was contained in the former word, according to that of Iſa. 1. where the hands being full of blond, i. e. their bloudy ἐγκειρήματα (as they are all one with διαλογισμοὶ) are the things that ſo blemiſh their prayers, and make them odious in Gods ſight. 'Tis indeed in S. Mar. c. 7. 21. only κακοὶ διαλογισμοὶ, and there the order of the ſins according to the Decalogue is not obſerved, and many more are named then here, but becauſe in this place the order is more exact in all the other, it muſt be ſo in all probability in this alſo, and if the notion of διαλογισμοὶ be rightly obſerved in the other places, eſpecially in that to Timothy, then ſure κακοὶ being joyned to διαλογισμοὶ will ſignifie ſuch wicked or evill machinations, and not ordinary evill thoughts. Thus doth the word ſeem to be uſed in the Epiſtle of Clemens Romanus to the Corinthians p. 30. ὑδὲν λέληθεν αὐτὸν τῶ ἐννοιῶν ἡμῶν, ὑδὲ τῶν διαλογισμῶν ὧν ποιύμεθα, The machinations (meaning thereby ſeditions and factions) which they were guilty of, or which they are ſaid to have committed or acted, which concludes the word to ſignifie ſomewhat beyond thought. Of this word ſee more, Ro. 14. note a.

f. Καναναῖος

This woman of Canaan is Mar. 7. 26. called a Syrophœnician, Canaan and Phœnicia being the ſame region, and therefore the land of Canaan is by the Septuagint called Φοινίκη Ex. 16. 35. ſo Shaul Ex. 6. 15. is by them called Σαὰλ ὁκ τῆς Φοινίσσης, but Gen. 46. 10. ὑὸς Καναανίτου the ſon of a Cananiteſſe. Theſe Canaanites were ſaid to be peculiarly thoſe, which were on the Sea ſhore, Numb. 13. 29. which is called Phœnicia, and ſo the Phœnicians were famous for Merchandiſe, and for cunning, and ſubtlety therein. So in Homer Odyſſ. 15. Ἔνθα δὲ Φοίνικας ναυκλυτοὺς ἤλυθον ἄνδρες, Τρῶλαι, μυρί' ἄγοντες ἀθύρματα νηὶ μελαίνῃ, The Phœnicians are great Merchants; and again, Δὴ τότε Φοῖνιξ ἦλθεν ἀνὴρ ἀπιήλιος ἐιδώς, Τρώκλης, ὃς δὴ πολλὰ κάκ' ἀνθρώποισιν ἐώργει. The ſame is obſerved of the Canaanites, Hoſ. 12. 7. Iſ. 23. 8. And that which is ſaid by the heathens of the original of letters and literature, by Cadmus from the Phœnicians, confirmeth the ſame, by the Phœnicians meaning the Hebrews, from whom (according to Clemens his obſervation that Ἕλλωνες ἀπὸ κλινῶν) the Gracians ſtole all that they had. This ſame woman is by S. Mark called Ἕλληνις a Grecian, either in reſpect of her religion, that ſhe was not of the Jewiſh profeſſion, or elſe as all that were not Hebrewes were called Greeks, and as the Greeks call all other nations Barbarians, and as the Turkes call ſeverall nations Frankes.

g. Ἀπόλυσον.

The Diſciples ſpeaking to Chriſt to diſmiſſe her] ſeemeth not here to mean, that he ſhould ſend her away without doing what ſhe deſired, ſend her away empty, but that he ſhould ſatisfie her requeſt, and ſo diſpatch, or diſmiſſe her (as when a Maſter bids the ſervant diſmiſs the poor body, his meaning is, that he ſhould give him his dole) this ſenſe accords with Chriſts anſwer, which is, that he is not ſent ſave to the houſe of Iſrael, v. 24. in oppoſition to this Canaanitiſh woman, which was not ſuch, and v. 26. It is not good to take the childrens bread and caſt it to dogs, which objection of Chriſt's is a reaſon, why he ſhould not preſently cure the Womans child, not why he ſhould cure it, and ſo argues the ſenſe of the Diſciples (who ſure deſire him to doe, that which he did not ſeem to intend to doe) to be, that he ſhould grant, not that he ſhould deny her.

h. Nai

The Greek ναὶ] is here a ſigne of beſeeching, not only of aſſenting, as Philem. v. 20. ναὶ ἀδελφὲ, I beſeech thee brother, let me &c. Rev. 22. 20. ναὶ ἔρχου κύριε, Come Lord I pray thee. This uſe of the word [ναὶ] ſeems to be taken from the Hebrew נָא which is a forme of exhorting or praying, Numb. 12. 13. heale her now, O Lord, נָא I beſeech thee. So Gen. 19. 7, 8. and 18. 30. 32. and ſo in the word Hoſanna. So in Euripides, ναὶ πρὸς σὶ τῆς δὶ ἰκτίδας ἰκνοῦμαι, and in Ariſtophanes, ναὶ ναὶ καλαδοῦμαι πολλῷον Δία.

i. Μαγδαλὰ

What the Greek here reades Magdala, the Syriack reades Magedu, the vulgar Latin, Magedan, and the antient Greek and Latine MS. τῆς Μαγαδὰν Magadan, which makes it probable, that this coaſt of Magdala, is all one with the valley of Mageddon, or Megiddo, which belongs to the tribe of Manaſſes Joſ. 17. 11. Jud. 1. 27. where Joſias was ſlaine, 2 King. 23. 29. by Pharaoh Neco. For to this belongs the narration of that ſtory in Herodotus, l. 2. Συνέβη πρὸς ὁ Νεκὼς συμβαλὼν ἐν Μαγδόλῳ ἐνίκησε, Neco fought on foot with the Syrians (i. e. the Hebrews) in Magdol, and had the victory, and, as it followes, μετὰ τὸν μάχην Καδύτιν πόλιν τῆς Συρίης ἐοῦσαν μεγάλην ἕιλε, After the fight took Cadytis (i. e. ſaith Joſ. Scaliger. Cadeſh) which was a great city of Syria.

CHAP. XVI.

Paraphraſe.

1. THE Phariſees alſo with the Sadducees came, and [tempting,] deſired him that he would ſhew them a ſigne from heaven.]

1. Not being ſatisfied with his former anſwer of the ſigne of Jonas c. 12. 39. they again require ſome farther ſigne from him, to teſtifie that the God of heaven hath ſent him.

2. He anſwered and ſaid unto them, When it is evening, ye ſay, It will be faire weather, for the ſky is red.

3. And in the morning, It will be foule weather to day; for the ſky is red and lowring. O [yee hypocrites ye can diſcerne the face of the ſky, but can ye not diſcerne the ſignes of the times?]

3. Ye hypocrites ye have skill enough to expound and interpret the appearances of the ſky, and can prognoſticate what kind of weather it will be, by what at the preſent yee obſerve in the colour of the clouds, (ſee note on Ja. 1. 23.) And when my preaching in theſe words, [Repent, for the kingdome of God is at hand] and my adding miracles of all ſorts to enforce beleife on you, do not yet work on you,

Is

Is it not ſtrange that you cannot diſcern what is coming upon you? Can there be any more certain prognoſtick of approaching deſtruction then this? and are not you much more neerly concerned herein, then in rain or fair weather yee can be? Why ſhould not your ſagacity in other things extend to this alſo?

4. A wicked and adulterous generation ſeeketh after a ſigne, and there ſhall no ſigne be given to it, but the ſigne of the prophet Jonas. And he left them and departed.] 4. 'Tis an argument of great perverſeneſſe and falſneſſe in you, that when ſo many miracles have been wrought, and repentance ſo long preached among you, ye now require a ſigne from heaven, to evidence that I am a true prophet. This ye would never doe, if ye were not bent againſt all reformation. And ſince ye are ſo, All that I ſhall farther adde, is to put you in mind of Jonas's preaching to Niniveh, and to aſſure you, that if ye doe not now repent ye ſhall ſuddenly be deſtroyed. And having ſaid this he departed from them.

5. And when his diſciples were come to the other ſide, they had forgotten to take bread.

6. Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, [* Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, and of the [a] Sadducees.] 6. Take ſpeciall heed of the Phariſees and Sadducees, a ſowre, and a proud ſort of people, and ſo not fitter compared to any thing then to a piece of ſowre dow, that diſſuſeth it ſelf to the whole lump of bread, with which tis mixt, as their diſpoſition doth to all their ſect. a.

* Look, and take heed, ἀφετε ε, ορατε, &c.

7. And they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, It is becauſe we have taken no bread.] 7. And they underſtood not his meaning, but from the mention of leaven, groſsly conceited that the occaſion of his ſpeech was, becauſe they had forgotten to bring bread along with them.

8. Which when Jeſus perceived, he ſaid unto them, [O ye of little faith, why reaſon ye among your ſelves, becauſe ye have brought no bread?] 8. What a piece of infidelity is this, thus to apply my ſpeech to the want of bread?

9. Doe ye not yet underſtand neither remember the five loaves of the five thouſand, and how many baskets ye took up? 9. Will you never lay to heart, or conſider? Have you ſo ſoon forgot how eaſily I am able to relieve your want of bread? Ye have had two competent evidences of this very lately afforded you, five thouſand men fed with five loaves, and yet twelve baskets of fragments to ſpare, after they were ſatisfied.

10. Neither the ſeven loaves of the four thouſand, and how many [b] baskets ye took up?] 10. And ſo foure thouſand fed with ſeven loaves, and ſeven baskets of fragments remaining. b.

11. How is it that you doe not underſtand, that I ſpake not to you concerning bread, that ye ſhould] beware of the leaven of the Phariſees and of the Sadducees? 11. How then could yee be guilty of ſo groſſe an infidelity, as to think me ſtill unable to provide neceſſaries for my ſelf and you, and conſequently to ſpeak of bread when I bid you

12. Then underſtood they how that he bad them not beware of the leaven of bread: but of the doctrine of the Phariſees and of the Sadducees. 12. Then they underſtood their miſtake, how that he had not ſpoken of bread, or leaven literally, but that he foretold them what kind of people all the Phariſees and Sadducees were, and all that were leavened or taught, or received infuſions from them, viz: that all the whole tribe of them were a ſort of hypocrites Lu. 12. 1. who pretended much piety, and love of the truth, and ſo enquired after ſignes from heaven v. 1. but were indeed moſt perverſly and maliciouſly bent againſt Chriſt, and his doctrine, and would prove the moſt virulent perſecuters both of him and them, c. 10. 17.

13. When Jeſus came into the coaſts of [c] Ceſarea Philippi, he asked his diſciples, ſaying, Whom doe men ſay that I [d] the ſon of man, am?] 13. And being on his way, (Mar. 8. 27.) to Cæſarea Philippi, he asked his Diſciples, What opinion have the multitude Lu. 9. 18. of me? doe they take me for an ordinary man? or a Prophet, or what elſe? c. d.

14. And they ſaid, Some ſay that thou art John the Baptiſt, ſome Elias, and others [Jeremias, or one of the prophets.] 14. ſome old Prophet of the old Teſtament, either riſen from the dead (as tis clear they expected Elias ſhould come again) or elſe that the ſoule of one of them was by way of tranſmigration (which the Phariſees had borrowed from the Pythagoreans) come into his body. See note on Joh. 9. a.

15. He ſaith unto them, But whom ſay ye that I am?

16. And Simon Peter anſwered and ſaid, Thou art the Chriſt, the] ſon of the living God. 16. To this queſtion Simon Peter particularly rendred an anſwer, Thou art the Meſſias, even the

17. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Bleſſed art thou Simon Bar-Jonah, for [e fleſh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my father which is in heaven.] 17. This faith of thine is not built upon humane teſtimony, but upon the miracles, and doctrines, which thou haſt heard and ſeen, which are the teſtimonies of God himſelf, whereby he hath teſtified of me to thee, and ſuch as thou art, Mat. 11. 25. See note on c. 15. d. e.

18. And I ſay alſo unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this [f] rock I will build my church, and the gates of [g] * hell ſhall not prevail againſt it.] 18. And ſeeing thou haſt ſo freely confeſt me before men, I will alſo confeſſe thee, Thou art &c. i. e. The name by which thou art ſtyled and known by me is that which ſignifies a ſtone or rock, and ſuch ſhalt thou be in the building of the Church, which accordingly ſhall be ſo built on thee, founded in thee, that the power of death or the grave ſhall not get victory over it; the Chriſtian Church, now to be planted, ſhall never be deſtroyed. f. g.

* Hades

19. And I will give unto thee the [h] keyes of the kingdome of heaven, and whatſoever thou ſhalt bind on earth ſhall be bound in heaven, and whatſoever thou ſhall looſe on earth, ſhall be looſed in heaven.] 19. And I will give thee (as afterwards to all the twelve c. 18. 18. and more diſtinctly Joh. 20. 23.) the keyes of the gate of this court or kingdome, the Church, of which every h.

one of you is to be the ſteward (as the keyes of the court were given to Eliakim Iſa. 22. 22. in token of his being ſteward of the houſe, to admit and exclude whom he pleaſed) i.e. both power and enſigne of power, Apoc. 3. 7. to exerciſe cenſures, and by them to exclude men in caſe of their impenitence, either by laying ſome reſtraints on them in the Church, or to turn them out of the gates of this city, and upon repentance to receive them into the Church again. And what you doe here, as you ought to doe, ſhall be valid in heaven.

20,21. The Diſciples knowing that he was the Meſſias, and having told him ſo, v. 16. he commands that this be not publickly diſcloſed (till after his reſurrection, at which time in his wiſdome he thought it moſt ſeaſonable) telling them that it was neceſſary that Chriſt ſhould be put to death, by the inſtance of the Jewiſh Sanhedrim. See note on chap. 8. b.

20. Then charged he his diſciples that they ſhould tell no man that he was Jeſus the Chriſt.

21. From that time forth began Jeſus to ſhew unto his diſciples, how that he muſt goe unto Hieruſalem, and ſuffer many things of the elders, and chief prieſts and ſcribes, and be killed, and be raiſed again the third day.]

i. 22. God forbid, or avert this from thee, or as the Syriack reads, be propitious to thy ſelf, Lord.

22. Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, ſaying, [i Be it farre from thee,] Lord, this ſhall not be unto thee.

k. 23. a ſnare or ſtumbling block, moving me to that which were a ſin, if I ſhould yeild to it, and contrary to the will, courſe, and commandment of God my Father, See note on chap. 11. c.

23. But he turned, and ſaid to Peter, Get thee behind me k Satan, thou art [an offence unto me,] for thou ſavoureſt not the things that be of God, but thoſe that be of men.

l. 24, 25. And not only I, but all that have a mind to be my Diſciples and followers (as you profeſſe to be) muſt deny their owne humane will of ſparing themſelves, indulging and favouring themſelves, and in preparation of mind take up that croſſe, and indeed when I am gone, the ſame afflictions which befall me, ſhall purſue them. But yet of this ſtate of theirs this will be obſervable, that perſeverance in the faith will be the only way to relieve and reſcue them out of their preſſures; for they that by perſecutions ſhall be brought to apoſtatize and joyne with the Jewes, ſhall with them be certainly deſtroyed in that great ſlaughter of them, and he that ſhall hold out, and venture the utmoſt for the confeſſion of the truth, ſhall be moſt likely to be deliver'd, when they are deſtroyed (unleſſe when his ſuffering death is more behoofefull, as mine is now, and then he ſhall, for that enduring, be raiſed again to an endleſſe life,) ſee c. 10. 22. note g. and 2 Pet. 1. 16.

24. Then ſaid Jeſus unto his diſciples, [If any man will come after me, let him l deny himſelf, and take up his croſſe and follow me.

25. For whoſoever will ſave his life ſhall loſe it, and whoſoever will loſe his life for my ſake, ſhall find it.]

m. 26. Nay if by denying me a man ſhould gain ſome advantage at the preſent, what a pitifull bargain would he make of it, although he ſhould gain the whole world, as long as life, (v. 25.) eſpecially eternall life were loſt by it? And what price is there imaginable to buy that back again, if it be loſt, or what is there that a man would not willingly give for it?

26. For what is a man profited, if he ſhall gain the whole world, and m loſe his own ſoul? Or what ſhall a man give in exchange for his ſoul?]

n. 27. For there ſhall be a ſolemn viſitation among the Jewes, a time of judgment on them (ſee note m.) wherein there ſhall be a viſible diſcrimination between thoſe which cleave faſt to Chriſt, and thoſe which doe not, and ſo likewiſe on all mankind either in particular viſitations upon kingdomes, or at the day of doom.

27. For the ſon of man ſhall come in the n glory of his father with his angels; and then he ſhall reward every man according to his works.]

o. 28. And of this coming of mine againſt my enemies, and to the relieving of them that adhere to me, I tell you aſſuredly, that ſome that are here preſent, John by name, ſhall live to ſee it, i. e. that he ſhall not die till that remarkeable coming of Chriſt in judgment upon his crucifyers, the viſible deſtruction of the Jewiſh ſtate.

28. Verily I ſay unto you, There be ſome ſtanding here, which ſhall not taſt of death, till they ſee the ſon of man o coming in his kingdome.]

Notes on Chap. XVI.

a. Ζύμη Σαδδουκαίων

That which is here the leaven of the Phariſees, and Sadducees, the infuſions of theſe upon all their followers, is Mar. 8. 15. the leaven of the Phariſees, and of Herod, And the reaſon may be, either becauſe ſome of the Sadducees were alſo Herodians, adhered to Herod's party, i.e. to the Roman government (ſee note on c. 22. b.) whereas generally the Phariſees were on the other ſide, took Ceſar for an uſurper, Or elſe becauſe Chriſt mention'd all three, the leaven of the Phariſees, and of the Sadducees, and of Herod alſo, each of them deſigning ill againſt Chriſt, and his Apoſtles.

b. Σπυρίδας

That which is here rendred baskets is not κόφινος (the word uſed before v. 9. and in the relation of the ſtory, to which that referres, Mat. 14. 20. Mar. 6. 43. Joh. 6. 13. conſtantly retain'd in all the three Evangeliſts) but σπυρίδας, which is retain'd alſo in the other ſtory (to which this paſſage referres) Mat. 15. 37. and Mar. 8. 8. from whence 'tis probable, that theſe two, κόφινοι and σπυρίδες were veſſels of ſeverall quantities, and σπυρίδες much the bigger, ſo large that Saul was let down in one, Act. 9. 25. but what the bigneſſe was, or how they differ'd, will not perhaps be worth the paines of enquiry, and however the word [baskes] (being not a note of a limited meaſure or quantity, but only of the kind of the veſſel) may well enough be retain'd in both places.

c. Καισάρια Φιλίππου

Καισάρια Φιλίππου is not here ſet to ſignifie that city where Philip the Evangeliſt dwelt, Act. 21. 8. The ſtyle is of another origination, for Euſeb: Chron: l. 1. p. 43. ſaith that Philip the Tetrarch, Herod's brother built many houſes in the city Paneas, and having ſo enlarged it, gave it a new name, Caſarea Philippi, the firſt part in honour of the Emperour, the ſecond of himſelf. And to the ſame purpoſe Joſephus alſo. Whereas that other Caſarea ſimply ſo call'd, without any addition, in the Acts, was built by Herod, and was in Syria, formerly call'd Stratonis turris, of that ſee Erodius Pandect: rer: Jud: l. 5. tit. 21. c. 7. where he relates the contention between the Jewes and the Syrians before Nero for this city, the Jewes ſaid it was a city of Judea, becauſe built by Herod, and by him

Jewes

Jewes planted there, the Syrians that it was in Syria, and that Herod did not found, but only enlarge it, and give it a new name, and that he built it not for the Jewes, becauſe he ſet up images in the Temple, which are not allow'd by the Jewes. Wherupon the Emperor adjudg'd it to the Syrians.

d. Τὸν ὑὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου

That the ſon of man is a title of Chriſt peculiarly (though the moſt humble title, and of leaſt eminence, belonging to his ſtate of exinanition,) hath been before ſaid, note on c. 12. a. And ſo here it is ſet to ſignifie Chriſt in that humble guiſe, as a man, or according to his humanity. Where the ſetting of the words in Greek [Τίνα με λέγουσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι εἶναι τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου;] doth ſomewhat incline to read them ſeparately, not με ἢ τὸν υἱὸν, that I the ſon of man, but με εἶναι that I am? (and then in a new interrogation, or as the top of the former) ἢ τὸν ἢ ἀνθρώπου; the ſon of man? thus [Who doe they ſay that I am? doe they ſay that I am the ſon of man?] But the ordinary reading agrees better with the context or queſtion following, where, if Chriſt had firſt mention'd that phraſe as the title of the Meſſias, and thereby ſo much as by intimation call'd himſelf the Meſſias, he could not probably have askt them, v. 15. Who ſay ye that I am? The meaning then of the whole is this [I that have done ſuch miracles on one ſide, and ſo am the ſon of man by way of eminence, ſomewhat above other men, and yet live in ſo mean a humane condition on the other ſide, and have call'd my ſelf by no other name among you, pretended to no other title, but that of the ſon of man, Who am I taken to be?] In the other Goſpels of Mark 8. 27. and Lu. 9. 18. 'tis only thus, who do men ſay, or who ſay the people that I am?

e. Σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα

The phraſe [σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα fleſh and blood] is an Hebrew phraſe, בשר ודם ſignifying no more then a meer man here upon the earth, one that hath aſcended no higher then the common ſtate of men, Thus 'tis ordinary in the Jewiſh Writers, Take one example for all, in Gemara Babyl: ad Cod: Berachoth, where a parable of a rich man (the firſt draught as it were, and monogramme of that which is enlarged, and fill'd up with lively colours by our Saviour, Lu. 16. 19.) is call'd משל למלך בשר ודם a parable of a King of fleſh and blood, i.e. of a humane mortal king here on earth. Thus 1 Cor. 15. 50 σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα, fleſh and blood cannot inherit the kingdome of God, i.e. theſe corruptible, groſs, earthy bodies of ours, till they be refined. So Eph. 6. 12. our wreſtling is not againſt fleſh and blood, i. e. againſt ordinary humane enemies, but, as it follows, againſt the moſt powerful enemies, &c. and ſo here, when Chriſt tells Peter that that confeſſion of his, That Chriſt was the ſon of God, was not founded on any humane teſtimony, nor on the votes and wiſhes of men, which were not much likely to be gratified by this doctrine, but on that ſtronger of God himſelf. And ſo, when S. Paul mentions his call to Apoſtleſhip immediately from heaven, Act. 13. 2. he adds Gal. 1. 16. that he applied not himſelf to fleſh and blood, i.e. to any men, to receive miſſion or commiſſion of Apoſtleſhip from them.

f. Πέτρος

The name of כיפא ſignifying a ſtone here, ſuch an one as for the firmneſſe and validity is fit to bear the greater ſtreſſe, and weight in the building, is applicable to the perſon of S. Peter in reſpect of the Church. He was the Apoſtle of the circumciſion, as Chriſt himſelf was. He was already a very conſiderable Diſciple, joyn'd ordinarily with James and John in the participation of ſome favours, which others enjoyed not, (though in Chriſt's favour John enjoy'd the firſt place, Joh. 13. 25.) he twice made confeſſion, with greateſt boldneſſe, of Chriſt's being the Meſſias, and ſon of God, Joh. 6. 19. and here. And after the reſurrection of Chriſt, he had among the twelve the honour of his firſt appearing, 1 Cor. 15. 5. and proportionably was firſt of all to preach, and make known to the Jewes, (but ſo as not to exclude the heathens) the truth of that, which he here profeſt, viz: that Jeſus is the Chriſt. In this reſpect it is here told him, that he ſhould be a ſtone, by way of excellence (for amongſt the Hebrewes all the Levites were in a common notion of this phraſe call'd ſtones of the Temple) ſuch as (next the corner-ſtone) may alſo be called the firſt ſtone in building the Church of Chriſt, (which when 'twas once built, ſhould never be deſtroyed again) and that he ſhould have a power of governing, ſignified by the keyes v. 19. yet ſo as that other Diſciples are to be lookt on as foundation-ſtones alſo, Epheſ. 2. 20. Revel. 21. 14. (ſee note on c. 10 b.) as they are called, after the erecting of it, columnes and pillars, Gal. 2. 9. i.e. principall ſupporters of the Church built, and principall ingredients in the building, and ſo alſo endowed with the power of governing, of binding and looſing, c. 18. 18. remitting and retaining, Joh. 20. 23. all one directly with that which is here beſtowed on him. So that the application of this whole ſpeech to S. Peters perſon, doth not either immediately import, or by neceſſary or probable conſequence inferre any œcumenicall paſtorall power in him (much leſſe in any other perſon, by claime of ſucceſſion from him) over other Apoſtles and their plantations, i. e. the Univerſall Church of Chriſt, but only a reverence due to him, who was ſo excellent and principall an inſtrument in the firſt erecting of the Church, and, in proportion alſo, to his Succeſſors in each Church by him planted, as far as they ſhould walk in his ſteps. And for any other priviledges of particular Sea or Biſhop, upon claim of ſucceſſion from him, they cannot appear to belong to any one or more, above all others, by the force of this Text.

g. Πύλαι ᾅδου

Hades here (according to the notion of ᾅδης for the ſtate of ἀφανισμὸς before mention'd, note on c 11. i.) ſignifies death, or grave, or deſtruction, and by conſequence Satan alſo, who hath the power of theſe. Then for gates, they may ſignifie firſt power, force, ſtrength, which conſiſts in armes or weapons, which were uſually kept over the gates of the cities, Secondly counſell, contrivance, ſtratagems, policy, becauſe they were wont to ſit in counſell in the gates, Thirdly worldly authority borrowed by Satan from his inſtruments, the heathen powers of the world, becauſe judgment was wont to be exerciſed in the gates: and ſo theſe three (τὰ τρίοδα διαβόλου in Macarius his ſtyle) being put together will conclude, that 'tis not all the power and ſtrength, wiſdome and policy, authority and Empire in the world, no not death or grave (which are proverbially irreſiſtible Cant. 8. 6.) nor Satan himſelf that ſhall be able to deſtroy this fabrick now to be erected by Chriſt and his Apoſtles in the hearts of men. though that glorious Temple of Jeruſalem erected by Gods own appointment pointment ſhall be deſtroyed. Now that all this ſhall not prevail againſt the Church, may be underſtood either as the Church ſignifies particular perſons (beleivers, true faithfull Chriſtians) of which the Church conſiſts, or as it ſignifies the whole congregation and ſociety of men: As the Church ſignifies the perſons, ſo the phraſe imports, that though Chriſtians ſhall die, yet death ſhall have no dominion over them, Chriſt ſhall break open thoſe barres, and reſcue them by his reſurrection from the power of the grave; As it referres to the Church in complexo, i.e. to the whole congregation of Chriſtian profeſſors, ſo it ſignifies a promiſe of Chriſt, that it ſhall never be deſtroyed ſo as to periſh totally, irrecoverably, but whatſoever change it undergoes in the world, it ſhall again lift up the head, and have as it were its reſurrection; which promiſe is perform'd, if, as it decaies or periſhes in one branch or part, it revive and flouriſh in another.

h. Κλεῖς τῆς Συνδόσεως

What is here meant by the keyes] is beſt diſcernible by *Iſai.*22. where God foretells Eliakim v.20. the ſon of Helkiah, that he will call him, and cloath him with the robe of Shebna (wᵗʰ was over the houſhold v.15.) and ſtrengthen him with his girdle, and commit his government into his hand, and lay the key of the houſe of David upon his ſhoulder, and he ſhall open, and none ſhall ſhut, and ſhut, and none ſhall open, By which is noted the beſtowing on him the power of adminiſtring, and ruling the whole family, or houſe of the King, ſo as to entertain and admit into it, and in like manner to exclude out of it, whom he would. And accordingly this being by Chriſt accommodated to the Church, notes the power of Governing in it. This primarily, and independently belongs to Chriſt, the holy, and true, which hath the key of David, Apoc. 3.7. as to whom was given by the Father all power in heaven and earth, particularly that of looſing, or *remitting ſins on earth, Mat.*9.6. And by Chriſt here communicated to his Apoſtles, and their Succeſſors the Biſhops in the Church. Hence is that of S. Chryſoſt: τὰς ἐκκλησίας: l.3. That the Biſhops are thoſe faithfull ſervants in the parable, whom the Lord ſets over his houſhold. And ſo this agrees perfectly with the promiſe of Chriſt, c. 19. of the Apoſtles ſitting on twelve thrones, where the power of judging and governing in the Church, ſet anſwerable to that of the Phylarchæ or chief of the tribes, which was, among the Jewes, next unto the Regall, is directly that of the œconomus, or ruler of the Kings houſhold, which is here noted by the keyes. And this power being here promiſed by Chriſt to be conferr'd on Peter, a ſingle perſon, ſo that whatever he bound, or looſed, was bound, and looſed by Chriſts affirmation, is by force of the words c.18.18. (before the keyes were given) [whatſoever ye ſhall bind, and ye ſhall looſe] and by the form of conferring it actually, *Joh.*20.23. [he breathed on them, and ſaith unto them, Receive the holy Ghoſt, whoſeſoever ſins ye remit they are remitted, &c.] actually, and equally inſtated on every of the Apoſtles, and accordingly the fiery tongues deſcended, and ſat upon every one of them, And ſo when Cephas in reſpect of this authority is ſtyled Πέτρος, a ſtone, on which as on a foundation-ſtone, built on Chriſt the head of the corner, this holy city, that comes down from heaven, the new Jeruſalem, the Church of Chriſt is built, 'tis alſo apparent that all, and every the Apoſtles have the ſame title beſtow'd upon them, *Revel.*21.14. where the wall of the city hath twelve foundations, and upon them twelve names of the twelve Apoſtles, of which every one in reſpect of this power and dignity in the Church is particularly compared to a pretious ſtone v.18. And when the wall of that city, the Church, exactly meted, is found to be 144 cubits, i.e. twelve times twelve, 'tis clear that an equall portion, or province is aſſigned to each of them. To which purpoſe is that of Theophylact, Εἰ γὰρ καὶ πρὸς Πέτρον μόνον εἴρηται τὸ δώσω σοι, ἀλλὰ καὶ πᾶσι τοῖς Ἀποστόλοις δέδοται, though it were ſaid to Peter alone I will give unto thee the keyes, yet they were given to all the Apoſtles. And Cyprian, Ep. 27. Dominus noſter Epiſcopi honorem & Eccleſiæ ſuæ rationem diſponens in Evangelio loquitur & dicit Petro, Ego tibi dico, quia tu es Petrus, & tibi dabo claves, & quæ ligaveris, &c. Inde per temporum, & ſucceſſionum vices Epiſcoporum ordinatio & Eccleſiæ ratio decurrit, ut Eccleſia ſuper Epiſcopos conſtituatur, & omnis actus Eccleſiæ per eoſdem gubernetur. Our Lord Chriſt providing for the honour of the Biſhop, and the diſpoſition of his Church, ſpeaks in the Goſpel, and ſaith to Peter, I ſay unto thee, that thou art Peter, and I will give thee the keyes, and what thou ſhalt bind, &c. From thence by viciſſitudes of times and ſucceſſions the ordination of Biſhops, and the diſpoſition of the Church doth flow, ſo that the Church is built on Biſhops, and every act of the Church is govern'd by them. And before him Irenæus, l.5. c.20. the Apoſtles delivered the Churches to the Biſhops. And many the like teſtimonies. So Tertullian de Præſcr: c. 32. Sicut Smyrnæorum Eccleſia Polycarpum à Johanne collocatum refert, utiq; & cæteræ exhibent, quos ab Apoſtolis in Epiſcopatum conſtitutos Apoſtolici ſeminis traduces habent. 'As the Church of Smyrna had Polycarp placed Biſhop there by John, ſo the other Churches are able to ſhew thoſe, whom they have conſtituted Biſhops by the Apoſtles, the children, as it were, of the Apoſtles, who are propagated by them. So S. Athanaſius of the office of Biſhop, that it is one of the things, ἃ ὁ Κύριος διὰ τῶν Ἀποστόλων ἐτύπωσε, which Chriſt hath formed by the Apoſtles, in his Ep: to Dracontius. And S. Baſil the Great, Ἐπισκοπὴ σεμνὸν Ἀποστολικὴ, Epiſcopacy is the Apoſtolicall precedence, or authority over others. And S. Ambroſe, Claves regni cœlorum in Beato Petro cuncti ſuſcepimus ſacerdotes. All Biſhops (that is the notation of Sacerdotes there, ſuch as he then was) received in S. Peter the keyes of the kingdome of heaven, de dign: ſacerd: c. 6. And Theophylact, Ἔχειν ἐξουσίαν ἀρτίνειν καὶ δεσμεῖν οἱ κατ' Πέτρον ὁπωσοῦν ἀξιωθέντες χάριτος, They that according, or anſwerably to Peter, are vouchſafed the honour or grace of Epiſcopacy, have power to bind and looſe. And generally all the antient Writers to this purpoſe, even S. Jerome himſelf in *Pſal.*45. Quia Apoſtoli à mundo receſſerunt, habes pro illis Epiſcopos filios, becauſe the Apoſtles have departed from the world, ye have their ſons the Biſhops in ſtead of them.

This form of ſpeech, Ἱλεώς σοι] is borrowed from the Hebrewes, who uſe it to expreſſe the Latine, abſit, i. e. amoliri malum aliquod, to ſignifie our deſire that ſuch a thing may not come to paſſe. i. Ἱλεώς σοι

Thus ſaith Porphyrie of the Gymnosophists among the Indians, that there were two ſorts of them the Θεόπροποι, Divines, by families, and the Samanæi, which were choſen, and of theſe, whenſoever any had once taken the ſtole upon him, ὅτι οὐκέτι γυναῖκα, ὅτι οὐκέτι τέκνα (εἰ τύχοι καὶ πάνυ φιλοῖ) ὀπτήσεται, ἢ οὐκέτι οἰκεῖόν τινα νομίζων; οὐκ ἀπαχ: l. 4. p. 358, 59. he never thoughts of any return to wife, to children, or at all to himſelf again.

m. Ζημιωθῆναι — Ζημιωθῆναι] to have a mulct inflicted on one, is not thought very fitly to be joyn'd with ψυχὴν, the ſoul, as the accuſative caſe govern'd by it, but rather to ſtand as a paſſive, and ἢ ἵνα ψυχὴν to be in ſtead of ἵνα μὴ ἡ ψυχὴν, and ſo not only to belong to the finall fatall loſſe, or damnation of the ſoul, but alſo to any loſſe, or damage that belongs to it here, as deprivation of grace, may guilt of ſin, &c. ſo Munſter's Hebrew reads it ישא נזק בנפשו receive damage in his ſoul. Yet may it be read with an accuſative caſe following the verb, as in that place of Agathias in the ſpeech of Phartazes to the Colchians, Τί γὰρ κερδανοῦμεν ἅπαξ τὴν Περσίδα, σῶμα δὲ ἕνα, ἀφελόμενοι τὰς δὲ ψυχὰς ἐζημιωμένοι; What if we gain all Perſia, and loſe our lives, or, our ſoules? a place almoſt parallel to this. — l. 3. p. 82.

n. δόξα — The Hebrew שכינה] the appearance of God, or, ſpeciall preſence, which is call'd his δόξα glory, conſiſts generally in the appearance of his guard, the Angels that wait on him, as when Jacob ſees the viſion of Angels, he concludes, Surely the Lord is in this place, And accordingly here, Chriſt's coming ἐν δόξῃ πατρὸς, in the glory of his father, is expreſt by μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων αὐτοῦ, with his Angels. See note on c. 3. k.

o. Ἐρχόμενος is δοκιμαστ. — The nearneſſe of this to the ſtory of Chriſt's tranſfiguration, makes it probable to many, that this coming of Chriſt is that tranſfiguration of his; but that cannot be, becauſe the 27th ver: of the ſon of man's coming in his glory with his Angels to reward, &c. (to which this verſe clearly connects) cannot be applied to that, And there is another place, Joh. 21. 23. (which may help to the underſtanding of this) which ſpeaks of a reall coming, and one principall perſon (agreeable to what is here ſaid of ſome ſtanding here) that ſhould tarry, or not die, till that coming of his. And that ſurely was fulfilled in John's ſeeing the πανωλεθρία, or famous deſtruction of the Jewes, which was to fall in that generation, Mat. 24. i. e. in the life-time of ſome there preſent, and is called the kingdome of God, and the coming of Chriſt, and by conſequence here moſt probably the ſon of man's coming in his kingdome, (ſee the notes on Mat. 3. 2. c. and ch. 24. 3. b.) i. e. his coming in the exerciſe of his kingly office, to work vengeance on his enemies, and diſcriminate the faithfull beleivers from them. And becauſe the way for God to be preſent in one place more then another (as to the preſence of a glorious appearance or viſion) is by the preſence or ſatellitium of Angels, and becauſe the appearing of them is call'd Schechina or δόξα glory, and again becauſe theſe Angels are his officers, and employed in his ſervice to puniſh (as when the Angel ſmites with peſtilence, or diſcomfits the enemies armies, deſtroyes the murmurers, and the firſt-born of Ægypt, and is accordingly call'd ὀλοθρεύτης 1 Cor. 10. 10. and ὁ ὀλοθρεύων the deſtroyer, Heb. 11. 28. and the like) therefore this coming of his is ſaid to be in the glory of his father, with his holy angels, v. 27. as Jude 14. The Lord cometh with his holy myriads, i. e. with his hoſts of Angels to execute &c. which it ſeems was an ancient forme of ſpeech there cited from the book of Enoch by Gods coming with his Angels, to ſignifie his taking vengeance on ſinners. — Ἁγίαις μυριάσι

CHAP. XVII.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND after ſix daies Jeſus taketh [Peter, and James, and John his brother, and bringeth them up into an high mountain apart.]

1. Thoſe three of his Diſciples which had many ſingular favours afforded them above the reſt of the twelve Peter, and the two ſons of Zebedee, and leaving all the reſt behind, bringeth them up into an high mountain.

2. And was [transfigured] before them, and his face did ſhine as the ſun, and his rayment was white as the light.

2. changed into another form, or manner of appearance (expreſſed in the following words, his countenance ſhined &c.)

3. And behold there appeared unto them Moſes and Elias, talking with him.

4. Then anſwered Peter and ſaid unto Jeſus, Lord, It is good for us to be here: If thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles, one for thee,] and one for Moſes, and one for Elias.

4. Then Peter ſaid to Jeſus, Lord, let us abide here, and not conſort any more with thoſe beneath us, and to that end build three boothes, one for thee and us.

5. While he yet ſpake, behold a bright cloud overſhadowed them, and behold a voice out of the cloud, which ſaid, This is my beloved ſon, in whom I am well pleaſed [hear ye him.]

5. Whatſoever he ſhall teach, is that which you are to receive as my good pleaſure, before any either of the law or prophets, Moſes or Elias then appearing, according to that prediction of Moſes himſelf, Deut. 18. 15. Him ſhall ye heare.

6. And when Peter, and James, and John heard that voice from heaven, they were amazed and aſtonied for fear, and fell down proſtrate.

6. And when the diſciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were ſore afraid.]

7. And Jeſus came and touched them, and ſaid, Ariſe, and be not afraid.

8. And when they had lift up their eyes, they ſaw no man ſave Jeſus only.

9. Tell not that which you have now ſeen, and heard, to any man, no not to the reſt of your fellow-diſciples, (ſee note on c. 8. b.)

9. And as they came down from the mountain, Jeſus charged them, ſaying, [Tell the viſion to no man,] untill the ſon of man be riſen from the dead.

a 10. And upon the contemplation of what here they had ſeen, and heard, theſe three diſciples asked him ſaying, If this be true that was ſaid by Moſes and Elias in the mount concerning the approach of the great and dreadfull day for the deſtroying of Gods enemies, and reſcuing his faithfull ſervants, Then what is the meaning of that which the doctors generally teach, that Elias muſt come before that great and dreadfull day of the Lord, and the riſing of the ſun of righteouſneſſe with healing in his wings, to them that fear Gods name? Mal. 4. 5. 2.

10. And his diſciples [a] asked him, ſaying, Why then ſay the Scribes that Elias muſt firſt come?]

b 11. 'Tis truly obſerved by them from Malachi that Elias is firſt to come, and to do his office of reſtoring and returning the Jewes to repentance (ſee Mar. 9. 12.) to preach repentance, and ſo prepare for this famous coming.

11. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, [Elias truly * ſhall firſt come and [b] reſtore all things.] * cometh firſt and ſhall reſt, ἐρχεται πρῶτον.

12. But I ſay unto you that it is another perſon that is prophecyed of under the name of Elias, which cometh, and that perſon is come and gone already, but not acknowledged, by the principall men of the Jews, but deſpiſed by them, and put to death by Herod, and ſo Chriſt himſelfe ſhall alſo be, before this great day that now ye heare of.

12. But I ſay unto you that Elias is come already, and they † knew him not, but have done unto him whatſoever they liſted, likewiſe alſo ſhall the ſon of man ſuffer of them.] † acknowledg'd ἐπέγνωσαν.

13. Then the Diſciples underſtood that he ſpake to them of John the Baptiſt.

14. And when they were come to the multitudes, there came unto him a certain man, kneeling down to him and ſaying, c 15. the changes of the moon have ſuch a power on him, that at ſuch times the divell v. 18. handleth him miſerably, caſting him into fits of the falling ſickneſſe, throwing him into the fire or water, which ſoever is next.

15. Lord have mercy on my ſon, for [he is [c] lunatick, and ſore vexed, for oft-times he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.]

16. thoſe diſciples of thine that ſtayed beneath when thou wert retired.

16. And I brought him to [thy diſciples] and they could not cure him.

17. Upon this Jeſus rebuked thoſe diſciples, accuſed them of infidelity and perverſneſſe that when he had been with them ſo long, given them power to heale diſeaſes, and caſt out devills, and in ſome caſes preſcribed prayer and faſting, v. 21. as the means of doing it, they now neglected that means, and ſo were not able to caſt out this devill, this impotency of theirs therefore was very culpable, and ſo here charged upon them by Chriſt, and having done, he calls for the lunatick to be brought to him.

17. Then Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, O faithleſſe and perverſe generation, how long ſhall I be with you? how long ſhall I ſuffer you? bring him hither to me.

18. And when he came, Jeſus commanded, and chid that evill ſpirit that brought that diſeaſe upon him, and the devill, and the diſeaſe departed from him together.

18. And Jeſus rebuked the devill, and he departed out of him] and the childe was cured from that very hour.

19. Then came the Diſciples to Jeſus apart, and ſaid, Why could not we caſt him out?

20. I have given you the power of doing all miracles, and directed you to the means which ye are to uſe in the doing them, and if you did ſincerely beleive though in never ſo weak a degree, the things that I have ſaid to you, and obeyed and practiſed accordingly, ye ſhould by me be enabled to do any thing that is moſt impoſſible among men, as even to remove a mountain out of the place by ſpeaking to it (which is literally affirmed to have been done by the gift of miracles) or any thing elſe as ſtrange and as difficult as that.

20. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, becauſe of your unbeleife: for verily I ſay unto you, [If ye have faith as a grain of muſtard ſeed, ye ſhall ſay unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place, and it ſhall remove, and nothing ſhall be unpoſſible to you.]

21. Now that which ye faild in was this, that ye uſed not faſting and prayer to this purpoſe, for that is the method that muſt be uſed to the ejecting of this ſort of diſeaſes, and of devills, viz. great intention of devotion joyned with faith, and if that be not uſed, it will not goe out, and your not uſing that means, was a want of faith in you, v. 20.

21. * Howbeit [this kinde goeth not out but by prayer and faſting.] * But this τοῦτο δὲ

d 22. Jeſus kept himſelf as private as he could, Mar. 9. 30. telling his diſciples the reaſon of his doing ſo, becauſe having done ſo many miracles among them and wrought ſo little effect upon them, as that he foreſaw he ſhould ſoon be put to death by them, he thought it not yet ſeaſonable to doe any more, till by the addition of his reſurrection from death he ſhould be more likely to be received and beleived on by them. (See note on c. 8. b.)

22. And while they abode in Galilee, [Jeſus ſaid unto them, The ſon of man ſhall be [d] † betrayed into the hands of men, † delivered up.

23. And they ſhall kill him and the third day he ſhall be raiſed again. And they were exceeding ſorry.]

e 24. The tribute that every Jew yeerly paid to the Temple, to the value of fifteen pence.

24. And when they were come to Capernaum; [e] they that received [* tribute money] came to Peter, and ſaid, Doth not your maſter pay tribute? * the halfe ſhekels, or, double drachmes, τὰ δίδραχμα

25. He ſaith, yes. And when they were come into the houſe, Jeſus prevented him, ſaying, What thinkeſt thou, Simon? of whom do the Kings of the earth take cuſtome or tribute? of their own children, or of * ſtrangers?]

* others children.

25. And when they were retired into the houſe, and Peter was a muſing within himſelf about this buſineſſe of paying or not paying the tribute money, and was about to aske Jeſus concerning it, Jeſus prevented, and asked his opinion, From whom, ſaith he, doe all kind of Kings exact tribute or head-mony (ſo the Syriack renders it) from thoſe of their own family, their own children, &c. or from other folkes only?

26. Peter ſaith unto him, [Of ſtrangers. Jeſus ſaith unto him, Then are the children free.]

26. Never of thoſe of their own houſhold. Jeſus replyed, Then this tribute which is paid to God for his Temple belongs not to me, who am his Son, nor to you who are now domeſticks of his.

27. Notwithſtanding leſt we ſhould [offend them, Goe thou to the ſea, and caſt an hook, and take the fiſh that firſt comes up, and when thou haſt opened his mouth, thou ſhalt find † a piece of money,] take that and give unto them for me and thee.

† ſtater, ευρησεις στατηρα δεκα δ.

27. make them beleeve, and ſay that I contemn the temple, (or deſpiſe the authority that requires it) which will be an occaſion to them to reject, and ſin againſt my doctrine, goe and caſt an angle into the lake, and the firſt fiſh which thou catcheſt, when thou openeſt his mouth, thou ſhalt in it finde a piece of money, worth two ſhillings ſixpence, which makes two didrachmes, or headmony for two perſons.

Annotations on Chap. XVII.

8. Μόνον Ἰη σὺν ἑαυτοῖς μόνον.

By this queſtion of the three Apoſtles made unto Chriſt, at his coming down from the mount, may be collected what was the prime matter of the diſcourſe betwixt him, and Moſes, and Elias, v. 3. (For that their queſtion ſhould refer to Chriſt's reſurrection from the dead, incidentally mentioned v. 9. is not poſſible, becauſe the Scribes did not beleive that the Meſſias ſhould die, or riſe, nor conſequently that Elias ſhould come before that.) Of this diſcourſe, what was the ſubject matter of it, there is nothing ſaid either in this Goſpell, or in that of Saint Marke, but only this, that the diſciples asked him, ſaying, Why then ſay the Scribes that Elias muſt firſt come? By the Scribes are here meant their Doctors of the Law, thoſe that were skilfull (not onely in the Law, but) in the doctrine of the whole old Teſtament, and ſo of the Prophets, among whom, Mal. 4. 5. they found, that Elias was to come, before a ſet time or period, i. e. before the great, and dreadfull day of the Lord; This therefore being it that was aſſerted by the Scribes, the great and dreadfull day of the Lord, the thing, before which, ſaid they, Elias muſt firſt come, and the Diſciples queſtion [why then do they ſay that Elias muſt firſt come] being an objection againſt what they had heard diſcourſed of in the mount, it neceſſarily followes, that that wch was diſcourſed of in the mount, was the approaching of that great and dreadfull day of the Lord. Now what is meant by this great and dreadfull day of the Lord] appears by the firſt, and ſecond, and third verſes of that Chapter, Behold the day cometh, that ſhall burne as an oven, and all the proud, yea and all that do wickedly ſhall be as ſtubble, and the day that cometh ſhall burn them up, that it ſhall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name ſhall the ſun of righteouſneſſe ariſe with healing in his wings, and ye ſhall goe forth and grow as calves of the ſtall, and yee ſhall tread down the wicked, for they ſhall be as aſhes under the ſoles of your feet, in the day that I ſhall do this ſaith the Lord of hoſts. What was the ultimate completion of this Prophecy (and of the like Joel 2. 11. 22. 32, 33. though Elias be not mentioned there) is clear enough, the eradication of the wicked obſtinate Iews, v. 1. and the delivery, and preſervation of all the humble, faithfull penitents out of that deſtruction, v. 2. together with the advantages, that ſhould come to the faithfull by that means, as from a victory over enemies, and perſecutors v. 3. So in Joel, the fire devoureth before and the flame conſumeth behinde, the land from a garden of Eden becomes a deſolate wilderneſſe, yea and nothing ſhall eſcape them, v. 3. and much more to the ſame purpoſe, noting the utter deſtruction of the Iews, and then, Fear not O land, be glad and rejoyce, for the Lord will doe great things, v. 21. Be not afraid, v. 22. be glad ye children of Sion, v. 23. and yee ſhall eate in plenty, and be ſatisfied, and praiſe the name of the Lord, that hath dealt wondrouſly with you, and my people ſhall never be aſhamed, v. 26. And it ſhall come to paſſe, that whoſoever calls upon the name of the Lord, ſhall be delivered, for in mount Sion and in Ieruſalem ſhall be deliverance, as the Lord hath ſaid, and in the remnant whom the Lord ſhall call. Theſe two then being the parts of that great, and dreadfull day, the deſtruction of the unbeleiving Iews that ſtood out and perſecuted and crucified Chriſt, and Chriſtians, and the reſcue of a remnant, the perſevering beleevers, and John Baptiſt being the Prophet, ſent into the wilderneſſe, like Elias, to foretell this deſtruction, and to preach repentance for the averting of it, there is little reaſon of doubting, but that that Prophecy of Malachi was exactly thus fulfilled, and that conſequently this was the matter of the diſcourſe of Elias, and Moſes with Chriſt, though as in a viſion ſomewhat obſcurely, and darkly delivered, upon which the diſciples diſcerning this to be the day ſpoken of by Malachi, but not diſcerning that Elias was yet come, (and ſo that that precedaneous part was yet fulfilled) aske Chriſt this queſtion, why then is reſolved on by all that Elias muſt firſt come? firſt, i. e. before this great and terrible day of the Lord, which they now heard was approaching, and had nothing to ſay againſt it, but the known Scripture-prediction that Elias was firſt to come. That which hath been thus explained from this advantage of the diſciples queſtion, is indeed the very ſame with what Saint Luke (the onely one of the four Evangeliſts, that mentions any thing of this diſcourſe of Elias, and Moſes with Chriſt) relates of it, c. 9. 31. ἔλεγον τὴν ἔξοδον αὐτοῦ. they related his Exodus, or going out which he ſhould accompliſh at Ieruſalem, which that it agrees perfectly with what hath heer been ſaid, ſee note on *Lu.*9. b. and 2 *Pet.*1. e. And for this diſcourſe Elias indeed, and Moſes were fit perſons to be brought in in a viſion to deliver it, becauſe Elias was he that call'd fire from heaven upon the enemies of God, and ſo might fitly repreſent the deſtruction of enemies, and Moſes beſide the deſtructions wrought on the Ægyptians, and Pharaoh, deliver'd the Iſraelites out of that thralldome and perſecution indured there, and ſo was fitly choſen to repreſent the deliverance and reſcue of true patient perſevering beleivers.

b. Ἀποκαλάσσει] the word here uſed is rendred by Heſychius and Phavorinus, to finiſh or perfect. 'Tis true indeed the ordinary books read ἀποκαταστήσει πλείωσει, but that is a falſe reading, as it is evident by that which it immediately followes, ἀποκάλαξις, πλείωσις, the ſubſtantive ſignifies perfection, completion. According to this notation of the word, this would be the importance of the place, he ſhall finiſh or perform, eſtabliſh, ſettle all things, both perform all that was prophecied of Elias at his coming, and cloze and ſhut up the firſt ſtate of the world, that of the Moſaicall œconomy, making entrance, as an harbinger, on the ſecond, that of the Meſſias. In this ſenſe it is, that it is ſaid, that the law and the prophets were untill John, noting him to be the concluſion, and ſhutting up, finiſhing and cloſing that ſtate, and that was to be the office of Elias; under whoſe name John was prefigured. And thus the word ἀποκάλαξις clearly ſignifies, *Act.*3.21. the eſtabliſhing, ſetling, completing or fulfilling of all things, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his prophets, &c. and ſo ſaith OEcumenius ἀποκαταστῶσι, εἰς πέρας ἀγάγῃ ἅπαντα, for all things to come toan end. But 'tis alſo certain, that this word hath another ſignification belonging to it, to reſtore or reduce. So *Act.*1.7. when the Diſciples demand of Chriſt, εἰ ἐν τῷ χρόνῳ τούτῳ ἀποκαθιστάνεις τὴν βασιλείαν τῷ Ἰσραήλ; Doſt thou at this time reſtore or reduce the kingdom to Iſrael? (that kingdom wch was prophecied of, that in the Meſſias's time, the ſaints of the moſt high ſhould take the kingdom and poſſeſs the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever, *Dan.*7. 18.) Chriſt's anſwer is, that they were not to know the times and ſeaſons, but be fitted for the miniſtery by deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt, and preach the Goſpel over all Judæa and Samaria, &c. and by that time, Chriſt had ſaid, *Mat.*10. 23. that the ſon of man ſhould come, i.e. ſhould really perform that which was meant by thoſe prophecies, which they conceived to ſignifie his illuſtrious delivering and redeeming of Iſrael, *Lu.*24. 21. and (in that of *Act.*1.7.) of his reſtoring the kingdome to Iſrael. And ſo for this place in S. Matthew, it muſt be obſerved, that *Mal.*4.6. where Elias's coming is foretold, 'tis there added in the Septuagint, in ſtead of לב השיב he ſhall turn the heart of the fathers (not to, but) with the children, ἀποκαλάσσει καρδίαν, (the word here uſed) he ſhall reduce, or reſtore the heart, &c. And 'tis evident that this place referres to that, though it repeat not the remainder of that verſe, but only πάντα] in ſtead of it, And doing ſo, it muſt then ſignifie John Baptiſt's preaching of repentance, (which is the ſignification of תשובה, and the importance of that verſe in Malachi,) and by that means converting them to the faith of Chriſt, i. e. by his preaching, endevouring though not very ſucceſsfully to doe ſo. This then being the meaning of that prophecy in Malachi of a ſpirituall reſtering, bringing them to repentance, or preaching the doctrine of repentance to the Jewes, they underſtood it in a more carnall ſenſe, of reſtoring them to their ſplendid ſtate again, which they enjoyed before their captivities, and late conqueſt of the Romans over them. Thus is the word uſed by Origen againſt Celſus of the Jewes, διαῤῥήδην ἐροῦμεν ὅτι οὐδὲ ἀποκαλασθήσονται, We affirm confidently, that they ſhall not be reſtored, and Chriſt acknowledging the prophecy, gives it the right interpretation, and ſhewes how 'twas fulfilled in John Baptiſt.

The word σεληνιάζεται] here, coming from σελήνη, the moone, is directly parallel to the Engliſh [Lunatick] from Luna the Moone alſo. Yet ſome miſtake hath ariſen from thus rendring of it. For the Engliſh word Lunacy] and Lunatick] is vulgarly taken to ſignifie a madman, and nothing elſe, to wit that ſpecies of madneſſe, which comes on men at ſuch a ſet time toward the full of the moon, as ordinarily 'tis obſervable in thoſe that have any intervalls. But here it is apparent by the nature of the diſaffection, and the effects of it [falling into the fire, and water, &c.] that it was not any madneſſe, that this mans ſon was affected with, but a plain Epilepſy, or falling ſickneſſe, which farther appears by the relation of this ſame ſtory made by S. Luke c. 9. 39. where 'tis ſaid that the ſpirit taketh him (λαμβάνει, of which, epilepſy is compounded) and preſently he cries, καὶ σπαράσσει αὐτὸν μετ' ἀφροῦ, and it agitates, ſhakes, boyles within him, and thereby cauſeth him (as the boyling of a pot) to foam at mouth, and hardly departeth from him, i.e. coſts him an horrible pain in coming to himſelf again, as in the Epilepſy 'tis obſerved, and συνεσείσει αὐτὸν, ſhakes him ſhrewdly, works a great weakneſſe on all his faculties, All clear and evident ſymptomes of an Epilepſy; Now the reaſon why this is here expreſt by σεληνιάζεται, is becauſe this diſeaſe being in the head, as well as madneſſe is, the moon hath the ſame influence on one, as on the other, And generally the changes of the moon affect thoſe that are ſubject to this diſeaſe, and caſt them into fits of it; Now whereas it is ſaid here in the 18th verſe, that Chriſt rebuked him, and the Devil went out of him, noting this perſon to be poſſeſt with the Devil, and ſo Lu. 9. 39. the ſpirit takes him, and 42. the devil threw him down, caſt him into a fit, and again Jeſus rebuked the unclean ſpirit, The clear meaning of all this is, that as in thoſe daies it was ordinary for the Devil to have power over mens bodies, and having ſo, to exerciſe it in bringing diſeaſes upon them, (ſee note on c.10. a.) ſo it was here, the Devil, that poſſeſt him, caſt him into frequent fits of Epilepſy, of which there was no way of curing him, but by caſting out the Devil. See note on *Joh.*7. b. This will generally be obſervable in all the demoniacks, which appear to be, by the Devil that poſſeſſeth them, brought into ſome diſeaſe or other, And ſo when men are by the Cenſures of the Apoſtles delivered up unto Satan, 'tis ſaid to be εἰς ὄλεθρον σαρκὸς, to the deſtruction of the fleſh, i. e. to the bringing ſome ſore diſeaſe upon them.

c. Σεληνιάζομαι

Some difference there is betwixt παραδίδοναι, and προδιδόναι, tradere, and prodere, the latter is ordinarily taken for treachery, falſneſſe to him, whoſe whose part we take, whether by going over to the enemies part, or betraying secrets, but the former is somewhat more, not only to reveal those things to the enemy, that may be hurtfull to the friend, but to deliver him (master, captain, friend, fort) into the enemies hand, who desires to have him and mischief him. And this is it that is peculiarly affirm'd of Christ here and in other places, he shall be delivered into the hands of men, and of sinners, the Roman souldiers, and Mat. 26.3. he shall be deliver'd to be crucified, And therefore although the English word Traitor is originally all one with the Latine, traditor, and so to betray with παραδίδωμι here, yet because the ordinary use of the word is for revealing of secrets, or advantages, &c. and is not thought peculiarly to denote that, to which the Greek here belongs, of delivering into the enemies hand, It was therefore most reasonable to render it in this phrase (not so subject by custome to mistake) to deliver up.

c. δίδραχμα

The δίδραχμα signifies two drachmes, The word δραχμὴ is a Greek word, first δραγμὴ, saith Julius Pollux, i.e. an handfull, as containing so many oboli aurei, pieces of brass money, as would make an handfull, to wit six. This word from the Greeks came not only to the Romans, but, after the time of the Seleucida, to the Jewes also, so Exr. 2.69. we have דרכמונים, the Greek word with a very light change, which is by the Septuagint rendred δραχμαὶ, by us drachmes. Now four Attick drachmes, make one shekel, or σταὴρ, so saith Hesychius and Phavorinus, σταὴρ (not τετράδραχμον, as 'tis corruptly read, but) τετράδραχμον and so v.27. it appears, one σταὴρ was two of these half shekels, which served there for two mens tributes, See note on c.26.d. Now the truth is, the δίδραχμον ἅγιον, the shekel of the Jewes, and the Alexandrians, the shekel of the sanctuary, is double as much, as the Attick shekel, or δίδραχμον, And therefore Ex. 30. 13. when there is mention of the half shekel, which was to be paid for the use of the Temple, the Septuagint reads τὸ ἥμισυ δίδραχμον the half of the didrachme, or half shekel, which is all one with a whole didrachme Attick, This summe was yearly paid by every Jew, above 20 years old, to the use of the Temple, and so continued till Vespasian transferr'd it to the Capitol, so saith Josephus, φέρων ἦ τοῖς ὅπου ἦσαν Ἰουδαίοις ἐπιβαλὼν δύο δραχμὰς, ἔταξεν καθάπερ ἀπὸ πάντων εἰς τὸ Καπετώλιον φέρειν, ὥσπερ ἐφοίτων εἰς τὸν ἐν Ἱεροσολύμοις ναὸν Συμβάλλων, he commanded that every Jew should pay the yearly tribute of two drachmes to the Capitol, as they did before to the Temple in Jerusalem.

f. Τοὺ ἀυτῶν, ἢ ἀλλότριοι

That the own sons here are not the naturall subjects of the kingdome, and ἀλλότριοι those, whom they have conquer'd, and brought under their dominions, will appear, 1. because the naturall subjects ordinarily doe pay tribute, and the law was clear, Exod. 30.13. that every Jew should pay his half shekel to the Temple. And 2. because to the state of the Jewes which now exacted this tribute (not the Publicans or officers of Cæsar, this being not collected by them, till 'twas transferred to the Capitol, i.e. in Vespasian's time) there were no such sorts of men, that were so conquer'd by them, which could own that title of ἀλλότριοι in that notion. The words and sense will be clear, if it be understood thus, that no King imposes taxes on his own children, or family, but on ἀλλότριοι υἱοὶ, alieni filii, i.e. the children of other men, as ἀλλότριος δοῦλος is another mans servant, opposed to ἴδιος δοῦλος, his own servants, c.25. 14. (as that is oppos'd to οἰκεῖος, or ἴδιος, his own children and servants) and therefore by proportion, this tribute to the king of heaven ought not to be exacted from the son of that king, but from others; Some possibility, and colour there is that this tribute here might be a Tax paid to the Romans imposed under the form of the δίδραχμα ever since Pompey had overcome the Jewes, or else imposed on them by Augustus, and a passage in Josephus de Bell: Jud: l.7.c.10. (where he saith that Agrippa remitted them the tax which was yearly paid by them) makes it more probable; and it might well be that this was by the Romans imposed under the form of the δίδραχμα, the known tax among the Jewes, as in Cicero's orations against Verres we every where see, that the Prætor of Syria required the tenths of that Province, which was we know first instituted by God to be paid the Priests. And so Christ's pleading an immunity (who yet was to fulfill all righteousnesse, i.e. to observe the Judaicall law) and mentioning the kings of the nations, is thought to encline also. But because 1. that tribute in Josephus, remitted by Agrippa, was paid by each house, not by each head, and this here is for each head, and 2dly, because, though Christ as man was resolved to fulfill all righteousnesse, and accordingly paid this, yet as God, or here as the son of God, he was not bound to it, at least 'twas not the custome (which is all that Christ here saith) in other places for the children to pay their fathers those taxes, which others paid, and 3dly, because 'tis not so much as intimated that this was paid to the kings of the nations, but only that among them 'tis not the fashion for kings sons to pay (which Christ only accommodates to his own purpose,) and 4thly, because Christ was to live as obediently to the Roman laws (as farre as they were of force in Judæa) as to the Jewish, and to give example of obedience to all that are set over us by Gods providence (and so did in his good confession to Pilate, and making no resistance at his crucifixion,) and 5thly, because there is no evidence, but only conjecture, that there was any such Roman tax on every head at that time, or that that was δίδραχμα, but on the contrary, the Cæsarean tribute-money is denarius a Roman coyne (see note on ch.22.c.) and if it had been Roman, it would have been gathered by Publicans, and those in all probability would have been here named, whereas on the contrary the persons are here styled as by a known title, they that received the δίδραχμα, For these reasons, I say, the former interpretation of the Jewish tax, seems to be most reasonable, especially when 'tis not very likely that, (or imaginable how) Christ should call himself a child or son of the Roman Emperors, to whom that tax was payed. One only question may be farther asked, why the payment should fall particularly on Christ and Peter, and not on the rest of the Disciples? To which I answer, 1. that it no way appears by Christ's paying for himself and Peter, that the others did not also pay, and 2dly, that it may be very probable that those Receivers did at that time require it only of those that dwelt at Capernaum, and so of Christ and Peter, and that the rest paid it in their severall cities.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. Upon Chriſt's mentioning his reſurrection from death, c. 17. 23. and Mar. 9. 31. which they took to be a beginning of his kingdome here, the diſciples enquire ambitiouſly (among themſelves Mar. 9. 33.) who ſhall have the chiefe place of dignity in that kingdome of the Meſſiah here? (ſo again on the ſame occaſion they fall on the ſame thoughts Mat. 20. 20. Lu. 22. 24. and look that way, Act. 1. 6.

1. AT the ſame time came the diſciples unto Jeſus, ſaying, Who is the greateſt in the kingdome of heaven?]

2. And Jeſus willing by an embleme, or viſible repreſentation to ſatisfie this queſtion of theirs as farre as was uſefull to them,

2. And Jeſus] called a little child unto him, and ſet him in the midſt of them,

3. Unleſſe you change your inclinations and deſires, and take your ſelves off from this vain ambitious expectation and purſuit of a carnall kingdome of Chriſt, and of your receiving dignities and preheminencies in it, you can never be true diſciples of Chriſt, this carnall ambition, and projecting being ſo contrary to the Chriſtian temper.

3. And ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you. [except ye be converted and become as little children, ye ſhall not enter into the kingdome of heaven.]

4. Two things therefore I ſhall teach you from this emblem, firſt that the ſtate of Chriſtianity is ſuch a ſtate, that he which is moſt lowly, is moſt capable of eminence in it.

4. Whoſoever therefore ſhall humble himſelfe as this little child, the ſame is greateſt in the kingdome of heaven.]

5. Secondly that all the lowlyeſt and meaneſt perſons are ſo dearly valued by me, that he that would do a gratefull thing unto me, cannot find any fitter way to doe it then by cheriſhing, and treating kindly and tenderly any ſuch mean lowly perſon, eſpecially if it be by ſhewing kindneſſe and tenderneſſe to his ſoule, endevouring to advance that in the ways of godlineſſe.

5. And whoſo ſhall receive one ſuch little child in my name, receiveth me.]

6. Whereas on the other ſide, he that ſhall gall, diſcourage, drive from me and the Chriſtian practiſe any ſuch meaneſt perſon that comes to mee, 'twere for his advantage, that the ſtone of a mill, not ſuch as women turn with the hand, c. 24. 41. but ſo big that it is fain to be turned by an Aſſe, were hung as a weight about his neck, and he then caſt into the ſea, ſure to be hurryed preſently to the bottome of it.

6. But who ſo ſhall offend one of theſe little ones which beleive in me, it were better for him that a * milſtone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the ſea.]

* mil-ſtone ſuch as is drawn by an Aſſe, μυλος ονικὸς

7. Upon this occaſion I tell you before-hand, that great falling off, and apoſtatiſing there will be amongſt thoſe that receive the faith, great diſcouragements to obſtruct the receiving of it, many will be ſeduced from the right way, (which is a ſad and wofull thing) But though this be to be expected in reſpect of the wickedneſſe of ſome, and ſeducibleneſſe of others, and though it be not imaginable that the world ſhould by God be kept free from all ſuch temptations to ſin, (nay God hath thought fit to permit ſuch for the tryall and exerciſe of Chriſtians) yet will this be little matter of excuſe, but rather of aggravation of their ſinne and woe, that ſhall be inſtrumentall to this end, that ſhall be the authors of them.

7. Wo unto the world becauſe of offences: for it muſt needs be that offences come, but wo to that man by whom the offence cometh.

8. And therefore I now forewarne you that if any that is neareſt to you (friend, profit, pleaſure, as dear to thee as a member or any part of thy ſelfe) go about to diſcourage thee in thy Chriſtian courſe, to withdraw thee either in groſſe from the Chriſtian profeſſion, or more particularly from any act of duty to the contrary ſinne, thou be ſure to renounce it, part with it: (Mat. 5. 29, 30.) It being ſo much more eligible, and deſireable for thee to attain eternall bliſſe, having in thy life time been halt or maimed, i. e. paſſing through ſome difficulties or auſterities, then by eſcaping thoſe difficulties to run into ſinne, and ſo to hazard everlaſting fire.

8. Wherefore [if thy hand or foot * offend thee, cut them off, and caſt them from thee, it is † better for thee to enter into life halt or maimed, rather then having two hands or two feet, to be caſt into fire everlaſting.]

† ſcandalize σκανδαλίζῃ * good καλὸν

9. having heer for ſome years loſt the benefit of one of thine eyes.

9. And if thine eye offend thee, plucke it out, and caſt it from thee: it is † better for thee to enter into life [with one eye,] rather then having two eyes, to be caſt into hell fire.

† good καλὸν

10. It is a matter of great moment, then, worthy your 2. ſaddeſt care, that you doe not undervalue or neglect the good, and advantage of any the meaneſt perſon, to whoſe reformation, or eſtabliſhment ye are able to contribute any thing, but eſpecially that you take care leſt by neglecting to do what is in your power to do toward the recalling, or confirming, or elſe by any other meanes (though but occaſionally) ye prove the undoing of any my meaneſt ſervants, for I tell you, The Angels which are by God appointed to bee their guardians on earth, have yet their continuall returnes, and recourſe to Gods glorious preſence, are neer and high in Gods favour, always having acceſſe to make requeſts, or complaints in their behalfes, and to receive commands from him concerning them, and therefore theſe, though little in their own, and the worlds account, are not yet to be ſlighted, or deſpiſed by any, or averted from their courſe of piety by that means.

10. Take heed that ye deſpiſe not one of theſe little ones, for I ſay unto you, That in heaven their [a] Angels doe always behold the face of my father which is in heaven.]

11. For Chriſt that came to reduce thoſe (ſee note on c. 11. k.) that are gone aſtray from the ways of God, muſt be thought to require the ſame of you, to be moſt diligent and induſtrious to reduce the meaneſt perſon upon earth, that is in a courſe of any danger of ruine to the ſoul.

11. For the ſon of man is come to ſave that which was loſt.]

12, 13. For judge in reaſon, I pray, by this ordinary reſemblance, If an ordinary man on earth have a poſſeſſion on which he ſets any conſiderable value, be it an hundred ſheep, and if one of them be ſtrayed from the reſt, and that be diſcerned by him, doth he not ſet ſo great a value on that one loſt ſheep, as at the preſent to leave the whole number

12. How thinke ye? If a man have an hundred ſheep, and one of them be gone aſtray, doth he not leave the ninty and nine, and goeth into the mountains and ſeeketh that which is gone aſtray?

13. And if ſo be that he find it, verily I ſay unto you, He rejoyceth more of that ſheep, then of the ninety and nine, which went not aſtray.]

ber besides (knowing them safe in the pasture or fold) and go and search diligently and solicitously for that one, and upon the finding it, is he not affected with more joy at the first sight of it, then he is at the beholding his whole flock, which had never run that hazard?

14. Even so it is not the will of your father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.] 14. And just thus it is with God, he is very unwilling that any the meanest person upon earth should be lost, that might with any care or methods of ours be recovered to piety.

* But if Ray A 15. * Moreover, If thy brother shall trespasse against thee, goe and tell him his fault between thee and him alone, if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother.] 15. To this purpose, these directions I shall now give, which I require to be used in the Church forever. If any fellow Christian of thine do thee any injury, and by so doing offend against God, thy charity to him, as it must be sure to put off all thoughts of revenge against him, to forgive him freely, v. 22. so will it oblige thee to use all prudent methods to reduce him to a sense and reformation of his fault (and by the same reason this is to be extended to all other wilfull crimes of which thou seest him guilty, those being as fit to exercise this part of thy charity towards his soul, as any injury done to thee immediately) and let this be the method, first go and admonish him of it privately, so that it have nothing of shame or reproach joyned with it, and if he mend upon such admonition, there's an end, thou hast reason to rejoyce as at the finding the stray sheep, that thou hast been so happy an instrument of his repentance.

16. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.] 16. But if this first method of thy charity succeed not, another essay must be made, take with thee one or two other men, either that the crime which thou layest to his charge, be so confirm'd to him by sufficient testimony Joh. 8. 17. that he be no longer able to deny it (as that, which cannot be contradicted or denyed, is said to be established, Heb. 6. 16.) or that the authority of these added to that of thy private admonition, may be of more force with him, induce him to condemn himself, at least be more likely to doe so, be more weighty in the presence of two or three.

17. And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the Church, but if he neglect to hear the Church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man, and a Publican.] 17. But if he be still refractary, either through non-conviction of the fact, or non-contrition for it, if this second admonition work not on him, then make it a matter of publick cognizance, tell it to the rulers of the assemblies (saith S. Chrysostome, see Power of Keys c. 2. §. 12.) or tell it in the presence of all the people, that before them the Governour may rebuke him, (as Timothy is appointed to do 1 Tim. 5. 20.) But if this last method succeed not neither, if he be still refractary, thou art then to look on him as a desperate deplored sinner, (see Power of Keys c. 2. §. 9.) fit for the censures of the Church to overtake him.

18. Verily I say unto you, whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven.] 18. Which yee therefore to whom now I speake, the designed rulers of the Church, and your successors the Bishops, are in this case to proceed to, to use the Keys given to you, as Stewards of the house c. 16. 19. for the ejecting of such. And I assure you, whomsoever (see note on c. 12. k.) ye shall thus cast out of the Church on earth, shall, without repentance, and submission to your censures and reformation upon them, and sincere desire to reconcile, and approve themselves to you, be by me excluded from heaven, These censures of yours, inflicted by this commission from me, shall be backt by me, And so whomsoever ye shall upon sincere repentance receive into the peace of the Church again, he shall by me be pardoned also.

19. Again, I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing [b] that they shall aske, it shall be done for them of my father which is in heaven.] 19. As for the second of the three admonitions, spoken b.

of v. 16. (see note on c. 7. b.) this I assure you, that as the assize of three men among the Jews had some power, so shall any two or three Christians, joyning in such a reprehension, be considerable in this matter, having the privilege of Gods presence (as in their prayers thus united, so in their united admonitions) to give them authority, assistance and blessing.

20. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.] 20. For where two or three are met, or assembled for this piece of discipline, (as for any holy action besides) there am I present with them in a speciall manner, and will not suffer the actions, which thus they undertake by my appointments, to be set at nought by any.

21. Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sinne against me, and I forgive him? till seven times?] 21. When Christ had gone thus farre by way of returne from the last to the second, and before he proceeded from that to the first, Peter interposed this question (the answer to which comes home to the first of the three also) Sir, seeing I am bound to forbear my brother, or fellow Christian, that injureth me, and not to act any revenge upon him, as we were taught by thee, Mat. 5. 39. and seeing now, upon admonishing him that hath injured me, in case he repent, either on the first, or second, or third admonition, I am to proceed no farther against him, but forgive him, and rejoyce that I have done so much good upon him, v. 15. yet because he that hath thus trespassed, and repented once, may possibly trespasse againe, and repent again, (see Lu. 17. 3, 4.) I desire to be taught by thee, how oft I am to do this, to forgive him, that, though he repent of his injury, aske forgivenesse, and promise to do so no more (see v. 26. 29.) yet oft times relapses again, How oft must I be thus indulgent to him and forgive him upon his request? must I doe it often, or seven times?

22. Jesus saith unto him, [I say not unto thee, untill seven times, but untill seventy times seven.] 22. This rule is to hold eternally, not only for a great, but an unlimited number of trespasses, supposing that the trespasser repent, and promise amendment for the future, Lu. 17. 4. (otherwise thou art not so bound to passe by his trespasse, but that thou maist by the means prescribed v. 15. &c. endevour his reformation, for in that case that is the greatest charity he is capable of.)

23. Therefore is the kingdome of heaven like unto a certain King, which would take account of his [c] servants.] 23. To which purpose (to shew you how necessary it is for every of you to remit most freely the injuries that are done to you by your brethren, be they never so great, if you expect any remission for God from your sinnes committed against him) I shall give you this parable. God's dealing with men under the Gospell is very fitly resembled to a King calling his servants to account. c.

24. And

24. And when he did ſo, one of his ſervants upon account was found to owe him a great ſumme caſt up by ordinary valuation to be a thouſand eight hundred ſeventy five thouſand pounds.

24. And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which ought him ten thouſand talents.]

25. But he being not able to pay that ſumme his maſter appointed him to be uſed as debtors, which are not able to pay, are wont to be uſed among the Jews, ſold, they and their wives and their children, to be ſervants, and bondmen, 2 Kings 4. 1. and by that ſale the debt to be paid.

25. But for as much as he had not to pay, his Lord commanded him to be ſold and his wife and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.]

26. Heerupon the indebted ſervant fell down on his face, and beſought him that he would ſtay a while, till he might be able to pay him, and not uſe this extremity towards him, promiſing, if he would do ſo, that he ſhould loſe nothing by him.

26. The ſervant therefore fell down and worſhipped him, ſaying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.]

27. And his maſter was merciſull, and quitted him of the former ſentence, v. 25. and frankly forgave him that vaſt ſumme, upon his bare requeſt.

27. Then the Lord of that ſervant was moved with compaſſion, and looſed him, and forgave him the debt.]

28. But when this was done, this ſervant, that had been thus mercifully and magnificently dealt with by his maſter, having had ten thouſand talents forgiven him, met with one of his fellow-ſervants, which ought him ſomewhat, one hundred denarii, valued to three pounds two ſhillings ſixpence of our money, a contemptible ſumme, in compariſon with what had juſt now been forgiven him, and he preſently apprehended him in a moſt rigid manner, requiring him to make preſent payment.

d. * ſhook him

28. But the ſame ſervant went out and found one of his fellow-ſervants, which ought him an hundred pence, and he laid hands on him, and d * took him by the throat, ſaying, Pay me that thou oweſt.]

29. And this fellow-ſervant of his beſought him with as much humility to forbear him, as he had v. 26. beſought his maſters forbearance, for ſix hundred thouſand times as much.

29. And his fellow-ſervant fell down at his feet, and beſought him ſaying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.]

30. And that ſervant that had had ſo much forgiven him, would not forgive ſo little, but deals with him in the extremeſt rigor, caſt him into priſon never to be releaſed, but upon paying the whole debt.

30. And he would not: but went and caſt him into priſon, till he ſhould pay the debt.]

31. For this all the fellow-ſervants that ſaw it, were much troubled, both for the unhappy lot of him that ſuffered, and the unreaſonable behaviour of him that thus dealt with him, in ſo diſtant a manner from what himſelf had ſo lately found from his maſter, and upon this they came and informed their maſter of it.

31. So when his fellow-ſervants ſaw what was done, they were very ſorry, and came and told unto their Lord all that was done.]

32. O thou unconſcionable man, thou canſt not but remember, how I lately forgave thee all that vaſt ſumme owing to me by thee, (with which this of thy fellow-ſervant to thee beareth no proportion) and that upon thy bare requeſt, having no motive, beſide my own compaſſion to an helpleſſe creature, to invite me to ſo great a mercy.

32. Then his Lord, after that he had called him, ſaid unto him, [Θ thou wicked ſervant, I forgave thee all that debt, becauſe thou deſiredſt me.]

33. Was it not then reaſonable for thee that hadſt received pardon of ſo vaſt a debt from thy maſter, or ſuperior, to have (in like manner as I gave thee example) ſhewed pity to thy fellow-ſervant, to whom thou were ſo much more obliged then I to thee, and to have remitted him ſo ſmall a ſumme, when I forgave thee ſix hundred thouſand times as much?

33. Shouldſt not thou alſo have had compaſſion on thy fellow-ſervant, even as I had pity on thee?]

34. Upon this, the maſter was moſt juſtly enraged againſt him, and uſed him as he had done his fellow, v. 30. and though he had before remitted him, yet upon his unworthy impious behaviour revoked his deſigned mercy, and caſt him into priſon.

e. † Jaylours

34. And his Lord was wroth, and delivered him to the e † tormentors, till he ſhould pay all that was due unto him.]

35. By this reſemblance yee ſee what meaſure yee muſt expect from God in this matter, For juſt ſo ſhall God deal with you, remit nothing of that rigour againſt you, which you uſe againſt others, deal moſt ſeverely with you, if ye doe not clearly, plenarily, and ſincerely (without any reſervation, or deſigne to have God execute any vengeance for you, or the like) forgive all injuries, how great ſoever, (being certainly farre below the proportion of yours againſt God) that are done to you by any man living.

35. So likewiſe ſhall my heavenly father doe alſo unto you, if yee from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their treſpaſſes.]

Notes on Chap. XVIII.

a. *Ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν

That Angels are God's miniſtring ſpirits, and doe performe his commands in guarding his ſervants here below, is the doctrine of Scripture, Heb. 1. 14. and ſo ſeverall times in the Revelation, where the ſeven Spirits c. 1. 4. and c. 4, 5. (i. e. ſaith Andreas Caſareenſis, ſeven Angels) are ſaid in heaven to behold his face, in the ſame manner as is here affirmed of them. But whether the ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν, their Angels] here, be to be defined ſingular Angels peculiarly deſign'd to particular perſons, is not here diſtinctly affirmed, onely that they are, as God ſees fit, employed in ſervices for the benefit of theſe little ones, i. e. of Chriſtians, And of that there is no doubt. Thus ſaith Origen contr. Celſ. l. 6. * Ἄγγελοι πεπαγμένοι εἰς τὸ παρεδρεύειν αὐτοῖς, the Angels that are appointed to preſide over them, as guardians, to counterwork the treacheries and policies of Satan; That theſe are ſaid continually to behold the face of God, is, ſaith * Dionyſius Alexandr. ἐν ἀπειλῇ τῷ βίῳ κεῖται διὰ παντὸς, ἀδιαλείπτως ἐν τῇ ὄψει ἀγαθῇ παρεδρεύειν ἐπιστάμενος, because they continually and ſtedfaſtly behold

behold the beauty of God, and never fall off from that dignity and preferment (as Lucifer did) which they enjoy by their nearneſſe to the true, reall, eternall good. But there is beſides this, a more peculiar notation of the phraſe, as to behold the face, ſignifies to wait, attend as a ſervant, Pſal. 123. 2. as a Miniſter to be ready at hand, to doe whatſoever is commanded. Thus in Elias Levita, ſpeaking of the word Mitateron, he is, ſaith he, שר הפנים princeps facierum, Prince of faces, i. e. Angelus qui ſemper videt faciem regis excelſi, &c. an Angel which always beholds the face of the high King, &c. i. e. of God. And both theſe put together make up the full ſenſe of the words, which yet farther note a more eminent ſort of Angels.

b. Ἀπολύσωσιν. It is ſomewhat uncertain what is the meaning of [ὃ ἐὰν δήσωσιν] here. For that it is not in the Active, which is ordinarily uſed for asking (ſee c. 21. 22.) is clear, and if it be rendred in a paſſive ſenſe, then it will be [whatſoever they ſhall be required to] and referre to the one or two, that are taken v. 16. i. e. required to go along with the admoniſher; which being here part of Chriſts inſtitution, it may conſequently be ſaid of it, as a promiſe from Chriſt, [γενήσεται αὐτοῖς &c. it ſhall be unto them from my father,] i. e. my father ſhall give authority to that, which they being thus called, or required, συμφωνήσωσιν ſhall agree on. The reaſon of which is given v. 20. For where two or three are thus aſſembled in my name, according to my appointment, there am I in the midſt of them. This hath that degree of appearance of truth, that I thought fit here to mention it, but not ſo much certainty, as to put it in the margent, or to impoſe it as the primary ſenſe in the paraphraſe.

c. The ſervants here, that the King or Lord is ſuppoſed to call to account, ſeem to be thoſe, which are intruſted by him to negotiate for him, ſuch as are mentioned, c. 25. 14. and Lu. 19. 13. And proportionably his reckoning with them here, v. 24. is all one with that, Mat. 25. 19. and the ſame phraſe συναίρειν λόγον is uſed in both places, which in S. Luke (who calls him a King alſo, as he is here) c. 19. 5. is expreſs't by commanding his ſervants to be called, that he might know how much every one had gained by trading. i. e. what every man had gotten, and had ready, to bring him in, above the money which he received. That is there ſet down to be a very ſtrange encreaſe, one pound had been improved into ten, v. 16. another into five pounds, v. 18. and in S. Matthew, five are encreaſed into five more, two into two more. And ſo in both Evangeliſts ſome ſuch encreaſe is brought in by every one, but only by him that had laid it up in a napkin, and been perfectly idle, done nothing with it. Agreeably to this it here followes, that one of theſe ſervants, when he comes to be reckon'd with, is found upon account, to be endebted to his Lord ten thouſand talents, which at the rate of 750 ounces of ſilver to a talent and of five ſhillings an ounce, ariſes to one thouſand eight hundred ſeventy five thouſand pounds, a vaſt ſum of money. And that being required, he was no way able to make payment, and ſo was adjudg'd by his Lord (as ſuch debtors are wont) to be ſold, &c. upon this his petition to his Lord is, that he will bear with him a while, and he will repay him all, that upon account was due unto him, all the ten thouſand talents. And thereupon his Lord moved with pity towards him not only ἀπέλυσεν αὐτὸν, releaſed him from that ſentence of ſelling and impriſoning, before decreed againſt him, but alſo remitted him τὸ δάνειον, the whole debt, the ten thouſand talents, for which he was caſt into priſon. 'Tis true indeed, that the word δάνειον here uſed, and rendred debt, doth alſo ſignifie uſury, or intereſt, and ſo might be thought to ſignifie here not the whole debt, but only the intereſt, that would be due for the forbearance of it for the ſpace that he now deſired, To this alſo the words of the ſervant's requeſt ſeem to incline, which were only theſe, that he would have patience, i. e. grant him ſome time, promiſing if he would, to pay him the whole ſumme, and not deſiring the forgiveneſſe, or remiſſion of that. But although δάνειον ſometimes ſignifies uſe, yet it ſignifies a loane, or debt alſo, and ſo it is expreſt to do here, v. 30. 32. 34. and the Arabick reads Colla mah alaihi, all that was upon him, all that he was lyable to, or reſponſible for, now that was plainly not only all the intereſt, that this deſired forbearance would ariſe to, but even the principal it ſelf, For though the ſervant doth not beg the abſolute remiſſion of that, but uſes the ordinary forme of inſolvent debtors, which deſire patience, or releaſe from priſon, and labour to encline the creditor to that, by fair promiſes, that he ſhall loſe nothing by them, yet Gods mercy, expreſt by this of the Lords, and the example ſet to us, in the former paſſage, v. 22. of plenary and abſolute forgiveneſſe, of what is already ſuffered (and not only of what may follow) will certainly extend it to the whole ſumme, and not ſuffer it to be reſtrained to no more then the Creditors requeſt; the intereſt for forbearance. And ſo the other part of the parable, his dealing with his fellow-ſervant doth demonſtrate alſo, for there that which he would not forgive, was (in all reaſon) anſwerable to that, which the Lord had forgiven him, (differing only in the quantity of it, ſo few denarii or eight parts of an ounce, to ſo many talents, and anſwerable to that is the brothers treſpaſſe againſt me in proportion to thy ſins againſt God) and that is there called τὸ ὀφειλόμενον (in a word which is not capable of that ambiguity) the debt, v. 30. not the intereſt, and πᾶσαν τὴν ὀφειλὴν ἐκείνην, all that debt, and therefore this is moſt reaſonably to be pitcht on as the meaning of the place, and the Concluſion from thence, this plain truth, that Gods pardons here in this life are not to us abſolute, while we become uncharitable to our brethren, but, according to the petition in our Lords Prayer, anſwerable to our dealings with others, and ſo conditional, and are no longer likely to be continued to us, then we performe that Condition.

The word πνίγω is not only to choak or throttle, d. but alſo, according to the uſe of the Hebrew נעת Πνίγω (which ſometimes is rendred πνίγω, 1 Sam. 16. 14. ſometimes σαλεύω, τρομέω, ἐκλανθάνω, τρομέω) ſignifies to pluck, to exagitate, to trouble, to haſt, to ſhake, to terrifie, and ſo it may here ſignifie.

Βασανιστὴς δημόσιος] ſaith Heſychius, it not only ſignifies one that explores, and examines, and puts upon the rack (in which notion it cannot be taken here) but alſo a keeper of a common gaol, and ſo it muſt do here, the uſage in e. Βασανιστὴς this verſe being proportionable, and parallel to that, which this man had dealt to his fellow-ſervant, v. 30. which was caſting him into priſon, untill he ſhould pay the debt, which argues the Βασανισταις here, to whom he is delivered, to be the keeper of that priſon, and no more, there being no uſe of the rack, or torment in this buſineſſe.

CHAP. XIX.

Paraphraſe.

1. when all thoſe occaſions were over, on which he ſpake thoſe things,

1. AND it came to paſſe that [when Jeſus had finiſhed theſe ſayings,] he departed from Galilee, and came into the coaſts of Judea beyond Jordan.

2. no leſſe in Judea now, then before in Galilee.

2. And great multitudes followed him, and he healed them [there.]

3. The Phariſees alſo came unto him, tempting him, and ſaying, Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wife for every cauſe?

4, 5. Ye cannot but remember the ſtrict union, and conjunction betwixt man and wife which

4. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, [Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning, made them male and female?

5. And ſaid, For this cauſe ſhall a man leave father and mother, and ſhall cleave to his wife, and they twain ſhall be one fleſh.]

was appointed by God in the creation, Gen. 1. 27. where as ſoon as the man and woman were created, we finde this concluſion made by Adam, (or rather the hiſtorian) Gen. 2. 24. that the man was to forſake all and cleave to his wife, and continue with her as inſeparably as with another part of the ſame fleſh, (ſee note on Lu. 16, b.)

6. And therefore thus are they to be

6. Wherefore they are no more twain, but one fleſh. What therefore God hath joyned together, let no man put aſunder.]

thought of, as two by God united into one, and then ſure that which hath been thus inſtituted by God, muſt not by man be altered, it ought ſtill to continue among you, as it was firſt inſtituted, 'tis utterly unlawfull (unleſſe in caſe of falſeneſſe to the husbands bed Mat. 5. 32.) to put the wife away.

7. To this the Phariſees objected,

7. They ſay unto him, Why did Moſes then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away?]

ſaying, What account then is to be given of that precept in the Law, wherein Moſes appointed the husband (in ſome caſes mentioned by him Deut. 24. 1.) to give a bill of divorce unto the wife, in this manner permitting him to put her away?

8. knowing you Jews to be ſo

8. He ſaith unto them, Moſes, [becauſe of the hardneſſe of your hearts ſuffered you to put away your wives, but from the beginning it was not ſo.]

perſwaſible and obſtinately bent to your own luſts and rages, that in caſe you were obliged to live with hated wives, and not permitted divorces, it would probably cauſe in you ſome greater ſin, was forced to permit thoſe divorces, to let them goe unpuniſhed, though he did not allow or appoint them, But this you ſee (v. 4, 5.) was very diſtant from the appointment of God in the firſt inſtitution of marriage.

9. And accordingly I now define that whoſoever ſhall

9. And I ſay unto you, Whoſoever ſhall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and ſhall marry another, committeth adultery, and who ſo marrieth her that is put away, doth commit adultery.]

uſe that liberty ſo frequent among you, to put away his wife, for any leſſer cauſe then that of fornication, and then thinke it free for him to marry again, that man by marrying another, whilſt his wife is alive, (from the obligation to whom he is not, nor cannot be freed) is conſequently guilty of adultery, and ſo likewiſe he that marrieth her that is divorced, taketh another mans wife, which is adultery alſo.

10. Hereupon his own diſciples began to object, that if marriage brought ſuch an inſeparable conjunction with it, then ſure the inconveniencies and hazards of marriage above the advantages and conveniencies of it would be ſo great, that it were more prudent not to marry at all, then to be ſubject to ſuch poſſible inconveniences.

10. His diſciples ſay unto him, If the caſe of the man be ſo with his wife, [it is not good to marry.]

11. To this objection he gave this anſwer, that all men are

11. But he ſaid unto them, All men cannot receive this ſaying, ſave they to whom it is given.]

not capable of that prudentiall aphoriſme [that a ſingle life is more profitable and fit for their turn, then marriage] but thoſe only, whom God hath ſome way more then ordinarily fitted for it, by ſome ſpeciall gift.

2. 12. For ſome live unmaried, as being naturally enabled to doe ſo, chaſtly, and without great difficulty, ſome, as being

12. For there are ſome [a] Eunuchs, which were ſo born from their mothers wombe: and there are ſome Eunuchs, which were made Eunuchs of men: and there be Eunuches which have made themſelves Eunuches for the kingdome of heavens ſake. He that is able to receive it, let him receive it.]

by men diſabled (of which ſort there were many among the heathens, ordinarily called Eunuches) ſome out of firmeneſſe of reſolution have gotten that maſtery over themſelves, that they can live chaſtly in ſingle life, and do ſo on purpoſe, that they may have fuller vacancy to ſet themſelves apart for the duties of Chriſtianity. Now he that finds this agreeable to his condition, and can thus conquer and ſubdue himſelfe, he may doe accordingly, if he pleaſe, and ſhall do well, and wiſely in ſo doing.

13. that by impoſition of hands he would beſtow his benediction upon them.

13. Then were there brought unto him little children, [that he ſhould put his hands on them, and pray: and the Diſciples rebuked them.]

And his diſciples would have chid them away.

14. their meekneſſe, humility and docility, are the temper, which of all others is moſt like that which is required of diſciples of Chriſt.

14. But Jeſus ſaid, Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me: for [of ſuch is the kingdome of heaven.]

15. And uſing that ceremony of impoſition of hands, frequent among the Jews in all kind of benedictions, he beſtowed his bleſſing upon them.

15. And he laid his hands on them,] and departed thence.

16. And

16. And behold, one came and said unto him, Good master, [what good thing shall I doe that I may have eternall life?] 16. what is the condition required of me to make me capable of eternall blisse?

17. And he saith unto him, [Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandements.] 17. thy calling me good, without conceiving mee to be God, is not right. But for thy question of the way to eternall blisse, this is soon answered, 'tis by obedience to Gods commandements.

18. He saith unto him, Which? [Jesus said] Thou shalt doe no murther, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witnesse. 18. Jesus said, those great precepts given by God to Moses, containing the heads of all duties both toward God and man, particularly those six of the second sort, containing the duty toward man.

19. Honour thy father and thy mother, and, [Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy self.] 19. Thou shalt not desire advantage to thy self by another mans losse, or desire any thing that is his, but consider his good, as well as thine own, which is the summe of the last commandement.

20. The young man saith, [All these things have I kept from my youth up: What lack I yet? 20. All these parts of duty I have sincerely observed all my life, what more is required of me?

21. Jesus said unto him,] If thou wilt be [b] perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come and follow me.] 21. If thou wilt ascend to that higher pitch, to which I come to raise men, if thou wilt be a Christian, then must thou upon contemplation of the reward that is laid up in heaven for all that sincerely obey me, be contented to part with all the wealth of the world, whensoever that is required of thee, either directly (as now I command thee to sell and give to the poor all that thou hast, and so to follow me, as all my Disciples have done, though they had not so much to part with, as thou hast) or by consequence, when thou canst not obey any particular precept without danger of being undone by it. b.

22. But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowfull, for he had great possessions.] 22. When the young man heard Christ say this, he was much grieved, because he had a very great estate, and therefore seeing he could not be a Christian at any cheaper rate, he forsook, or departed from Christ, would not pay so dear for that perfection.

23. Then said Jesus to his disciples, Verily I say unto you that [a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdome of heaven.] 23. It is very difficult for a wealthy man to undertake that condition, required of all by me, that will be Christians, and come to blisse now under the Gospel.

24. And again I say unto you, [It is easier for a [c] camel to goe through the eye of a needle, then for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God.] 24. The rich man setting his heart upon his riches, and trusting in them, Mar. 10. 24. must part with as much of his humour, before he can be capable of being a Christian, of performing the condition by me required to attain blisse, as that which is of the greatest bulk, must part with, to be qualified to passe through the straighteſt place. c.

25. When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, [Who then can be saved?] 25. If the way prescribed by thee to blisse be as straight as a needles eye, who then can undertake it? who can come to blisse upon such termes as these? who is there that according to this rule is qualified for salvation?

26. But Jesus [beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is unpossible, but with God all things are possible.] 26. lookt upon them (as examples of the practicableness of this doctrine, of forsaking, parting with all to follow him) and tells them, to encourage them, that, it seems, those things which are in themselves so hard, and so unreasonable for meer men to doe, are yet very possible for God; and so this of contemning the world, working such a change on a worldly mans heart, that he shall liberally bestow his wealth, and not place any confidence in it, is a work, that God doth ordinarily work in mens hearts, and enables them to doe with ease.

27. Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee, what shall we have therefore?

28. And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, [that ye which have followed me, [d] in the regeneration, when the son of man shall sit on the thron of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. 28. ye that are now my disciples, and have by receiving the faith and baptisme left all to follow me, shall, assoon as I come to my kingdome, be highly honoured and rewarded by me, or, You that have received me and followed me, and persevered constant to me, continued with me in my temptations, Lu. 22. 28. shall in the new age, or state, (taking its beginning from the resurrection, and ascension of Christ) have a power in the Church instated on you, as my successors, somewhat proportionable to that of the severall Rulers of the Tribes among the Jewes, (a token of which are the keyes, after given to them, and promised, as here, c. 16. 19.) The power which my father hath given me on earth, shall at my departure be instated upon you, Lu. 22. 29. d.

29. And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my names sake, shall receive an [e] hundred fold,] and shall inherit everlasting life. 29. And whosoever shall for my sake part with any of the advantages and possessions of this life, whatsoever it is, he shall be so farre from being a loser by it, that he shall in this very life be by that means abundantly more richly provided for, in the same proportion, that he which in the harvest hath the most plentifull returns to his seed and pains-taking. (c. 13. 8.) e.

30. But many that are first shall be last, and the last shall be first.] 30. But though you have advantage of other men in being thus early in Discipleship, yet 'tis very possible that some that come after you in time (as Paul) may labour as fervently, deserve as much, and consequently be as richly rewarded as you. (upon which followes the parable of c. 20. 1.)

a. Ευνοῦχοι

The word εὐνοῦχοι and εὐνουχίζειν have a vulgar ordinary signification, which is known by the English use of the word Eunuch, i.e. in the expressions of the Grammarians, παῖδων, τομίας, &c. And accordingly three sorts of them are ordinarily set down, 1. ἐκτομίαι castrati, οἱ διὰ ζιδύρου ἀφαιρεθέντες, 2. Σπάδωνες, οἱ ἐκ φύσεως διδυμους μὴ ἔχοντες, and 3. Θλιβίαι and Θλαδίαι, οἱ νεωστὶ ἀποβαλλοντες τὰ παιδόγονα μέσα ὑπὸ τ γονέων θλιβίαι, καὶ ἀχρηστοδίντα. But here the context which sets it in opposition to marrying, makes it clear, that Eunuchisme, is taken for the chastity of a single life, howsoever acquired, whether 1. by naturall temper, or 2. by some outward accidentall weakning, or debilitating of nature, as was frequent among the Gentiles, in order to some offices and services, to which men, that were thereby secured from desires, were designed; Such, if it were done by themselves, are called by the Apostles Canons, ἀυλοφονδ) self-murtherers, ἐχθροὶ τ τῦ Θεῦ δημιυργίας, enemies of God's workmanship, Can. 22,23. or 3ly, by firm purpose or resolution of mind, assisted by God's grace, in order to his service, such were the ascetæ, σκληραγωγοι, τῇ ἰδίᾳ καρδίᾳ ἀγωνιζόμενοι, those that imposed hardships on themselves, and combated with their own desires. Thus in Phavorinus, the word being deduced according to some Grammarians from ἓν νῦν ἔχειν, to have the mind well or wisely disposed, it signifies, saith he, ἀπαλλάχθαι τ ἀφροδισίων, to have nothing to doe with any thing of venery or carnality, for, saith he, the Ancients ἀφροδίσια ἀνόητα ἐκάλυν, call'd all things of that kind follies; Thus we know the Scripture hath exprest any such unlawfull commission, the doing folly in Israel, and so 'tis cited out of Aristophanes, ὕπνυ τι ἀπέχεσθ καὶ τ ἀνοήτων πάντων, to abstain from sleep and all foolish things, where yet Aristophanes hath only οἴνυ τ' ἄπεχε καὶ γυμασίων, καὶ τ ἄλλων ἀνοήτων, which the Scholiast expounds by τ ἀφροδισίων, τὸ γὰρ ἀνοπλαίνειν, μωραίνειν, διὰ τὸ ἀφροδισιάζειν ἔλεγον, saith he. But 'tis possible that the place in Aristophanes is to be read [ὕπνυ τι] in stead of οἴνυ, and then there is no question, but that [ὕπνος sleep] might be a civil word for things of that nature, as in the wise man, ἡδυὴ δὲ ὕπνος] signifies.

b. Τελείοτης

What is the notion of τελειότης perfection] here, must be defined by considering what is meant by entring into the kingdome of heaven, v. 23. For it appeareth that the not undertaking the condition required of the yong man by Christ, to his being perfect, doth also exclude him from entring into this kingdome, or render him uncapable of it. Now that kingdome of heaven, signifying that crown of eternall life and blisse, which was this mans aime, v.16. the entring into that kingdome is the undertaking the condition now required by Christ, or the attaining that blisse by performing that condition, and therefore his going away v.22. i.e. forsaking of Christ, caused by the greatnesse of his riches, is all one with the rich mans not being able to enter into that kingdome v.23. This again appeareth by the question and answer ensuing, v.25. where when the Disciples aske, Who then can be saved? (whatsoever they mean by that, whether, [who can be a Christian?] as the word rendred [escaping] or [being saved] often signifies, (see *Mat.*10.9. *Lu.*13.2. and *Rom.*10.2.) or whether [who can come to heaven?]) Christ's answer is, by looking upon them, &c. intimating them to be examples of this possibility, capable of this salvation, this entring into the kingdome of heaven, as having perform'd the condition required to qualifie them for it. From these premises it seems necessary to conclude that the perfection here spoken of is Christianity it self, (and not only an heroick eminent degree of it) and that the condition here required to it, is matter of command, not counsel only, and such, as he that will not ascend to, (the young man here) cannot be called or deemed a Christian, cannot attain to blisse, as 'tis now offered under the Gospel. From hence it followes not, that no man is saveable, or a Christian, but he that sells all, and gives it to the poor, and so followes Christ, for there is no command elswhere given by Christ to all men to doe so, (and this command here given to this young man, and the like, in some degree, to the Disciples, to leave their nets, i. e. their whole estates, and follow him, obliges none but those to whom it was given) but only thus, that he that loves any thing more then Christ, is no Christian, that whatsoever Christ shall at any time by any explicite command, as here, or else by his providence (by making it impossible to preserve my fidelity to him, or obedience to any known command of his, without parting with my wealth &c.) require of me, I must impartially perform it, though it be with the losse of my estate, or even of life it self, and if I doe not resolve, and undertake to doe so, I cannot be saved, I am no Christian, Or if having vowed it, (as every Christian doth in baptisme, vowing there, whensoever the world comes in competition with Christ, to forsake the world and follow Christ) I doe not, in time of tryall, perform it, I forfeit the privileges of Christianity, all title to blisse. And this is it, that maketh it so hard a thing for the rich man, and even so impossible for him that trusteth in riches, *Mar.*10.24. (that hath reposed any confidence in them, that depends, or looks on them as his felicity) to enter this kingdome, to be, and continue Christian, to attain this perfection or this blisse; for, where his treasure is, there will his heart be also.

c. Παροιμία ἐξ:

It was an ordinary proverb among the Jewes that An Elephant cannot passe through the eye of a needle, to signifie the most impossible thing. Thus in the Babyl: Talmud. Perek Haroe Berachoth, You perhaps are one of Pombeditha (an Academy of Jewes in Babylon) where they can make an Elephant passe through a needles eye; signifying them a vain-glorious people, that would boast of doing impossibilities, and in Gemara לא פולא רעייל בקיסא דמחטא there is no Elephant that enters by the hole of a needle. This proverb Christ was willing to change from the Elephant, which was a beast, that few had seen, to a Camell, which was very ordinary in Syria, and whose bunch on his back was apt to hinder his passage through any narrow entrance. This being thus premised, as the full account of the place, it is yet farther observable that Phavorinus on the word κάμηλος, saith, that 'tis not only the name of that beast, but καὶ τὸ παχὺ σχοινίον, ἐν ᾧ δεσμοῦσι τὰς ἀγκύρας οἱ ναῦται, it signifies also a cable with which the mariners bind the

the anchors, and cites this place of the Gospel, as belonging to that signification of the word, and so Theophylact, that 'tis πᾶν χοινὸν ᾧ χρῶνται ναῦται πρὸς τὸ βίπτειν τὰς ἀγκύρας, a cable which Mariners use to cast their Anchors. Were the word to be found in that sense in other Authors, it would be an ingenious conjecture, but this word for a cable (from which the English probably comes with a light change of [m] into [b]) is by Suidas, and the Scholiast of Aristophanes written with [ι] κάμιλος, and so in Hesychius (from whom Phavorinus ordinarily borrowes) for so sure should it be read κάμιλος (which is now κάμιλος) μέρος τι τῶν τριῶν, And so this being the only place cited by Phavorinus, (and from him or with him observed by others) 'tis more possible, that it was but a conjecture of that Grammarian, and so of no more authority then such; And therefore the proverbiall speech among the Hebrewes foremention'd (the using of which was not extraordinary with Christ, see note on c. 10. h.) to him probably unknown, but to us made clear by their writings, may remove all that difficulty, the not discerning of which put him upon that bolder interpretation. Mean while the application of that proverb to the rich man's turning Christian, or entring blisse, is no farther to be extended, then to signifie the greatnesse of the distance, and so of the change or passage from one of these states to the other, the rich man's trusts, and joyes, and confidences being so contrary to the Christians, and so perfectly irreconcileable with them. This is so farre affirm'd by Plato 5. de Leg: ἀγαθὸν ὄντα διαφερόντως καὶ πάνυ τοῦ διαφερόντως ἀδύνατον, 'tis impossible to be exceeding good, and exceeding rich, that Celsus the heathen enemy of Christ and Christians saith, that this speech of Christ's was but a corrupting of that speech of Plato's, See Orig: cont: Cels: l. 6. p. 294.

d Παλιγγενεσία

The word παλιγγενεσία signifies properly a new or second state, τὸ ἐκ δευτέρας γενεθλιᾶσαι, καὶ ἀναπαλιᾶσαι, say the Grammarians. 'Tis used among the Pythagoreans for the return of the soule, εἰς γένεσιν, when that soul which was once in him, that is dead, comes back to life again in another body. In sacred Writers 'tis used agreeably for the resurrection, whether that of the future beeing of body and soule, or that which Christ is pleased to make preparative to it, the spirituall proselytisme, expresst by that phrase, Tit. 3. 5. the change and renovation of the soule and affections in this life, and, as a token and signe of that work of Christ's, it is used for baptisme, that being born of water and the Holy Ghost, Joh: 3. And so hath Phavorinus observed, παλιγγενεσία, τὸ ἅγιον βάπτισμα λέγει, 'tis set to signifie Holy baptisme, (see note on Mat. 3. a. and Joh. 3. a.) Farther yet, and by the same analogie, it may signifie that second or new state, that μέλλων αἰών, in Isaiah, that age to come, i.e. the state of the Church under Christ, or his spirituall kingdome, beginning at the resurrection of Christ, and this, either in respect of the beginning of it, Christ's resurrection which is fitly styled παλιγγενεσία the new birth of Christ, or else in regard, that all other things (i. e. the generall disposall of all things in the Church) are become new, 2 Cor. 5. 27. the Gentiles received into the Church, the Jewish Priesthood, and ceremonies abolished, &c. If this last sense be here made use of, then it will be most agreeable to the ordinary punctation of our printed Copies which set a comma after ἀκολουθήσαντές μοι, ye that have followed me, and another again after ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ, in the regeneration, severing the latter from the former, and joyning it so with [καθίσεσθε καὶ ὑμεῖς ye shall also sit &c.] that what is betwixt [ὅταν καθίσῃ &c. when the son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory] shall be as in a parenthesis to explicate, what is meant by that time, and what that [in the regeneration] signifies, viz: when Christ shall be gone to heaven, and all power in the Church solemnly enstated on him. At which time they shall be placed in authority next unto him, as the four and twenty Elders, Rev. 4. 4. are next to him that sits, in the midst, upon the throne. And thus that which is in these words here proposed to Peter and the rest of the Disciples, by way of reward for following him, will be exactly proportionable to that other promise in the same kind made to them in the Person of S. Peter, c. 16. 19. For the giving the keyes there, was the enstating on them a power in the Church, to which they were to succeed, under and after him, upon his ascension, which very thing is clearly expresst by sitting on seats, and judging the twelve tribes; The expression being taken from the φυλάρχαι, or chief of the tribes among the Jewes, who had a dignity inferior, but (in that circuit) next to the regall, to which Christ was by his ascension enthroned. What this dignity and power was to be, is discernible both by that place of the donation of the keyes, and more particularly by that, which c. 20. is added upon this very occasion; There the sons of Zebedee, or their Mother. in their behalf, having on this present promise of Christ, built an expectation of some earthly greatnesse, particularly of that (so familiar among them) of the φυλάρχαι, the chief of the tribes, thereupon they petition, that they in the dispensing of these dignities among the twelve might have the πρωτεῖα (as Judah and Joseph among the Jewes) the praeminence above the rest of the twelve, whereupon Christ disabuses her, and shewes them that they were no kind of secular advantages (or such as would be very desireable to them) which were likely to come in to them by this means (see Power of keyes c. 5. 9. 13. &c.) By which answer of Christ to the Disciples, reflecting on the dignity and office of Judge here mention'd, it is in some degree evident, (what S. Augustine affirmeth) that the judicature here spoken of, is that in the Church of Christ; Yet because it is by S. Paul also affirm'd of the Saints, that they shall judge the world, 1 Cor. 6. 2. and because in S. Luke c. 22. 29. there is joyned herewith the eating and drinking at his table in his kingdome, and because Mar. 10. 30. (which is parallel to this,) beside the reward in this time (this world) there is mention of the world to come also, and everlasting life, therefore it will be most safe to interpret this judging here, the Apostles power in the Church of Christ, yet so as may not exclude that future dignity also.

e. Ἐκάστου σταχύος λαμβάνει

There is a saying in the Alcoran very agreeable to this, Qui opes suas erogant in via Dei, similes sunt grano, quod septem spicas germinavit, They that lay out their riches in the way of God, are like a grain of corn which hath shot out seven stalks. Now supposing every of those stalks or eares to have ten corns in it, that will be the seventy fold ſpoken of, Mat. 13. But ſuppoſing fourteen or fifteen in each, (as in the moſt fruitfull places and yeares it is) then it amounts to an hundred fold, and ſo the hundred fold, being the proportion of the moſt fruitfull meſſuage, is here ſet down as the harveſt of the Chriſtian (that ſuffers or gives for Chriſt's ſake) and that in this life.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XX.

1. If you doe not perfectly underſtand what was laſt ſaid, (of the laſt ſhall be firſt &c.) then a reſemblance of it (and in that, of all God's dealing with men in the Church) you may have in a man of an eſtate, managing it himſelfe, by the manner of his dealing with his hired labourers; Firſt he went out as ſoon as it was light (anſwerable to Chriſts calling and ſending the twelve at the beginning of mens receiving the faith c. 9. 38. and c. 10. 1.) into the market place, where day-labourers were wont to ſtand, expecting imployment, to hire labourers for his vineyard.

1. FOR the kingdome of heaven is like unto a man that is an houſeholder, which went out * early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.] * at day break, ἅμα ἕωϛ.

2. And having agreed with a certain number for a ſet determinate wages of ſeven pence half-peny,

2. And when he had agreed with the labourers for a peny] a day, he ſent them into his vineyard.

3. about nine of the clocke in the morning.

3. And he went out [about the third hour,] and † ſaw others ſtanding idle in the market place. † or, found, for the Gr. & Lat. MS. reades εἶδεν.

4. I will not binde my ſelfe to give you the wages of a whole day for this part of it, but according as you ſhall, for the time you are in, behave your ſelves in the vineyard, you ſhall be rewarded.

4. And ſaid unto them, Go ye alſo into the vineyard, and [whatſoever is right I will give you.] And they went their way.

5. about twelve at noon, and about three in the afternoon.

5. Again he went out [about the ſixt, and ninth hour,] and did likewiſe.

6. And about five in the evening he went out again, and found others looking for work, willing to be employed, but not entertain'd by any.

6. And about the eleventh hour he went out and found others ſtanding idle] and ſaith unto them, Why ſtand ye here all the day idle?

See v. 4.

7. They ſay unto him, Becauſe no man hath hired us. He ſaith unto them, Goe ye alſo into the vineyard, and [whatſoever is right that ſhall ye receive.]

8. beginning firſt with thoſe, that came in lateſt, and ſo aſcending to them that came in firſt.

8. So when even was come the Lord of the vineyard ſaith unto his * Steward, call the labourers and give them their hire, [beginning from the laſt unto the firſt.] * bayliffe, or him that had the overſight, ἐπίτροπῳ

9. And when they came to be paid, that had entred laſt upon their work, he gave them a whole dayes hire, upon their good diſcharge of that one hour in the vineyard.

9. And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a peny.]

10. But when they came which were hired firſt and wrought from the morning all day, they thought that they ſhould have more, then they, which had been leſſe time in the vineyard, but they were miſtaken in their expectation, had no more then the ſumme for which they were hired.

10. But when the firſt came, they ſuppoſed that they ſhould have received more, and they likewiſe received every man a peny.]

11. And when they had received it, they murmured againſt the † good man of the houſe, † Maſter of the houſe, οἰκοδεσπότου

12. haſt given them as much wages as we, which have laboured all day long.

12. Saying, Theſe laſt have [a] wrought but one hour, and thou [haſt made them equall unto us, which have born the burthen and heat of the day.]

13. But he anſwered one of them, and ſaid, Friend, I doe thee no wrong, didſt thou not agree with me for a peny?

14. Be thou content with that which comes to thy ſhare, according to agreement, this man that came laſt to work (it being not his fault that he came not ſooner, but his not being ſooner call'd v. 7. and he having laboured honeſtly and cheerfully ever ſince he came) ſhall by me, who accept the will for the deed, be rewarded with the ſame reward that thou haſt.

14. Take that thine is, and go thy way, I will give unto this laſt even as unto thee.]

15. And ſure thou haſt no reaſon to complain. What reaſon is there that my bounty to others ſhould be matter of envy and diſcontent to thee? or that thou ſhouldſt be the judge, how I am to deal with thy brother? Many reaſons there may be which thou knoweſt not, why they that came in laſt to the vineyard, if they were not ſooner called, or not ſo powerfully as others, ſhould be rewarded as liberally, as they that have longer laboured; for a few acts of the will, if they be more intenſe and heroicall, may in equitable eſtimation countervalue the work of a far longer time (as the theeves confeſſing Chriſt, when he was on the Croſſe, when his Apoſtles had forſaken him, and ſo Paul called laſt, was in labour more abundant, and ſo ranked with the firſt, and ſo many that came in to Chriſt in the cool of the day, when perſecution was over, might yet be as cordially intenſe and affectionate in his ſervice, as they that ſuffered for him, and ſo ſome that come to repentance more aged then others, and thoſe that at Chriſts preaching came in to Chriſtianity, compared with thoſe that had lived in the Jewiſh Church all their time, ſee note b.

15. Is it not lawfull for me to doe what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evill becauſe I am [b] good?]

16. So

* the called are many, but the choiſe, or elect few

16. So the laſt ſhall be firſt, and the firſt laſt: for * many be ᶜcalled, but few choſen.]

16. And thus that which was ſaid before c.

c. 19. 30. is evident, that ſome that come after you in time, may prove as richly rewardable as you, For the known ſaying is very true, that they that have favours done them by God beyond others (as to be firſt called, was a ſpeciall favour to the diſciples, of which no reaſon can be given, but Gods will) doe not always exceed all others in labour and Chriſtian diligence (as the Apoſtle S Paul called long after, and therefore by himſelf ſtyled leſſe then the leaſt, and born out of due time, as called after Chriſt's being gone to heaven, yet did labour more abundantly then all the twelve) nay ſome of them apoſtatize and fall off from Chriſt, as Judas did, and ſo of the whole nation of the Jews 'tis clear, that they were the men to whom God was firſt made known, and to whom Chriſt and the Goſpell were firſt ſent, they were firſt call'd to the faith, and firſt beleived on him, and yet few of them in compariſon continued faithfull to him, but the Gentiles that are after called, doe eſpecially beleive, and ſtick cloſe to him, and conſequently are accepted of him.

17. And Jeſus going up to Jeruſalem took the twelve diſciples apart in the way, and ſaid unto them,

† delivered, up παραδοθησεται

18. Behold, we goe up to Jeruſalem, and the ſon of man ſhall be * betrayed [unto the chief Prieſts and to the Scribes, and they ſhall condemn him to death.]

18. to the Sanhedrim there, who though they have not power to put any man to death, yet ſhall paſſe that ſentence againſt him, that he is guilty of death.

19. And ſhall deliver him to the Gentiles to mock, and to ſcourge, and to crucifie him,] and the third day he ſhall riſe again.

19. And ſhall preſſe the Roman Judge to put him to death after their manner of puniſhing the baſeſt malefactors,

20. Then came to him the mother of Zebedees children with her ſons, worſhipping him, and deſiring a certain thing of him.]

20. Upon this mention of his reſurrection, which they preſumed to be the time of his taking all greatneſſe upon him, the mother of James and John, being put upon it by them, came with them to Jeſus, and falling down to him, made a petition (ſee Power of Keys, c. 5. §. 23.) to him.

21. And he ſaid unto her, What wilt thou? ſhe ſaith unto him [Grant that theſe my two ſons may ſit the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdome.

21. Of that dignity which thou haſt promiſed thy diſciples, c. 19. 28. proportionable to that of being heads among the tribes of the Jewes, grant that my two ſons, James and John, may have the firſt places, as Joſeph and Judah had among them.

22. But Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, Ye know not what ye aske. Are ye able to drink of the cup that I ſhall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptiſme that I am baptized with?] They ſay unto him, we are able.

22. Then Jeſus told the two diſciples, they begg'd they knew not what, all the dignity, ſaith he, that is to be had by being nearer to me then others, is that of ſuffering inwardly and outwardly, can you prepare your ſelves for that?

23. And he ſaith unto them, [Yee ſhall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptiſme that I am baptized with; But to ſit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, † but it ſhall be given to them, for whom it is prepared of my father.]

† ſave to thoſe for whom, &c. nis irtiga.

23. 'Tis true indeed, the ſufferings that befall me, ſhall befall you alſo, afflictions, and perſecutions, wherein you may rejoyce that you are made partakers with me, But for any privilege of honour or dignity above others, they to whom my Father hath deſigned, ſhall have it, and I ſhall not go about to change his deſignation, or aſſign it to any others, upon any abſolute unconditionate will or favour of mine, to gratifie you, or ſatisfie your importunity, but diſpoſe of it according to thoſe rules, and conditions and qualifications, which my father hath ſet down, and I from him have revealed to you;

24. And when the ten heard it, they were moved with indignation againſt the two brethren.

25. But Jeſus called [them unto him, and ſaid, Yee know that the Princes of the Gentiles exerciſe dominion over them, and they that are great, exerciſe authority upon them.]

25. thoſe that were diſpleaſed with the ambition of the other two, and ſaid to them, 'Tis true that the rulers, or kings of the nations are ſerved and benefited by their ſubjects, receive ſecular advantages by their preeminences (ſee note on 1 Pet. 5. 2.) and the Empeſours in like manner are over thoſe Kings.

26. But it ſhall not be ſo among you: but whoſoever will be great among you, let him be your miniſter.]

26. But Prelacy and preeminence among you muſt bring along with it offices of burthen, and humility, and not be after the manner of Gentile Princes.

27. And whoſoever will be chief among you [let him be your ſervant.]

27. muſt be the ſervant of all the reſt, (for ſo the governours of the Church are to be)

28. Even as the ſon of man came not to be miniſtred unto, but to miniſter, and to give his life a ranſome for many.]

28. Even as Chriſts kingdome here is not adminiſtred in that way, which might bring in ſplendour, or profit to him, but in a way of charity, ſerving, relieving, providing, and dying for his people, in ſtead of requiring ſuch offices from them.

29. ᵈ And as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him. d.

30. And behold two blind men ſitting by the way ſide, when they heard that Jeſus paſſed by, cryed out, ſaying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou ſon of David.

31. And the multitude rebuked them, becauſe they ſhould hold their peace; but they cryed the more, ſaying, Have mercy on us O Lord, thou ſon of David.

32. And Jeſus ſtood ſtill and called them, and ſaid, What will ye that I ſhall do unto you?

33. They

33. They ſay unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.
34. So Jeſus had compaſſion on them, and touched their eyes, and immediately their eyes received ſight, and they followed him.

Notes on Chap. XX.

a Πιεῖν

The word πιεῖν in the New Teſtament, when 'tis joyned with words that denote time, is to be rendred, to ſtay or, to ſpend. So Act. 5. 34. βραχὺ τι πιεῖσαι, to ſtay a little while. So Act. 15. 33. ποιῆσαι χρόνον, to ſtay time, and χρόνον τινα, ſome time, c. 18. 23. So Act. 18. 21. ἐορτὴν ποιῆσαι to ſtay or ſpend the feaſt, Act. 20. 3. ποιῆσαι μῆνας τρεῖς, to ſtay three months. And ſo here it notes the ſpace of their being & labouring in the vineyard; though it is not improbable that the right reading might be [ἐπόνησαν, laboured] which is very little diſtant from it.

b Ἀγαθὸς

The word ἀγαθὸς good] hath a peculiar notion in this, and ſome other places, and ſignifies bounty or liberality, as when works of mercy, are call'd ἀγαθὰ ἔργα good works, Act. 9. 36. ἀγαθοποιῶν doing good, Mat. 12. 12. καρποὶ ἀγαθοὶ good fruits, Jam. 3. 17. and ordinarily in the Church writers ἀγαθοεργίαι, working good. Thus ἀγαθὸν ἐργάζεσθαι to work good, Gal. 6. 9. and πᾶν ἀγαθὸν ἔργον, every good work, 2 Cor. 9. 8. appeare by the context to belong to works of mercy. Thus Rom. 5. 7. where the good man is ſo particularly diſtinguiſhed from the righteous man, and Tit. 2. 6. where the elder women are commanded to be ἀγαθὰς good, i. e. merciſull or kind to thoſe of their family. Thus when Heſychius mentions the word χαμὸς (which is, as hath been ſaid, the Hebrew חסיד, or Syriack חסי, with the Greek termination, which ſignifies bountifull or merciſull) he explains it by ἀγαθὸς, χρηστὸς, making theſe three words to have the ſame ſignification, and ſo doth the Targum render the Hebrew חָסִיד by טָב ſometimes, i. e. good. And ſo in this place the maſter is ſaid to be good, becauſe he gave to him, that had been in the vineyard but an hour, as much as was the wages of the whole day: This, though it were not matter of injury to them that had labour'd all day, becauſe they had the full hire, for which they had contracted, is yet matter of murmuring there, v. 11. and indeed hath ſomewhat of difficulty in it, how to reconcile it with God's rewarding every man according to his works, or actions, (which is every where ſaid of God) and his giving a more liberall harveſt to him that ſoweth plentifully, then to any that ſoweth leſſe plentifully, 2 Cor. 9. 6. The way of clearing this difficulty will be by obſerving that this parable here uſed by Chriſt was a parable uſed among the Jewes, and therefore if any part of it were here unmention'd by Chriſt, and briefly referr'd to by him, the ſure way will be to ſupply it by the Authors among them, by whom 'tis fully ſet down. Now this is done by Gemara Hieroſol: Cod: Berachoth. Of a king and labourers hired by him, and one of them paid for a little time the whole daies hire, whereupon the reſt of them grieve and murmure, and ſay, We have labour'd all day, and this man לא יגע, &c. hath not laboured above two houres of the day, and, ſay they, בטל שכרו משלם he hath received his hire in peace, i. e. the full hire of a day for that ſmall time; To theſe the Kings anſwer there is, He in that two houres hath labour'd as much as you have done all the day. Here it is evident, the account of the buſineſſe is laid upon the ſuperabundant diligence, and earneſtneſſe of thoſe that came late in, which God (though not tyed by contract, as with the other, but only by promiſe of giving them what ſhall be meet, v. 4. 7. i. e. dealing equitably with them) thinks fit to reward, through his mercifull interpretation and acceptance of it, as richly, as the whole daies labour of the others. And though the weight of the reaſon or anſwer here mention'd by Chriſt ſeem wholly to be laid upon the free will and liberality of the Lord, v. 15. and not upon their ſuperabundant diligence, for the time, that they were in the vineyard, yet is this other reaſon to be ſuppoſed here alſo, being not by this excluded, any more then God's rewarding according to works is excluded by his being merciſull (when indeed David makes a cloſe connexion between them, * Thou Lord art merciſull, for thou rewardeſt every man according to his works) and 'tis poſſible it might alſo be mention'd by Chriſt, though, for brevity, it be not here ſet down. And indeed this form of anſwer (here uſed by Chriſt, and ſet down) by way of ἔνστασις, to repell and poze the diſputer (Is it not lawfull &c. Is thy eye evil &c.) is very fit to have been proœmiall to this other of the equitableneſſe of the payment, in like manner, as Rom. 9. 20, 21. is preparatory to the fuller and more ſatisfactory anſwer v. 22. However this is clear, that, in Chriſts application of the parable to his deſigned buſineſſe, this is more then intimated, For the whole parable being briefly applied in theſe words, ὥστε &c. So the firſt ſhall be the laſt, and the laſt the firſt; the reaſon is diſtinctly annex'd, For, or, becauſe many are the called, but few the choſen, Many of the called (i. e. thoſe that were hired, and admitted into the vineyard) are not the choſen, i. e. are not thought fit to be rewarded at all by Chriſt, which à majori concludes, that ſome that came in later, deſerved as well as they that were firſt call'd in in the morning, which cannot be, but (as ſaith S Paul of himſelf) by their labouring more abundantly for the time, then they had done which were longer there.

* Pſ. 62. 12.

What the word [κλητὸς] ſignifies here, and how it differs from [ἐκλεκτὸς] is worth examining at large now once for all, which therefore I ſhall ſet about; The word κλῆσις] and κλητὸς] in the New Teſtament, are proportionable one to the other, and will mutually help to the underſtanding one the other.

c. Κλητὸς

If we look on them in the Apocrypha, as we meet with them both in one place of the 3d book of the Maccabees, it will prove a uſefull riſe; There κλητοὶ ſignifies gueſts invited to a feaſt, ἀρίστου καὶ κλήσεως ἰδίων (as in humane Authors, ὅταν τῶν κληθέντων ἡ λαμπρὸς Cunctorum Heraclitus ubi dixit: λβ'. to which is oppoſed ἄκλητοι in Homer, and invocati in Plautus) and κλῆσις the office of inviting, and entertaining them; and Judith 12. 11. a banquet or invitation. So ὁ ἐπὶ τῆς κλήσεως τεταγμένος, is he that was to invite and entertain (κλήτωρ invitator in the Gloſſe and διακλήτωρ, ſee note d.) In the Greek tranſlation of the Canonicall nicall books of the Old Teſtament the word hath another notion; as when thoſe that were pitch't on as ſpeciall men by Adonijah to be of his party, are call'd οἱ καλοὶ τῷ Ἀδωνίᾳ, 1 Kin. 1. 49. and v. 41. the called of Adonijah, not becauſe they had been invited by him to a feaſt, but ſuch as were call'd by his name, i. e. ſuch as adhered to him. For ſo they that Abſalom had pick't out in the ſame manner to be his conſidents are call'd καλοὶ, two hundred call'd men, 2 Sam. 15. 11. So that hitherto καλοὶ ſignifies thoſe that are pitch't on either to receive ſpeciall favours, or over and above to be employed in ſpeciall truſts, and the latter the ſpeciall meaning of the word. Beſides this notation of the Greek from the Hebrew for calling, there is another for celebrare to celebrate, and ſo the words מִקְרָא and מִקְרָא ſignifie celebrem, as well as vocatū, and is rendred ἐπίκλητοι illuſtrious, famous, ſometimes, and κλητὴ called when it ſignifies ἐπίκλητος famous. Thus in the book of Exodus (c. 12. 16.) and in Levit. often, we find this phraſe κλητὴ ἁγία, call'd holy, where the Hebrew read מִקְרָא קֹדֶשׁ, where yet we have no more reaſon to reprehend the Greek for either ſolœciſme, or mistranſlation, then in the [ὅσια τὰ πιστὰ] for [ſure mercies] which yet is tranſcribed by S. Luke, who was skilfull enough in that language, Act. 13. 34. The Greek, I conceive, is to have a ſenſe aſſigned fit and proper for both the words, and intention of the originall, and it will be this, that ſuch a day, the ſeventh or the like, ſhall be [the called, or the ſolemn holy] holy ſignifying one ſet apart to a ſeparate uſe, the ſervice and worſhip of God, and κλητὴ the ſolemn or called, a ſpeciall celebrity, a known day, favoured by God with that privilege above others, and both together [a ſolemn holy, or a holy ſolemnity] not, I conceive, as our ordinary Engliſh reads (and the ſenſe, though not the words, beares well enough) an holy convocation, as if the מִקְרָא referred peculiarly to the calling or aſſembling the people together, but as it notes a ſpeciall honouring and picking out of a day, and preferring it before others, A ſolemn, ſeparate, feſtivall day. So ſaith Phavorinus καλὴ ἡ σχολὴ (not, as the Copie hath it, καλὴ) ἐξοχωτάτη, ὅτι τὰ ἄλλα ἡ καλὴ ἐξ ἁγία ἡμέρα, it ſignifieth the beſt and principall day, and is the ſame that an holy day. And juſt agreeable to this notion of καλὸς for called, or renown'd, or pickt out (ſet apart in ſome ſpecall degree, allow'd ſome privilege, which others were not vouchſafed,) is the notation of ἐπίκλητος in the Septuagint, either as applied to a day, Numb. 28. 18. ἐπίκλητος ἁγία, juſt as before καλὴ ἁγία, or as to perſons Numb. 1. 16. οἱ ἐπίκλητοι τῆς Συναγωγῆς, which we render the renowned of the congregation (as in Heſyc. καλοὶ ὁ Ἱερεῖς) where yet the Hebrew hath (from the ſame root, that before) קְרִיאֵי the call'd, and is Num. 26. 9. rendred οἱ καλοὶ βουλῆς, Senators of the councell, or Patres conſcripti, as it were.

Thus farre will the Old Teſtament lead us into the ſenſe of this word, and by the concent which is between the Tranſlators of that, and the Writers of the New, κλῆσις actively taken (as it muſt be, when 'tis applied to God) ſignifies that peculiarity of favour now vouchſafed (unto both Jewes and Gentiles, but firſt to the Jewes, to whom Chriſt firſt came, and the Goſpel was firſt preached) which had not before been allow'd to any, a ſtate of favour vouchſafed by Gods ſpeciall providence, and grace, particularly that of having the way to heaven layd open to them, in the preaching of the Goſpel. So Rom. 9. 11. God's calling is ſet to ſignifie his peculiar favour contrary to ἐξ ἔργων, doing any thing on intuition of merit; and Rom. 11. 29. it ſignifies God's favour in allowing the means of ſalvation, and place of repentance unto the Jewes, and is joyned with the χαρίσματα, gifts or graces of God, particularly that of ſpeciall promiſe to them (i. e. to their fathers) that they ſhould not utterly be deſtroyed, of which two favours of God to that people for their fathers ſakes (1. that they ſhould not utterly be deſtroyed, 2. that the way to heaven, the knowledge of Chriſt ſhould not utterly be obſtructed to them, but that there ſhould ſtill be a poſſibility of returning) it is there affirmed that they are ἀμεταμέλητα, abſolutely immutable and irreverſible, So 1 Cor. 1. 26. κλῆσις ſignifies that invitation unto Chriſt, which, as it followes there, brought in thoſe eſpecially, which were of the pooreſt ſpirits, not that others were not call'd, but that they did not ordinarily accept of the invitation. So Epheſ. 1. 18. and 4. 4. the ἐλπὶς τῆς κλήσεως hope of his calling] is that hope that reſults from the mercy of God in revealing his Son to them, or poſſibly in a paſſive ſenſe, the hope that was conſequent to their belonging or retaining unto Chriſt, being Chriſtians; and ſo when c. 4. 1. they are exhorted to walk worthy of that calling, that ſervice, into which they were entred. So Phil. 3. 14. βραβεῖον τῆς ἄνω κλήσεως τοῦ Θεοῦ, the reward or crown of the ſupernall calling of God, ſuppoſes the κλῆσις or calling to be ſome ſervice of ours, to which the reward given by God the Judge, is ſtyled βραβεῖον τῆς κλήσεως, the reward of the calling. So 2 Theſſ. 1. 11. κλῆσις is that great honour of retaining to Chriſt, being his followers; and that 'tis there looked on, as a ſpeciall dignity, appears by the ἀξιώσῃ, which ought to be rendred, not [vouchſafing] or counting worthy] but [making worthy] for that is pertinent to dignities and privileges already enjoyed by any, So 2 Tim. 1. 9. the holy calling] is that honourable condition of being Chriſtians, through the free mercy of God in revealing his Son to us, not upon the intuition of any merit of ours, but by his owne free undeſerved grace, call'd his purpoſe and grace in the middle of the verſe. So Heb. 3. 1. κλῆσις ἐπουρανία, the heavenly calling] is the retaining to Chriſt, which is mention'd as a high mercy of which they were μέτοχοι partakers, and laſtly 2 Pet. 1. 10. where we are exhorted to make our calling and election firme, the calling is again thoſe mercies of Gods in making us Chriſtians, and the ἐκλογὴ election, either again the ſame (as καλοὶ and ἐκλεκτοὶ the called and the elect are the ſame, Rev. 17. 14. both expounded by πιστοὶ beleivers or faithfull which follow) becauſe that of having Chriſt revealed to them, this favour vouchſafed to them, was an act of Gods free choice, without any kind of merit on mans part, (and ſo the word appears to be taken, Epheſ. 1. by comparing v. 4. with v. 9.) or elſe the purpoſe and mercy of Gods of rewarding beleivers eternally, And theſe are made firm, when that ſanctifying uſe is made of them, when men live proportionably to their talent given, God threatning otherwiſe to remove, and withdraw thoſe mercies.

By

By proportion with this ſignification of the ſubſtantive [κλῆσις calling] we muſt render κλητὸς, one that hath received this mercy, and honour of reteining to Chriſt in any higher, or lower quality. Thus κλητὸς ἀπόστολος Ro. 1. 1. and 1 Cor. 1. 1. one that hath received this ſpeciall ſingular honour and mercy of Chriſt to be an Apoſtle, call'd from heaven to that office, and v. 6. κλητοὶ Ἰησοῦ, Chriſtians, though not Apoſtles, and v. 7. and 1 Cor. 1. 2. κλητοῖς ἁγίοις though not dignified ſo farre as to be his Apoſtles, yet to be his ſervants or Chriſtians, and c. 8. 28. κατὰ πρόθεσιν κλητοῖς, either (in proportion to 2 Tim. 1. 9.) they that are thus loved and favoured by God out of his ſpeciall grace or (according to S. Cyrill of Jeruſalem his notion of προθέσις in his preface to his Catechiſmes) they that are come in to the faith of Chriſt, not only bodily as Simon Magus, but in ſincere purpoſe and reſolution of minde, (ſee note on Ro. 8. 28.) ſo 1 Cor. 1. 24. οἱ κλητοὶ the called] being oppoſed to infidel Jews, and Greeks, are ſervants, followers of Chriſt, ſo Jude 1. the word is uſed abſolutely and ſubſtantively τοῖς κλητοῖς] to them that are called, i. e. to the Saints or Chriſtians, ſanctified by God the Father, and kept by Jeſus Chriſt. Having gone thus farre, there are only three places behind, Two are thoſe, in which κλητὸς is ſet in oppoſition to ἔκλεκτος, here, and c. 22. 14. In this place 'tis clear that κλητὸς belongs to the notion of reteining unto Chriſt, entring into his ſervice in the vineyard, and ἐκλεκτὸς to ſome ſpeciall excellence or diligence there, to which reward is conſequent. Nay κλητὸς may referre to the favour of being call'd before others, preferred before others in that reſpect, when others lye idle a great while, becauſe they are not call'd, v. 7. But ἔκλεκτοι ſuch, as to whom God hath awarded the hire or reward, which we ſee was by God (who rewards every man according to his actions, or workes) awarded as plentifully to them that came in late to the vineyard, as to thoſe that came in earlyeſt, and that ſignifies that they coming in late, laboured more for the time, then the other did, nay very many of thoſe that were firſt called, viz. the Jews, came not in at all, and ſo were not all capable of that reward; And in both reſpects, 1. of them that being call'd firſt, were yet exceeded in diligence, and ſo overcome by thoſe that came later, and 2. of thoſe, that forſook their own mercy, it is there ſaid, that many are the called, but the choſen few, and the laſt ſhall be firſt, and the firſt laſt, thoſe that had been vouchſafed earlyer mercies, greater graces for the obtaining ſalvation, call'd before others to the Goſpell, nay perhaps allowed higher revelations here, are not yet found capable of higher rewards, greater degrees of glory hereafter. And the reaſon is, becauſe (though not this of Gods vocation, which is free, yet) that other mercy, of eternall reward, is diſpenſed ſecundum opera, according to proportion to that uſe that is made of that grace of vocation, i. e. to every man according to his workes. So in the ſecond place, Mat. 22. 14. the called are thoſe, to whom the firſt graces are given of inviting, and calling to Chriſt, v. 3. 4. and, yet farther, of bringing in to that ſpirituall feaſt, v. 10. but then thoſe that were invited, and did not at all come in, and ſo were not worthy, v. 8. i. e. capable of the farther grace of reward, or reception there, and he that coming in, came without the wedding garment, that due reformation and change of minde, required of him in obedience to that call, were not allowed thoſe higher vouchſafements, but even thoſe which they had, taken from them, and they puniſhed for the abuſe of them, caſt into utter darkneſſe, where there is crying out, &c. The laſt place, Apoc. 17. 14. is very remarkable, where κλητοὶ, ἔκλεκτοι, πιστοὶ, called, choſen, faithfull, are ſet down either as all one, or elſe as divers degrees of Chriſtians, and πιστοὶ the laſt or higheſt. 1. κλητοὶ reteiners to Chriſt, or to the faith of Chriſt, then ἔκλεκτοι, thoſe that had lived like ſuch, that had not in vain received the Goſpell, 3. πιστοὶ the faithfull ſervants that continued faithfull unto death, performed all the truſts, that God had repoſed in them.

By what hath been thus ſhortly ſaid, may be diſcerned what probably is the meaning of this word in the ſeverall places in the New Teſtament, which here once for all was not amiſſe to have mentioned. Of the word ἔκλεκτος ſee note on 1 Pet. 2. b.

In this place after v. 28. there is a large addition d. in the ancient Greek and Latine MS. thus, Τμεῖς δὲ ζητεῖτε ἐκ μικροῦ ἀυξῆσαι, καὶ ἐκ μείζονος ἐλαττονῆναι (either miſwritten for ἔλαττον εἶναι, or ἐλαττονοῦσθαι) εἰσερχόμενοι δὲ καὶ παρακληθέντες δειπνῆσαι, μὴ ἀνακλίνεσθε (for ἀνακλίνεσθαι) εἰς τοὺς ἐξέχοντας τόπους, μήποτε ἐνδοξότερός σου ἐπέλθῃ, καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ δειπνοκλήτωρ εἴπῃ σοι, Ἔτι κάτω χωρεῖ, καὶ καταισχυνθήσῃ, ἐὰν δὲ ἀναπέσῃς εἰς τὸν ἔσχατον τόπον, καὶ ἐπέλθῃ σου ἔλαττον, ἐρεῖ σοι ὁ δειπνοκλήτωρ, συνάγε ἄνω, καὶ ἔσται σοι τοῦτο χρήσιμον. But do yee ſeek to encreaſe from a little, and from the more to leſſen. But when yee enter, and are invited to ſupper, lye not down in the moſt eminent places, leſt a more honourable then thou come in, and he that made the invitation come & ſay unto thee, Get thee lower, and thou be put to ſhame. But if thou lye along in the inferior place, and one inferior then thou come, then he that made the invitation ſhall ſay to thee, Come up higher, and this ſhal be for thy advantage. That ſome ſuch thing was ſpoken by Chriſt upon ſome occaſion, appears by Lu. 14. 8. And of this there is no other mention in this Goſpel, unleſſe it be here.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XXI.

1. AND when they drew nigh unto Jeruſalem, and were come to Bethphage unto the mount of olives, then ſent Jeſus two diſciples,

2. Saying unto them, Goe into the village over againſt you, and ſtraightway yee ſhall finde an aſſe tyed, and a colt with her, looſe [them] and bring them unto me.

2. the foale of the aſſe, Mar. 11. 2. and Lu. 19. 30. 1. (ſee c. 26. 8. and c. 27. 44.)

3. And

3. And if any man ſay ought unto you, yee ſhall ſay, The Lord hath need of them, and ſtraightway he will ſend them.

4. All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet, ſaying,

5. Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, Thy King cometh unto thee, meek, ſitting upon an aſſe, and a colt the foale of an aſſe.]

4, 5. Thus Chriſt roade not for any wearineſſe (having gon formerly through all Paleſtine on foot, and this being now a ſmall journey from mount Olivet to Jeruſalem) but thereby (by uſing this that belonged to Judges, Speake you that ride on white aſſes) to ſignifie his approbation of thoſe due acclamations which he knew would that day be given him, v. 8. as to the Meſſias, that ſo the prophecy Iſa. 62. 11. and Zach. 9. 9. might be accompliſh't, wherein we read, That the King of the Jews, the Meſſias, ſhould come riding upon an aſſes foale, which though it were a meek, was yet alſo a royall geſture or ceremony.

6. And the Diſciples went, and did as Jeſus commanded them.

7. And brought the Aſſe and the colt, and put on them their cloathes, and they [ſet him thereon.]

7. ſet him upon the foale, ſee v. 2.

8. And a very great multitude [ſpread their garments in the way, others cut down branches from the trees, and ſtrewed them in the way.

9. And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cryed, ſaying, [a Hoſanna to the ſon of David, * Bleſſed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hoſanna in the higheſt.]

8, 9. while they fitted the beaſt for him, uſed this ceremony of laying garments ſpread in his way, a rite uſuall among them at the creation of a King (2 King. 9. 13.) others uſed the ceremonies uſed at the feaſt of tabernacles, cutting, and carrying of boughs, and crying in Hebrew, Save now, which being here done to Chriſt under the title of the ſon of David, was their proclaiming, or acknowledging him to be the Meſſias, which was to come (ſee Mar. 11. 2.) and this they did in more words, ſaying, Bleſſed in the name of the Lord, be he that is thus peculiarly ſent by God to bring reconciliation or peace, (Lu. 19. 38.) to us ſinfull men, Glory be to thee in the higheſt heaven, for thou art the eternall God, that dwelleſt there.

* Bleſſed in the name of the Lord be he that cometh, ευλογημενος ὁ ερχομενος εν ονοματι κυριου

10. And when he was come into Jeruſalem, all the city was moved, ſaying, Who is this?

11. And the multitude ſaid, This is Jeſus the Prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

12. And Jeſus went into the Temple of God, and caſt out all them that ſold and bought in the Temple, and overthrew the [b tables of [the † money-changers] and the * ſeates of them that ſold Doves.

12. thoſe which returned money by exchange.

13. And ſaid unto them, It is written, My houſe [ſhall be called the houſe of prayer, but ye have made it a den of [c theeves.]

13. The Temple ſhall be ſet apart peculiarly to Gods ſervice or imployed onely as a place of prayer, but your practiſe hath made it farre otherwiſe, you have made it a kinde of market place, a receptacle of cunning merchants that make gaine and advantage of their brethren, by attending the feſtivals of the temple, and ſelling to them that bring not ſacrifices with them.

14. And the blind and the lame came to him in the Temple, and he healed them.

15. And when the chief Prieſts and Scribes ſaw the wonderfull things that he did, and the children, crying in the Temple, and ſaying, Hoſanna to the ſon of David, they were ſore diſpleaſed.]

15. And when they of the Jewiſh Sanhedrim, ſaw his miraculous cures v. 14. and the childrens acclamations as to a King, or Meſſias, they were much troubled at it.

16. And ſaid unto him, Heareſt thou what theſe ſay? And Jeſus ſaith unto them, Yea, [have yee never read, Out of the mouth of babes and ſucklings haſt thou [d perfected praiſe?]

16. Doe you not remember that prediction, Pſal. 8. 2. that, Out of the mouth of babes &c. i. e. from the teſtimony of ſuch weake and feeble creatures, Chriſts divinity and power ſhould be proclaimed, and great matters ſhould come from ſuch weake and mean beginnings?

17. And he left them, and went out of the City into Bethany, and he lodged there.

18. Now in the morning as he returned into the city, he hungred.

19. And when he ſaw a fig tree † in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and ſaid unto it, Let no more fruit grow on thee henceforward forever. And preſently the fig tree withered away.

See Mar. 11. 13.

† at ſome diſtance from the way, ἀπο τῆς ὁδου, ſee note on Mar. 2. 6.

20. And when the diſciples ſaw it, they marvelled, ſaying, * How ſoon is the fig tree withered away?]

20. And the next morning Mar. 11. 20, paſſing by, the diſciples ſaw it, and wondred, ſaying, How wonderfull is it, that the fig-tree upon thoſe words of Chriſt ſhould be withered and dead all of it thus inſtantly?

* how is the fig tree withered preſently? πως παραχρημα ἐξηρανθη;

21. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, Verily I ſay unto you, If ye have faith and doubt not, ye ſhall not only doe this which is done to the fig tree, but alſo if ye ſhall ſay unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou caſt into the ſea, it ſhall be done.

See Mat. 17. 20.

22. And all things whatſoever ye ſhall ask in prayer beleiving, ye ſhall receive.]

22. But this you muſt ſet upon not in any confidence of your ſelves, but in all humility of prayer to God, and whatſoever ye ſhall thus pray for, beleiving that I according to my promiſe will grant it to you, ye ſhall certainly receive from me, ſee Mar. 11. 24.

23. And when he was come into the Temple, the chiefe prieſts and the elders of the people came unto him, as he was teaching, and ſaid, [By what authority doſt thou theſe things? and who gave thee this authority?]

23. Thou haſt no authority from the Sanhedrim to doe what thou doeſt, from whence then haſt thou it? or why doſt thou teach, and do what thou doſt without it?

24. And

24. To this queſtion Jeſus thought fit to give anſwer by making this other queſtion, which would retort, and ſtop their mouths, as it appears it did v. 27.

24. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, I alſo will ask you one thing, which if you tell me, I in likewiſe will tell you by what authority I doe theſe things.]

25. Had John the Baptiſt commiſſion from God to doe what he did, or came he only of himſelf?

c.

25. The baptiſme of John whence was it? from [c] heaven, or of men?] And they reaſoned with themſelves, ſaying, If we ſhall ſay, From heaven, he will ſay unto us, Why did ye not then beleive him?

26. we ſhall be in danger to be ſtoned by the multitude, Lu. 20. 6.

26. But if we ſhall ſay, Of men, [we fear the people,] for all hold John as a prophet.

27. Then ſure it is not needfull for me to give you account of my commiſſion, or authority, when 'tis granted by you, that a man may lawfully preach, and baptize, and entertain diſciples, as John did, without the approbation of the Sanhedrim.

27. And they anſwered Jeſus, and ſaid, We cannot tell. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, [Neither tell I you by what authority I doe theſe things.]

28. But is not this a ſtrange thing that you that undertake and pretend ſo much to be Gods knowing and obedient ſervants, ſhould yet ſtand out the moſt obſtinately of all others againſt his commands and meſſengers ſent from him, when the worſt and meaneſt of men the Publicans and the multitude forſake their former waies, repent and beleive the Goſpel? I well tell you a ſtory, or parable, There was a man that

28. But what think you? A certain man] had two ſons, and he came to the firſt and ſaid, Son, goe and work to day in my vineyard.

29. He anſwered and ſaid, I will not, but afterward he repented and went.

30. And he came to the * ſecond, and ſaid likewiſe, and he anſwered and ſaid, I goe Sir, and went not.

* or, other, for the Gr: and Lat: and moſt of the MS. read πρῶτῳ not δευτέρῳ

31. receive the Goſpel, when ye reject it.

31. Whether of them twain did the will of his father? They ſay unto him, The firſt. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Verily I ſay unto you, that the Publicans and harlots [go into the kingdome of God before you.]

32. ſhewing you a way (preaching repentance as the only way) to reſcue you and your whole nation from deſtruction, and ye deſpiſed his menaces, Nay when even the Publicans, and viciouſeſt people were wrought on by him, yet did not this work upon you neither.

32. For John came unto you [in the way of righteouſneſſe, and ye beleived him not: but the Publicans and the harlots beleived him. And ye, when ye had ſeen it, repented not afterward that ye might beleive it.]

33. a hollow trough, wherein they tread grapes; and built a fair lodge for the vine-dreſſer to dwell in, and having furniſht it ſo compleatly that no man could require any more to be done to make it tenantable, he let it out to thoſe that deal in that commodity, who for the fruit of it were to pay him a ſet price, upon agreement, Cant. 8. 11. and having ſo done, himſelf took a journey a great way off.

33. Hear another parable, There was a certain houſholder, which planted a vineyard, and * hedged it round about, and digged [a wine-preſſe in it, and built a tower and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a farre countrey.]

* ſet a mound about it and hewed a wine-preſſe, φραγμὸν ἐθηκε περιέθηκε καὶ ὤρυξε ληνὸν

34. And when the harveſt-time came, when they were to receive the fruit and pay the rent,

34. And when the time of the fruit drew near] he ſent his ſervants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

35. at another they threw ſtones, though they kill'd him not.

35. And the husbandmen took his ſervants, and beat one, and killed another, and [ſtoned another.]

36. a greater number of ſervants, then thoſe which he had ſent at the firſt,

36. Again he ſent [other ſervants more then the firſt,] and they did unto them likewiſe.

37. But laſt of all he ſent unto them his ſon, ſaying, They will reverence my ſonne.

38. and then we may take poſſeſſion of his inheritance, as our owne.

38. But when the husbandmen ſaw the ſon, they ſaid among themſelves, This is the heir, come let us kill him, [and let us ſeiſe on his inheritance.]

39. And they caught him, and caſt him out of the vineyard, and ſlew him.

40. When the Lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he doe unto thoſe husbandmen?

41. And the Phariſees expreſt a great indignation againſt theſe falſe and bloody ſervants, affirming them worthy of utter deſtruction, that the Lord might provide him better Officers, which ſhould pay him his rent duly; though when Jeſus upon this anſwer of theirs approved the reaſonableneſſe of it, and affirm'd it ſhould thus befall them indeed, Lu. 20. 16. (by which they began to diſcern, that he ſpake the parable againſt them,) they with indignation deprecate the ſentence, Lu. 20. 19.

41. They ſay unto him, He will miſerably deſtroy thoſe wicked men, and will let out his vineyard to other husbandmen, which ſhall render him the fruits in their ſeaſons.]

42. Did you never obſerve a notable paſſage in the Pſalmiſt, f.

42. Jeſus ſaith unto them, [Did you never read in the ſcriptures, The ſtone which the builders rejected, the ſame is become the head of the corner, [f] this is the Lords doing, and it is marvailous in our eyes?]

Pſal. 118. 22. referring proverbially to ſome famous building, the Temple or the like, (wherein one ſtone which the builders had layd aſide, as good for nothing, proved at length to be very fit for the prime place in the building, the utmoſt corner ſtone) and by that Pſalmiſt applied to David (whom the princes with Saul and the chief of Iſrael refuſed, and perſecuted, but after he became king) and which yet farther prophetically belongs to Chriſt (who being refuſed and rejected a long time by the chief prieſts, and elders, and the Sanhedrim of the Jews, and by them put to death, was to riſe again, and become a glorious head of his Church?)

43. Therefore

43. Therefore I ſay unto you, [The kingdome of God ſhall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.] 43. The Goſpel and the priviledge of being the only Church and people of God, ſhall be taken from you, and given to ſuch as ſhall practiſe thoſe things which the Goſpel requires.

*This whole verſe is left out in the Gr: & Lat: Ms. †bruiſed or ſhrewdly ſhaken, συνθλασθήσεται [dash him to pieces.

44. *And whoſoever ſhall fall on this ſtone ſhall be †broken, but on whomſoever it ſhall fall, it ſhall ‖ grinde him to powder.] 44. He that, on occaſion of Chriſt, ſhall by any thing that befalls him, be diſcouraged, or fall into unbeleif, this ſhall be a great wounding of his ſoul, a great ſin thus to fall off in time of tribulation; but he that not out of weakneſs, but of contumacy, ſhall reſiſt and provoke his wrath, and judgments, and ſo bring this ſtone, this vengeance of Chriſt down upon him, it ſhall come down moſt heavily, and daſh him into a thouſand pieces. g.

45. And when the chief prieſts and Phariſees had heard his parables, they perceived that he ſpake of them,

46. But when they ſought to lay hands on him, [they feared the multitude, becauſe they took him for a prophet.] 46. they durſt not, knowing that the people generally took him for a Prophet, i. e. one that had liberty of ſpeech, and was not to be reſtrained, or apprehended, nor diſparaged by them, v. 26.

Notes on Chap. XXI.

a. Ὡσαννὰ

The word Hoſannah is contracted of הושיעה נא, σῶσον δή, Save I beſeech thee, A form of acclamation, which the Jewes were wont to uſe in their Feaſt of Tabernacles, in which alſo they uſed to carry boughs in their hands, See Nehem. 8. 15. 1 Mac. 13. 5. 2 Mac. 10. 7. and alſo to ſing Pſalms, as it is in the Maccabees; i.e. to crie Hoſanna. Both theſe of boughs and hymnes were uſuall among the Grecians in any time of ſacred feſtivity, See Heſychius on the word Ἀσσαχθᾶ, which, ſaith he, is ὁ ἢ δάφνης κλάδος, ὃν κρατοῦντες ὕμνουν τοὺς θεούς, a bough of Bayrel (as here of Palme) which they held in their hands when they praiſed their Gods. From theſe two put together it is, that, as Elias Levita tells us in his Thisbi, thoſe boughs there uſed, were called Hoſanna's, and to bind up Hoſanna's, is, properly, to bind up bundles of willow-boughs, which, ſaith he, where they were to be had, were moſt uſed by them, though thoſe that are preſcribed in Nehemiah, are Olive, and Pine, and Myrtle. This ceremony thus largely uſed to Chriſt. with all the ſolemnities of ſtrewing garments, and boughs in the way, as at the inauguration of a King, as in David's Coronation, Pſalm. 118. 25. and Pſal. 20. 9. and as at the Feaſt of Tabernacles (by which was noted, or prefigur'd God's pitching his tabernacle in our fleſh his [ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν] dwelling or pitching his tent or tabernacle among us, Joh. 1. 14. his dwelling in the tents of Sem, Gen. 9. 17.) is a token of the peoples acknowledging him to be the Meſſias, the Shiloh, whom they expected, who is therefore expreſt by the ὁ ἐρχόμενος he that cometh, i.e. he that was thus ſolemnly ſent, and anointed by God (ſee Mat. 11. a.) And the addition in the next words of Hoſanna ἐν ὑψίστοις in the higheſt, will be beſt underſtood by comparing it 1. with Pſal. 148. 1. (where במרום in the higheſt] ſignifies poetically in the heavens, immediately precedent) and then with Lu. 19. 38. where it is [peace in heaven, and glory in the higheſt] i.e. glory and praiſe to him in heaven, who had uſed this means of reconciling heaven with us, i.e. God in heaven to us ſinners upon earth.

b. Τραπέζα

The word τραπέζα table] here, is that, from which thoſe that dealt in returning money yet, or in bills of exchange, and made advantage and gain by ſo doing, are call'd τραπεζῖαι, Mat 25. 27. and ordinarily among Authors. Thus among the Jewes in the Gemara, Sanhedrim, c. 7. §. 11. חבירי מעיתים לי ואין לי שלחני להרצותן, I have a great deale of money, but there is no Trapezita (or Money-Merchant) with whom I may place it. Here the Trapezite ſeems to ſignifie that ſort of men, who (as Merchants among us) return money for others to ſome other place, or help them to doe it, and by ſo doing receive ſome themſelves, and help them to advantage ſometimes. Hence it was that the Iſraelites being by the law to come up to Jeruſalem (how farre ſo ever they dwelt from it) and there to ſacrifice, and to offer the half ſhekel for the uſe of the Temple, Exod. 30. 13. (which by the length of their journey ſometimes they were diſabled to doe) theſe trapezita ſet up their tables in the very Temple, that ſo they might traffick with all that had uſe of them, in like manner as others brought oxen, and ſheep, and doves, to ſell there to them, which had not brought their ſacrifices with them. Theſe traders are here call'd κολλυβισταὶ, i. e. men that dealt in money (for, as the Grammarians tell us, κόλλυβος (for which the printed Copie of Thomas Magiſter reads κόλυμβος) εἶδος νομίσματος, ᾧ ὁ ἐν τῷ χάλκῳ χαραττόμενος βοῦς, it is a piece of money with the image of an oxe upon it) and ſo alſo κερματισταὶ, Joh. 2. 14. and that is the very ſame, κέρμα being ordinarily taken for χρῆμα, i. e. money indifferently, and it is a miſtake of thoſe, which from the nature of this word, think it fit to tranſlate it money-changers in this and that other place, (* meaning thereby thoſe that change one piece of money into another, other coynes greater or ſmaller into that of a ſhekel) whereas it is dealing in money by way of return, or exchange. From whence it is that Heſychius puts theſe foure words in the ſame ſenſe, one to explain the other, τραπεζίτης, κολλυβιστὴς, κερματιστὴς (in like manner as Thomas Magiſter renders ἀργυραμοιβός by κολυμβιστὴς (for κολλυβιστὴς) and explains it by καπηλαικὸς) and δανιστὴς, the three former uſed in the Goſpel, and all to be interpreted by the fourth, an Uſurer, i.e. one that made gain by loan of money, though this were not the uſury directly forbidden by their law, but rather a way of merchandize, giving then ſo much money here, for ſo much more in another place; where the thing that is paid for, is not ſo much the uſe of the money, as the conveying it from one place to another, or the ſaving others that trouble of conveyance. 'Tis true, κερματίζω coming from κείρω to cut or ſhave, ſignifies to divide any thing into ſmall pieces, as in Plato, man's nature, ſaith he, ſeems to me εἰς σμικρότερα κεκερματίσθαι, to have been cut into very little pieces, and Heſychius κέρμα (or, as it ſhould be written, κορμαλίζει) εἰς λεπτὰ διαιρεῖ, to divide into thin parts, but that doth not ſignifie

* Quibus ſi. cluis non eſſet ex lege Dei, Ex. 30. 13. in promptu ibi inveniens apud nummularios ſeu permutatores alterius monetæ, &c. Druſius præit.

the changing Gold into Silver, or a ſhilling into three groates, &c. but to divide the wedge of Gold or ſilver into little parts, and then ſtampe them and make coine of them, and ſuch are generally called (be they bigger or leſſer pieces) χέρματα (as 'tis plaine Joh. 2. 15.) i. e, money, and by analogy κερμαλισταὶ nummularii, they that deal in money for advantage, returning it by way of exchange, In the ſenſe, in which among authors χρυσώνυχοι and ἀργυρώνυχοι are uſed, as in Themiſtocles Epiſtles where Philoſtephanus the Corinthian χρυσώνυχος, is the ſame of whom before he had ſaid, τῇ τῶ ϛαπζεπώνυν ἐργασία χρώμενον, he that made gain by returning of money. All theſe traders and traffickers that had ſet up in the Temple, Chriſt removes from thence, and, as S. Marke addes, c. 11. 16. would not permit that any ſhould bring σκεῦος, (i. e. not only veſſell but any other utenſil Act. 10. 11.) any kinde of commodity, through the Temple, which was obſerved alſo among the Jews, For ſo ſaith Maimonides in Halacha Beth Habbechira. c. 7. no man may come into the mount of the Temple with a ſtaffe, or ſhoes, or with a wallet, or with money folded up in a napkin, (all which are contained in the Greek word σκεῦος.) And that which is obſerved in this kinde of ſome Temples by Plutarch, ſeems very probably to be meant by him of this Temple of Jeruſalem, as Petr. Cunæus hath obſerved.

Σκεῦος

c. By λῃσταὶ theeves] here is meant thoſe that by merchandize make gain of others, not thoſe that are robbers indeed, ſo Joh. 2. 16. 'tis οἶκος ἐμπορίου, a houſe of merchandize. Of this ſee our learned Countreyman M^r. Fuller Miſcell. l. 4. p. 6. p. 499.

d. The Greek κατηρτίσω αἶνον] in this place, is the Septuagints tranſlation of יִסַּרְתָּ thou haſt founded or ordained ſtrength, There is little doubt but our Saviour repeated this place, as it was in the Hebrew of the Pſalme, or in the Syriack dialect (as it appears he did in the repeating of the beginning of Pſal. 22. by the Syriack Sabacthani) and not in the Greek, and therefore the Greek made uſe of by the Evangeliſt, or his interpreter, muſt ſtill continue to have a ſenſe, that the Hebrew words will bear, and ſo belong's to the childrens ſinging Hoſanna's (for though thoſe which did ſo, were not infants or ſucklings, but as they are called v. 15. νήπιοι Children, yet were they of an age farre leſſe able to judge, then the Phariſees that rejected Chriſt, and if that which was ſaid by the Pſalmiſt of very infants were true, then much more may it be admitted of theſe) which was a teſtimony of his divinity; and ſo was the ordaining ſtrength, i. e. a ſtrong and glorious effect from weake means, and again the perfecting praiſe, i. e. compacting, putting together a ſong of confeſſion or praiſe, (ſee 2 Cor. 13. b.) a teſtimony of him, ſuch as the Scribes and Phariſees could not thinke fit for him to accept, but he by remembring them of that prophecy of the Pſalmiſt, acknowledges, and owne's it, as a good and valid teſtimony, and gives them reaſon to do ſo too.

Now this phraſe here applyed to men (as 'tis alſo in the Prophets of the Old Teſtament, I will threſh you with a threſhing inſtrument, &c.) ſeems here to ſignifie that ſad condition of the people of the Jews, all of them that ſhould hold out againſt Chriſt, Chriſt ſhall come upon that people, as with his threſhing inſtrument in his hand, c. 3. 12. ſhall break, and daſh them to pieces, violently ſeparate the ſtraw from the wheat, the multitude of unprofitable, i. e. unbeleiving impenitents from the little ſound corne among them, the few ſound beleivers; and then break all that ſtraw into ſmall pieces, as the manner of their threſhing was; ſee note on chap. 3. 1. g. 8. Then said he to his servants, [The * wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy. 8. The feast is prepared, and in it your thing to lay to his charge they now consult how to get some advantage against him, and to that purpose, knowing him to be a free speaker, that would not disguise his thoughts for fear of any man, they send some of two contrary parties, some Pharisees, others that adhered to Herod the Roman Governour, that whatsoever answer he should make to their question, one party might be offended with him; and they came and asked him flatteringly, but insidiously, saying, We know that without all fear of men, or partiality thou wilt tell us truly, what is our duty toward God.

17. Tell us therefore, [What thinkest thou? Is it lawfull] to give tribute to Cæsar, or no? 17. What is lawfull by God's law in thy opinion? Is it by that lawfull

20. And he saith unto them, [Whose is this image and [c] superscription?] 20. The inscription of this coyn is Cæsar Augustus such a year after the taking of Judæa; This being a record of the conquest of the Romans over this nation, and the right by them acquired, by the dedition of Hyrcanus, (see note b.) and an expression of the years since that taking, about 90 years (for so long agoe did Pompey subdue, and take Jerusalem) shew that now 'tis unlawfull to seek change, after so long continuance of that power so fairly, and legally acquired. Besides, the coyning of money is part of the supreme power, or regall prerogative, incommunicable to any other, and your acknowledging this to be the currant coyne, supposes Cæsar, whose signature it hath, to be your lawfull Prince, to whom therefore the tribute is due, as the legall protector of your civil commerce; Look therefore upon the coyn for the stating of your question, whose image, and signature it hath on it. c.

21. They say unto him, Cæsars. Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsars, and unto God the things that are Gods.] 21. They confest it to be the image, or signature of the Roman Emperour, and Christ thence concluded, that they that acknowledge Cæsar's supremacy over the Jewes, ought not to dispute, but pay him that tribute that is due to him as supreme, there being nothing derogatory to God in so doing. But the law of God requiring that every one should have that which belongs to him, and particularly Kings their due acknowledgments, and tributes, which are due to them, as acts of piety are due to God.

22. When they had heard these words, they [marvailed, and left him, and went their way.] 22. admired the prudence of his answer, and so departed, without hopes of gaining any advantage against him.

27. And laſt of all the woman died alſo.

28. Therefore in the reſurrection whoſe wife ſhall ſhe be of the ſeven, for they all had her?

29. This errour of yours in beleiving no reſurrection, proceeds from your not conſidering the ſeverall places of Scripture, nor the power of God in ordering the life to come in another manner then is uſed in this.

29. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, [Ye doe erre, not knowing the ſcriptures, nor the power of God.]

30. As for your argument againſt it, 'tis ſoon anſwered, by telling you, that in that other world thoſe that are there, live not like husbands and wives, but are in that reſpect no otherwiſe then the pure ſpirituall Angels of God, which have no bodies about them, all ſuch relations which are here among men, are ſwallow'd up in that other world.

30. For in the reſurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the Angels of God in heaven.

d. 31. But to make it evident to you by that part of Scripture which hath authority among you Sadducees, i.e. by the Law, by you acknowledged for the word of God, that there is another life, it is there, you know, thus written

31. But as touching the [d] reſurrection of the dead, have yee not read that which was ſpoken unto you by God, ſaying,]

Notes on Chap. XXII.

2. Γάμος Ἔνδυμα γάμου

That γάμος & γάμοι ſignifie both in this place, and Joh. 2. a marriage-feaſt, we have before obſerved (ſee note on c. 9. e.) that here the ἔνδυμα γάμου ſignifies the garment that was cuſtomary at ſuch feaſts, i.e. a better ſort of array then thoſe that were uſed upon ordinary daies, will be obvious to any man that is converſant in ancient cuſtomes; So in the wardrobes of great men, there were robes to put on for that uſe, mention'd by Juvenal, when he ſpeaks of the trechedipna, that runs about to feaſts, or entertainments. Theſe were veſtes diſcubitoria, fine and florid, ſuch as Trimalcio's in Petronius, in whom they are alſo called veſtimenta Triclinaria, and in Xiphilin, in the life of Adrian, σὺν Νύμφῃ, ἱμάτιον, the festivall garment, and this, it seems, so necessary (as repentance and reformation of life, the new garment, or array of the soul, which is here parabolically expreſt by it) that without it, even they that were invited to come, were not yet permitted to taſt of the feaſt, or remain among the gueſts.

b. Ἡρῳδιανοῖς

The Herodians were not a diſtinct ſect from the Phariſees and Sadducees (ſee note on c. 16. a.) but ſome of them Sadducees, as appears by comparing Mat. 16. 6. with Mar. 8. 15. They are by * a learned man ſaid to be Grecians, which king Herod brought with him out of the deſert, and which became a certain ſect after that time, for which he cites Aruch; But this was by a great miſtake in him of the Hebrew יונים, as if it were Ἴωνες Grecians, when 'tis no more but jonim doves or pigeons, which Herod brought with him out of the deſert, and from which ſprang a certain ſort of Pigeons, (not ſect of men) different from others. The Herodians by many of the Ancients are thought to be thoſe that (conceiving the prophecy of Jacob concerning the Scepter departing from Judah to be accompliſh't in Herod the great, who was not a Jew, and yet ſwayed the ſcepter there) beleived him to be the Shiloh promiſed by Jacob at that time; So Epiphanius, that they were Jews, idle, and hypocrites, that thought Herod to be the Chriſt promiſed in the prophets. So Tertullian, Herodiani qui Chriſtum Herodem eſſe dixerunt. So Chryſoſtome on Mar. 12. ſo Theophylact, and S. Hierome, Dial: cont: Luciferianos, though in his Comment on this place, he utterly reject it. Nor indeed is it any thing probable, that now at this time, 30 years after Herods death, there ſhould remain any of this beleif, that Herod was the Meſſias; It is therefore in the next place obſervable, that the Syriack for [Herodians] reads Herod's followers, and that may give us an hint of another interpretation, which ſeems to be the moſt probable: Of the Jewes ſome part acknowledg'd, and adhered to the Caſarean or Roman authority, ſome part look't upon it, as an uſurpation, and of this generally were the Phariſees. This difference or controverſie was thus occaſion'd. About 150 years before the birth of Chriſt, the government of Judea came into the hands of the Zelots or Maccabees, Among them Judas Maccabeus being in fear of Antiochus, entred into a league w^th^ the Romans, w^ch^ continued about 90 years. Then Hyrcanus & Ariſtobulus the ſons of Alexander falling into contention for the kingdome, and the younger brother Ariſtobulus getting poſſeſſion of it, Hyrcanus applied himſelf to the Romans for redreſſe, And by Antipater's mediation beſought Pompey (being then neer) to come with an army to his relief; Pompey did ſo, and thereupon beſieged Jeruſalem, Hyrcanus's party within, ſoon delivered it up, And Ariſtobulus's party retired into that part, where the Temple ſtood, and Pompey ſtorm'd the Temple, and took it, and ſo the city came into the Romans power, and Hyrcanus was reſtored to the high prieſthood, and kingdome of Judea, but ſo as to hold (as he obteined) it by being under the Romans protection, which they did (thoſe of them that were of Hyrcanus's party) by conſent, and not by force, by a choiſe which the factions among themſelves put upon them, and by way of dedition, and ſo * Joſephus plainly ſaith of the Jews, that they had made a dedition of themſelves. Mean while they of Ariſtobulus's party look't upon the Romans as Uſurpers, and forcible poſſeſſours. And thus it continued till our Saviours time. And at this time, ſome of each party, Phariſees on one ſide, and Herodians, i. e. followers of Herod, on the other, came unto Chriſt, meaning to inſnare him, whatſoever he ſaid, and to take advantage either to inflame the Phariſees (which were the moſt eminent men among the Jews) if he ſhould ſay that tribute was to be paid, or to bring him into danger of Herod, and the Roman party, if he ſhould ſay, 'twas not to be paid. And though Chriſt's anſwer be punctually in favour of the Roman Emperour, eſpecially to thoſe that took the tribute to be his right, yet becauſe in prudence Chriſt thought fit to give ſuch an anſwer, as might beſt avoid the oppoſite danger, this very prudence of his is after by falſe malitious perſons improved into an accuſation againſt him, Lu. 23. 2. as if he forbad to give tribute to Cæſar, ſee Mar. 12. note a.

* De Bell: Jud. l. 1. c. 8.

The tribute money or denarius, that was to be paid to Cæſar by way of tribute, had on it, ſaith Occo, the picture or image of Cæſar, and in it theſe letters written, Καίσαρ Αὔγυστ: Ἰουδαίας ἑαλωκυίας, Cæſar Auguſtus, ſuch a year after the taking of Judea. This latter, no queſtion, is that which is here meant by the ἐπιγραφὴ, inſcription or ſuperſcription of the coine, from whence Chriſt concludes Cæſars right by title of Conqueſt to require tribute of the Jews. c. Δηναρίου

The argument againſt the living of ſouls now after death, and before the reſurrection, which is taken by ſome (ſee brevis diſquiſitio) from this place of Mat. 22. 31, 32. lyes thus: Chriſt proves the reſurrection of the dead, v. 31. by this argument, [God ſaith, he is the God of Abraham &c. long after Abraham's death, and God is not the God of the dead, but of the living] which proof being put into forme muſt lye thus, [Abraham's body ſhall riſe, and likewiſe Iſaac's and Jacob's therefore the bodies of the dead ſhall riſe,] The antecedent is proved thus [Abraham ſhall live again now he is dead, therefore his body ſhall riſe] That antecedent thus [God is the God of Abraham now he is dead, therefore Abraham ſhall live again now he is dead,] If this antecedent were denyed, then the plain words of Scripture were denyed, and therefore the argument, or conſequence muſt be denyed, or nothing; And that will thus be proved [God is not the God of the dead who are ſo dead, that they ſhall never live again, therefore it being granted that God is the God of Abraham, ſince the time of his death, it muſt follow, that, though he be now dead, he ſhall live again] Chriſt's argument being ſuppoſed thus to proceed, might readily have been anſwered (by them that deny the reſurrection of the body) in caſe the continued life or not dying of the ſoul were granted; For they might reply thus [Abraham's ſoul lives all this while ſince his death, and therefore God's being the God of Abraham, granting him to be the God of none but the living, doth not conclude that Abraham's body ſhall riſe, For he who lives in ſoul, may be ſaid to be living, though his body never riſe.] Now becauſe 'tis certain that Chriſts argument was a good argument, concluding unanſwerably what d.

he meant to prove, therefore the not dying of ſouls, on conceſſion of which the refutation of Chriſt's argument is, or may be grounded, is not to be thought a truth. To this objection againſt the immortality of ſouls from this manner of Chriſt's arguing againſt the Sadducees, the anſwer might be eaſie enough, by remembring the diſputers, that the Sadducees, with whom Chriſt diſputed, are not ſuppoſed to grant the immortality of the ſoul, any more then the riſing of the body, and therefore this argument of Chriſt's, though it would not hold againſt him, that did acknowledge the immortality and continued life of the ſoul, without ever having the body united to it, would yet be a good argument ad homines, againſt the Sadducees, and that were ſufficient to ſalve the matter; Or ſecondly, that the reſurrection of the body is a neceſſary conſequent to the life of the Soul, and that the proving that the ſoul lives after death, is therefore uſed by Chriſt, as an argument ſufficient to inferre that the body ſhall certainly revive alſo; But this is not all, They that make uſe of this arguing of Chriſt to favour their opinion of Ψυχοπαννυχία, do miſtake the thing, that Chriſt went about to prove againſt the Sadducees; For it being certain that the Sadducees denyed all other life, beyond this, that here men live in the fleſh, (affirming that there is no ſpirit, no ſoul of man ſubſiſting after death, and in conſequence to that, that the body after death rots, never to riſe again) 'tis as certain that Chriſt here confronted his argument (out of the Law, which was the only Scripture which thoſe Sadducees acknowledged) againſt this whole doctrine of the Sadducees (not only againſt one part of it, the reſurrection of the body) and by that teſtimony of the Law (which they could not deny) demonſtrated to them that there was another life after this. Of this whole matter (not only of that which concerned the Body) 'tis clear that the Sadducees queſtion, and objection (of the wife that had ſeven husbands) proceeded, concluding, as farre as it did conclude, (but being indeed a very weak ridiculous argument) againſt all future being, for if the death of the husband voyded the relation between him and his Wife, as 'tis certain it did, and he and ſhe live together again any way after this life, the Sadducee thinkes that relation muſt revive alſo, and upon that his argument proceeds, and doth ſo as well (i.e. equally, or no worſe) on ſuppoſition of another life of ſpirits, as of bodies ſpiritualized alſo. For if there were thoſe relations of husband and wife in heaven, they would ſure be there before the reſurrection of bodies, as well as after, unleſſe the Sadducees beleived Chriſt's doctrine to be, that procreation (and the like, which could not be done without bodies) continued in heaven, as here on earth, which it no way appears that they did, or that that was the thing here particularly oppoſed by them. The only matter of difficulty now remaining is, whether ἀνάστασις, of which the Sadducees ask v. 23. and ἀνάστασις τῶν νεκρῶν, which Chriſt undertakes to demonſtrate v. 31. doth not peculiarly ſignifie the reſurrection of the body. To which I anſwer poſitively, that it doth not, but denotes another life (beſides this and after this,) a continuing or being kept alive by God after departure out of this life; As that which is call'd Rom. 9. 17. raiſing up (and in Luke the phraſe is ἐγείρειν), the ſame that there) is in the Hebrew, from whence 'tis cited, Exod. 9. 16. to make to ſtand, and is rendred by the Septuagint keeping alive, or ſafe; And the literall notation of the word ἀνάστασις goes no farther; for στάσις is ſtanding or ſubſiſting, and ἀνὰ in compoſition ſignifies re or again, ſo ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν is the reſubſiſtence or ſecond ſtate of men, that after this life, conſiſting firſt of the immortality and continuance of the ſoule in ſtate of ſeparation, and at length in the reunion of the body to it, whereby it becomes perfect; 'Tis true it ſometimes ſignifies the reſurrection of the body diſtinctly, but that is when 'tis joyned with the word σαρκὸς of the fleſh, or σώματος of the body, or νεκρῶν of the dead, in the neuter (as νεκρὰ ſignifies cadavera, or dead bodies) or when without any of theſe, the context of the Author doth appear to reſtrain it to that ſenſe, and indeed in later Eccleſiaſtick Writers, it may perhaps be found to be commonly uſed for the reſurrection of the body, but all this no whit prejudgeth the notion, which I have given of it in this place, where τῶν νεκρῶν is the maſculine (as appears by comparing it with the ſtory in S. Luke, where 'tis diſtinctly νεκροὶ in the parallel) and where the context doth not ſo reſtrain it, but rather enforceth the enlarging of it, in like manner, as [ὅτι λέγοντες μὴ εἶναι ἀνάστασιν] v. 23. may be the character of the Sadducees, who denied all future life or ſubſiſtence of ſoule, or body after death; And thus ἀνάστασις τῶν δικαίων] ſeems to note Lu. 14. 14. the reward there ſpoken of, being that which is oppoſed to our rewarding one another here in this life, and ſo the phraſe denoting all which is not of this life, i.e. that bliſſe, which the juſt enjoy after this life. And the phraſe which the Jewes uſed to ſignifie this, is, the age, or world to come, which theſe Sadducees diſtinctly denied, and the Phariſees beleived and affirmed, And ſure S. Paul one of thoſe Phariſees Chriſtianized, did reckon of this continued life of the ſoul, contrary to the mortality, or ſleeping of it, when Phil. 1. 23. he ſaith that he deſires ἀναλῦσαι (which ſure is a phraſe to expreſſe the ſeparation of ſoul and body) and to be with Chriſt, which I ſuppoſe muſt conclude a beeing of the ſoule, and that an happy one, unleſſe Chriſt be imagin'd ſtill to be aſleep; and ſo again when he calls the ἐκδημῆσαι ἐκ τοῦ σώματος, travailing out of the body, a travailing to the Lord, 1 Cor. 5. 8.

This commandement by which the worſhip of the one God is commanded, Deut. 6. 4. is not onely one of thoſe which were written in their Phylacteries, faſten'd on their poſts, and read in their houſes daily, but to note it to be the great commandement indeed above others, it is obſervable, that in Deut. the words in the Hebrew, which begin and end it, have the laſt letter written very big, and noted in the margine to be ſo written.

The word κρίμασι may fitly, and according to the notion, and uſe of it in ſacred Authors, and according to the importance of this place, moſt properly be rendred [conſpire] or agree, for ſo the Hebrew חָשַׁק, which ſignifies an agreement of minds, a covenant, or league, Gen. 44. 30. is rendred ἀνακρίμασι, where we read, [is bound up with] noting an huge kindneſſe, and conjunction of affections between Jacob, and Benjamin. So Judith 8. 24. where we vulgarly read [their hearts depend on us] 'tis moſt proper to render it [their hearts agree or conſpire conſpire with us] or are bound up withus. So Lu. 19. 48. the people [ἐξεκρέματο αὐτοῦ ἀκούων, as they heard him they took his part] were of his ſide, agreed with him. And ſo here in theſe two commandements all the law and the Prophets conſpire, i. e. the whole old Teſtament agrees, conſpires with theſe, theſe are the ſumme of all that is ſaid there. But if it be rendred hang] then the meaning will be, that all commanded in the Jewiſh received Scripture, depends upon one of theſe two, hangs on one of theſe great pegges, i. e. is, in the laſt reſort, reducible to one of theſe heads.

CHAP. XXIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. THEN ſpake Jeſus] to the multitude, and to his diſciples,

1. Then Jeſus having quit himſelf from the Phariſees and Sadducees, ſpake

2. Saying, [The Scribes and Phariſees ſit in Moſes ſeat,]

2. The Scribes and Phariſees &c. thoſe that are of the Sanhedrin are by you to be looked on, as your lawfull Rulers that have authority over you, ſucceeding Moſes, and the ſeventy elders, Num. 11. 16.

3. And therefore whatſoever they bid you obſerve, that obſerve and doe: but doe not ye after their works, for they ſay and doe not.]

3. And therefore do ye live in obedience to all their lawfull commands, in all regular ſubjection, and obedience. But let not their actions be your examples, for they live not according to their own preſcriptions.

4. For they bind heavy burthens, and grievous to be born, and lay them on mens ſhoulders, but they themſelves will not move them with one of their fingers.]

4. For many ſevere ordinances they impoſe on others, but will not themſelves be perſwaded to take the leaſt pains to do thoſe things which by the clear law of God are moſt neceſſary.

5. But all their works they do for to be ſeen of men: they make broad their [a] phylacteries, and enlarge the [b] borders of their garments]

5. All that they exerciſe themſelves in moſt induſtriouſly, are the performances, which will bring them in moſt of praiſe. The law which they were commanded Deut. 6. 8. to bind upon their hands &c. i. e. to lay it near their hearts, to practiſe it diligently, they write in rolls, and hang them in their foreheads, and bind them on their wriſts, &c. count them as a kinde of charmes, and make them as large as they can, to be ſeen of men, and one to exceed the other. And for the fringes of their garments, which they were indeed commanded to weare, Num. 15. 38. Deut. 22. 12. to remember them of the law, and as a peculiar faſhion to diſcriminate them from other men, they either for an oſtentation of piety which thoſe were to remember them of, or to expreſſe the greater ſtrictneſſe in ſeparating from all others, weare theſe fringes very large, And ſo whether for obſervances invented and preſcribed by themſelves only, or for thoſe which the law preſcribes, all their care is to be praiſed of men.

6. And love the uppermoſt roomes at † feaſts, and the chiefe ſeats in the ſynagogues,] † meales, ſupres

6. They love to have the firſt place, if it be but at an ordinary meale, And in the Conſiſtories they are ambitious of the headſhips, and when they teach in the ſynagogues, or are there to hear others teach, and, as the manner was, ſit in chaires, while they do ſo, they are ambitious of getting the uppermoſt chaires.

7. And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi.]

7. And to receive the civilities, and adorations, and commendations of men above all others, as the greateſt doctors and leaders of others; which is an evidence of their temper, what 'tis that they principally deſigne in all their religious performances.

8. But be not ye called Rabbi, for one is your maſter even Chriſt, and all ye are brethren,]

8. But doe not yee contend thus for ſuperiorities, for precedence one above another, for you are all fellow ſervants, by being fellow Chriſtians.

9. And call no man your [c] father upon the earth, for one is your father which is in heaven.]

9. And give not up your faith abſolutely to be ſwayed, and ruled by any man, as children are to be ſwayed wholly by their parents bare will, and as theſe men, Phariſees &c. have their admirers and followers in religion, whereas indeed God your father in heaven is onely he, to whoſe doctrine and precepts ye owe this abſolute faith, and obedience.

c.

10. Neither be yee called Maſters, for one is your maſter, even Chriſt.]

10. And do not yee pretend to be leaders or teachers, but all fellow diſciples that receive the faith from me, and ſo communicate it to others.

11. But he that is greateſt among you, ſhall be your ſervant.]

11. As for any precedency or ſuperiority, which ſhall hereafter be inſtituted in the Church, ye are not to look upon that, but as an office of burthen, and duty, of watching and waking on them, over whom ye are placed.

12. And whoſoever ſhall exalt himſelf, ſhall be abaſed, and he that ſhall humble himſelf ſhall be exalted.]

12. And indeed for this, this ought to be the Rule, that whoſoever is ambitious of dignity in Chriſt's Church, ought never to be admitted to it, but he that ſhall thinke himſelf unworthy of it, is fitteſt to be advanced to it.

13. But wo unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for [yee ſhut up the kingdome of heaven againſt men, for yee neither go in your ſelves, neither ſuffer yee them that are entring to go in.]

13. yee keep the multitude from embracing the Goſpell or doctrine of Chriſt, to which they are generally enclin'd, yee ſuppreſſe the meaning of the Scriptures, which belong to the Meſſias, And not only reject Chriſt your ſelves, but prohibite others from beleiving on him, which were it not for fear of you, would willingly imbrace him.

14. Woe unto you Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, [for yee devour widowes houſes, and for a pretence make long prayer: therefore] yee ſhall receive the greater damnation.

14. For in ſtead of ſhewing mercy and charity to them that are left deſtitute, ye on the other ſide are greedy and rapacious, grinde the face of the poor, and devoure the remainder of their ſubſiſtence, whom yee ought in reaſon to relieve, and that yee may do theſe acts of uncharitableneſſe neſſe more ſecurely, yee pretend to great piety, and for a colour, or faire ſhew, (that you may be the more truſted and ſo have opportunities to doe it the better) uſe to make long prayers: But for this, for your making piety a colour and guiſe, under which to practiſe the greater ſinnes

15. to get one Gentile to your religion, and when he is ſo, by teaching him the worſer part of your doctrine, that which fortifies him againſt the receiving of Chriſt, and by preſſing him to that legall ſtrictneſſe, (which is commanded you as Jews, but belongs not to him) you put him into a farre worſe, and more dangerous eſtate, and make him more vehemently to oppoſe the Goſpell, then your ſelves, or your own children, naturall Jewes.

d. 15. Woe unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for yee compaſſe ſea and land [to make one [d] proſelyte, and when he is made, yee make him twofold more the child of hell then your ſelves.]

16. Woe unto you, which take upon you to be leaders of the blind, Ro. 2. 19. and are blind your ſelves, ſaying, If a man ſwear by the temple he is not obliged by that oath, but he that ſwears by the Gold of the Temple, in any promiſſory oath he renders himſelf a debtor, in any aſſertory, he is guilty of perjury, if it be not true.

c. 16. Woe unto you, yee blind guides, which ſay, [c] whoſoever ſhall ſwear by the Temple, it is nothing, but whoſoever ſhall ſweare by the gold of the Temple, he is * a debtor.]

* obliged, ὀφείλει

17. What a ſottiſh ſenſeleſſe folly is this, which your deep learning hath advanced you to? For ſure the Gold of the Temple which receives all the ſacredneſſe it hath, above other gold, meerly from being the Gold of the Temple, cannot be more ſacred then the Temple it ſelf, nor conſequently the oath by the gold obliging, when an oath by the Temple it ſelf is not.

17. Yee fools and blinde, for whether is greater, the gold, or the Temple that ſanctifieth the gold?]

18. And whoſoever ſhall ſweare by the Altar it is nothing: but whoſoever ſweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is † guilty.

† obliged.

19. Yee fooles and blinde, for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that ſanctifieth the gift?

20. The ſwearing by the altar conteins in it that other oath, which yee take to be ſo much more obliging, that by all the free-will offerings preſented at or on the altar, and ſo cannot poſſibly be leſſe obliging then that alone.

20. Whoſo therefore ſweareth by the altar, ſweareth by it, and by all things thereon.]

21. by God, who although he have his throne in heaven, yet is pleaſed to own the temple, as his place of reſidence or dwelling upon earth.

21. And whoſo ſhall ſweare by the temple ſweareth by it, and [by him that dwelleth therein.]

22. And whoſo ſhall ſwear by heaven, ſweareth by the throne of God, and by him that ſitteth thereon.

23. in matter of paying tithes you are as exact, as any the ſtricteſt lawyer would require of you, deſcending to the tithing of herbes, of which there was doubt and diſpute, whether they ought to be paid or no: but for duties of the ſecond table, juſt dealing, charity and fidelity, theſe you look not after; which being the moſt conſiderable weighty duties, ought moſt preciſely to be walk't in, to be made your work and care; and the other, though not to be left undone, yet counted inferiour to thoſe.

f. 23. Wo unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for [yee pay tithe of mint, and aniſe, and cummin, and have omitted the weightyer matters of the law, [f] judgment, mercy and faith, theſe ought yee to have done, and not to leave the other undone.]

24. are very ſcrupulous in ſmall, and very adventurous in the greateſt matters.

24. Yee blind guides, which [ſtreine at a gnat, and ſwallow a camel.]

25. Yee are all for waſhing of outſides, as of your veſſells to eat and drink in, ſo alſo of your hands, and whole bodies, and in the mean while leave your ſouls full of all abominable impurities, ſuch as Gen. 6. 11. are expreſt by [corrupt, and full of violence] which is, as if you ſhould make clean only the outſide of a cup or platter, and leave the inſide, where the drink and meate is put, full of all kinde of filth, ſee Lu. 11. 39.

25. Woe unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for [yee make clean the outſide of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of * extortion and exceſſe.]

* violence and incontinence ἁρπαγῆς ἢ ἀκρασίας, ſee note on 1 Cor. 5. h.

26. Thou hypocrite, that art ſo like a blind man as to waſh one part only, and then thinke all is clean, ſee to the cleanſing thy heart, which is as it were the inſide of the veſſell, and that is the true way of cleanſing the outſide, the actions alſo, at leaſt let the firſt care be taken for the inſide, and the outward cleaneneſſe will have its place, and praiſe, will be to ſome purpoſe.

26. Thou blind Phariſee, cleanſe firſt * that which is within the cup or platter, that the outſide of them may be clean alſo.

* the inſide of it ἔσωθεν αὐτῶν

27. Woe unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for yee are like unto whited ſepulchers, which indeed appear beautifull outward, but are within full of dead mens bones, and of all uncleanneſſe.

28. Even ſo are yee, the faireſt in outward guiſe, and ſhew, but in your hearts, deſignes, and actions that flow from thence, the moſt noiſome, and polluted that can be, nothing but contrariety to your profeſſions, and in ſtead of juſtice, and charity, which yee pretend, the moſt greedy and ravenous oppreſſors. v. 14.

28. Even ſo, yee alſo outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within yee are full of hypocriſie and iniquity.]

29. You doe honour unto the prophets ſlaine by your forefathers.

29. Woe unto you, Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, †becauſe [yee build the tombes of the Prophets, and garniſh the ſepulchers of the righteous.]

† that ὅτι

30. And expreſſe your diſlike of them that killed them, and ſay, that if you had then lived, you would ſure never have uſed them, as your fathers did.

30. And ſay, If wee had been in the dayes of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the Prophets.

And

And this you doe, that men seeing this indignation of yours against your fathers bloodinesse, may beleive all wicked whom you persecute.

31. Wherefore yee be witnesses unto your selves, that yee are the children of them which killed the Prophets.

31, 32. Hereby, you doavowedly confesse, that you are the children of those bloody men, and consequently that if you go on in their sinnes, it is most just that all the vengeance, due to them, should with advantage fall on you; and now are yee going on in their steps (see note on c. 10. f.) and all your declaiming against their bloudynesse, all your condemning of them, is but a piece of hypocrisie, you being now as bloodily disposed, as any of them, and as ready to perfect that work of cruelty begun by them, and so bring all that blood on you, see Lu. 11. 47.

32. * Fill yee up then the measure of your fathers.]

* And do yee fill up. ὑμεῖς πλη-ρώσατε, or, and ye have filled up, for the Gr. and Lat. M S. reads ἐπλήρωσατε implestis.

33. Yee Serpents, yee generation of Vipers, how can yee escape the damnation of hell?]

33. And being of such a serpentine viperous race, and filling up the measure of your fathers sinnes, in going on still in their bloudy course, v. 37. how is it possible for you to escape that finall destruction which attends all this guilt, and those torments of hell consequent to it?

34. Wherefore [behold I send unto you Prophets, and wise men, and Scribes, and some of them yee shall kill and crucifie, and some of them shall yee scourge in your synagogues,] and persecute them from city to city, 34. I tell you plainly, that I am that God, that send to you Prophets, and others learned in your religion, which receiving the faith c. 13. 52. shall preach it to you. And I now foretell you, that contending that they are no Prophets &c. some of them yee shall kill in zeale, and fury, others ye shall presse the Romans to crucifie, (which is the very thing which your fathers, whom ye condemn, did before you, for they contended that they were not Prophets) others yee shall scourge in your publick Judicatures, though ye do not put, or cause them to be put to death.

35. That upon you may come all the righteous blood shed upon the earth from the blood of righteous Abel unto the blood of [g] Zacharias, son of Barachias, whom yee slew between the Temple and the [h] Altar.

35, 36. That you not reforming the sinnes of your fathers, and all other bloody men, that have been before you, (the foulnesse of whose crimes ought to have warned you from the like guilts, though they were not all your lineall progenitors, as Cain) but still continuing and going on in them and filling up the measure of their sins, may, now in this age, have all that destruction come upon you, which hath been merited by the shedding of those just mens blood, (a grievous and in scripture style a crying sinne, that is said to have called to God for the avenging of it) such was Abel, whose blood was said to cry, and such Zacharias the sonne of Baruch, who is like to be slaine in this generation between the porch of the Temple, and Altar without in the Court, and to usher in that destruction upon you.

g. h. i.

36. Verily I say unto you, All these things shall come upon this [i] generation.]

37. O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the Prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, [how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as † an hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and yee would not?]

37. How many passionate invitations, and cals have I given you to bring you to repentance, to perswade you to be gathered under the wings of the divine presence, i. e. to become proselytes to me, to be born again, and lead new lives, (see note on Lu. 13. c.) but yee refused all?

The Phylacteries were a great part (though a great mistake, and deceit) of the religion of the latter Jewes, upon Gods commandment Deut. 6. 8. Exod. 13. 16. of binding those words for a signe upon their hands, and as frontlets between their eyes, and writing them upon the posts of their doores, and of their gates, (which certainly were but figurative expressions, of that which was before mention'd, Deut. 6. 7. Thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them, when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest in the way, &c.) this carnall people which were apt to turn all inward piety into outward formality, and matter of ambition and ostentation, would needs understand this precept literally, and made them scrolls of parchment, in which they wrote four Sections of the Pentateuch, 1. the nine former verses of Deut. 6. 2[d], the nine first verses of the 13 of Exod. 3[d], the eight last verses of the same chapter. 4[th], from the 13 to the 22 of Deut. 11. These rolls of parchment were by them prepared with a great multitude of ceremonies and decrees made by them, of the creatures, of whose skins that parchment was to be made, of the knives, with which 'twas to be cut; and a great deal more: Being made, they fitted, and applied them to the foreheads, and to the wrists, and they were call'd by them in Hebrew, Tephillin, because the speciall use of them was in their prayers, and here προσευχὴν, either because they were to help keep the Law in their memory, or because they were a kind of amulet, or charme against fascinations, and diseases, against the malus genius, saith Paulus Fagius; This being the nature of the Phylacteries, a carnall observation of their own, set out with many ceremonies, and yet by them affixt on God, as if commanded by him. The Pharisees, the most exact among the Jewes, that would goe beyond all others in performances, and withall, the most ostentations of any, and willing to be differenced from all others, by by ſuch marks of extraordinary piety, did πλατύνειν φυλακτήρια, weare theſe of a greater breadth, then any others, and are here ſaid properly to doe this, πρὸς τὸ θεαθῆναι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις, that they may be looked on by men.

b. Κράσπεδα

The κράσπεδα are the fringes, that God commands the people to uſe, Num. 15. 38. and weare on the borders of their garments, with a blew ribband on the fringe. And the uſe of it there aſſign'd, was, 1. that they may look upon it, and remember all the Commandements of God, and doe them, 2. that they ſeek not after their own hearts, and their own eyes, after which they uſe to goe a whoring, i. e. that they take not up the cuſtomes or faſhions of other nations, which they were very apt, and prone to doe, ever ſince they came out of Ægypt, and therefore are by this forewarned that they keep themſelves a peculiar people to God in outward faſhions, and conſequently in inward purity of heart (in order to which the other was deſign'd) diſcriminated from all the nations of the earth. By this it appears, how this cuſtome of the fringes differs from that other of the Phylacteries; That was wholly a tradition and invention of the Jews, on a miſtake of Gods command, and then an enlarging of this to vanity and oſtentation; But this hath a truth in Gods precept, was really commanded by him, in order to a pious end, which end being forgotten, they wholly contented and ſatiſfied themſelves in the outward obſervation of them, and the Phariſees made that, as pompous as they could, labouring to exceed all other men in the bigneſſe of their fringes, or גְּדִילִים, and placing piety in that, as being moſt diſcriminated thereby from the nations (in order to which this faſhion was preſcribed by God) and in ſome meaſure from other Jewes, which wore them not ſo bigge, and ſo are particularly in this, as in many other things ἀφωρισμένοι, according to the meaning of their name in Hebrew, vain-glorious Separatiſts, and are thus looked upon by our Saviour in this place.

c.

The Wiſeman, the principall of the ſchool of the Prophets, who had the great authority among them, no man contradicting what he ſaid, was by them then called אב Father, and in this reſpect, and this ſenſe of the word Father among the Jewes, all Chriſtians being now taught of God by Chriſt are appointed to acknowledge no father in earth.

Πατὴρ

d. Προσήλυτος

A Proſelyte, is one that being a Gentile by birth and religion, comes over to the Jewiſh religion, either in whole or in part; For there are three ſorts of ſtrangers, and two of Proſelytes among the Jewiſh writings. The firſt ſort of ſtrangers are thoſe which continue open Idolaters, who were not permitted to live, or have any place of beeing in the Land of Iſrael, the 2d ſort of ſtrangers, are the firſt of Proſelytes, which though they embraced not the whole Jewiſh religion of circumciſion, waſhing, and ſabbatizing, &c. yet renounced the Idolatry, and πολυθεότης, or multitude of the Gentile Gods, and aſſented to ſome foundations of the Jewiſh religion, which they call'd the ſeven precepts of the ſons of Adam, and of Noah, of which we ſhall have a fitter occaſion to ſay more, on Act. 15. Theſe were call'd Proſelytes of the gates, were permitted to live among them, to come into one court (the outer) of the Temple (call'd atrium Gentilium, divided by a low wall or Sept from the other, call'd by S. Paul μεσότοιχον φραγμοῦ, Epheſ. 2. 14. a half wall of partition, on which, ſaith Joſephus, was written μὴ δεῖν ἀλλόφυλον ἐντὸς ἰέναι, that no ſtranger might goe into the inner court) and, in brief, were by the Jewes allowed to have portionem in vitâ futurâ, a portion in the life to come, whether that be heaven, or the kingdome of the Meſſias, Maimon: de pœn: c. 3. §. 5. And yet of theſe 'tis obſervable, that after the Jewes came under the Roman yoke, and ſo were unable to keep their proſelytes of the gates within their preſcribed rules, having no juriſdiction over them, their wiſe men determin'd, that they ſhould have no commerce with them, which was accordingly obſerv'd, till S. Peter's viſion (Act. 10.) aſſured the Chriſtian Jewes, that this was not required of them. The 3d ſort of ſtrangers, and 2d of proſelytes are thoſe, which embraced the whole Jewiſh religion, ſubmitted to be circumciſed, and to perform the whole number of the precepts of the Law; and theſe are admitted to priviledges proportionably, and differ nothing from a Jew, but only that they are not born in the land (as the Mamluchi among the Mahometans) of whom 'tis Juſtin Martyr's affirmation, προσήλυτος ὁ εἰλημμένος, εἰ τῷ λαῷ προσεχώρησεν, δεῖν ὡς αὐτόχθονα, the circumciſed proſelyte is as one that was born in the land. To which purpoſe they apply that of the Prophet, The ſtranger, גֵּר, ſaith he, i.e. the Proſelyte ſhall be joyn'd unto them, ſhall be joyned to the houſe of Jacob, ἑνὸς καὶ τοῦ αὐτοῦ καὶ πᾶσι τοῖς εἰλημμένοις κειμένου νόμου, one and the ſame law being given to all that are circumciſed. Of this ſort were the Sichemites, Achior, (Judith 14. 10.) Nebuſaradan, (ſaith Gemara, Sanhedrim c. 11.) Urias the Hittite, and Herod the Idumæan (whoſe kingdome in his ſucceſſors is therefore call'd מַלְכוּת נָרִים the kingdome of the ſtrangers) Nicholas, Act. 6. and theſe are call'd גֵּרֵי צֶדֶק proſelytes of righteouſneſs, and גֵּרֵי בְרִית proſelytes of the covenant. Of theſe ſay the Jewes, that above all things they muſt be circumciſed, and Tacitus hiſt: l. 5. having mention'd the Jewes cuſtome of circumciſion, adds, tranſgreſſi in morem eorum idem uſurpant, nec quicquam prius imbuuntur quam contemnere divos, &c. And, becauſe ſome other nations had gotten a traditionary cuſtome of circumciſing, without forſaking heatheniſme, or undertaking any degree of proſelytiſme, as the Ægyptians and from them, ſaith * Diodorus Siculus, the men of Colchos, and of old the Iſmaelites, and now the Turkes, It is therefore reſolved among the Jewes, that if any ſuch ſhall become a proſelyte, though he cannot be circumciſed again, yet on the eighth day of his proſelytiſme, ſome blood muſt be fetcht of that part, which they call פְּרִיעָה the breaking of the skinne (for a teſtimony of their proſelytiſme) which, they confeſſe, Moſes knew nothing of, but is an inſtitution of their own. Theſe Proſelytes of the Covenant may perhaps be meant by the children of the Covenant, Act. 3. 25. the multitude there being mixt of Jews and Proſelytes, c. 2. 5. 14. and both thoſe ſpoken to in the 3d. chap. the Jews under the title of Children of the Prophets, i. e. of Abraham &c. the reſt under the title of Children of the Covenant, which being made with Abraham belonged not only to Iſraelites, but to all the kinreds of the earth, as it followes there. Now of theſe latter latter sort of Proselytes this place here seems to be understood, wherein Christ reproacheth the diligence of the Pharisees, who took such pains to make a Proselyte, i. e. to bring a Gentile, that was no way bound to it, to be circumcised, and to undergoe all the Judaicall law, which God had never proposed to the Gentiles, thereby demonstrating, that it was not true purity and reformation of heathen vices, that they thought to work in their Proselytes, but did it onely to get more companions to their faction of holding up the external ceremonies, of circumcision against the reformation now preached by Christ. From whence it appears not onely why the Pharisees were called hypocrites for so doing, this being no way an act of piety, which they pretended to do so zealously, but also, why the Proselyte so made by them, is said to be worse then they, or then their own children, made doubly more then they the child of hell (i. e. worthy of punishment) 1. because before the coming of Christ, the Pharisees were bound to observe the whole law, and so though Christ the substance being come, did take it away, i.e. the typicall parts of it, yet the Pharisees were more excusable, if they continued in the observation of it, whereas the Gentiles were never obliged to it, and so had not that excuse, if they should resist Christ upon that ground of his destroying the Mosaicall law, which was the great scandal against Christ's doctrine. Secondly, because the Pharisees being now engaged in this faction against Christ, these new Proselytes of theirs, to approve themselves to their Masters, expresst more bitternesse against Christ then themselves had done, and by their instigation were made instruments of more mischief after to Christians. So *Act.*13.50. the Jewes παρώτρυναν τὰς σεβομένας γυναῖκας, instigated and inflamed the worshipping, i. e. proselyte women against the Apostles, and it followes, ἐπήγειραν διωγμὸν, they raised a persecution against them. So saith Justin Martyr, οὐδὲ μεγάλυνε ὁ μίσων ὁ παρ' ἡμῖν, ἀλλὰ διπλάσιον ὑμῶν βλασφημοῦσιν εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ, ἢ ἡμᾶς πρὸ τῆς ἐλεύσεως καὶ φανέντος καὶ πιστεύσαντος ἡμῶν ἐξωμοιοῦν σπεύδουσι, the proselytes doe not onely not beleive, but doe, doubly to what the Jewes doe, blaspheme the name of Christ, and kill and reproach us, who doe beleive, and make all haste to be like you; The truth of this was very observable in the Gnosticks, who being Gentiles first, then Christians, at last in appearance turn'd Jewes, and then became the most bitter persecutors of the Orthodox Christians. Three other things observable concerning these two sorts of proselytes will come in more naturally in other places, to which they more immediately referre.

* Dialog. cum Tryph. p. 274.

e. It seems by this which Christ here affirms of the Pharisees, that they had a tradition, that those oathes onely were obligatory, which were conceived by God or something immediately consecrated to him; meaning thereby not the Temple and altar, which had onely an universall consecration (being set apart to his service) but other particular oblations and gifts, which were by the voluntary piety of men devoted unto him; Of this sort is the Gold of the Temple, and the Gift on the Altar, wherein, it seems they placed a more especiall sanctity, then in the other. This Christ looks on, as a pitifull nice piece of deceit, either to frustrate the obligation of some oathes (it being ordinary with them to swear per Templa tonantis, saith the Poet, by the Temple, when, it seems by him, they did not think themselves obliged by such an oath) or to make a nice distinction of sanctity, where indeed there was none, the whole sanctity of the gold, or gift flowing from the Temple or Altar, to which, and the God in it, they were consecrated. What should be the colour or pretence of this doctrine of theirs, it would be hard to guesse, unlesse perhaps it was, that they conceived the Temple by its having been demolish't to have lost its sanctity, and not to have recover'd it at its rebuilding, and increase by Herod; whereas the gold or the gift, which the piety of the Jewish Donour had consecrated, might be allowed by them to have that sanctity; but this being so weak a reason leaves it lyable to the censure of hypocrisie, which Christ here layes upon it, the true cause surely being, that by perswading men that the gold and gifts brought to the Temple, were the holiest things in the world, holier then the Temple, or Altar it self, they might bring men to great liberality that way, and so make gain of their doctrine.

Ὀμνύει διὰ τοῦ ἁγίου

Χρυσὸς ἱερὸς. Δῶρον.

f. For the discerning the meaning and difference of these three, the best rise will be from the observation of Maimonides, a sober learned Jew, More Nevoc. c.3. p 53. These three, saith he, are most accurately distinguish't among the Hebrewes, מִשְׁפָּט and חֶסֶד and רַחֲמִים all to be met with together *Hos.*2.19. judgment and mercy and righteousnesse. The first signifies justice or equity in judging, whether it belong to reward or punishment, The second to the highest degree of mercy or bounty, that which is in Hosea farther expresst by the addition of רַחֲמִים, bowels, or tendernesse of mercy, and is the same that before we said was signified by ἀγαθότης, goodnesse, (see note on ch.20. 15. b.) The third denotes that virtue of honesty in all kinds, which by the law of God is due from us to our brethren, whether by way of strict justice, or of charity, which is also commanded us, and is part of our righteousnesse toward our brethren, (of which we have also spoken before, see note on c.1.g. and ch.6. a.) Thus when John the Baptist tells all the sorts of men that came to him, what was their righteousnesse, their duties, Luk. 3. that which he prescribes to the promiscuous multitude is, μεταδιδόναι τῷ μὴ ἔχοντι to communicate or give to him that hath not. And * Olympiodorus, according to the sense of the Fathers, tells us, Ἀποστερεῖς δὲ καὶ σκεπάζεις ὁ μὴ ἐνδύων τὸν γυμνὸν, he that doth not cloath the naked, is a defrauder, and a coverer, i.e. sinnes against the tenth commandement of the Law. And the whole difference of this from the second, is, that in this a man performes all acts of charity required in the Law, when occasions offer themselves, but in the other, the merciful man doth seek out occasions, and doth more then the Law requires of him, which therefore Christ calls τελείωσις perfection, Matth. 5. 48. Now to those three in Maimonides these three in this place [κρίσις, ἔλεος, πίστις] are directly parallel, κρίσις judgment, literally and clearly answerable to the first; and ἔλεος mercy to the second; All the difficulty is of the third πίστις faith or fidelity, which yet that it is parallel to, and equivalent with δικαιοσύνη righteousnesse, will easily appear also alſo. The Hebrew אֱמֶת which is directly rendred ἀλήθεια and hath the ſame importance ſometimes, which we gave out of Maimonides to צְדָקָה is by the Septuagint rendred alſo by by the very word, δικαιοσύνη righteouſneſſe, Gen. 4.49. Iſa. 38.19. which argues thoſe two Greek words to be indifferently taken (and promiſcuouſly) the one for the other, and there is no doubt but Chriſt ſpake in Hebrew, and uſed that word which is common to both of them; and ſo ἀλήθεια being here the rendring of it, muſt ſignifie no more, then the Hebrew אֱמֶת, if it were retained, would have done, which is all that we affirme of it. The truth is, the word אֱמֶת which, I ſay, is anſweral le to ἀλήθεια, and ſometimes rendred δικαιοσύνη, is ſometimes again rendred ἀλήθεια, and ſo theſe three words, ἀλήθεια, δικαιοσύνη, ἀλήθεια, are oft taken promiſcuouſly the one for the other among the Jewes, that write Greek. So Pſal. 85.10. we have ἔλεος καὶ ἀλήθεια, mercy and truth, Prov. 3.3. ἐλεημοσύναι and πίστεις mercies and fidelities, and Heſychius renders ἀληθὴς true δίκαιος righteous, and ſo δίκαιον ſeems to be taken, Lu. 12.57. κρίνεις τὸ δίκαιον, judge right or true, and Lu. 16.11. μαμωνᾶ ἄδικον the unrighteous mammon is ſet oppoſite ἀληθινῷ to the true riches, agreeable to that of the Targum, Ezech. 22.27. who call it מָמוֹן רִשְׁקָר the mammon of vanity or falſity; ſo that if there be any queſtion whether אֱמֶת be, as we ſaid, anſwerable to צְדָקָה, then may it be ſet as anſwerable to אֱמֶת and as that will couple it alſo with ἔλεος, with which 'tis here ſet (as 'tis alſo Hoſ. 4.1.) ſo will it alſo fall into the ſame ſenſe, and gives us ground to render it not actively, believing, but faithfulneſſe or fidelity, by which that charity which includes juſtice (and contains all that is due to our brethren from us) may according to analogy of the ſacred dialect be fitly underſtood.

g. Ζαχαρίας υἱὸς Βαραχίου

Who this Zacharias was, is queſtioned among learned men, and it falls out there were very many of the name, to each of whom ſome part of this character here ſet is competible. There was Zachary the Prophet, who beſides that he was a Prophet, was the ſonne of Barachiah alſo, Zach. 1.1. but of him no author reports that he was ſlain, and betwixt the Temple and the Altar he could not be ſlaine, becauſe the Temple in his time was deſtroyed, and ſo there was neither Temple nor Altar then; and though he were chief of thoſe which cauſed the reedifying of the Temple, yet in that he offended not the Jews, nor in any other part of his prophecy, nor indeed is it imaginable, that ſo immediately after they came from under the ſcourge (from the captivity) they would kill their Prophet, or defile their Temple. A ſecond Zacharias was the father of John the Baptiſt; and though the Scripture neither mention him to be the ſonne of Barachias, nor to have been killed, yet for the latter (that of his death) two traditions there are, one indeed of * Writers of no great authority, yet pretending to be very ancient, that he was killed by Herod's officers becauſe he would not tell where his ſonne John was, for whom Herod ſent, And with one paſſage of that narration, viz. that his blood continued upon the threſhold like a ſtone, agrees that which is affirmed by Tertullian, contr. Gnoſt. c. 10. the other is aſſerted by † S. Baſil, and before him by * Origen and repeated in the ſame manner by † Gregory Nyſſene, * Cyrill of Alexandria, Theophylact and others, that there being a place in the Temple, where the virgins were wont to be by themſelves, and to pray, and Mary after the birth of Chriſt, continuing to come to that place, ſhee was prohibited by thoſe that knew ſhe had a childe, but maintained by Zacharias the Prieſt, who affirmed her ſtill to be a virgine, whereupon the men of that age ſet upon Zachary as a manifeſt tranſgreſſour of the law, and kill'd him betwixt the Temple and the Altar. But this tradition is rejected by S. Jerome. And indeed which ſoever of thoſe two cauſes be aſſigned for the cauſe of his death, it will not be very proper for this place where Chriſt ſpeakes of their killing of Prophets (and ſuch this Zachary was not, but only a Prieſt) and thoſe Prophets particularly ſent to them, v. 34. 37. as inſtruments to gather them, v. 37. i. e. to reduce them unto repentance by denouncing judgements againſt them; And upon this ground it is, that the learned men which believe this Zachary to be here meant doe not yet beleive either of the two aſſigned cauſes of his death to be the true one; but his foretelling the deſtruction of the city and temple (as Stephen after did, and was ſtoned for it) and ſo executing the prophetick office; which as it is not very appliable to this Zachary, who was no Prophet, ſo it alſo takes away all force from the authority of thoſe antient writers in this particular and the tradition by them mention'd (which are the onely baſis, whereon this opinion can ſtand, and in reverence to whom it is that I ſet down this opinion ſo largely) they and the tradition being as poſitive for that cauſe of his death, as that he was at all kill'd. There was a third Zachary and he a Prophet, and ſlaine by the people at Ioaſh's command, and that for teſtifying againſt them, being ſent particularly by God to reduce them 2 Chron. 24.19, 20. This death of his was by ſtoning v. 21. (as here, and ſtoned them which were ſent unto you, as he alſo was ſaid to be ſent v. 19.) and that in the very place here mentioned betwixt the Temple and the Altar, expreſt there by [In the court of the Lord's houſe] (ſee note k.) and of him 'tis peculiarly mentioned, that when he dyed, he ſaid, The Lord look upon it, and require it, which makes the mention of this man's death very proper to be joyned with Abel, whoſe blood cryed for judgement from the ground. The moſt conſiderable objections againſt this interpretation are, 1. that this Zacharias was the ſonne of Iehojada, v. 20. which is anſwered by thoſe that favour it, by ſaying, that it was very ordinary for men to have more names then one, eſpecially thoſe that had Jehovah in their names, Thus Jehoiakim the King is alſo Eliakim 2 King. 33, 34. and ſo Joiakim the Prieſt, Judith 15.8. is Eliakim. Thus Judas Lu. 6.16. is alſo Lebbæus and Thaddæus Mat. 10.3. And, ſay they, 'tis poſſible that Zacharias might be ſet in this Goſpel, as in Luke it is, without mention of his Father, or with mention of Jehojada, and ſome Scribe might ſet υἱὸν Βαραχίου in the margine, taking it for Zachary one of the ſmal Prophets, who was ſo, and this might afterward creep into the text. To which purpoſe 'tis obſervable that S. Jerome upon ſearch found in the Hebrew Goſpel, call'd the Goſpel of the Nazarites, the name of Jehojada for this of Barachiah. A

ſecond

A ſecond objection againſt this is, that this Zacharias being ſlain by Joaſh ſo long agoe, could not fitly be ſet down as the laſt of that catalogue, whoſe blood brought down judgment on the Jewes, it being in all reaſon, that beginning ſo high as the righteous Abel, the ſpeech ſhould deſcend much lower then to that Zacharias, and it is not very eaſie to give a probable anſwer to, or account of this. A third exception there is farther againſt this interpretation, viz: that here 'tis ſaid that they (i.e. thoſe of that preſent generation) kill'd him, which ſome have anſwer'd by ſaying that that people (of whom that generation was a part, continuing in their ſinnes) are the [they] and that 'tis ordinary in Scripture to charge the acts of parents upon their poſterity, which goe on in their ſinnes. And accordingly the reaſon why thoſe words ὃν ἐφονεύσατε whom ye have kill'd, are here added and annext to Zacharias, might be this, becauſe Cain indeed who had killed Abel was not their progenitour, and ſo that people could not be ſaid to have killed Abel. But for Zacharias whom their progenitours kill'd in the diſcharge of his office to that people, they, who doe not yet obey his prophecy by repenting, may juſtly be ſaid to joyne with them, that did kill him. But there is yet a fourth Zacharias, and he, ſaith Joſephus, l. 4. c. 19. υἱὸς Βαρύχου the ſon of Baruch, which might well be all one with Barachias, as we know Ananus is with Ananias, and he was ſlain by the Jewiſh zelots ἐν μέσῳ τῷ ἱερῷ, in the midſt of the Temple, and that ſo immediately before the ſiege of Jeruſalem, that as Chriſt mentions Abel the firſt, that was ſlain, ſo he might very fitly mention this Zacharias alſo, as the laſt inſtance of their bloodineſſe upon holy and eminent men. This I find to have been pitcht on in the Spaniſh bible of Cypriane de Valera, where upon this verſe, is this note [whom ye kill'd] i.e. ſhall kill, He foretelleth the hiſtory of Zacharias the ſon of Baruch, which Joſephus de Bell: Jud: deſcribeth, whereby the meaſure was fill'd up, v. 32. for which Jeruſalem was deſtroyed. The only objection againſt this is, the ὃν ἐφονεύσατε, whom ye ſlew, whereas this man was not now ſlain at the time of Chriſt's ſpeaking; But this is readily anſwered, 1. that the aoriſt may fitly be rendred whom yee ſhall have ſlain, and that it muſt be ſo, becauſe the blood of Chriſt and Stephen and James, and all that ſhould fall by them in thoſe forty years, was contained in the [πᾶν αἷμα δίκαιον all the righteous blood] here mention'd, as ingredients in that judgment on the Jewes. 2dly, 'Tis ordinary in prophecies to uſe the time paſt for the future, and ſo Rev. 2. 19. when Antipas is mention'd, ὃς ἀπεκτάνθη who was kill'd, (who yet was not * kill'd till after the time of that viſion) 'tis clear it muſt be ſo taken. So 1 Theſſ. 2. 16. ſpeaking of the deſtruction of the Jewes v. 15. which was not then come at the writing of that Epiſtle, he ſaith, ἔφθασεν in the Aoriſt, the wrath of God hath overtook them, or come haſtily upon them, εἰς τέλος, to a finall utter deſtruction, i.e. their meaſure of iniquity is fill'd up, and ſo this deſtruction ſecured to them, as if it were already fall'n upon them. And ſo this is the moſt full interpretation of the place, and clear from all difficulty.

* See the Praemonition Conc: the Apocalyps.

h. θυσιαστήριον

There were two ſorts of Altars, one the θυμιατήριον the altar of incenſe, within the Temple (ἔνδον ἐκ τὸ ἁγιασμᾶν] in Philo) the other θυσιαστήριον the altar of holocauſt or burnt offering, that was without in the court, (ἔξω ἐκ τὰ ἱερεῖα, ſee note on Apoc. 6. c.) Of both of them Philo's words are perſpicuous and worth ſetting down, Ὁ νόμος ἐκέλευε δύο κατασκευασθῆναι βωμὸς, ᾗ ὕλαις, ᾗ τῇ τόποις, ᾗ τ χρήσεσι διαφέροντας, the law appointed two altars to be made, differing in matter, and place, and uſes: ὁ μὲ ἐκ λίθων λογάδων ἀτμήτων (ὠικοδόμηϒ), ᾗ ἐν ὑπαίθρῳ ἔδρᾳ τ τῆ τοῦ ἐσ βάσεων ἱδρυϒ, ᾗ γέγονε ἐκ χρείας τοῦ τ ἐναλμων, For the one was built of choice unhewed ſtones, and was ſet in the open court by the aſcent or ſtaires of the Temple, and was for the bloody ſacrifices; ὁ δ χρυσῦ μὲ κατασκάφας, ἱδρυϒ δ ἐν δόλῳ τοῦ ἐσ τέρα καταπετάσματος, ὃς ὁρᾶσθαι τ ἄλλων ἔξεσ ἐκτὸς, ὅσ μὴ τῶν ἀγνίσεσι τ ἱερέων, ᾗ γέγονε ἐκ χρείας τ τ θυμιαμάτων, The other was made of gold ſet in the inner court within the firſt veyle, which cannot be ſeen by any other, but only by thoſe of the prieſts that are clean, and this was for the offering of incenſe, And ſo that wch was ſaid of Zacharias, 2 Chron. 24. 21. that he was ſtoned in the court of the houſe of the Lord, i.e. in the court of the Temple (as ναὸς Temple here, and οἶκος houſe Lu. 11. 51. are directly all one) might be well enough agreeable to what is here ſaid, that he was ſlain betwixt the Temple, and the altar, to wit, this altar of holocauſt, peculiarly θυσιαστήριον (as here) which was without in the court, and to that alſo belongs as properly, that which Joſephus ſaith of the other Zacharias ſon of Baruch, that he was ſlain ἐν μέσῳ τῷ ἱερῷ, in the midſt of the Temple, i.e. not of the ναὸς or ſanctuary, rendred temple here, but of the ἱερὸν, i.e. the whole fabrick of court, &c. Beyond this altar and court was Salomon's Porch built before the Temple, or at the entrance to it, and the ſpace betwixt that portall and the altar of incenſe was (ſaith Codex Middoth c. 3.) 22 cubites, Thither the Prieſt was wont to enter at other times with incenſe, at that altar to ſanctifie the prayers of the people; But on daies of Expiation, he was not to approach ſo farre, but without the dore of the porch to proſtrate himſelf (as unworthy to approach the ſanctuary) and there to confeſſe the ſins of the people, Joel 2. 17. where the Prieſts are ſaid to weep between the porch and the altar, i.e. betwixt Solomon's porch, and the altar of burnt-offering in the court, where, ſaith Kimchi on that place, עמדים לעבוד עבודתם they ſtood to miniſter their miniſtery, i.e. to officiate there. So Joma: c. 3. §. 8. the bullock ſtood בין האולם ולמזבח, between the porch and the altar, and the Prieſt laid his hands upon him, and confeſt, and ſaid, אנא השם &c. I pray thee, Lord, I have offended and been rebellious, and have ſinned before thee, I and my houſe, I beſeech thee Lord, forgive now the offences, and rebellions, and ſins, wherewith I have offended and rebell'd and ſinn'd againſt thee, I and mine houſe, &c. And they anſwer, Bleſſed be the name of his kingdome for ever and ever. So Ezr. 10. 1. Ezra is ſaid on the faſt day to weep, and caſt himſelf down before the houſe of the Lord, i. e. in that court before the porch of the Temple, and 1 Mac. 7. 38. the Prieſts entred in (to the court of the Temple) and ſtood between the Altar and the Temple weeping, where though the Greek tranſlatour read ἔμπροσθεν τ θυσιαστηρίου ᾗ ναῦ before the the altar and temple, yet Joseph Ben Gorion's Hebrew reads distinctly בין האולם ולמזבח between the porch and the altar.

i. γενεὰ generation signifies not a whole ſaecle, but rather the third part of a ſaecle, or hundred years, as in Homer when of Neſtor 'tis ſaid, τῷ δ' ἤδη δύο μὲν γενεαὶ, Ιλ. α'. the two generations ſignifie about 60 years, and ſo in * Herodotus, τριακόσιαι γενεαὶ δυώδεκα μέσεα ἔτη, 300 generations are equivalent to 10000 years, and Clem: Alex: Strom: l.2. εἰς τὰ ἑκατὸν ἔτη τρεῖς ἐγγεγραμμένοι γενεαὶ, three generations amount to an hundred years. So Phavorinus, γενεαὶ καὶ τὸ παλαιὸν τριάκοντα χρόνοι, the Ancients uſed the word to ſignifie 30 years, and citing that of Neſtors age in Homer, ſaith it ſignifies, that ὑπερῆν τὰ ἑξήκοντα ἔτη, he was above 60 years old, So in Heſychius the word is taken to ſignifie either the life of a man, or thirty years, or 25, or 20, (as it is alſo taken for ſeven years by the Phyſitians, and for ten clearly in Jeremy's Epiſtle v.2.) where the life of a man ſignifies not the ordinary ſpace of a mans life from birth to death, for that may be ſixty or eighty years, but ſo as the ſpace of the life of 14 men, children to one another, and ſucceeding one another make up 14 generations, Mat. 1. By all which it appears what is meant here by the phraſe this generation, ſuch a ſpace that they that were then alive might and ſhould live to ſee it; And ſo Chriſt here foretells 1. the great perſecutions from the Jewes, and 2. the great judgments and deſtruction, that ſhould then come upon that people within few yeares, † about 40 ſaith Euſebius Eccl: Hiſt: l.3. c.7. within the ſpace of the life of ſome that were then alive, as was ſaid c. 16. 28. (ſee the note there) and is more largely ſhewed c.24. where that which was ſaid of the deſtruction of the Jewes was occaſion'd by this ſpeech of Chriſt's in this Chap: (ſee note on Lu: 18. 7. c.

h. ἀπ' ἄρτι

'Απ' ἄρτι here (as in ſome other places) ſignifies not from henceforth, as it were from that very time wherein he ſpake, for 'tis clear, they ſaw him after this, but as Euthymius expounds the ſame, Rev. 14. 13. (whether in two or one word, ἀπ' ἄρτι, or ἀπάρτι, it is all one) within a while after or no long time after, which ſeems to be the ſame ſpeech, which S. John expreſſes by the [ἔτι μικρὸν καὶ ὁ κόσμος με οὐκέτι θεωρεῖ με, Jo: 14. 19. yet a little while and the world ſees me no more, and again c. 16. 16. μικρὸν καὶ οὐκέτι θεωρεῖτέ με (ſee note on Rev. 14. 13.) ſo Joh. 1. 51. Verily I ſay unto you, ἀπ' ἄρτι ὄψεσθε τὸν οὐρανὸν ἀνεῳγότα, within a while ye ſhall ſee the heaven open'd (which belongs not to any thing that was beginning at that minute, but within a few years after at his aſcenſion) and the Angels of God deſcending and aſcending upon the ſonne of man, which clearly belongs to that which is ſet down by way of ſtory, Act. 1. 9 10. while they looked he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their ſight, and behold two men ſtood by them in white apparel &c. Beſide theſe places twice more is the word uſed Job. 13. 19. and 14. 7. where it ſeems to be taken only as an expletive (as ἄρτι or νῦν, or as we uſe now) and no more.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XXIV.

1. the magnificent ſtructures which Herod had built there.

1. AND Jeſus went out and departed from the temple, and his diſciples came to him for to ſhew him the [buildings of the Temple.]

2. Of all this ſtately fabrick of the Temple, which yee ſee, there ſhall within a while remain no one part undemoliſhed, but all plow'd up from the very foundation.

2. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, [See yee not all theſe things? Verily I ſay unto you, there ſhall not be left here one [a] ſtone upon another which ſhall not be * thrown down.]

* pluckt aſunder, καταλυθήσεται

3. When this deſtruction of City and Nation, and Temple (the two former threatned under the phraſe of [all theſe things coming to paſſe] c.23.36. the latter, of not one ſtone upon another of the buildings of the Temple v.2.) ſhall fall out, and what ſignes ſhall there be beforehand of this thy coming in judgment, and of the deſtruction of the Jewiſh ſtate?

b. c.

3. And as he ſat upon the mount of Olives, the diſciples came unto him privately, ſaying, Tell us, [when ſhall theſe things be, and what ſhall be the ſigne of thy [b] coming and of the * [c] end of the world?]

* concluſion of the age?

4. To this double queſtion, (concerning the time, and the ſignes of this approaching deſtruction) and firſt to the laſt part of it, what forerunners there ſhould be of this deſtruction upon the Jewes, Jeſus gave anſwer, thus,

4. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid] unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you.

5. One ſign or forerunner is this, There ſhall ariſe among you many falſe Chriſts, Jewes taking upon them to be the Meſſias expected, and accordingly calling the people to come after them as Aſſertors and Vindicators of the liberties of the Jewes, (ſee note d.) and each of them ſhall have many followers aſſociating themſelves to them.

5. For many ſhall come in my name, ſaying, I am Chriſt, and ſhall deceive many.]

d. 6. And a ſecond ſigne is great rumors, and diſcourſes of warres, which will be apt to fright and diſcourage you, but theſe will be Panick terrors, precurſory only to that great and ſad ruine that ſhall follow, but not yet.

6. And ye ſhall hear of warres and rumors of warres, ſee that yee be not troubled; for all theſe things muſt come to paſſe, but the [d] end is not yet.]

e. 7. For there ſhall be a third change yet farther preparatory to it, great broyles, and civil warres, and commotions among your ſelves (ſee v.9. and note on Lu. 21. a.) famines and peſtilences &c. thorough all Judæa.

7. For [e] nation ſhall riſe againſt nation, and kingdome againſt kingdome, and there ſhall be famines, and peſtilences, and earthquakes in divers places.]

8. Theſe are the ſignes of the approach of thoſe ſad pangs, (which ſhall bring forth deliverance to my diſciples, that adhere faſt to me, but utter deſtruction to the obdurate Jewes) yet only of the approach, for there are other forerunners ſtill behind.

8. All theſe are the beginning of * ſorrowes.]

* throwes, or, pangs of travailing deliver

9. Then

9. Then ſhall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and ſhall kill you; and yee ſhall be hated of all nations] for my names ſake.

9. For firſt it ſhall fall heavy on you Diſciples; the orthodox Chriſtians ſhall be every where delivered up by the unbelieving Jews to impriſonment and death it ſelf, and be hated, and perſecuted by them in all quarters of Judea, and whereever elſe they are diſperſed (ſee note e.)

10. And then many ſhall be offended, and ſhall betray one another, and ſhall hate one another.]

10. And then many Chriſtians ſhall by their ſufferings be diſcouraged from following me any longer, and to ſecure themſelves ſhall betray other their fellow Chriſtians, and deal malitiouſly againſt them.

11. And many falſe prophets ſhall riſe, and ſhall deceive many.]

11. And this ſhall be an opportunity for another ſort of falſe teachers, to ariſe (ſee note d. and 2 Theſſ. 2. 3. and 1 Joh. 2. note a.) the Gnoſtickes, followers of Simon Magus, who by two allectives, firſt promiſe of immunity from the preſent perſecutions, then by allowing carnall liberties, ſhall corrupt and inveagle many Chriſtian profeſſors.

12. And becauſe iniquity ſhall abound, the love of many ſhall wax cold.]

12. And by reaſon of the extreme ſharpneſſe of the perſecutions, great multitudes ſhall fall off from Chriſtianity to that ſect of the Gnoſticks, who profeſſe not to have ſo much love or zeal to Chriſt as to acknowledge or confeſſe him in time of perſecution. See note on Lu. 2. 6.

13. But he that ſhall endure to the end, the ſame ſhall be ſaved.]

13. But the event ſhall prove this prudentiall compliance of theirs, and denying of their perſecuted profeſſion to be the greateſt folly in the world, this very deſigne of avoyding dangers ſhall ingulf them into them, and (as for ſalvation hereafter, ſo) for ſecurity, ſure the ſureſt way to attain to both, is the conſtant adhering to Chriſt without wavering, (ſee note on c. 10. g. &. v. 39.)

14. And this Goſpel of the kingdome ſhall be preached in all the world for a witneſſe unto all nations, and then ſhall the end come.]

14. And after this there ſhall be but one prognoſtick more, viz. that the diſciples ſhall depart and preach the Goſpell to them that are more likely to receive it, After the Jews rejecting the Goſpell, it ſhall be removed from them, and preacht to the Gentiles, and then ſpeedily ſhall this deſtruction come. See 2 Theſſ. 2.3.

15. When yee therefore ſhall ſee the [f] abomination of deſolation ſpoken of by Daniel the prophet, ſtand in the holy place, (who ſo readeth, let him underſtand)]

15. And therefore to proceed from the ſignes to the thing it ſelf, from the forerunners, to this actuall ſad coming of mine in vengeance upon the crucifiers, obſerve what I now ſay unto you; As ſoon as ever yee ſee the Roman army, which will make ſuch an horrid vaſtation, that you may reſolve it the ultimate completion of that prophecy of Daniel, (which belonged primarily unto Antiochus, but ſecondarily alſo to theſe Romans) when, I ſay, yee ſhall ſee this army ſet down in a ſiege, and begirting the holy city (when you read that place in Daniel, remember what I now ſay, and remember how pertinent it is to this purpoſe, though ſpoken alſo of another.)

f.

16. Then let them which be in Judea [g] fly to the mountains.
17. Let him which is on the [h] houſe top, not come down to take any thing out of his houſe.
18. Neither let him which is in the field return back to take his cloathes.
19. And wo unto them which are with child, and that give ſuck in thoſe dayes.

16,17,18,19. Then is the ſeaſon for every one that is in any part of the region of Judea to get out of it (as haſtily as Lot was by the Angel warned to get out of Sodome, Gen. 19. 17.) and to fly to the mountainous parts beyond Judea, or elſe he muſt expect to be deſtroyed in it. For this will be a very ſuddain vengeance, ſuch as on Sodome, and wofull to them that are not in condition to fly ſpeedily out of it.

g. h.

20. But pray yee that your flight be not in the winter, nor on the * Sabbath day.

* Sabbath ευσβατῳ

20. This will be a ſad condition indeed if it chance to fall out in the time of winter, when long and haſty journeys are moſt miſerable; or if on a Sabbatick year, a time of the greateſt ſcarcity (for though there was a promiſe in the law, on their obedience, that the Reſt of the Seventh year ſhould bring no ſcarcity upon them, but that the year before ſhould be bleſt with a double plenty, yet now that their diſobediences had ripened them for their utter ruine, the continuance of this miraculous mercy was not to be expected) for in ſuch a year 'tis to be expected, that thoſe, by whom yee paſſe, will have no more then they uſe for their own neceſſities, nothing to ſpare for you (at leaſt to provide for ſuch multitudes flying all at once) who yet muſt not ſtay to carry any thing with you, v. 17. And yet theſe difficulties whatſoever they are or can bee, you muſt venture on, rather then ſtay in Jeruſalem, or thereabouts.

21. For then ſhall be great tribulation, ſuch as was not from the beginning of the world to this time, no nor ever ſhall be.]

21. For on them that are left in Jeruſalem ſhall fall a more miſerable ſiege, and other conſequent preſſures, then ever was or ſhall be heard, or read of in the world.

22. And except thoſe days ſhould be ſhortned, † there ſhould [i] no fleſh be ſaved: but for the [k] elects ſake thoſe days ſhall be ſhortned.]

† no fleſh ſhould eſcape

22. Such as if it ſhould continue long, it would deſtroy every Jew that is in the land, and in all other places alſo. But that the prophecies might be fulfilled, which foretold that a remnant ſhould ſurvive this deſtruction, the time of this heavy diſtreſſe ſhall not be long, but the City being beſieged, and taken, the armies of the Romans ſhall be gone, and the baniſht Jew-Chriſtians, thoſe that fled fom the ſiege, v. 16. returne quietly to their home again.

i. k.

23. Then if any man ſhall ſay unto you, Lo, here is Chriſt, or there, beleive it not.]

* the Chriſt ὁ Χριστὸς

23. Then in the time of that diſtreſſe and flight, if any ſhall perſwade you, that here is he that ſhall deliver you (i. e. the Meſſias, that ſhall free you from this diſtreſſe) if any ſhall put you in any hope of any deliverer, ſee that you do not heed, or follow after any ſuch.

24. For at this third ſeaſon, a third ſort of falſe Chriſts ſhall ariſe (ſee note d.) aſſuming to be ſent by God to deliver you, and falſe prophets there ſhall be to perſwade you to betake your ſelves to theſe falſe Chriſts, and theſe betwixt them ſhall pretend working of miracles, and giving you ſignes to draw you after them, and (coming in a nick of time ſo advantageous for that turne, when your danger appears to you ſo great and formidable, and ſo promiſe of deliverance ſo welcome) they will be likely to draw many after them, even the moſt ſincere perſevering Chriſtians, if it were poſſible for any deceit to work upon them.

24. For there ſhall ariſe falſe Chriſts, and falſe prophets, and ſhall ſhew great ſignes, and wonders, inſomuch that (if it were poſſible) they ſhall deceive the very elect.]

25. Therefore let this premonition of mine forearme and ſecure you againſt this danger.

25. Behold, I have told you before.]

26. When therefore the news ſhall come that there is in the deſert an eminent perſon ſent from heaven to be your Captain to fight your battells, your Saviour, your deliverer, be ſure you go not forth after him, give no care to ſuch rumours, or if they ſhall tell you, that there is in ſuch a frontier towne, or place of defence, this deliverer, or Meſſias, or leader for you, depend not on any ſuch reliefe, nor forſlow your flight v. 17. upon confidence that he ſhall do any thing for you.

26. Wherefore if they ſhall ſay unto you, Behold, he is in the deſert, goe not forth; Behold, he is in the * ſecret chambers, beleive it not.]

* ſtore-houſes, cellars, places where the ammunition is kept.

27. All ſuch deceits may prove ruinous to you, for this judgment and vengeance upon the Jews ſhall come ſo, as that it cannot be avoyded, but it ſhall at the ſame time fall upon ſeverall parts of the land, or in a moment, like lightning, fly from one corner to another, this day a great ſlaughter of Jews in this place, to morrow in another a great way off.

27. For as the lightning cometh out of the eaſt, and ſhineth even unto the weſt, ſo ſhall alſo the coming of the ſon of man bee.]

m. 28. And there is no preventing of it by getting into any place of appearing ſafety, for whereſoever the Jews are, there will the Roman armies (whoſe enſigne is the eagle, and who will have a ſagacity to finde out Jews, as the eagle Job 39. 30. hath to ſmell out carcaſſes) find them out, and ſlaughter them.

28. For whereſoever the carcaſſe is, there will the m eagles be gathered together.]

n. 29. This diſtreſs ſhal make ſhort work with this nation, For immediately upon this which I have now foretold you, the Temple, the city of Jeruſalem, and the reſt of the cities of Judea, and that whole people ſhall be ſhrewdly ſhaken, all the whole government, Civill and Eccleſiaſticall, ſhall be deſtroyed.

29. Immediately after the tribulation of thoſe days the Sun ſhall be darkned, and the Moon ſhall not give her light, and the Stars ſhall fall from heaven, and n the powers of heaven ſhall be ſhaken.]

o. 30. And this ſhall appear to be a ſignall puniſhment upon the Jews, and they ſhall with ſorrow (though too late) take notice of it as a notable act of revenge of the crucified Chriſt upon thoſe that were thus guilty of his death (ſee Præmon. to the Revelation.)

30. And then ſhall appear the o ſigne of the ſon of man in heaven, and then ſhall all the tribes of the † earth mourn, and they ſhall ſee the ſon of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.]

† land, γῆς

31. And he ſhall, as with an herald, and a loud ſounding trumpet, gather together all the perſevering beleivers, that remnant, whom he purpoſed to preſerve from this deſtruction, whereſoever they are in any part of Judea, ſee Rev. 7. 12. and reſcue them from this common calamity, ſee v. 40. 41. and Rev. 7. 3. 4. &c.

31. And he ſhall ſend his Angels with a great ſound of a trumpet, and they ſhall gather together his elect from the four windes from one end of heaven to the other *.]

* Between this and the 32. v. the Or. and Lt. MS. inſert theſe words Ἀπὸ δὲ τῆς συκῆς μάθετε τὴν παραβολὴν &c. as it is Lu. 21. 28. And when theſe things begin to come to paſs, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh.

32. Now as by the ſight of a fig-tree, the ſoftneſſe of the branch, and budding out of leaves, yee know and diſcern that the winter is now paſt and the ſummer is nigh approaching,

32. Now learn a parable of the figtree: when her branch † is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, yee know that ſummer is nigh.

† is now become ſoft, and leaves ſprout forth, ἤδη γένηται ἁπαλὸς ὁ καὶ φύλλα ἐκφύῃ

33. So in like manner reſolve yee, that theſe are moſt certain and infallible ſignes, by which when you ſee them, you may conclude that this coming of the ſon of man for the deſtruction of the Jews, and your reſcue and deliverance is neer at hand.

33. So likewiſe yee, [when yee ſee all theſe things, know that * it is neer, even at the doors.]

* he is near ἐγγύς ἐστι

34. Of both which I now aſſure you, that in the age of ſome that are now alive, ſhall all that hath been ſaid in this chapter, be certainly fulfilled (ſee note on c. 23. 1. and Lu. 18. 7. c.)

34. Verily I ſay unto you, [This generation ſhall not paſſe, till all theſe things be fulfilled.]

35. What I ſay is immutably firm and ſure, the whole world ſhall be deſtroyed ſooner then one word that I have now delivered ſhall prove otherwiſe.

35. Heaven and earth ſhall paſſe away, but my words ſhall not paſſe away.]

36. But of the point of time when this judgment ſhall come (ſee note on Heb. 10. 2. and 2 Pet 3. 10.) none but God the Father knows that (ſee note on Mar. 13. 2.) and that muſt oblige you to vigilancy, and may ſuſtain you in your tryalls, (when you begin to faint by reaſon of perſecutions from the Jewes, v. 12. which this is to ſet a period to) by remembring that how farre off ſoever your deliverance ſeems to be, it may and will come in a moment unexpectedly.

36. But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my father only.]

37. But this judgment on the Jewes ſhall be like that on the old world, in reſpect of the unexpectedneſſe of it. See Lu. 17. 26.

37. But as the dayes of Noe were, ſo ſhall the coming of the ſon of man be.]

38. For

38. For as in the daies that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, untill the day that Noe entred into the arke,

39. And knew not untill the flood came and took them all away, ſo ſhall alſo the coming of the ſon of man be.]

38,39. For as in the age before the deluge, the judgment had been preached ſixſcore yeares together, and at laſt Noah by building of an arke did viſibly forewarn them of the flood approaching, yet the people went on ſecure, and unmoved in their courſe, knew not ſo much as of his imbarking, till the very minute, that the flood ſurprized them, and deſtroyed every perſon, but Noah's family, that made uſe of the meanes preſcribed them by God, ſo ſhall it be in this approaching deſtruction on this nation.

* apprehended, and the other diſmiſſ't. παραλαμβάνεται, ἀφίεται.

40. Then ſhall two be in the field, the one ſhall be * taken, and the other left.

41. Two women ſhall be grinding in a mill, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.]

40, 41. Then ſhall there be many acts of Gods providence diſcerned in reſcuing one from that calamity, wherein another is deſtroyed, eſpecially that of departing out of Judæa v.16. which the beleivers generally did at Gratus's raiſing the ſiege, (ſee note g.) the reſt ſtaying behind, and ſo being deſtroyed; Two perſons in the ſame field together ſhall be thus diſcriminated in their face, two women grinding together, or turning of a hand-mill, one of them ſhall ſtay, and be deſtroyed, and the other that was in the ſame place, and danger with her, ſhall as by the Angel that hurried Lot out of Sodome, or otherwiſe, by ſome inviſible diſpoſition of that providence, which waits on his faithfull ſervants, be reſcued from that deſtruction v.31.

42. Watch therefore, for you know not what houre your Lord doth come.]

42. This judgment then being ſo neer, and yet ſo uncertain when the time will be, it will become every one to be vigilant every minute, that he may be of the number of thoſe, to whom thoſe ſtrange deliverances are promiſed, i.e. a faithfull, conſtant, obedient ſervant of Chriſt's, not tempted from his ſervice by any terrors, ſee v.13.

* this you doe know, ταῦτο γινώσκετε

43. But * know this, that if the good man of the houſe had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have ſuffred his houſe to be broken up.

43. For certainly any man that were thus forewarned of a thief, that would break into his houſe at ſuch a time, is mad, if he doe not provide a guard to ſecure it, againſt that time.

44. Therefore be ye alſo ready, for in ſuch an houre as you think not, the ſon of man cometh.]

44. And then by the ſame reaſon, when the time is ſo uncertain, and the being ready at that time ſo neceſſary, you are obliged to be alway on your guard, expecting every houre.

45. Who then is a faithful and wiſe ſervant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his houſhold, to give them meat in due ſeaſon?]

45. Every one of you, then whoſoever ſhal be intruſted by God in any office of truſt or ſtewardſhip, eſpecially in that of getting beleivers to Chriſt, and ſhal diſcharge that truſt faithfully and diſcreetly, doe that which is his duty in times of triall, and perſecution, v.11, 12.

46. Bleſſed is that ſervant, whom his Lord when he cometh, ſhall find ſo doing.]

46. That ſervant is happy, if when his maſter comes to viſit, he continue to be thus employ'd, and ſo be found about the duties of his truſt, conſtant and perſevering, v.13.

47. Verily I ſay unto you [that he ſhall make him ruler of all his goods.]

47. His Lord ſhall enlarge his truſt, and make him ſteward of all, and not only of his houſhold, either preſerve him to be a governour in his Church after theſe ſad times are over, or otherwiſe reward him as he ſeeth beſt.

48. But and [if that evil ſervant ſhall ſay in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming,]

48. If that ſervant ſhall prove diſhoneſt, and ſay or think, that Chriſt means not to come and viſit, as he ſaid he would, 2 Pet.3.4.

49. And ſhall begin to ſmite his fellow ſervants, and to eat and drink with the drunken:]

49. And thereupon joyne in the perſecuting of his brethren (as the Gnoſticks did with the Jewes againſt the Chriſtians,) and indulge himſelf preſumptuouſly to licentious living, ſee 2 Pet.3.3. Jude 18.

50. The Lord of that ſervant ſhall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not aware of,]

50. The time of viſitation ſhall come on him, when 'tis leaſt looked for, when he is in the worſt poſture to be ſurprized.

51. And ſhall P cut him aſunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites, there ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth.]

51. And ſhall deale with him as a falſe debtor, or deceitfull ſteward, hew him aſunder, and aſſigne him the ſame lot which befalls the unbeleiving Jewes, Lu.12,46. bring the ſame deſtruction on the Gnoſtick Chriſtians, and the Jewes together, and that ſhall be an irreverſible and a moſt miſerable deſtruction. Notes on Chap. XXIV.

a. Λίθος ἐπὶ λίθον.

The full completion of this prophecy of not one ſtone left on another, is very remarkable in ſtory, which tells us that Turnus Rufus did with a ploughſhare tear up the foundations of the Temple, and ſo not leave any part of it under ground undiſſolved, not one ſtone upon another. See Scaligers Canon: Iſagog: p.304.

b. Παρουσία Χριστοῦ.

Παρουσία Χριστοῦ, the preſence, or the coming of Chriſt] is one of the phraſes that is noted in this book to ſignifie the deſtruction of the Jewes, See note on c.16.o. A threefold coming of Chriſt there is, 1. In the fleſh to be borne among us, 2ly, At the day of doome to judge the world, 1 Cor.15.23. and in many other places; And beſide theſe 3ly, a middle coming partly in vengeance, and partly for the deliverance of his ſervants; in vengeance, viſible, and obſervable on his enemies and crucifiers, (and firſt on the people of the Jewes, thoſe of them that remain impenitent unbeleivers) and in mercy to the relief of the perſecuted Chriſtians. So 'tis four times in this Chap. v.27,37,39. and here. So 2 Theſſ. 2. 1. and 8. when the coming of Chriſt is ſaid to deſtroy that wicked one, which it ſeems ſhould then in a ſhort time be revealed, which therefore as it agrees with the predictions here of the many Antichriſts before this deſtruction, ſo it cannot be applicable to that other coming at the end of the world. So *Ja.*5.7,8. where the deſigne being to eſtabliſh the ſcatterd Jew-Chriſtians, and to give them patience in their preſent preſſures, the only argument is, becauſe the coming of the Lord draws nigh, which being foretold as the ſeaſon, which he that ſurviveth, ſhould eſcape (both here in this chap. v.13. and c.10.22. and Mar. 13. 13.) as when their perſecutors (for ſuch were the unbeleiving Jewes) are deſtroyed, it muſt neceſſarily follow, The nearneſſe of it is therefore the beſt motive to confirm the patience of any; and is again expreſſed v.9. by the Judges ſtanding before the gate, i.e. very nigh at hand, ready to enter on the work. And ſo I conceive it ſignifies alſo, 2 Pet. 1. 16. as will appear by conſidering the circumſtances of the place (ſee note c.) And ſo ch.3. 4. and 12. being a coming, which was within a while to be expected by them. And ſo 1 Joh. 2. 28. there having been before mention of the ἐσχάτη ὥρα ver.18. the laſt hour then preſent, which belongs therefore to that matter both by the [δὲ] the then preſence of it, John being the diſciple that lived to ſee it, and by the Antichriſts again, that were to come before it. Of this coming of Chriſt, it is, that Cunæus and ſome other learned men interpret that prophecy of Jacob's, of Shilo's coming, For that by Judah is ſignified the Jewiſh nation, and by the Scepter, the government, or politia, 'tis clear, which yet did not depart from them at Chriſt's birth, no nor at his death, nor till about forty years after, at which time the government was wholly taken away from that nation, and from that time to this was never in any degree recovered again, (and ſo that prophecy then, and not till then, perfectly fulfill'd) and at the ſame time was the preaching of the Goſpel to the Gentiles, which followes in that place. Thus when Chriſt anſwer'd Peter about John, If I will &c. ch.21. 20. (which is in effect that John ſhould live till this coming of Chriſt) 'tis clear that it muſt belong to the * deſtruction of the Jewes which John did outlive. That this is the meaning of his coming in glory with his angels, *Mat.*16.27. hath been ſhew'd already. So again *Mat.*26.64. his coming in the clouds of heaven, though it may be thought to look toward his finall third coming at the great day of doome, yet as the very Jewes have obſerv'd, that that phraſe ſignifies the infliction of judgment or puniſhment, ſo that it doth ſo there, appears by the beginning of the verſe, where, ſaith Chriſt, ἀπ' ἄρτι ὄψεσθε from now, i.e. within a ſhort time, ſaith Eutymius, you ſhall ſee this, &c. To the ſame may be applied that parable, wherein the Maſter giving talents to his ſervants, bids them occupy till he Come, *Lu.*19.13. that the diſciples uſe the talent intruſted to them, to get beleivers to Chriſt in Judæa, till the time, when Chriſt thus Comes to viſit. So Lu. 18. 8. when the ſon of man comes, i. e. when Chriſt thus comes to judge this nation, ſhall he find faith ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς in this land of Judæa? i. e. very little faith ſhould be found among them, The phraſe ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς (like as ארץ among the Rabbins) ſignifying in the ſame manner, as it doth Lu. 21. 23. i. e. ἐν λαῷ τούτῳ among this people, and ſo φυλαὶ τῆς γῆς, the tribes of Judæa v.30. So *Heb.*10. 37. yet a little while, an d he that cometh, will come, and will not delay, which cannot be interpreted of any other coming, but this, and had before been expreſt v.25. by ἡμέρα ἐγγίζουσα the day approaching, (ſee the note on that place) And all this agreeable to that expreſſion in S. Luke, c.19.15. where in the parable there is mention of the man ἐπανελθὼν returning, or, coming back, when he had received the kingdome, i. e. of Chriſt returning again after his going to heaven, and that firſt to call his ſervants to account for the talents, to ſee what profit came in of all his, and the Apoſtles preaching on earth, and then for his enemies, that would not have him reigne over them, i.e. the Jewes that rejected and crucified him, to ſend for them, and ſee them ſlain before him. The only objection (of any appearance of reaſon) againſt this interpretation is, that this deſtruction being wrought by the Roman army, and thoſe as much enemies of Chriſtianity as any, and the very ſame people that had joyn'd with the Jewes to put Chriſt to death, it doth thereupon appear ſtrange, that either thoſe armies which are call'd abominable ſhould be call'd God's armies, or that Chriſt ſhould be ſaid to come, when in truth it was Veſpaſian and Titus that thus came againſt this people. To this I anſwer, 1. that 'tis ordinary with God in the old Teſtament to call thoſe Babyloniſh, Aſſyrian, heathen armies, his, which did his work in puniſhing the Jews, when they rebell'd againſt him. As for Veſpaſian (though it need not be ſaid, and though the anſwer is otherwiſe clear, that Chriſt is fitly ſaid to come, when his Miniſters doe come, i.e. when either heathen men or Satan himſelf, who are executioners of God's will, when they think not of it, are permitted by him to work deſtruction on his enemies, to act revenge upon his crucifiers) it is yet not unworthy of obſervation, how eaſie it might be in many particulars to ſhew that Chriſt was reſembled or repreſented by that Emperour; As 1. that it was before-hand propheeyed of him, that he ſhould be Emperour, (ſee Joſephus l.3.c.7. ἀλλὰς: Suetonius, Tacitus, Dion) 2ly, that an oxe brake in and fell down at his feet, in Suetonius, as when Chriſt was born in the ſtable it had been: 3dly, that he healed the blind and the lame with ſpittle and toneh, So Sueton: c. 7. and Tacit: l.4. Hiſt: 4ly, that he was moſt humble and mild, humillimus & clementiſſimus, ſaith Suetonius, a perfect image of what was moſt eminently true in Chriſt, Learn of me, for I am meek--&c. 5ly, that he ſhut the gate of Ianus Temple, and erected a Temple of peace, Joſephus de Bell: Jud: l. 7. c. 24. and Baron: ann: 77. 6ly, becauſe he came out of Judæa, and was Ruler over the Gentiles, and ſo was by Joſephus beleived to be the Meſſias: 7ly, that neither he nor his ſon Titus would be call'd Judaicus (in token of their victory over the Jewes) but aſcribed all the conqueſt and whole work to God, ſaith Dio: 8ly, that he was by the Jewes themſelves taken for Shiloh, or Chriſt, becauſe at that time all the progeny of the Aſſamonæi were ceaſed. By all which it is clear how farre it would be from ſtrange (how agreeable to Scripture prophecies, which muſt be allowed to have ſomewhat of figure in them, and not to be perfectly literall) that Christ ſhould be deſcribed here, in the perſon of Veſpaſian, to return, and ſo to come again to avenge his crucifixion, and puniſh the Iewes that crucified him. To which purpoſe many farther parallels betwixt the ſtory of that deſtruction and the paſſages in the ſtory of Chriſt might be obſerved out of Ioſephus, As 1. That in Galilee were the beginnings of theſe miſeries (Ioſeph: de Bell: Iud: l.3.) where Chriſt's firſt miracles were wrought. 2. That from Mount Olivet the ſiege began, l.6.c.10. where Chriſt ſeems to have been v.1. when he began to deliver this prophecy againſt them, and neer which place it was that he was apprehended. 3ly, That the time of the Paſſover was the beginning of the ſlaughter, c. 11. and lib.7. c. 17. as it was of his crucifixion (ſee Euſebius Eccl: Hiſt: l.3.c.5.) 4ly, That the high and low places were made ſmooth for the coming of the Roman army and the engines, ch.12. as was ſaid in Iohn Baptiſt's prophecy of it. 5ly, That at the coming of the Baliſta they cried out, Filius venit ch. 18. The ſon cometh, which is the very phraſe which we have now in hand. 6ly, That one was crucified alive before their faces, ch.19. 7ly, That Longinus pierced the ſide of one, ch.22. 8ly, That Titus deſired to ſave the Temple in ſpight of them c.24. and many prodigies of this nature, which might make it more reaſonable that that deſtruction ſhould be thus ſtyled, the coming of Chriſt.

c. By what hath been ſaid of the meaning of Chriſt's coming in this place, will appear alſo, what is the Συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνος. Συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνος, the concluſion of the age, eſpecially if it be markt, that in ſtead of theſe two together, S. Luke c.21.7. hath only ταῦτα theſe, uniting them into one, What is the ſigne when theſe things ſhall come to paſſe? and S. Mark ὅταν μέλλῃ ταῦτα πάντα συντελεῖσθαι, when all theſe things ſhall be concluded, i.e. thoſe immediately forementioned, the deſtruction of the Temple, c.13. 4. (ſee note on *Mar.*13.a.) For the word αἰὼν literally ſignifies age (ſee note on Lu. 1:m.) and is in a manner the Engliſh word with the Greek termination (and ſo is uſed ſometimes for the age of man, all one with ἥβη, as Homer Il:γ'. μινυνθάδιός τε αἰὼν a ſhort age) and then Συντέλεια will denote the concluſion, or ſhutting up of that age, or the Iewiſh ſtate, which was to be within that age, According to that of the Iewes, that there was a double age, the then preſent and the future, μέλλων αἰὼν the age to come, *Iſ.*9.6. which they call the age of the Meſſias. And ſo this revenge upon the Iewes, the deſtruction of that people, may be ſtyled the conſummation of the age. An eminent place there is in the Book of Tobit, which will give light to this, and ſhew the ground of this phraſe in the ordinary ſpeech of the Iewes, it is ch. 14. 5. where Tobit prophecies of three periods, which ſhould fall after his time, 1. The rebuilding of the Temple, God ſhall again bring them into the land, where they ſhall build the Temple, but not like the firſt, and that ſhall continue till the times of that age be fulfilled, that is the ſecond period, the concluſion or conſummation of the age here, the end of the Iewiſh ſtate. And then after, is the glorious Ieruſalem, the glorious building ſpoken of by the Prophets, and there deſcribed, v. 6. by the turning of the nations, converting of the Gentiles, and ſerving God truly, and burying their idols, which is clearly the ſtate of Chriſtianity. Thus Thus when in Gemara, out of an ancient writing 'tis ſaid, Sanhed: c.11.§.29. that after 4291 years עולם יתום the age ſhall be conſummated, 'tis clear that it belongeth to this matter, not to the end of the whole world, but, as they ſay, to the daies of the Meſſias, which they uſe to call אחרים חיים the laſt daies, and ſo *Heb.*9.26. Συντέλεια τῶν αἰώνων, the conſummation of the ages, in the ſame ſenſe alſo. And in that famous place of Daniel (referr'd to v.14.) c.9.27. he ſhall make it deſolate even untill the conſummation. So ch.13.40. Συντέλεια αἰῶνος τούτου, the concluſion of this age, that famous period of the Iewiſh ſtate, till which time Chriſt would not have the wicked hereticall Profeſſors medled with, or diſcriminated, but pure beleivers, and impure misbeleivers permitted together, that is, the Gnoſticks (that ſoon ſprung up after Chriſt's departure) and the orthodox Chriſtians, And accordingly ſo it was. Theſe abominable hereticks infeſted the Church, and ſo for ſome time continued to doe under the guiſe of Chriſtians, though their hereſie were a rapſody of Heatheniſme and Iudaiſme and all vile practiſe. Only when the time of viſitation came, then they were deſtroyed with the crucifiers of Chriſt, and then the diſcrimination was made. For the notion of this phraſe, *Mat.*28.20. ſee note b. on that Chapter. The like phraſes (τὸ τέλος the end, and τέλος πάντων the end of all things, &c.) have, and ſhall be obſerved in their due places. τέλος add:

d. What τὸ τέλος the end ſignifies is expreſt by S. Chryſoſtome τέλος Ἱεροσολύμων the end of Ieruſalem, the ſame that before by Chriſts coming and the end of the age. So v. 14. Then ſhall the end come, to wit, when the Goſpel having been preached through all the cities of Iudea ſucceſſively, the Apoſtles turne to the Gentiles, as 'tis in the beginning of that verſe. So Mar. 13. 7. the place directly parrallel to this, ſo Lu. 21. 9. alſo, and 1 Pet. 4. 7. τὸ τέλος πάντων the end of all things, i. e. of the Jewiſh State, wherein thoſe of the diſperſion to whom he wrote, were ſo particularly concerned; And 'tis obſervable, that as there, when the end of all things, i. e. that fatall deſtruction was at hand, there was actually ἐν ὑμῖν among them the πύρωσις v. 12. i. e. a combuſtion or conflagration, to wit, that of civill broyles cauſed by the unbeleiving Jews, and hereticall Gnoſticks againſt the orthodox and pure Chriſtians, ſo here before this comming of the end, the nation ſhall riſe againſt the nation, &c. v.7. i. e. there ſhould be theſe civill commotions and warres among them, which did indeed ſo haſten their ruine, and make it ſo cruell when it came. Thus alſo 1 Theſſ. 2. 16. where upon the filling up the meaſure of their ſins the wrath of God is ſaid to have come haſtily upon thoſe Jews εἰς τὸ τέλος to a πανωλεθρία, or totall deſtruction of them, for though it were not then actually done when that Epiſtle was writ, yet it was ſo certainly decreed againſt them, that it is ſaid in the Aoriſt, indefinitely, it hath overtaken them already, i. e. will ſpeedily overwhelme them. Thus is the phraſe uſed by Ezechiel c. 7. An end, the end is come upon the four corners of the land, v. 2. and 3. now is the end come upon thee, and v. 6. an end is come, the end is come, All to the deſtruction of the Jewes, not to the end of the whole world; ſee note on Act. 2. a. Now whereas it is here ſaid, that all muſt come to paſſe, but the end is not yet, it follows manifeſtly Ψευδόχριστοι. manifeſtly from hence, that the falſe Chriſts mentioned v. 5. muſt be ſome perſons, that came before that period which is here called the end, i. e. before the approach of the Romans to deſtroy Jeruſalem, ſoon after the aſcenſion of Chriſt. Of this kind is that Theudas which is mentioned by Euſebius in the time of Claudius, not he that is referred to by Gamaliel Act. 5. 36. (for he is there ſaid to have been before Judas Galilens, which was in the dayes of the taxing, i. e. about the time of the birth of Chriſt, ſee Euſeb. l. 1. c. 5.) but another later Theudas, which though Euſebius by incogitancy affirme to be the ſame, which is mentioned by Gamaliel before Judas, yet he out of Joſephus places him in the time of the prefecture of Fadus, i. e. in Claudius's reigne. And of this Theudas ſaith Joſephus, that being a ſorcerer he perſwaded a great multitude to bring all their goods and follow him to the river Jordan, which he promiſed to divide by his commands and give them an eaſie paſſage over it, and ſaying thus, πολλὰς ἠπάτησεν he deceived many (which is the thing here affirmed of him) and he and his were by Fadus diſcomfited, and his head cut off, and brought to Jeruſalem. Such again was the Egyptian, Act. 21. 31. mentioned alſo by * Euſebius and Joſephus. And ſuch was Doſithes or Doſitheus which called himſelf χριστὸς, ſaith Origen, contr. Cel. l. 2. And indeed the reſt of the forenamed and many more, which roſe up with this undertaking, that they would redeem the Jews out of their ſubjection to the Romans, though they did not diſtinctly call themſelves Chriſt, yet did ſo in effect, the definition of a Chriſt being ὁ μέλλων λυτροῦν τὸν Ἰσραὴλ he that ſhould redeem Iſrael, Lu. 24. 21. As for the falſe Prophets mentioned v. 11. they belong to another period of time, immediately before the fatall day, v. 14. and by that which is mentioned together with them (the Chriſtians hating and betraying one another, and many being ſcandalized, and falling off from Chriſt by that means, and the multiplying of iniquity, i. e. the unnaturall dealing of thoſe fellow-Chriſtians, in ſharpning the Jewes, and bringing that heavy tribulation, and oppreſſion upon them, and the growing cold of love, i. e. of conſtancy in confeſſing of Chriſt, all which was eminently fulfilled in the Gnoſticks, that filthy ſect of Chriſtians) 'tis moſt proper to interpret thoſe Pſendo-Prophets to be the followers of Simon Magus, to wit, thoſe Gnoſticks, which firſt ſecretly infus'd their doctrines of complyance with the Jewes, on purpoſe to avoid perſecution from them, Gal. 6. 12. and at the time of writing the ſecond Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, were then a myſtery of iniquity, i. e. had not then broken out into that height, as ſoon after they did, upon occaſion of the Apoſtles departing from the Jewes, and going profeſſly to the Gentiles, a while before the deſtruction of the Jewes, which came, and deſtroyed theſe alſo, 2 Theſſ. 2. 8. And ſo 'tis here ſaid next after the mention of the falſe Prophets, and the perſecutions wrought by them, that the Goſpell ſhall be preacht to all the world for a witneſſe to all nations, i. e. that the Apoſtles ſhall give over the Jewes and go preach to the Gentiles, and then ſhall the end come, v. 14. and what that is, appears by the next words, v. 15. the abomination of deſolation, &c. i. e. Jeruſalem beſieged, in S. Luke. As for the Pſendo-Prophets and Pſendo-Chriſts v. 24. they belong to a third time, or period, immediately after the firſt ſiege of Jeruſalem, at the time of their flying out from thence to ſave themſelves, for in that time of great diſtreſſe, v. 21. many, it ſeems, pretended to be deliverers, if they would follow after them.

Θευδας. Eccl. Hiſt. l. 2. c. 11. Αἰγύπτιος *l. 2. c. 12. Λυτρώσει. Ψευδοπροφῆται.

The Greek word [ἔθνος] here, which we render nation, and the Latine gens, (anſwerable to the Hebrew גּוֹי are the originals from whence the words ethnick (or heathen) and Gentile come, and by the cuſtomary acception of the words for the other nations of the world, excluſively, and in oppoſition to the Jewes then, and Chriſtians now, it comes to paſſe, that the word [nations] is ordinarily thought to ſignifie all other people of the world, but never the Jewes. But this is a miſtake thus caſually and cauſeleſly occaſioned; For there were ſeverall diviſions of Paleſtine (as they were before ἔθνη πολλὰ, Deut. 15. 6. many nations and great, c. 9. 1. which the Jewes were now poſſeſt of) Judea, and Galilee, and Iturea, and Abylene, and each of theſe is properly called ἔθνος natio, and ſo βασιλεία kingdome too, there being ſeverall Tetrarchs over them Lu. 3. 1. So Eccluſ. 50. 26. there being mention of δύο ἔθνη two nations, Samaria is preſently ſpecified to be one of them. And ſo here and Lu. 21. 10. the phraſe nation againſt nation (and in like manner kingdome againſt kingdome) may well denote civill inteſtine commotions in Paleſtine, perhaps one of theſe Tetrarchies againſt another, or elſe one of theſe againſt it ſelfe (as civill warres are inteſtine breaches in the ſame city or nation) and ſo certainly the very phraſe is uſed 2 Chron. 15. 6. where as an expreſſion of the great vexations of the Jewes v. 5. 'tis added, nation was deſtroyed of nation, city of city, where the Greek read πολεμοῦσι ἔθνος ἐπ' ἔθνος nation ſhall fight (as here ſhall riſe) againſt nation. In this ſenſe we finde not only the word nation in the ſingular appropriated by ſome adjunct to Judea, as our nation, Lu. 7. 5. our place, and nation, Joh. 11. 48. the nation of the Jewes, Act. 10. 22. this nation, Act. 24. 2. 10. thy nation, Joh. 18. 35. and my nation, Act. 24. 17. 26. 4. 28. 19. but without any ſuch adjunct, τὸ ἔθνος the nation, Lu. 23. 14. and Joh. 11. 50. 51, 52. and even in the plural the word nations uſed in the Prophets for Paleſtine; ſo Pſal. 2. 8. the גּוֹיִם, or nations, and people that oppoſe Chriſt, are, I conceive, the Jewes in their conſultation againſt him, and ſo 'tis interpreted and applyed peculiarly to them, Act. 4. 25. 27. where they are called ἔθνη, καὶ λαοὶ the nations and people, and more diſtinctly, v. 28. (divided from Herod and Pontius Pilate) the nations and people of Iſrael. And ſo when of Jeremy 'tis ſaid, that he was ordained a Prophet unto the nations, Jer. 1. 5. the Jewes ſure, are at leaſt one of thoſe nations. So c. 4. 16. mention to the nations, i. e. to the Jewes. For by that which followes in the next words, publiſh againſt Jeruſalem, it appears to be a prophecy againſt that people, ſo c. 25. 11. theſe nations, i. e. the Jewes, ſhall ſerve the King of Babylon ſeventy years, the preciſe time of the Jewiſh captivity. So when Mat. 12. 15. 'tis ſaid that Chriſt withdrew from Capernaum (and Mar. 3. 7. 'tis ſpecified that it was to the ſea of Galilee) upon that is applyed to him by S. Matthew that of Iſ. 42. 1. that he ſhall declare judgement to the Gentiles, e. Ἔθνος

Gentiles, or nations, and in him ſhall the ἔθνη nations truſt, i. e. the Jewes in Galilee and the adjacent cities of Tyre and Sidon, &c. which came out and were healed of him, Mar. 3. 8. when the Phariſees conſulted to deſtroy him, Mat. 12. 14. So Luk. 1. 1. when of Jeruſalem 'tis ſaid, that ſhe was great among the nations, that ſignifies that city to have been the Metropolis of Judea, as is farther expreſt by the next words, [and Princeſſe among the Provinces.] And ſo, I ſuppoſe, is to be affirmed of the chiefe or firſt fruits of the nations, Am. 6. 1. and ſome others the like; Thus Lu. 21. 25. ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς συνοχὴ ἐθνῶν, a diſtreſſe of the nations on, or in the land of Paleſtine, ſee note on that place. That this is the meaning of nation here, will appear both by the completion of this prophecy (not by warres in other parts of the world, for that was ſo ordinary a thing, that 'twas incompetent to be given for a ſigne, or denotation of a particular time, but) in the great commotions and ſlaughters (ſee Rev. 6. 4. note a.) that were in Paleſtine, as alſo by the addition of famines &c. κατὰ τόπους, from place to place, which belongs to that famine mentioned Act. 11. 28. (and in Euſebius Eccl. Hiſt. l. 3. c. 5. out of Joſephus de Bell. Ind. l. 5.) in the days of Claudius Caſar, which (agreeably to this prediction of Chriſt) was there alſo foretold by Agabus, and when 'tis there ſaid that it ſhall be ἐφ' ὅλῳ τὸν οἰκουμένῳ, on the whole world, that muſt be underſtood (as οἰκουμένη world ſignifies Lu. 21. 26. and Rom. 10. 18.) the whole land of Judea, according to the manner of the Septuagint, who oft render the land (when it ſignifies the land of Judea) by οἰκουμένη the world. So Iſ. 10. 23. where for ἐν τῇ οἰκουμένῃ in the world] the Apoſtle Ro. 9. 28. reads ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς upon the land] ſo Iſa. 13. 5. καταφθεῖραι πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην, to deſtroy the whole world, where according to the context we read to deſtroy the whole land, and ſo again v 9. θεῖναι τὴν οἰκουμένην ἔρημον, to lay (not the world, but) the land diſolate: ſo c. 24. 1. See note on Lu. 2. 2. And in this ſenſe of οἰκουμένη world, the prediction here exactly agrees with Joſephus's relation of the times, who ſaith, μέγαν λιμὸν κατὰ τὴν Ἰουδαίαν γενέσθαι, that there was a great famine through Judea. And accordingly 'tis ſaid in the Act. c. 11. 29. that they of Antioch ſent reliefe into Judea, which argues the famine to have been confined to Judea, and not extended to Antioch, ſee 1 Cor. 16. 1. and 2 Cor. 9. 1. And thus moſt probably muſt πάντα ἔθνη be interpreted in this chapter, v. 9. all the nations, i. e. of Paleſtine, all the Jewes in all parts, for the Jewes were they, which ſo hated and perſecuted them (and the Gentiles comparatively did not, but as they were ſtirred up by them) and the Apoſtles are not yet ſuppoſed to goe out of Paleſtine, but to be on their taske of preaching through the cities of Iſrael, till the time of Chriſt's coming to deſtroy that people, Mat. 10. 23. ſee note on that chap. g. And accordingly 'tis poſſible that the 14. verſe of this chapter of the preaching of the Goſpel ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, in the whole world, and εἰς μαρτύριον for a teſtimony πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι (which is there the immediate forerunner of this end, or coming of Chriſt to deſtroy the Jews) may be ſo underſtood as will be moſt agreeable to c. 10. 23. of the Apoſtles preaching through all the parts of that region, i. e. ſo as οἰκουμένη and ἔθνη ſhall not ſignifie the world, or nations in the greateſt latitude, but all Paleſtine, and the ſeverall nations and cities in it, as we know, Gens ſignifies among the Latines in a very limited ſenſe, no more then a family or kindred, and ſo here it may ſignifie all the tribes of the Jewes. But in that 14. v. it may be otherwiſe interpreted very fitly, that juſt before the coming of that vengeance on the Jewes, the Goſpel ſhall be preached through all the world, which indeed was the naturall conſequent of their having preacht over all the regions of the Jewes ſucceſſively. See more of this word ἔθνη in note on c. 28. b. and on Rev. 11. c.

f. That the τὸ βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως ἑστὸς ἐν τόπῳ ἁγίῳ] the abomination of deſolation ſtanding in the holy place, is the Roman army beſieging Jeruſalem, may appear 1. by the parallel place Lu. 21. 20. where before that admonition of [then let thoſe that are in Judea fly to the mountains, &c.] (which here followes immediately, and ſo demonſtrates it to be this very matter) theſe words are ſet, [when yee ſhall ſee Jeruſalem compaſſed with armies, then know that the deſolation thereof is nigh.] 2^dly, by the agreeableneſſe of the words to this ſenſe, and conſonance of them to that other expreſſion in S. Luke. For the βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως doth (by an Hebraiſme, imitated by the writers of the New Teſtament) ſignifie an abominable, heathen, profane, waſting company of ſouldiers, or the like: ſo in the place of Daniel (here referred to) 'tis clear c. 9. 27. with the abominable armies he ſhall make it deſolate, the word abominable being ordinarily applyed to the then polluted, and idolatrous heathen world, of which the Romans were a principall part, whoſe armies were to work this deſolation on Jeruſalem; Agreeable to which it is what Artemidorus hath ſaid in his Oneirocritickes l. 2. c. 20. that γῦπες vultures or Eagles (the very creatures to which in this place the Roman armies are compared v. 28.) ſignifie in his art ἐχθροὺς ἀναγεῖς καὶ μιαροὺς, wicked abominable enemies, the very paraphraſe of βδέλυγμα here. This army by which the deſolation is wrought, is therefore expreſt by this. And the ſtanding of it in the holy place, is the ſituation of it about Jeruſalem, for ſo ἐν ſignifies on or among or cloſe to that place, to wit, the bounds of that City which is ſo oft called the holy city, or place. And ſo theſe words, though at firſt ſighe ſomewhat diſtant from it, ſignifie no more then that heathen army about Jeruſalem. And when in S. Marke 'tis ſaid to ſtand ὅπου οὐ δεῖ where it ought not, that referres to the ſeparation made by God of the Jews from all other the heathen people, which were not to come to that place, which is therefore called holy in reſpect of that ſeparation from all others. That by this prophecy in Daniel is meant the πολλὰς φθορὰς καὶ ἀφανισμὸς Ἰουδαίων, the totall deſtruction and finall ruine of the Temple, ſee Euſeb. Eccl. Hiſt. l. c. 3. 5.

g. How exactly the ſeverall paſſages of ſtory in Joſephus agree with theſe predictions, will eaſily be diſcerned by comparing them, particularly that which belongs to this place of their flying to the mountains &c. For when Gratus beſieged Jeruſalem, and without any viſible cauſe, on a ſuddain raiſed the ſiege, what an act of God's ſpeciall providence was this, thus to order it, that the believers or Chriſtian Jewes being warned by this ſiege, and let looſe (ſet at liberty again) might flie to the mountains, i. e. get out of Judæa to ſome other place? Which that they did accordingly, appears by this, that when Titus came ſome months after and beſieged the city, there was not one Chriſtian remaining in it. This ſame thing is obſerved by Euſebius Eccl: Hiſt: l. 3. c. 5. and that the people of the Church in Hieruſalem (i. e. the Chriſtians there) κατὰ τινὰ χρησμὸν &c. according to an oracle delivered by revelation to ſome honeſt men among them, commanding them to goe over Iordan to a city called Pella, did all remove thither, and left Ieruſalem without any Chriſtians in it at their deſtruction; And this he referres to read at large in Ioſephus, where the ſtory is ſet down. The ſame is again related by Epiphanius, de Pond: & Menſ: ch. 15. (ſee 1 Pet. 1. 5.)

h. δώμα. The buildings of Judæa had generally δώματα plain roofs fit to walk upon, and converſe in, as cloyſters paved with ſtones to that purpoſe. See Gerſon tract: in Magnif: p. 975. whence, ſaith he, is that of the Pſalmiſt, I am become as a ſparrow on the houſe-top, walking ſolitary there.

i. Σὰρξ πᾶσα By no fleſh] here, is meant none of all the Iewes, ſo ſaith S. Chryſoſtome, πᾶσα σὰρξ, i. e. Ἰουδαικὴ, all fleſh, i. e. all the Iewes, That is, that the ſharpneſſe of this warre from the Romans without, and of the Zelots within, that killed all that were averſe from warre, was ſuch, that if it had continued, εἰ δὲ πλέον ἐπεμένετο κατὰ τῆς πόλεως, if it had gone on farther againſt the city, all the Iewes every where ἐξώλοντο ἂν πάντες, had been deſtroyed utterly.

k. Ἐκλεκτοὶ. The ἐκλεκτοὶ] here are thoſe few, whom God had determin'd to preſerve out of that common deſtruction, the beleivers among the Jewes, Theſe are the remnant, ſo oft mention'd by the Prophets, that they ſhould eſcape, λεῖμμα κατ' ἐκλογὴν, the remnant according to the election of grace, Rom. 11. 5. So v. 7. ἡ ἐκλογὴ, this remnant of the Jewes] have obtained that, which the reſt, being obdurate, and ſenſeleſſe, obtained not. Of this word ſee note on 1 Pet. 2. b.

l. Ταμεῖα Ταμεῖα] ſaith Heſychius, ſignifie ἀπόκρυφα οἰκήματα, ſecret dwellings, poſſibly ſuch where men could gather company together undiſcernibly, and ſo raiſe armies ſecretly, as others (which deſigned it openly) in the wilderneſſe, v. 5. But 'tis more likely that ταμεῖον being taken ordinarily for a magazine or ſtorehouſe, the word may ſo ſignifie here, places for ammunition and armes, ſome frontier towns in the borders of that kingdome, where men and armes lay in ſtore for defence. Agreeable to this is that of Heſychius in the word ταμίαι, that they are οἱ τῶν δημοσίων χρημάτων καὶ πάντων τῶν κοινῶν ἐπιτρόποι, καὶ φύλακες, ταμίαι ἦσαν, the Keepers and Governours and Storers of the publick moneys, and all elſe that was common. And accordingly the ἀπόκρυφα οἰκήματα before, may moſt probably denote ſuch houſes of ſtore under ground, cellars &c.

m. Λῃσταὶ The explication of this verſe will depend upon two things, 1. that the Eagle was the enſigne of the Romane militia, So ſaith Dion, 'twas ναὸς μικρὸς, καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ ἀετὸς χρυσοῦς, a little ſhrine with a golden eagle in it, And though the Perſians alſo had the eagle in their army, yet that was but one in the whole army, as the βασίλειον or Kings-colours, whereas the Romans had two in every legion. So in the ancient Writer of the Sibylline Oracles, prophecying of the deſtruction of the Roman powers, Καὶ δὴ αἰλοφόρων λαῶν δόξα πεσεῖται, the glory of the Eagle-bearing legions ſhall fall. To this I ſhall only adde that of Pliny, Nat: Hiſt: l. 10. Aquilam Romanis legionibus Caius Marius in ſecundo conſulatu ſuo proprie dicavit; Erat & antea prima cum quatuor aliis, Lupi, Minotauri, Equi, Apríque ſingulos ordines anteibant; Paucis ante annis ſola aquila portari cœpta eſt, reliqua in caſtris relinquebantur, Marius in totum ea abdicavit. C. Marius in his ſecond Conſulſhip appointed the Eagle for the Romane Legions. Before that, it had been the firſt, but had four more to bear it company, the Wolfe, the Minotaure, the Horſe, and the Boare. Then theſe four grew out of uſe, and only the Eagle was brought out. But Marius wholly abdicated the reſt. From whence 'tis clear, 1. that all the five enſignes in uſe among them, were by Marius reduced to that one of the Eagle, and ſo remained at the time wherein Chriſt ſpake, and indeed was not changed till Conſtantine brought the Croſſe into their armies. 2. That that, as all the other four, was an Embleme of rapacity or devouring, which (together with their ſagacity to find out, and skill to preſage ſlaughters) was the other thing, on which I purpoſed to ground the explication of this verſe. To which purpoſe (beſides that obſervation of Job's concerning the Eagle, ſhe ſeeketh the prey (σκοπιὰν θηρεύσεως, Ιλιω'.) and her eyes behold afarre off, her young ones alſo ſuck up blood, and where the ſlain are, there is ſhe, ch. 39. 29, 30. ſetting down the whole matter very exactly and punctually) I ſhall adde ſome few others out of Authors. The Eagle that is there ſpoken of in Job, is by the Tranſlatours rendred γὺψ, of which kind of vultures 'tis * Lucian's expreſſion, and that proverbiall, ſpeaking of one that had a great ſagacity, δᾶῖον πὺ γυπὸς ἴχνη καὶ νεκρὸς διαλάθοι, a carkaſſe will ſooner be concealed from thoſe vultures. So ſaith * Pharnutus, This vulture is a kind of bird conſecrated to Mars, διὰ τὸ πλουτίζειν τὰ ὄρνεα τοιοῦτα, ὅπου ἂν ὦσι πτώματα πολλὰ, becauſe ſuch birds abound, where there are many carkaſſes, and they are, ſaith he, ἀρπεδόνυγα proclaimers of fights, and doe tell their companions of them by a kind of cry of theirs. So Philes in his Iambicks περὶ ζώων. Πλὴν μαντικὴν ἴχνος ἀεὶ γύπες φύσιν, καὶ τὸ σωκοδημοῦσι τοῖς μαχιμίοις, τῶν σωμάτων ἐλπίδι τῶν πεσμένων, Μεμάνται τῇ βορᾷ τῶν λειφθέντων, Theſe birds have a divining nature in them, By which it is that they travail as companions of armies, in hope and expectation of the carkaſſes that fall there, and are moſt ravenous in the devouring of what is there left behind. So Artemidorus in his ὀνειροκριτ: l. 2. c. 20. having ſet down this very ſpecies of Eagles, theſe γύπες, to denote thoſe deteſtable enemies (which even now were mention'd, as an explication of the βδέλυγμα v. 15.) οἰκοῦντας οὐκ ἐν πόλει, which dwelt not in the city, he gives this reaſon of it, νεκροῖς γὰρ χαίρουσι σώμασι γύπες, they rejoice in dead bodies. So * again mentioning the ſignification of the ſeverall creatures, and among them the ἁρπάζοντα φανερῶς, the open raveners (among which he reckons theſe) they ſignifie, ſaith he, λῃστὰς καὶ ἅρπαγας, theeves and plunderers. From whence it is that our countryman M^r Fuller in his Miſcellanies hath conjectur'd λάβαγον or λαβαγον (τὸ παρὰ Ῥωμαίοις σημαῖνον λάβαγον Zosimen, Eccl: hist: l. 1. c. 4.) to come from λάω, which signifies devouring or rapacious. All which being put together shewes the reasonablenesse of this interpretation of the verse, and how perfectly agreeable it is to the context in this place, where the last thing that was said, was, that the judgment should fall upon the Iewes almost at once, in the most distant places of that nation, and that is here proved by this resemblance, that as the vultures find out the carkasse, wheresoever it is, so shall the Roman armies find out the Iewes, and prey, and make slaughter of them. And although in S. Luke ch. 17. 37. it be brought in by way of answer of Christ to the disciples question [Where Lord?] i.e. Where shall this visible vengeance be wrought? yet that is very agreeable with this sense also, and will hardly be capable of any other. For there should not be any determinate place for the working of this vengeance, but wheresoever the Iewes are, there shall they be found out and destroyed by these Roman Eagles. By all which it will become reasonable enough to apply to this finall destruction of the Iewes by the Roman Eagles, that prophecy so long before delivered by Moses, Deut. 28. 49. The Lord shall bring a nation against thee from farre, from the end of the earth, as the Eagle flyeth (the words as swift are put in by our English, and are not in the originall) a nation whose tongue thou shalt not understand. So Hos. 8. 1. as an eagle against the house of the Lord, &c.

* Λύκος

* Θεοῦ πολέμου τοῦ Θοίνου φίλου.

* l. 4. 58.

n. δυνάμεις οὐρανῶν

Δύναμις ordinarily signifieth an host or army and δυνάμεις οὐρανῶν, answerable to צבאי השמים the powers or the hosts of heaven, are the Sun, Moon and Stars, that move and shine there. These are used in propheticall, i. e. figurative writings, to denote the then Church of God, the people of the Iewes, (according as the Temple is called the Campe, and all things in it are expresst by that metaphore of a militia) so when Dan. 8. 10. it is said of the little horne, [It waxed great even against the host of heaven, and it cast down some of the host, and of the stars to the ground, and stamped upon them] There is little doubt, but the Iewes are meant there by the host of heaven, for otherwise it would not be very intelligible of the stars of heaven, how they should be cast down to the ground, and stamped on, save only in this sense, as Ierusalem is said elsewhere, Lu. 21. 24. to be troden under foot by the Gentiles. According to this notion of this phrase, all the rest of this verse will be interpretable, that the Sun, i. e. the Temple, the Moon, i. e. Ierusalem the chief city, and the Starres, i. e. the rest of the lesser cities, and so all together making up the host of heaven, i. e. the whole nation and Church of the Iewes, shall be brought down from the flourishing condition, which they had formerly enjoyed, many cities, Ierusalem particularly, utterly destroyed, and the whole people shaken, endangered shrewdly, brought very neer (only a remnant escaping according to the prophecies) to utter desolation (see Isa. 13. 10. and 34. 4. Ezek. 32. 7. Joel 2. 31. and Rev. 6. 13, 14. note g. and Rev. 8. note c.) And so, agreeable to this exactly will that voice of Iesus the sonne of Ananias be, Euseb. l. 3. c. 8. Αἰ αἰ τῇ πόλει καὶ τῷ λαῷ καὶ τῷ ναῷ, Wo wo to the city, and to the people, and to the Temple.

This σημεῖον may possibly signifie some speciall prodigy, that should fall about that time attending on that destruction. Iosephus mentions many, de Bell. Ind. l. 7. c. 12. especially that of a Comet in forme of a fiery sword, which for a year together hung over the city. But this was but a presage of the fatall destruction of that city, and so, though it were a visible signe of the sonne of mans coming, i. e. of the vengeance which he meant to work upon this people, and that ἐν οὐρανῷ, being literally in heaven, yet it cannot belong to this place, which sets down the consequents, which ensued μετὰ, after the distresse, and straights of those days, i. e. after the siege of Ierusalem v. 29. And therefore this signe of the son of man may rather signifie here such a manifestation of Christ's presence in this punishment on the Iewes, as should convince them that it was for their crucifying of him, that it was come upon them, and accordingly mourn (all the tribes of Israel, as it followes) &c.

o. Σημεῖον ἐξ τὸ ἀνθρώπου

p. ἀκριβοῦσθαι

Twas the law for debters that were accused and cast in judgment for falsenesse, or not performance of promise, and obligation to creditours, διχοστομεῖσθαι to be cut asunder, saith Tertull. Apol. p. 22. and so proportionably stewards, that have not performed their master's trusts: And these are ranked with hypocrites, i. e. knaves, false, deceitfull persons, expressed by S. Luke (in setting this down) c. 12. 46. by ἄπιστοι unbeleivers or unfaithfull. And the meaning of the verse seems to be this, that they which in stead of serving Christ in his Church, in bringing in beleivers to him, shall (upon the persecuting of Christians by the Iewes, and the deferring this vengeance of Christ upon that people) begin to joyne with the Gnosticks, 1. in their complying with the Iewes, and persecuting the orthodox Christians, 2dly in indulging to the licentious practises observable among them, these Apostate false servants of Christ, shall pay dearly for it, shall be destroyed by Christ like false stewards, be joyn'd with the Gnosticks (those hypocrites or unbeleivers, abominable reproaches, and staines of the Christian profession) as in their practises, so in their destruction.

CHAP. XXV.

Paraphrase.

1. THEN shall the kingdome of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lampes, and went forth to meet the bridegroome.)

1. At that poine of time last spoken of, the heavy visitation on this people, The condition of Christians will be fitly resembled by this parable of ten virgins, which took hand-lampes, (then in use and fit to carry abroad for night-lights) and went out to fetch a bridegroom, and the bride, and waite on them to the feast. See note on c. 9. e. and Revel. 18. 23.

2. And five of them were [wise, and five were foolish.]

2. prudent, provident, and the other five improvident.

3. They

3. took with them their lamps, and oyle in them, ſufficient to maintain them at preſent, but had no proviſion, or ſtore for the future.

3. They that were fooliſh [took their lamps, and took no oyle with them.]

4. a proviſion of oyle in veſſels which they had for that purpoſe, to repleniſh their lamps, when the oyle which was in, was ſpent.

4 But the wiſe took [oyle in their veſſels, with their lamps.]

5. While the bridegroom tarried, they all ſlumbred and ſlept.

6. a great noiſe, hurry, and proclamation,

6. And at midnight there was [a cry] made, Behold, the bridegroom cometh, goe yee out to meet him.

7. went to trim their lamps, and fit them for their march, but when they went to doe ſo, ſome of them had oyle, and others had ſpent it all.

7. Then all thoſe virgins [aroſe, and trimmed their lamps.]

8. for ours is all ſpent, and ſo our lamps are gone out.

8. And the fooliſh ſaid unto the wiſe, Give us of your oyle, [for our lamps are gone out.]

9. And the wiſe anſwered them, that they had reaſon to fear, that if they ſhould be ſo kind, they ſhould deprive themſelves, and not have ſufficient for both.

9. But the wiſe anſwered, ſaying, Not ſo, leſt there be not enough for us and you,] but goe yee rather to them that ſell, and buy for your ſelves.

10. place of nuptiall entertainment

10. And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and they that were ready went in with him to the [marriage,] and the dore was ſhut.

11. Afterwards came alſo the other virgins, ſaying, Lord, Lord, open to us.

12. here is now no entertainment for ſuch as you, who have by your ſloth and improvidence betrayed your ſelves.

12. But he anſwered and ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you [I know you not.]

See ch. 24. 36.

13. Watch therefore, for yee know not neither the day nor the hour,* wherein the ſon of man cometh.

* Theſe words to the end of the verſe are omitted both in the Grand Lat: and in the Kings MS.

14. his domeſtick officers in their ſeverall places, ſtewards, husbandmen &c.

14. For the kingdome of heaven is as a man travelling into a farre countrey, who called [his own ſervants] and delivered unto them his goods.

15. what was competent for that imployment, place, office, exigence of buſineſſe intruſted to him under his Lord, and agreeable to his capacity.

15. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, to every man [according to his ſeverall ability,] and ſtraightway took his journey.

16. Then he that had received the five talents, went and traded with the ſame, and * made them other five talents.

* or, gained other &c. for the Gr: & Lat: and the Kings MS. reads lucrati ſunt

17. And likewiſe he that had received two, he alſo gained other two.

18. But he that had received one, went and digged in the earth, and hid his Lords money.

19. After a long time the Lord of thoſe ſervants cometh, and reckoneth with them.

20. And ſo he, that had received five talents, came and brought other five talents, ſaying, Lord, thou deliveredſt unto me five talents, behold I have gained beſides them five talents more.

21. in trafficking with theſe lower meaner things, (ſee Lu. 19.17. and 16.10.) thou ſhalt be highly dignified, Lu. 19. 17. as one of them that thy Lord hath joy of, or that he delighteth to honour, Heſt. 6. 6.

21. His Lord ſaid unto him, Well done, thou good and faithfull ſervant, thou haſt been faithfull [over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.]

22. He alſo that had received two talents, came, and ſaid, Lord, thou deliveredſt unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beſides them.

23. His Lord ſaid unto him, Well done, good and faithfull ſervant, thou haſt been faithfull over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.

24, 25. I had had experience of thy ſeverity in requiring increaſe from thy ſervants farre above that which thou intruſteſt to them, and I for fear of loſing my talent, and provoking thy diſpleaſure thereby, thought it beſt to dig a hole in the earth, and there lay it up ſafe, and accordingly there is thy talent ſafe again, though without any increaſe of it.

24. Then he which had received the one talent, came and ſaid, Lord, [I knew thee that thou art an auſtere man, reaping where thou haſt not ſown, and gathering where thou haſt not ſtrewed:

25. And I was afraid, and went, and hid thy talent in the ground, Lo, there thou haſt that is thine.]

26. Thy words acknowledg thee to have had actually in thy thoughts, that I that was one that dealt in merchandiſe, and making of gain, would expect profit of that which I committed to thee.

26. His Lord anſwered and ſaid unto him, Thou wicked and ſlothfull ſervant, [thou kneweſt that I reap where I ſowed not, and gather where I have not ſtrewed.]

27. money-merchants (ſee note on c. 21. b.) and then at my coming home I ſhould have had mine own again, and ſome increaſe with it.

27. Thou oughteſt therefore to have put my money to the [exchangers, and then at my coming I ſhould have received mine own with uſury.]

28. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents.

29. For

* given in all abundance, vt plerique vertunt.

29. For unto every one that hath shall be given, and * he shall have abundance, but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath.]

29. For to him that useth and improveth Gods grace, shall by degrees be given so much, that at the last he shall have all abundance, but from him that doth not so, that which had formerly been given him, shall be withdrawn.

30. And cast yee the unprofitable servant into outer darkenesse, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.]

30. As for him that made no use of (nor brought in any increase to his Master from) the talents entrusted to him, the idle disobedient servant, (see note on Lu. 17. 2.) let him be cast out into the dungeon, never to come out again, that emblem of eternall hell, the place of all paine, and horrour.

31. When the son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory.]

31. All this parable from ver. 13. to this place being put as in a parenthesis, Christ here proceeds. But when Christ comes to judgment, whether to execute vengeance on this people, or (of which that is an emblem) to doome every man for his future eternall being, then shall his appearance be glorious and full of majesty.

32. And before him shall be gathered all nations,] and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepheard divideth his sheep from the goats.

32. And all the people of the Jewes, beleivers and unbeleivers, and all other men that have ever lived in this world, every one having had some talent to trade with, entrusted to him by God, shall by the Angels sent out to that purpose (ch. 13. 41.) be gathered before him.

33. And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left.]

33. And all the meek obedient followers, and disciples of his he shall place in a state of greatest dignity and preferment, but all the unfaithfull disobedient shall be cast in judgment.

34. Then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, Come yee blessed of my father, inherit the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world.]

34. And then as a King, or Judge shall he distribute the joies and dignities of the kingdome of heaven, which before all eternity were designed to be the reward of all faithfull servants of God,

35. For I was an hungred and yee gave me meat, I was thirsty and yee gave me drink, I was a stranger and yee took me in.]

35. According to every mans works of piety or charity performed in this life, expressed here by feeding, and entertaining of Christ.

36. Naked, and yee cloathed me, I was sick, and yee visited me, I was in prison, and yee came unto me.]

36. and again of cloathing his naked body, tending him when he was sick, relieving, assisting, providing for him, and visiting him in restraint.

37. Then shall the righteous] answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? when saw we thee thirsty, and gave thee drink?

37. Then shall those humble faithfull disciples of his, as not being conscious of any such acts of service or charity shewed to Christ,

38. When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and cloathed thee?

39. Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee?

40. And the king shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, In as much as yee have done it [to one of the least of these my brethren,] yee have done it unto me.

40. to the meanest man alive, partaker of that humane nature, which I have honoured by my assuming it,

41. Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, [Depart from me yee cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.]

41. You are an accursed number of men, adjudged to eternall hell, which was not originally created, or designed for you, or any of mankind, but for the Prince of Devils, and those Angels that sinn'd and fell with him, but now by your wilfull defaults is become your portion also.

42. For I was an hungred, and yee gave me no meat,] I was thirsty, and yee gave me no drink,

42. And this a most just reward for your doings, your impiety and uncharitableness of all sorts. For when I was ready to famish for hunger, you would spare nothing out of your plenty to relieve me.

43. I was a stranger, and yee took me not in, naked, and yee cloathed me not, sick and in prison, and yee visited me not.

44. Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we the an hungred or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?]

44. And then they as if not conscious of this impiety, shall begin to expostulate that they never dealt thus unkindly with Christ, never saw him in any distresse without relieving him.

45. Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, in as much as yee did it not to one of the least of these, yee did it not to me.

46. And these shall goe away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternall.

CHAP. XXVI.

1. AND it came to paſſe when Jeſus had finiſhed all theſe ſayings, he ſaid unto his diſciples,

2. Yee know that after two days is the paſſover, [and the [a] ſonne of man is † betrayed to be crucified.]
2. Which being a time of executions among the Jewes, Chriſt ſhall at that time certainly be delivered up by the Jewes to the Romans, to dye after their manner, i. e. to be faſtned on a croſſe &c.
† delivered up παραδίδοται

3. Then aſſembled together [the chiefe Prieſts and the Scribes, and the Elders of the people] unto the palace of the high prieſt, who was called Caiaphas.
3. the whole Sanhedrin.

4. And conſulted that they might [take Jeſus by ſubtilty, and kill him.]
4. apprehend Jeſus ſecretly, without any great noyſe, Lu. 22. 6. and cauſe him to be ſentenced and put to death by the Romans.

5. But they ſaid, Not on the feaſt day, leſt there be an uproare among the people.]
5. And although it were cuſtomary to put malefactors to death at ſolemne times, Act. 12. 4. that their puniſhment might be more exemplary, yet they had an exception to that, becauſe of the great opinion the people had of him, which might cauſe a ſedition among them, if 'twere done at any ſuch time of reſort, and therefore they deliberated, and had ſome thoughts of putting it off, till after the feaſt. (But it ſeems this counſell was laid aſide upon Judas's proffer, v. 15. only a fit ſeaſon was ſought by Judas, v. 16. perhaps only that of apprehending him in the night.

6. Now when Jeſus was in Bethany, in the houſe of [Simon the leper,]
6. One Simon known, and diſtinguiſh't from others by this, that he had once had a leproſie, and 'tis probable, had been cured of it by Chriſt, and ſo was a diſciple of his, a Chriſtian.

7. There came unto him [a woman] having an [b] * alabaſter boxe of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he † ſat at [c] meat.
b. See note on Lu. 7. 2.
c.
* a cruiſe
† lay

8. But when his diſciples ſaw it, [they had indignation, ſaying, To what purpoſe is this waſt?]
8. one of them, by name Judas Iſcariot, (ſee c. 27. note h. and c. 21. 2.)

9. For this ointment might have been ſold for much, and given to the poor.]
9. when it might have been ſold at a good rate, and that have relieved many poor people.

10. When Jeſus underſtood it, he ſaid unto them, [Why trouble yee the woman? for ſhe hath wrought a good work upon me.]
10. Why doe you murmure or complain of this womans action, ſeeing that which ſhe hath now done is an act of charity, or piety very ſeaſonable at this time?

11. For ye have the poor always with you, but me ye have not always.]
11. For you are ſure to have continuall opportunities of giving almes to the poor, but ye are not likely to have ſo towards me.

12. For in that ſhe hath powred this ointment on my body, ſhe did it for my buriall.]
12. And indeed this very act, which ſhee now hath done, is more then an act of charity, 'tis a preſage very ſignificant, that I ſhall dye, and be buryed very ſhortly, for which this ointment is proper by way of embalming.

13. Verily I ſay unto you, whereſoever [this Goſpel] ſhall be preached in the whole world, there ſhall alſo this that this woman hath done be told for a memoriall of her.
13. the ſtory of Chriſts death and buriall.

14. Then one of the twelve called Judas Iſcariot,] went unto the chiefe prieſts,
14. Then Judas he that had made that mutiny, and conſequently that had had this anſwer given him, in foul diſpleaſure upon this occaſion, (and knowing that they of the Sanhedrin were deſirous to apprehend him privately)

15. And ſaid unto them, What will yee give me, and I will deliver him unto you? and they covenanted with him for thirty * [d pieces] of ſilver.
15. Shekels.
* or ſtaters, for the Gr. & Lat. MS. reads τετρακόσια.

16. And from that time he ſought [opportunity to † betray him.]
16. ſuch an opportunity as they meant, v. 4. i. e. an opportunity of taking him, when the people ſhould not be aware, to deliver him up unto them.
† deliver him up, παραδῷ

17. Now the firſt day of the feaſt of unleavened bread] the diſciples came to Jeſus, ſaying, where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the paſſover?]
17. Now on the thurſday evening, wherein the thirteenth day of the moneth Niſan was concluded, (ſee note on Mar. 14. c.) and the fourteenth day began, the day of preparation to the feaſt of unleavened bread, whereon they put all leaven out of their houſes, i. e. on the evening which began the Paſchal day.

18. And he ſaid, Go into the city to ſuch a man, and ſay unto him, The maſter ſaith, [My time is at hand, I will keep the paſſover at thy houſe] with my diſciples.
18. The ſeaſon of my death is ſo neer at hand being likely to befall me before this Paſchall day at even, (wherein they were wont to eat the lambe) that I cannot ſolemnly obſerve the paſchal ſacrifice, I will therefore eate the unleavened bread and bitter herbs, the memoriall of the afflictions and deliverance in Egypt, at thy houſe this night. See note on Mar. 14. c.

19. And the diſciples did as Jeſus had appointed them, and made ready the Paſſover.

20. Now [when the even was come] he ſate down with the twelve.
20. after ſun-ſet ſome time, ſee Mar. 14. c.

21. And

21. And as they did eate, he ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you, that one of you ſhall betray me.

22. And they were exceeding ſorrwfull, and began every one of them to ſay unto him, Lord, is it I?

23. And he anſwered and ſaid, [He that dippeth his hand with me in the diſh the ſame ſhall betray me.]

23. It is one of the twelve (ſee Mar. 14. 18. 20.) one of thoſe very perſons, that lye at meat, and eate in the ſame meſſe with me, Lu. 22. 21. according to that propheecy Pſal. 41. 9. nay he gave John a particular token Joh. 13. 26. to ſignifie that 'twas Judas.

24. The ſonne of man goeth, as it is written of him; but woe unto that man by whom the ſonne of man is betrayed; It had been good for that man, if he had not been born.]

24. It is propheſyed of the Meſſias, that he ſhall be put to death, and accordingly it ſhall be, but woe be unto that man, that ſhall be the inſtrument of it, It were for the advantage of that man never to have been, then by this ſinne to incurre that woe.

25. Then Judas anſwered and ſaid, Maſter, Is it I? He ſaid unto him, [Thou haſt ſaid.]

25. It is as thou haſt ſaid.

26. And as they were eating, Jeſus took bread, and bleſſed it, and brake it, and gave it to the diſciples, and ſaid, Take, eat, [e this is my body.]

26. And whilſt Judas was there, before any of them were riſen from the table, Jeſus in imitation of the Jewes cuſtome after ſupper (of diſtributing bread and wine about the table, as an argument of charity, and a means of preſerving brotherly love among them) inſtituted the Sacrament of the Euchariſt as a conteſſeration of charity among all Chriſtians, and to that end taking bread, and giving thanker, he brake, and gave it to the diſciples to take and eate, telling them that this taking and eating was now inſtituted by him as an holy rite, and ceremony of annuntiating and commemorating his death, and a means of making all worthy receivers partakers of the benefits of his death. e.

27. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, ſaying, Drink yee all of this.

28. For this is my blood of the New Teſtament, which is ſhed for many, for the remiſſion of ſinnes.]

28. For this is a federal rite between me and you, a Sacrament of that blood of mine, which I ſhall ſhortly powre out upon the croſſe; and by which I will ſeal to you a new covenant, a promiſe of pardoning the ſinnes of all that ſhall return from their ſinnes, and obey me. (See note on the Title of theſe books.)

29. But I ſay unto you [f I will not drinke henceforth of this fruit of the vine, untill that day, when I drink it new with you in my fathers kingdome.]

29. It is not long, that I ſhall abide with you, nor ſhall I again thus celebrate this, or any the like feaſt among you, till we meet in heaven, and partake together of thoſe joyes, which are wont to be expreſt by new wine figuratively. f.

30. And when they had g ſung an hymne, they went out into the mount of Olives. g.

31. Then ſaith Jeſus unto them, All yee ſhall be offended becauſe of me this night, For it is written, I will ſmite the ſhepheard, and the ſheep of the flock ſhall be ſcattered abroad.]

31. Between ſupper and going abroad, Jeſus ſpake theſe words to his diſciples, Yee ſhall all fall off from me before morning, and fulfill the prediction Zach. 13. 7. which foretold that Chriſt ſhould be apprehended, and thereupon the Apoſtles, the chiefe of his little flock of beleivers (for ſheep he had others which were not of this flock) ſee Mar. 14. 27, 28. ſhould flye away and forſake him.

32. But after I am riſen, I will goe before you into Galilee.]

32. But though I am taken from you, and yee flye from and forſake me, yet I will not leave you ſo, I ſhall riſe from the dead, and when I am riſen, I will go into Galilee where you may meet me.

33. Peter anſwered and ſaid unto him, [Though all men ſhall be offended becauſe of thee, yet will I never be offended.]

33. Though all men fall off, and forſake thee, yet, what ſoever befalls me, I will not.

34. Jeſus ſaid unto him, Verily I ſay unto thee, that this night [before the cock crow, thou ſhalt deny me thrice.]

34. before the ſpace of time be ended, which men ſpecially call the cock-crowing, i. e. before the morning watch come, thou ſhalt three times renounce being my diſciple.

35. Peter ſaid unto him, Though I ſhould dye with thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewiſe alſo ſaid all the diſciples.

36. Then cometh Jeſus with them unto a place called Gethſemane, and ſaith unto the diſciples, Sit yee here, while I goe, and pray yonder.

37. And he took with him [Peter and the two ſonnes of Zebedee, and began to be ſorrowfull and very heavy.]

37. Peter and James and John, whom he moſt admitted to his ſecrets (ſee c. 17. 1.) and was in a very great agony of ſorrow,

38. Then ſaith he unto them, My ſoul is exceeding ſorrowfull, even unto death, tarry yee here, and watch with me.

39. And he went a little farther [and fell on his face and prayed, ſaying O my Father, if it be poſſible, let this cup paſſe from me, nevertheleſſe, not as I will, but as thou wilt.]

39. And he lay proſtrate (which in time of great anxiety is the uſuall poſture, and a token of the greateſt humiliation, and renouncing of himſelfe) and ſaid, My father, If all that I came about, may be atcheived without it, let this bitter potion, that is now approaching, this contumelious, and bloody death be removed from me. But if not, I more deſire the doing what thou haſt deſigned for me, then the eſcaping any kind of ſuffering,

40. And he cometh unto the diſciples, and findeth them aſleep, and ſaith unto Peter, * What could yee not watch with me one hour ?

* Were you ſo unable to watch with mee one ſmall while ? ἴσχυσε᾽ ὀλιγον μετ᾽ ἐμοῦ &c.

41. that ye be not encompaſt and overcome with temptations,

41. Watch and pray [that ye enter not into temptation ; the ſpirit indeed is willing, but the fleſh is weak.]

For however your mind and reſolution be good, and at the time your profeſſions zealous (ſee Mar. 14. 38.) yet it appears by this preſent ſleeping of yours, that the fleſh is weak, and if ye be not carefull, ye may fall from your ſtouteſt reſolutions.

42. Seeing I diſcern this to be thy purpoſe, and wiſe diſpoſall, that I ſhould ſuffer this bloody death, and that the effects thereof are ſo advantageous to the good of the world, I am perfectly content and willing to endure it.

42. He went away again the ſecond time, and prayed, ſaying, O my father, [if this cup may not paſſe away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done.]

43. overcome with heavineſſe of ſleep.

43. And he came and found them aſleep again, for their eyes were [heavy.]

44. So he left them, without ſaying much to them, as before, their eyes being ſo oppreſt with ſleep, that they were not in fit caſe to conſider, or anſwer what was ſaid to them.

44. And he left them] and went away again, and prayed the third time, ſaying the ſame words.

45. You may now enjoy your drowſy humour, I ſhall make no farther uſe of your vigilance, the minute is now come upon you, that your Maſter ſhall be apprehended, and taken from you, and carried before the tribunall of the Gentiles, the Romans (by whoſe judicature he ſhall be put to death, ſee Lu. 22. note f.)

45. Then cometh he to his diſciples, and ſaith unto them, [Sleep on now and take your reſt, behold the hour is at hand, and the ſon of man is betrayed into the hands of ſinners.]

46. delivers me up into their hands.

46. Riſe, let us be going, behold he is at hand that [doth betray me.]

47. the Sanhedrim of the Jewes.

47. And while he yet ſpake, Lo, Judas one of the twelve came, and with him a great multitude with ſwords and ſtaves from [the chief prieſts and elders of the people.]

48. Apprehend him.

48. Now he that betrayed him gave them a ſigne, ſaying, Whomſoever I ſhall kiſſe, that ſame is he, [hold him faſt.]

49. And forthwith he came to Jeſus, and ſaid, Haile Maſter, and kiſſed him,

50. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come ? Then came they and layd hands on Jeſus, and took him.

51. the chief Officer, the fore-man of them that had the warrant to apprehend him.

51. And behold, one of them which were with Jeſus, ſtretched out his hand, and drew his ſword, and ſtroke [a ſervant of the high prieſts] and ſmote off his eare.

52. Doe nothing contrary to law, for all that draw and uſe the ſword without authority from thoſe which bear the ſword, ſhall fall themſelves by it, incurre the puniſhment of death.

52. Then ſaid Jeſus unto him, [Put up again thy ſword into his place ; for all they that take the ſword, ſhall periſh with the ſword.]

53. If I would forcibly be relieved, I could have a full army, or hoſt of Angels, conſiſting, as among the Romans, of twelve legions.

53. Thinkeſt thou, that I cannot now pray to my father, and he ſhall preſently give me more then twelve legions of Angels ?]

54. But the Prophets have foretold I muſt ſuffer, and their predictions muſt be accompliſhed.

54. But how then ſhall the ſcriptures be fulfilled, that thus it muſt be ?]

55. as againſt a malefactor, with a band of Souldiers to apprehend me ?

55. * In that ſame houre Jeſus ſaid to the multitudes, Are yee come out [as againſt a thief with ſwords and ſtaves for to take me ?] I ſat daily with you teaching in the temple, and yee laid no hold on me.

* At that time, or inſtant, ἐν τῇ ὥρᾳ

56. The next thing done was, that upon Chriſts ſpeaking to have the diſciples let goe, they were permitted, Joh. 18. 8. and all of them having that liberty, departed from him, and that with ſo much terror, that one in the company, being a young perſon, ran away perfectly naked, Mar. 14. 5.

56. But all this was done that the ſcriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled. [Then all the diſciples forſook him and fled.]

57. the Sanhedrim was

57. And they that had laid hold on Jeſus, led him away to Caiaphas the high prieſt, where [the ſcribes and the elders were] aſſembled.

58. into the outer-room, where the ſervants uſed to remain, to ſee what the iſſue of the matter would be.

58. But Peter followed him afarre off unto the high prieſts palace, and went in, [and ſat with the ſervants to ſee the end.]

h. 59. Now the Sanhedrin uſed all diligence to get any falſe teſtimony againſt him that were capital.

59. Now the chief prieſts and elders and all the councell ſought [h] falſe witneſſe againſt Jeſus to put him to death.]

60. But none that came, was of any force, becauſe they were all but indeed ſingle witneſſes,

60. But found none ; yea though many falſe witneſſes came, yet found they none.] At the laſt came two falſe witneſſes,

61. And miſreported a ſpeech of his related truly, Joh. 2. 19. ſaying,

61. And ſaid,] This fellow ſaid, I am able to deſtroy the temple of God, and to build it in three daies.

62. Haſt thou no anſwer to make to theſe accuſations thus teſtified by two witneſſes ?

62. And the high prieſt aroſe, and ſaid unto him, [Anſwereſt thou nothing ? What is it, that theſe witneſſe againſt thee ?]

63. But

63. But Jeſus held his peace. And the high prieſt [anſwered and ſaid unto him, I [a] adjure thee by the living God, that thou tell us, whether thou be the Chriſt, the ſon of God.]

63. ſpake againe unto him ſaying, I lay an oath upon thee, i.
and by that which is moſt ſacred require thee to ſpeak, and ſay freely, whether thou art the Meſſias, whom we know to be the Son of God.

64. Jeſus ſaith unto him, [Thou haſt ſaid: Nevertheleſſe I ſay unto you, hereafter ſhall you ſee the ſon of man ſitting on the right hand of [k] power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.]

64. As low as I am, I am he. But I tell you, within a little k.
into his throne, inſtalled in his heavenly kingdome. An effect of which ſhall be moſt viſible in his acting vengeance upon you, and that as diſcernibly, as if he were coming with his Angels, who uſe to appear in bright clouds.

65. Then the high prieſt [l] rent his cloathes, ſaying, He hath ſpoken blaſphemy; What farther need have we of witneſſes? Behold now yee have heard his blaſphemy. l.

66. What think ye? They anſwered and ſaid, He is guilty of death.]

66. What is the vote, or ſentence of the Councell concerning him? They anſwered, He is guilty of a fault, which is puniſhable with death.

67. Then did they ſpit in his face, and buffetted him, and others [m] * ſmote him with the palms of their hands.] * cudgel'd him

67. Then did ſome of the Officers of m. their court ſpit in his face, and buffet him, and blindfold him, Lu. 22. 64. and then gave him blowes on the face,

68. Saying, Prophecy unto us, thou Chriſt, who is he that ſmote thee?]

68. Saying, Thou who by thy title of Chriſt, pretendeſt to unction propheticall, make uſe of it for thy ſelf, and by it tell us, who 'tis that ſmites thee.

69. Now Peter ſat without in the palace, and a damoſel came unto him ſaying; Thou alſo [waſt with] Jeſus of Galilee.

69. were a prime companion or diſciple of (ſee Mar. 3. 14)

70. But he denyed before them all, ſaying, [I know not what thou ſayeſt.]

70. I am not guilty of what thou layeſt to my charge.

71. And when he was gone out into the porch, another maid ſaw him, and ſaid unto them that were there, This fellow was alſo with Jeſus of Nazareth.

72. And again he denied with an oath [I doe not know the man.]

72. ſaying, I have no relation to him.

73. And after a while came unto him they that ſtood by, and ſaid to Peter, Surely thou alſo art one of them, for [thy ſpeech bewrayeth thee.]

Notes on Chap. XXVI.

a Ἵνα ὅλον τὸν τρόπον ἀνῇσι παραδίδωσι

The connexion of the parts of this verſe depends on a tradition of the Jewes, that when any were condemned to death, they were kept from execution till the ſolemn feaſt, of which there were three in the year חג המצות the feaſt of unleavened bread, or the Paſſover, חג השבעות, the feaſt of weeks, and חג הסכות the feaſt of tabernacles, in which all the Jewes came up to Jeruſalem to ſacrifice, and then did they put the malefactors, eſpecially rebels and impoſtors, to death, in the preſence and ſight of all the people, that all Iſrael might ſee and fear, Deut. 17. 13. hence it is that this feaſt of Paſſover was waited for by the Jewes, and deſigned for this death of Chriſt, as of a rebel, and impoſtor both, one which they would fancy to be an evemy to Ceſar, and a falſe prophet, and ſeducer of the people.

b. Ἀλάβαστρον

What the Greek ἀλάβαστρον here ſignifies may be obſerved, and judged by the ſignification of it among the Grammarians, and in other Authors. In Heſychius, and Phavorinus, 'tis λήκυθος μύρου, a veſſel of oyle, but that not any kind of veſſel, as λήκυθος ſignifies, but, as 'tis added, μὴ ἔχον λαβάς, λίθινον, &c. a veſſel that hath no handles (which is the clear derivation of the word from a privative, and λαβὴ a handle, ſaith Methodius) and made of ſtone ordinarily, yet not that it takes its name from the ſtone, which we ordinarily call alabaſter, but that that ſtone ordinarily call'd * ὀνύξ, is from this ſurnamed (as it were) ἀλαβαστίτης λίθος, the ſtone of which the ἀλάβαστρα are ordinarily made. Hence hath Suidas defined it in plain words, ἄγγος μύρου μὴ ἔχον λαβάς, a veſſel of ointment, that hath no handles, which is directly oppoſed to amphoris, ſo call'd, becauſe it hath two eares or handles, which makes it clear not to be a box, as 'tis oft rendred, but βάσιον urceolus, as Epiphanius calls it, and that either of ſtone, or any other materialls. The particular form of it may be beſt diſcern'd by Pliny, Nat: Hiſt: l. 9. c. 35. where ſpeaking de Elenchis, he ſaith, they are faſtigiata longitudine, alabaſtrorum figurâ, in pleniorem orbem deſinentes, long and ſlender toward the top, and more round, and full toward the bottome, which is the figure of the alabaſters. In which reſpect it is, that the ſame Author reſolves unguentum optimè ſervari in alabaſtris, that any ointment is beſt kept in veſſels of this faſhion. The Greek Tranſlatours of the Old Teſtament have rendred צלוחית ἀλάβαστρον 2 Kin. 21. 13. which I ſuppoſe alludes to this figure of it (not as of a diſh, but a narrow mouth'd veſſel) by that which followes of turning it upſide down, which is the only way of empying or getting all the water or oyl out of ſuch kind of veſſels. The ſame word little altered צלוחית, is 2 Kin. 2. 20. rendred ὑδρία a water-pot, or veſſel

for those like purposes. So much for the fashion of this vessel. For the matter of it, 'tis certain, that it was commonly made of marble, and so by Nonnus 'tis paraphrased μάρμαρεον ἄγγος, a marble vessel, and particularly of the onyx, which is acknowledged by Gorrhæus and others to be marmoris species, a sort of Marble (which by the way, will resist the opinion that we ordinarily have in this matter of the womans breaking the vessel, the marble being not so fit for that purpose, and the manner of pouring out ointment being intimated by * Pollux in his [λύει τὸ ἀλάβαστρον, διὰτοῦτο οὖν] open them, take out the stopple or corke out of the mouth of them, and then use a little stick, or spathula or rudicula, putting it in, and tasting the oyle, πρὶν καταχέαι, before it be poured out) but 'twas also made of silver and glasse or other metalls, so Theocritus makes mention χρυσίων ἀλαβάστρων of golden alabasters, Epiphanius of βύκιον, ὕελον (and the Etymologist calls it σκεῦός τι ἐξ ὕελου a vessel made of glasse, not (as a † learned man hath been willing to guesse) after a lesse proper but usuall manner, as when we say a boxe of gold (the name boxe or buxus referring properly to that peculiar kinde of wood so called) but properly and naturally, the word alabaster referring only to the forme, not to the matter of it. Then for the use of these vessels 'tis clear, 'twas for oyle, myrrh, nard, or what else is usuall for anointing any. Thus * Plutarch reciting the anointing vessels, names ὅλμια καὶ χρύσους, καὶ πύελας, καὶ ἀλαβάστρους. and so Julius Pollux l. 6. παιδὸς ἀγγεῖα τῶν μύρων, λήκυθος μυρηκὸς καὶ ἀλάβαστρον. So in Herodotus, Cambyses sent to the King of Æthiopia an alabaster of ointment; So in Martial, Quod Cosmi redolent alabastra; so in the || Digests we read, Vasa unguentaria, & siqua similia dici possunt ut labacioristus, where no question there is a failing in the copy, which must be repaired not by changing it into lavatioriscus, or rica, as some would have it, but into alabastrum or alabastricus, which is not very farre from the word alabacoristus, which Lazarus Bayfius saith, he hath met with in some books.

c. Μύρον. The use of this myrrh or oyntment (at this time) which the woman poured upon him, was that which was usuall at feasts; That thus it was usuall in the intertainments of the Jewes, it is clear by many places, Psal. 23. 5. where, after the preparing a table followes [thou anointest my head with oyle &c.] and so when wine is said to make glad the heart of man, and oyle to make him a cheerfull countenance, and bread to strengthen, there are the three pares of a festivall entertainment, bread and wine taken in for the gladding, or refreshing, and strengthening the heart, and the oyle for the outside (exteriora oleo irrigentur, said Democritus) for the countenance, or the head rather, on which twas powred here, as a perfume, which was the complement of festivities. Hence it is that among the stewards expenses Lu. 16. he reckons ἑκατὸν βάτους ἐλαίου an hundred measures of oyle, provided especially for such festivall uses, So 1 Chron. 12. 40. the oyle is mentioned among the festivall provision, so Philo in Leg. ad Caium p. 797. D. ἀλειμμαῖα and χρεὼν anointing and food are a description ὑπερβολῆς διαίτης of a more delicate life; And so wine and oyle, Prov. 21. 17. as signes of one, that had lived luxuriously, and enjoyingly: The same, I conceive, to be the notion of the oyle of gladnesse, Psal. 45. 7. as referring to the oyle used in feasts (which are called gladnesse, or joy, as 1 Chron. 12. 20. there was joy in Israel) and so consequently it must be understood, Heb. 1. 9. that Christ was better dealt with by God, more royally treated, and more abundance of grace powred on him, then any other. By which also may appear what is the χρῖσμα ἀπὸ τοῦ ἁγίου, unction from the holy one, 1 Ioh. 2. 20. a most liberall effusion or communication of grace from the Spirit which had descended upon the Apostles. So among the heathens * Iul. Pollux, ὃν δὲ καὶ μύρον ἐν τοῖς συμποσίοις, δᾳδουχίον, so Athen. l. 11. out of the ancients, Ἀνδρὶ ἐπὶ δόρπου μαλάξεσθαι ἐξ ἕεν ὕδωρ, when they had satisfied their hunger, and thirst, Ὥραιός πῶς ἄλδει φέρων μύρον, A comely youth brings myrrh or ointment. So † Plutarch, ἁλείφει τι καὶ μύρῳ χρώτους τοὺς νεανίσκους κομίζοντες ἀκόλουθοι, the young men, not the servants, but others that were free, brought vessels of oyle and myrrh. So the Scholiast on Aristophanes, οἱ καλοῦντες ἐπὶ δεῖπνον στεφάνους καὶ μύρα &c. παρεσκεύασαν, they that invite to a meale bring them forth crownes and ointments. Thus in Hesychius, on the word ἐξαλείψεσι, It is, saith he, σκεῦος ἀργυροῦν φιάλη εὐμεγέθους, ἐξ ἧς ἐν τοῖς συμποσίοις ἀλείφοντο μύρον (not as 'tis corruptly read ἄλειπτρον τὸ μύρον) a silver vessel neer in forme to a vial (the very ἀλάβαστρον in this verse) out of which men were in feasts anointed with ointment or myrrh. Whence is that lusory or scoffing Epigram of Martial, l. 3. Vnguentum fateor bonum dedisti Convivis, here, sed nihil scidisti, Res falsa est bene olere & esurire, Qui non cœnat & ungitur, Fabulle, Hic vero mihi mortuus videtur. And that this was powred particularly on the head, and that for a perfume, 'tis discernible not only by Lu. 7. 46. but by the ancient heathens also. So in Athenæus out of Archestratus, Καὶ ἢ στεφάνοις κόρας ἁβρὰ δαῖτα πυκάζω, Καὶ σκιλοῦν μύρεσι ἀγλαοῖς χαίτλῃ διαπνέω, in the description of a festivity: Meate, and crownes on the head, and ointment on the haire. So Statius --pingui crinem deducere amomo, and Propertius--Orontea crines perfundere myrrha, and again, Iamdudum Tyria madefactus tempora nardo, and Martial again, Quod madidis nardo sparsa corona comis. 'Twere infinite to multiply testimonies of this nature, as that in Eccles. 9. Let thy garments be white and thy head want no ointment: Yet more particulars of this action will be considerable when we come to view this story, as 'tis set down with a little variation in the other Gospels.

That by ἀργύρεια here are meant shekels, may be d. Ἀργύρια concluded not only by the reading of the Gr. and Lat. MS. which hath Σλατῆρας in stead of it, (Staters and shekels being all one, see note on c. 17. e.) but also because 2 Sam. 18. 12. the ten pieces of silver there are by the Targum rendred ten shekels of silver, or five of the double shekels, i. e. thirty shillings. In proportion to which the thirty ἀργύρεια here will be four pound ten shillings, and so 'tis Maimonides's observation (More Nev: par: 3. c. 40.) from Ex. 21. 32. that thirty shekels or pieces of silver was the price of servants (A free-man being, saith he, generally valued at sixty shekels) And so when in Aristeas the price of the redemption on of every captive Iew in Ptolemy's time is ſaid to be 20 drachmæ, it appears by Ioſephus that that is a miſtake for 120, which make thirty ſhekels, every ſhekel or שקל being τεσσάρων four drachmes, ſee c.16.27. and note on c.17. e. So true is that of S. Paul that Chriſt took on him the form of a ſervant, to which alſo the death of the Croſſe peculiarly belong'd among the Romans.

c. Τοῦτό μου

What is the full importance of this phraſe [τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου, this is my body] is a difficulty, which may perhaps be cleared by degrees, by premiſing theſe few obſervations. Firſt, from the Iewiſh phraſes, and cuſtomes, that the Lamb dreſt in the Paſchal-ſupper, and ſet upon the table, as a ſacrifical feaſt, or feſtivall ſacrifice, was wont to be called גופו של פסח the body of the Paſſover, or גופו של כבש הפסח the body of the Paſchal lamb. So in the Talmud, De Paſch. c. ult. R. M. Maim: in Hilchos Camets umatzah, c.8. §.1. and §.7. So in Mekilta fol.4. col.1. To which phraſe or form of ſpeech among them Chriſt may probably allude, when he ſaith [this is my body] making himſelf, that was now to be ſlain for them, anſwerable to that Paſchall Lamb (as by Paul he is called our Paſſover, that is ſacrificed for us) and ſo mentioning this crucifixion of his, in that form, by which the preſentation of the Lamb on the table in the Iewiſh feaſt, whereof they were to eat by God's appointment, was wont to be expreſt. This for the words [σῶμά μου my body.] Secondly, for the [τοῦτό ἐστι, this is] or the whole phraſe [τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου, this is my body] This ſeems to be by Chriſt ſubſtituted in ſtead of the Paſchal form זה לחם עוני This is the bread of affliction, which our fathers eat in Ægypt, or, This is the unleavened bread, &c. or, This is the Paſſover, Where it is evident that that is not the identicall bread, which their fathers in Ægypt eat, but only the tranſcript of it, the commemoration of that Ægyptian ſtate of ſlavery, from which they had been delivered, and the celebration of that annual feaſt, which in Ægypt was firſt inſtituted, As when in ordinary ſpeech, on Chriſtmas, or Eaſter day, we ſay, This day Chriſt was born, or aroſe, which example S. Auguſtine accommodates to this matter in his Epiſtles. Thirdly, it muſt here be obſerved, that the word [τοῦτο this] (τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου this is my body) is not the relative to ἄρτος bread, but of the neuter (whereas that is of the maſculine) gender and conſequently it is not here ſaid that this bread is my body (the body of Chriſt) but either indefinitely this, or λάβετε, φάγετε, take, eat, this is my body, this taking and eating is, or denotes my body, which is more fully expreſt Lu.22. 19. This is my body wch is given for you, doe this in remembrance, or, commemoration of me, and ſo 1 Cor. 11.23. Take eat, this (not ἄρτος this bread, but τοῦτο this taking and eating) is my body, which is broken for you, doe this in remembrance of me. This is a little farther improved by S. Paul, 1 *Cor.*10.15,16. The cup of bleſſing, which we bleſſe, i. e. our bleſſing the cup in the Sacrament, and ἄρτον ὃν κλῶμεν, the bread which we break, i. e. the breaking of the bread which is delivered to us to eat, οὐχὶ κοινωνία τοῦ σώματος τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐστιν; is it not the communication of the body of Chriſt? where what was before ſaid in Chriſt's words to be his body, is more manifeſtly ſaid to be the communication of his body, i.e. the beſtowing it upon us, (as the communication of the altar among the Iewes or Gentiles, is their eating of the ſacrifice, their God's entertaining them at that ſacrifical feaſt) which, I ſuppoſe, concludes this ſacrament to be, according to the nature of ſacraments, an holy rite, a ſolemn act or inſtrument, inſtituted by God to communicate to, or conferre on us the body of Chriſt, i. e. the efficacy and benefits of Chriſt's death. Hence it is that this whole action is by Damaſcen called μεταλημψις participation (which is all one with communication, only as one referreth to the giver, ſo the other to the receiver) δι' ἀυτῆς τὸ Ἰησοῦ θεῖον καὶ μεταλαμβάνομεν, ſaith he, for thereby we partake of the divinity of Jeſus, the divine graces that flow from him, and S. Chryſoſtome, διὰ τοῦτο σῶμα Χριστοῦ the body of Chriſt is received, i. e. as verily as God there treates us at, and feeds us from his table, ſo verily doth he communicate to, and beſtow on the worthy receiver the body of the crucified Saviour. And if it ſhall be ſaid that this is no ſtrange thing, for that God doth ſo on every act of ſincere repentance, of faith, of prayer, or other part of his divine worſhip worthily performed, and not only in this ſacrament: I anſwer, that the leſſe ſtrange it is, the more ought it to be beleived, on the affirmation of the Apoſtle, and the more certain it is, that he that being a true penitent ſinner had the benefits of the death of Chriſt beſtowed on him by God upon his firſt repentance, hath them now annunciated by God, and ſo ſolemnly and ſacramentally conferred and ſealed to him, on this prepared, and worthy approach to God's table, and this act of worſhip duely perfotmed, which Chriſt at his parting from the world, thought fit ſo ſolemnly to inſtitute to be forever obſerved in the Church. But if it be conceived that in this ſacrament theſe benefits are alwaies firſt conferred, or ſo as they were not really conferred before, this is a miſtake, for he that had been baptized, is acknowledg'd (if he have not interpoſed the obſtacle) to have received them before, and he that hath frequently been a worthy receiver of this ſacrament of the Lord's ſupper, and not fallen off by any wilfull ſinne, cannot every time firſt or newly receive them, nay he that is a true penitent, and hath performed frequent acts of other parts of God's worſhip, as alſo of mortification of luſts and paſſions, and of all manner of Good works, though not of this, hath, no doubt, that acceptance of thoſe other acts, and theſe benefits of juſtification &c. beſtowed on him by God, and not all God's favour (and theſe benefits) ſuſpended, till the firſt receiving of this ſacrament. Onely in caſe of precedent lapſes, which have for ſome time caſt a man out of God's favour, when upon ſincere repentance and reformation he is reſtored to God's favour again, then God in this ſacrament doth ſeale anew, i. e. ſolemnly exhibit theſe benefits to him. And otherwiſe, when no ſuch lapſes have intervened, and ſo there is no need of this new ſealing or exhibiting, God doth yet confirm and farther ratifie, what had before been ſufficiently done. By this explication of the meaning of the words may alſo be concluded what are the parts of this ſacrament, viz: (the ſame that of every fœderall rite) two literally, and two ſpiritually, in each, one on God's part, the other on ours. On God's part literally, his entertaining and feeding us at his table, 1 Cor. 10. 21.

(but that, as in ſacrifices of old, firſt furniſhed by the piety of the gueſts) and on our part literally, our partaking of that table, that Chriſtian feaſt, 1 *Cor.*10.17. Then ſpiritually (or veiled under this literall, viſible outſide of a feaſt) 1. Gods ſolemn reaching out to us, as by a deed or inſtrument, what was by promiſe due to every penitent ſinner, every worthy receiver, the broken body of Chriſt, i. e. the benefits of his death, which is the ſumme of that fervent forme of prayer uſed by the Prieſt and every receiver ſingly, at the minute of receiving the elements in that ſacrament, and that prayer part of the ſolemnity of the form of the court, by which it is beſtowed 2ly On our part, annunciating 1*Cor.* 11.26. that ſacrifice of Chriſt's death, which (was then immediately to come, but) is now long ſince performed upon the Croſſe. Thus the bitter herbs are זכרון a memoriall or commemoration of the bitter Ægyptian ſervitude, Exod. 14. 1. the red wine לזכרון for a memoriall that Pharaoh waſht himſelf in the blood of the children of Iſrael. So that precept *Exod.*13.8. is given by Moſes, that in the Paſſover they ſhould annunciate or tell of their deliverance, and thence they call the Paſcal leſſon הגדה, ἀναγγελίαν, annunciation, See Elias Levita in Thisbi. And this annunciation or ſhewing forth, is not only in reſpect of our ſelves in beleiving, and toward men in profeſſing our faith in the crucified Saviour, and that with a kind of glorying, or rejoycing, but alſo toward God, pleading before him that ſacrifice of his own ſonne, and through that humbly, and with affiance requiring the benefits thereof, grace and pardon, to be beſtowed on us, and at the time making uſe of that, which is one ſpeciall benefit of his paſſion, that free acceſſe to the Father, through him, interceding for all men, over all the world, eſpecially for kings, &c. 1 *Tim.*2.2. which from that conſtitution of S. Paul to Timothy, Metropolitan of all Aſia, was received into the moſt ancient Liturgies, and made a ſolemn part of the ἐπιδόξεις and εὐχαριστίαι interceſſions and Euchariſticall devotions of the Church. Both theſe parts of the Sacrament are intimated by thoſe two phraſes mention'd in the two firſt obſervations, For the preſentation of the Lamb on the table, and ſo of the Chriſtian ſacrifice, the crucified Saviour in the Chriſtian feaſt, to be eaten of by us, notes God's annunciating and atteſting to us the benefits of Chriſt's death, and ſo the commemorative Paſchal form notes our commemorating and annunciating that death of his to our ſelves, and others, And both theſe are contained in thoſe different phraſes of S. Paul, both uſed in this matter in ſeverall places, the former, that the broken bread is the κοινωνία communication of his body, and ſo the latter 1 Cor. 11.26. As oft as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye annunciate the death of the Lord, what God there beſtowes on you, you annunciate to him, to your ſelves, and to others; From both which ariſes the aggravation of the guilt of the unworthy receiver, that he is ἔνοχος guilty of the body and blood of Chriſt, v. 27. i.e. that Chriſt that died for him, and is there communicated to him ſacramentally, i. e. viſibly exhibited in that ſacrament, and by him ſuppoſed to be annunciated to God &c. is by his being unqualified, unprepared for the receiving the benefits of his death, utterly loſt, fruſtrated in reſpect of him (as the impenitent is ſaid to tread under foot the blood of Chriſt, the blood is as uneffectuall to him, as what is by him thrown on the earth, and trampled on, is like to be to him) and yet farther he is ſaid ἐσθίειν καὶ πίνειν κρῖμα ἑαυτῷ to eat and drink damnation to himſelf, v. 29. i. e. where the worthy receiver hath the benefits of Chriſt's death communicated to him in this feaſt, and ſo eats and drinks ſalvation to himſelf, this unworthy intruder doth on the contrary bring, by that means, puniſhments, and, if he repent not by the admonition of thoſe puniſhments, damnation on himſelf. As for the elements in this ſacrament, bread and wine, though by the προηγουμένη offering them to God, then by the Prieſt's conſecration, benediction, calling upon God over them, they become God's, and ſo are called κυριακὸν δεῖπνον the Lords ſupper in oppoſition to ἴδιον δεῖπνον every man's own ſupper, 1*Cor.*11.21. and ſo are changed from common bread and wine, yet not ſo as to depart from their own nature, or to be really converted into the body and blood of Chriſt, ſave only in a ſpirituall ſenſe, and ſacramentally, according to that of Theodoret, *Dial.*2. Τὰ σύμβολα τοῦ σώματος τοῦ δεσποτικοῦ καὶ τοῦ αἵματος, μετὰ τὴν ἁγιασθεῖσαν μεταβάλλεσθαι, καὶ ἕτερα γίνεσθαι, ἀλλ' ἐκ οἰκείας οὐσίας μένειν γὰρ ὅπερ ἦν καὶ πρότερον ἐστὶν, καὶ τῷ σχήματι, καὶ τῷ εἴδει, καὶ ὁρᾶται ὅπερ καὶ ἀπτὰ, οἷα καὶ πρότερον ἦν. The ſymbols of our Lord's body and blood, after the prayer of conſecration, are changed and become other, but depart not from their own nature, for they remain in their former eſſence, and figure, and ſhape, and are viſible, and ſenſible, ſuch as before they were. And accordingly theſe ſo many words are found uſed by divers of the Ancients, μεταποιήσεις, μεταβολὰς, μεταῤῥυθμίσεις, μεταλήψεις, μεταστοιχειώσεις, each denoting change, but never μετουσίωσις, tranſubſtantion, or the like.

That Chriſt did after his reſurrection before his aſcenſion, eat and drinke with his diſciples, ſeems to be affirmed by many places of Scripture, and thoſe ſuch as are to that ſenſe interpreted by the ancients, Thus Act. 10. 41. S. Peter ſaith, the Diſciples eate and dranke with him after his reſurrection, and that is uſed by him, as a proof of the reality and certainty of his reſurrection, which it would not have been if they onely had eate and dranke, and hee had not. Thus when Act. 1. 4. it is ſaid that Chriſt was συναλιζόμενος, &c. though perhaps that may be thought to ſignifie no more then his having converſed with them, and not neceſſarily to inferre his eating or drinking, yet both the origination of the word ἅλας ſalt, and the Syriack and Arabick interpretation, make it ſignifie all one, as if it had been συνεσθίων, and * S. Chryſoſtome gives his judgment of it, that by it is meant that which the Apoſtles Act. 10. 41. uſe as an argument of Chriſts reſurrection, their eating and drinking with him. So Joh. 21. 13. 'tis ſaid of Chriſt, he took bread, and in like manner a fiſh, and *Lu.*24.30. he lay down at meat with them, and took bread, and not only gave to others, but v. 43. taking a fiſh, and hony combe, ἐνώπιον αὐτῶν ἔφαγεν, he eate before them all, and though there be not expreſſe mention there made of his drinking alſo, yet that affirmation of the Diſciples, *Act.*10.41. referring clearly to that part of the ſtory, and extending it ſelf to the συνανέστημεν we drank with him, alſo, as well as the συνεφάγομεν, we eate with him, will will be a proof and testimony of the one as well as the other. To this may be added the testimony of S. Ignatius in his Epistle to the Church of Smyrna. Μετὰ τὴ τὸν ἀναστάντα σωματικῶς ἀυτοῖς ἢ Συνέφαγε ὡς Σαρκικὸς, καίπερ πνευματικῶς ἡνώθαι τῷ πατρὶ, After his resurrection he eate and dranke with them, as being in the flesh, although spiritually he were united to the father. This being then on these grounds supposed, there is another possible way of interpreting this place of Christ, that he would drinke no more of the fruit of the vine, till he dranke it new in the kingdome of his father, viz. that the state of Christ after his resurrection is called the kingdome of his father, and that upon this ground, because at his resurrection Christ the son of God was instated in his kingly office, and all power (as he saith after that time, Mat. 28. 18.) was given unto him both in heaven and in earth, in which respect it is, that the Gospell is ordinarily called the kingdome of God, and so among the Jewes saeculum Messiæ, the age of the Messias, and the μέλλων ἀιὼν age to come, which certainly commenced at the resurrection of Christ, as at his death the former age of the law and prophets was consummate or ended (and that perhaps the meaning of the τετέλεσται Ioh. 19. 30 It is finisht) To this may those words of S. Chrysostome be applied, when he saith of Christ, making mention of the kingdome &c. περὶ ἀναστάσεως διαλέγεται λόγον εἰς μέσον, τῷ ἀναστὰν ὕστερον τῷ ἰδίῳ κηδεμόνι, that he proposes a discourse of the resurrection, and calls his own resurrection thus. Yet because 'tis possible, and probable enough, that S. Chrysostome by the phrase περὶ ἀναστάσεως] means the state and time of the generall resurrection, not only of Christ's, but of the Disciples also to whom he speakes, and with them of all others (and then accordingly ἀναστὰν ἰδίῳ shall not only signifie the act of his rising out of the grave, but also the future state of Christ with them together after the final judgement) and because μεθ' ὑμῶν here added, may seem to referre to that sense, and again because drinking it new with them] may best be taken in a figurative sense, to expresse those heavenly festivals there vouchsafed to the Saints, received into communion of those joyes with Christ, and because the space between Christ's resurrection and ascension is in no other place of the New Testament expresst by this phrase of the kingdome of Christ's father, and lastly because 'tis not here the kingdome of Christ (to which it was pretended that his resurrection instated him, and yet would not be perfectly true, as that excludes, or is taken abstracted from his ascension) but the kingdome of his father, which belongs particularly to the time after the generall resurrection, 1 Cor. 15. 24. and 28. (for then and not till then is the kingdome again delivered up to the father.) For these reasons, I say, that interpretation being laid aside, there is a second that offers it self, by observing the words or word ἀπ' ἄρτι or ἀπάρτι, and rendring that within a while, as seems to be most agreeable to the use of it, v. 64. of this chapter, and c. 23. 39. and Joh. 1. 52. and Rev. 14. 13. as is shewed both by * Euthymius's Scholion, and by the vulgar Latines amodo in all the places, and so also by the context in those places; (see note on c. 23. k.) If this be accepted, then the meaning will be, that after a while, or within a short time he means to part with them, and then, i. e. after that short time, he will drink no more of the fruite of the vine, till he meet them again in heaven, and drinke of that new wine, i. e. turne this bodily into a spirituall festivall, expresst by lying as at meat, with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdome of heaven; Lu. 14. 15. As for this fruit of the vine, the corporal food, that he will then drink that with them in heaven, can no more be concluded from the [ἕως τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης untill that day] then that Mary ceased to be a virgin, or had children after the birth of Christ from the ἕως ὅ untill that, Mat. 1. 25. But the truth is, there is yet a third way of interpreting this verse, which by comparing it with the words in S. Luke seems much the most probable of all, that this γέννημα τῆς ἀμπέλου fruit of the vine signifies the cup in the passover peculiarly, or the cup of Charity in the postcœnium of the passover, wherein the Sacrament of Christ's blood was founded. For that Christ was now to dye, and neither before, nor after his death and resurrection, to eate any more passovers with them, or any more to drink this cup of charity now designed to a Christian use, is sufficiently evident, To this therefore is agreeable what he saith Lu. 22. 15. With desire have I desired to eate this passover with you, before I suffer, meaning now to transfunate this cup there into that Sacrament of charity to be observed in the Christian Church forever after. And therefore it is observable in S. Luke, that the words are directly applyed c. 22. 16. to the passover. I have desired to eate this passover, for I will no more eate ἐξ αὐτοῦ thereof, or, of that, i. e. of the passover &c. and by repeating of the words again, of the cup, v. 18. it is all reason that that be rendred of the cup in the passover, or the Sacramentall cup of charity as the former of the bread in that postcœnium. This appears to me an unquestionable rendring, and clearing of all difficulties, viz. that Christ will no more use these typicall adumbrations, being himself now really to perform what was adumbrated by them, to passe suddainly from earth to heaven, through a Red sea of blood, and there to complete also the mystery of the Sacrament, by uniting his Disciples one to another, and making them all partakers of his riches there. And that this is fit to be preferred before the second interpretation by the rendring of ἀπάρτι amodo within a while, will be judged by the parallel phrases both in Marke and Luke, where 'tis οὐκέτι οὐ μὴ πίω, I will from henceforth by no meanes drinke, &c. Mar. 14. 25. and so once in Luke also, c. 22. 16. and the second time, οὐ μὴ πίω I will not drink.

It was the custome of the Jews after supper to say grace, and then to say or sing זְמִירוֹת verses or songs, especially over the Paschal lambe, saith Paulus Burgensis, at which time, saith he, they were wont to sing from the 112 to the 119 Psalme, the matter of those Psalmes agreeing perfectly with the Paschal lambe. This may have been the hymne, or rather hymnes, or Psalmes, which Christ sang here with his disciples; see P. Fagius in Annot. upon the Caldee paraphrase: Deut. 8 But 'tis also not improbable, that it was some other hymne accommodated to this particular institution of Christ's, and this sung by them all, in the same manner, as we read of the Christians hymne, Act. 4. 24.

The profess'd coming in and entertaining of false witnesses against Christ will not seem strange, if it be remembred that among the Jewes in actions against seducers of the people, or false prophets, it was lawfull to say any thing whether true or false, no man being permitted to say any thing in defence of them. In the condemning of other men they expected a day and a night, to see if any thing could be produced, which might profit the Prisoner, but not in these cases of false prophets, and seducers of the people to idolatry; See P. Fagius in his Notes on the Chald: Paraph: on *Deut.*13.8. and Maimonides in Hilcoth Sanhedr: c. 11. So it is said in the story of Steven, they did ὑποβάλλειν ἄνδρας suborne men, and again ἔστησε μάρτυρας ψευδεῖς v.13. they substituted false witnesses &c. Besides, the Sanhedrim were so resolved to take away his life, that they did professly seek false witnesse that should come and swear any thing against him, v.59. And what was here done in their processe against him, is just the antitype, or farther impletion of that which was first performed on Jeremy, c.26. v.8,9.

Ὑποβάλλειν ἄνδρας.

'Twas a custome among the Jewes to adjure, which was by some form of execration layd upon the person, if he did not speak and answer truly; This among them obliged the person adjured, as much as if he had taken an oath, and therefore Christ, though before he had held his peace, now being adjured, thinks himself bound to answer him. Many examples we have of this in the old Testament, *Judg.*17.2. the silver which thou hast lost and about which thou didst use execration, i.e. didst adjure; So *Prov.*29.24. of the partaker with the thief, that is so secret, he heareth cursing, and betrayeth it not, i.e. will not reveal, though he be adjured, 1 *Kin.*8.31. If any man sin against his brother וְנִשָּׂא בוֹ אָלָה לְהַאֲלֹתוֹ and he impose on him an imprecation to adjure him, for so אָלָה signifies, Psal. 10.7. and is rendred by the Chaldee paraphrase, לוּטִין maledictions, and so הַאֲלֹתוֹ in hiphil is literally and critically to make swear, to adjure, and is exprest by S. Paul's ὁρκίζω: 1 Thess: 5.27. I bind you under the curse of God. The law concerning this we have *Levit.*5.1. If a soul shall offend, and shall hear the voice of adjuration or execration, and so *Numb.*5.21. where we have not simply הָאָלָה execration, but שְׁבוּעַת תַּאֲלָה an oath of execration.

k. Δεξιὰ δυνάμεως.

The right hand of power] is the right hand of God the Father, who is call'd power by the Hebrewes; So Jarchi on *Num.*7.10. Moses received it not from their hands, till he was commanded from the mouth of power, and so the δεξιὰ μεγαλωσύνης Cyrus, the right hand of greatnesse, Heb. 8.1. So 1 *Pet.*4.14. the spirit of glory, is the spirit of God.

Δεξιὰ μεγαλωσύνης. Πρόσωπον δόξης.

That rending of cloathes was an expression of indignation, holy zeal, and piety among the Jews, expresst on severall occasions, especially of grief in humiliation, and of anger on the hearing of any blasphemous speech, is ordinarily known by all. Only the difficulty here is, how this could be fit or proper for the high Priest to doe, which is made unlawfull for the Priests, *Levit.*10.6.21.10. Thus hath Baronius objected Annal: t. 1. An: Ch: 34. but the answer is easie, that that prohibition in Levit: extends only to the not tearing of the Sacerdotall garments, i.e. of those which are used only in the Priest's office, *Exod.*28.32. and 39.23. and agreeably the Jewes have a rule, Qui dilaceraverit vestes Sacerdotales, vapulabit, He that shall teare any of the Priest's garments shall be beaten. Besides this, 'twas indeed also unlawfull to enter into the court of the Israelites in the Temple with rent clothes, but that was unlawfull to any other, as well as to a Priest, who differ'd not from others in this matter, save only in this one circumstance, that the high Priest tore his garment from the bottome to the top, the rest of the Priests and all others from the top to the bottome.

m. Πάσσω

Πάσσω is by Hesychius rendred ῥάβδῳ, a rod or wand, ῥάπτω, ῥάβδῳ τύπτω, ἢ ἀλοάω, to strike with a rod or to thresh, to use such a stick as was ordinary in threshing out corn, a staffe or cudgel, and again ῥαπίζει, σκώπτει, ἀλοᾷ, παίζει, μαστιγοῖ, τύπτει, to strike, and to mock.

Paraphrase.

CHAP. XXVII.

1. And having retired for a while the whole Sanhedrim consisting of chief Priests and Rulers of the people &c. met together in counsell, and there decreed, that he was to be put to death, and accordingly that they would presse the Roman Procurator to doe justice on him capitally.

1. WHEN the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsell against Jesus to put him to death.]

2. And accordingly as one præcondemn'd by them, they bound him and

2. And when they had bound him, they] led him away, and deliver'd him to Pontius Pilate the Governour.

3. cast by the Jews Sanhedrim, wisht that he had not done it, and was exceedingly grieved and afflicted in mind,

3. Then Judas that had betrayed him, when he saw that he was [condemned, repented himself,] and brought again the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders,

4. I have committed a foule sinne, in delivering up into your hands a most innocent person to be put to death.

4. Saying, [I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood.] And they said, What is that to us? See thou to that.

5. And when they would not receive the money, he would not carry it back again, but threw it down as a detestable thing, that he was resolved to rid his hands of, and leaving it in the Temple, departed to his home, and was there so affected with sorrow and horrour and despair, that in a fit of melancholy or suffocation he suddainly fell down upon his face, and burst, and dyed, Act. 1.18.

5. And he cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, and * departed, and went and [a] hanged himself.]

* departing was strangled, or fell into a fit of suffocation.

6. And

6. And the cheife Prieſts took the ſilver pieces and ſaid, It is not lawfull to put them into the treaſury, becauſe it is the [b] price of blood.]

6. And they of the Sanhedrim v. 3. ſeeing the money thus left in the temple, had ſome thoughts of putting it into the treaſury of the Temple, but conſidering that it was money given for the delivering one up to death, they conceived it not holy enough to be put in there. b.

7. And they took counſell, and bought with them the Potters field to bury [c] ſtrangers in.]

7. And upon conſultation they decreed and reſolved in counſell that the money (which they in this hurrey did not neglect the diſpoſing of) ſhould be laid out for a pious uſe, to buy a piece of ground, which had been the Potters, for ſtrangers to bury their dead in. c.

8. Wherefore that field was] called, The field of blood, untill this day.

8. This field was by the people, for all that hypocriſie of the Sanhedrim

9. (Then was fulfilled that which was ſpoken [by Jeremy the prophet] ſaying, And * they tooke the thirty pieces of ſilver, the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Iſrael did value,

(as many other things of Jeremies are, which makes the Jewes ſay that the ſpirit of Ieremy reſted on Zachary) which is the reaſon, that [d] tis here cited as Ieremies, and not as Zacharies.

10. And gave them for the Potters field, as the Lord appointed me.)

11. And Jeſus ſtood before the governour, and the governour asked him, ſaying, Art thou the King of the Jewes? And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Thou ſayeſt.]

11. And Jeſus was brought to the barre and examined, whether he were the Meſſias ſo long expected by that people, and he anſwered, Yes I am.

12. And when he was accuſed of the chiefe prieſts and elders, he anſwered nothing.]

12. And to all the accuſations ſent in againſt him by the Sanhedrim, whether by a written bill of theirs, or by ſome atturney inſtructed by them (themſelves coming not in, Joh. 18. 28.) he made no kind of reply.

13. Then ſaith Pilate unto him, [Heareſt thou not how many things they witneſſe againſt thee?]

13. Doſt thou not thinke fit to make apology for thy ſelf, hearing what charges are ſent in by the Sanhedrim, and thoſe ſufficiently teſtified againſt thee?

14. And he anſwered him to never a word, inſomuch that the governour marvelled greatly.]

14. All this would not move Chriſt to make any apology, or plea for himſelfe, at which Pilate extremely wondred.

15. Now at that feaſt the governour was [d] wont to releaſe unto the people a priſoner, whom they would.]

15. Now this being the time of the yearly paſſover, a ſolemn feaſt of the Jewes, 'twas cuſtomary with the Procurator to gratifie the Jewes, by pardoning ſome priſoner of that nation, and that it might be the greater obligation to them, to give them liberty to chooſe whom they pleaſed, by votes of the people. d.

16. And they had then a notable priſoner called Barabbas.

17. Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate ſaid unto them, Whom will yee that I releaſe unto you? Barabbas or Jeſus [which is called Chriſt?]

17. which by many is taken to be the Meſſias.

18. For he knew that for envy they had delivered him.]

18. That which moved him to make this propoſal, was, becauſe he knew, twas matter of malice in ſome great perſons among them, (wherein the multitude of the people were not concerned) that Chriſt was thus perſecuted, and ſo that the multitude might probably be pleaſed to have him releaſed.

19. When he was ſet down on the judgement ſeat, his wife ſent unto him, ſaying, Have thou nothing to doe with that juſt man, for I have ſuffered many things this day in a dreame becauſe of him.]

19. And this he would have been very glad of, becauſe when he was on the bench, his wife ſent him a meſſage, how ſhe had been much troubled in a dream, and by thoſe terrors incited to ſtop him from giving ſentence of death againſt Jeſus.

20. But the chiefe prieſts and elders perſwaded the multitude, that they ſhould aske Barabbas and deſtroy Jeſus.]

20. But they of the Sanhedrim prevayled with the multitude, that they ſhould make choiſe of Barabbas, and by cry and clamour require Jeſus to be put to death.

21. Then the Governour anſwered and ſaid unto them, Whether of the twain [will yee that I releaſe unto you?] they ſaid Barabbas.

21. doe you chooſe to have releaſed, or pardoned, according to that cuſtome, v. 15.

22. Pilate ſaid unto them, What ſhall I do then with Jeſus, which is called Chriſt? [They all ſaid unto him,] Let him be crucified.

22. The whole multitude inſtigated by the Sanhedrim, cryed out v. 23.

23. And the Governour ſaid, Why, what evill hath he done? [But they cryed out the more, ſaying, Let him be crucified.]

23. But the more Pilate ſeemed to believe him guiltleſſe, the more violent were they in their clamours that he ſhould be put to death.

24. When Pilate ſaw that he could prevaile nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and waſhed his hands before the multitude, ſaying, I am innocent of the blood of this juſt perſon: ſee ye to it.]

24. When Pilate diſcerned this, that his expreſſing his opinion of Chriſts innocence did not at all allay the peoples violence, but that contrarywiſe it made them ready to mutine, put them into a rage and diſtemper, he ſolemnly called for water, and in the preſence of them all waſht his hands, deſirous thereby to free himſelfe of all guilt in doing any thing in this matter, and ſaid, I will be guiltleſſe, it ſhall (or, let the whole matter) lye upon you.

25. Then

25. And the whole people cryed out, let it be ſo, what ever guilt there is in putting him to death, let it lye upon us and our poſterity.

25. Then anſwered all the people and ſaid, His blood be on us and on our children.]

26. though he had intended to inflict no other puniſhment on Chriſt, but that of ſcourging Lu. 23. 16. 22. (and therefore it appears Joh. 19. 1. that Pilate ſcourged him long before he ſentenced him to crucifixion v. 16. nay after the ſcourging he was very induſtrious to have ſaved his life v. 4. 8. 12. and Mar. 23. 24. ſcourging is the puniſhment of ſome that were not killed) yet upon this importunity of the people, which he did not thinke fit to reſiſt, to that of ſcourging he ſuperadded the ſentence of death, crucifixion alſo, which was wont to have ſcourging preparative to it; ſee note on Lu. 23. b.

26. Then releaſed he Barabbas unto them, and [when he had ſcourged Jeſus, he delivered him to be crucified.]

27. the whole band that garded the Temple, came, and ſurrounded him, as a guard to a malefactor.

29. And to make him ſomewhat which might looke like a crown, they took thorns, and platted them into that form, and put it on his head, and in ſtead of a ſcepter in his hand, they gave him a reed, and made him hold it in his right hand in a kind of ſtate;

29. And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand;] and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, ſaying, Haile, King of the Jewes.

30,31. And having thus dealt with him as a Mock-king, and derided him long enough that way, they then took the reed out of his hands, and ſpit upon him, and ſmote him on the head, and took off the robe of ſtate, and put his own cloathes on him again, by this ceremony ſignifying the dethroning him from his pretended kingdome, and then carried him to the place of crucifixion.

30. And they ſpit upon him, and took the reed, and ſmote him on the head,
31. And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own rayment on him, and led him away to crucifie him.]

32. And as they came out, [they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name, him they compelled to [c] bear his croſſe.]

a. ἀπάγξαλο

What is here meant by ἀπάγξαλο, or how 'tis reconcileable with what is related of Judas, Act. 1. 18. hath been a matter of some doubt and difficulty. That he hanged himself is affirmed by many of the Ancients, Origen, and S. Chrysostome, and his followers, and Juvencus, and Leo, but especially by the Epistle that bears the name of Ignatius to the Philippians, but sure was not written by him. And some reverence is due to these authorities, Otherwise that which the words most easily and promptly bear, and which they might possibly mean by those words, which we interpret to hanging, is this, that he fell into a violent suffocating fit of sadnesse or melancholy, and grieved so excessively, as to wish himself dead, and then suddainly fell flat upon his face (for so Hesychius renders πρηνὴς ὅτι πρόσωπον πεσοῦσα, only falling on the face, not down any steep place) and then burst Act. 1. 18. So in Ælian where 'tis said of Poliager, κωμῳδούμενος ἀπάγξαλο, being reproach'd he was suffocated, that is to be interpreted by the words immediately precedent, σκώμματα ἀ μόνον ἤλυπεν πολλάκις, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἀπέκτεινε, scoffes have not onely grieved men often, but also killed them with grief. Thus in *Chrysostome τῷ Ζωσιμᾷ ὅτι ἀπήγχθη, is to be suffocated through grief (strangled as it were, or) miserably affected with conscience; And though it signifie not in this sense to die, yet it doth note a violent disease, stifling and suffocating for want of vent, and affecting the patient so, as to produce that death, which Judas soon came to after this, falling upon his face, and then (as upon a violent stopping all naturall passages, which the violence of despair had wrought in him) bursting asunder, his guts breaking out at his navell, Act. 1. 18. That exceeding horrour and grief being the only thing here mention'd, (as that which immediately followed, and came in naturally at that point of the story) the death it self following (it is not certain how long) after, and so particularly mention'd by S. Luke in the Acts, on occasion of the election of a Successour into his place. Thus the Hebrew חנק that is rendred in the old Testament by ἀπάγξαλο, signifies to be choaked, or suffocated, not only with an halter, but with any excessive grief, or trouble on the soul, and in the Arabick, among the Physitians, it signifies an angina, and the suffocating of the mother in Avicen, so also חאנק is that suffocation of the body in time of sleep, which they call incubus, or the night-mare. And for the use of it in the Bible, 'twill be observable how 'tis used Tobit. 3. 11. where the woman that had been so reproached for killing her seven husbands, hearing it, ἐλυπήθη σφόδρα, ὥστε ἀπάγξασθαι, grieved extremely, so as (not to hang her self sure, for the story shewes she did not so, but so as) to fall into a deep melancholy, a spice of this disease of suffocation, a consequent of which was her wishing her self dead, as she expresses it v. 13. εἶπεν ἀπολῦσαί με ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς, I desired that thou wouldst take me away from the earth, and why should I live any longer? v. 15. and εἰ μὴ δοκεῖ σοι ἀποκτεῖναί με, If thou doe not think good to kill me, &c. And though one passage v. 10. seem to incline the other way, as when upon consideration of the reproach, and sadnesse that would come upon her father, she represseth her designe, If I shall doe this, it shall be a reproach &c. yet this is not of much validity, because this consideration might be made use of to dispell her melancholy, that grew so violently upon her, and to divert her to a more profitable course, commending of her state to God in prayer, as she did v. 11. and this as fitly and as properly as from the intention of hanging her self. Adde to this, that she that was so pious a person, and prais so heartily v. 11, 12. (and in that prayer confesses no such guilt, but only [I have desired thee to release me from the earth,] and in her prayer continues of that mind, why should I live any longer?) cannot reasonably without evidence be accused of so foul intentions of hanging or murthering of her self. A parallel place, and condition is that of Job 7. 15. my soule choosseth strangling, there the Hebrew מַחְנָק is by Aquila rendred αἴσχιστη, but by the Septuagint 'tis expresst by ἀπωλεῖαι ἀπὸ σπλαγχνῶν μου ψυχῶν μου, a kind of suffocating and (depriving of breath) strangling of the soule. The same word is by the prophet Nahum used of the Lyon killing his prey, סֹחֵנֶק Nah. 2. 12. and is rendred ἄπνιγμον suffocation, The Syriack and Arabick use it Mat. 13. 7. of the thorns choaking the corn, וחנקו, καὶ συνέπνιξαν, and so Lu. 8. and 2 Cor. 4. 8. נחתנק suffocated, in stead of συνεχωρήθημεν, brought to those great straights or angustia, and so in the Syriack, Mar. 5. 13. ואתחנקו and they were suffocated (not hang'd, but drowned) in the waters. And in this place the Syriack reads of Judas, that going away חנק נפשה suffocavit animam suam, he suffocated his soul, which surely may be taken in that larger sense of the word, and not necessarily in the stricter, for that of hanging himself, when the sacred story in another place mentions another death for him. 'Tis true that very phrase which is here, is used of Achitophel 2 Sam. 17. 23. who, as 'tis generally resolved, hanged himself; But perhaps it might be probable enough that this state assigned to Judas at this time, viz: a suffocation and with it a wishing to die, and an huge melancholy growing into a mortall disease, might be applied to Achitophel also, and the rather, because 'tis added, after [ἀπάγξαλο he was suffocated] καὶ ἀπέθανε and he dyed, which may argue, that his death succeeded or followed the ἀπάγξαλο] not that that it self was the particular notation of the kind of his death. But however there will not be altogether the same reasons of applying this observation to Achitophel, as to Judas, because Achitophel's death is not in any other place described to be another kind of death, as Judas's is, viz: falling down flat on his face, and then bursting and letting out his bowels, which kind of death is that which men oppresst with this disease of grief doe most frequently fall under.

*Hom. 22. ad Antioch.

b. Τιμὴ ἀμαῦρον

'Twas a custome among the Jewes, imitated by the first Christians, that it should not be lawfull for executioners to offer any thing, or for any almes to be received from them (the same also of money, that came out of the Publicans, or Quaestors exchequer) so saith Clemens in Constit.: τὰ δῶρα τῶν ἀνόμων καὶ ἀνελαστα τῷ κυρίῳ, that the offerings of executioners are not acceptable, or fit to be received, and so by analogy any money by which a life is bought, might not be put into the treasury, it was the price of blood, and the field bought with it call'd the field of blood.

The

c. Ξένοι — The ſtrangers here may be either 1. men of other nations, and then the thing from hence obſervable is, that they would not have commerce with them, even when they were dead, and therefore provided a ſeparate place for them, Or 2ly, (which is more likely) the Iewes, which coming from farre to Ieruſalem to ſacrifice, &c. dyed there, before their return, and ſo the Prieſts took this care to provide a burying place for them; Theſe perhaps are the οἱ ἐπιδημοῦντες Ῥωμαῖοι Act. 2. 10. thoſe Iewes that travailed from Rome thither.

d. Κατὰδόσιν τινα Ῥωμαίοις οὐ ἦλθε — This cuſtome was no cuſtome of the Iewes while the power was in their hands, but ad faciendum populum, a piece of popularity, a grace, or favour of the Procurator, brought in by Pilate, v. 15. And thus the ſucceeding Emperours, Valentinian, Theodoſius, Arcadius by a generall law commanded the Iudges that on the firſt day of the Paſſover all the priſoners of the Iewes, but thoſe which were committed for ſome certain faults, ſhould be releaſed. Of the ſame nature is the peoples demanding him to be put to death, giving their ſuffrages, v. 22. and Lu. 23. 23. Joh. 9. 17. which is mentioned alſo by S. Paul, Act. 26. 10. and was a Roman cuſtome, Ne poſſent conſules injuſſu populi in caput civis animadvertere, ſaith Pomponius. See Rawardus ad leg. 12. Tab. c. 24. And it ſeemeth, it was put into the twelve tables, De capite civis niſi per maximum comitatum ne ferunto, as Tully cites it, De leg. l. 3. All to this purpoſe that the people had their voyce in putting any freeman to death.

e. Αἶρειν σταυρὸν — It was the cuſtome in that puniſhment of crucifixion, that he that was to be executed, ſhould himſelfe carry the croſſe. So Plutarch de ſerâ Numin. vind. ἕκαστος τῶν κακούργων ἑκόμενον τὸν ἀυτῷ σταυρὸν. Hence came the name of Furcifer, grown proverbiall ſince. So Artemidorus, Ὀνειρ. l. 2. c. 61. ὁ μέλλων σταυρῷ φορτιεῖσθαι, σκήπτρον αὐτὸν βαστάζει. So Nonius out of Plautus, Patibulum ferat per urbem, deinde affigatur cruci: let him carry it through the city, and then be faſtned to it. This it ſeems by Joh. 19. 17. Chriſt carryed himſelf, but it being ſo great a burthen (and perhaps not well ſupportable by all that were to ſuffer) they uſed ἀγγαρεύειν to preſſe ſome body elſe, as a Porter, or burthen-bearer, to carry it after, or near the perſon that was to ſuffer, that ſo he might have the ſolemne diſgrace, though not pain of it. Ἀγγαρεύουσι

f. χολὴ — χολὴ here ſignifies all kinde of bitter poyſonous ſpices or mixtures, which S. Mark. in ſetting down this ſtory, determines to be Myrrhe. The Hebrew ראש ſignifies two things, gall, and a moſt poyſonous herb, and the Greek χολὴ ſignifying one of theſe, gall, is put (Deut. 29. 18. and 32. 32.) for the other, the poyſonous herbe, ῥίζα φύουσα ἐν χολῇ where the Hebrew is beſt rendred, a root ſpronting out with that moſt poyſonous herb, and ſo the word χολὴ joyn'd with πικρίας is uſed by S. Peter of Simon Magus (ſee note on Act. 8. b.) though metaphoricall. So againe the Hebrew חמה ſignifies both anger and poyſon, and ſo from theſe uſages in the Hebrew language, it comes to paſſe very conſequently, that the word χολὴ in Greek being (as it denotes choler or anger) all one with θυμὸς wrath, both theſe words χολὴ and θυμὸς, are uſed promiſcuouſly, and both in the Old Teſtament taken generally for poyſon, which being mixt with wine, ſtupified and aſtoniſhed the perſon that drank it, and was ordinarily given to them that were put to death. Thus οἶνος θυμοῦ Apoc. 14. 10. is not the wine of Gods wrath, but the wine mixt with all theſe ſtupefying ſpices, i.e. the ſtupefying and aſtoniſhing judgments of God. And the ſame is expreſt in the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 75. 9. by the phraſe of οἶνος ἀκράτου πλήρης κεκερασμένος, wine pure (unmixt from water, or any ſoftening allaying mixture) and full of all theſe poyſonous, ſtupefying ingredients, and ſo, in like manner, by the οἶνος ἄκρατος κεκερασμένος in that place of Rev. 14. 10. the unmixt wine, mixt, which is there the periphraſis of οἶνος θυμοῦ, or the οἶνος ἐσμυρνισμένος in S. Marke, the wine with myrrh in it. This, it ſeems, being uſefull to open the pores and haſten death, Chriſt refuſed to take, meaning to make good his own words of Ego pono, I lay down my life, not for his will only but the act alſo, and ſo though he gave way to naturall things to work, yet he reſerved all to his own power, and ſo when he had done all he would, he ſayeth, It is finiſht, Joh. 19. 30. and bowed the head and gave up the ghoſt. And this was it, that the Centurion conſidering was amazed at Mar. 15. 39. Οἶνος θυμοῦ. Οἶνος ἀκρατος κεκερασμένος. Οἶνος ἐσμυρνισμένος

g. Θέλω — The word θέλω is uſed by the Greek tranſlators of the Old Teſtament, and writers of the New, ſometimes in a notion which ſeldome belongs to it in other authors, as when 1 Sam. 18. 22. θέλει ἐν σοὶ ὁ βασιλεύς, the King delighteth or taketh pleaſure in thee. So 2 Sam. 15. 26. and very frequently in other places, upon this ground, that the Hebrew חפץ which ſignifies to will ſignifies alſo to delight in, and ſo is rendred εὐδοκέω, as well as θέλω, and when θέλω, it is taken in the ſame ſenſe, as if it were εὐδοκέω, And ſo 'tis here, for Pſal. 22. 8. (from whence theſe words are taken, and from the tranſlatours there [θελει] retained for חפץ) we ordinarily render it, let him deliver him, if he delighteth in him, In like manner as Tob. 13. 6. Τίς γινώσκει, εἰ θελήσει ὑμᾶς, who knowes if he will accept, or be pleaſed with you, Thus, Col. 2. 18. θέλων ἐν ταπεινοφροσύνῃ καὶ θρησκείᾳ τῶν ἀγγέλων] is one that delighteth, or pleaſeth himſelfe in that kind of humility, and worſhip of angels, that acquieſces in it. And ſo 1 Cor. 7. 36. θέλει] ſignifies that which he hath a mind to.

h. Λῃσταὶ — That which is here affirm'd of the robbers in the plurall number ſeems to be underſtood in the ſingular, only of one of them, Lu. 23. 39. the other praying unto him and beleiving on him: Severall examples of the like formes of ſpeech ſeem to be in this book, ch. 26. 8. when his diſciples ſaw it they had indignation, whereas only Iudas was diſpleaſed at it, ſaith S. Iohn c. 12. 4. So c. 21. Looſe them] (the aſſe and the foal) is Mar. 11. 2. [a colt tyed, looſe him.] And this by an ordinary figure in all languages. So when Ioh. 13. 28. 'tis ſaid, that none of thoſe that Lay at meat with Chriſt knew to what purpoſe he ſpake to Iudas [what thou doſt, doe quickly] 'tis not to be concluded, that Iohn, who v. 25. asked, and was told v. 26. who 'twas that ſhould betray him, was included in that number, of thoſe that knew not. Πῶλος δεδεμένος

i. Ἐτίσθη δὲ γὰρ — This is conceived by ſome to be the earthquake that Macrobius mentions as the greateſt, ſaith he, which in the memory of mortall man was ever known, in the reign of Tiberius Caſar, twelve cities of Asia being destroyed by it, see Marcil: Ficinus de rel: p. 78. The same is mention'd by Pliny, Nat: Hist: l. 2. c. 48. But it doth not by the Text here appear that this earthquake belong'd to any thing, but the Temple of Ierusalem, the parts of which are mention'd, the veile, and the ground, and the stones of the building, and the tombs, &c. And 'tis not improbable that this prodigie was shewed particularly on this place, to foretell the destruction of the Temple and service, upon their crucifying of Christ. So ch. 28. 2. where there is mention'd μέγας σεισμὸς, a great shaking, it is not to be imagined that this was a shaking of the whole earth, but at the most of that part, where the grave was. Nay there being no mention of the earth in that place, it is not improbable that σεισμὸς should there signifie that concussion of the aire, joyn'd with thunder, &c. with which Angels are wont to descend, when they appear, for so it immediately followes there, For the Angel of the Lord descended, &c.]

Arimathea is the place where Samuel was born and brought up, called by the Hebrewes Ramathaim Sophim, in Greek Ἁρμαθαΐμ. k. Ἀρμαθαΐμ

a. 1. the night after the Sabbath, toward the next morning, Mary Magdalen and the other Mary having with them spices to embalm his body, Lu. 24. 1. came

1.* IN the [a] end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary,] to see the sepulchre:

* And the evening after the sabbath,

2. And when they came, they found there had been a great concussion, probably of the aire, a kind of thunder, with which the Angels were wont to appear, but withall about the earth, at the removall of the grave-stone,

2. And behold, there was a great * earth-quake,] for the Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the dore, and sat upon it.

4. And for feare † of him [the keepers] did shake, and became as dead men.

† the word eum of him is not in the King's MS.

5. And the Angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not yee; for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified.

6. He is not here in the grave, but according to his own predictions risen from the dead, and all that yee can here discern is the place where he lay, and the napkins, and sear-cloaths folded up and layd by, Joh. 20. 5.

6. He is not here, for he is risen: as he said, Come, see the place where the Lord lay.]

7. Go quickly and according to what I have told you, doe yee tell the disciples, viz: that he hath perform'd his promise in rising from the dead, and now will perform that other of going into Galilee, ch. 26. 32. the appointed place of meeting, thither if yee go, yee shall be sure to meet him, God hath sent his Angel from heaven to tell you this.

7. And go quickly and tell his disciples] that he is risen from the dead, And behold he goeth before you into Galilee, there shall yee see him, Lo, I have told you.]

8. And being affrighted with the appearance of the Angels, but extremely joyed with the news of Christ's resurrection they made all haste to carry his Disciples word of this.

8. And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy, and did run to bring his disciples word.]

9. fell down, and caught him by the feet,

9. And as they went to tell his disciples, behold Jesus met them, saying, All haile, and they [came and held him by the feet] and worshipt him.

10. Disciples and kinsmen,

10. Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid, Goe tell my [brethren] that they goe into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

11. Now when they were going, behold some of the watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all the things that were done.

12, 13. And those chief Priests calling the rest of the Sanhedrim together, by decree of councell, appointed that a good summe of money should be given to the souldiers, sufficient to bribe them all to say, that

15. So they took the money, and did as they were taught. And this saying is commonly reported among the Jewes untill this day.

17. And when the eleven were come to him, they with an humble obeysance acknowledged him, but some of them entertained doubts whether twere Christ or no, Mar. 16. 13.

But ὀψὲ may be alſo taken in a wider ſenſe, ſee note on ch. 14. d.

b. τὰ ἔθνη

What is meant ſometimes by the word [ἔθνη nations] hath been ſaid, (ſee note on ch. 24. e.) to wit, the tribes and families of the Jewes, the regions and cities of Paleſtine, and though it doe not ſo here, excluſively to the other nations of the world, yet neither doth it ſignifie the nations of the heathen world, in oppoſition or excluſively to the Jewes, as elſewhere it frequently doth; but primarily and in the firſt place, the ſeverall parts of Judea, and the Jewes whereſoever they are in their diſperſions abroad, and then ſecondarily the Gentiles mingled with the Jewes, and finally the whole Gentile world, when, upon the Jewes rejecting the Goſpel, the Apoſtles depart from them, and goe to the Gentiles. That this is the meaning of the place, I ſhall uſe two arguments to make moſt probable. Firſt, becauſe in other places, when the Commiſſion of preaching and gathering diſciples is given to the Apoſtles, 'tis with a command to goe firſt to the Jewes, and not at all to the Gentiles. So in their firſt Commiſſion, out of which the very Samaritans were excluded, Mat. 10. 5. Goe not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, but goe rather to the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael. And in their ſecond Commiſſion Act. 1. 8. although the Samaritans are taken in, and the utmoſt parts of the earth, yet ch. 3. 26. and ch. 13. 46. 'tis ſtill [σοὶ πρῶτον ὑμῖν] firſt to the Jewes, that they muſt preach. And accordingly we find that the Apoſtles, till the Jewes reject them, and are ready to ſtone them, doe not leave them off, to goe to the Gentiles. But then Act. 13. 46. they foretell them, what they are to doe, Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and ſaid, It was neceſſary that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken to you (which referres, I ſuppoſe, to the precept of Chriſt, that made it neceſſary) but ſeeing ye have put it from you, &c. loe we turn to the Gentiles. And when v. 47. they urge the Lord's commandment for ſo doing, it is not this parting precept of Chriſt, but one out of the prophet Iſaiah, c. 49. 6. I have ſet thee to be a light to the Gentiles, &c. And the ſame I conceive before intimated, v. 40, 41. Beware leſt that come upon you (Jewes) which is ſpoken of in the prophet, Behold yee deſpiſers and wonder and periſh, for I work a work which you ſhall in no wiſe beleive, &c. i.e. upon the Jewes deſpiſing and holding out obſtinately againſt the preaching of the Goſpel, v. 45. 'twas propheciedthat they ſhould be deſtroyed, and about the ſame time the Goſpel ſhould be removed, and preach to the heathen world, An incredible thing which ſhould amaze the Jewes, and be matter of great wonderment to them, (and ſo it is ſaid of them upon the like occaſion of the Chriſtian Jewes, that they were aſtonyed c. 10. 45.) What was thus foretold at Antioch by S. Paul is again repeated c. 18. 6. to the Jewes at Corinth, where upon their reſiſting and blaſpheming, he ſhakes his garment (an emblem of their approaching ruine, like the ſhaking off the duſt from their feet,) and tells them, From henceforth I will goe to the Gentiles, and preſently enters into the houſe of Juſtus a proſelyte, v. 7. This is after moſt fully done to the Jewes at Rome, at the concluſion of the Acts c. 28. 28. Be it known therefore unto you, that the ſalvation of God is ſent to the Gentiles, but that again upon the obduration of the Jewes, v. 26, 27. All this makes it appear that after Chriſt's death the Goſpel was by the Apoſtles to be firſt preacht to the Jewes to convince them of their ſinne of crucifying Chriſt (enlarged alſo to the Samaritans by Chriſt's command, Act. 1. 8. who were, in their worſhipping at mount Gerizzim, ſchiſmaticks, and ſo ſeparated from the Jewes, but otherwiſe were Iewes in religion) and that was a doing till about the time that that fatall deſtruction fell upon that nation, ch. 10. 23. But this not excluſively, but incluſively alſo to the preaching to all the nations and people of the world, as the phraſe is taken in the greateſt latitude (when the Iewes ſhould firſt have expreſt their obſtinacy ſufficiently) For ſo the words, as they are repeated in S. Mark, muſt neceſſarily ſignifie, Goe into all the world, and preach the Goſpel to every creature, to thoſe of the ſynagogue firſt, and then to others alſo, Thus S. Luke hath ſet it down moſt diſtinctly, ch. 24. 47. that repentance and remiſſion of ſinnes ſhould be preached to all nations, beginning at Ieruſalem, where Judea, in which Ieruſalem is, is one of the [all nations] and they are to begin at Ieruſalem, and from thence firſt preach through all other parts of Judea (and even in the heathen cities) firſt to the native and proſelyte Iewes in their ſynagogues, and proſeucha, (before they went to the Gentiles) and ſo generally they continue to doe, till the time of the deſtruction of that people. The ſecond argument for this rendring of the word ἔθνη, ſo as that it may primarily point to the Iewes, is that of S. Paul, Gal. 2. viz: that S. Peter was intruſted with the Goſpel of the circumciſion, i. e. to preach the Goſpel particularly to the Iewes, and ſo again it there appeareth of Iames and Iohn, that they betook themſelves to the circumcision, i.e. to the Jewes, v.9. And 'tis observable how farre S. Peter was from understanding this precept in this place to oblige him at that time (not long after Christ's ascension) to preach to the Gentiles, for in the businesse of Cornelius, *Act.*10. 'tis clear, that he did not yet think it lawfull for him to preach to that one Gentile, and for the commission of Christ he repeats it thus, παρήγγειλεν ἡμῖν κηρύξαι τῷ λαῷ v. 42. he commanded us to preach to the people, i.e. to the people of the Jewes (as the Rulers of the people and Rulers of Israel are all one, and as that nation is call'd ὁ λαὸς the people, and as πᾶς ὁ λαὸς *Act.*10.41. signifies all the Jewes) and 'tis manifest that before he would venture to preach Christ to that one heathen, God saw it necessary to send him a vision, and by that instructed him that the Gentiles were not to be lookt on by him any longer as profane (or not to be conversed with) but might be preach'd to, as well as the Jewes. And this God confirm'd by sending down the holy Ghost on these first fruits of the Gentiles, Cornelius and his company (as he had done on the Apostles the first fruits of the Jewes) to testifie this his pleasure from heaven immediately. And accordingly v.45. the beleiving Jewes were astonished when they heard of this, and ch.11.1. 'tis said that the Apostles &c. in Judea heard of this, & v.2. they call Peter in question about it, and he is fain to give them an account of his vision, and the descent of the holy Ghost upon them, as a testimony that so 'twas to be, v.16. and by that they are convinced ver. 18. and not till then.

It hath formerly been said (note on Mat. 24. c.) that there was a double age famously spoken of among the Jewes, the then present age, and the future age, or the state of things under the Messias, from that time to the end of the world. According to this, the destruction of that state, or end of the first age, is taken notice of, as a famous period, and is set down in that very style, Συντέλεια αἰῶνος, the consummation, or conclusion of the age, *Mat.*24.3. & *Mat.*13.40. where 'tis more distinctly, αἰῶνος τούτου, of this age, and so again *Heb.*9.26. Συντέλεια τῶν αἰώνων, the conclusion of the ages, in the plurall, those last times, *Heb.*1.2. wherein Christ came into the world. But then other places there are, where it may be taken in another sense, as *Mat.*13.43. where it may well signifie the end of this other age, the conclusion of the world, and so here Christ's promise of his being with the Apostles unto the end of the world. For 'tis to be observed that this age being the Christian state or kingdome of Christ, that doth most distinctly begin at his resurrection, all power being then given to him v.18. and this being the last age (no other state to succeed this,) it follows necessarily, that this age then beginning, shall not conclude, till the end of the world, And consequently Christ's promise hath no other period to determine it, but instates a power on the Apostles, and their successours by this mission, and assisting and backing them in the execution of their office, πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας, all the daies, the whole term of this new age.

The Goſpel according to S. MARK.

CHAP. I.

Paraphraſe.

1. THE beginning of the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt the Son of God.
2. As it is written in the prophets; Behold, I ſend my meſſenger before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee.
3. The voyce of one crying in the wilderneſſe, Prepare yee the way of the Lord, make his paths ſtreight.]

1, 2, 3. The firſt thing conſiderable in the ſtory of Chriſt the Meſſias and eternall ſonne of God, and in the preaching of the Goſpel which he brought with him into the world, was the preaching of John the Baptiſt, as of an Herald ſent before him, and ſo foretold of by the old prophets, under the ſtyle of the voyce of a preacher in the deſert, i. e. the proclamation of an eminent perſon that ſhould goe into the wilderneſſe, and cry, and give warning to the Jewes, that by repentance and amendment of life they ſhould prepare themſelves for the coming of God, a terrible coming to viſite and puniſh the impenitents.

4. John did baptize in the wilderneſſe, and preach the baptiſme of repentance for the remiſſion of ſinnes.]

4. According to this prediction of the prophets John went into the deſert part of Judea, and there proclaimed to all the Jewes, the neceſſity of their inſtant change of life, promiſing them thereupon (and on no other termes) forgiveneſſe of ſins, And all that came to him, and thus reformed upon his preaching, he took, and waſht them in the river, after the manner of proſelytes among the Jewes (ſee Mat. 23. note d. and John 3. 2.) to ſignifie to them the purification of their wicked lives, to which they were obliged, and on performance of which (and not otherwiſe) God would receive them into his favour and look on them as his people. And this baptiſme and this repentance, and the benefit of it, remiſſion of ſinnes, he proclaimed to all, every where as he went.

5. And there went out unto him all the land of Judea and they of Jeruſalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confeſſing their ſinnes.]

5. And the generality of people in all the countrey, and in the city of Jeruſalem, obeyed his preaching ſo farre, as to goe and receive baptiſme from him (which was done in Jordan a river convenient for that purpoſe, the ſame wherein Naamans leproſie had been cleanſed long ago by waſhing in it) and to confeſſe the ſinnes that they had ſeverally been guilty of, and deſiring directions from him for new life, Lu. 3. 10.

6. And John was clothed with camels heire, and with a girdle of a skinne about his loynes, and he did eate [locuſts and wild honey.]

6. See note on Mat. 3. b. 4.

7. And preached, ſaying, [There commeth one mightier then I after me, the latchet of whoſe ſhooes I am not worthy to ſtoop down and unlooſe.]

7. I am the forerunner of one who is of infinitely more authority then I, whoſe diſciple I am not worthy to be, or, as ſuch, to be employed by him in the meaneſt office, ſuch as the taking off his ſhooes. See note on Mat. 3. b.

8. I indeed have baptized you with water, but he ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt.]

8. I am not worthy to be conſidered by you in compariſon with him, All that I doe is to receive you as Proſelytes, (after the Jewiſh manner) as many as now come in, and repent, and make faithfull promiſe of amendment, and new life; And ſo water is the onely ſignall which I uſe. But he, when he comes, ſhall ſend down the holy Ghoſt from heaven in a viſible manner upon his diſciples, and by that great ſignall teſtifie to you the truth of his doctrine, &c. See Mat. 3. 11. and note on Act. 1. a

9. And it came to paſſe in thoſe days, that Jeſus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan.

10. And ſtraightway coming up out of the water he ſaw the heavens opened, and the Spirit * like a dove deſcending upon him.]

10. And inſtantly after his baptiſme, as he came up from the river, he beheld a parting of the heavens, and opening of the cloudes, and the ſpirit of God hovering over him, as a dove doth, when it deſcends and lights upon any thing. (ſee note on Mat. 3. b.)

* as it were, devi

11. And there came a voyce from heaven, ſaying, Thou art my beloved ſon in whom I am well pleaſed.]

11. And there came a voyce from heaven thrpugh the clouds directed to Chriſt, in theſe words. Thou art &c. ſee Mat. 3. 17.

12. And immediately the Spirit [a] † driveth him into the wilderneſſe.

† expoſeth him, or leadeth him

13. And he was there in the wilderneſſe forty days tempted of Satan, and was with the wild beaſts, and the angels miniſtred unto him.]

13. And having faſted in the deſert forty days, Satan then ſet upon him to tempt him, Mat. 4. 2, 3. and after he had done tempting him, he left him in the wilderneſſe among none but wild beaſts, and there the Angels came, and brought him food, Mat. 4. 11.

14. Now after that John was put in priſon, Jeſus came into Galilee, preaching the Goſpel of the kingdome of God.]

14. Soon after this Herod having for ſome time received inſtructions from Iohn, c. 6. 20. and at laſt being reproved by him about a woman, with whom he lived inceſtuouſly, c. 6. 17. impriſoned him. And after this his impriſonment Mat. 14. 3. Jeſus went from Nazareth into Galilee (ſee note on Mat. 4. d.) and there began to proclaim the doctrine of his father concerning this approaching reformation and change, that God as a King ſhould now work in the world, eſpecially among the Jewes.

15. And

15. And the form of his proclamation was in theſe or the like words, The days of the coming of the Meſſias ſo long expected, and prophecied of, are now come, and Gods remarkable judgments upon the whole nation are approaching (ſee note on Mat. 3. c.) which there is no way to avert from any, but by beleiving the Goſpell now to be preacht by Chriſt, and amending of their lives.

15. And ſaying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdome of God is at hand, repent yee and beleive the Goſpel.]

16. waſhing their net, ſee note on Luke 5. a.

16. Now as he walked by the ſea of Galilee, he ſaw Simon and Andrew his brother [caſting a net into the ſea] (for they were fiſhers.)

17. And having firſt ſhewed them a great miracle, convinced them of his divine power, he called them to be his diſciples, telling them that he would employ them in an office of greater importance, and ſo enable them for it, that they ſhould be able to win men to righteouſnes, as now to get ſiſhes into their nets.

17. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, Come yee after me and I will make you to become fiſhers of men.]

18. And upon this command of his immediately they left their imployments, and as diſciples, attended conſtantly on him.

18. And ſtraightway they forſook their nets, and followed him.]

19. with their father Zebedee, Mat. 4. 21. and other labourers here mentioned, v. 20. all together in a ſhip.

19. And when he had gone a little farther thence, he ſaw James the ſon of Zebedee and John his brother, [* who alſo were in the ſhip] mending their nets.

* and theſe in the ſhip or boate, καὶ αὐτοὺς ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ

20. See Lu. 5. a.

20. And ſtraightway he called them, and they left their father Zebedee in the ſhip, with the hired ſervants, and went after him.

21. a city of Galilee called Capernaum, Mat. 4. 13.

21. And they went into [Capernaum,] and ſtraightway on the Sabbath day he entred into the Synagogue and taught.

22. And they wondred extremely at his way of inſtructing them, Mat. 7. 28. For his manner of teaching was not like that of the Doctors of their law, who onely expound the law, and tell them the traditions of their fathers the Jewes, but he as one that came with power from heaven to give new rules of life, delivered his doctrine with great authority.

22. And they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine, for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the Scribes.]

23. poſſeſt with a devill, (Lu. 4. 33. ſee Mar. 3. 22, 30.) which caſt him into a fit of epilepſie,

23. And there was in the Synagogue a man [† with an unclean ſpirit,] and he cryed out,

† in an unclean ſpirit ſo c. 5. 2. ſee note on 2 Cor. 12. a.

24. Subdue, quel, undoe us, caſt us out of our poſſeſſions?

24. Saying, Let us alone, What have we to doe with thee, thou Jeſus of Nazareth? Art thou come to [deſtroy us?] I know thee who thou art, the holy one of God.

25. And Jeſus rebuked him, ſaying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

26. And * when the unclean ſpirit had torn him, and cryed with a loud voyce, he came out of him.

* the unclean ſpirit having diſquieted him (troubled him, wrought or boyled with in him, ſee c. 9. c.) and having cried σπαράξαν καὶ κράξαν,

27. This is more then was ever heard of before, and therefore ſure his doctrine comes from heaven in an extraordinary manner, for it appears that he hath an authority over the devills themſelves, and they are ſubject to him.

27. And they were all amazed, inſomuch that they queſtioned among themſelves ſaying, [What thing is this? † what new doctrine is this? For with authority commandeth he even the unclean Spirits, and they doe obey him.]

† what is this new doctrine? that τίς ἡ διδαχὴ αὕτη ἡ καινή;

28. through all Galilee a third partition of Paleſtine, called the ambient or circumjacent region of the nations, which encompaſſed Judea. See note on Mat. 4. d.

28. And immediately his fame ſpread abroad [* throughout all the region round about Galilee.]

* into the whole adjacent region of Galilee. Εἰς τὴν περίχωρον τῆς Γαλιλαίας.

29. And forthwith when they were come out of the Synagogue, they entred into the houſe of Simon and Andrew with James and John.

30. But Simon's wives mother lay ſicke of a fever, and † anon they tell him of her.

† preſently εὐθέως.

31. took hold of her hand and raiſed or lifted her up, and aſſoon as he did ſo, the diſeaſe forthwith left her, and ſhe was ſo well, that immediately ſhe attended and made proviſion for them.

31. And he came and [took her by the hand, and lift her up, and immediately the fever left her, and ſhe miniſtred unto them.]

32. And at even when the ſun did ſet, they brought unto him all that were diſeaſed, and them that were poſſeſſed with devils.

33. well-nigh all the inhabitants of that place were extremely enquired for, and ſought after by all.

33. And [all the city was] gathered together at the dore,

34. And he healed many, that were ſick of divers diſeaſes, and caſt out many devills, and ſuffered not the devills to ſpeake, becauſe they knew him.

35. And in the morning riſing up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a ſolitary place, and there prayed.

36. the reſt of the diſciples, whom he had called, purſued and ſought after him.

36. And Simon and [they that were with him followed after him.]

37. Sir, thou art thee.]

37. And when they had found him, they ſaid unto him, [All men ſeek for

38. And

38. And he ſaid unto them, Let us goe into the next townes, that I may preach there alſo, [for therefore came I forth.] 38. for that was the appointment, and employment for which I was ſent by my Father. b.

39. And he preached in their Synagogues throughout all Galilee, and caſt out devils.

40. And there came a leper to him, beſeeching him, and kneeling down to him and ſaying unto him, [If thou wilt, thou canſt make me clean.] 40. If it be thy pleaſure to ſhew forth thy power, thou art moſt able to cure me of my leproſie.

41. And Jeſus moved with compaſſion put forth his hand, and touched him, and ſaith unto him [I will, be thou clean.] 41. It is my pleaſure, be thou cured of thy leproſie.

42. And aſſoon as he had ſpoken, immediately the leproſie departed from him, and he was cleanſed.

43. And [he ſtraightly charged him, and] forthwith ſent him away. 43. with threats commanding him not to ſpeake of it (ſee Mat. 8. 4. note b.) he

44. And ſaith unto him, See thou ſay nothing unto any man, but goe thy way and [ſhew thy ſelfe to the Prieſt, and offer for thy cleanſing thoſe things which Moſes commanded for a teſtimony unto them.] 44. See note on Mat. 8. c. d.

45. But he went out and began to publiſh it much, and to blaze abroad the matter, in ſo much that Jeſus could [no more openly enter into the city, but was without in deſert places, and they came to him from every quarter.] 45. no longer with ſafety come publickly into the city, but was faine to withdraw himſelf into places of ſolitude (ſee note on Mat. 8. b.) and yet even there the people found him out, and in great multitudes came to him from all parts.

Notes on Chap. I.

2. ἐκβάλλειν

The word ἐκβάλλειν doth not in the New Teſtament, always ſignifie according to the literall notation of it, to caſt out, but in a ſofter ſenſe to ſend out, Mat. 9. 25. and v. 38. and c. 12. 20. and 35. ſo c. 13. 52. (and beſides many other in the Goſpels) James 2. 25. And ſo it may doe here, and be all one with ἀνάγειν to lead away, which is the word uſed in the parallel part of the ſtory in S. Matthew, c. 4. 1. ἀνήχθη he was led away &c. But beſides this, the word doth in good authors peculiarly ſignifie to expoſe, to leave in a deſtitute helpleſſe condition, as when Ariſtotle ſaith of the Raven, ἐκβάλλει τὰς νεοττὸς ὁ κόραξ, that ſhe expoſes her young ones. And although Jeſus being already in the wilderneſſe at his baptiſme, (for there did John preach and baptize v. 4.) there is no peculiar need of any new act of driving or bringing him into the wilderneſs, for the buſineſſe of his temptation following, but only to leave him or expoſe him there, yet becauſe S. Matthew joynes ἀνήχθη to this part of the ſtory in order to his temptation, therefore the ſafeſt way is ſo to render ἐκβάλλειν as may be reconcileable with that, i.e. to lead him up farther into the wilderneſſe, and expoſe him there.

b. ἐχόμενα

That ἐχόμενας] ſignifies here (joyned with κωμοπόλεις) adjoyning is from the uſe of the word in the Septuagint of the old Teſtament; For there the Hebrew אחר which ſignifies behinde or next after, and is oft rendred μετὰ, and ὀπίσω poſt, and ὀπίσθια the hinder parts] is four times rendred ἐχόμενος, Gen. 41. 23. ἐφύοντο ἐχόμενοι αὐτῶν, ſprang up adjoyning, or next to them, we read after them, 2 Sam. 21. 1. ἐνιαυτὸς ὁ ἐχόμενος ἐνιαυτῷ, year adjoyning to year, we read, year after year, Pſal. 68. 25. ἔφθασαν ἄρχοντες ἐχόμενοι ψαλλόντων, the Princes went before adjoyning, or next to the ſingers, we read the ſingers after, Pſal. 94. 15. ἐχόμενοι αὐτῆς πάντες οἱ εὐθεῖς, All that are true are neer it, we read follow, or after it. So likewiſe the word עֵיר is oft by them rendred ἐχόμενος, in this ſenſe, ſo flowing, contiguous. Num. 2. 17. and in eight places more, and accordingly I doubt not but 1 Sam. 19. 3. where the copies read σταθεὶς ἐυχόμενος τῆ πατρίδι μου. it ſhould be read ἐχόμενος, the Hebrew לְיַד, which we render beſides my father, being ſo often rendred ἐχόμενος, and ſo in like manner Dan. 10. 3. ἐυχόμενος τῷ ποταμῷ, ſure ἐχόμενος, the Hebrew having עַל יד and we render it, I was by the ſide of the great river. So in the New Teſtament τῇ ἐχομένῃ ἡμέρᾳ Act. 20. 15. and 21. 26. is the day adjoyning, or next following, according to the notion of אחר the day after, and c. 20. 15. τῇ ἐχομένῃ, the day next following, ſo Lu. 13. 33. See note on Act. 13. h.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND again he entred into Capernaum after ſome dayes,] and it was noyſed that he was in the houſe. 1. And after a while he came openly in the day time into the city Capernaum, c. 1. 21. 45. ſee Mat. 9. 1. and went, as 'tis probable into Simons and Andrews houſe. c. 1. 21.

2. And ſtraightway many were gathered together, inſomuch that there was no room to receive them, no not ſo much as about the dore, and he preached the word unto them.

3. And they came] unto him bringing one ſick of the palſie, which was borne of four. 3 And there was a company which came a. Ἤρξαντο The phraſe here in the Greek is a little unuſuall [ἤρξαντο ὁδὸν ποιεῖν τίλλοντες] literally thus, They began to journey plucking &c. But the truth is, the word ἤρξαντο began] here is but a περίλεκτον, or an unſignificant expletive, as in the parallel Mat. 12.1. and in very many places more, where generally ἤρξατο λέγειν he began to ſpeak] is no more then εἶπε he ſaid, and ſo particularly Lu. 3.8. bring forth fruits &c. and begin not to ſay, i.e. doe not ſay within your ſelves, We have Abraham, &c. and ſo Act. 1.1. ὧν ἤρξατο ποιεῖν &c. which Jeſus began to doe, and teach, i.e. which he did and taught. So ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε he anſwered and ſaid, a pure expletive, many times, when there had gone nothing before, to which an anſwer could be accommodated, as ch. 11.14. when to the figtree ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῇ, he anſwered and ſaid to it. So δοκεῖν ſeeming, or thinking, is ſometimes taken, as Mat. 3.9. μὴ δόξητε λέγειν &c. think not, or ſeem not to ſay] is parallel to that of Lu. 3.8. μὴ ἄρξησθε λέγειν begin not to ſay, i.e. ſay not within your ſelves, and ſo in many other places, as hath been formerly ſhewn, ſee note on Mat. 3.9. c. So πορεύεσθαι going, Lu. 8.14. which hath no ſignification but what belongs to the [συμπνίγουσι] choaked] following, πορευόμενοι συμπνίγουσι] they are choaked. So the word ἄνθρωπος Mat. 18.23. ἀνθρώπῳ βασιλεῖ a man King, i.e. a king, and ſo εὐρέθησαν found Lu. 1.18. εὑρέθησαν ὑποστρέφοντες, they were found returning, i.e. returned. And ſo here ἤρξαντο ὁδὸν ποιεῖν τίλλοντες, they began to goe or travaile, &c. is no more then ὁδὸν ἐποίουν] they went plucking, or as they went they plucked.

b. Ἐπὶ The notation of the prepoſition ἐπὶ for the time not then preſent but ſoon after ſucceeding, is remarkable Mat. 1.11. where ἐπὶ τῆς μετοικεσίας cannot be underſtood or rendred [under the Babyloniſh deportation] for that will not be found true in the hiſtory, Jechoniah being not born under the captivity, but before; and being king Jer. 24.1. and ſo carried captive into Babylon: [ἐπὶ] therefore muſt there ſignifie [next before] as the Latine ſub doth often note, ſub finem libri, a little before the end of the book, and many the like, and ſo 'tis moſt true, Joſias begat Jechoniah &c. next before, or neer about the Babyloniſh deportation. So in like manner here ἐπὶ τοῦ Ἀβιαθὰρ] may not be rendred under Abiathar the high Prieſt, for it was in Abimelech's time, who was Abiathar's father, 1 Sam. 21. and the ſtory is known that Abimelech and the reſt of the Prieſts, almoſt the whole family, were by Saul's appointment ſlain for ſuccouring David at this time, Abiathar (here named) peculiarly eſcaping out of this ſlaughter, 1 Sam. 22.20. and ſucceeding in the high prieſthood upon this occaſion, and ſo continuing long under David's reign, famous for bringing him the Ephod, c. 36.7. and he and Zadok eſpeciall aſſiſtants to his affairs, 2 Sam. 15.35. It is therefore neceſſary that ἐπὶ τοῦ Ἀβιαθὰρ ἀρχιερέως] here muſt be ſo rendred as to denote the time immediately preceding Abiathar's being high Prieſt; And this uncertain ſignification of prepoſitions in the New Teſtament, proceeds from the like of the Hebrew in the Old. For ſo עַל which is often rendred ἐπὶ under, is often πρὸ before alſo, Gen. 13.10. and 27.7, 10. and 36.11. and 50.16. and in many other places, to note the time precedent. So in like manner for place, as well as time. For when Mat. 21.19. 'tis ſaid that Chriſt ſaw a fig tree ἐπὶ τῆς ὁδοῦ, it muſt not be rendred in, but at ſome diſtance from the way, for ſo in Mark we read, ἰδὼν συκῆν μακρόθεν, ſeeing a fig tree a farre off.

The

a. Προσπίπτειν The word προσπίπτειν αὐτῷ] seems to be mistaken by Interpreters, when 'tis rendred either irruere, or incidere, to ruſh or preſſe upon. It is all one with ὀγονύπετειν v.11. to fall down at his feet, as they doe that have any petition or requeſt to make, as theſe had here, ἵνα ἅψωνται, that they might touch him. Thus ch.6. 52. in a like matter, it is, in another phraſe, to this ſenſe, παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν ἵνα κἂν κρασπέδου ἅψωνται, they beſought him that they might but touch the hemme, &c.

b. Βοανεργὲς is the corruption of the Hebrew בני רעש, ſons of Concuſſion, earthquake, or any other the greateſt commotion, ſuch as here is ſtyled βρονταὶ thunder. And the meaning of this title may ſeem to be, that thoſe two ſons of Zebedee were to be ſpeciall eminent Miniſters of the Goſpel, which is call'd Heb. 12.26. φωνὴ τοῦ τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, a voice ſhaking the earth, taken from Hag. 2.7. which is directly the periphraſis of רעש which is here rendred βρονταὶ thunder, in the notion, wherein φωνὴ voice, and βροντὴ thunder are promiſcuouſly uſed for the ſame thing (ſee note on *Act.*9. b.) and wherein the laſt ſort of revelations, the voice from heaven, was wont to be called among the Jewes בת קול, the daughter of voice, or, thunder.

c. Ἐξέστη The word ἐξέστη] here uſed doth in all places of the new Teſtament but this, and 2 *Cor.*5.13. ſignifie being amazed or aſtoniſhed, ſome ſuddain perturbation of mind, wch deprives the man of the exerciſe of his faculties. In that place to the Corinthians 'tis ſet oppoſite to σωφρονῶν, ſobriety, or temper, the ſpeaking magnificently of himſelf, commending his own office, or performances, exceeding a little in ſuch kind of ſpeeches of himſelf. For which he ſaith in another place, that he may be counted a fool by ſome; And thus in the old Teſtament 'tis variouſly uſed for exceſſes, or vehemencies, or commotions of mind, *Pſal.*31.23. I ſaid in my haſt, the Hebrew hath בחפזי, the Greek ἐν ἐκστάσει μου, and the vulgar Latine, in exceſſu mentis mea, in the exceſſe, or, vehemence of my mind. And the ſame Hebrew word *Pſal.*48.5. is rendred ἐταράχθησαν commoti ſunt, they were troubled. Agreeably here, I ſuppoſe, it will be moſt fitly taken for a commotion, exceſſe, vehemence, tranſportation of mind, acting or ſpeaking in zeale (above that which is called (ordinarily) temper, and ſobriety,) or in ſuch a manner, as they which are moved by ſome extraordinary ſpirit, are wont to doe, as Prophets &c. according to that of S. Chryſoſtome, τῶν μάλιστα ἴδιον τὸ ἐξίστασθαι &c. 'tis proper to Prophets to be thus tranſported. See note on 2 Cor. 12.2. Which ſenſe of the word will be thus fitted to the place. In this chapter Chriſt began to ſhew himſelf in the full luſtre of his office, he cures on the Sabbath day, which the Phariſees conceived unlawfull, v.2. looks about him μετ' ὀργῆς, with ſome incitation of mind, v.5. is followed by great multitudes, v.7. heales the diſeaſed, and is flocked to for that purpoſe, v.10. is called openly the ſon of God by the demoniakes, v.11. makes 12 diſciples, and ſends them out to preach, and cure, v.14. and upon this the Phariſees and Herodians take counſel againſt him. v.6. thoſe of their faction ſay he acts by Beelzebub. v.22. and is poſſeſt by him, that is, that he was acted by ſome principall evil ſpirit, and did all his miracles thus, and ſo was not to be followed, but abhorred by men. And they that ſaid not theſe high blaſphemies againſt him, yet ἔλεγον ὅτι ἐξέστη, ſaid that this making of diſciples &c. was a kind of exceſſe, an height, a tranſportation, and this was the conceit of his own kindred, They had a ſpeciall prejudice againſt him, ch.6.4. and did not beleive on him, *Joh.*7.5. And accordingly hearing this report of his doing theſe high things, came out κρατῆσαι to get him into their hands, and have him home with them, ἔλεγον γάρ, for they ſaid that he was guilty of ſome exceſſes. As for that interpretation which renders it of fainting through hunger, though it be favoured by † learned men, yet it ſeems not to have any ground in the nature of the word, ἐξίστημι, nor in κρατῆσαι, (being here joyn'd not with a genitive, but an accuſative caſe) nor in any circumſtances of the context, ſave onely the caſuall mention of their having no time to eat bread, v.20. (which one thing hath ſeemed to ſome to be of ſo much force, *Act.*10.10. as to cauſe them to render the ἔκστασις that fell on S. Peter, no more but a ſleep, that ſuch as faint, or are diſſpirited through hunger, fall into, when the viſion that is added to it, ſhews that it was a trance, into which he was caſt by God,) but is made improbable by many other circumſtances. Of the word ἔκστασις, ſee note on *Act.*10. b.

Paraphraſe.

* abode on the ſea, καθῆσθαι

1. AND he began again to teach by the ſea ſide, and there was gathered unto him a great multitude, ſo that he entred into a ſhip and * ſat in the ſea;] and the whole multitude was by the ſea on the land.

1. And again he taught by the ſea ſide, and the people flocked ſo together about him, that he was forced to goe into a boat, and ſit in that upon the water;

2. And he taught them many things by parables [and ſaid unto them in his doctrine,]

2. And as he taught them thus he ſaid,

3. Hearken, Behold there went out a ſower to ſow,

4. And it came to paſſe, as he ſowed, ſome fell [by the way ſide,] and the fowles of the aire came, and devoured it up.

4. See Mat. 13. 4.

5. And ſome fell on ſtony ground, where it had not much earth, and immediately it ſprang up, becauſe it had no depth of earth.

6. But when the ſun was up, it was ſcorched, and becauſe it had no root it withered away,

7. And ſome fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choaked it, and it yeelded no fruit.

8. See note on Mat. 13. 8.

8. And other fell on good ground, and did yeeld fruit, that ſprang up, and encreaſed, and brought forth ſome thirty, and ſome ſixty, and ſome [an hundred.]

9. And he ſaid unto them, He that hath eares to heare, let him hear.

10. And being retired from the company of the promiſcuous multitude, they that conſtantly followed him, together with the twelve ſelect, or choſen diſciples, Mat. 13. 10. deſired him to interpret to them the meaning of the parable.

13. But as parables are a way of obſcuring doctrine to the careleſſe heedleſs hearers, ſo have they a ſpeciall energy in them, which worketh moſt ſharply, and with greateſt quickneſſe on the diligent hearer, ſuch as diſciples are ſuppoſed to be (ſee Mat. 13. 13.) and therefore 'tis ſtrange you ſhould not underſtand my meaning in this parable, which is an eſſay of what may be expected of you in others the like hereafter, this being the way, in which I ſhall commonly ſpeake unto you.

21. The Goſpell of Chriſt whereſoever tis received, as it ought, is diffuſive of it ſelfe, is as a candle lighted and brought into a room, on purpoſe to ſhine forth to others, in communicating the light we have (ſee Mat. 5. 15.) and in actions of the light, Chriſtian performances.

21. And he ſaid unto them, Is a candle brought to be put under a buſhell, or under a bed, † and not to be ſet on a candleſtick?]

† Is it not that it may be put ὁτι ἐπι τὴν λυχνίαν

24. And he ſaid unto them, Take heed what you hear, with what meaſure yee mete it ſhall be meaſured to you, and unto you that hear ſhall more be given.]

* Conſider βλεπετε

24. And be farther ſaid unto them, Mark diligently (and practiſe accordingly) what you hear, As you deal with God, ſo will he deal with you, and to thoſe of you that heed and make uſe of what is ſaid to you, more knowledge ſhall be revealed.

25. For he that makes uſe of that grace and knowledge which he hath (ſee note on Mat. 13. b.) he ſhall improve extremely, the very uſing his talent well, the exerciſing of Chriſtian virtues, and the teaching them to others, is a ſure way of improving it, and beſides Gods bleſſing and grace to him, is a great though inſenſible addition alſo; and on the contrary, that which is not uſed, decreaſes and moulders away, and tis juſt with God to withdraw it.

25. For he that hath, to him ſhall be given, and he that hath not, from him ſhall be taken, even that he hath.]

26. And

26. And he ſaid, So is the kingdome of God, as if a man ſhould caſt ſeed into the ground,] 26. To which purpoſe he uſed another parable, The ſtate of Chriſtianity is as if a man ſhould till and ſow his ground,

27. And ſhould ſleep and riſe night and day, and the ſeed ſhould ſpring and grow up he knoweth not how.] 27. And having done ſo, never doe more toward the growing of the corn, but go to bed at night, and riſe in the morning, and yet without any contribution of his, it comes up and growes inſenſibly, he knowes not how.

*green corn like graſſe, then the ſtalk, or, blade, then the full corn on the ſtalk, χόρτον, εἶτα στάχυν, εἶτα πλήρη σῖτον ἐν τῷ στάχυϊ. † is ripe

28. For the earth bringeth forth fruit of her ſelf, firſt the * blade, then the eare, after that the full corn in the eare.] 28. For the earth it ſelfe by its owne ſtrength (and the continuall warmth and influences of heaven, and the dewes and ſhowres that God is pleaſed to afford it) without any farther labour or daily aſſiſtance of the husbandman, completes the whole work, ſends out a ſpear of graſſe, as it were, firſt, then a blade &c.

29. But when the fruit † is [b] brought forth, immediately he putteth in the ſickle, becauſe the harveſt is come.] 29. And when it is perfectly ripe he reaps it in the time of harveſt, ſo when Chriſt hath made known our duty to us, he expects, without more adoe, that we ſhould ſet to the performance of it, make good reſolutions, bring forth good fruit, and when we have finiſhed our courſe, he then takes us to himſelf, and rewards us; and whenſoever Chriſt's word and grace meets with an honeſt heart, thus it is upon his firſt being revealed to him. b

30. And he ſaid, Whereunto ſhall I liken the kingdome of God? or with what compariſon ſhall we compare it?] 30. The ſame alſo is the meaning of that other parable.

31. It is like a grain of muſtard ſeed, which when it is ſown in the earth, is leſſe then all the ſeeds that be in the earth.] 31. The ſtate of Chriſtianity is like to the ſowing of muſtard-ſeed, There the word and grace of Chriſt is ſown in the heart, as a little grain of muſtard-ſeed in a garden, It is ſmall and unconſiderable at the ſowing, as the muſtard-ſeed is the leaſt of all ſeeds.

32. But when it is ſowed, it groweth up, and becometh greater then all herbs, and ſhooteth out great branches, ſo that the fowles of the aire may lodge under the ſhadow of it.] 32. But being ſow'd, as the muſtard-ſeed comes up, and within a while growes into a tree (Lu. 13. 19.) and hath branches big enough for birds (to build neſts in, and rooſt, Lu. 13. 19. or) to be defended from ſun or weather in them, ſo doth that in the honeſt heart bring forth moſt abundantly, by the grace and bleſſing of God upon the uſe of his talents of grace.

33. And with many ſuch parables ſpake he the word unto them, [as they were able to hear it.] 33. In ſuch a manner as was moſt intelligible, and withall moſt profitable for them.

34. But without a parable ſpake he not unto them, and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his diſciples.

* on that day, ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ as he was, into the ſhip, ὡς ἦν ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ.

35. And [* the ſame day] when the even was come, he ſaith unto them, Let us paſſe over unto the other ſide. 35. on a certain time, Mat.8.23.

36. And when they had ſent away the multitude, they took him [* even as he was] in the ſhip, and there were alſo with him other little ſhips. 36. alone without the multitude.

37. And there aroſe a [c] great [ſtorm of wind] and the waves beat into the ſhip ſo that it was now full. 37. tempeſt of wind and rain together c.

38. And he was in the hinder part of the ſhip aſleep on a pillow, and they awake him, and ſay unto him, Maſter, [careſt thou not that we periſh?] 38. We are ready to be drowned, and wilt thou continue aſleep, and take no care to preſerve us?

39. And he aroſe and rebuked the wind and ſaid unto the ſea, Peace, be ſtill, and the wind ceaſed, and there was a great calme.

40. And he ſaid unto them, Why are ye ſo fearfull? [How is it that ye have no faith?] 40. How ſhould it be poſſible for you after ſo many evidences and experiments of my power, and readineſſe to preſerve you, not at all to truſt or relie on me?

41. And they feared exceedingly, and ſaid one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the ſea obey him?

Paraphraſe.

1. the coaſt where Gadara Matth. 8. 28. and Gergeſa lie together, See ch. 8. 10.

1. AND they came over unto the other ſide of the ſea, into the [country of the Gadarens.]

a. 2. two men Mat. 8. 28. which were in a phrenſie poſſeſt with devils, in a raving lunatick manner of unrulineſſe.

2. And when he was come out of the ſhip, immediately there met him out of the tombs [a a man with an unclean ſpirit,]

3. And one of them here mention'd (as the other alſo in S. Matthew.)

3. Who] had his dwelling among the tombs, and no man could bind him, no not with chains,

4. Becauſe that he had been often bound with fetters and chaines, and the chains had been plucked aſunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces, neither could any man tame him,

5. And alwaies night and day he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying, and cutting himſelf with ſtones.

6. But when he ſaw Jeſus afarre off, he ran and worſhipped him.

b. 7. And the Devil that poſſeſt him made uſe of the mans voice, to crie aloud to Jeſus, and ſay, Let me alone, thou eternall ſonne of the ſupreme God, I beſeech thee earneſtly for Gods ſake, who hath permitted me thus to poſſeſſe and wound this man, not preſently to throw me into my chains.

7. And cryed with a loud voice, and ſaid, What have I to doe with thee, Jeſus, thou Son of the moſt high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou [b torment me not.]

8. (For he ſaid unto him, Come out of the man, thou unclean ſpirit.)

9. and the devils that poſſeſt him anſwered Jeſus, ſaying, 'Tis not any peculiar name that is competible to us, unleſſe that of a Legion, or regiment of ſix thouſand ſouldiers among the Romans, there be ſo many of us in this man.

9. And he asked him, What is thy name? [and he anſwered, ſaying, My name is Legion, for we are many.]

10. And the devil was very importunate in his requeſt, that if he were forced to goe out of that man, he might yet ſtay in thoſe parts, and get ſome other habitation.

10. And he beſought him much that he would not ſend them away out of the countrey.]

11. Now there were nigh unto the mountains a great herd of ſwine feeding,

12. Permit us to enter into the ſwine, Mat. 8. 31.

12. And all the devils beſought him ſaying, [Send us into the ſwine, that we may enter into them.]

13. And although this was foreſeen by Chriſt to be the certain drowning of the ſwine, and though he ſeldome wrought any deſtructive miracle, yet that the people might ſee the virulency of theſe devils, if not reſtrain'd by him, and ſo the mercy done to thoſe that were poſſeſt, and likewiſe the mercy now approaching to their countrey by the coming of Chriſt, if they will accept of it, and withall to trie whether their love to their ſwine was greater, then that to their own ſouls, he permitted the devils to goe into the ſwine, i.e. forbad them not, did not violently reſtrain them.

13. And forthwith Jeſus gave them leave,] And the unclean ſpirits went out, and entred into the ſwine, and the herd ran violently down a ſteep place into the ſea (they were about two thouſand) and were choaked in the ſea.

14. the inhabitants of the city and the whole countrey

14. And they that fed the ſwine fled, and told it in the city, and in the countrey. And [they] went out to ſee what it was that was done.

15. And that ſight wrought an awe and a reverence in them, an acknowledgment of the power of Chriſt that had done it,

15. And they come to Jeſus, and ſee him that was poſſeſſed with the devil and had the Legion, ſitting, and cloathed, and † in his right mind, [and they were afraid.]

† ſober, or, in temper, ευφρονουντα

16. And they that had been preſent all the time, gave them the whole relation, the mercy to the poor man, and the drowning of the ſwine.

16. And they that ſaw it, told them how it befell to him that was poſſeſſed with the devil, and alſo concerning the ſwine.

17. And when they heard the one with the other, their love of the would prevailed ſo farre above their care of that which was ſo much more pretious, that they earneſtly beſought him

17. And they began to pray him] to depart out of their coaſts.

18. And when he was come into the ſhip, he that had been poſſeſſed with the devil, prayed him, that he might be with him.

19. Howbeit Jeſus ſuffered him not, but ſaid unto him, Goe home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compaſſion on thee.

20. And he departed, and began to publiſh in Decapolis, how great things Jeſus had done for him: and all men did marvaile.

21. And when Jeſus was paſſed over again by ſhip unto the other ſide, much people gathered unto him, and he was nigh unto the ſea.

c. 22. And behold, there cometh [c one of the rulers of the ſynagogue, Jairus by name, and when he ſaw him he fell at his feet,

23. And beſought him greatly, ſaying, My little daughter lyeth at the point of death, I pray thee come and lay thine hands on her, that ſhe may be healed, [and ſhe ſhall live.]

24. And Jeſus went with him, and much people followed him, and thronged him.

25. And

25. And a certain woman which had an iſſue of bloud twelve years.

26. And had ſuffered many things of many Phyſitians, and had ſpent all that ſhe had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worſe.

27. When ſhe had heard of Jeſus, came in the preaſe behind, and touched his garment.

28. For ſhe ſaid, If I may touch but his clothes I ſhall be whole.] 28. Being thus confidently perſwaded in her minde that the leaſt touch of his clothes would cure her.

29. And ſtraightway the [d] [fountain] of her blood was dryed up, and ſhe felt in her body that ſhe was healed of that * plague. 29. Flux. d.

30. And Jeſus immediately knowing in himſelf, that [virtue had gone out of him] turned him about in the preaſe, and ſaid, Who touched my clothes? 30. Some cure had been wrought by touching him,

31. And his diſciples ſaid unto him, Thou ſeeſt the multitude thronging thee, and ſayeſt thou, Who touched me?

32. And he looked round about to ſee her, that had done this thing.

33. But the woman [fearing, and trembling, knowing what was done in her] came and fell down before him, and told him all the truth. 33. Being by what had been wrought in her aſſured of his divine power, and ſo ſtrucken into a great aw and reverence towards him,

34. And he ſaid unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole, go in peace, and be whole † of thy plague.

† from thy diſeaſe, ſickneſs

35. While he yet ſpake, there came from the ruler of the Synagogues houſe certain which ſaid, Thy daughter is dead; why troubleſt thou the maſter any further?

39. And when he was come in he ſaith unto them, Why make yee this adoe, and weep? the damoſell is not dead but ſleepeth.

40. And they laughed him to ſcorn: but when he had put them all out, he taketh the father and the mother of the damoſel, and [them that were with him] and entreth in where the damoſell was lying. 40. Peter, and James and John v. 37

41. And he took the damoſell by the hand, and ſaid unto her Talitha cumi, which is being interpreted, Damoſell (I ſay unto thee) ariſe.

42. And ſtraightway the damoſell aroſe and walked, for ſhe was of the age of twelve years, and they were aſtoniſhed with a great aſtoniſhment.

43. And he charged them ſtreightly that no man ſhould know it] and commanded that ſomething ſhould be given her to eate. 43. See Mat. 8. note b.

Notes on Chap. V.

a. Δύο δαιμονιζόμενοι.

What is here affirmed of a man in the ſingular number, is Mat. 8. 28. Δύο δαιμονιζόμενοι two demoniacks, ſo in like manner where c. 10. 46. there is mention but of one blind man, Bartimaus, in Matthew ch. 20. 30. there are Δύο τυφλοὶ two blind men, which difference hath nothing of weight in it, becauſe Matthew which names two, ſaying the truth, the other which names but one, yet not denying that there were more, muſt neceſſarily ſay true alſo, and it being not pretended, that each of the Evangeliſts doth relate all that was done by Chriſt, but poſitively affirmed by John, c. 21. 25. that all that was done, was not by any of them related, there is conſequently nothing ſtrange in this of S. Mark, which in either place omitts the mention of one of them. So when Matthew mentions the bringing the aſſe and the colt, both c. 21. 7. S. Mark onely mentions the foale, c. 11. 7. Of the ſame pitch it is (viz. matter of very light importance, farre from a reall exception againſt the authority of this Goſpel) that the order of things related is not always the ſame in him and S. Matthew. As when the cure of the Paralytick is mentioned by Mark in the 2d. ch. and the drowning of the ſwine not till the fift, Matthew mentions this before the former. And whereas the cure of the withered hand is in Mark c. 3. and not mentioned in Matthew till c. 12. in Matthew it falls out to be ſubſequent to many relations, to which Mark makes it antecedent. So the cure of Peters mother-in-law is by Mark ſet before that of the Leper, and by Matthew after, ſo the caſting the broakers out of the Temple is ſet down by Matthew, c. 21. 12. before the curſing of the figtree, v. 19. whereas S. Mark c. 11. 13. ſets down the ſtory of the figtree, and the caſting out the broakers, after, v. 15. And perhaps other examples of the like may be found by thoſe, which ſhall more diligently compare them, But all theſe and (if there were) many more nothing derogating from the fidelity of the writers, who undertaking to make ſome relations of what was done by Chriſt, do no where undertake or oblige themſelves to obſerve the order, wherein every thing ſucceeded, that being generally extrinſecall, and of no importance to the relations.

b. Βασανίζειν, Βασανισταὶ

That Βασανίζειν] among other ſignifications is taken for coercing or impriſoning, hath been ſaid note on Mat. 8. e. and ſo Mat. 18. 34. Βασανισταὶ ſignifies jaylers. And ſo here when the Devill de-fires, and adjures Christ, that he ſhould not βασανίζειν, it ſignifies ſending him to his priſon, to his chaines, Jude 6. & 2 Pet. 2. 4. for ſo in S. Lukes relation of it, Lu. 8. 31. they beſought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep, i. e. that he would not ſend them to hell, (ſee note on Lu. 8. d.) their place of puniſhment, and reſtraint, where they were (in ſtead of going up and down Job 1. 7.) to be kept cloſe and tormented alſo, τετηρημένους εἰς κρίσιν in S. Peter 2 Pet. 2. 4. kept in cuſtody to be puniſhed. And accordingly S. Matthew reades, Art thou come ὧδε πρὸ καιροῦ βασανίσαι, Mat. 8. 28. to ſend us to our priſon, before the time of our going thither, ſignifying this to be a more tolerable ſtate that now they were in, leſſe of reſtraint, and miſery, then, when time ſhould come, they were to expect.

c. Ἀρχισυνάγωγος

What is meant by ἀρχισυνάγωγος here, or ἄρχων συναγωγῆς Lu. 8. 41. the chiefe or ruler of the Synagogue, will the better appear, if we firſt conſider, what here we finde, that there were more then one of them, and therefore Jairus is here called εἷς τῶν ἀρχισυναγώγων, one of theſe chiefe or rulers; and that not onely in divers, but in the ſame Synagogue. Act. 13. 15. For * συναγωγὴ here ſignifies the leſſer conſiſtory, or that of any particular city (as that is oppoſite to the great Sanhedrim at Jeruſalem) the judgment of twenty three, who were now able to puniſh offences not capital, to ſcourge &c. which is therefore called ſcourging in their ſynagogues. And although among the Rulers thereof there was generally one chiefe in learning, and proportionably in authority, who both here in the Goſpel, and in the life of Alexander Severus, and in the Conſtitutions of the Emperours is called ἀρχισυνάγωγος or princeps ſynagogæ, the head or chiefe, who impoſed hands on all thoſe which were elected or admitted into the conſiſtory, yet becauſe the reſt had power of Judicature there, with and under him, therefore not onely he, but the reſt alſo, are all contained under this common name of ἀρχισυνάγωγοι, rulers of the Synagogue, both here, and Acts 13. 15. A difference there is between the rulers of the Synagogues, and thoſe that are called the rulers of the people, but no more then this, The former are thoſe in particular cities, but the latter thoſe of the Sanhedrim in Jeruſalem. Both of them are in other places called ſimply ἄρχοντες Rulers, as Mat. 9. 18. 23. Lu. 18. 18. ſpeaking of thoſe in particular cities, and in other places, when the context belongs to Jeruſalem, as Lu. 23. 13. 35. Joh. 7. 26. 48. 'tis clear that the rulers called ſo ſimply, muſt be thoſe of the great Sanhedrim. For the former of theſe it is to be obſerved, what Maimonides tells us, that there were two kinds of meetings in particular cities among the Jewes, בתי הכנסיות, domus congregationum, the houſes of aſſemblies, where they did meet to pray and hear the law every Sabbath, as they did at the Temple in Jeruſalem, and בתי המדרש, houſes of information, or expoſition of the law. Theſe were either more private, where any Doctor entertained Scholars, ſuch was the School of Tyrannus, Act. 19. 8. And of this ſort 'tis ſaid there were above 400. in Jeruſalem, and many in Iſrael in all places. Or elſe more publick, where their conſiſtories ſat to reſolve differences of the law in particular cities. As for the Συνέδριον or great Sanhedrim which was in Jeruſalem, that is known to conſiſt of 72. and was made up of chief Prieſts, Elders of the people, and Scribes. 1. Ἀρχιερεῖς, the chiefe prieſts, perhaps the heads of the 24. Courſes, 1 Chron. 24. (ſee note on Acts 4. a.) 2ly, Πρεσβύτεροι, The elders or heads of the families, chiefe men among their tribes, who were farther choſen, and by impoſition of hands received into the Sanhedrim, and ſo made Judges there, and theſe are called the Elders of the people, Mat. 21. 23. 26. 3. 47. and of Iſrael, Acts 4. 8. Then thirdly, for the γραμματεῖς Scribes, thoſe were they that had been taught γράμματα, Joh. 7. 15. the bookes, or writings, of the Law, ἱερὰ γράμματα 2 Tim. 3. 15. the holy writings or Scriptures, and inſtructed in the meaning of them, thoſe that had been ſonnes of the Prophets, i. e. brought up in their ſchooles, but having not obtained the Spirit, or miſſion of Prophets at Gods hands, were ſometimes thought fit to be choſen into the Sanhedrim. Theſe I ſay, are called Scribes, and wiſemen, and accordingly the Jewes have an ancient ſaying, that After the age of the Prophets (i. e. when the Spirit of prophecy was no more given) ſucceed the age of the Scribes. Though of theſe ſome did only keep ſchoole, and teach the law, and then are ſtyled ſimply γραμματεῖς Scribes, whereas the others that were taken into the great Sanhedrim, are called Scribes of the people, Mat. 2. 4. and ſo Ind. 5. 10. where the Hebrew hath, the Governours, the Chaldee Paraphraſe hath, the Scribes of Iſrael. By this appears the difference of theſe words ſo frequent in the Goſpels, Rulers, and Rulers of the people, and of the Synagogue, Elders, and Scribes, and, Scribes of Iſrael, and, of the people, which being here put together all in this place, may be uſefull for the illuſtrating many places of Scripture.

The Hebrew מקור ſignifies two things, properly a fountain, or ſpring of water, and metaphorically fluxus a profluvium or flux, for a fountain we have it, Zach. 13. 1. where the Septuagint, that render it τόπος a place, read, it ſeems, מקום place, in ſtead of מקור fountain. For the flux, ſuch as after childbirth, 'tis uſed Lev. 12. 7. where yet the Septuagint read πηγὴ a fountain, accordingly here S. Mark uſeth the ſame word πηγὴ, whereas S. Luke reades ῥύσις a flowing of blood, a ſore diſeaſe, which ſhe had for twelve years ſpace. Agreeable hereunto it is, that artificiall iſſues made in any part of the body are by Phyſicians called fountinells, or little fountains. d

4. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, [A prophet is not† without honour, but in his own countrey, and among his own kin, and in his own houſe.] 4. A prophet is not ſo ſubject to be deſpiſed and ſet at nought any where, as among them that are neereſt to him, that think they know his beginnings, &c.

5. And he could there doe no mighty work, ſave that he laid his hands upon a few ſick folk and healed them.] 5. And accordingly there was ſuch a generall unbeleif, and undervaluing him there in his own countrey, that he had no fit opportunity there, to ſhew his power in working miracles, Onely a few ſick people, that had faith to be healed, came and beſought him, and thoſe, by his bare laying his hands on them, were healed preſently, ſee Lu. 4. 23.

6. And he marvailed becauſe of their unbeleif: and he went round about the villages teaching.

7. And he calleth unto him the twelve, and began to ſend them forth by two and two, and gave them power [over unclean ſpirits.] 7. to caſt the devils out of thoſe, that were poſſeſt by them

8. And he commanded them that they ſhould take nothing for their journey, ſave a ſtaffe only, no ſcrip, no bread, no money in their purſe, 8. See note on Mat. 10, c.

9. But be ſhod with ſandals, and not put on two coats.

10. And he ſaid unto them, [* In what place ſoever ye enter into an houſe, there abide, till ye depart from that place.] 10. whenſoever ye come into a town, or city, the firſt houſe ye enter into, let it be the place of your abode, while you ſtay in that city.

† depart thence and ſhake, ἐκτινάξατε ἐκεῖθεν, ἐκτινάξατε

11. And whoſoever ſhall not receive you, nor hear you, † when you depart thence, ſhake off the duſt under your feet [for a teſtimony againſt them:] Verily I ſay unto you, it ſhall be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, then for that city. 11. as a ſignificative ceremony what a crying ſinne this is, and what a puniſhment will attend it (Mat. 10. 14.) and that they may know that a Prophet hath been among them, Ezec. 33. 33. that 'tis the meſſage of God which they have rejected.

12. And they went out, and [preached that men ſhould repent.] 12. preacht or proclaimed, in the ſame words, that John Baptiſt, and Chriſt had done before them, ſaying, Repent, for the kingdome of God is at hand, Mat. 10. 7.

13. And they caſt out many devils, and anointed with oyle many that were ſick, and healed them.] 13. And they caſt devils out of many that were poſſeſt by them, and uſing no other means, but only that of unction (and laying on their hands ch. 16, 18.) they cured many ſick perſons.

14. And king Herod heard of him (for his name was ſpread abroad) and he ſaid that John Baptiſt was riſen from the dead, and [therefore mighty works doe ſhew forth themſelves in him.] 14. Now he is riſen, the ſame power that raiſed him, worketh alſo miraculouſly in him.

15. Others ſaid that it is Elias, and others ſaid that it is [a prophet, or as one of the prophets.] 15. one of the old prophets raiſed from the dead, or elſe ſuch an one as they were of old, now newly raiſed up.

16. But when Herod heard thereof, [he ſaid,] It is John whom I beheaded, he is riſen from the dead. 16. The conſcience of what he had done to John Baptiſt, made him fear, and ſay,

* For that Herod, διότι αὐτὸς ὁ Ἡρῴδης

18. For John had ſaid unto Herod, It is not lawfull for thee to have thy brothers wife.] 18. Wherupon John dealt freely & plainly with him, and told him that it was utterly unlawfull for him to live with her.

* was angry with him

19. Therefore Herodias * had [a] a quarrell againſt him, and would have killed him, but ſhe could not.] 19. Herodias therefore being touche with this, deſigned him a miſchief, and would have removed him out of the way by ſome death or other, but could not any way compaſſe it.

20. For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a juſt man, and an holy, and obſerved him, and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly,] 20. For Herod becauſe of his authority with the people, on whom whom John had wrought very much (ſaith Joſephus) was afraid to meddle with him, Mat. 14. 5. and beſides knew him to be a juſt and holy man, which extorted reſpect, and obſervation from him, and accordingly heard him oft, and in obedience to him did reform many things, and indeed took a delight to hear him, but this one particular of Herodias ſtuck ſo cloſe to him, that John's reproofs could not prevaile to make him part with her.

50. (For they all ſaw him and were troubled) and immediately he talked with them, and ſaid unto them, Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid.

51. And he went up unto them into the ſhip, and the wind ceaſed, and they were ſore amazed in themſelves, beyond meaſure, and wondred:

52. For [they conſidered not the miracle of the loaves, for their heart was hardned.]

Notes on Chap. VI.

a. Ἐνεῖχεν αὐτῷ] which is to be rendred, was angry with him, will be beſt underſtood by the notion of the Hebrew שטם, which is rendred by it in the Old Teſtament. That ſignifies to hate, to hinder, or to ſet ones ſelf againſt another, to be an adverſary, and is rendred by ἐχθρεύω, being angry, as of Eſau againſt Jacob, *Gen.*27.41. and *Pſal.*54.4 by μνησικακῶ bearing injuries in mind, deſigning revenge, *Gen.*50.15. and ſo by ἐνέχω in the ſame ſenſe, Gen. 49.23. Accordingly Heſychius ἐνεῖχον, ἐχόλων, ὠργίζοντο, they were wroth, or angry, and both he, and Phavorinus, ἐνέχει, μνησικακεῖ, ὀργᾶται, he bears the injury in mind, ſets him againſt. So Euſtathius, ἐνέχειν, is τὸ κατά τινος ἔχειν, to have ſomewhat againſt any one.

b. Ἡμέρα ἀνωμερῷ] is a feſtivall day, a day of vacancy יום טוב, in Hebrew, a good day, i.e. a ſolemn feſtivall, a day of reſt from labour, ſet apart for feſtivity, from whence hath the Gloſſary ἀνωμερῷ, σχολάζοντι, 'tis a day of vacancy, and ἀνωμερῶ vaco, as 'tis here uſed v.31. οὐδὲ φαγεῖν εὐκαίρουν, they had not leiſure to eat, & Phavorinus ἀνωμερῶν, ἐν σχολῇ ἦσαν, (perhaps it ſhould be read, ἀνασχολεῖν, σχολὴ ἔχειν, or ἄγειν,) to be vacant, and ſuch, it is clear, was this, Herod's birth-day, whereon he made a ſupper for his Lords &c. and whereon there was a dauncing, ver. 22.

c. Σπεκουλάτωρ Spiculator in the ſtories of the Roman Emperours ſignifies a ſouldier of the guard, and agreeably, when we read (in the ſtories of Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar) the captain of the guard, the interpreter of the Chaldee Paraphraſe generally reads princeps ſpiculatorum. So the captains of fifties, 1 *Kin.*9.11,13. were captains of the Kings guards, which being (by the cuſtome of Jewes, Egyptians, Chaldeans, and Romans) executioners of thoſe, whom the King condemned to death, it is here therefore appointed to one of theſe to goe, and behead the Baptiſt, which accordingly is done.

Of the manner of accubitus or lying at meat we have formerly ſpoken, and ſo of the cuſtome of eating in gardens, and lying on beds, or areola, or πρασιαὶ in them (ſee note on Mat. 8.g.) All that will be needfull here to adde, is the obſerving of the phraſes of πρασιαὶ πρασιαὶ, Συμπόσια Συμπόσια, ἀνὰ ἀνὰ, the two former clearly taken from the Hebrewes, who want phraſes of diſtribution, and uſe doubling of words in their ſtead. So δύο δύο v.7. two two, (like אִישׁ אִישׁ, אֲנָשִׁים אֲנָשִׁים man man) i.e. man by man, one by one (in imitation of which is εἷς κατὰ εἷς *Joh.*8.9.) And for the ἀνὰ ἀνὰ] it is the very form uſed by Phyſicians in their Recipe's, to note the ſeverall proportions of each ingredient, as here the number of the gueſts, which were ranked or marſhall'd together by Chriſt the ἀρχιτρίκλινος, who, as the ὀψοποιὸς Συμποσίου, Maſter of the feaſt, Joh. 2. or the ἰλαρχὸς in Athenæus (for which we read corruptly ἰλιαρχὸς in Heſychius) hath the care of preparing and ordering the feaſt, and gueſts, and ſo ranks them here, an hundred in one rank, fifty in another. Another phraſe like unto this we have *Lu.*9.14. κλίνατε κλισίας ἀνὰ πεντήκοντα, make them lie down fifty in a bed.

d. Πρασιαὶ

e. Ἀγροὺς which literally and primarily ſignifies a field, ſignifieth alſo the region or countrey about, all beſide the city. Ἀγροὺς, ὁ ἔξω τῆς πόλεως χώρος, the region without the city, ſaith Phavorinus, and ſo the Latine, ager, is uſually taken.

4. And when they come from the hall of judgment, or any the like mixt aſſemblies, they waſh their whole body (for fear they may have been defiled by the preſence of heathens, or promiſcuous company of men there) before they eate. And in this matter of waſhing, many other ordinances of their Sanhedrim there are, which they thinke themſelves bound to obſerve, as laws divine, as the waſhing of cups to drink in, of pots containing ſomewhat above a pinte, of brazen veſſels (when earthen veſſells if defiled, were to be broken) and alſo of beds, on which they did eate then, as now on tables.

15. As for your queſtion v. 5. about waſhing, know this, that the true and reall pollutions, which God would have all men to avoid, are not thoſe which come from the meats and drinkes, and ſuch externall things, but thoſe of wicked thoughts and words and actions, thoſe are the great defilements principally aimed at in the legall prohibitions, and forbidden by them.

a. Κοινὸς

The word κοινὸς ſignifies two things, polluted and common, and is no more to be rendred common, when the ſenſe is for unclean, then it ſhould be rendred unclean when the ſenſe is for common. From this firſt notion of the word for polluted is the Latine word cœnum, a ſink or mire, and the verb κοινῶ is turned into the old Latine, quino, from whence inquino to pollute is now in uſe, which notes this notion of it for polluted to be an ancient and primitive, not any metaphoricall ſecondary notion of it: In this notion it is uſed for any thing that is forbidden by the ceremoniall lawes of the Jewiſh worſhip, as being oppoſite to clean or lawfull, Thus meat which is by that law forbidden, is called κοινὸν polluted, 1 Mac. 1. 50. ὕειον καὶ κτηνῶν κοινὰ, ſwines fleſh, and forbidden, polluted or unclean cattel, and ſo v. 65. Thus Act. 10. 14. and 11. 8. and Rom. 14. 14. Heb. 10. 29. and from thence κοινῶν to defile, Mat. 15. 11. and in ſeverall other places. So ſay the Grammarians κοινὸν] ſignifies βδελυκτὸν, ἀκάθαρτον, abominable, or unclean, i. e. ſuch as in the reputation, and by the prohibition of the law are made ſuch. Thus when not by ſtrict law of Moſes, but (which among the Phariſees was all one) by the tradition of their Elders, or injunctions of their Sanhedrim, they were to waſh, whenſoever they eat, hands unwaſht at ſuch a time are κοιναὶ χεῖρες, polluted hands, i. e. guilty of the breach of thoſe lawes, which in their opinion required this conſtant waſhing before meat. To this cuſtome referres that of Joh. 2. 6. where the veſſels of water, which were there at the feaſt, are ſaid to be κατὰ τὸν καθαρισμὸν τῶν Ἰουδαίων, according to the Jewes cuſtome of waſhing alwaies before meat, i.e. ſtood there for that uſe, or purpoſe. Now for the maner of waſhing, what it was, is here deſcrib'd v. 3.

Πυγμὴ πυγμῇ νίψωνται τὰς χεῖρας, they waſh their hands to the wriſt, The word πυγμὴ is the hand up to the wriſt, and is indeed but a part of the χεὶρ in the criticall notion of it. For χεὶρ is taken in Homer and Hippocrates and other authors for the whole arme, (of which the πῆχυς which the Anatomiſts uſe out of Heſiod, and ἐσχατοχειρ. the extreme part of it, in Hippocrates, is the hand peculiarly) and ſo it ſeems to be taken, 1 Mac. 15. 30. ἦ χεῖρα σὺν τῷ ὤμῳ φέρειν εἰς ἢ πόλιν, to carry the arm, (not hand) with the ſhoulder to the city, juſt as in Homer he that ſtroke one on the * ſhoulder with his ſword, is ſaid to have cut off his χεὶρ, i. e. his arme doubtleſſe. Agreeably to this notion the word ἀγωνοχειρίζειν in the agones ſignifies to cuffe at the arms end, as we call it, and is all one with πυκτεύειν one of the five exerciſes in the Olympick games, Which makes it clear, that by πυγμὴ is meant the hand with the wriſt (which Theophylact renders μέχρι ἀγκῶνος up to the elbow) for ſo 'tis the manner of the Jewes to waſh with their hands held up, that the water may come down ſo farre, to ſuch a part of the wriſt, which they call the elevation of their hands, and ſo here πυγμῇ νίψωνται χεῖρας] is clearly to waſh with this elevation, this rite or ceremony uſuall in their waſhings.

Χεὶρ

b. Ἀγορᾷ. ἀγορᾷ ſignifies any promiſcuous or popular aſſembly, Theſe (ſetting aſide the ſacred aſſemblies, which are otherwiſe expreſt) are principally of two ſorts, either 1. to buy and ſell, or 2^dly, to reſort for juſtice, and the word here uſed commonly ſignifies both, or either of theſe, 1. a fair or market, 2^ly, a place of judicature, an hall or court of judgment. From the firſt is ἀγοράζω to buy, moſt ordinarily uſed in that ſenſe, and rendred ὠνεῖσθαι by Heſychius, but yet withall ſignifies to that other ſenſe, and is by him rendred not only in common to both, ἐν ἀγορᾷ διαβάλλειν, to ſpend ones time in foro, but in particular, reſpecting theſe courts of juſtice, δίκη ἢ κρίσις ἢ διαβολή. And ἀγοραῖος, ſaith he, is διαλογικός, where that of conſulting and debating or pleading, belongs to the courts not markets; From this latter notion of the word, comes ἀγορεία, for δικαιολογία giving of juſtice, and Ἀγορεία, δῆμος, in Heſychius, and ἡ ἀγορεῖος for a court day (ſee note on Act. 19. i.) And ſo 'tis probable that Act. 17. 5. ἀγοραῖοι, are the officers of their courts, ſerjeants, &c. and the Jewes taking to them ſome of the wickedeſt of thoſe, and ſo raiſing a tumult, will be parallel to our calling a Conſtable, and raiſing the town, which by malitious men, by the help of wicked officers, may be againſt Apoſtles, or any the beſt of men, as there it was againſt S. Paul. Thus the word ἀγορᾷ] clearly ſignifies, Act. 16. 19. where at Philippi the owners or maſters of the Pythoneſs, conceiving themſelves injured by S. Paul, apprehended him, and drew him εἰς τὴν ἀγορὰν, to the hall, ἐπὶ τοὺς ἄρχοντας, to the Roman magiſtrates there. The queſtion now being, [in which of theſe ſenſes the word ἀγορᾷ ſhould be taken in this place] cannot be decided from the nature of the word, which beares both indifferently, but from the buſineſſe in hand, which is the tradition of waſhing among the Jewes. That, we know, was upon any legall uncleanneſſe, or ſuſpicion of having contracted any ſuch. And to that all promiſcuous aſſemblies were lyable, where heathens were uſually intermixt, or poſſibly Jewes under ſome legall uncleanneſſe. But at this time when the Jewes were under the Roman procurators, their courts of judicature were moſt eminently ſo, the Procurator and his band or guard of ſouldiers being alwaies there. On this ground it is diſtinctly ſaid, Joh. 18. 28. that the Jewes would not goe in thither, ἵνα μὴ μιανθῶσιν, that they might not be defiled, which teſtimony makes it clear, that going in to the ἀγορὰ, in this ſenſe, into the judgement hall, was by the Jewes reſolved to be matter of defilement. And there being not any ſo clear teſtimony in the Scripture for the other, as it ſignifies a market, or place of buying and ſelling, I rather preferre this interpretation of the word in this place, for a court hall, though in moſt other places of the New Teſtament, it ſignifie the other, by which alſo 'tis poſſible that pollution (according to their conſtitutions) might be contracted.

Ἀγορᾷ

c. The word here uſed [βαπτίζωνται] (as it differs from νίζωνται v. 3. which belongs to the hands or feet) ſignifies the waſhing of the whole body. Thus 'tis ſaid of Eupolis (which wrote the Tragedy call'd Bapta againſt Alcibiades) that being taken and thrown into the ſea, ἐβαπτίζετο, and ſo the baptiſmes of cups &c. in the end of this verſe, is putting into water all over, rincing them. Two words there are uſed by the Hebrewes for waſhing, 1. קדושין, the word uſed for waſhing hands and feet only, the νίψωνται here, and 2. טבילה, immerſion of the whole body, to which βαπτισμοὶ anſwers, (ſee note on Joh. 13. 10. and Mat. 3. a.) What is here affirm'd of the Phariſees waſhings is obſerved by Epiphanius of the Eſſens, who yet ſeem to have had it, as they had much more, from the Pythagorean Philoſophers, whoſe doctrine it is ἢ ἁγνίαν εἶ διὰ καθαρμῶν, καὶ λυτρῶν, καὶ ἀποκαθαρσίων, that purity was to be obtained by purgations, and irrigations, and waſhings.

Βαπτίζωνται

d. Of the ſeverall notions that the word ἀφροσύνη imprudence, or folly may be capable of, that which ſeems moſt proper to this place, is that of boaſting, which is the moſt unſeemly thing, and ſo the moſt contrary to prudence, or wiſdome of converſation. In this ſenſe the word is uſed 2 Cor. 11. 1. 19. (and φρονοῦντα madneſſe v.) and ch. 12. 6. 11. where he foreſees that his ſpeeches for the juſtifying of his Apoſtleſhip againſt the ſeducers will by them be accounted boaſting, and being ſo he knowes it muſt goe for folly. In this notion it will accord, and aſſociate very well with βλασφημία calumny, and ὑπερηφανία pride, which immediately precede, the calumniating faſtuous (inſolent) and vainglorious behaviour, going ordinarily together.

Ἀφροσύνη

e. The word μογιλαλος ſignifies one of an impedite, ſtammering ſpeech, and ſo is interpreted here by the Syriack. But it is more agreeable to take it as all one with ἄλαλος ſpeechleſſe, for 1. ſo 'tis recited in the end of the ch. v. 37. he makes the deaf to hear, and the dumb to ſpeak, which is evidently their obſervation upon this particular miracle. 2. the Hebrew word אלם, which ſignifies dumb, and is rendred ordinarily ἄλαλος, κωφὸς, ἄφωνος, ἐρεμος, all words to expreſſe perfect dumbneſſe, is twice rendred μογιλαλος, Exod. 14. 11. and Iſa. 35. 6. where yet in both places, the ſenſe beares, totally dumb, and not only of a ſtammering ſpeech, In the firſt place, Who maketh the dumb, or deaf, the ſeeing, or blind? In the ſecond, The lame ſhall leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb ſhal ſing.

CHAP. VIII.

Paraphrase.

1. IN thoſe daies the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eate, Jeſus called his diſciples unto him, and ſaith unto them,

2. I have compaſſion on the multitude, becauſe they have now been with me three daies, and have nothing to eat.

3. And if I ſend them away faſting to their own houſes, [they will faint by the way,] for divers of them came from farre.

3. either they will faint for want of refreſhment, or elſe to get victuals they will be ſcattered and diſperſed from one another, See note on Mat. 9. f. m.

4. And his diſciples anſwered him, From whence can a man ſatisfie theſe men with bread here in the wilderneſſe?

5. And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? and they ſaid, Seven.

† lie down ἀναπεσεῖν

6. And he commanded the people to † ſit down on the ground, and he took the ſeven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his diſciples to ſet before them, and they [did ſet them before the people.]

6. diſtributed them, gave every one of the multitude a portion.

7. And they had a few ſmall fiſhes, and he bleſſed, and [commanded to ſet them alſo before them.]

7. appointed them to give every one a piece of fish.

8. So they did eat and were filled, and they took up of the broken meat that was left, ſeven baskets.

9. And they that had eaten were about four thouſand, and he ſent them away.

10. And ſtraightway he entred into a ſhip with his diſciples, and came into [* the parts of Dalmanutha.]

12. And he * ſighed deeply in his ſpirit, and ſaith, Why doth this generation ſeek after a ſigne? Verily I ſay unto you, There ſhall no ſign be given unto this generation.]

12. Hereupon ſaith Chriſt in a great ſadneſſe, This is an infidel perverſe ſort of people, miracles would be but caſt away upon theſe, and therefore they ſhall not be afforded them upon asking, only that great miracle of my riſing from death, typified by that which befell Jonas, Mat. 16. 4. that ſhall be afforded them.

13. And he left them, and entring into the ſhip again, departed to the other ſide.

14. Now the diſciples had forgotten to take bread, neither had they in the ſhip with them more then one loafe.

* See, take heed of, ὁρᾶτε, βλέπετε

15. And he charged them ſaying, * Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Phariſees, and of the leaven of [Herod.]

15. See note on Mat. 16. a.

16. And they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, [It is becauſe we have no bread.]

16. This he ſaith to reproach us for our negligence in providing and bringing victualls with us.

* doe ye diſcourſe that ye have no bread? doe ye not yet underſtand nor conſider? Τί διαλογίζεσθε ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἔχετε; οὔπω νοεῖτε οὐδὲ συνίετε;

17. And when Jeſus knew it, he ſaith unto them, [Why * reaſon ye becauſe ye have no bread? Perceive ye not yet, neither underſtand? Have ye your heart yet hardned?

Why ſhould you think that my ſpeech ſhould relate to your having no bread? as if I were not able to ſupply that want, will you never underſtand nor conſider what is done before you? will you alwaies be thus ſenſleſſe, thus unimprovable, that nothing can enter into you, making no uſe of eyes, or eares, or memory, after all this?

18. Having eyes ſee ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and doe ye not remember?

19. When I brake the five loaves among five thouſand, how many baskets full of fragments took ye up? They ſay unto him, Twelve.

* How doe ye not conſider? πῶς οὐ συνίετε;

21. And he ſaid unto them, [* How is it, that ye doe not underſtand?]

21. How ſtupidly inconſiderate are you?

22. And he cometh to Bethſaida, and they bring a blind man unto him, and beſought him to touch him.

30. And he charged them, that they ſhould [tell no man of him.]

31. the prophecies of the Meſſias could not be fulfilled, unleſſe he ſuffer, and be rejected, and at laſt put to death by the great Conſiſtory or Sanhedrim of Jeruſalem, (ſee note on c. 5. c) and riſe again the third day.

31. And he began to teach them, that [the ſon of man muſt ſuffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, of the chief prieſts and ſcribes, and be killed, and after three daies riſe again.]

32. And he ſpake that ſaying [openly.] And Peter took him, and began to rebuke him.

33. telling him, that his propoſal was contrary to the will of God, the prophecies, the end of his coming, the ſalvation of men, and ſuch only as was fit for the adverſary of all theſe to propoſe to him.

33. But when he had turned about, and looked on his diſciples, he rebuked Peter, [ſaying, Get thee behind me Satan, for thou ſavoureſt not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.]

34. will undertake to be my diſciple, muſt reſolve not to care what becomes of his own ſecular advantages, or of even life it ſelf, but prepare himſelf for the ſame death, that I ſhall die before him, and to follow me as a diſciple both in life and death.

34. And when he had called the people unto him, with his diſciples alſo, he ſaid unto them, Whoſoever [will come after me, let him deny himſelf, and take up his croſſe and follow me.]

35,36. And let me tell him that the great care of preſerving himſelf, if it make him to deny or forſake me, in the purſuit of it, ſhall not be a probable courſe of ſtanding him in any ſtead in this world, it ſhall be the very means to deſtroy many, who, if they continued firm to their profeſſion, might probably eſcape (ſee Mat. 16. 25.) and however the advantages to the conſtant, and loſſes to the cowardly, in another life, are infinitely above all other conſiderations.

35. For whoſoever will ſave his life, ſhall loſe it, but whoſoever ſhall loſe his life for my ſake and the Goſpels, the ſame ſhall ſave it.

36. For what ſhall it profit a man if he ſhall gain the whole world and loſe his own ſoul?]

37. Life, if it be loſt here by deſire to ſave it, or however everlaſting death, is ſo great a loſſe, that nothing elſe is worth having, which is ſo purchaſed.

37. Or what ſhall a man give in exchange for his ſoul?]

38. See note on Mat. 16. m. n.

38. Whoſoever therefore ſhall be aſhamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and ſinfull generation, of him alſo ſhall the ſon of man be aſhamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy Angels.

Notes on Chap. VIII.

a. Ἀναβλέψας

The word ἀναβλέψας] joyned with εἰς οὐρανὸν to heaven] ſignifies to look up or lift up the eyes that way. So Mat. 14. 19. Mar. 6. 41. and 7. 34. Lu. 9. 16. and thus it is uſed of perſons that did ſee, nay being ſpoken of them, it is ſometimes uſed in that ſenſe without [εἰς] added to it, as Lu. 19. 5. Chriſt's looking up] is his looking up to the tree, the mention of Zacchæus's climbing up to the tree intimating it as clearly, as if it had been expreſt, And Lu. 21. 1. it is ſimply to ſee or behold, being ſpoken of Chriſt, who ſitting over againſt the treaſury Mar. 12. 41. ἀναβλέψας looke upon them that caſt in &c. But the word is generally uſed of blind perſons, and then ſignifies recovering of ſight, See Mat. 11. 5. 20. 34. Mar. 10 51, 52. Lu. 7. 22. 18. 41, 42, 43. Joh. 9. 11. 15. 18. Act. 9. 12. 18. and 22. 13. So ἀναβλεψις is recovering of ſight, Lu. 4. 18. And therefore in all reaſon it muſt in theſe two places alſo be ſo interpreted.

CHAP. IX.

1. In this generation Mat. 24. 34. before the death of ſome that are here, particularly of John, Joh. 21. 22. ſhall be that famous coming of Chriſt as a king (ſee note on Mat. 16. c.) for that act of revenge upon his crucifyers, and deſtroying the Jewiſh ſtate, See note on Mat. 3. c. and on Mat. 17. a. and 24. b.

3. And his rayment became ſhining exceeding white as ſnow, ſo as no fuller [a] on earth can white them.

4. And there appeared unto them Elias with Moſes, and they were talking with Jeſus.

5. And

5. And Peter [anſwered and ſaid to Jeſus, Maſter, it is good for us to be here, Let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moſes, and one for Elias.

7. And there was a cloud that overſhadowed them, and a voice came out of the cloud, ſaying, [This is my beloved ſon, hear him.]

7. This is he whom I have appointed to reveale my whole will unto you, whatſoever he tells you is perfectly my will and pleaſure, and he himſelf the only eternall Son of God, whom therefore you and all the world are obliged to hearken to and obey.

8. And ſuddainly when they had looked round about, [they ſaw no man any more] ſave Jeſus only and themſelves.

† The Scribes ſay ὅτι λέγουσιν οἱ γραμματεῖς

But let me tell you, John Baptiſt is this Elias, and he, ye know, is come already as well as I, and they have uſed him, as Ahab uſed Elias, when he was here on earth, ſtood out obdurate againſt all his threats, And as they have done with him, ſo ſhall they deale with me, perſecute, deſpiſe, and put me to death, according to the predictions of the old prophets concerning the Meſſiah, and as was intimated by John Baptiſt in thoſe words of his, [Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the ſinnes of the world,] meaning that I ſhould beare your puniſhments as a lamb, be ſacrificed, and ſlain by, and for you. See Mat. 17. 11, 12.

14. And when he came to his diſciples, he ſaw a great multitude about them, and the Scribes queſtioning with them.

15. And ſtraightway all the people, when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and running to him, ſaluted him.

* What doe yee diſpute among your ſelves? according to ſome copies which read ἐπʼ αὐτοὺς, not αὐτούς.

23. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [If thou canſt beleive,] all things are poſſible to him that beleiveth.

23. If thou canſt beleive me to be able to doe it, thou mayeſt then be capable of this miracle; For

24. And ſtraightway the father of the child cryed out, and ſaid with teares, Lord, I beleive, [help thou mine unbeleif.]

24. and whatever degree of faith is wanting in me, I beſeech thee to pardon, and repair it in me.

25. When Jeſus ſaw that the people came running together, he [rebuked the foule ſpirit, ſaying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf ſpirit,] I charge thee come out of him and enter no more into him.

25. cõmanded the devil that inflicted that diſeaſe, ſaying,

Thou evil ſpirit which afflicteſt this perſon ſo ſorely, that he can neither ſpeak nor hear,

* put him into a great diſquiet, συνεσπάραξε

26. And the ſpirit cryed and * rent him ſore, and came out of him, and he was as one dead, inſomuch that many ſaid, He is dead.]

26. And he fell into a ſore fit of Epilepſy, and therewith was forever freed of the diſeaſe.

27. recovered.

27. But Jeſus took him by the hand and liſted him up, and he [aroſe.]

28. His diſciples thinking verily that they were not able to cure this diſeaſe, asked in private, what the reaſon was.

28. And when he was come into the houſe, [his diſciples asked him privately, d Why could not we caſt him out?]

29. And he told them that to the curing of this diſeaſe they ought to have faſted and prayed, and their not uſing that means (which they ought to have uſed) was it that made them not able to do it, and that was the culpable omiſſion, which he reprehended in them, v. 29. See Mat. 17. 21.

29. And he ſaid unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer, and faſting.]

30, 31. And Chriſt now determined to be more private, ſeeing, and telling his diſciples how little good was now likely to be done by his farther miracles, it being certain that the chief of the Jewes would inſtead of believing on him, put him to death, but as this ſhould be, ſo within three days he ſhould riſe again, and that would be a proper means to convince ſome, See note on Mat. 8. b.

30. And they departed thence and paſſed through Galilee, [and he would not that any man ſhould know it.

31. For he taught his diſciples and ſaid unto them, The ſonne of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they ſhall kill him, and after that he is killed, he ſhall riſe the third day.]

32. But they underſtood not that ſaying, and were afraid to aske him.

33. And he came to Capernaum, and being in the houſe he asked them, What was it that yee diſputed among your ſelves by the way?

34. they had, as they went along, fallen into a contention, which of them was to be preferred before, to take place of the reſt.

34. But they held their peace, for [by the way they had diſputed among themſelves, || who ſhould be the greateſt.]

|| who was greateſt viz preſſe

35. The precedence among my diſciples, all that they are capable of, that of being governours of the Church, brings no advantage to him that hath it, but to be more the ſervant of other men, more work and buſineſſe being the only advantage of that precedence, which ſhall befall you, and your ſucceſſours in the Church.

35. And he ſate down and called the twelve, and ſaith unto them, [If any man deſire to be firſt, the ſame ſhall be laſt of all, and ſervant of all.]

36, 37. To which purpoſe he gave them a ſignificative embleme in ſhewing them a little child, and having done ſo, taking him into his armes, and embracing him; By the former part intimating (what was before expreſt v. 35.) that he that will expect to be capable of any office of dignity from him (to have that authority in the Church after, which he hath now from his Father) humility and meekneſſe is the onely way to it, By the ſecond (his embracing the child) his great kindneſſe to, and particular owning of ſuch humble followers of his, They have commiſſion from him, as he hath from his Father, and the receiving, or entertaining, and ſubmitting to them is interpretatively the intertaining, and obeying of Chriſt, and by conſequence, of God the father, whoſe Commiſſion Chriſt came with.

36. And he took a child, and ſet him in the midſt of them, and when he had taken him in his armes he ſaid unto them,

37. Whoſoever ſhall receive one of ſuch children in my name receiveth me, and whoſoever ſhall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that ſent me.]

38. Goes not along in our company.

38. And John anſwered, ſaying, Maſter, we ſaw one caſting out devills in thy name, and he [followeth not us] and we forbad him, becauſe he followeth not us.

39. This propoſal of thine is like that of Joſhua Numb. 11. 28. and is to be anſwered as that was by Moſes, Let as many caſt out devills in my name as will, or can, for though they accompany not with us, as then Eldad and Medad were not with the reſt of the ſeventy, v. 27. yet aſſuredly the ſame Spirit worketh in them, and I ſhall not be diſhonoured by ſuch.

39. But Jeſus ſaid [Forbid him not, for there is no man that ſhall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly ſpeake evill of me.]

40. For he that goes out into the field, doth always take one part or other, and his not engaging againſt me, as is evident by his uſing, not blaſpheming my name, is an argument infallible that he is on my ſide, beleives in my name, which he makes uſe of to ſuch purpoſes.

40. For he that is not againſt us, is on our part.]

41. For 'tis not onely the great eminent performances, thoſe which are in you my conſtant attendants and diſciples, which is accepted by me, but every the leaſt degree of ſincere faith, and Chriſtian performance, (proportionable but to the expreſſing the leaſt kindneſſe, giving a cup of water to a diſciple of mine for being ſuch) ſhall be accepted and rewarded by me.

41. For whoſoever ſhall give you to drink a cup of water in my name, becauſe ye belong to Chriſt, verily I ſay unto you, he ſhall not loſe his reward.]

42. And on the other ſide he that ſhall oppoſe me in the leaſt degree, diſcourage the meaneſt Chriſtian, hinder his progreſſe in chriſtianity, his condition is ſo ſad, that as it were much better for him never to have been born, ſo being born, it were a preferment to him to be annihilated again.

42. And whoſoever ſhall offend one of theſe little ones that beleive in me, it is better for him that a mill-ſtone were hanged about his neck, and he were caſt into the ſea.]

43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48. It is a ſad thing that Chriſtians ſhould, by any temptations or occaſions whatſoever, be alien'd from Chriſt, yet ſuch things are to be looked for, and therefore the great miſery of it, and infelicity

43. And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off, it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, then having two hands to goe into hell, into the fire that never ſhall be quenched:

44. Where their worme dyeth not, and the fire is not quenched.

45. And if thy foot offend thee, cut it off, it is better for thee to enter halt into life, then having two feet to be caſt into hell, into the fire that never ſhall be quenched:

46. Where their worme dyeth not, and the fire is not quenched.

47. And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, it is better for thee to enter into into the kingdome of God with one eye, then having two eyes to be caſt into hell fire.

lyes upon them, that doe contribute any thing towards it (ſee

48. Where their worme dyeth not, and the fire is not quenched.

Mat. 18. 7.) And therefore if any thing, that is moſt neer unto thee, moſt uſefull, or neceſſary to thy ſecular concernments, be a means to alien thee from the ſervice and confeſſion of Chriſt, part with it moſt readily, and ſpeedily, thou hadſt better looſe that, and (after what ever ſufferings here) inherite heaven eternally, then (after what ever temporall enjoymens here) to be thrown into Hell, where the remorſe for ſuch folly, and the ſharp torments attending it ſhall never be at an end.

49. For every one ſhall be [c] ſalted with fire, and every ſacrifice ſhall be ſalted with ſalt.]

49. For every Apoſtate, or temporary Chriſtian, every wicked man that by the temptations of the fleſh fore-mentioned is taken off from the Chriſtian courſe, ſhall (like a burnt offering) be conſumed with fire, but every pious man will preſerve himſelfe pure from all evill affections, as the ſacrifice is by ſalt from all putrefaction. c.

50. Salt is good, but if the ſalt have loſt his ſaltneſſe, wherewith will ye ſeaſon it? [Have ſalt in your ſelves, and have peace one with another.]

50. As the doctrine and grace of Chriſt is uſefull to you in reſpect of your ſelves, to eat up corruptions in the ſoul, ſo let it have that other quality of ſalt, as it is good to unite and coagulate by drawing out the groſſe or crude humours, (anſwerable to which are thoſe fountains of contention and unquietneſſe, our luſts, Ja. 4. 1.) and ſo is a fit expreſſion of peaceableneſſe with other men.

Notes on Chap. IX.

a. Εἰς τὴν γῆν

'Tis poſſible there may be a meaning in the phraſe [εἰς τὴν γῆν] which is not ordinarily taken notice of, yet becauſe it is but a conjecture, I have neither put it into the margent nor paraphraſe, but only left it to be mentioned here. The Fuller, whoſe work it is to cleanſe, and dreſſe cloath, doth for theſe purpoſes uſe a kind of earth, which is therefore ordinarily known by the name of fullers earth, which hath a ſpeciall cleanſing whitening faculty in it, beyond all other things. This 'tis poſſible may be here lookt on in the deſcription of the whiteneſſe of the appearance of Chriſt's garments, that 'twas ſo pure a degree of white, that no Fuller by or with earth could be able to whiten any thing ſo. And though the propoſition εἰς doe not favour this interpretation, yet the promiſcuous uncertain uſe of propoſitions among ſacred writers is ſo obſervable, that it may take off much of that one objection. For thus is ἐν uſed Acts 3. 16. in the ſenſe of διὰ, ἐν τῇ πίστει by faith, as by a means. And if it be ſo rendred here, it will bear this ſenſe, No fuller by, or, by means of earth can ſo whiten any thing. So 1 Cor. 8. 10. ἐν τῇ σῇ γνώσει by thy knowledge. Otherwiſe it is uſed for [with,] Phil. 1. 3. ἐπὶ πάσῃ τῇ μνείᾳ ὑμῶν, cum omni memoria veſtri, ſaith R. Stephanus, with every remembrance of you. And that rendring will agree to this ſenſe alſo. But the truth is, neither of theſe three examples come perfectly home to it, they being in the dative, this in the genitive caſe, and ſo I leave it as a conjecture.

b. Ῥήσσω

Ῥήσσω which ſignifies to break or rend, Mat. 7. 6. and 9. 17. Mar. 2. 22. Lu. 5. 37. (and to break out, Gal. 4. 27. i. e. to ſpeak, ἐκρῆξαι φωνὴν, φράσαι λόγον, ſaith Heſychius, and ῥῆξάτω, κηρύξάτω) ſignifies alſo to beat, or throw down, upon, or againſt the ground, and is by * Tertullian according to that latitude of the word rendred evertere, to throw down, Mat. 7. 6. (though the context in that place ſeems not to own it, the treading under foot going before, not following it) thus is προσέρηξεν ὁ ποταμὸς the river, being ſwelled into a torrent, beat upon the houſe, Lu. 6. 49. and upon it followes in the next words, εὐθὺς ἔπεσεν preſently it fell. In ſtead of it S. Matthew in the parallel place Mat. 7. 25. 27. reads προσέπεσον, and προσέκοψαν, fell upon. And ſo in the end of the verſe in S. Luke ἦν ἡ πτῶσις μεγάλη, the fall of it was great. Thus doth Heſychius render the word ῥῆξαι, not only διαλῦσαι to divide, or break in pieces, but καταβαλεῖν alſo, to throw down, (as here v. 22. 'tis expreſt by ἔβαλεν) and again ῥῆξις, διάῤῥηξις, καταβαλεῖν, ἀπόλυσιν (perhaps it ſhould be ἀπόχυσιν, for ſo שפך which is rendred ῥήγνυμι, is alſo ἐκχύω, Heſ. 12. 14. (and ſo Lu. 5. 37.) and διαχέω 1 Sam. 30. 16. to poure on the ground) and διάκλασιν. Thus in this place the Syriack and the old Latine took it, and ſo the Hebrew הרס, that is by the Septuagint rendred ῥήγνυμι, is καταβάλλω alſo, Job 12. 14. Ezech. 26. 4. 12. and καταστρέφω and καταστρώννυμι to ſubvert and caſt down, and ſo שפך καταβάλλω Ezech. 29. 5. and 31. 12. and διαῤῥίζω to lay on the ground, or daſh againſt the ground, Ezech. 31. 12. and σφάλλω ἐπὶ γῆς to throw on the ground Am. 5. 6. is ῥήγνυμι Iſa. 33. 2, 3. and ῥάσσω Jer. 23. 33. and 39. And Mat. 17. 15. where this diſeaſe is deſcribed, as alſo here v. 22. 'tis ſaid that he falls into the fire and into the water, as here ὅπου ἂν, where ever it takes him, if by the fireſide, it throwes him into the fire, if by the water, into that. To this the whole ſtory of this mans diſeaſe perfectly agrees, being directly the falling ſickneſſe.

* ad uxor. 2.

c. Σπαράσσει

What is the full notion of σπαράξαν may be ſeen by the ancient Grammariant. Σπάραγμα, ζάσμὸς, ταραχὴ· Σπαράσσω, ζέω, ταράσσω, ταρτάρω, ſaith Phavorinus out of Heſychius. The word ſignifies ſuch a ſtirre or tumult within one, as in a pot or cauldron is joyned with boyling or ſeething, and produceth a froth or ſoame at the top, and ſo is a clear deſcription of an Epilepſie, which doth ſo boyle within, as to cauſe a foaming at the mouth both here and Lu. 9. 39. Some manuſcript copies read [ἐτάραξεν] for it, troubled, diſquieted, put him in a commotion.

d. Διὰ τί

Διὰ τί ἡμεῖς] wherefore] ſee note on Lu. 7. c. and ſo the Kings MS. reads it, διὰ τί ἡμεῖς, and the ancient Greek and Latine MS. and others in like manner.

e. Ἀλίζομαι

The word ἁλίζομαι] is made anſwerable to the Hebrew מלח, and is Iſa. 51. 6. ſet by Symmachus to ſignifie [conſumed] in like manner as the ὁλοκάυτωμα the whole burnt offering is conſumed, burnt all of it with fire; which is anſwerable to the πῦρ ἄσβεστον, unquenchable fire going before, and ſo the meaning of this expreſſion will be here, that that firſt ſort of men, the Apoſtates, or wicked carnall Chriſtians

* So Pliny Nat. Hiſt. l. 31. c. 7. of Salt, Maximè in ſacris intelligitur ejus auctoritas, quando nulla conficiantur ſine molâ ſalſâ: and Plato, that it is θεῶν φίλον σύμβολον, a badge grateful to God.

ſtians, ſhall be uſed as the burnt offerings are, they ſhall have fire in ſtead of ſalt, but the pious minded Chriſtian, like the minchah, ſhall have the * ſalt, the grace of God and Chriſtian doctrine, and by Gods help make uſe of it to eate up all his corruptions, and degrees of putrefaction left in him, and alſo to be a principle of union and peaceable mindedneſſe in him, v. 50. as among other uſes of ſalt it is ſaid to be ἀφορμὴ unitive allo, and is accordingly uſed in covenants and confederations, and thence Lev. 2. is the ſalt of the Covenant of God. But it is not unlikely, that in this place (and that of Iſaiah) ἁλισθήσονται may be put for ἁλωθήσονται (or ἀναλωθήσονται) which ſignifies firſt to be caught, then to be conſumed, ſo ἅλωσις 2 Pet. 2. 12. is preying upon, and joyned with φθορὰ deſtroying, or conſuming. So Iſa. 66. (whence the former words [their worm never dyeth and their fire, &c.] v. 24. are taken) after the mention of Gods pleading by fire, v. 16. is added v. 17. ἅμα τὸ ἀνὸ ἀναλωθήσονται, they ſhall be conſumed together.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. X.

1. departed from Galilee Mat. 19. 1.

1. AND he [roſe from thence] and cometh into the coaſts of Judæa by the farther ſide of Jordan. And the people reſort unto him again, and as he was wont, he taught them again.

2. Is it lawfull for a man, upon a diſlike of his wife, for other cauſes beſides fornication, to put her away? This they asked out of an intention to enſnare him, knowing his doctrine in this matter, Mat. 5. 32. contradicted that liberty which they had by Moſes.

2. And the Phariſees came to him and asked him, [Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wife? tempting him.]

3. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, What did Moſes command you?

4. Moſes gave us liberty to do ſo, Deut. 24. 1.

4. And they ſaid, [Moſes ſuffered to write a bill of divorcement, and to put her away.]

5. This law wherein that was permitted by Moſes, was written to provide by that means againſt the inflexibleneſſe, and impersuaſibleneſſe of the Jewes hearts, which, if this were forbidden them, would be apt to commit ſome greater villany.

5. And Jeſus anſwered, and ſaid unto them, [For the hardneſſe of your hearts he wrote you this precept.]

6, 7, 8, 9. But the prime law of the creation was quite otherwiſe, making the union between husband and wife a ſacred thing, that muſt not be violated by any. See note on 1 Pet. 3. 7. 1 3. 7.

6. But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female.
7. For this cauſe ſhall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife.
8. And they twain ſhall be one fleſh: ſo then they are no more twain but one fleſh.
9. What therefore God hath joyned together, let no man put aſunder.

10. And in the houſe his diſciples asked him again of the ſame matter.

11. by living as an husband with her, whom he marries, when he is the husband of another, and cauſeth his own wife, from whom he thus unreconcileably parteth, to commit adultery, Mat. 5. 32. i. e. giveth her great occaſion, and temptation, and danger to do ſo.

11. And he ſaith unto them, Whoſoever ſhall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery [againſt her.]

a. 12. part with her husband, do her part in abſolving the husband from his band to her, and make uſe of it, to marry her ſelfe again to another.

12. And if a woman ſhall [a] [put away her husband and be married to another, ſhe committeth adultery.]

13. And they brought young children to him, that he ſhould touch them, and his diſciples rebuked thoſe that brought them.

14. they are of that temper of innocence and ſimplicity (and being impotent themſelves, reſigne themſelves up to be aided and ſuſtained by others) that they are of all others the fitteſt emblemes of thoſe, of whom the Chriſtian Church is made up here, and heaven hereafter.

14. But when Jeſus ſaw it, he was much diſpleaſed, and ſaid unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for [of ſuch is the kingdome of God.]

15. And he that ſhall not come to Chriſtianity as a little child, with that humility, and ſelf-denyall and reſignation, and ſole dependence on Chriſt, as is obſervable in one of this age, ſhall never be received or entertained by Chriſt.

15. Verily I ſay unto you, Whoſoever ſhall not receive the kingdome of God as a little child, he ſhall not enter therein.]

16. And he took them up in his armes, put his hands upon them, and bleſſed them.

17. a young man Mat. 19. 20. a Ruler Lu. 18. 18.

17. And when he was gone forth into the way, * there came [one] running and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good maſter, what ſhall I doe, that I may inherit everlaſting life?

* or, behold a certain rich man, ſo the Kings MS. reads, ἰδοὺ τὶς πλούσιος * none, οὐδεὶς

18. The attribute of good belongs truly to none but God, Is that thy meaning to acknowledge me ſuch, when thou calleſt me by that title?

18. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [Why calleſt thou me good? There is * no man good but one, that is God.]

b. 19. The ſixe commandements of the ſecond table of the decalogue, Honour thy father and thy mother, Thou ſhalt not commit adultery &c. and in ſtead of the tenth, Thou ſhalt reſt contented with thy own, and not ſeek to encreaſe thy own condition by the diminution of other mens.

19. Thou knoweſt [the commandements, Doe not commit adultery, Doe not kill, Doe not ſteal, Doe not bear falſe witneſſe, [b] || Defraud not, Honour thy father and mother.]

|| Deprive

20. And

20. And he answered and said unto him, Master, [all these have I observed from my youth.]

20. thus farre I have gone already, & have all my time constantly been an observer of all these commands.

21. Then Jesus beholding him, [loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest, Go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come, take up the crosse and follow me.]

21. approved these gracious beginnings in him, and accordingly spake friendly and kindly to him, to allure and advance him to that degree of contempt of worldly possessions and riches (which otherwise would deprosse his soul, and make him uncapable of true discipleship, as the thorns in the parable of the sower) that might give him the true advantages of wealth, ability of relieving and supporting others, and by a readinesse to suffer the utmost in that profession, qualifie him for a capacity of discipleship first, and then of eternall treasure.

22. And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved; for he had great possessions.

23. And Jesus looked about, and saith unto his disciples, How [c] hardly shall they that have riches [enter into the kingdome of God?]

23. undertake the doctrine of Christ here, or be made partakers of his glory in the kingdome of heaven hereafter? c.

24. And the disciples were astonished at his words, but Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, How hard is it for them [that * trust in riches] to enter into the kingdome of God?

* have placed their confidence πεποιθότας

24. that look upon wealth with the eye of the world, as that which can help them to all they want?

25. It is easier for a camel to goe through the eye of a needle, then for [a rich man] to enter into the kingdome of God.

25. For such a rich man continuing in that worldly-mindednesse.

26. And they were astonished out of measure, saying among themselves, Who then can [be saved?]

26. See Mat. 19. 25.

27. And Jesus looking upon them, saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.

27. See Mat. 19. 26.

28. Then Peter began to say unto him, Behold we have left all and followed thee.

29. And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for my sake, and the Gospels,

See Mat. 19. 29.

30. But he shall receive an hundred fold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and [mothers,] and children, and lands with persecutions, and in the world to come eternall life.

30. See note on 2 Pet. 3. 8.

31. But [d] many that are first shall be last, and the last, first.]

31. But for you who talk so much of your sufferings, know this, that of those that come in latest to discipleship or Apostleship, (as Paul) some shall in diligence and bringing in proselytes to Christ, 1 Cor. 15. 10. very much outstrip those who came in first (i. e. Peter who here speaks, and the other disciples of Christ's first election.) d.

32. And they were in the way going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus went before them, and they were amazed, and as they followed, they were afraid, and he took again the twelve, and began to tell them what things should happen unto him.]

32. And as Christ before, and his disciples after him were going up to Jerusalem, they began to consider the danger of this voyage, the Sanhedrim resolving to kill him, Joh. 11. 53. and sending writs to apprehend him, v. 57. and they were horribly afraid, whereupon he took the twelve into a nearer conference, Mat. 20. 7. and began to tell them distinctly, what usage he should now meet with at Jerusalem.

33. Saying, Behold we goe up to Jerusalem, and the son of man shall be delivered up to the chief priests, and unto the Scribes, and they shall condemn him to death, and [shall deliver him to the Gentiles.]

33. because they have not themselves in the Sanhedrim power to put any man to death, they shall deliver him up to the Romans to doe it.

34. And [they shall mock him] and shall scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him, and the third day he shall rise again.

34. he shall be reproachfully dealt with &c.

35. And James and John the sons of Zebedee come unto him, saying, Master, we would that thou shouldst doe for us whatsoever we shall desire.]

35. And the mother of James and John in behalf of her children came (Mat. 20. 20.) to him with a petition. See note on Lu. 7. 2.

36. And he said unto them, What would ye that I should doe for you?

37. They said unto him, Grant unto us that we may sit one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand in thy glory.

38. But Jesus said unto them, [Ye know not what ye ask: Can ye drink of the cup that I drink of, and be baptized with the baptisme that I am baptized with?]

38. The preferment which ye ask for, is not such as you take it for, but only a condition of suffering, which perhaps you will not be much in love with.

39. And they said unto him, We can. And Jesus said unto them, Ye shall indeed drink of the cup that I drink of, and with the baptisme that I am baptized withall, shall ye be baptized,

* it is not mine to give, save to those for whom it hath been prepared, οὐκ ἔστιν ἐμὸν δοῦναι, ἀλλ' οἷς ἡτοίμασται.

40. But to sit on my right hand, and on my left hand, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared.]

40. But to be advanced before all others is a thing of that nature, that I shall not dispose of it, according to favour partially to gratifie you, or satisfie your importunity, but according to those rules, and conditions, and qualifications which my Father hath set down.

41. And

41. And when the ten heard it, they began † to be much diſpleaſed with James and John.

† to have indignation about James — διαγανακτεῖν περὶ Ἰακώβου

42. But Jeſus called them to him, and ſaith unto them, Ye know that [they which * are accounted to rule over the Gentiles, exerciſe Lordſhip] over them, and their great ones exerciſe authority upon them.

* ſeem δοκοῦντες

42. they that among the Gentiles doe exerciſe rule over them, receive advantages from their ſubjects, are ſerved, and maintained in all their grandeur and ſplendor by them, See Mat. 20. 25. and 1 Pet. 5. note a.

43. But ſo ſhall it not be among you, but whoſoever will be great among you, ſhall be your miniſter.]

43. But in the authority which I ſhall conferre on you, and your ſucceſſors, it ſhall be quite otherwiſe, ye ſhall attend and wait upon them whoſe Rulers you are.

44. And whoſoever will be the chiefeſt, ſhall be ſervant of all.]

44. And the higher ye are advanced in Eccleſiaſtick dignity, the greater burthen of office and duty ſhall lie upon you, to attend the wants of all your inferiors, and to ſupply them.

45. For even the ſon of man came not to be miniſtred unto, but to miniſter, and to give his life a ranſome for many.]

45. See Mat. 20. 28.

46. And they came to Jericho, and as he went out of Jericho with his diſciples, and a great number of people, [blind Bartimæus the ſon of Timæus] ſat by the highway ſide begging:

46. There were two blind men, Mat. 20. 30. of which one was call'd Bartimæus, i.e. the ſon of Timæus, which

47. And when he heard that it was Jeſus of Nazareth, he began to cry out and ſay,] Jeſus, thou ſon of David, have mercy on me.

47. And when they were told that it was Jeſus that paſſed by, Bartimæus (and the other in like manner, Mat. 20.) cryed out, and ſaid,

48. And many charged him that he ſhould hold his peace, but he cryed the more a great deal, Thou ſon of David, have mercy on me.

49. And Jeſus ſtood ſtill, and commanded him to be called: and they called the blind man, ſaying unto him, Be of good comfort, riſe, he calleth thee.

50. And he caſting away [his garment,] roſe and came to Jeſus.

50. his upper garment, See note on Mat. 5. p.

51. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, What wilt thou that I ſhould doe unto thee? The blind man ſaid unto him, Lord, that I might receive my ſight.

52. And Jeſus ſaid unto [him,] Go thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole: and immediately he received his ſight, and followed Jeſus in the way.

Notes on Chap. X.

9. ἀπολύειν ἄνδρα

That which is here ſaid convertibly of divorces, the wife putting away the husband, as the husband the wife, muſt not ſo be underſtood, that the wife hath in any caſe power to put away the husband, though not to marry again, as, in caſe of fornication, the husband may put away the wife; For there is that difference betweeen the husband, and wife, that renders one lawfull, and not the other, viz: the dominion of the husband over the wife, which the wife, whoſe part is obedience, Gen. 3. 16. 1 Pet. 3. 6. hath not back again over the husband; and accordingly in the law though there be a liberty given to the man of putting away the wife, in more caſes, then Chriſt allowes of, yet there is none given the wife to put away the husband in any caſe; and Chriſt, that reſtrained that liberty of the man to the one caſe of fornication, cannot be thought (and no where appears) to have enlarged, or extended that liberty to the wife. As for the ſome kind of ſemblance of it here in this text, it will ceaſe to be ſo, by obſerving either of theſe two things, Firſt, that the only thing here in hand in theſe two verſes, is to ſet down the unlawfull, and adulterous divorces, viz: thoſe that are attended with marrying ſome other, for ſuch are all they equally, whether committed by the man, or woman, and ſo there is no occaſion here to ſtate that other queſtion of lawfull divorces, which had been made by the Phariſees v. 2. and anſwered negatively v. 3. &c. And conſequently all that is here ſaid, is that the wife, however ſeparated from the husband, may not marry again, not that ſhe may in any caſe lawfully ſeparate. Many things of this nature there are in the ſcripture which are ſpoken only to prepare for ſomewhat elſe, and have themſelves no farther importance, all the weight of the ſpeech lying on that other part to which they prepare. See note on Mat. 9. d. 2ly, The nature of the word, that is here, and in other places of the New Teſtament uſed for divorcing falls out to be a word, which ſignifies not putting away, as that notes any act of authority, but ἀπολῦσαι abſolving, looſing, releaſing from a debt, or a band, and ſo it may truly be ſaid of [ἀπολύει τὴν ἄνδρα] that it is only releaſing, abſolving, not putting away, the husband, i.e. doing what is in her power to doe, but not pretending to more; The Grecians were wont to ſpeak more accurately, calling it on the mans part ἀπιέναι, to ſend, or caſt out the wife, but on the wives part ἀπολείπειν, to leave, or forſake the husband, which though praćtiſed among the heathen ſometimes, yet being but an act of deſertion, it pretends not to any authority over him that is forſaken.

That our Saviour reckons up here the ſix laſt precepts of the decalogue, containing our duty toward our brethren, i.c. toward other men, under the law, is preſently clear to him that conſiders the words, either here, or Mat. 19. 17. From thence it is clear again, that Μὴ ἀποστερήσῃς is S. Mark's rendring of the tenth commandement, And it is obſervable how many waies this commandement is rendred in the Bible, in Exod. 20. and Dent. 5. the Septuagint expreſſe it by οὐκ ἐπιθυμήσεις thou ſhalt not covet, S. Paul Rom. 7. 7. hath the ſame, but S. Mark here μὴ ἀποστερήσῃς thou ſhalt not defraud, and S. Matthew, ch. 19. Ἀγαπήσεις, &c. Thou ſhalt love love thy neighbour as thy self, From which 'tis farther observable what is the meaning of that commandement. That undoubtedly, which will be the joynt united importance of these three phrases, and not that which might be thought sufficient to expresse the meaning of some one of them, i. e. So to rest satisfied every man with his own lot, which God hath afforded him, and so to desire the good of others as well as of himself, as not to desire or endeavour to gain any thing to himself by the losse or diminution of any other, to think the neighbour as fit to enjoy any thing that belongs to him, as himself to enjoy his own, and so joyne together these two precepts of the heathens, the Quod fis esse velis, nihilque malis, in Martial, the perfect complacency with our present condition, and the --ἐᾶν βούλῃς Δαιμόνιε ὀπάδυμεν ἀλλοῖα πέτ. in Menander, the not coveting so much as a needle or pin of anothers.

b. ἀποστερεῖν

c. Δικαίως ἐπιλείπομεν &c.

The thorny ground appears by the parable of the sower to be very contrary to the good, fruitfull, the embleme of the honest heart, wherein Christianity was to be planted; By that was meant the mind choakt with riches and the cares of this world, which betray and eat out many good hopefull seeds of grace, which would otherwise lift up the soul to the pursuit of the one necessary. And this is the interpretation of the δυσκόλως εἰσελεύσ.) great difficulty of the rich man's being a disciple of Christ, and attaining to his kingdome. This Julian in his Epistle to Ecebolius, speaks of scoffingly, and saith that he took away from the Christians all that they had, μὴ στερήσων αὐτοὺς ἐλπίζοντας τὴν οὐράνιον βασιλείαν, that they might not be deprived of that heavenly kingdome which they hope for.

They who were call'd and chosen first to be disciples, who consequently ought to have expresst more zeal, more fidelity, and taken more pains in the Apostolicall office, are here call'd the first, in respect of their πρωτοκλησία being first called into the vineyard, and such was Peter and John, and the rest of his present disciples. The last are those which were call'd later, as S. Paul, who saith truly of himself, that as he was born out of due time, suddainly (not regularly, as the disciples in Christs life-time had been, disciples a long space, before they had their commission of Apostleship) so he was in labours more abundant, &c. 1 Cor. 15. 10. and 2 Cor. 11. 23. And they that have written the Itineraries of the Apostles have observed the truth of it, S. Paul having travail'd much farther, then either S. Peter or S. John, as they have describ'd the circuit.

CHAP. XI.

Paraphrase.

1. AND when they came nigh to Jerusalem, unto Bethphage and Bethany at the mount of olives, he sendeth forth two of his disciples,

1. Mat. 21. 1.

2. And saith unto them, Go your way into the village over against you, and as soon as ye be entred into it, ye shall find a [colt] tyed, whereon never man sate, loose him and bring him.

2. foal of an Asse

3. And if any man say unto you, Why do you this? say ye that the Lord hath need of him, and straightway he will send him hither.

4. And they went their way, and found the colt tyed by the dore without, in a place where two ways met, and they loose him.

5. And certain of them that stood there said unto them, What do ye loosing the colt?

6. And they said unto them, even as Jesus, had commanded, and they let them go.

7. And they brought [the colt] to Jesus and cast their garments on him, and he sate upon him.

7. See note on cap. 5. 2.

8. And many spread their garments in the ways, and others cut down branches of trees, and strewed them in the way.

9. And they that went before and they that followed cryed, saying, Hosanna, * blessed is [he that cometh] in the name of the Lord.

9. the Messias whose coming is prophecyed of, and so long expected. See note on Mat. 11. 2. and Mat. 21. 9.

* Blessed in the name of the Lord be he that cometh

10. ‖ Blessed be [the kingdome of our father David that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest.]

‖ Blessed in the name of the Lord be the coming, or, future kingdome of David our father, εὐλογημένη ἡ ἐρχομένη βασιλεία ἐν ὀνόματι κυρίου

10. that kingdome of David our father is now ready to begin,

(or of Christ typified by him) which hath been prophecyed of, and expected as future, and wee acknowledge thee O Lord, in the highest heavens. See note on Mat. 21. 2.

11. And Jesus entred into Jerusalem and into the Temple, and [when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the even tide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.]

11. having cured the lame &c. Mat. 21. 14. &c. at even he retired to Bethany to lodge there with his disciples.

12. And on the morrow † when they were come from Bethany, he was hungry,

† as they went out, ἐξελθόντων αὐτῶν

13. And seeing a figtree afarre off having leaves, he came, * if haply he might find any thing thereon, and when he came to it he found nothing but leaves, for * the time of figs was [a] not yet.

* if forsooth εἰ ἄρα

* it was not a season of figgs.

13, 14. And being so, he espied afar off a figtree full of leaves, and went to see if there were any fruit on it, and when he came he found no one fig nor any thing, but leaves on it, the year being, it seems, unseasonable for that fruit, and therefore being willing to shew a miracle, on a fruitlesse tree, (which had nothing but leaves to be destroyed by his curse) he said unto it, This tree shall never bear more fruit, but shall wither and dry up presently. Which sentence of Christ if it be applyed as an embleme to men that bear no fruit, it will then signifie that they which professe piety (which is answerable to bearing of leaves) must never be found without fruit, If they be,

14. And Jesus answered and said unto it, No man eate fruit of thee hereafter for ever.] And his disciples heard it.

Christ

Chriſt will viſit them, and ſubtraction of grace, and deſtruction will be their portion, the one following upon the other, as the inſtant withering here upon the word of Chriſt. But the moſt pregnant meaning of it is, that the Jews, which were juſt like that leafy tree, without any kind of degree of fruit on it at this time, when Chriſt come from heaven to call for it, ſhould ſuddainly be deſtroyed.

15. And they come to Jeruſalem, and Jeſus went into the temple and began to caſt out them that ſold and bought [in the temple, and overthrew the tables] of the money-changers, and the ſeats of them that ſold doves,

15. in the court of the Gentiles, which the Jewes were more willing to profane (ſee note b.) and overturned the tables &c. See note on Mat.21. b.

16. And would not ſuffer that any man ſhould carry any * veſſel through the temple.

* cõmodity. vaſe, or, ſee note on Mat.21. b.

b. 17. And he taught ſaying unto them, Is it not written, My houſe [ſhall be called † b of all nations, The houſe of prayer? but yee have made it a den of thieves.]

17. ſhall be an holy place, ſet apart for all the people of the world to worſhip me in,

† the houſe of prayer to all nations, ολοις τοις εθνεσι τοις ουσι

but you have transformed it into a receptacle for cheats to reſide in, See note on Mat.21. c.

18. And the Scribes and chief prieſts heard it, and ſought how they might deſtroy him, [for they * feared him, becauſe all the people was aſtoniſhed at his doctrine.]

18. for reſolving not to be inſtructed or reformed by him, not

* or, feared, becauſe, for the Kings MS. leaves out δειλοι.

to receive the reformation brought from heaven, they were yet afraid that ſomething would come of it, derogatory to their authority, for the whole multitude of men that heard him, lookt on him with admiration.

19. And when even was come, he went out of the city.

20. And in the morning as they [paſſed by] they ſaw the fig-tree dryed up from the roots,

20. went again from Bethany to Jeruſalem Mat.21.20.

21. And Peter calling to remembrance, ſaith unto him, Maſter, behold, the fig-tree, which thou curſedſt, is withered away.

22. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaith [unto them, Have faith in God.]

22. to the diſciples, Beleive in God.

23. For verily I ſay unto you, that whoſoever ſhall ſay unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou caſt into the ſea, and ſhall not doubt in his heart, but ſhall beleive that thoſe things which he ſaith ſhall come to paſſe, he ſhall have whatſoever he ſaith.]

23. For I have given that power to you, that if any of you in the fear of God, with full confidence of faith, without all mixture of doubting, ſhall ſet upon any the greateſt difficulty, though as great as the removing of a mountain, and aſſuredly beleive that, through the ſtrength and power of God in Chriſt, it ſhall be done, he ſhall doe whatſoever he will.

24. Therefore I ſay unto you, What things ſoever ye deſire, when ye pray, beleive that ye receive them, and ye ſhall have them.]

24. This is to be undertaken by you, not upon confidence of your own ſtrength, but by humble prayer to God, and whatſoever you ſhall thus pray for, beleiving that I will according to my promiſe grant it to you, that ye ſhall be ſure to receive from me.

25. And when ye ſtand praying, forgive if ye have ought againſt any, that your father alſo which is in heaven may forgive you your treſpaſſes.]

25. But for the obtaining this certain return to your prayers, the other conditions which have formerly been required (ſee Mat.6.14.) to make mens prayers effectuall, muſt be obſerved by you, Namely, that whenſoever you pray for any thing to be granted you by God, you put all malice from you, and be filled with all charity even to your enemies, that God may in like manner deale with you.

26. But if you doe not forgive, neither will your father which is in heaven forgive your treſpaſſes.]

26. And if you doe not ſo, there is no expectation that any prayer of yours, whether for pardon of ſinne, or any thing elſe, ſhall be heard and granted by God.

27. And they come again to Jeruſalem, and as he was walking in the temple, there come to him [the chief Prieſts, and the Scribes, and the Elders,]

27. the Sanhedrim of the Jews, to whom prophets were wont to approve their miſſion,

28. And ſay unto him, By what authority doeſt thou theſe things? and who gave thee this authority to doe theſe things?

29. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, I will alſo aſk of you one queſtion, and anſwer me, and I will tell you by what authority I doe theſe things,

30. The baptiſme of John, Was it from heaven, or of men?] Anſwer me.

30. Was John that received proſelytes by Baptiſme, ſent with commiſſion from God, or no?

31. And they reaſoned with themſelves, ſaying, If we ſhall ſay, From heaven, he will ſay, Why then did ye not beleive him?

32. But if we ſhall ſay, Of men, they feared the people, for all men counted John, that he was [a prophet indeed.]

32. a prophet ſent with cõmiſſion from God.

33. And they anſwered and ſaid unto Jeſus, We cannot tell. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaith unto them, Neither doe I tell you by what authority I doe theſe things.

Notes on Chap. XI.

2. Καιρὸς σύκων

That the words are thus literally to be rendred ὁ γὰρ ἦν καιρὸς σύκων, for it was not a time, or ſeaſon of figges] there is no doubt; what the meaning of the word time, or ſeaſon here is, will be the only difficulty. If the time, or ſeaſon of the year, wherein figs are ripe, ſo that it be here ſaid it was not that time of ripe figges, then many inconveniencies will follow, As firſt that will not be (as this paſſage is deſigned) a reaſonable account, why there was nothing but leaves on the tree, for green figs there might be, and ſo ſomewhat beſide leaves though the time of ripe figs were not come, 2dly, It is not to be imagined that Christ being hungry, v. 12. and thereupon going out of his way to a fig-tree, εἴ ἄρα εὑρήσει τι ἐν αὐτῇ in all account to finde some food there, should do so at a time, when he knew fruit was not ripe, green figs, before they are ripe, being as unfit for food as could be imagined. 3. If we consider the time which is there specified to affirm that, in that interpretation, there were no truth in it, for that figs in Judea were then ripe. For it was immediately before the Passover, (presently after the Hosanna's) both here, and in Matthew. And that it about the time of their offering their first fruits, (seven weeks before Pentecost, *Lev.*23.16.) by which it is evident that fruits were then ripe in that countrey. And the difference of the climate betwixt Judea, and it being so great, and the forwardnesse of fruit depending so immediately on that, there can be no strangenesse in it; For these and other reasons it seems improbable that this should be the meaning of the words. Another notion, I conceive, there is of the word καιρὸς time, or season, which will be subject to none of these, nor any other inconveniences. For the word literally signifying a seasonable time, and time being of a great latitude, belonging to any part of time, an age, a year, and not only a part of a year, though the first of an age cannot, yet the second of a year may be applyable to this place, and then the meaning will be, that that was not a season of figs, i.e. a good fig-year, a year that brought forth any store of figs in that country. And in this interpretation of the phrase, the whole passage will be very perspicuous; Christ was hungry v. 12. and seeing a fig-tree afarre of having leaves, i.e. looking very promisingly, he went out of his way to it, if so be he might find any thing, i.e. any one, or more figs upon it, And when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, not one fig of any kind, ripe, or other, of wch this reason is rendred, ἦν γὰρ καιρὸς σύκων, for it was not a kindly seasonable year of figs. Whereupon Christ immediately curseth the tree, for having such promising verdure of leaves, but no kind of fruit on it, and so symbolically foretells the fate of that people of the Jewes, who were at this time very barren of good works, 'twas a very ill season of fruit with them. (and when Christ comes shortly after to visit, shall he find faith on the earth? any fruit of the Christian faith in that land of Judea?) though they made very promising faire professions. Having said thus much, it will not be necessary to take notice of the emendation, which the learned Dan: Heinsius hath here proposed, converting it, from ἦν γὰρ καιρὸς σύκων, for it was not a season of figs, into ἦν γὰρ ἦν, καιρὸς σύκων, for where he was, (i.e. in that place) the season of figs, i.e. it was the season of ripe figs. The exceptions which offer themselves against this conjecture are many. 1. The great change that is made by this means even from a negative to an affirmative, from one member of a contradiction to another, which if it were allowed upon no greater grounds, then of a conjecture, the consequence would be very dangerous. 2. In case this conjecture were admitted, the words so read, would be of a style discernibly different from all the rest of the book; For of either of those forms of speaking [ἦν ἐκεῖ, where he was,] for [in that region, or place] in opposition to other remote climates, or of καιρὸς σύκων, season of figs] so concisely, for it was the season of figs] 'twould be hard to find any example in the *new Testam*t: and then, though to reduce a perplext, intricate, unusuall form of speaking, to a perspicuous ordinary phrase, it might be reasonable to propose a conjecture, yet to force it by this means from an usuall to a strange form, (for which there is no example) will not be very reasonable. Lastly, there is no need, or use of any change, as already appears; but on the contrary, if the change were admitted, the verse would be lesse intelligible, then now it is, For the words are a reason, as the particle [γὰρ for] assures us: Now that which is next before, and to which this is affixt, as a reason, being this, that [coming to the fig-tree he found nothing but leaves] the words in that new reading [for where he was, it was the season of figs] cannot be thought a reason of that (the season for fruit, cannot be the reason that there was no fruit,) but would be of the contrary, whereas the words in the old reading are a clear reason of it, there were no figs but onely leaves to be found, for it was not a season of figs. The onely thing possible to be replyed, is, that the words so altered shall be a reason of Christ's going to the tree to see if there were any fruit on it, and not of his finding no fruit, Which if it be said, then I answer, that this is most unreasonable, when the words, as they lie, are regularly a reason of what went next before, to change them, upon conjecture or phansy, into the direct contrary, and then affix them as a reason of what is farther off, and with which they doe not connect, but might with as much reason be farther severed, and connected with any other (yet remoter) passage, to which a fresh conjecture should accommodate them.

There were three atria, or courts, or iles in the Temple, the first, the court of the Priests, the second, of the other Jewes, together with the perfect complete proselytes, they that were circumcised and undertook the whole law, and differed nothing from Jewes, but that they were born of Gentile parents, the Proselytes of justice, or, of the Covenant, (see note on *Mat.*23.d. and c.3.a.) and the third was the court of the Gentiles, i.e. of those Gentiles, which were received as proselytes of the gates, the Gentile worshippers, or pious heathens, that had undertaken the seven precepts of the sons of Noah (renounced Idolatry &c.) though not the whole Jewish law; of these Proselytes see note on Mat. 23.d. This court of the Gentiles was indeed discriminated by a sept or little low wall from the court of the Jewes, and was therefore by them thought lesse holy, then their court, and because the Jewes did not worship in it, they therefore conceiv'd that it might be lawfully put to common or profane uses, and so 'twas here used by the Jewes, But Christ saith, it was a house of prayer to the Gentiles, and therefore had a promise of Gods peculiar presence there, and consequently a relative sanctity, and was not to be thus used to common profane uses. b. Paraphraſe.

1. AND he began to ſpeak unto them by parables, A certain man] planted a vineyard, and ſet an hedge about it, and digged a place for the winefat, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a farre countrey.

1. And Chriſt ſpake many parables unto them, all pertinent to the rebuking of them for their unbeleif, as firſt that mention'd Mat. 21. 28. and then ſecondly this here Mat. 21. 33. of a man that

2. And at the ſeaſon he ſent to the husbandmen a ſervant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruit of the vineyard:

3. And they caught him, and beat him, and ſent him away empty.

4. And again he ſent unto them another ſervant, and at him they caſt ſtones, and wounded him in the head, and ſent him away ſhamefully handled.

5. And again he ſent another, and him they killed, and many others, beating ſome, and killing ſome.

6. Having yet therefore one ſon, his welbeloved, he ſent him alſo laſt unto them, ſaying, They will reverence my ſon.

7. But thoſe husbandmen ſaid among themſelves, This is the heire, come, let us kill him, and the inheritance ſhall be ours.

8. And they took him and killed him, and caſt him out of the vineyard.

24. The doctrine of the ſcriptures concerning the reſurrection, and the power of God in bringing it to paſſe?

24. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Doe ye not therefore erre, becauſe ye know not [the Scriptures, neither the power of God?]

25. For when they ſhall riſe from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the Angels of God which are in heaven.

26. And

26. And as touching the dead that they riſe, have ye not read in the book of Moſes, how in the buſh God ſpake unto him, ſaying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob? See note on Mat. 22. d.

27. He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living.] Ye therefore doe greatly erre. 27. Thoſe therefore were then alive, when God ſaid this of them, which was long after their death.

28. And one of the Scribes came, and having heard them reaſoning together, and perceiving that he had anſwered them well, asked him, Which is the firſt commandement of all?

29. And Jeſus anſwered him, The firſt of all the commandements is, Hear O Iſrael, the Lord our God is one Lord.

30. And thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy ſoul, and with all thy [mind] and with all thy ſtrength, this is the firſt commandement. 30. Underſtanding, v. 33.

And to love him with all the heart, and with all the underſtanding, and with all the ſoul, and with all the ſtrength, and to love his neighbour as himſelf, is more then all whole burnt-offerings and ſacrifices.] 33. And the reall ſubſtantiall performance of all duties both towards God and Man, is to be preferred before all thoſe rituall performances that Religion is generally placed in.

34. And when Jeſus ſaw that he had anſwered diſcreetly, he ſaid unto him [Thou art not farre from the kingdome of God.] And no man after that durſt ask him any queſtion. 34. This account of thine argues that thou art not far from being a Chriſtian, the doctrine of the Goſpel containing little more in it beyond this.

35. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, while he taught in the Temple, [How ſay the Scribes] that Chriſt is the ſon of David? 35. How comes is to be generally reſolved by the Doctors of the Law out of the Scripture

36. For David himſelf ſaid by the holy Ghoſt, The Lord ſaid to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footſtool.

37. David therefore himſelf calleth him Lord, whence is he then his ſon? And the common people heard him gladly.

among the Scripture writers, it will not be a misse to look on it a little in the Old Testament, Ezr.6. 9. where ὃ ἂν ὑστέρημα (whereby מחסורן ומה is rendred) signifies that which they have need of, for the word חָסֵר signifies oportuit, necesse habuit, indiguit, to want, or have need of, and so ἐκ τῆς ὑστερήσεως here, and ἐκ τοῦ ὑστερήματος Lu. 21. 4. will be rendred out of her necessaries, out of that which was necessary to her, out of that which she wanted for her selfe, out of her very low estate or extremity (as appears by that which followes ὅλον τὸν βίον αὐτῆς, all her provision, all that she had to live or subsist on) as that is opposed to ἐκ τοῦ περισσεύοντος out of that which those others had to spare: Thus Phil. 4. 11. καθ' ὑστέρησιν, in respect of a very low estate, wherein he had no more then absolute necessaries (with which, saith he, he had learned to be content) expressed by πενίαν, being abased or very low, v. 12. both which are opposed to περισσεύειν there, when πεινᾶν hungring is opposed to χορτάζεσθαι feeding full. So 1 Cor. 16.17. ὑμῶν ὑστέρημα ἦτοι ἀνεπλήρωσαν, that which you ought to have done, and did not, they have supplyed, 2 Cor. 8. 13. ὑμῶν περίσσευμα εἰς τὸ ἐκείνων ὑστέρημα, your abundance may be a supply to their necessities, and c. 9. 12. τὰ ὑστερήματα τῶν ἁγίων the necessity of the Saints, and c. 11. 9. τὸ ὑστέρημά μου my necessity; So Phil. 2.30. τὸ ὑμῶν ὑστέρημα τῆς πρὸς μὲ λειτουργίας] your defect of ministring to me, or that ministring to me, which was necessary, but through distance could not be performed, on your part, So Col. 1.24. I rejoyce in my sufferings for you, καὶ ἀνταναπληρῶ τὰ ὑστερήματα τῶν θλίψεων τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐν τῇ σαρκί μου ὑπὲρ τοῦ σώματος αὐτοῦ &c. Thus, or to this sense, Christ suffered for his Church, his body, (yea Lu. 24. 46. ἔδει παθεῖν he ought to suffer, in many respects there was a necessity of it) And so in like manner by way of correspondence (so ἀνταναπληρῶ signifies) it is necessary that I that am a Christian, should suffer for you, for the Church, i. e. his body, this now I doe, I in my flesh make up, by way of antitype, those necessary sufferings of Christ for his body. So 1 Thess. 3. 10. καταρτίσαι τὰ ὑστερήματα τῆς πίστεως ὑμῶν, to complete or fill up (for καταρτίζειν being the interpretation of כלל in the Old Testament, is all one with πληροῦν, and so καταρτισμὸς with πλήρωμα) those things that are necessary to your faith. All this is here cast together, to give one entire view of these words in the New Testament.

1. AND as he went out of the Temple one of his disciples saith unto him, Master, see what manner of stones, and what buildings are here.

See note on Mat. 24. a.

a Ταῦτα πάντα

That the πάντα, and the πάντα ταῦτα here, theſe things, and all theſe things] ſignifie that which had been by this Evangeliſt mention'd in the words immediatly precedent, there is no queſtion. And conſequently that thereby is ſignified the deſtruction of the Temple, and what was implyed and contained in that, the city, and nation of the Jews, their whole Government, Civil & Eccleſiaſticall. Which being the words in which S. Mark expreſſes that, which S. Matthew expreſſes in other words, (here, what ſhall be the ſigne when all theſe things ſhall be fulfilled?] there τί τὸ Σημεῖον ὅταν μέλλῃ Ταῦτα, καὶ ὅταν Συντελεῖσθαι τὰ ἅπαντα; what is the ſigne of thy coming, and of the conſummation of the age?]) it irrefragably followes from hence what hath been inſiſted on at large in the Annotations on *Mat.*24. b.c. that the coming of Chriſt, and conſummation of the age] ſignifies the deſtruction of the Jewiſh Temple, and nation, Of which onely, and not of the day of laſt judgment the ſignes are here demanded by the diſciples, and given by Chriſt. Which I here adde ex abundanti for the removing all ſcruple in this matter. To the ſame purpoſe 'tis again obſervable, that though here, at the beginning, S. Mark doe not at all uſe the phraſe of Chriſt's coming in this manner, yet ver.26. in ſtead of that which is in another phraſe in S. Matthew, c.24.30. [then ſhall appear, or be ſeen the ſigne of the ſon of man in heaven, this ſignall puniſhment and revenge on the crucifyers from Chriſt now reigning in heaven] he hath theſe plain words, Then ſhall they ſee the ſon of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory.

b. Ἀλεκτοροφωνίας

The gallicinium or cock-crowing is here ſet to note the middle time betwixt midnight and morning. For there were two cock-crowings in the night, as appears c.14. 30. and the ſecond is here ſpoken of, and call'd ſimply ἀλεκτοροφωνία, as alſo *Mat.*26.75. and *Lu.*22.34. and *Joh.*13.39. there is only φωνῆσαι ἀλέκτωρ the cock ſhall crow, where yet the meaning is clearly this, [δὶς φωνῆσαι] the ſecond crowing, as appears by this Evangeliſt, ch.14.30. See Cenſorinus.

Notes on Chap. XIV.

a. What is meant by 'Αλάβαστρον hath been explained Mat. 26. b. Beſides that, there are ſome other difficulties in that paſſage of the ſtory, as it is ſet down with ſome variation in this Goſpell. As 1. For the ſort of oyntment 'tis here ſaid to be nard, which was not any ſuch ῥάδιμμα or dry oyntment, as ſhould make it needfull to be put in a boxe, or that boxe to be broken for the taking it out, but fit to be poured in, and out of a cruſe, being moiſt and fluid, whence * Nonnus calls it ὑγρὸν a dew or watery ſubſtance. This nard is reckoned among the μύρα, the oyntments, that do deſtill out of reeds, either of their own accord, or when they are cut and bruiſed, and with which nothing is wont to be mixt, that ſo it may remain a pure, ſimple, liquid and noble juyce. Hence it is called ſpicata nardus, Spicknard, becauſe it thus diſtills ex ſpicis vel ex ariſtis, out of canes or reeds, And it is very poſſible that that may be the importance of the word πιστὴ here, lightly varyed from the Latine ſpicata. Some have thought it to come from the name of a place Biſt or Piſt, whether that be the Metropolis, of Carimania, or of the region of Cabul in India. Others that πιστὸς like πῖος may ſignifie ſincere, unmixt, as the Latine ſincerus, ſincere, is ſaid to be made of [ſine cera] without mixture of waxe (contrary to the Ceroma oyle and waxe together, uſed by the althleta) and ſo 'tis generally called pure nard--pura diſtillant tempora nardo, in Tibullus, pure nard diſtilling on his temples, and ſuch are commonly the more chargeable, (ἐν πολλοῖσι μύροις ἀγαθοῖσι, in Archeſtratus) as this here is πολυτελὴς and πολύτιμος in S. John, coſtly or pretious, thus Marcellus in his book de medicament. and Theophil. cals it ἄδολον καὶ μετὰ πίστεως καλλιτεχνηθὲν, unmixt, faithfully prepared, And the Old Gloſſes, balſamum ſine impoſturâ, i. e. mixturâ, without any deceit. But that which ſeems to me the moſt probable is, that as there are in the New Teſtament writers many Latine words, and thoſe a little diſguiſed by turning into Greek, as λίτρα for libra &c. ſo here ſpicata may be turned into πιστὴ, which is as it were, the anagram of it, the miſplacing, but yet retaining all the conſonants ſonants in it. This is, I find, Eraſmus's opinion of it, whoſe judgment I ſhall ſuppoſe fit to recommend it to the reader.

b Συντρίψασα ἀλάβαστρον κατέχεεν] This part of this paſſage expreſt by remains ſtill (after all that hath been ſaid on S. Matthew and here) to be explained. That it cannot be interpreted of her breaking the veſſell, I am perſwaded, not onely firſt, becauſe a veſſell of that kinde, of Marble, is not eaſily broken (and Nonnus renders it μάρμαρον ἄγγος a marble veſſell, (and if it had been of Gold or ſilver, or other metall, 'twere as hard to be imagined) and 2. becauſe there was no need of breaking it, and 3. becauſe Suidas mentions this very veſſel or cruiſe, βίκιον μύρου ὃ δ' ἀλείφαλο ὁ Χριστὸς (together with many other σημειοφορα notable reliques, as laid up by Conſtantine the great, but taken away, ἀφανισθέντα, by Theodoſius the great) which ſure if it had been broken in pieces by the woman could not well have been laid up by Conſtantine, nor would Suidas have ſaid it was, if he had ſo underſtood this word συντρίψασα in the Goſpel, at leaſt would not have called it βίκιον the cruiſe, but onely ſome pieces of it. And although perhaps that relation in Suidas be not of infallible authority, that it was kept till Conſtantines time (which yet the durable matter, of which 'twas made, was able to authorize) yet thus farre may an argument be drawn from thence, that they that affirmed it to be ſo kept, did not beleive it broken by the woman, and that Suidas which was a very good Grammarian, and thought it not broken, did infallibly underſtand ſomewhat elſe (and not breaking) by συντρίψασα. But beſides theſe I have yet this farther argument, in that 'tis here ſaid κατέχεεν ſhe poured out of it, which was moſt proper for the buſineſſe in hand, it being the manner to poure out ſuch oyntment out of the mouth of the veſſel; So Euphemus in Pollux, λύε τὰ ἀλάβαστρα θᾶττον οὖν, open the cruiſe preſently, and the manner of pouring out the oyntment is there expreſt, by uſing a ſpathula or rudicula, an inſtrument to put into it firſt, to taſt the oyntment, πρὶν κατασχεῖν (the word here) before it be poured out, and alſo to ſtir up the thicker parts of it from the bottome, and from the ſides, that they may come out together. To this purpoſe hath the Syriack interpreted it [ſhe opened it] and the Æthiopick, [ſhe opened and poured out.] And for the Greek συντρίψασα in the active, that doth not naturally ſignifie to break, but contundere, conquaſſare, to knock, to beat or ſhake together, συνδεῖν ſaith Heſychius. So in * Lucian, ξύλοις συντρίβειν is fuſtibus contundere, not to break (though in the paſſive that which is contuſum or contritum is oft that which by ſuch contuſion is broken to pieces) or elſe conterere, to rub, or ſcrape, &c. If it ſignifie contundere, or conquaſſare, to knock or ſhake, then the meaning will be, that ſhe ſhook the veſſel, or knocks it againſt the ground, that it might run the more fluently, and that the more corpulent parts might riſe from the bottome, and then ſhe poured it on his head. But if it ſignifie conterere, then it referres to the σπάθις in Pollux, the inſtrument ordinary among Apothecaries, to rub, or ſcrape the inſide of the veſſel, that the oyntment ſtick not to it. In one of theſe two notions I doubt not but 'tis taken, and the Hebrew רצץ which is rendred ſometimes συντρίβω, is alſo by the Septuagint, ἐκτρίβω exentio, and ἀναβάλλω, τὸ ſtrike againſt the ground, and διαχέω and ἐκχαλάω to poure out, Prov. 5. 16. and διανοίγω to open, and that very agreeable to the moyſtneſſe, or thinneſſe of the Nard, which before was mentioned.

* in Demonaſt. p. 58.

Some difficulty there is in the old Teſtament about the beginning of the feaſt of unleavened bread ariſing from the comparing of Exod. 12. 6. 8. and Lev. 23. 5. Numb. 28. 16. In Exodus, on the fourteenth day of the moneth Niſan at even the Paſſover is to be killed, v. 6. and the fleſh eat that night, v. 8. and v. 17. 18. their eating of unleavened bread is to begin at the fourteenth day of that moneth at even, and to laſt till the 21 day of that moneth at even, whereas in Leviticus and in Numbers 'tis diſtinctly ſaid, In the fourteenth day of the firſt moneth at even is the Lords Paſſover, and on the fifteenth day of the ſame moneth is the feaſt of unleavened bread, and agreeably Joſephus Antiq. l. 3. πέμπτῃ καὶ δεκάτῃ διαδέχεται ἡ τῶν Πάσχα ἡ τῶν ἀζύμων ἑορτὴ, ἣν ἄγομεν ἡμέρας ἑπτά, on the fifteenth day the feaſt of unleavened bread followes the Paſſover, and laſts ſeven days. Theſe will ſoon be reconciled, if firſt we ſuppoſe that the Jewes fourteenth day begin at the ſunſet of the thirteenth according to the firſt calculation, Gen. 1. The evening and the morning were the firſt day, and the importance of the word [νυχθήμερον] night and day, for the naturall day. And then ſecondly, that betwixt that time and the next evening being the full time that belonged to the fourteenth day, all that belonged to the Paſſover was to be done, the place of eating it prepared, the lambe killed, and dreſſed, and eaten about the concluſion of that 24 houres, according to that of Moſes, Exod. 12. 8. They ſhall eate the fleſh in that night (not the night with which the fourteenth day began, but the night or evening concluding, or ſhutting up the fourteenth day) i. e. not deferre the eating it any longer, then that night, leave none of it till the morning, v. 10. And then thirdly, that this day of the Paſſover being the Eve or preparation of the ſeven days feaſt of unleavened bread, they were that day, before ſunſet, (i. e. before the fifteenth day began) to purge out or remove all remainders of leavened bread out of their houſes and to eate the Paſſover with unleavened, (which ſeems to be referred to by S. Paul, 1 Cor. 5. 7.) and then the feaſt of unleavened bread was to begin, and laſt ſeven days, i. e. from the evening that concluded the fourtteenth, and began the fifteenth day Lev. 23. 5. Numb. 21. 16. to the evening, the concluſion of the 21, Exod. 12. 18. and beginning of the 22 day. Agreeable to this is that of Joſephus, Ant. l. 2. ſpeaking of this feaſt, ἑορτὴν ἄγομεν ἐπ' ἡμέρας ὀκτὼ, we keep that feaſt eight days, beginning from the fourteenth day of the moneth, wherein at even they were to eate unleavened bread, Exod. 12. 18. and then to keep the feaſt of unleavened bread ſeven days after. From this explication of thoſe texts of the Old Teſtament, the controverſie about the time of Chriſt's and the Jews keeping this Paſſover, here in the new, may be decided. And firſt the preciſe time of this πρώτη ἄζύμων, the firſt day of unleavened bread be defined. On the thurſday evening then, wherein the thirteenth day of the moneth was concluded and the fourteenth day (or νυχθήμερον night and day, evening

c. Πρώτη ἀζύμων

ning and morning) began, (expreſt here by two characters, τὴ πρώτη ἡμέρα τῶν ἀζύμων, the firſt day of unleavened bread (not the firſt day of the feaſt of unleavened bread, or the firſt of the ſeven daies, but) the preparation to that feaſt, wherein the leaven was put out of their houſes, 2. ὅτε τὸ Πάσχα ἔθυον, when they kill'd the Paſſover, i.e. on the evening which began that Paſchal day, (at the end of which, the Paſchal lamb was wont to be kill'd and eaten) The diſciples ſay unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou eat the Paſſover? For according to the uſuall cuſtome, that night and the next morning, the Jewes were wont to prepare, and make ready, cleanſe the houſe, remove all leavened bread out of it, and at length lay the cloth, dreſſe the meat, and eat the Paſſover about the evening or night after. But the truth was, Jeſus our Paſſover was to be ſacrificed (i.e. crucified himſelf) before that next evening or night, wherein the Paſchal lamb uſed to be eaten, and therefore he reſolved to keep it ſooner, viz: in the former part of that Paſchal νυχθήμερον; This, ſaith the learned Grotius, is the importance of [*my time is at hand Mat.*26.18. and of ποιῶ, I keep the Paſſover,] i.e. in reſpect of the ſuddenneſſe of my death approaching I will keep it preſently, and Luk. 22.15. I have earneſtly deſired to eat this Paſſover with you, before I ſuffer; But this not by eating the Lamb; That was to be ſlain by the Levites, 2 *Chron.*35.6. and ſacrificed in the Temple, *Deut.*16.2,6. (and that ſo it continued at this time and after, appears by the ſtory of Ceſtius, learning by this means from the Prieſts the number of the Lambs that were ſacrificed, and the people that were preſent at a Paſſover) and that on the fourteenth day at even onely, i.e. at the concluſion of that day, But another Paſſover, which was not ſacrificed (and accordingly of that which Chriſt took, it is no where ſaid in the Goſpels, that it was ſacrificed, not θύω but only ποιῶ, I keep, or celebrate, and φάγω, I eat it) but eaten, as a memoriall of the afflictions and deliverance out of Ægypt, viz: unleavened bread, and bitter herbs, and nothing elſe. To this purpoſe it may be obſerved, that as *Joh.*13.1. the time there ſpecified for the ſupper, v.2. is πρὸ τῆς ἑορτῆς τοῦ Πάσχα, before the feaſt of the Paſſover, Upon which it is added, that Jeſus knew that his houre was come, that he ſhould paſſe out of this world unto the Father, i.e. that he, our paſſover, ſhould be ſacrificed, and ſo himſelf paſſe, before the paſſover, intimating that what he now doth at this ſupper, was upon this conſideration, that he knew he ſhould not live to eat the Lamb with them, So at the time of the eating of this ſupper in John, which is here, v.12. call'd this (commemorative) Paſſover, The ſolemn Paſchal feaſt (by the mention of [thoſe things that they have need of εἰς τὴν ἑορτὴν for, or againſt the feaſt] v.29.) appears to be yet to come, the diſciples, it ſeems, conceiving that it would follow in its due time, as it would, had it not been prevented by Chriſt's death. This commemorative paſſover they that could not come up to Jeruſalem to ſacrifice, were wont to obſerve at home, in remembrance of the deliverance, And accordingly Chriſt by his approaching death being hindred from the more ſolemn celebration of it by killing, and ſacrificing of the Lamb, yet would needs keep this commemoration of it on the ſame day or νυχθήμερον, though many houres before the ordinary eating of the Lamb, viz: in the night before, expreſſed by ἀφ' ἑσπέρας evening v. 17. which that it ſignifies not only the evening, but in ſome places neceſſarily the night, ſee note on Mat. 14. c. This ſetting of the paſſage will perſpicuouſly reconcile all difficulty, and ſeeming contrarieties in the relations of this matter among the Evangeliſts.

What the word [ἀνέχει] here ſignifies, may beſt be learn'd from Heſychius, though in the place, which orderly belongs to it the word be not to be found in the printed copies. After the word ἀνέχεσθαι, ἀνέχει followes, Ἀνέχει ἀνέχει, ἔξεστι, and after again, ἀνέχει ἔξεστι. By which it appears to be an impersonal, and to ſignifie ſufficit, ſatis eſt, and here to import, ['Tis to no purpoſe to ſpeak any more of not ſleeping, 'tis now too late] and this preparative to what followes, the houre is come &c. In order to this interpretation of the word, it is obſervable, that ἀπέχω *Phil.*4.18. ſeems to have a peculiar forinſick notion for ſatis habeo, giving a diſcharge, ſubſcribing of an acquittance, (which is therefore call'd ἀποχὴ) πάντα ἀπέχω, I give you my acquittance for all that which now ye ſent me, having, as it follows, received by Epaphroditus, &c. Now this notion of it being impersonally applyed to this place, ſignifies Chriſt's giving them an ἀποχὴ or acquittance, a requiring no farther attendance from them (they may ſleep on now) and ſo, according to our vulgar phraſe, giving them a quietus eſt. So *Mat.*6.2. and 6. ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν, they receive all that is due to them, by receiving the praiſe of men they acquit God of any farther payment. Another way hath been thought of to interpret this place, by adhering to the nature of the verb ἀπέχω, as that notes diſtance or abſence, but that not farre removed, approach or drawing nigh, So the Syriack ſeems to have underſtood it here, For in the printed copy of that, in ſtead of ἀπέχει they read סגיאת חיתהא appropinquavit finis, the end approacheth, and in Manuſcript copies, קרב שולמא appropinquavit conſummatio, the conſummation approacheth, where סגיאת and קרב, have the ſame importance, both ſignifying, to draw nigh. According to this way [ἀπέχει] muſt be taken perſonally, and having no ſubſtantive annext to it, the word ὥρα, houre, which followes, muſt belong to that, as well as to ἦλθεν is come, thus: ἀπέχει, ἦλθεν ὥρα, the houre (the point of time) drawes nigh, yea it is come, the ſon of man is delivered into the hands of ſinners, and ſo it will agree with what followes immediately, Behold he is at hand that doth it. But the former I conceive the fitteſt to be adhered to, though the latter having the authority of the Syriack, not unworthy to be mention'd alſo. d. Ἀνέχει

Νεανίσκοι young men is a title here of the Roman ſouldiers, as in Polybius νεανίσκων πεντακοσίων, the muſtering of ſouldiers, ſo *Joſ.*6.22. the Septuagint have δύο νεανίσκοι κατασκοποῦντες, two ſouldiers went to ſpie, and *Joſ.*2.1. and *Iſa.*13.18. τὰ τόξα τῶν νεανίσκων the bowes of the young men, or ſouldiers. See Caſaubon: againſt Baron: p.113. e. Νεανίσκοι

The word [φῶς light] is here and *Lu.*22.56. clearly taken for a fire, for to that [θερμαινόμενος τὸ φῶς warming himſelf] referres. And it is obſervable, how it comes to doe ſo. The Writer of this book, and f. φῶς and all of the New Teſtament, and ſo the Greek tranſlatours of the Old were Jewes by nation, and had learn'd Greek, Hence it is, that though they write in Greek, yet they not only retain the Hebrew idiome in phraſes, and formes of ſpeeches, but farther in many other things imitate the Hebrew manner, eſpecially in two things, 1. in the conjugations of verbs, They having in Hebrew more then there are in Greek, doe yet expreſſe the ſenſe of all their conjugations by Greek words of other conjugations, being not able to do otherwiſe, as when Hiphil one of their conjugations is [to make doe a thing] they finding no conjugation in Greek anſwerable to this, make uſe of the active for it. Thus have we θριαμβεύειν θριαμβεύειν 2 Cor. 2. 14. to make triumph, ἀνατέλλειν Mat. 5. 45. to make ariſe, σπεύδειν 2 Pet. 3. 12. to make to haſten, καθίζειν καθίζειν 1 Cor. 6. 4. to make to ſit, and ἀποστοματίζειν ἀποστοματίζειν to make recite Lu. 11. 53. and πλεονάζειν πλεονάζειν to make abound 2 Cor. 9. 8. Thus when we read Mat. 5. 25. ἴσθι εὐνοῶν, i.e. literally, think thou well, or, be friends with thine adverſary, it clearly ſignifies, make, or get him to be friends with thee, ſee note on Mat. 5. 24. i. The other thing is, that when an Hebrew word (according to the paucity of themes in that language) ſignifies ſeverall things, and thoſe ſeveralls expreſt in Greek by ſeverall words of ſeverall ſignifications; one of theſe Greek is often by them (according as it was the uſuall dialect, or manner of ſpeaking among them) taken for the other. This might be obſerved in other writings of tranſlatours, which have turn'd books out of their owne native language into a language which they have learnt by ſtudy, As when a Grecian rendred the Novels out of Greek into Latine, meeting with theſe * words ἀπὸ τῆς ὀρθῆς ἀποπεπλάνηνται) δόξης they erred from the right opinion, δόξα in Greek ſignifying gloria as well as opinio, he renders it à verâ aberrarunt gloriâ. Something of this kind might be obſerved among the Greek authors themſelves, as when the Greek κόρη ſignifies both a maid and the apple of the eye, the word γλωὴ ſignifying only the latter of theſe, is yet uſed ſometimes for a maid, ὑῤῥὶς καὶ γλωή, and hence perhaps it is that when ὀργὴ ſignifies both χολὴ, and πρόπον, anger, and generally, the diſpoſition of the mind, whatever it is, χολὴ which imports one of theſe (ſignifying choler or anger) is taken ſometimes for the other, as when in Zenobius we read Μέλαινα χολὴ, and find that rendred by the ſcholiaſt, ἰδιόθυμοι, I make little doubt but the place in Zenobius is corrupt, and ſhould be read ἰδιόχολοι, and then that being all one with ἰδιόθυμοι, argues χολὴ and πρόπος to be ſo too. In the Septuagints, or (whoſoever did it) the Greek tranſlation of the Old Teſtament, there are infinite examples of this kind, I muſt not goe about to throw them in here, They would make up a volume, only one I ſhall mention, as being a pitch above any, which we have yet obſerved, or which is ordinary in the other examples, It is this, that when כבד ſignifies both burthen, and honour, they doe not only render that word by one of theſe, when it ſignifies the other, but moreover there being another Hebrew word, to wit סבל, which ſignifies a burthen, i. e. denotes one part of the ſignification of the word כבד, and not the other, yet thoſe tranſlators have rendred סבל ſometimes by that other ſignification of the word כבד, as Iſa. 14. 25. where they render it κῦδος glory, and Exod. 6. 6. τῶν ἐργασιῶν, where yet the ſenſe requires burthen in both places. Examples of the main obſervation in the New Teſtament we ſhall meet with many, and obſerve them briefly as they come. That which is here before us, and occaſion'd all this preparative diſcourſe, is τὸ φῶς] ſignifying light in Greek, and nothing elſe, but is here uſed for fire, moſt clearly upon this ground and no other, becauſe the Hebrew אור wch ſignifies light, and the ſun the fountain of light (from whence it is that the Greeks call the ſun or Apollo Ὠρος) doth alſo ſignifie light fire, or flaming fire (from whence perhaps is the Latine, uro, to burn) and ſo in vulgar uſe, both fire and light, and hereupon one of theſe is taken and uſed for the other, τὸ φῶς, when the ſenſe requires τὸ πῦρ.

Ἴσαι μαρτυρίαι] here belongs not to the agreement or diſagreement of their teſtimonies, but to the weight of them, or ſufficiency to the matter in hand, of putting him to death, either in reſpect to the number of the witneſſes, but eſpecially of the crimes charged on him. The teſtimonies that were lookt for, were εἰς τὸ θανατῶσαι, ver. 55. ſuch as would be ſufficient to put him to death, and that muſt not be but under two or three witneſſes, and for a crime which is by law capital. Now though there were many knights of the poſt brought in, to witneſſe againſt him, v. 56. yet 'tis probable that their witneſſes were of ſeverall matters, not two or more of them to one matter, and ſo 'tis there ſaid, that they were not ἴσαι, ſufficient in the firſt ſenſe, in reſpect of the number of the witneſſes, Afterward v. 57. the witneſſes agree, more then one in the ſame teſtimony, and though it be not in Matthew and Mark ſet down in the ſame words exactly, yet the difference is not reall but verball between them (as in many other narrations), and each of them affirm that the witneſſes ſaid the ſame thing. In that verſe therefore, the οὐκ ἴσαι ſignifies that the teſtimonies were not of any capitall crime, or of ſuch importance, as that, allowing them to be true, a man ſhould be put to death for them. And therefore it is that the chief Prieſt was fain to examine him, and at laſt adjure him (which I formerly obſerved the force of, note on Mat. 26. h.) that out of his own mouth he might draw ſomewhat to condemn him. (For ſo the faſhion of adjuring was deſigned, Num. 5. 13. when an accuſation is not ſufficiently proved, and there is no witneſſe againſt him.) And when by Chriſt's anſwer he concludes that he had ſpoken blaſphemy, then he riſes up and ſaith, What need have we of any farther witneſſes? ver. 63. and Mat. 26. 65.

g. Ἴσαι μαρτυρίαι

The Jewes when they name God, generally adde bleſſed forever, and thereupon ὁ εὐλογητὸς is here the title of God the Father, ſee note on Rom. 9. c.

h. Εὐλογητὸς

Many conjectures there are about the importance of ἐπέβαλεν, as that it might be for ἐνόουν, thinking on it, or that ἐπέβαλεν ἔκλαιεν were all one with ἐπέβαλε κλαίειν, and that to be rendred, he proceeded or added to weep, i.e. he wept, as ἐφιδεῖς εἶπε, Lu. 19. 11. a kind of expletive, or as ἐπέβαλλεν ſignifies ἐπεπόθησε, and ἐφίδιον, abundance, ſay Grammarians, and then would be all one with his weeping bitterly in the other Evangeliſt; But the two latter will be leſſe probable, if it be markt, that there is a comma betwixt ἐπέβαλεν, and ἔκλαιεν, whereas either of thoſe ſenſes requires the connecting

necting of these together, and the advantage that the last hath by the agreeing with μετὰ δὲ in S. Matthew, is again lost by that which is observed of this Evangelist, that being S. Peters Scribe, he doth as a true pœnitent would doe, set out his sinne of denying Christ with more aggravations then any of the Evangelists, and onely mentions the repentance, but more slightly then the rest. As for the first, that ἐπιβάλλειν should signifie ἐννοεῖν, it is but affirmed by Casaubon, but not proved by any Grammarian or Glossary, and therefore, though proper enough to the place, will be of lesse authority, and besides, his thinking on it] seems to have been contained before in the ἀνεμνήσθη ὁ Πέτρος, Peters remembring Christ's saying. Lesse probable then any of these I conceive that of Claudius Salmasius to be, that it should signifie ἐγκαλυψάμενος, operto capite, putting on his hat, covering his head. To these I might adde another conjecture, that the Hebrew שׁית being sometimes rendred ἐπιβάλλω, and that ordinarily signifying to fall down, to prostrate himselfe, and that as an argument and expression of sorrow, ἐπιβαλὼν may possibly signifie casting himselfe down, prostrating himselfe. But that which seems to me lest forced, and most proper to the passages set down by the other Evangelists, and backt by the judgment of learned ancient Grammarians, is this; that it should signifie looking on Christ, casting his eyes upon him he wept, In S. Luke c. 22. 61. 'tis said (in this point of time here set down by S. Mark) that Jesus turned καὶ ἐνέβλεψε τῷ Πέτρῳ and look't upon Peter, And his doing any thing upon that look of Christs (as it followes there, he remembred &c.) is an infallible argument that S. Peter look't upon him also seeing him look; and that he did so, and thereupon wept, is the summe of this interpretation, And for authority to confirme it, 'tis Phavorinus's glosse, ἐπιβάλλω, τὸ ἐπιβλέπω τινὸς ἢ τῷ τι. It signifies to look upon any man.

CHAP. XV.

Paraphrase.

1. AND straightway in the morning [the chief priests held a consultation with the Elders and Scribes, and the whole councell, and] bound Jesus and carried him away and delivered him to Pilate.

1. the chief priests elders and scribes, i.e. the whole Sanhedrim having sate in consultation, and resolved that he was to be put to death (Mat. 27. 1.)

2. And Pilate asked him, Art thou the King of the Jewes? And he answering said unto him, [Thou saist it.]

2. I am.

3. And the chief priests accused him of many things, but he answered nothing.

4. Aud Pilate asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? Behold how many things they witnesse against thee.

5. But Jesus yet answered nothing, so that Pilate marvelled.

6. Now at the feast [he released unto them one prisoner, whomsoever they desired.]

6. It was the custome for him to loose to the Jewes, by way of gratification, some one prisoner, whomsoever the multitude of them should demand, v. 8.

7. And there was one named Barabbas, [which lay bound with them that had made insurrection with him, who had] committed murther in the insurrection.

7. that together with his complices was in prison for having made an insurrection, and this man had also

8. And the multitude crying aloud began to desire him [to doe as he had ever done unto them.]

8. to release them a prisoner according to custome.

9. But Pilate answered them saying, Will yee that I release unto you the King of the Jewes?

10. For he knew that the chief priests had delivered him for envy.

11. But the chief priests moved the people that he should rather release Barabbas unto them.

12. And Pilate answered and said again unto them, What will yee then that I shall doe unto him whom ye call the King of the Jewes?

13. And they cryed out again, Crucifie him.

14. Then Pilate said unto them, Why, what evill hath he done? And they cryed out the more exceedingly, Crucifie him.

15. And so Pilate [willing to content the people, released Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jesus, * when he had scourged him, to be crucified.]

15. in compliance to the importunity and clamours of the Jewes, though he thought him absolutely innocent (and therefore sent for water to wash his hands of it, Mat. 27. 24.) and though he had inflicted scourging, as a lower punishment, to release him from this higher, (See note on Lu. 23. 16.) released Barabbas, and gave them their desire, delivered Jesus to be crucified.

* having scourged him, φραγελλώσας,

16. And the souldiers [led him away into the hall † called Prætorium, and they call together the whole band.]

† which is the Prætors hall, τοῦ πραιτωρίου

16. took him aside into an inner hall from that where Pilate sate, (the hall where the Prætor sate in judicature) as a retiring room, and there they first set the whole band of souldiers, to guard him to his execution.

17. And

a. 17, 18, 19. Then they attired him and ſet him out like a mock-king (implying that to be the crime for which he was puniſht v.2.) put on him a purple garment, and a crown of platted thorns upon his head, and in a ſcoffing manner bowed themſelves to him as to a King, but withall ſtriking him with a cane, and ſpitting on him.

17. And they [a] clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns and put it about his head.

18. And began to ſalute him, Haile King of the Jewes.

19. And they ſmote him on the head with a reed, and did ſpit upon him, and bowing their knees worſhipped him.

20. And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucifie him.

21. See note on Mat.5.9, 27.e.

23. See note on Mat.27 34.f.

23. And they gave him to drink [wine mingled with myrrhe] but he received it not.

24. And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, caſting lots upon them, what every one ſhould take.

25. And betwixt the third and the ſixt houre Joh. 19.14. i.e. betwixt nine, and twelve of the clock, he was condemn'd by Pilate, and ſoon hurried away by the ſouldiers, and faſten'd to the Croſſe.

25. And it was the third houre, and they crucified him.]

b. 26. And according to the Roman cuſtome, his Indictment, or charge for which he was put to death, was written and fixt over his head.

26. And the [b] ſuperſcription of his accuſation was written over, The King of the Jewes.]

27. And with him they crucified two theeves, one on his right hand, and the other on his left.

35. And ſome of them that ſtood by, when they heard it, ſaid, Behold, he calleth for Elias.

Many

a. Πορφύραν ἱματίδιον

Many particulars mention'd in their dealing with Chriſt were not from the Jewiſh, but the Roman cuſtomes. Some were mention'd in the note on Mat. 27.15. d. and ſuch was here the putting the purple or ſcarlet robe upon him, which the text here ſaith was done by the ſouldiers, and Luke by Herod's ſervants, or elſe the Roman guards, *Lu.*23. 11. And ſo ſaith * Lazarus Bayfius, this purple or ſcarlet gown, or robe was the Roman faſhion, call'd toga picta, and accordingly by S. Luke ἐσθῆτα λαμπρὰν ch. 23. 11. and was by way of ſcoffe brought to Chriſt by the ſouldiers, as if it had been ſent by the Senate and people of Rome, to him, which, as the Jewes ſaid, pretended to be their King. See farther, *Lu.*23. b.

* De re veſt:

b. Ἐπιγραφὴ τῆς αἰτίας

That it was the Romans cuſtome to write the crime, for which any man ſuffered death, in a table, and carry it before him to execution, appears by Euſebius Eccl: hiſt: l.5. c.1. where of Attalus the Chriſtian Martyr it is ſaid, that he was led about the amphitheatre, πίνακα αὐτῷ προάγοντος, ἐν ᾧ ἐγέγραπτο &c. with a table caried before him, in which was written in Latine, This is Attalus the Chriſtian, So in Suetonius, Domit: c. 10. Detractum in arenam canibus objecit, cum hoc titulo, Impiè locutus &c. He brought him out, and caſt him to the dogs, with this title, or inſcription, He ſpake impiouſly. This elſewhere he calleth elogium, a way of publiſhing the fault, in Calig: and ſo Tertullian in his Apologie c.11. And as of other kinds of death, ſo particularly of thoſe that are crucified. This is mention'd by Dio of a ſervant, that he was carried to the croſſe, μὲ γεγραμμένου τὴν αἰτίαν καὶ διατόνως δηλοῦντος, with a writing, or words declaring the cauſe of his being put to death. From theſe records of the Romans, appears the propriety of all theſe expreſſions in the ſeverall Evangeliſts, ἐπιγραφὴ ἡ αἰτία, the ſuperſcription of the cauſe, or of his crime here in Marke, ἡ αἰτία ἐπάνω τῆς κεφαλῆς γεγραμμένη, the charge, or cauſe written over his head Mat. 27. 37. and ſimply ἐπιγραφὴ inſcription Lu. 23.38. and τίτλος (the Latine word Titulus) title Joh. 19.19. all to the ſame purpoſe, noting this Roman cuſtome obſerved in the dealing with him more Romano, after the manner of the Romans.

c. Μικρὸς

That the poſitive μικρὸς is here taken for the comparative, the leſſe, or the younger, doth not appear by any circumſtance of this text or analogie of other places. And there were three James's ſo known, two Apoſtles, and the third the brother of the Lord, that this title of [the leſſe] in the comparative, could be no character of the third of theſe, to diſtinguiſh him from the other two. That which is moſt probable is, that being a kind of cognomen here, it is an abbreviate of μικρὸς τῇ ἡλικίᾳ, little in ſtature, the phraſe uſed of Zacchaus Lu. 19. 3. and ſo notes this James to have been about Zacchaus's ſize or pitch, and ſo diſtinguiſh him from the others of that name, who, it ſhould ſeem, were not ſo.

20. And they went forth and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with ſignes following. Amen.

Notes on Chap. XVI.

a. πᾶσα κτίσις

What πᾶσα κτίσις here ſignifies is clear by comparing this paſſage with the ſame, as 'tis ſet down in the other Goſpels. In Matthew (with whom S. Mark throughout moſt exactly agrees) it is thus, πορευθέντες ὖν μαθητεύσατε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, Goe and gather diſciples over all nations, and immediatly follows (as here) baptizing them &c. In S. Luke thus, c. 24. 47. ἤρξασθαι &c. ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, repentance and remiſſion of ſins muſt be preacht to all nations. From whence not onely appears that πᾶσα κτίσις in this place is all the Gentiles, but a very fit occaſion is offered of interpreting the ſame phraſe again in a very hard place, Rom. 8. 22. and 1 Pet. 2. 13. which we ſhall referre to be explain'd more at large on thoſe chapters. Some ground of the uſe of the phraſe in this ſenſe, ſeems to be taken from the Hebrew, which uſes בריות (which ſignifies creatures properly) for men, as being the moſt excellent creatures. And ſo the Arabick alſo, as appears by one of their Geographers, who ſpeaking of cities, often ſaith, that there are in it many ברא׳א, i. e literally κτίσεις creatures, but clearly ſignifies men, and ſo πᾶσα κτίσις every creature, is all men, in oppoſition to the Jewes, i. e. not only they, but all other nations of men beſide.

This ſeems to be prophecied of by that Sibyll, out of which Virgil had learnt the ſubſtance of that verſe of his,

CHAP. I.

Paraphrase.

1. FOrasmuch as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things [which * are most surely [a] believed among us,]

* have been performed

1. which have in these late years been so illustriously acted among us, a.

2. Even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eye-witnesses, and [b ministers of the word,]

2. Instruments & actors of those things, which were the subject-matter of this following history, b.

3. It seemed good to me also, having * had perfect understanding of things from the very first, to write unto thee in order,] most [c] excellent Theophilus, * exactly traced all things from the top, or from the beginning. ανωθεν, ab initio vide Grotii annot.

3. I thought fit also, having gotten exact knowledge of the several passages, to set them down by way of history c.

4. That thou mightst know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been † instructed.]

† catechized, κατηχηθης

4. That thereby thou mayest be confirmed in the belief of those things which are supposed to have been taught thee, and received by thee to prepare thee for baptisme, viz: the principles of Christianity.

5. There was in the daies of Herod the king of Judea, a certain priest named Zacharias, [of the course of Abia,] and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth.

5. of the family of Abia, 1 Chron. 24.10. i.e. of the eighth of the 24. courses of the Priests.

6. And they were both [righteous before God, walking in all the commandements and ordinances of the Lord, blameless.]

6. sincere, upright persons, which so lived in obedience to Gods will in all matters of duty (without indulgence in any known sinne) and to all the Jewish observances, as with Gods mercifull allowance to humane frailties, is sure to be acceptable in Gods sight.

7. And they had no child, because that Elizabeth was barren, and they both were now well stricken in years.]

7. And they were childless in the same manner as Abraham was, for beside the barrenness of the wife they were both of an age conceived to be past childbearing.

8. And it came to passe that while he executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course,

9. According to the custome of the priests office, [his lot was to burn incense when he went into the Temple of the Lord.]

9. it was his course to go into the Sanctuary, and offer incense there.

10. And the whole multitude of the people were [d] praying without at the time of incense.]

10. And while the Priest offered incense within, the people, according to the custome, were praying without. d.

11. And there appeared unto him an Angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of the altar of incense,

12. And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13. But the Angel said unto him, Fear not Zacharias, for [thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John.]

13. thy prayer for the people (joyned with the incense, Lev. 16. 17.) and for the whole world (as Josephus and Philo say) is now most effectually heard, God meaning now suddenly to send the Messias, and before him his forerunner, who shall be born of thy wife Elizabeth, and called John.

14. And thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many shall rejoyce at his birth.]

14. And this birth of a son to thee in thy old age by a barren wife, shall not only be matter of joy and exultation to thee, but to many others also, all that expect the Messias, shall rejoyce at this coming of Elias his forerunner.

15. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink, and he shall be filled with the holy Ghost, even from his mothers womb.]

15. For he shall be a very eminent person, abstaining after the manner of the Nazarites, and the power of the holy Ghost shall be discern'd to be upon him very early, v. 80.

16. And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.]

16. And being a Preacher of repentance to the Jewes, he shall work upon many of them, and bring them to repentance and new life.

17. And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to * the [e] wisdome of the just, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.]

* the prudence of the just, or, the minding of just things

17. And he shall go before the Messias, as his harbinger, with the same affections of zeal and courage against sinne, (see note on ch. 9. d.) of earnest calling for repentance, (and reproving even Herod himself) and with the same authority and prophetick power, which toward Ahab was observable in Elias (to whom he hath a greater resemblance then to any of the old Testament) to work an universall reformation among the Jewes, to bring them to the minding of those things which tend to true justice, and not only of externall legall observances, to sincere reformation and change of all their evil waies; and so fit men to receive Christ, on his conditions, and to render themselves capable of his mercies. e.

18. my wife beſide that ſhe hath all her time been barren, grown in years alſo, paſt bearing of children.

18. And Zacharias ſaid unto the Angel, Whereby ſhall I know this? for I am an old man, and [my wife well ſtricken in years.]

19. My name is Gabriel, and I am an officer or attendant that wait on God, by whom I was diſpatcht on this good meſſage to thee.

19. And the Angel anſwering ſaid unto him, [I am Gabriel, that ſtand in the preſence of God, and am ſent to ſpeak unto thee, and to ſhew thee theſe glad tidings.]

f. 20. And as a puniſhment of thy unbeleif, and withall as a ſigne to aſſure thee of the truth of what I ſay, thou ſhalt be deaf and dumb, and ſo continue till after the birth of the child, v. 64. which ſhall be according to the ordinary courſe of womens conceiving and bringing forth, reckoning from this time.

21. And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvailed that he tarried ſo long in the [Temple.]

g. 22. concluded that God had given him ſome revelation in time of his offering incenſe, and he made ſignes to them, but was not able to ſpeak to them, continuing dumb, after the amazement of it was over.

22. And when he came out he could not ſpeak unto them, and they [perceived that he had ſeen a [g] viſion in the Temple, for he beckned unto them, and remained ſpeechleſſe.]

h. 23. And it came to paſſe that aſſoon as the daies of his [h] miniſtration were accompliſhed, he departed to his own houſe.

24,25. And his wife Elizabeth conceived preſently (ſee ver. 20. and note l.) and aſſoon as ſhe perceived it, ſhe went out of the way to avoid the diſcourſes of the people, and returned not till the time of the conception of Chriſt (and revealing of that) whoſe officer and harbinger onely, John was to be, And Elizabeth bleſſed God for this miraculous mercy of his, in giving her a child in her old age, and ſo taking away from her the reproach of barrenneſſe, which was ſo heavy and unſupportable among the Jewes, Iſai. 4. 1.

30. And while ſhe was thus muſing,

30. And] the Angel ſaid unto her, Fear not Mary, thou haſt found favour with God,

31. And though thou art a virgin, yet &c. (ſee Mat. 1. 21.)

31. And behold] thou ſhalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a ſon, and ſhalt call his name Jeſus.

32,33. He ſhall be an eminent perſon, being the ſon of God (ſee note on Mat. 1. i.) and the God of Iſrael ſhall ſettle upon him a ſpirituall kingdome, of which that temporall of David was but an imperfect repreſentation, the abſolute government of the Church, that ſpirituall houſe of Jacob, and that kingdome of his ſhall continue forever, ſhall never be deſtroyed, as the kingdome of the Jewes ſhall.

32. He ſhall be great, and ſhall be called the ſon of the Higheſt, and the Lord God ſhall give unto him the throne of his father David.

33. And he ſhall reigne over the houſe of Jacob forever, and of his kingdome there ſhall be no end.]

34. can I, being a virgin, conceive?

34. Then ſaid Mary unto the Angel, How [ſhall this be, ſeeing I know not a man?]

35. This ſhall be done by the Holy Ghoſt, and the power of the eternall God coming upon thee, for which cauſe the child which ſhall be born, ſhall be the ſon of God, and not of any man.

35. And the Angel anſwered and ſaid unto her, [The Holy Ghoſt ſhall come upon thee, and the power of the Higheſt ſhall overſhadow thee. Therefore alſo that Holy thing that ſhall be born of thee, ſhall be called the ſon of God.]

36. And for a token of this, know thou, that thy couſin Elizabeth hath alſo conceived in her old age, and this is the ſixt moneth with her who was called barren.

36. And behold, thy couſin Elizabeth ſhe hath alſo conceived a ſon in her old age, and this is the ſixt moneth with her who was called barren.

37. For nothing is impoſſible for God to perform, be it never ſo ſtrange, or difficult.

37. For with God nothing ſhall be impoſſible.]

38. And Mary expreſt her faith & her obedience, ready to be diſpoſed of by God, as he thinks fit, with all ſubmiſſion and humility of mind.

38. And Mary ſaid, Behold the handmaid of the Lord, be it unto me according to thy word.] And the Angel departed from her.

39. And

39. And Mary aroſe [1] in thoſe daies, and went into the hill-countrey with haſt, into a city of Judah.]

1. 34. And immediately (ſee v. 24.) Mary aroſe, and went as ſpeedily as ſhe could into the hill-countrey, to ſome city there (of which there were many, Joſh. 15. 48.) within the portion of Judah, to viſit Elizabeth her couſin.

40. And entred into the houſe of Zacharias, and ſaluted Elizabeth.

41. And it came to paſſe, that when Elizabeth heard the ſalutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb, and Elizabeth [was filled with the holy Ghoſt.]

41. was tranſported and inſpired by God with a prophetick Spirit, See note m.

42. And ſhe ſpake out with a loud voice, and ſaid, Bleſſed art thou among women, and bleſſed is the fruit of thy womb.]

42. And ſhe brake out into the ſame words that the Angel had uſed to Mary, v. 28. adding alſo an Eulogy or benediction to the child in her womb.

43. And whence] is this to me, that the mother of my Lord ſhould come to me?]

43. And what an honour

44. For lo, [aſſoon as the voice of thy ſalutation ſounded in mine eares, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.]

44. at the very minute wherin thou firſt ſpakeſt to me, I was ſo affected with joy, that the child did ſuddainly ſpring in my womb by reaſon of that joy which tranſported me.

45. And bleſſed is ſhe that beleived, for there ſhall be a performance of thoſe things which were told her from the Lord.]

45. Thy beleife v. 38. of that meſſage which the Angel delivered unto thee from God, v. 28. and 36. ſhall never be repented of by thee, for it ſhall certainly be performed in every particular exactly.

46. And Mary ſaid, My ſoul doth magnifie the Lord,
47. And my ſpirit hath rejoiced in God my ſaviour.

46, 47. Upon this Mary alſo brake out into a divine hymne of thankſgiving to God, ſaying, All the faculties of my ſoule, my affections, and my rationall faculty, have all reaſon to bleſſe and praiſe the name of God.

48. For he hath regarded the low eſtate of his hand-maiden, for behold, from henceforth all generations ſhall call me bleſſed.]

48. For he hath done an honour, (the greateſt that was ever done to any) to me the unworthieſt of all his ſervants, In which reſpect all poſterities ſhall look upon me, as the happieſt perſon, the moſt highly dignified by God of any.

49. For he that is mighty hath done to me great things, and holy is his name.]

49. For the omnipotent God of heaven hath honoured me above imagination, his name be bleſſed for it.

50. And his mercy is on them that fear him from generation to generation.]

50. And his mercy and gracious acceptance and abundant kindneſſe is to thoſe that ſerve and obey him humbly, from time to time to all eternity.

51. He hath ſhewed ſtrength with his arm, he hath ſcattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts,]

51. Whereas the proud and great deſigners of the world, are ſo farre from being favoured, that they are oppoſed and confounded by him.

52. He hath put down the mighty from their ſeates, and exalted them of low degree.]

52. Nothing is more ordinary with him then to debaſe the lofty Atheiſt, and to advance the humble perſon, though of never ſo low degree.

53. He hath filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he hath ſent empty away.]

53. The poor that calls to him is repleniſht by him, and the rich man that truſts in his wealth, is often brought to beggery.

54. He hath holpen his ſervant Iſrael, in remembrance of his mercy,
55. As he ſpake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his ſeed forever.]

54, 55. He hath now perform'd his promiſe to Abraham and to his ſeed, hath exhibited to them (the Jewes, and all the beleiving world) that great promiſed mercy, and ſo made a proviſion for them, which ſhall never fail, ſent the Meſſias, the Saviour of the world ſo long expected, a mercy, that ſhall never be taken away from us.

56. And Mary abode with her about three moneths, and returned to her own houſe.

57. Now Elizabeths full time came that ſhe ſhould be delivered, and ſhe brought forth a ſon.

58. And her neighbours and her couſins heard how [the Lord had ſhewn great mercy upon her,] and they rejoiced with her.

58. God had ſhewn a miracle of mercy to her, in giving her a child thus in her old age, and when ſhe had been barren ſo long.

59. And it came to paſſe that [on the eight day they came to circumciſe the child, and they called him Zacharias after the name of his father.]

59. on the eight day, whereon it was the cuſtome to circumciſe children, and to give them names, the kindred and neighbours met to that purpoſe, and they intended to call him by his fathers name, Zachary.

60. And his mother anſwered and ſaid, Not ſo, but he ſhall be called John.
61. And they ſaid unto her, There is none of thy kindred, that is called by this name.
62. And they made ſignes to his father, how he would have him called.
63. And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, ſaying, His name is John: and they marvailed all.

64. And his mouth was opened immediately, [and his tongue looſed,] and he ſpake and praiſed God.

64. and his tongue reſtored to him as before,

65. And great aſtoniſhment and reverence

65. And fear] came on all that dwelt round about them, and all theſe ſayings were noiſed abroad throughout all the hill countrey of Judæa.

66. Certainly this child will prove ſome notable perſon: And God in a ſpeciall manner was preſent to him, to aſſiſt and proſper him.

66. And all they that heard them, laid them up in their hearts, ſaying [What manner of child ſhall this be? and the hand of the Lord was with him.]

m. 67. And Zachary by eſpeciall motion of the Spirit of God coming on him, ſung this hymne,

67. And his father Zacharias was filled with the holy Ghoſt, and [m] propheſyed, ſaying,]

80. And John grew, and had the Spirit of God daily more and more ſhewing himſelfe in him, and dwelt in the hill countrey of Judea, where he was borne, till the time of his preaching, or ſetting to the execution of his office among the Jewes.

80. And the child grew and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, and was in the deſerts, till the day of his ſhewing unto Iſrael.]

Notes on Chap. 1.

2. [2] πληροφορῆσ] This word πληροφορῆσ] hath ſeverall notions in the new Teſtament: 1. It is no more then πληῶσ] to be fulfilled, performed, done. So 2 Tim. 4. 5. τλὼ διακονίαν σε πληροφόρησον fulfill or performe thy miniſtery. So ſaith Phavorinus πληροφόρησον, πλήρωσον, fulfill, adding ὡς ὁ Ἀπόστολος, τλὼ διακονίαν σε πληροφόρησον, as the Apoſtle ſaith, Fulfill, or performe thy miniſtery. So in * Nilus πληροφορεῖν ὅπλον Δυμίαν to fulfill deſire] is to doe what is deſired, ſo 2 Tim. 4. 17. ἵνα τὸ κήρυγμα πληροφορηθῇ, that the preaching may be fulfilled, i. e. gone through with, and that the Gentiles may hear, i. e. that it may be preached to the Gentiles alſo. And ſo 'tis in this place, πεφγμαῖα πεπληροφορημένα ἐν ἡμῖν, things which have been done, performed, acted, among us, of which the διήγησις or narration enſuing doth conſiſt. And this is perfectly agreeable to the notion of the Hebrew מלא (that in the old Teſtament is once rendred by it) which ſignifies to fulfill, and performe, as well as to fill. So the Hebrews have a proverbe איש ימלא את לבו let a man fulfill his heart, i. e. doe what he lifts, and in the Pſalmiſt [to fill, or fulfill all thy minde] is [to grant all thy petitions.] Secondly then it ſignifies to fill, and ſo πληροφορία is fulneſſe or plenty, Col. 2. 2. πᾶντος πλεγτοείας τῆς συνέσεως the riches of the fulneſſe of underſtanding, and becauſe the Hebrew מלא ſignifies metaphorical, as well as reall filling, infuſing, imbuing &c. πλεγτοφορεῖν and πληῶν do ſo too. And according to the matter or ſubject, to which it is applyed, the ſignification is yet farther varied. For ſo being applyed to the heart, the principle of action, it ſignifies [to incite to any action, to embolden to do any thing] and when there is any thing of difficulty in it, or of danger, then it is particularly to give courage, or confidence, to embolden. So Act.

* διάλογ. p. 27. & 51.

5. 3.

Πληρῶν καρδίαν

5.3. διατί ἐπλήρωσεν ὁ Σατανᾶς τὴν καρδίαν σου ψεύσασθαί σε; why hath Satan filled thy heart, that thou ſhouldſt lye, or deceive the Holy Ghoſt? i. e. why, or how did Satan incline or embolden thee to doe this villany? and ſo Eccleſ. 8. 11. ἐπλήρωται ἡ καρδία τῶν υἱῶν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, the heart of the ſonnes of men is filled to doe evill, i. e. men are by impunity incited and emboldned to doe ſo. So Heſt. 7. 5. who hath filled his heart to doe this? or, whoſe heart hath filled him to doe this? where the Greek reades diſtinctly τίς ἐστὶν οὗτος ὃς ἐτόλμησε; who is it that hath dared? to denote the danger that he incurred that had done it, and ſo the boldneſſe of the adventurer. And thus πληροφορῶ] comes ordinarily to ſignifie boldneſſe, confidence, πληροφορία ἐλπίδος Heb. 6. 11. confidence of hope, the ſame with ὑπόστασις elſewhere, πληροφορία πίστεως, confidence of faith, Heb. 10. 22. the effect of being waſht from an evill conſcience in the end of the verſe, and the inſtrument of the προσερχώμεθα, coming cheerfully to God, in the beginning. So πληροφορηθεὶς Rom. 4. 21. being confident that God was able, and ſo boldly depending on it. So 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. Our Goſpel hath been towards you (preached to you) not onely in word, but in power, and in the holy Ghoſt, καὶ ἐν πληροφορίᾳ πολλῇ, and in or with much confidence, for ſo the next words [as yee know what manner of men we were among you] are interpreted, c. 2. 2. we were confident in our Lord to ſpeak the Goſpell of God to you in much contention. And ſo Rom. 14. 5. ἕκαστος ἐν τῷ νοῒ πληροφορείσθω, Let every man have aſſurance (ſuch as on which his actions are to depend) in his own (not any other mans) underſtanding. The Kings MS. leaves out ἐν, and then the meaning is Let a man be moved to doe any thing by his own, not by another mans conſcience, for ſo the context enforceth, being in oppoſition to one mans judging another for doing what he thinkes he ought to doe, v. 4. according to that of 1 Cor. 10. 29. why is my liberty judged of another mans conſcience? Theſe are the places where the word is uſed in theſe books, which are therefore put together here in the firſt place.

b. ὑπηρέται τοῦ λόγου. ὁ λόγος

Two poſſible acceptions there are of the phraſe, [ὑπηρέται τοῦ λόγου] here, firſt ὁ λόγος the word may ſignifie, as it doth in ſome other places, the matter, the thing ſpoken of, for ſo it doth v. 4. περὶ ὧν κατηχήθης λόγων, the words, i. e. the things, wherein thou haſt been inſtructed. So ῥῆμα γεγονὸς, the word, i. e. thing done c. 2. 15. (ſee note on Mat. 2. h.) and in this notion ὑπηρέται λόγου] will be the Apoſtles, as thoſe that were Chriſt's inſtruments and officers, not only ſaw, but acted themſelves the things, the paſſages that are here related. And this is the plaineſt and cleareſt meaning of the phraſe. 2*ly*. It is the opinion of other learned men, and, among them of * Budæus, that ὁ λόγος ſignifies here as generally it doth throughout S. Johns Goſpel, the word, i. e. Chriſt incarnate. That the uſe of this phraſe or title of Chriſt ſhould not be appropriated to S. John only, may appear probable, becauſe this ſtyle ſeems to have been known among the Jews, before Chriſt's time, and is oft uſed by the Chaldee paraphraſt, מֵימְרָא דַיְיָ the word of the Lord. As when Gen. 3. 22. we read, The Lord ſaid, Behold the man, &c. the Targum hath it [And the word of the Lord God ſaid, Behold Adam whom I have created alone in my age, as I am alone in the higheſt heavens] ſee the learned Paul: Fagius on the Chaldee paraphraſe of that place. So Gen. 26. the word of the Lord created Adam. So Iſa. 1. 17. inſtead of my ſoul, the Targum hath מֵימְרִי my word hateth, and c. 45. 17. Iſrael is delivered or ſaved by the Lord, they read בְּמֵימְרָא דַיְיָ by the word of the Lord, ſo Jer. 1. 8. becauſe I am with thee, they read, becauſe my word is with thee, and ſo Pſal. 110. 1. The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, they again, The Lord ſaid לְמֵימְרֵהּ to his word. And to Abraham, Gen. 15. 1. I am thy ſhield, My word is thy ſhield. So is Chriſt called the word, in the Alcoran, and therefore the paraphraſt of it, Ben Achmet expounds [his word] by [the ſon of Mary.] And it ſeems this word in this ſenſe was gotten among the heathens very antiently, which cauſed Amelius, when he read the beginning of S. Johns Goſpel, to cry out, Per Jovem barbarus iſte cum noſtro Platone ſentit, verbum Dei in ordine principii eſſe, This barbarian is of our Plato's opinion, that the word of God is in the order of principles. Thus Julian the Apoſtate hath Ἰησοῦν, θεὸν, λόγον, Jeſus, God, word, Ep. 51. p. 210. Of the full importance and cauſe of this name ſee Sol. Glaſſius in ἑπτάλογ: Meſſia, p. 270.

* in Pandect. p. 31.

c. Θεόφιλος

'Tis not certain that Theophilus here was the proper name of a particular man, but perhaps a feigned title to ſingnifie every Chriſtian, every one that loved God, to whom he addreſſes his diſcourſe. Thus ſaith Epiphanius Hær. 51. p. 429. εἴτ' οὖν πρὸς Θεόφιλόν τινα γεγραφὼς εἶλεγεν, ἢ πρὸς ἕκαστον θεὸν ἀγαπῶντα, whether he wrote to one Theophilus, when he ſaid this, or whether to every man that loved God; leaving it uncertain which it was. Thus in Athanaſius l. de incarn. μακάριος, and φιλόχριστος are uſed promiſcuouſly for Chriſtians. And then κράτιστος will be no title of honour, nor any more then Optimus in Latine, a forme of civility only. κράτιστε

d. Ὥρα θυμιάματος.

At the time when the Prieſt offered incenſe within in the Sanctuary or Tabernacle, the people were left alone without, in the atrium Judæorum, the court of the Jewes, praying for the pardon of ſins, every man apart for himſelf till the Prieſt came backe again, and pronounced the benediction. This is it that ſeems to be referred to by the halfe houres ſilence in heaven, Rev. 8. 1. which ſeems there to be ſet in relation to that time of the Prieſt's being gone in to offer incenſe; This is ſet down punctually Eccluſ. 50. where v. 15. there is mention of the high prieſt Simon the Son of Onias offering τῷ ὀσμὴν εὐωδίας, the odour of ſweet ſmell, or of incenſe unto God. Then, ſaith he, the ſons of Aaron cryed out and ſounded with trumpets, v. 18. (as in that Rev. 8. 2. it followes, immediately, the ſeven trumpets were given to the Angels, &c) and then followes, πᾶς ὁ λαὸς κοινῇ κατέσπευσε, καὶ ἔπεσον ἐπὶ πρόσωπον ἐπὶ τῷ ἐδάφει v. 19. then all the people together made haſt, and fell on their face to the ground, and v. 21. ἐδεήθη ὁ λαὸς κυρίου ὑψίστου ἐν προσευχῇ κατέναντι ἐλεήμονος ἕως συντελεσθῇ κόσμος κυρίου καὶ τὴν λειτουργίαν αὐτῆς ἐτελείωσαν, The people beſought the Lord moſt high in prayer before the mercifull, untill the miniſtery of the Lord (the incenſe, noted by κόσμος there) were done, and they had accompliſhed his ſervice, all which is a diſtinct deſcription of this manner of the peoples praying without, whileſt the Prieſt offers within, as the two other parts, 1. of giving praiſes

to

to God, and 2. the Prieſts pronouncing the εὐλογία or benediction, are ſet down there alſo, one v.20. ᾠδὴ ἦσαν οἱ ψαλμῳδοὶ ἐν φωναῖς αὐτῶν, the ſingers ſang praiſes with their voices, &c. the other v.22. τότε ψαλβὰς ἐπῆρε χεῖρας αὐτῶ ὑπὲρ πᾶσ ἐκκλησίαν υἱῶν Ισραὴλ, δοῦναι εὐλογίαν κυρίῳ, or κυρίου, ἐν χειλέων αὐτῶ &c. Then deſcending he lift up his hands over all the congregation of the children of Iſrael, to give bleſſing to the Lord, or, the Lords bleſſing out of his lips, &c.

c. The difficulties of underſtanding this verſe, will be beſt avoided, and the obvious ſenſe of it moſt clearly ariſe, if it be firſt obſerved, that there be in the Hebrew language but few prepoſitions, in compariſon with the Greek. By which means it comes to paſſe, that as our Engliſh tranſlators doe oft miſtake, and diſturb the ſenſe of Scriptures by not obſerving this, (as for inſtance Job 2.4. where we render Skin for skin, it ſhould be, skin after skin, i.e. one thing, that is neareſt to us, after another, yea all that a man hath, will he give for his life) ſo in the writings of thoſe, that being Jewes by birth, write in Greek, i.e. in the Greek tranſlation of the Old Teſtament, and writings of the New, the Greek prepoſitions are uſed in the latitude that belongs to the Hebrew, and not according to the ſtrict propriety of the Greek idiome in Attick writers, but farre more looſly and promiſcuouſly. This hath been already obſerved on occaſion of [ἐπὶ] with a genitive caſe *Mat.*1.11. which cannot there ſignifie [under] but [before] and ſo in other places, See note on Mar. 2. b. And the ſame is often obſerved of [ἐν] that it ſignifies (beſide the vulgar notation of it,) ſometimes ἐντὸς [within] ſometimes εἰς [into and [for,] And this upon that known ground, becauſe the Hebrew ב is uſed in that latitude. This being thus præmiſed, it is next obſervable, that this expreſſion of the office of John Baptiſt, and the anſwerableneſſe of it to that of Elias, is here taken from *Malac.*4.6. There his preaching of repentance is expreſt by his turning the heart of the fathers with the children (for ſo ל is there to be rendred [with] not [to]) and the heart of the children with the fathers, that is, converting fathers and children together, working upon them (or, according to his office, endevouring, by preaching in the wilderneſſe, to work upon them) and perſwading them to repent, and amend their lives, Mat. 3.2. This place of Malachi is both by Matthew c. 17. 11. and by Mark 9.12. repeated out of the Septuagint (which hath ἀποκαταστήσει καρδίαν &c.) ἀποκαταστήσει, and ἀποκαταστήσῃ καρδίας πατὴρ πρὸς υἱὸν, he ſhall, or he doth * reſtore, or return all, i.e. all men, (the neutrall [πάντα, all] being oft taken for the maſculine, ſee *Mat.*18.11.& 18.) Where there is nothing ſet in ſtead of [the heart of the fathers with the children, &c. but only πάντα all, noting that, and no more, to be the meaning of the phraſe in Malachi, [he ſhall convert the heart of the fathers with the children, and of the children with the fathers, (of old and young, young and old) i e. he ſhall preach repentance to the whole Jewiſh nation, noted by [the land] in the end of that verſe of Malachi, which God there threatens to come and deſtroy with a curſe, i. e. finally and univerſally, if this preaching of the Baptiſt, and of Chriſt, and of the Apoſtles doe not bring them to repentance. Now what is by thoſe two Evangeliſts ſo briefly expreſt by [he ſhall reſtore, or return all] is here more largely repeated out of the words of Malachi, ἐπιστρέψαι καρδίας πατέρων ἐπὶ τέκνα, to convert the hearts of the fathers, &c. Whence 'tis apparent, that the præpoſition [ἐπὶ] muſt here be taken in that notion of ל, which belongs to that place of Malachi, and ſo is to be rendred not [to] but [with the children] to this clear ſenſe, John Baptiſt ſhall go before Chriſt, as his herald to prepare his way in (or admiſſion to) mens hearts, by preaching repentance, or return, or new life, the interpretation of the Hebrew השיב converſion which is uſed in Malachi. This firſt part of the period being thus explain'd, the ſecond, which is not taken from Malachi, but is a kind of gloſſe, or paraphraſe to explain that obſcurer prophetick expreſſion, will more eaſily be interpreted, if firſt we obſerve the ſignification of the word [φρονεῖν] in the New Teſtament, which generally notes to mind, to deſire, to like, to look after with an appetite, from the nowne φρένες, which is uſed for affections, appetite, 1 *Cor.*14.20. παιδία δὲ φρεσὶν, children in appetites, or deſignes, or inclinations, as they are, that ſet their minds on that that profits leaſt, and τέλειοι φρεσὶν, thoſe that have more perfect, mature, manly appetites, ſo [τὰ ἄνω φρονεῖν] to mind, deſire, look after the things above, *Col.*3.2. ὑπερεκ φρονεῖν, *Phil.*3.19. τὰ τῆς σαρκὸς φρονεῖν, *Rom.*8.5. to mind earthly, carnal things, and ſo agreeably φρόνημα σαρκὸς, Rom. 8.6,7. and φρόνημα πνεύματος v. 27. the minding of the fleſh, and of the ſpirit, i.e. thoſe appetites, which the fleſh on one ſide, and the ſpirit on the other doe incline men to. And if in this ſenſe the word φρόνησις be here taken, 'tis then the minding of juſt things, and being applied to that which went before [turning the hearts of the fathers unto the children] it will perfectly agree with it, He ſhall bring men to repentance, and the moſt diſobedient (viz: Publicans &c. *Lu.*3.12.) to the minding of juſtice, and righteouſneſs, *Lu.*3.13. that is, of all good things. But tis ſtill poſſible that [φρόνησις] be here taken for that practicall vertue of prudence, (as tis at large defined by the moraliſts) the practical knowledge of thoſe things, which are truly eligible, the knowledge that will bring men to the true juſtice, the judging of what is, or is not to be done, according to the rules of juſtice; and tis poſſible again, that the word [δικαίων] of the juſt, ſhould be the maſculine gender, and ſo the phraſe be rendred, the prudence or practical wiſdome of juſt men; and then alſo twill be anſwerable to the text in Malachi, thus; that he ſhall convert the Jewes, even the moſt vicious of them to that practice of all morall rules, which denominates men juſt, i.e. that this ſhould be the deſign of John's preaching, to make them ſuch, to work ſuch a generall reformation among the Jewes. As for the præpoſition [ἐν] that (as was ſaid) is ordinarily uſed for [εἰς, or ἐπὶ, to,] or otherwiſe twill be hard to find out any ſenſe of theſe words.

The Hebrew חֵרֵשׁ as the Greek κωφὸς ſignifies both a dumb man and a deaf, and is wont to be rendred either by ἀπρόσωπον, or by ἀπήκοον Mich. 7.16. i.e. growing or becoming deaf, for there the context referres it to the eares. In this place one of the ſignifications of the Hebrew ſeems to be put for the other, σιωπῶν ſilent or dumb, (if we beleive Theophylact and the ancients) for ſurdus deaf, and ſo so that wch is added, [καὶ κωφὸς ἦν] and not able to speak will be no pleonasme, but signifie him dumb also. For that he was not only dumb, but deaf, appears by his friends, who doe not speak but nod and make signes to him, v.62. and it is not probable that of the two things that befell him, one should be twice, and the other not once foretold by the Angel.

g. Ὀπτασία — By ὀπτασία vision] is here meant the ἐπιφάνεια or appearance of God by an Angel to the Priest, revealing his will unto him, and these were wont to be at the time of offering of incense, see Jos: Ant: l.13. c.18. where when Hyrcanus was offering incense, God gave him the Oracle; From hence it was that the people seeing Zachary stay so much longer then ordinary within, and come out speechlesse and astonished, concluded that he had seen a vision, that an Angel had appeared unto him.

h. Λειτουργεῖν — The word λειτουργεῖν] which is here first met with, may deserve to be lookt into. The origination of it among * Grammarians from λεία and λεῖα spoyles, seems remote and aliene, Another way may be better collected from Hesychius by changing the punctation of a few words in him thus, Λειτουργεῖν (λεῖτον γὰρ δημόσιον,) λειτουργεῖν. Λειτουργεῖν signifies publick service, officiating, and λειτουργεῖν is all one with that, for λεῖτον (from λαὸς populus) signifies publick or belonging to the people. Thus is the king call'd λειτουργὸς Θεοῦ, the officer of God for publick administrations, Rom. 13.6. Hence then is the prime importance of the word for any publick service. Of which sort because among both Jewes and heathens, the priestly office, the sacrifices &c. of the Temple, were the chief, the word comes to signifie any sacred office. Of this we have these footsteps in the Grammarians, Λεῖτορες, ἱερεῖς, and λειτίζειν ἱερατικῶς in Hesychius and Phavorinus, and again λειτουργικὸς, ἱερατικὸς. Thus the word is used in this place by S. Luke for the executing the priests office, and so *Phil.*2.17. θυσία and λειτουργία are joyned, sacrifice and sacred office or service, and *Heb.*8.6. διαφορωτέρας τετύχηκε λειτουργίας, he hath obtained a more excellent ministery, i.e. priestly service, in opposition to the priests office on earth, ver.4. so *Heb.*9.21. σκεύη τῆς λειτουργίας, the utensils of the priest, And *Heb.*10.11. ἕστηκε καθ' ἡμέραν λειτουργῶν, he was daily attending, or waiting on the priests office: From hence it is brought down to the service of the Christian Church, any Christian office, as *Act.*13.2. λειτουργούντων αὐτῶν τῷ Κυρίῳ, while they ministred to the Lord, i.e. were about the daily offices, praying, and fasting, &c. and so *Rom.*15.16. εἰς τὸ εἶναί με λειτουργὸν Ἰησοῦ, that I might be a minister of Jesus, employed in sacred offices. This word, though it thus come from λεῖτος publick, doth not yet so belong to publick employments, but that it signifies * domestick also (and simply serving, λειτουργῶ, διακονῶ, saith Phavorinus, and λειτουρσῶν, μαχαιρῶν δοῦλον in Hesychius) especially that office of the steward, which is most publick of any in the family, having the administration of the whole domestick affaire belonging to it. Hence λειτουργεῖν τὸ οἶκον] in Pollux to perform the stewards office over the house. Now because, as Christ saith, it is the stewards office, to give every man his portion of food in his season, and because the diet in an house or family belongs to all, is every man's portion, only so, that the steward assignes it divers'ly to every one, as he thinks fit to dispense it; (and thence in the Grammarians λειτοδοχεῖα are διαδοχοὶ τῶν ἱερέων, they that are set over the diet,) therefore in the Scripture style, λειτουργία] is oft used for the businesse of the collecta or offertory, for the dispensing of the oblations, and out of them relieving the poor Christians, Thus 2 *Cor.*9.12. ἡ διακονία τῆς λειτουργίας ταύτης the administration of this liberality, which was to supply the wants of the Saints, as it followes there, and all one with ἁπλότης κοινωνίας liberality of communicating, v.13. And so *Phil.*2.30. τὸ ὑμῶν μὲ λειτουργίας] was the relieving the Apostle, and so λειτουργὸς τῆς χρείας μου, v.25. the reliever of my want. So Rom. 15.27. ἐν τοῖς σαρκικοῖς λειτουργῆσαι αὐτοῖς, ministring to them in carnall things, is interpreted by κοινωνία εἰς τοὺς πτωχοὺς τῶν ἁγίων, v.26. liberality to the poor saints, and so perhaps, when the Angels are call'd λειτουργοὶ αὐτοῦ, *Heb.*1.7. his ministers, and λειτουργικὰ πνεύματα, v.14. ministring spirits, it may bear the sense of serving, so as to feed, and relieve, and provide for us. But because the office of the steward is to govern the family, as well as thus to give meat in due season, therefore agreeably to this, as the word is sometimes used by Christian writers peculiarly for the Lords supper, in reference to the feast, provided there in the ἀγάπαις antiently, and still in the offertory, for the use of the poor (in the same manner as 'tis call'd κοινωνία, and κλάσις ἄρτου breaking of bread,) so also sometimes it is used to signifie the whole service of the Church, or exercise of the priest's office, and sometimes peculiarly the government of the Church, as in Eusebius generally, when one Bishop dies, another, saith he, ἐγχειρίζει τὴν λειτουργίαν, undertakes the office, or administration, or government of it, as of Pius the Bishop of Rome l.4. c.11. and λειτουργίαν παραλαμβάνει, in the same Chap: of Celadion Bishop of Alexandria.

* Ἁπλῶς γὰρ ἱερεῖα, καθαγιστικὸς δὲ δοῦλος.

* Jul: Pollux and Phavorinus.

For the finding out the full importance of this word [κεχαριτωμένη] in this place, twill be needfull first to examine the severall notions of χάρις the nowne, from whence the verb χαριτόω comes. One eminent notion of it for the Gospel of Christ is explain'd (as it signifies the matter of the Gospel) note on *Heb.*13.c. and (as it signifies the preaching, or promulgating of it) note on *Act.*18.d. Another notion, as it signifies charity, liberality, is explained note on *Act.*2.e. and very neer to that, for δωρεὰ a gift, note on 1 *Pet.*3.d. Beside these it signifies also a reward, either that of good words, of thanks, as we call it, or else farther, of some real return, ἀμοιβὴ καὶ ἀνταπόδοσιν, saith Hesychius, a retribution for a good turn, and so tis oft used, *Lu.*17.9. Μὴ χάριν ἔχει; will he thank, or reward that servant? so *Lu.*6.32, 33, 34. ποία ὑμῖν χάρις ἐστί; what thanks, or reward is due to you? for which there is μισθὸς reward, v.35. So 1 *Pet.*2.19. τοῦτο γὰρ χάρις, this shall be, or shall yeild a reward, all one with κλέος honour, the reward of an heroick action, v.20. Fourthly it signifies favour, or mercy, in this chapter, to Mary, εὗρες χάριν, thou hast found favour with God, ver. 30. and in some other places, and in effect in all those, where it signifies the Gospel in opposition to the Law, that being so styled, because there is so much of Gods favour, and undeserved mercy discernible in it, contrary to boasting,

i. κεχαριτωμένη — χάρις

ing, or debt. Laſtly, it is taken for virtue, goodneſs in the latitude, without reſtraint to any particular kind of it, and that both of the body (beauty) and of the minde, from whence is that gloſs of Heſychius χαείσα· καλὴ ἀγαθὴ, ἀσῖον, ὠραῖον, the word gracious ſignifies either good or handſome; for that univerſal goodneſs of the mind it ſeems to be taken 2 Pet. 3. 18. grow in grace, i.e. all kinde of goodneſſe, and in the knowledge (i.e. practical knowledge) of our Lord, &c. and ſo in divers other places mentioned note on Epheſ. 5. c. Now from which of all theſe notions the word κεχαριτωμένη is to be taken, or (becauſe there are but two, that can be competitors for it) whether as it ſignifies favour, or goodneſs, is ſomewhat uncertain, If it be taken from χάρις favour, mercy, as it ſeems to be Epheſ. 1. 6. then it will agree with the εὗρες χάριν, thou haſt found favour with God, v. 30. But ſome arguments there are to preferre the other notion, 1. that Heſychius renders χαρίεντα, good, or gracious, by καλὰ, κεχαριτωμένα, diſtinctly pitching on that notion of it, and perhaps where we read κεχαρισμένος, ἀσεισος, φιλοφρόνησις, μετὰ χαρῆς (I ſuppoſe χάρεσης) πάντα πιῶν, an excellent, lovely perſon, that doth all things with a grace, it may be a falſe print for κεχαριτωμένος, (as that book is very full of ſuch faults) 2^dly. this word is uſed once in the Son of Syrach, c. 18. 17. and by us rendred rightly a gracious man. 3^dly. the word here is not onely by the vulgar Latine rendred gratiâ plena, full of grace or goodneſs, but in like manner by the Syriack alſo, And in this notion of χάρις we have γυνὴ ἐυχάρισος, a gracious woman, Prov. 11. 16. (as perhaps on the contrary ἀχάρισος ungracious 2 Tim. 3. 2.) מלית טיבותא full of grace or goodneſs; which phraſe in Syriacke and Chaldee ſignifies no more, then very good or gracious, ſo Act. 9. 33. πλήρης ἀγαθῶν ἔργων, ſignifies a very good woman, diligent, laborious, (that wrought many good things v. 39. in a peculiar notion of the phraſe good works, for diligent in the calling, ſee note on Tit. 3. a) as among the Hebrews מלאה חן full of beauty ſignifies very handſome. So μετὰ ἀγαθωσύνης Ro. 15. 14. full of goodneſſe is very good, and in * Philo, μετὸς φρονήμα & ἀνὴρ (as, πλήρης σοφίας Act. 6. 3.) a man full of wiſdome, i. e. a very wiſe man, and πλήρης πίστως Act. 6. 5. an eminent beleiver. And if the the word be thus rendred 'tis then a fit forme of a ſalutation, ſuch as κράτιστε θεόφιλε ô moſt excellent Theophilus, v. 3.

This ſpeech of the Angels is by him delivered in form of a ſalutation (ſee v. 29.) χαῖρε Hail &c. and ſo theſe words, that immediately follow, being part of the ἀσπασμὸς, ſalutation, ſeem moſt fitly rendred by way of prayer or benediction, The Lord be with thee, Bleſſed art thou, &c. Thus κύριος μεθ' ὑμῶν, is generally uſed, the Lord be with you, and χάρις μεθ' ὑμῶν, grace be with you, and the like, formes of Chriſtian ſalutation.

l. ἐν ταύταις ταῖς ἡμέραις

The phraſe ἐν ταύταις ταῖς ἡμέραις. in theſe days hath for the moſt part a peculiar ſignification, differing from [ἐν ἡμέραις ἐκείναις in thoſe days] The latter ſignifies an indefinite time, ſometimes a good way off, but the former generally denotes a certain time then preſent, inſtantly, then, at that time; ſo here that which is ſaid of Maries going to Elizabeth, was ſure immediately after the departing of the Angel from her, and therefore 'tis ſaid, ſhe roſe up μετὰ σπουδῆς, very haſtily. So v. 24. μετὰ ταύτας τὰς ἡμέρας, i. e. immediately, Elizabeth conceived, ſo c. 6. 12. ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταύταις, i. e. then, at that point of time, he went out to the mountain, See c. 23. 7. c. 24. 18. Acts 1. 5. c. 11. 27. & 21. 15.

m. Προφητεῦσαι

To prophecy] is a large word, and beſides the foretelling of future events, which is the ordinary notion of it, it ſignifies 2^dly. to worke Miracles, as when 'tis ſaid of Eliſha's body, that being dead it prophecyed, Eccleſ. 48. 14. referring to the miracle that it wrought, in raiſing the dead body, that was put into Eliſha's grave, 2 King. 13. 21. 3^dly. to declare the will of God to any, by revelation, or miſſion from him; In which ſenſe as Chriſts prophetick office conſiſted in revealing the will of God to the world, ſo all that have in any degree done the like are ſtyled Prophets, All that have taught men their duties towards God, and Men; Thus among the heathens, the Divines, which told men what they ought to do, their Prieſts, or religious perſons were call'd Vates, Prophets, And even their Poets which ordinarily reprehended their vices, are by S. Paul called ἴδιοι προφῆται their own Prophets, Tit. 1. 12. For although of that Epimenides it be true, that he is ordinarily by the heathens called θεῖος ἀνὴρ and προφήτης a divine man, and a Prophet, and that his book is called χρησμοὶ Oracles, or Prophecies, yet is this rather a confirmation of this uſe of the word Prophet, for thoſe which teach men their duty, for of this Epimenides ſaith Diodorus Siculus lib. 5. that he was θεολόγος a divine, and Plutarch in Solon: that he was θεοφιλὴς καὶ σοφὸς περὶ τὰ θεῖα, to the ſame purpoſe, and Ariſtotle Rhet. l. 3. c. 17. ſaith expreſly, ὁ περὶ τῶν ἐσομένων μαντεύεται, he prophecyed not of things to come. And thus Glaucus (among the ancient Mythicall writers) that directed men the way in their navigation, ὡς δεῖ πλεῖν τὸν πλοῦν how they were to order their voyage, was by them called θαλάσσιος μάντις, the ſea-prophet. Thus when Exod. 7. 1. God ſaid to Moſes, I have made thee a God to Pharaoh, and Aaron thy brother ſhall be thy Prophet, The meaning is, that what God had or ſhould command Moſes, Moſes ſhould (as God to a Prophet, the Oracle to the προφήτης) deliver to Aaron, concerning Pharaoh, and Aaron ſhould go, as a Prophet ſent from God and deliver it to Pharaoh, he ſhall be thy ſpoakes man he ſhall be to thee in ſtead of a mouth, Ex. 4. 16. 4^thly. it ſignifieth to expound, or interpret Scripture, as 1 Cor. 14. 1. Deſire ſpirituall gifts, but ſpecially that yee may prophecy, and v. 3. he that prophecyeth, ſpeaketh to edification, &c. So v. 4, 5, 6. 22. 24. 29. 31, 32. 5^thly. 'tis ſometimes ſet to ſignifie wild, raving, mad behaviour, or ſpeaking, ſuch as the ἔνθεοι or enthuſiaſts among the heathen, men poſſeſt with diabolical furies, were wont to uſe, ſo when the evill ſpirit came upon Saul, he prophecyed in the midſt of the houſe, 1 Sam. 18. 10. and in the ſame rage, or fury caſt the Javelin at David v. 11. The reaſon of this is clear v. 12. becauſe Prophets did ordinarily both ſpeak, and act in a manner farre diſtant and remote from the ordinary practice of other men, uſed ſtrange language, ſtrange motions and agitations of the body, and accordingly were by many that looked on them thought to be mad. So the Prophet ſent by Eliſha to anoint Jehu, is called this mad fellow low 2 King. 9. 11. Sixtly, it ſignifies ſinging and praiſing God, forming of divine hymnes, and ſinging them to God. So 1 Sam. 10. 5. Thou ſhalt meet a company, a college or covent of Prophets coming down from the high place with a Pſaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harpe before them, and they ſhall prophecy, (where the Chaldee paraphraſe readeſ. ſhall ſing) and the ſpirit ſhall come on thee, and thou ſhalt prophecy, where the Chaldee hath, and thou ſhalt praiſe with them. So 1 Chron. 25. 1. David ſeparates the ſonnes of Aſaph, Heman, and Jedithun, who ſhould prophecie with Harpes and Pſalteries and cymbals. And ſo 'tis poſſible it may be Numb. 11. 25. where 'tis ſaid of the ſeventy, that they prophecyed and did not ceaſe; for as 1 Sam. 10. 6. Sauls prophecying was to be an effect of the Spirit of God coming upon him, and was a ſigne of his being ſet apart by God for the Kingly office, and furniſht with abilities for it, which is called [turning him into another man,] ſo Num 11. 15. God takes off the ſpirit that was upon Moſes, i.e. the Spirit of government, wherewith he was indued, and gave it unto the Seventy, and when the Spirit reſted upon him, they prophecyed--where as the other circumſtances agree, the giving them the Spirit, and fitting them for their office by that means, ſo the evidence of it, their prophecying may agree alſo, though wherein their prophecying, conſiſted, is no where defined in Scripture. This onely is unqueſtioned, that it was ſome extraordinary act, a teſtimony that the Spirit of God in ſome extraordinary manner reſted upon them, and as ſuch, was diſcernible to all (in like manner as was Sauls ſtripping off his clothes, and lying down naked, 1 Sam. 19. 24.) and ſo fit to authorize them in the eyes of others, as by a miracle, and to declare to all that they were aſſumed to this office. And to this notion of prophecying muſt this place be interpreted, Zacharias was filled with the holy Ghoſt, and prophecyed, was ſtirred up in an extraordinary manner by the Spirit of God, to compoſe this divine hymne following, the Benedictus, ſaying, Bleſſed &c. And ſo, 1 Cor. 11. 5. Every woman praying or prophecying, Where ſpeaking of the Church, wherein the woman is not permitted to ſpeake c. 14. 34. 'tis apparent that prophecying cannot be taken for interpreting of Scripture, and ſo it remains that it ſignifie this of ſinging hymnes in the Church, which is fitly joyned with praying. What is here ſaid of his being filled with the holy Ghoſt, (as before of Elizabeth alſo, v. 51.) is no more then being indued with the Spirit of God (ſee note i.) incited by ſomewhat higher then his own ſpirit, the Spirit of God enabling him to make this hymne. So when the Spirit deſcended with the gift of tongues, they were filled with the holy Ghoſt, Acts 2. 4.

n κέρας σωτηρίας. The word [Horne] hath divers notions in the Scripture, firſt it ſignifies power, or ſtrength, becauſe the hornes being the weapons of beaſts, their ſtrength or ability of hurting others is ſaid properly to conſiſt in them. So Lam. 2. 3. 17. he hath cut off all the horne of Iſrael, and ſet up the horne of thine adverſaries. ſo Jer. 48. 25. the horne of Moab is cut off, and his arme is broken, the horne being the beaſts beſt inſtrument of defence, as the arme is the mans, ſo Mic. 4. 13. I will make thy horne Iron, and thou ſhalt beat in peices many people, i. e. I will give thee great power, ſo Ezech. 29. 21. I will cauſe the horne of the houſe of Iſrael to bud forth, they ſhall have ſome conſiderable ſtrength again. So the hornes of the wicked and the righteous, Pſal. 75. 10. are their power. 2*dly*. it ſignifies honour, glory, triumph, as when the horne is ſaid to be lifted up, or exalted, Pſal. 75. 4. 89. 24. 112. 9. Thirdly, from the union of both theſe, it ſignifies Regal power, the honour, and power of a King, ſo Zach. 1. 18. Dan. 7. 7. 8. and Rev. 13. 1. the four, and the ſeven, and the ten hornes are confeſſedly ſo many Kings. And this ſeems to be the importance of the word in this place, where the houſe of David being the regal family, and the word Saviour denoting him that is the ruler, or leader, or Prince of the people, (thou haſt given us Saviours, i. e. Rulers, Judges, and Saviours ſhall come up, Obad. 21. the kingdome ſhall be the Lords) the horne of ſalvation in the houſe of David will denote the kingdome of Chriſt, that ſpirituall one which is not of this world, or rather Chriſt (in concreto) under the notion of a King. Thus Pſal. 18. 2. among the titles given to God (upon his delivering David from the hands of his enemies, as here for the redeeming us from the hands of all that hate us, v. 71.) this is one, the horne of my ſalvation, i. e. my King, and Saviour; and this is agreeable alſo to that other part of the period, ἤγειρε ἡμῖν, he hath raiſed up, to, or for us, that of raiſing up belonging to perſons advanced by God, to any office of King, or Prophet, (ſee note on Acts 14. f.) particularly of Chriſt to his Kingdome, Acts 2. 30. God had ſworn that he would from the fruit of Davids loynes according to the fleſh raiſe up the Chriſt to ſit on his throne, which is diſtinctly parallel to this.

o. עולם ſignifies an age, and in the New Teſtament moſt commonly is uſed in a generall ſenſe, not for the age of a man, nor again for an hundred years, but for an age of the world, or ſome eminent part in the diviſion of that. Now the world is divided two ways, either into the age before the Meſſias, and the age of the Meſſias, or into the age of this world, and of the world to come after the day of doom. Accordingly the word עולם is uſed ſometimes for the firſt part of the firſt diviſion, for the firſt ſtate, beginning at the beginning of the world, and reaching to the end of the Jewiſh common wealth. Thus is the phraſe מן העולם ἀ ſæculo ordinarily uſed, and accordingly ἀπ' αἰῶνος here, to note that generall age from the beginning of the world, of which the Jewiſh ſtate was an eminent part, under which prophecies had been allowed by God to this people. And it being reſolved by the Jewes that there was to be another age (beſide that firſt) which they call the age of the Meſſias (ſee note on Mat. 24. c.) or the age to come, they are wont to uſe the phraſe לעולם ועד עולם (or ſometimes for brevity ſake לעולם ועד which the Septuagint render εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα καὶ ἔτι, and ſometimes εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα καὶ ἐπέκεινα to age, and yet farther, or to age and afterward,) in ſeculum & ſeculum, to age, and to age, meaning thereby both theſe ages, the then preſent, and that other then to come, the age of the Meſſias. Thus have we interpreted the word αἰὼν age Mat. 24. 3. in a diverſe ſenſe from that which belongs to it Mat. 28. 20. In the former to ſignifie the Jewiſh ſtate, in the latter latter the ſtate of the world under the Meſſias. And in that notion I ſuppoſe it is, that the Goſpel of Chriſt is called εὐαγγέλιον αἰώνιον, Rev. 14. 6. the Goſpel of that age of the Meſſias, the Chriſtian faith, which was to endure till the end of the world, Mat. 12. 32. note l. Sometimes again the word αἰὼν ſignifies the firſt member of the ſecond diviſion, this world, from the creation till the day of doom, as Lu. 20. 34. οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου the children of this age, the men of this world (oppoſed to καταξιωθέντες τοῦ αἰῶνος ἐκείνου τυχεῖν thoſe that are vouchſafed participation of that other,) doe marry &c. and ſo in many other places. And ſo likewiſe for the ſecond part of the ſecond diviſion, the ſtate after this life, that of another world, ordinarily call'd αἰὼν ἐρχόμενος, and αἰὼν ἐκεῖνος the world to come, and that world or age, it is oft call'd αἰὼν ſimply alſo, as Joh 6. 51. 58. he ſhall live εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, which we render forever, or to that age to come, which is eternall. And from this notion of the word αἰὼν] it is peculiarly, that the word αἰώνιος commonly ſignifies eternall, including both this world and that other, though in relation to that former notion of αἰὼν for this world, it may ſeem to be, that the fire that deſtroyed Sodome is called πῦρ αἰώνιον τοῦ Jude 7. an utterly-deſtroying fire. This eternall future ſtate was, it ſeems, denied by the Sadducees, and thereupon it is the obſervation of the Jewes, that in Ezra's time it was appointed, that at the end of benedictions in the temple, the phraſe לעולם in ſæculum] ſhould be changed into מן העולם ועד העולם from age to age, i.e. from this age to the next. So we find it in c. 9. of Cod: Berachoth, &c. כל חותמי ברכות In all the concluſions of benedictions they were wont to ſay מן העולם from age; But when the Sadducees perverted this form of ſpeech, and ſaid that there was but one age, they appointed that the form ſhould be from age and to age. And though perhaps this latter form be before Ezra's time to be met with in the Hebrew writings, yet, it ſeems, twas not in their formes of benedictions, in the publick ſervice, and there it was probably inſerted on that occaſion. And an abbreviate of that form it is which the Chriſtians have delivered to them by Chriſt, Mat. 6. 13. thine is the kingdome, the power and the glory εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας to both ages, the preſent and the future, which we according to ſenſe, render forever and ever, i.e. for this world (which is one forever,) and for the next (which is another forever.) This is more largely ſet by the Apoſtle, Gal. 1. 4. εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων, to the ages of ages, but yet more amply in the antient Church, which added that ſecond verſicle to the doxologie [As it was in the beginning (i. e. מן העולם from the age, from the beginning of the world, as ἀπ' αἰῶνος here ſignifies) is now and ever ſhall be, world without end] i.e. now, in this world, and לעולם, to that world, which ſhall never end.

p. The word δοῦναι with an infinitive mood after it (as here δοῦναι λαβεῖν) is, according to the ſenſe of it, to be rendred, as if the word power, or ſomething elſe like it, were to be underſtood; So often in the Revelation, as c. 2. 7. and 17. δώσω φαγεῖν, I will give to eat, or drink, i. e. power to doe ſo, c. 3. 21. δώσω καθίσαι, I will give the priviledge or favour to ſit. So the paſſive ἐδόθη in like manner c. 6. 4. ἐδόθη λαβεῖν c. 13. 7. ἐδόθη ποιῆσαι, and v. 15. ἐδόθη δοῦναι, it was given to receive, to doe, to give, & ſo c. 16. 8. & 19. 8. where the word ἐξουσία power, or the like, is clearly underſtood, which in many other places is expreſt, c. 9. 3. c. 6. 8. c. 15. 5. 7. &c. and ſo the former part of the 74 ver. being read, as it were, in a parentheſis, the ſenſe will be perſpicuous, The oath which he ſware to Abraham our father, that he would give us power to ſerve him in holineſſe, &c. And ſo, beſide the explication of that oath made to Abraham (which hath from this paſſage been explain'd in * another place) here will be obſervable alſo the alluſion of this whole paſſage to the names of the Baptiſt, and his parents. For the meaning of Zachary is the remembrance of God, and to that referres his μνησθῆναι διαθήκης God's remembring his covenant, v. 72. Elizabeth ſignifies the oath of God, and to that referres ὅρκον ὃν ὤμοσεν, the oath which he ſware. And John ſignifies the free gift or grace of God, and to that referres the δοῦναι, the giving deliverance and grace to ſerve him in ſincere holineſſe &c. the grace of Juſtification, Sanctification, and Perſeverance.

* Prælt: Cant. l. 1. ſect. 1.

Μνησθῆναι διαθήκης.

Ὅρκον ὃν ὤμοσεν

That the word [ἀφόβως without fear] referres q. to our enemies, in whoſe power before we were, appears by the diſtinct mention of them in the next words, and therefore it cannot with any ſenſe be applied to the excluding that fear of our danger, which is founded onely in our ſelves, our own negligences, or miſcarriages. And that it is to be joyned with ῥυσθέντας being delivered,] and not with λατρεύειν ſerving] is not only apparent by many antient Copies, which ſo joyn it, without any comma betwixt ἀφόβως and ἐκ, and by Irenæus l. 3. c. 11. reading it, Nobis ſine timore ereptis, ſervire in ſanctitate, us being delivered without fear, to ſerve him in holineſſe, but alſo by the nature of the word [ἀφόβως without fear] in the tranſlatours of the Old Teſtament, in that only place, where 'tis uſed, Prov. 1. 33. ἀναπαύσεται ἀφόβως ἀπὸ παντὸς κακοῦ, he ſhall reſt without fear from all evil, which is an explication of the dwelling ſafely, that immediately preceded. And this according to the notion of φόβος fear among the ſacred writers, not for the paſſion it ſelf, but for the object of it, as 1 Pet. 3. 14. τὸν φόβον αὐτῶν μὴ φοβηθῆτε, fear not their fear, where the word φόβος ſignifies whatſoever formidable object, which the οἱ κακοποιοῦντες v. 13. malitious perſons can bring upon them. So alſo in humane writers, in * Lucian, τίς ὕλης τοῦ φόβου; where as ὕλης is fear, ſo [φόβου] is [of danger.] And ſo in Alex: Aphrodiſ: φόβος ἀπειλοῦντος ἀπὸ τυράννου, the terror or terrible things threatned by the tyrant, So Iſa. 8. 12. whence that place of S. Peter is taken, where the Greek hath φόβος αὐτῶν, his fear, or terror, the Hebrew hath מוראו, which notes the formidable object, not יראה which ſignifies the paſſion, and preſently it follows Κύριον τὸν θεὸν σου φοβηθήσῃ, the Lord ſhall be thy fear, i.e. the object of it, and ſo he is called the fear of Iſaac. Thus is πρόνοια] alſo the thing that is feared, Prov. 3. 25. as appears by the ὁρμαὶ ἀσεβῶν, the incitations of wicked men, that follow to explain πρόνοια. So perhaps ἐυλάβεια Heb. 5. 7. may ſignifie the thing againſt which he prayed, and from which he was delivered. And thus ἀφόβως will be directly all one with ἀκινδύνως without danger, as Wiſd. 17. 4. ἀφόβως διαφυλάσσειν, to preſerve ſafe, and ſo 1 Cor. 16. 10.

1 Tim. 1. 10. where the Apoſtle ſpeaking of Timothy, bids them ſee, ἵνα ἀφόβως γένηται πρὸς ὑμᾶς that he may be ſafely with them, or εἰρηνικῶς v. 11. peaceably. The ſame thing is expreſt by the tranſlatours of the Old Teſtament, by ἐν ἐλπίδι Pſal. 4. 8. Ἐλπὶς Prov. 1. 33. not as ἐλπὶς notes hope, or expectation of future good, but as 'tis oppoſite to our preſent notion of φόβος, and imports ſafety. And this obſervation might be extended to many other words in the Scripture, which ſeem to denote actions, affections, or faculties, but are uſed for the objects of them, as θέλημα Θεοῦ, the will of God, 1 Theſſ. 4. 3. the things which God wills, ἐλπὶς hope, Πίστις Rom. 8. 24. the thing hoped for, πίστις faith, Rom. 4. 14. and in many other places, where it ſignifies the doctrine of the Goſpel, the thing to be believed. So λύπη ſorrow for calamity 1 Pet. 2. 19. (and therefore, ſaith Heſychius, λύπη ſorrow is βλάβη and ἀπώλεια, hurt and deſtruction, and πένθος mourning is, ſaith he, συμφορὰ calamity) and from thence λυπεῖσθαι to be wounded, Rom. 14. 15. and πενθεῖν not to mourn, but to uſe ſuch aſperity as will cauſe mourning, 2 Cor. 12. 22. But this by the way. I ſhall only adde that by analogie of Scripture, it no way appeareth that fear is to be excluded from our ſerving of God, but rather that it is a good, powerfull motive to it, and ſo is called the beginning of wiſdome, and a wholſome companion of it, and therefore we are commanded to work out our ſalvation with it.

1. Ἀνατολὴ That ἀνατολὴ is here the title of Chriſt, there is no queſtion, whether it be literally to be rendred the Eaſt, or the riſing of the ſun, that ſun of righteouſneſſe, Mal. 4. 2. And this title ſeems formerly to have been beſtow'd on him Zach. 3. 8. and 6. 12. ἰδοὺ ἀνὴρ, ἀνατολὴ ὄνομα αὐτῷ, Behold the man whoſe name is the Eaſt, or riſing of the ſun, as Juſtin Martyr cites it dial: cum Tryph: For which we ordinarily have, whoſe name is the Branch. The Hebrew צמח ſignifies oriri to riſe or ſpring, and that may be applied to a branch that ſprouts out of the tree, but ſo alſo it belongs to the riſing ſun, and accordingly ſignifies alſo lucere, to ſhine, and Heb. 1. 12. the brightneſs is in the Syriack Tſemach of his glory. And if ἀνατολὴ in Zachary be not a quite diſtant thing from the ſame word here in this other Zachary, it muſt then needs be in this other ſenſe, for that here it is ſo, appears by that which follows, both of viſiting, and giving light to them that ſit in darkneſs. And ſo it may well be read out of that prophet too, ch. 6. 12. not, he ſhall grow or branch up; (referring to the word Branch, but) he ſhall riſe up ἀνατελεῖ, or as צמח ſignifies, ſhine out from under him. Hence is it that where ἀνατολὴ the Eaſt is uſed in other places of Scripture, ſome of the Greek Scholiaſts have ſtill applied it to Chriſt. As Bar. 4. 36. Περίβλεψαι πρὸς ἀνατολὰς, look toward the Eaſt, i. e. ſaith Olympiodorus, πρὸς τὸν τοῦ δικαιοσύνης ἥλιον τὸν Κύριον ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν, to the Sun of righteouſneſs, our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. And Jer. 23. 5. I will raiſe up unto David צמח צדיק ἀνατολὴν δικαίαν in the Septuagint, the righteous Eaſt, Severus renders it τὸν Χριστὸν τὸν τοῦ δικαιοσύνης ἥλιον, Chriſt the Sun of righteouſneſs. And from hence perhaps it is that Tacitus hiſt: l. 5. at the deſtruction of Jeruſalem ſaith that ſome on that occaſion remembred Sacerdotum literas, the antient writings [illegible], which foretold eo ipſo tempore fore ut valeſceret Oriens, that at that very time it ſhould come to paſs, that the Eaſt ſhould prevail, i. e. Chriſt, cujus nomen eſt Oriens, whoſe name is the Eaſt, meaning all this while by the Eaſt, that Orient, or riſing Sun, and not the point, from whence he riſeth.

What is the meaning of this figurative ſpeech [the ſhadow of death] will be beſt conjectured by comparing it with Pſ. 23. 4. though I walk thorow the valley of the ſhadow of death, &c. There making God his ſhepheard v. 1. he compares himſelf to a ſheep, which feeds ſometimes upon an hill, ſometimes in a valley, and again may be ſuppoſed to be in danger of wolves, or elſe free from that danger. The hills being the higheſt, have all the light and warmth of the ſun upon them, and the valleyes contrariwiſe that are ſhaded by the hills, have much leſſe of that warmth, or light, and being alſo more ſubject to incurſion of wolves, then the hills were, (where their coming would be more diſcernible) this is there the meaning of [the valley of the ſhadow of death,] a gloomie vale of danger of the utmoſt evil. Proportionably here (in a ſpiritual ſenſe) the ſhadow of death] is a ſtate of ſinne, and ignorance, want of light, or knowledge, and want of warmth, or grace, the deſcription of the ſtate under the Law, which afforded neither of theſe in any proportion to what is now done by Chriſt, and ſo left men in a dangerous condition, till Chriſt was thus pleaſed to ſhine upon them, and thereby to reſcue them out of it.

CHAP. II.

Paraphraſe.

* enrolled. 1. AND it came to paſſe in thoſe daies that there went out a decree from [Cæſar Auguſtus, that a all the world ſhould be b * taxed.] 1. Auguſtus the Roman Emperour, a. b. that all perſons in the Roman Empire ſhould have their names and conditions of life and eſtate ſet down in court rolls &c. according to their families.

* this firſt enrolling was 2. (And * this taxing was firſt made when Cyrenius [was governour of Syria.]) 2. was ſent Procurator into Syria (under which province Palæſtine was) to enroll that part of the Empire. note b.

3. And all went to be taxed every one [into his own city.] 3. to the city where their Anceſtours were born, and ſo theſe to the city, where David was born, from whence they came, ver. 4.

4. And Joſeph alſo went up from Galilee out of the city of Nazareth into Judæa] unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, (becauſe he was of the houſe and linage of David) 4. And ſo though Joſeph dwelt in Galilee in the city Nazareth, he was forced to go into Judæa,

5. To be taxed with Mary his eſpouſed wife, being great with child.

6. And ſo it was that while they were there, the daies were accompliſhed that ſhe ſhould be delivered.

7. And ſhe brought forth her firſt born ſon, and wrapped him in ſwadling
c. clothes, and laid him in * a [c] manger, becauſe there was no room for them in the Inne. * the ſtable.

8. by turns over their flock, ſome one watch of the night, ſome another.
8. And there were in the ſame countrey ſhepheards abiding in the field,
d. * keeping [d] watch [over their flock by night.] * watching the watches of the night over their flock.

9. And an Angel of Gods appeared to them in a ſhining cloud, ſignifying God's eſpeciall ſignall prefence there, (See note Mat. 3. k.)
9. And lo, the Angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord ſhone round about them,] and they were ſore afraid.

10. And the Angel ſaid unto them, Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which ſhall be to all people.

11. For the Meſſias or God incarnate is this day born in Bethlehem Davids city.
11. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Chriſt the Lord.]

12. And by this you ſhall diſtinguiſh this child from all others,
12. And this ſhall be a ſigne unto you,] Ye ſhall find the babe wrapped in ſwadling clothes, lying in * a manger. * a ſtable, ſee note c.

13. Angels, ſo farre from envying this dignity of mans nature, that they congratulated it, and thereupon ſang this hymne,
13. And ſuddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of [the heavenly hoſt, praiſing God, and ſaying,]

14. God be glorified by them which are in the higheſt heavens, the Angels &c. becauſe of that peace which this birth of Chriſt hath brought on the earth, and becauſe of that favour, mercy, reconciliation of God toward men, which is wrought thereby, or becauſe of that reconciliation of God toward thoſe that are found ſincere before him.
c. 14. Glory to God in the higheſt, and on earth * [c] peace, good will towards men.] * or peace toward men of good wil, or of his good liking, for the Kgs MS. and the antient Syr. and Latine read in-ſtar conſolationis, and ſo many of the antient fathers.

15. And it came to paſſe, as the Angels were gone away from them into heaven, the ſhepheards ſaid one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and ſee this thing which is come to paſſe, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16. And they came with haſt, and found Mary and Joſeph, and the babe lying in a * manger. * ſtable.

19. But Mary kept all theſe things [and pondered them in her heart.]

20. for the reall completion of all thoſe things which were firſt told them by an Angel, and then heard and ſeen by themſelves.
20. And the ſhepheards returned glorifying and praiſing God, [for all the things that they had heard and ſeen, as it was told them.]

21. And when the eighth day was come, wherein twas the law and cuſtome for children to be circumciſed and named, he was circumciſed, and his name impoſed on him, which was Jeſus, according as he had been
21. And when eight daies were accompliſhed for the circumciſing of the child, his name was called Jeſus, which was ſo] named of the Angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22. they brought him, as their firſt-born, to preſent him to the Prieſt, and then to redeem him, as Num. 18. 15. is appointed,
22. And when the daies of her purification according to the law of Moſes were accompliſhed, [they brought him to Jeruſalem to preſent him to the Lord,]

23. (According to that law given to the Jewes, that as the firſt-born male of other creatures, ſo the firſt-born ſon (in remembrance of Gods ſlaying all the firſt-born of the Ægyptians, to deliver them) ſhould be conſecrated to God, Exod. 13. 3. and ſince the Levites were by God taken in ſtead of the firſt-born, it is to be redeemed, Num. 3. 12. & 46.
23. (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb ſhall be called holy to the Lord.])

24. And then for her own purification after child-birth, Lev. 12. 6. to offer her pair of turtles, being not able to offer a lamb (which is an argument that the Magi had not yet brought their preſents, Mat. 2, 11.) according to the commandement of God, that he which is not able to bring a lamb ſhall bring a pair of turtles, &c. Lev. 12. 8.

25. an upright and godly man, looking for, & expecting the coming of the Meſſias, ſee v. 38. whether in a ſpirituall only, or (as moſt expected) in a temporall kingdome, to reſtore their liberty to the Jewes.
25. And behold, there was a man in Jeruſalem, whoſe name was Simeon, and the ſame man was [juſt and devout, waiting for the conſolation of Iſrael: and the holy Ghoſt was upon him,]

26. And he had received revelation from the holy Ghoſt, that before he died, the Meſſias ſhould come, and he ſhould ſee him.
26. And it was revealed unto him by the holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould not ſee death, before he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt.]

the guidance and dictate of the Spirit, into the Temple, and when Joſeph and Mary brought in Jeſus, to perform thoſe things which were according to the law uſuall to be done.

28. Then took he him up in his armes and [bleſſed God and ſaid,] 21. recited this hymne,

29. Lord now letteſt thou thy ſervant depart in peace according to thy word.] 29. Lord now thou haſt fulfilled thy promiſe revealed to me v.26. I am heartily content to die.

30. For mine eyes have ſeen thy ſalvation,] 30. For I have with theſe fleſhly eyes of mine beheld the Meſſias,

31. Which thou haſt prepared before the face of all people,] 31. Whom thou haſt ſo long promiſed, and at laſt exhibited in the ſight of all the congregation,

32. A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Iſrael.] 32. A light afforded to the Gentile world Iſa.49.6. to reveale to them Gods righteouſneſs (or the way of living which will be acceptable to God) Pſal.116.18. and (after he hath reformed the religion of the Jewes, taught them the ſubſtantiall in ſtead of the Ceremoniall obſervances) to bring the Gentiles to the receiving of that religion, and ſo to bring much glory and honour to that nation, to thoſe at leaſt, that doe receive him, or in caſe they will doe ſo.

33. And Joſeph and his mother marvailed at thoſe things which were ſpoken of him.

34. And Simeon bleſſed them, and ſaid unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child [is ſet for the fall and riſing again of many in Iſrael, and for a ſigne which ſhall be ſpoken againſt,] 34. is appointed by God to be a means of bringing punishment and ruine upon all obdurate impenitents, and on the other ſide to redeem, reſtore, recover thoſe that will be wrought on by him, throughout all this people, and he ſhall be vehemently oppoſed, ſo holy and ſevere in his precepts and practiſe, that he ſhall be a butt or ſigne, ſuch as are mention'd Iſa.8.18. a mark for all obdurate ſinners to ſet themſelves againſt,

35. (Yea a [f] ſword ſhall pierce through thy own ſoul alſo) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.] 35. (And that oppoſition ſhall bring upon thee either death it ſelf, or ſome ſore affliction,) that the machinations and deſignes of men, (ſee note on Mat.15.d.) which are now kept ſecret, may come forth, and be diſcovered by their dealings with him, by the judgments which they paſſe upon him, ſome receiving him as the Meſſias, others not. See note on Rom.8.f. f.

36. And there was one Anna a propheteſſe, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aſer, ſhe was [of a great age, and had lived with an husband ſeven years from her virginity.] 36. very old, and had lived in the matrimoniall eſtate but ſeven years, unto which ſhe came a pure virgin.

37. And ſhe was a widow of about fourſcore and four years, which departed not from the Temple, but [g] ſerved God with faſtings and prayers night and day.] 37. And being now a widow of about 84 yeares old, ſhe conſtantly frequented the Temple (ſee note on Act.1.c.) and performed all acts of piety, praying & faſting conſtantly, at the preſcribed and accuſtomed ſeaſons of performing thoſe duties, faſting twice a week (ſee c.18.12.) and obſerving the daily houres of prayer. g.

38. And ſhe coming in at that inſtant [gave thanks likewiſe unto the Lord, and ſpake of him to all them, that looked for redemption in Jeruſalem.] 38. ſang an hymne to him, and expreſly affirmed him to be the Meſſias, and this ſhe did to all thoſe in Jeruſalem which expected the coming of the Meſſias. See v.25.

39. And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, [they returned into Galilee to their own city Nazareth.] 39. They returned to Bethlehem, and there continued, till they were warned to remove into Ægypt, Mat.2.14. from whence returning they came to their own dwelling at Nazareth in Galilee, Mat.2.23.

40. And the child grew, and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, filled with wiſdome; and the grace of God was upon him.] 40. And Jeſus grew in ſtature of body & faculties of mind (his divine Spirit aſſiſting and ſtrengthning his naturall faculties) and was indued with great wiſdome through the grace and power of Gods Spirit upon him.

41. Now his parents went to Jeruſalem every yeare at the feaſt of the Paſſover.

42. And when he was twelve years old, they went up to Jeruſalem after the cuſtome of the feaſt.

43. And when they [had fulfilled the dayes,] as they returned, the child Jeſus tarryed behind in Jeruſalem, and Joſeph and his mother knew not of it, 43. had continued there all the feaſt daies, and then came home,

44. But ſuppoſing him to have been in the company, [went a daies journey, and they ſought him] amongſt their kinsfolk and acquaintance. 44. After they were come a daies journey they miſſed him, and made ſtrict enquiry after him.

45. And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jeruſalem, ſeeking him.

46. And it came to paſſe that after three daies they found him [in the temple, ſitting in the midſt of the doctors] both hearing them, and asking them queſtions. 46. in the court of the Temple, or porch, and many of the Maſters of Iſrael, the Scribes, or learned men, about him,

47. And all that heard him were aſtoniſhed at his underſtanding and anſwers.

48. And when they ſaw him they were amazed, and his mother ſaid unto him, Son, why haſt thou thus dealt with us? Behold, thy father and I have ſought thee ſorrowing.

49. the houſe of God is my proper home, my fathers houſe, and ſo a place fit for me to be in, but this ye were ignorant of.

49. And he ſaid unto them, How is it that ye ſought me? [Wiſt ye not that I muſt be * about [h] my Fathers buſineſſe?]

h. * in my fathers houſe.

50. And they underſtood not the ſaying, which he ſpake unto them.

51. and though in that of ſtaying in the Temple (an introduction or eſſay preparatory unto his office, to which he was ſent by God, to whom obedience is due before parents) he did ſomewhat without his parents leave (ſee Joh. 2. 4.) yet in all other things he lived in perfect obedience to them.

51. And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was ſubject unto them,] but his mother kept all theſe ſayings in her heart.

52. And Jeſus in reſpect of his humane nature conſiſting of body and ſoul, did grow or improve, his ſoul improved in wiſdome, his body in ſtature, as others of his age are wont, and withall became daily a more eminent illuſtrious perſon in the eyes of all.

52. And Jeſus increaſed in wiſdome and ſtature, and in favour with God and man.]

Notes on Chap. II.

a Οἰκουμένη

That οἰκουμένη doth not alwaies ſignifie the whole world, may be concluded by Act. 11.28. where the prophecy of the famine through the whole world, ſeems to belong to the ſame, which was foretold by Chriſt, Mat. 24.7. and ſo to referre only to Judæa (ſee note on Mat. 24. c. and Euſebius Eccl: Hiſt: l. 2. c. 11.) Thus Lu. 21.26. τὰ ἐπερχόμενα τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, the things that come upon the world] ſeems to belong only to thoſe things that were a coming on Judæa. And thus it is ordinarily ſaid, that Jeruſalem is ſituate in medio telluris in the middle of the earth, i.e. of Judæa, as Delphi is ſaid to be Orbis umbilicus, the navel of the world, i.e. of Greece, and as Minos calls Crete, over which he was King, his Orbis in Ovid, Certè ego non patiar Jovis incunabula Creten,

Qui meus eſt orbis, tantum contingere monſtrũ.

So Plinie in his Nat: Hiſt: l. 12. c. 12. uſes the word Orbis for a region. In noſtro orbe proximè laudatur Syriacum. But here the word belongs to the Roman Empire, which is often called by that title,

Orbem jam totum victor Romanus habebat, and in Hegeſippus l. 2. Antiq. c. 9. Orbis terrarum qui Romano Imperio clauditur & definitur, and ſo in Spartianus, Lampridius, Marcellinus, and in Optatus l. 3. and Ἐγὼ τῆς κοσμικῆς κύριος, ſaith Antoninus in his reſcript to Endæmon Nicomedienſis, I am Lord of the world, and in Ulpian, who from a conſtitution of Antoninus ſaith, Qui in orbe Romano ſunt, cives Romanos effectos eſſe, and Bartolus pronounces that he were an heretick, which would not ſay that the Emperour is Dominus & Monarcha totius orbis, the Lord and Monarch of the whole world. See Hieron: Magius Miſcell: l. 4. c. 15.

b. Ἀπογραφὴ

The ἀπογραφὴ is here literally deſcriptio, and that is (not an exacting of tribute, or taxation, but) a ſetting down, or enrolling every perſon, according to their families and eſtates. So in Heſychius ἀπογραφὴ, δείγματις, ἢ ἡ γενομένη μίσθωσις, it ſignifies the numbring of the people, or declaring how many and what kind of people they are: And Phavorinus, that ἀπογραφὴ ποιεῖσθαι] is when each man is ſent for to make known, ὅσα τις ἔχει, καὶ ὅθεν τὰ χρήματα καὶ ποῖα ταῦτα εἴη, what and how much he hath, and whence his eſtate came to him. This is it that the Greek and Latine gloſſe in H. Stephanus hath expreſs'd by ἀπογραφὴ, cenſus, profeſſus, profeſſio, the word profeſſio being the proper Latine word for this matter, and therefore the vulgar very fitly hath it ver. 3. of this chap: Ibant profiteri, they went to tell what they were worth &c. This enrolling is moſt amply defin'd by Florus, ut omnia patrimonii, dignitatis, ætatis, artium, officiorumque diſcrimina in tabulas referantur, that all the differences of patrimony, dignity, age, craft, office might be recorded. Now concerning this particular enrolling or cenſus here mention'd, 'tis obſervable what Sepulveda and Gerundenſis have related, that 27 years before the birth of Chriſt, Auguſtus appointed that there ſhould be an enrolling of the whole Empire, and proclaimed it in Tarracon a city in Spaine after the Cantabri (and others that in Spaine had broke off from him) had been conquered and reduced by him. For then he conceived that all the parts of his Empire were quiet, and ſetled, and ſo that it was a fit time to take this view of his people. Velleius Paterculus ſeems to agree in this relation, making mention of a notable peace, i.e. quiet, and reſt from warre about the twentieth year of Auguſtus, which being by him ſaid about the 20th year, if it be reſolved to have been punctually the 17th, it will fall directly on this time of this 27 yeares before our Saviours birth, that being in the 44th year of his reigne. But upon or ſoon after this proclamation, Auguſtus found a breaking out of ſome ſtirres in other parts, and thereupon deſert'd his reſolution to ſome other quieter time, which was this very point of time, wherein Chriſt was born. Hence it is that the ancient Spaniards obſerved an æra (which is a word made up of the firſt letters of Annus erat Regni Auguſti, the year of Auguſtus's reigne) different from all other Chriſtians, to wit, 27 years before them, reckoning from this firſt proclamation in Tarracon, and counting the ἀπογραφὴ, or enrolling here in S. Luke to have been at that time. By this paſſage of ſtory conſidered there will ariſe to us matter of moſt excellent obſervation, concerning God's wiſe diſpoſall of all things, particularly in this of the birth of Chriſt, which, if Auguſtus's firſt decree and proclamation, in the 17th of his reigne, had ſtood, in all probability could not have been in Bethlehem, as the prophets foretold it ſhould, For if that had gone on in the 17th, there had been no uſe of this in the 44th yeare of his reigne, Had not this been in the 44th, Joſeph and Mary would have had no occaſion at that time to come up to Bethlehem from Nazareth, where they dwelt, Had they not done ſo, Chriſt had not been born there: Whence appears Gods providence in changing Auguſtus's reſolution by the breaking out of new troubles, and transferring this time of full peace (and ſo of enrolling) to this very point of time, wherein Mary being ſo neer her time, and going up to Bethlehem to be enrolled, ſhould there fall in travail, and bring forth, that ſo the ſeed of David,

David, and branch of Jesse (as Christ is call'd) that was conceived in Nazareth, should be born in Bethlehem, where Jesse lived, & David was born. Now whereas 'tis added that this was ἀπογραφὴ πρώτη, the first enrolling, that is to distinguish it from another, Act. 5.37. the same which Josephus and Eusebius speak of and place under Cyrenius also, but differing from this here. As for Cyrenius having rule over Syria at this time, that is to be taken in a looser, not stricter sense, not that Cyrenius was there now the standing Governour under the Romans, but sent by the Emperour particularly on this occasion, to take an inventory of this part of his Empire. For so saith Suidas upon the word ἀπογραφὴ] out of some antient Author, that Cæsar Augustus desiring to know the strength and state of his dominions sent 20 chosen men into all his dominions, one into one part, another into another, to take this account, and P. Sulpitius Quirinius had Syria for his province, not to have any setled dominion there, but to perform this work, for which he was sent extraordinarily, Sentius Saturninus being then President of Syria, Tertull: cont: Marc: l. 4. c. 19.

c. φάτνη signifies stable or ἱπποστάσιον, saith Is: Casaubon ad Baron: i.e. a stable where cattel stand, and not only the place where their meat is put, the manger. So in Latine Præsepe, Virgil: Æneid: 7.

—in præsepibus ursi sævire —— and Stabant terni centum nitidi in præsepibus altis, and to this the story best agrees, which gives the reason of their laying him in the φάτνη, because there was no room (not in the stable, but) in the Inne.

φάτνη

d. 'Tis sufficiently known that the night was distinguisht into severall watches, the ἐσπέρα, and μεσονύκτιον, and ἀλεκτοροφωνία, and πρωΐ, Mar. 13.35. the evening, and midnight, and cock-crowing, and morning. The first ending at nine in the evening, the 2d at twelve, the 3d at three, the fourth at six in the morning, as the day is divided into the third, and sixt, and ninth, and twelfth houres. Now these the shepheards in those countreys (which lay chiefly upon feeding cattell) i.e. the inhabitants of the countreys did so distribute among them, that such a number of them might continue in the field, and watch abroad so many houres in the night, and when that watch ended, so many other fresh men might come and succeed to that care, and this the forme of speech in Greek doth import φυλάσσοντες φυλακὰς τῆς νυκτὸς ἐπὶ τὰ ποίμνια αὐτῶν, i.e. literally rendred, watching the watches of the night over their flock, and so the vulgar readeth it, custodientes vigilias noctis super gregem.

e. The concurrence of so many antient Copies and readings for this of εὐδοκίας, not εὐδοκία, makes it fit to give an account of that phrase, if so it be read. Gods favor or acceptance, (an argument, and evidence of the sincerity of the Christians heart which is so approved, or accepted by him,) is literally the notion of εὐδοκία, good liking, i.e. Gods good liking, or well-pleasednes. So when, in the highest degree, 'tis said of Christ, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα, in whom I am well pleased, So when of Noah 'tis said, that he found grace in the eyes of the Lord, Gen. 6.8. Accordingly ἄνθρωποι εὐδοκίας are such as these, whose uprightnes of heart, and sincerity, (though mixt with much frailty, and some sinne, for which there is no way of pardon, but in Christ) hath approved them to God, and to these, and none but these, this εἰρήνη ἐπὶ γῆς peace on earth belongs. And so this reconciliation of God to all penitent sinners, all sincere, faithfull, new creatures, (those whom God sees, and owns as such) as it is the full importance of [εἰρήνη ἐπὶ γῆς ἐν ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκίας, peace upon earth toward men of his good-liking] so is it, next the glory of God, mentioned in the former words, the principall designe of Christs coming into the world.

Ἔνδοξα

Ἄνθρωποι εὐδοκίας.

That Mary the mother of Christ was put to death is the affirmation of Epiphanius l. 3. hær: 78. contra Dicomarianitas, and this place of Scripture said to be fulfilled by it, ὅτι ἀνῃρέθη, κατὰ τὸ γεγραμμένον, καὶ σοῦ δὲ αὐτῆς διελεύσεται ῥομφαία, she was put to death according as it is written, a sword shall passe through thy soul also, and so he goes on, ἐν μάρτυσιν αὐτῆς τὸ κλέος, her glory is among the martyrs. If she were not actually put to death, some great sensitive affliction, the sharpnesse of which is here compared to a sword, and said to pass through her ψυχὴ, her animal or sensitive soule, is here certainly meant by it. f.

Ῥομφαία διελεύσεται.

Of this Hanna is the testimony of Cyrill of Jerusalem, Cat: 10. that she was ἐγκρατὴς, ἁγνὴ, σώφρων, καὶ ἀσκήτρια, the first title referres to her continence, and widow-chastity, for so many years, (having lived with an husband, but seven years after marriage, he, in all probability, dying at that time.) The 2d. to her devotion and strict observance of piety. The 3d. not to a solitary monial life (as the Latine interpreter there falsly renders it) but to such a strict observance of all that συνεχεστέρα, or austerity, in fasting so often every week, and attending of publick (and private) prayers so often every day (and all this for the whole space of her ensuing life) as was antiently observable among the ἁγνὴ or devout persons. Thus did she take her self up from the cares and affaires of the world, that she might have the full vacancy for the service of God, and daily frequented the Temple at the houres of prayer, not that she did neither eat nor sleep, or that in any respect she could be said to dwell there alwaies, but that serving God there at all the set times of prayer, and to prayer adding the weekly observances of fasting also, she returned from those performances to her own house, and there properly inhabited; and this is enough to own that expression here, that she departed not from the Temple, i. e. forsook it not, kept close to it at the set times, (though she was at her own house also at other times) as the Apostles ch. 24. 53. are said to have been διὰ παντὸς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, continually in the Temple, and Act. 1.13. προσκαρτεροῦντες continuing there, which yet doth not note that they were never out of it, but, as it follows, ἦσαν προσκαρτεροῦντες ὁμοθυμαδὸν τῇ προσευχῇ καὶ δεήσει they continued unanimously constant in prayer and supplication, not again that they did never intermit praying, but that they were constant in the frequent daily performances of that duty, at the houres appointed for it. g.

Διάφορα γραφικὰ, &c.

Ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός] seems to referre to the place where they found him. i.e. in the Temple, and so τὰ ἴδια in the neuter, his own, Jo. 19. 27. signifies his own house. as Ester: 5. 10. and 6.12. בית house] is rendred τὰ ἴδια, his own. See the learned Fullers Miscell: p. 585. h.

CHAP. III.

1. Procurator of Judæa, and Herod Governour of that
a. fourth diviſion of the kingdome called Galilee,

1. NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæſar, Pontius Pilate being [Governour of Judæa, and Herod being Tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip Tetrarch of [a] Iturea, and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lyſanias the Tetrarch of Abilene,]

3. And he came [into all the countrey about Jordan, preaching the baptiſme of repentance for the remiſſion of ſins,]

4, 5. There ſhall come a crier, or herauld, or harbinger of the Meſſias in the wilderneſs, to fit men by repentance for the receiving of Chriſt, and part of his proclamation ſhall be in theſe words, Every valley &c: which may figuratively import the peculiar quality of the Goſpel of Chriſt, which was to work upon the poor in ſpirit, and exalt them to a participation of the greateſt priviledges, which none of the higher loftier ſpirits were capable of, till they were humbled, and brought down from their heights; but literally they may ſeem to foretell the terrible deſtruction, which ſhould ſhortly come upon this people for their impenitence, the plaining of the land for the coming of the Roman army (ſee note on Mat. 3. c.) and the viſible diſcrimination, which ſhould then be made betwixt the obdurate impenitent unbeleivers on one ſide, and thoſe that are penitent and receive Chriſt, on the other.

4. As it is written in the book of the words of Eſaias the prophet, ſaying, [The voice of one crying in the wilderneſſe, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths ſtreight.

5. Every valley ſhall be filled, and every mountain and hill ſhall be brought low, and the crooked ſhall be made ſtreight, and the rough waies ſhall be made ſmooth.]

6. And all men ſhal diſcern the deliverance which is wrought for the penitent beleivers, when all impenitents are deſtroyed.

6. And all fleſh ſhall ſee the ſalvation of God.]

7. deſtruction approaching?

7. Then ſaid he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the [wrath to come?]

8. Doe not think 'twill ſerve your turn, that you are able to ſay (ſee note on Mat. 2. a.) We are of the ſeed of Abraham, who have right to the promiſes made to him, whatſoever our actions are, See Mat. 3. 9.

8. Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and [begin not to ſay within your ſelves, We have Abraham to our father;] For I ſay unto you that God is able of theſe ſtones to raiſe up children unto Abraham.

Mat. 3. 10.

9. And now alſo the axe is laid unto the root of the trees, Every tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and caſt into the fire.

10. And the common ſort of people asked him, What was their task, or part of duty, to prevent or avert this ruine.

10. And the people asked him, ſaying, What ſhall we doe then?]

11. And he preſcribed to them an extenſive liberality, charity, merciſulneſſe to all that wanted, what they had to ſpare.

11. He anſwereth and ſaith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none, and he that hath meat let him doe likewiſe.]

12. the tole- or tribute-gatherers

12. Then came alſo [Publicanes] to be baptized, and ſaid unto him, Maſter, what ſhall we doe?

13. Receive all the taxes which the Emperour requires to be gathered, but beſide that, doe not you either by cunning, or force take any more for your ſelves.

13. And he ſaid unto them, [Exact no more then is appointed you.]

14. And to the
c. military men of the Jews (employed by their Procurators, or the Romans) he preſcribed theſe rules, Neither fright, nor plunder any man, but be content with that allowance, which is aſſigned for your maintenance.

14. And the ſouldiers likewiſe demanded of him, ſaying, And what ſhall we doe? And he ſaid unto them, Doe violence to no man, [d] neither [c] accuſe any falſly, but be content with your wages.]

[d] not wrong any.

15. And as the people were amuzed concerning him, looking for ſome further declaration or manifeſtation from him, and having ſome diſputes within them, whether he were not the Meſſias himſelf,

15. And as the people were in expectation, and all men muſed in their hearts of John, whether he were the Chriſt or not,]

16. John gave a clear anſwer to their doubts, telling every one that came to him, in plain words, that he was not the Chriſt, ſaying, My whole office is, thus to receive you as proſelytes, to beleive on the Meſſias, who ſhall ſuddenly reveal himſelf, I am but a diſciple of that great Maſter, ſent before him, as diſciples of prophets are wont to be, to take up room for him, (ſee Lu. 10. 1. and Mat. 26. 20.) to ſerve him, to take off, and lay away his ſhooes (ſee note on Mat. 3. g.) and truly I am unworthy of this office, to be the diſciple of ſo divine a perſon. But he, when he cometh, ſhall be another manner of perſon, and doe other kind of things; Over and above the receiving of proſelytes with water in baptiſme, he ſhall ſend down the Spirit on his diſciples, in an appearance as of fire, Act. 2. and thereby enable them to ſpeak with tongues miraculouſly, and ſo fit them for their office, (ſee Act. 1. 2.)

16. John anſwered ſaying unto them all, I indeed baptize you with water, but one mightier then I cometh, the latchet of whoſe ſhooes I am not worthy to unlooſe, he ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt and with fire.]

17. Whoſe

17. Whoſe [fan] is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner, but the chaffe he will burn with fire unquenchable.

17. winnowing inſtrument, See note on Mat. 3. h.

18. And many other things in his exhortation preached he unto the people.] 18. And John Baptiſt ſaid many ſuch things as theſe, and more different from theſe, by way of exhortation and proclamation to the people, concerning the Goſpel of Chriſt.

19. But Herod the Tetrarch being reproved by him for Herodias his brother Philips wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done, 19. And Herod calling him to the court, and hearing him often, and that with great reſpect to him at firſt (Mar. 6. 20.) at laſt being reproved by him for marrying his brothers wife, and for all other ſinnes, that John ſaw him to be guilty of,

20. Added yet this above all, that he ſhut up John in priſon.

21. Now when all the people were baptized, it came to paſſe that Jeſus alſo being baptized and praying, the heaven was opened,

22. And the holy Ghoſt deſcended in a bodily ſhape like a dove upon him,] and a voice came from heaven, which ſaid, Thou art my beloved ſon, in thee I am well pleaſed. 22. And the holy eternal Spirit of God appeared viſibly to come down, and to deſcend upon him, as a dove uſes to deſcend, and light on any thing (ſee note on Mat. 3. k.)

23. And Jeſus himſelf began to be about thirty years of age, being (as it was ſuppoſed) the ſon of Joſeph, which was the ſon of [d] Heli.] 23. And at this time of his being baptized, Jeſus was about thirty years old; And being born of a pure virgin he had truly no father on earth, but yet Joſeph the ſon of Heli being betrothed to Mary his mother, he was his reputed father. d.

32. Which was the ſon of Jeſſe, which was the ſon of Obed, which was the ſon of Boos, which was the ſon of Salmon, which was the ſon of Naaſſon,

33. Which was the ſon of Aminadab, which was the ſon of Aram, which was the ſon of Eſrom, which was the ſon of Phares, which was the ſon of Judah,

34. Which was the ſon of Jacob, which was the ſon of Iſaac, which was the ſon of Abraham, which was the ſon of Tharah, which was the ſon of Nachor,

35. Which was the ſon of Saruch, which was the ſon of Ragau, which was the ſon of Phaleg, which was the ſon of Heber, which was the ſon of Sala,

36. Which was the ſon of Cainan, which was the ſon of Arphaxad, which was the ſon of Sem, which was the ſon of Noah, which was the ſon of Lamech,

37. Which was the ſon of Mathuſala, which was the ſon of Enoch, which was the ſon of Jared, which was the ſon of Maleleel, which was the ſon of Cainan, 38. Which was the ſon of Enos, which was the ſon of Seth, which was the ſon of Adam, which was the ſon of God.

Notes on Chap. III.

a φλιππου δε τετραρχουντος

That which is here ſaid of Herod's brother Philip being Tetrarch of Ituræa and Trachonitis, is thus farre confirmed by Joſephus, Ant: l. 18. c. 7. that this Philip died in the twentieth year of Tiberius, having for the ſpace of 37 years been Preſect of Trachonitis and Gaulanitis, and Batanea, wherein ſtead of Gaulanitis the truer reading is Auranitis, of which we have mention in the ſame Joſephus, Ant: l. 17. c. 13. as a part of Zenodorus his province, Trachonitis and Batanea being there named as the other parts of it, the latter of which (or elſe that, and Auranitis together) is ſure the Ituræa here. As for the word τετράρχης Tetrarch, it denotes a principality of a fourth part, and when Herod, who is call'd ſo, is elſwhere call'd King Herod, the word King is to be taken in that latitude, as to ſignifie no more then that Tetrarch here doth, one placed by the Romans over this Region of Galilee, with Regal power, and for life, and thereby differing from the ἡγεμὼν, a Governour (ſuch was Pilate here, and Mat. 27. 2.) with Commiſſion for ſo many years, πρεσβευτὴς, 1 Pet. 2. 14. a Deputy of the ſupreme, and as a Steward in a family, diſpenſing it under him, Ἐπίτροπος, and Procurator.

b. Concerning the two Ἀρχιερεῖς or high Prieſts in this Ἄννας καὶ Καϊάφας this place (and the reconciling it with the Old Teſtament, where there was to be but one at a time, one of the ſons of Aaron, *Ex.*29.30. *Lev.*16.32.& he to continue not for a year only, but for his life, whereas here it ſeems to be otherwiſe) many things have diverſly been ſaid by learned men. Without ſurveying of their ſeverall conjectures, I ſhall firſt think it worth obſerving, that in the books of Samuel (when ſure there was but one high Prieſt) Ahimelech the ſon of Ahitub being ſlain, and Abiathar ſucceeding him in the high Prieſt's office, 1 Sam. 22. there is yet, after that, frequent mention of Zadok and Abiathar together, 2 Sam. 15.35. Zadok and Abiathar the prieſts, and c.17. 15. and c.19.11. and 20.25. and 1 *Chron.*15.11. every where Zadok and Abiathar prieſts, and Zadok plac'd before Abiathar conſtantly (as Annas before Caiaphas here.) The reaſon of which is probably this, becauſe though Zadok was not actually high Prieſt in David's time, yet being the ſon of Ahitub 2 *Sam.*8.17. (not that Ahitub, the father of Ahimelech 1 *Sam.*22.11. who was of Ithamar's line. 1 *Chron.*24. 2. but another 1 *Chron.*6.8. and 53. the lineal ſucceſſor of Eleazar v.4. and 50.) to him the High-Prieſthood regularly belonged, and ſo after the expulſion of Abiathar (the laſt of Eli's, and ſo of Ithamar's line, 1 Kin. 2. 26,27.) was reſtored to him, 1 *Kin.*2.35. and Abiathar being in David's time the high Prieſt of Eli's, and ſo of Ithamar's line (to which, it ſeems, it was changed from Eleazar's, and continued in that line for ſome time) Zadok being a principall perſon in authority with David, a Prieſt, and regularly heire to the High-prieſthood, is conſtantly joyned with (and ſet before) Abiathar the high Prieſt. Agreeable to this example it is, that Annas, father-in-law to (the high Prieſt of that year) Caiaphas, a moſt eminent perſon himſelf, and one that had been high Prieſt alſo, and, I ſuppoſe, the chief of the race of Aarons ſons then alive, as Zadok was, is here ſet before, and joyned with Caiaphas, and call'd ἀρχιερεὺς high Prieſt, though punctually he executed not the office of the high Prieſt. This being ſaid by way of preparation, the main of the difficulty may perhaps be removed by obſerving of three things: 1. That at this time, the land being under the Roman Emperour (whoſe name and the year of his reigne is ſet down at the beginning of the verſe, as alſo his Procurator of Judæa, Pontius Pilate, and the Tetrarchs of other places) the ſucceſſion of the high Prieſts was now changed, The one lineal deſcendent in the family of Aaron, which was to continue for life, being not permitted to ſucceed (λέλυτο μὴ ἢ διὰ βίου, καὶ ἐκ πρεσβύτου διαδοχή, ſaith Euſebius l. 1. c. 18.) but ſome other, whom he pleaſed, named to that office by the Procurator every year, or renewed, as often as he pleaſed. 2ly, That there was at this time, after the Roman Conqueſt, and before the deſtruction of the Temple (whenſoever they made no King of (but only ſent a Procurator into) Judæa) the place, and title of נָשִׂיא, ἄρχων τοῦ λαοῦ, Ruler of the people (and with it ſome part of the ſoveraign power) allow'd unto the Jewes, or at leaſt ſomewhat proportionable to it. This Naſi was he, which had at any time the chief power of that people within themſelves, i. e. what degree of power ſoever remained in the Jewes at any time by the indulgence of their Conquerours, it was principally in him: Whilſt they were not ſubject to ſtrangers, an abſolute and ſupreme power (and therefore in the Law and in Ezechiel the Naſi or the Ruler ſignifies the King) but when they were ſubject to other nations, a power ſubordinate, ſuch as was allow'd them by thoſe that had dominion over them, but yet that ſupreme among themſelves, for the deciding of all controverſies ariſing from, and determinable by their law, though generally without power of life and death, to enforce the ſentences of their judicatures. Such are the ראשי הגלות or ἀρχιπατρίδαι the chief of the Captives that returned from Babylon, Zorobabel the ſon of Salathiel, *Hag.*2. and *Zach.*4. being of the tribe of Judah, *Mat.*1.12. *Lu.*3.27. (at the ſame time when Joſuah the ſon of Joſedech is high Prieſt, *Zach.*3. and therefore they two together are called the anointed ones, c.4.14. and named in the front of the Captives, *Ezr.*2.2.) and after him, his poſterity, till about the time of the Maccabees. According to that of S. Baſil in his Epiſtles p.1170. Ἐπιτελέσαντες ἢ οἱ περὶ τὸν Σαλαθιὴλ, καὶ Ζοροβάβελ δημωτικώτερον κεκυβερνήκασι τοῦ λαοῦ, τὴν ἀρχὴν λοιπὸν εἰς τὴν ἱερωσύνην μεταθέντες, The ſucceſſors of Salathiel and Zorobabel ruled the people ſomewhat after a popular manner, and after their time foreward the principality fell to the prieſthood, to wit, in the time of the Maccabees. (As for Nehemiah and the Governours mention'd by him c.5. 14. it ſeems by his commiſſion, and the Babyloniſh name פחות, that he had his power from the King of Perſia, not from the Jewiſh nation, or from their right yet remaining in them under their Conquerours, of living according to their own lawes.) After the manner of what was thus done in Paleſtine, the like was generally put in practiſe in the ſeverall countries whither the Jews were diſperſed, i.e. not only in Babylonia, but alſo at Alexandria (ſaith Philo in Leg: ad Caiũ,) to the Naſi whereof all the multitude of the Jews in Ægypt were ſubject, a million, ſaith Philo, in his time; And therefore ſaith Joſephus, *Ant:*l.20. c.4. that the Ἐθνάρχαι of the Jewes being dead, the Emperour Claudius μὴ κωλύειν ἐθνάρχας γίνεσθαι did not forbid them to ſet Rulers of the nation over them, but conſented ὑποτάττεσθαι ἅπασι, that all ſhould be ſubject to them, according to their owne cuſtomes, and not be forced ἐξαβαίνειν τὰ πάτρια ἤθη to tranſgreſſe the religion of their fathers. The like is reported of Auguſtus by Philo ad Flaccum, calling theſe rulers ἐθνάρχας, as Joſephus did Ἐθνάρχας, and others of the heathen Writers Patriarchas, See Vopiſcus in vita Saturnini. 3ly, This office of the Naſi generally fell on ſome perſon of the greateſt authority among them, for skill and knowledge in their law. And 'twill not be improbable that that ſhould be ſome Prieſt (ſuch being moſt carefully brought up in that knowledge) And then though it be not neceſſary to ſuppoſe that that were the lineally deſcended high Prieſt (there being no ſuch perhaps left in the land) yet 'twill be eaſie to conceive, that a Prieſt the chief of one of the ranks, eſpecially of the firſt rank of the Prieſts, and he poſſeſt with ſo great authority, as that of the Naſi (the greateſt now left among them) ſhould be ſtyled ἀρχιερεὺς, chief or high prieſt. And ſo, I conceive, it was at this time, ſomewhat after the manner of what the Maccabees had formerly been, which were in a manner Kings and and prieſts both, i. e. being prieſts, were alſo, one after another, leaders, and rulers of the Jewes, (proportionable to the Naſi, of which I now ſpeak) the only rulers which then they had with any image of Regality on them. That this may be more diſcernible, 'twill not be amiſſe in brief to ſet down the beginning and progreſſe of them. Upon the profanation committed by Antiochus upon the law and worſhip of God among the Jewes, aroſe Mattathias the ſon of John, the ſon of Simeon, a prieſt in Modin, of the ſons of Joarib (i.e. of that family which had the firſt courſe of the four and twenty aſſigned to them by lot 1 Chron. 24.) and ſo of a family next to the family of the high prieſt, Aarons ſucceſſor. This Mattathias not pretending any right to the high prieſthood (it being not affirmed that he was chief of that family of Joarib, but a branch of one of the ſons, i. e. one of that courſe, and beſides Onias the laſt of the high prieſts of the ſucceſſion of Aaron, was not, that appeareth, as yet gone into Ægypt) but meerly as a Zelot began to kill the profaners, then went out into the mountains with as many after him as he could get, and at laſt, when he had gathered an army, he left Judas as the mightieſt of his ſons (though not by ſucceſſion again as the eldeſt of them) to be General of it, 1 Mac. 1. 66. And he under the name of Judas Maccabæus (or the Zelot) did lead them, was, as it were, their king (the only one they had) their ruler at that time, and fought their battels illuſtriouſly, cleanſed the ſanctuary, built a new altar, and being at laſt ſlain, 1 Mac. 9. 18. it followes v. 29. that Judas's friends (i. e. thoſe that had continued with him in all his actions) came to chuſe Jonathan a brother of Judas to be their prince or captain in his ſtead, to fight their battailes, and ſo he took the government on him v. 31. And upon a treaty of league betwixt Alexander the ſon of Antiochus Epiphanes, and him, Alexander ordains him to be the high prieſt of his nation, 1 Mac. 10. 20. and accordingly after that, he is ſo call'd, ver. 69. Thus the Dukedome and the high Prieſthood continued to his ſucceſſors, his brother Simon, and Hircanus Simon's ſon, and ſo on, till the race of the Aſſamonai or Maccabees were extinct alſo, by the killing of Ariſtobulus, and depoſing of Hircanus. After which, the prieſthood went among the prieſts, at the will of the Governours, appointed by the Romans, as Jonathan and the Aſſamonai had been by the Kings, that then had power over them; but yet more uncertainly, not by ſucceſſions, as among the Aſſamonai they did. Now ſome ſucceſſour as it were to that office of the Aſſamonai, as farre as they were rulers of the people (not as by the king appointed to be the high prieſts) i.e. ſome one of the Jewes, by themſelves ſet up to be chief among them, I ſuppoſe to have been continued at this time, after Herod the Great. And this not the lineal ſucceſſor of Aaron (for after the flight of the laſt Onias into Ægypt, where he built a temple in imitation of that in Jeruſalem, that Aaronical line vaniſhed, or was interrupted in Judæa) but, like Mattathias, ſome other Prieſt of great reputation and authority among the people; And ſuch was Annas or Ananus or Ananias at this time, a man of greateſt value and authority among them, ſaith Joſephus, who, though he differed from the high prieſt, put in by the Procurator, as Moſes did from Aaron, yet being a prieſt, and Naſi at this time, 'twill be eaſie to beleive, that he ſhould be called ἀρχιερεὺς high prieſt or chief prieſt (being ἄρχων and ἱερεὺς, a prieſt and ruler of the people) both here, and Act. 4. 6. and, as I ſuppoſe, Act. 23. 5. where by what is ſaid of him by S. Paul, it is acknowledg'd, that he was ἄρχων τ̃ λαοῦ, prince or ruler of the people. Accordingly the ſtory of the Goſpel, Joh. 18. 13. mentions the carrying of Chriſt to Annas firſt, as to an officer of principall authority among them, who ſent him bound to Caiaphas, that was the Pontifex maximus that yeare, of the Romans putting in, and ſo continued all the time of Pilate's Procuratorſhip.

If this w^ch^ hath been ſaid of the Naſi, be ſufficient to ſhew that Annas might paſſe for one of the ἀρχιερεῖς here (& ἀρχιερεὺς he is called, that's clear, & as clear, by what is ſaid of him in Joſephus, and the Goſpels, the greateſt man at that time among the Jews, to whom the malefactors were firſt brought, Joh. 18. 14. which proves him to be Naſi alſo) then the other part of the difficulty, as to Caiaphas, will be ſoon cleared: For 'tis manifeſt that at this time the Roman Prafect did ad libitum, when he would, and that ſometimes once a year, put in whom he pleaſed into the Pontificate, to officiate in Aarons office, in ſtead of the lineal deſcendent from him. And that is it of which Joſephus ſo frequently makes mention, After the race of the Aſſamonai it ſeems Jeſus the ſon of Phabes was put in, then he being put out, Simon is put in his ſtead, this Simon put out, and Matthias in his ſtead, Ant: l. 17. c. 6. then Matthias put out by Herod about the time of Chriſt's birth, and Joazar put in his ſtead, Ant: l. 17. c. 8. then Joazar put out by Archelaus, & Eleazar put in, c. 15. and he again put out, and Jeſus the ſon of Sia put in. Then in the firſt of Quirinus there is mention again of Joazar ſon of Boethius, l. 18. c. 1. who, it ſeems, was put in, and ſo turned out again by Quirinus the ſame year, and Ananus the ſon of Seth put in his ſtead, who was the Annas here mention'd by S. Luke. Then Gratus at the beginning of Tiberius's reign, put out Annas and put in Iſmael, and in his ſtead Eleazar, Annas's ſon, then in his ſtead Simon, and after his year, Caiaphas here, who continued from that, all his and Pilate's time, till Vitellius diſplaced him, and put Jonathan another ſon of Annas in his ſtead, and in his, a year or two after, Theophilus another ſon of Annas, whom Agrippa again diſplaced, Ant: l. 19. c. 5. and put in Simon, and turning him out the ſame year, put in Mattathias a fourth ſon of Annas in the beginning of Claudius his reigne, ſome nine years after the death of Chriſt, and ſoon removing him, put in Elioneus, c. 7. Then, it ſeems, Cantharus was put in, for in his place Herod put in Joſeph l. 20. 1. and in his ſtead about fifteen years after the death of Chriſt, Ananias ſon of Nebedeus c. 3. After him we find Jonathan, then Iſmael, then Joſeph, then Annas another ſon of Annas, then Jeſus ſon of Damneus, then Jeſus ſon of Gamaliel, then Matthias, in whoſe time the Jewiſh warre began. Theſe which I have thus named make up the number of 28. which, ſaith Joſephus, l. 20. c. 8. held the Pontificate from the time of Herod to Titus's burning of the Temple, i.e. were the men which were put into it by the Roman Præſidents, Præſidents, And Caiaphas, is one of them, and ſo he is mention'd *Mat.*26.3.and 57.and *Joh.*11.49. Caiaphas high prieſt of that year, and *Joh.*18.13. 14.24. referring to the yearly change of this office at that time, though, as appears by Joſephus, it were continued in Caiaphas for ſome ſpace. But now (to return to Annas again) it is obſervable from Joſephus, that beſide this ſeries of the chief prieſts, Ananias is ſet down as ἀρχιερεὺς in the very ſame time, when Jeſus Damnei is ſaid to have been put into that other line, l.20. c.8. And this appears to be the Annas here, for having ſpoken of him in the beginning of the chapter, and affirmed him to be the happieſt of all men, as having five ſons advanced to the dignity of high prieſt (viz: Eleazar, Jonathan, Theophilus, Mattathias and Annas) after himſelf had enjoyed it to ſatiety, he now adds, that Ananias became daily more famous, beloved, and for his liberality, honour'd of all, obliging daily with gifts Albinus the Procurator, and the Summus Pontifex, and preſently he mentions Eleazar, as ſon of this Ananias, whom before we have ſet down ſon of this Annas. This being thus evident, it will be more then a probable conjecture, that by Annas's or Ananias's Pontificate now ſpoken of, is meant his being the Naſi or ruler of the people at Jeruſalem (as before I ſaid) he being a perſon of ſo much authority among the Jewes. And ſo theſe two, the Naſi and the ſummus ſacerdos, being the two chief men among the Jewes (it being affirmed by Joſephus in the end of the 8th chap: of l.20. Ant: that the Pontifices were placed in the top of the Common-wealth, after the reign of Herod & Archelaus, the πολιτεία being brought to an Optimacy) may very well be reſolved on, to be theſe two here named, as the ἀρχιερεῖς at that time, though it fell out that they continued to be ſome years together. All which being put together will perhaps be able to anſwer any objection which can be brought againſt this conjecture. This Annas is after *Act.*4.6. call'd Ἄννας ἀρχιερεύς, Annas the high prieſt, or chief prieſt, and without doubt is the ἀρχιερεὺς Ἀναίας, *Act.*23.5. and *Act.*24.1. being by Joſephus ſo called as even now appear'd. Of him S. Paul, *Act.*23. ſaith, οὐκ ἤδειν ὅτι ἐστὶν ἀρχιερεύς, I knew not that he is high prieſt. 'Tis rightly wondered how Paul ſhould be able truly to ſay that he did not know him to be high prieſt, being ſo well acquainted with the Jewiſh nation, and the cuſtomes of their judicature: But if we take notice of the words of the by-ſtanders v.4. [revileſt thou God's high prieſt?] It is firſt certain, that Ananias was not ἀρχιερεὺς Θεοῦ, the high prieſt of God, nor indeed any man elſe at that time among them, the lineal ſucceſſion having been a long while interrupted. And to that in thoſe words S. Paul anſwers, that he did not know that he was; meaning thereby, I ſuppoſe, the lineal deſcendent from Aaron. 2ly, there being at this time another high prieſt to whom that name more properly belong'd, then to Ananias it could, viz: the ſummus Pontifex, or he that was put into the place of the Aaronicall prieſthood by the Roman Præfect, this might truly be ſaid by him again, I knew not that he was high prieſt. Howſoever knowing him to be at that time the Naſi, he retracted his haſty and ſharp ſpeech, as having ſaid ſomewhat againſt the Ruler of the people, who was not by God's law to be evil ſpoken of. That which is ordinarily ſaid of theſe two high prieſts, is, that one was the high prieſt, and the other his סגן or vicarius, ſuch as Zephaniah called the ſecond Prieſt, Jer. 52. 24. Of this Sagan, it is clear, that though he were chief or principal of the ordinary prieſts, which miniſtred to the high prieſt, and in the day of expiation, ſupplied his place in officiating, if any thing fell out, which hindred him from being able to doe it himſelf, and thereupon be called ראש הכהנים, the chief of the ordinary prieſts, and כהן השנית the ſecondary prieſt, and כהן אחר the other prieſt, and μίτης & ἀρχιερατεύων in Joſephus, partaker of his office, viz: when he officiates for him, or in that he is appointed his vicarius, yet he is never כהן גדול the high prieſt. What he was you may plainly ſee, Cod: Joma c.1. §.1. where having ſpoken of the high prieſt כהן גדול, that is to officiate on the day of expiation, it follows ומתקינין לו כהן אחר they appoint unto him another prieſt under him, שמא ארע בו פסול, if by chance any pollution or profanation (which hinders the high prieſt from officiating himſelf) doe befall him, as in Joſephus, Ant: l.17. c 8. when Matthias the high prieſt was unclean, Joſeph the ſon of Ellem was his proxy or vicar, to officiate for him, but this only for the ſpace of one day, as he there ſaith, (the great day of Expiation, as the Gloſſe on Joma clears it) by which it appears that he was under the high prieſt, as his ſubſtitute once a year for a day (not for a year, or any long time) but never his collegue or equall to him. 2ly. 'Tis evident, that this of the Sagan cannot be applied to this matter. For I ſhall demand, to which of theſe two did the office of Sagan belong at this time, to Annas, or to Caiaphas? To Annas it could not, becauſe if it did, he muſt be acknowledg'd inferiour to the high prieſt, whereas Annas in all paſſages of Scripture, where he is named with Caiaphas, hath the priority, and never appears to be inferiour to Caiaphas, and therefore it muſt belong to Caiaphas, or to neither of them. And to Caiaphas it cannot, becauſe 'tis manifeſt, both that Annas was not the Pontifex Maximus at this time, and that Caiaphas was, by the ſeries of them, even now ſet down from Joſephus. 3ly. The office of the Sagan as vicarius to the high prieſt, extended no farther then to the officiating in the Temple (for from that only was the high prieſt excluded by pollution, ſo as to need a ſubſtitute to officiate for him) Or if it could be conceived, that the Sagan were to ſupply the high prieſts place in judicature, when he were detained by ſickneſſe, &c. yet of Annas here that cannot be affirmed, for 'tis apparent, that his authority continued to him, *Joh.*18.13. when Caiaphas was in health, and acted as high prieſt, v.28. and ſo alſo *Act.*4.6. they both meet in counſel together. For theſe reaſons, I ſay, that ordinary way of reconciling this difficulty, by that of the Sagan, may not fitly be allow'd, being not appliable to either of theſe, who are both named here, as perſons of authority among the Jewes, next to the Emperour and his Procurator, and appeare at the apprehending of Chriſt to be Magiſtrates and perſons of civil juriſdiction, which the Naſi, and high prieſt were, but the Sagan, as ſuch, cannot be pretended to have been. Another account, I acknowledge, is given of this matter, by Euſebius l.1. c.9.

'Αρχιερεὺς 'Αναίας

l. 1. c. 9. to wit, that Christ is here said to have begun and accomplisht his whole time of preaching under Annas and Caiaphas high priests, which, saith he, notes the compasse of 4 years, and that he began his preaching, when Annas, and ended it, when Caiaphas was high priest. For about this time, saith he, the Roman Prafects having changed the Mosaicall course, they that were by them made high priests continued not above a year in it. And he brings a succession out of Josephus thus, Valerius Gratus putting Annas out of the high priesthood, made Ismael in his stead, then after a while removing him, he put Eleazar, Annas's son in his, and at the years end he gives it to Simon, and at the end of that year Joseph called Caiaphas also succeeded him, and all these within lesse then 4 yeares, and so, saith he, Caiaphas was high priest at the time of our Saviours passion. This might sound at first hearing, as a probable conjecture, but, if examined, will cease to be such. For, 1. the thing in hand Lu. 3. 1. is not to set down the space of the continuance of Christ's preaching, but the year of the beginning of John's preaching, punctually naming that 15th year of Tiberius, And 2ly, that which Josephus saith, Ant: l. 18. c. 3. is this, That at the beginning (not 15th year) of the reign of Tiberius, Valerius Gratus was sent Praesident into Judea, that he continued so eleven years, that in that time, probably in the three first years of his Government, he changed the high priest yearly, that Caiaphas was the last of them, who continued the rest of Gratus's time, and all Pilate's ten years, and was not removed till the time of Vitellius, who succeeded Pilate, and put Jonathan, Annas's son in his stead, l. 18. cap. 9. By which 'tis clear that Eusebius was mistaken in applying that, which Gratus did in the beginning of Tiberius's reigne, to the four years of Christ's preaching and crucifixion, which was certainly under Pilate, all whose time Caiaphas was continued in the high priesthood. And so that cannot be the way of salving this difficulty. There is only a third way, that I have met with, that Annas having been high priest long since, was now a kind of Consulary man, and as such, being also father-in-law to Caiaphas the high priest of the year, is styled ἀρχιερεὺς high priest also. But to this the answer is clear, that there were many other such Pontifical men alive, i. e. such as had been Pontifices in their times, and therefore there was nothing in that peculiar to Annas, or which could put him in the Pontifical Fasti, as the ἀρχιερεὺς of that year, without some other addition of Dignity, peculiar to him from those others, such as I suppose that of the Nasi, and cannot imagine that of being father-in-law to Caiaphas, or any such extrinsecall relation to be.

c. Συκοφαντῆσω] Συκοφαντῆσω, though it have a proverbial signification, to accuse, and by that means to flatter those, to whom that accusation is whisperingly conveyed, and had its originall from a passage about figs, as Phavorinus, and the Grammarians ordinarily expres it, yet it is used in a greater latitude for wronging, taking away any thing by force from any, according to the latitude of the signification of the Hebrew עשק which signifies both to calumniate, and to use violence, and accordingly is rendred in the Old Testament, sometimes by ἀδικέω, ἀποστερέω, καταδυναστεύω, (in the notion of oppressing by force) ἁρπάζω, διάζω, ἁρπάζω, sometimes by ζυκοφαντέω, but that in many places, when the sense would rather have required ἀδικέω, or the like, so in Job 35. 9. Psal. 119. 21. and other places. From this Old Testament-use of the word must the sense of it be fetcht in the New. So when Zacchaeus c. 19. 8. saith of himself εἴ τινός τι ἐσυκοφάντησα (which is the only other place where the word is used) it belongs clearly to wrong dealing, violence, injustice, taking by force from others (which was ordinary for the Publicans to doe, Πάντες τελῶναι, πάντες ἐσμὲν ἅρπαγες, all Publicans are rapacious, saith Zeno the Comedian, and such was Zacchaeus here) and therefore his penitent heart in that case vowes the satisfaction, which the law requires for theft, restitution fourfold. The word belongs to any kind of injustice or extortion, and so here to that which is ordinary among souldiers, rapine, plundring, συκοφάντης, ἁρπάζοντας, saith Hesychius, i. e. βιάζοντας, forcible invaders, and that is here farther expresst by that which follows, and be content with your ὀψωνίοις, i. e. those stipends, that are publickly appointed the souldiers, that are kept together in bands for publick use, as in Vopiscus, Annonâ suâ contentus sit, non de lachrymis provincialium vivat, i. e. Let them not oppresse those countrey men, where they are quartered, but rest satisfied with the allowance of victualls, &c. that is allowed them.

d. The setling of the genealogie of Christ, and reconciling the differences between S. Luke & S. Matthew, is a matter of some uncertainty, arising from the customes of the Jewes in reckoning their genealogies, among whom it is ordinary to find different pedegrees, which seem to contradict one another, when they doe not. And the matter requiring some length I rather referre the Reader to the labours of the learned H. Grotius on this place.

CHAP. IV.

Paraphrase.

1. AND Jesus being full of the holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, — See Mat. 4. 1.

2. Being fourty daies tempted of the devil, and in those daies he did eat nothing, and when they were ended, he afterward hungred.

3. And the devil said unto him, If thou be the son of God, command this stone, that it be made bread.

4. And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God. — See Mat. 4. 4.

5. And the devil taking him up into an high mountain, shewed unto him all the kingdomes of the world in a moment of time. — See Mat. 4. 8.

6. And

6. And the devil ſaid unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them, for that is delivered unto me, and to whomſoever I will, I give it.

7. If thou therefore wilt worſhip me, all ſhall be thine.

8. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: For it is written, thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him only ſhalt thou ſerve.

See Mat. 4. note b.

9. And he brought him to Jeruſalem, and ſet him on a * pinacle of the Temple, and ſaid unto him, If thou be the ſon of God, caſt thy ſelf down hence,

21. And he began to ſay unto them, This day is this ſcripture fulfilled in your ears.

22. And all that heard him did with acclamations expreſſe that they were amazed at the power and wiſdome with which he ſpake, (ſee Pſal. 45. 2.) wondring whence he had ſuch excellencies, Mat. 13. 54. but becauſe they knew he was Joſephs reputed ſon, one brought up in an ordinary condition, they did not beleive on him.

22. And all bare him witneſſe, and wondred at the gratious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they ſaid, Is not this Joſeph's ſon?]

23. Whereupon he ſpake unto them, ſaying, That ordinary proverb, [Phyſician &c.] (which ſignifies a man that is able to doe cures on ſtrangers, but not upon his own friends) is become appliable to me, who being beleived on by ſtrangers, and by that means having opportunities to doe miracles of healing among them, am deſpiced and rejected among my own countrey-men, very few of whom having that beleif of my power, as to come to me for cure, Mar. 6. 5. I cannot conſequently doe many ſuch miracles here, Mat. 13. 58. which in Capernaum and other places I have done.

23. And he ſaid unto them, Ye will ſurely ſay unto me this proverb, Phyſitian heale thy ſelf: Whatſoever we have heard done in Capernaum, doe alſo here in thy countrey.]

25, 26. As in Elias's time of the many men and women, particularly of widowes that were in that time of famine, through all Iſrael, there was none

25. But I tell you of a truth, many widowes were in Iſrael in the daies of Elias, when the heaven was ſhut up three years and ſix months, when great famine was throughout all the land.

26. But unto none of them was Elias ſent, ſave unto Sarepta a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.]

qualified to receive that miracle from Elias, but one onely, the widow of Sarepta, or Zarephath a city of Zidon 1 Kin. 17. 9.

27. And though there were many leprous perſons among the Iſraelites in Eliſha's time, yet they being his countrey-men, the obſervation was there as here, that no one of them had faith to ſeek and qualifie himſelf for a cure of his leproſie. Only Naaman which was not that countrey-man, but a Syrian, was by Eliſha converted to the true religion, and heal'd of his leproſie.

27. And many lepers were in Iſrael, in the time of Eliſeus the prophet, and none of them was cleanſed, ſaving Naaman the Syrian.]

28. And all they in the ſynagogue when they heard theſe things, were filled with wrath,

29. And

29. And roſe up, and thruſt him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill (whereon their city was built) that they might caſt him down headlong.

30. But he [paſſing through the midſt of them] went his way. 30. without being hurt by any of them.

31. And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the ſabbath daies.

32. And they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine, for [his word was with power.] 32. he ſpake with authority, Mat.7.29. and added miracles alſo to confirm the truth of what he ſaid.

33. And in the ſynagogue there was a man, which [had a ſpirit of an unclean devil,] and cried out with a loud voice, 33. was poſſeſſed by the devil, and tormented with a ſore diſeaſe conſequent to it,

34. Saying, Let us alone, what have we to doe with thee, thou Jeſus of Nazareth? art thou come to deſtroy us? I kuow thee who thou art, the holy One of God.

35. And Jeſus rebuked him, ſaying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had [thrown him in the midſt, he came out of him, and hurt him not.] 35. caſt him into a fit of apoplexy, before or in the preſence of them all, the devil and the diſeaſe departed from him, and he was very well immediately.

36. And they were all amazed, and ſpake among themſelves, ſaying, [What a word is this?] For with authority and power he commandeth the unclean ſpirits, and they come out. 36. This is very wonderfull beyond all that was ever ſeen before,

37. And the fame of him went out into every place of the countrey round about.

38. And he [aroſe] out of the ſynagogue, and entred into Simons houſe, and Simons wives mother was taken with a great feaver, and they beſought him for her. 38. went

39. And he ſtood over her, and [rebuked the feaver, and it left her,] and immediately ſhe aroſe, and miniſtred to them. 39. commanded the feaver to depart from her, and ſo it did,

40. Now when the ſun was ſetting, all they that had any ſick of divers diſeaſes brought them unto him, and he [laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them. 40. by prayer and impoſition of hands, without the uſe of any thing elſe, cured them.

41. And devils alſo came out of many, crying out, and ſaying, Thou art the Chriſt the ſon of God. And he rebuking them ſuffered them not to ſpeak, for they knew that he was Chriſt.

42. And when it was day he departed, and went into a deſert place, and the people ſought him, and came unto him, and [ſtayed him] that he ſhould not depart from them. 42. uſed all means to prevail with him

43. And he ſaid, [I muſt preach the kingdome of God to other cities alſo, for therefore am I ſent.] 43. My buſineſſe is to preach the Goſpel, (and the cures which I work are but ſubſerviens to that,) and this I muſt preach to the reſt of the villages and townes, and not continue ſtill in one place.

44. And he preached in the ſynagogues of Galilee.

Notes on Chap. IV.

3. ἀναπέλιτον] The word ἀναπέλιτον referres to the manner of writing among the Jewes, which was not in parchments or papers ſowed together, as we now uſe, but in one continued page or long roll, and that folded up to ſave it from duſt or other harm. So the Hebrew מגלת ספר ſignifies no more, then charta volubilis, a paper or parchment folded up, according to that of *Iſa.*3.4. וְנִגְלוּ, and the heavens ſhall be folded up כספר, as a book, referring to the cuſtome of folding books and writings, and ſo *Apoc.*6.14. the heavens paſſed away, ὡς βιβλίον ἑλισσόμενον, as a folded book, i.e. מגלת ספר, which is by the Greek ſometimes called βιβλίον, and by us rightly rendred a bill, Deut. 24 1. and ſometimes κεφαλὶς, from the round form, when 'tis folded up, as in architecture, ſome round parts are called κεφαλίδες, Exod. 26. 32.27. 17.36.34.38. 28.27. and ſo, ſaith Suidas, κεφαλὶς εἰδικῶς, ἔνθα πᾶς εἴλημα φάσαν, the volume, or round form of a book, which ſome call the folding; Thus it is uſed Heb. 10.7. out of the Pſalmiſt, for a roll, or inſtrument, or indenture, wherein Chriſt undertakes in writing, under his hand as it were, to doe Gods will, or that which God requires of him, by way of office. After the manner of theſe rolls or bills, were their books and other writings rolled up, when they would ſhut them, ספרי תורה שנגללין the books of the law folded up, ſaith *R. CHAP. V.

* came, or flockt about him, ἐπικεῖσθαι αὐτῷ,

1. AND it came to paſſe that as the people * preſſed upon him to heare the word of God, he ſtood by [the lake of Gennesareth,] 1. the ſea of Galilee, Mat. 4. 18. or lake of Tiberias, See note on chap. 8. c. and on Mar.14. c.

2. And ſaw two boats, one belonging to Andrew and Simon, Mat. 4. 18. tother to Zebedee, and his ſons, James and John, and the fiſhermen having made an end of fiſhing for that time, had carried out their nets, and cleanſed them, meaning not to let them down or uſe them any more.

2. And ſaw two ſhips ſtanding by the lake, but the fiſhermen * were gone [a] out of them, and were waſhing their nets.] * having gone out of them had waſhed their nets.

3. And he went into one of the ſhips, which was Simon's, and prayed him that he would thruſt out a little from the land, and he ſat down, and taught the people out of the ſhip.

4. Now when he had left ſpeaking, he ſaid unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets * for a draught. * to catch fiſh with,

5. And Simon anſwering, ſaid unto him, Maſter we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing, nevertheleſſe at thy word I will let down the net.

6. And when they had this done, they encloſed a great multitude of fiſhes, and their net brake.

7. And they beckned unto their parners which were in the other ſhip, that they ſhould come and help them. And they came and filled both the ſhips, ſo that [they began to ſink.]

7. both the boats with the weight of the fiſh ſunk into the water diſcernibly, and were in danger to be loſt.

8. My ſinnes make me uncapable of receiving benefit from thy miracles, this great miracle of the fiſh being ready to drown the boat, and to become deſtructive to me, I beſeech thee go out of the ſhip.

8. When Simon Peter ſaw it, he fell down at Jeſus knees, ſaying, [Depart from me, for I am a ſinfull man, O Lord.]

9. This he ſpake, not out of a deſire to be rid of his company, but out of a great ſenſe of his own unworthineſſe, and a great dread and amazement wrought in him by the miracle.

9. For he was aſtoniſhed,] and all that were with him, at the draught of fiſhes, which they had taken.

10. thou ſhalt be a fiſherman no longer, thy trade ſhall be changed into a more honourable, that of catching, ſo as to keep alive, and not (as in hunting and fiſhing &c. it is ordinary) to kill what is caught by thee, thou ſhalt catch men, and by ſo doing, preſerve them to all eternity.

10. And ſo was alſo James and John the ſons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon. And Jeſus ſaid unto Simon, Fear not, [from henceforth thou ſhalt catch men.]

11. all four of them

11. And when they had brought their ſhips to land, [they] forſook all and followed him.

12. And it came to paſſe, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leproſie, who ſeeing Jeſus fell on his face, and beſought him, ſaying, Lord, if thou wilt thou canſt [make me clean.]

12. recover me from my foul diſeaſe.

13. And he did but touch him, and ſpeak the word

17. And it came to paſſe [on a certain day, * as he was teaching, that there were Phariſees and doctors of the law ſitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judæa, and Jeruſalem, and the power of the Lord was preſent to heale them.] * he was alſo teaching, and, ſi dolor is, did devour

Mat. 9. 2.

20. And when he ſaw their faith, he ſaid unto him, Man thy ſinnes are forgiven thee.

21. This is ſure a blaſphemer, making a God of himſelf, for none but ſuch can forgive ſinnes.

21. And the Scribes and the Phariſees began to reaſon, ſaying, [Who is this which ſpeaketh blaſphemies? Who can forgive ſinnes but God alone?]

22. What ground have you for this diſpute beginning in your hearts (and expreſt by your tongues, v. 21.)

22. But when Jeſus perceived their thoughts, he anſwered and ſaid unto them, [What reaſon ye in your hearts?]

23, 24. Is it blaſphemy for him that is endued with divine power, & can cure all diſeaſes with his word, to forgive ſins alſo?

23. Whether is eaſier to ſay, Thy ſinnes be forgiven thee, or to ſay, Riſe up, and walk?

24. But that ye may know that the ſon of man hath power upon earth to forgive ſins, he ſaid unto the ſick of the palſie, I ſay unto thee, Ariſe, and take up thy couch and goe into thine houſe.] 25. And (ſee Mat.9.6.) whereupon he ſaid to the Paralytick, I command thy health to return to thee, and thee to take up that bed, on which now through weakneſſe thou art laid, and to carry it home unto thy houſe.

25. And immediately he aroſe up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own houſe, glorifying God.

26. And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, ſaying, We have ſeen ſtrange things to day.

27. And after theſe things he went forth and ſaw [a Publican named Levi] ſitting at the * receit of cuſtome, and he ſaid unto him, Follow me.

28. And he left all and roſe up and followed him.

29. And [Levi] made him a great feaſt in his own houſe, and there was a great company of Publicans, and of others that † ſat down with him.

30. * But [their Scribes and Phariſees murmured againſt his diſciples, ſaying, Why do ye eat and drink with Publicans and ſinners?]

32. I came not to call the righteous, but ſinners to repentance.

33. And they ſaid unto him, [Why doe the diſciples of John faſt often, and make prayers, and likewiſe the diſciples of the Phariſees, but thine eat and drink?]

34. And he ſaid unto them, [Can ye make the children of the bridechamber faſt,] while the bridegroom is with them?

35. But [the daies will come when the bridegroom ſhall be taken away from them, and then ſhall they faſt in thoſe daies.]

37. And no man putteth new wine into old bottles, elſe the new wine will burſt the bottles and be ſpilled, and the bottles will periſh.

39. It is not beſt immediately to bring men to an auſtere courſe of life, but by degrees, leſt they fall off upon the ungratefulneſſe of it: for they that have taſted old wine which is the ſmoother, will not willingly leave that for new, which is more harſh (ſee Ecclus.9.10.) the old being ſweeter, more grateſull and delightfull and agreeable to the ſtomach; And thus it is fit to condeſcend to the weakneſſes of men, and not preſently to require of my diſciples the auſterities of faſtings &c. eſpecially while I am with them, which is rather a time of feſtivity to them, But there will ſoon be a ſeaſon for faſting alſo, ver.35. &c.

Notes on Chap. V.

a. Some differences ſeem to be between the ſtory of Chriſt's coming to theſe two boats &c. here ſet down, from what it had been in S. Matthew. There Peter and Andrew were caſting nets into the ſea, or lake, Mat. 4. 18. and James and John were in the ſhip mending their nets, v.21. but here 'tis ſaid indifferently of them, that ἀποβάντες ἀπ' αὐτῶν, having departed from their boats, ἀπενίπτοντο τὰ δίκτυα, they waſhed, or, had waſhed their nets. So again 'tis ſaid that Chriſt called Andrew and Peter, and they followed him, Mat. 4. 20. καὶ προβὰς ἐκεῖθεν and departing thence he ſaw the other two, and called them v.22. whereas here when Peter is called, James and John are with him, v. 10. and unleſſe they were called at the ſame time with Peter, there would be found no other mention of their call, or their following of him. In anſwer to theſe, it muſt firſt be obſerved in general, that Matthew and Mark making a brief ſummary relation, and leaving out a main particular of this ſtory, which Luke takes in, that of the miracle of the fiſhes, and ſetting down no more but his ſeeing and coming to their boats, and his calling them, and their following him, doe upon occaſion of his coming firſt to one boat, then to the other, ſet down all that belongs to the one, before they proceed to the other, which is very ordinary in all ſtories, when yet many of the paſſages are intermixt. This being ſaid, it muſt next (for the reconciling of the firſt ſeeming difference) be obſerved, that what is here ſaid [ἀπενίπτοντο] in the Aoriſt, muſt be underſtood of the time paſt indefinitely, and be beſt rendred [they had waſhed their nets] and ſo for the ἀποβάντες too, they had gone out and waſht (i.e. they had given over fiſhing at that time) and having done ſo, they were returned to their boats again before this time, when 'tis ſaid of Chriſt, that he ſaw their ſhips ſtanding by the lake, i.e. at the point ſpecified here ver. 1. when ſtanding by the lake the people preſs'd upon, or flocked unto him to hear the word. And as this is intimated by S. Luke ver. 3. (when 'tis ſaid that Chriſt entred into one of the ſhips, and deſired Simon, the owner of it, to thruſt out a little, which notes that he was come back to the boat again) and as this is all that is affirmed by S. Luke in that matter, ſo it agrees very well with that which is ſaid by S. Matthew; For before this it is, at Chriſt's firſt comming to the lake, that S. Matthew deſcribes them in another poſture, Jeſus walking by the ſea of Galilee ſaw two brothers, Simon and Andrew, βάλλοντας &c. caſting a net into the ſea; Which as it may poſſibly ſignifie fiſhing, ſo it may otherwiſe be interpreted, not to denote their being actually a fiſhing at that time (for that is expreſſed Lu. 5. 4. by a very diſtant phraſe, χαλάσατε τὰ δίκτυα εἰς ἄγραν letting down their nets to catch, and that by lanching out εἰς τὸ βάθος into the deep or midſt of the lake) but more probably their waſhing their nets in the ſea, as they were ſitting on the ſhore, (and then that will be directly all one with the ἀπεπλυνον waſhing or ſcouring of them, which, as now paſt, is here mentioned by S. Luke) And departing thence, ſaith S. Matthew, he ſaw other two brothers, the ſons of Zebedee in the ſhip mending their nets: where, as their mending their nets was ſubſequent to the waſhing of them (and ſuppoſes it paſt, as ἀπεπλυναν they had waſhed] here doth) ſo it agrees with S. Luke's affirmation, ver. 7, where they are ſuppoſed to be ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ in the boat. The deſign of S. Luke in ſetting down this circumſtance of their having gone out of their boats, and waſht their nets] was doubtleſſe to intimate, what is after affirmed, ver. 5. that at the time of Chriſt's coming thither, they had deſpaired of catching any fiſh, and ſo had given over for that time, and had ſet to waſhing, and after that, they in one boat, ſaith S. Matthew, to mending their nets; which as it is a farther evidence of their reſolution to fiſh no more at that time, ſo it is an enhaunſment of the miracle following, of the great draught of fiſh, which S. Luke ſets down at large, but Matthew and Mark did not meddle with. Which order being thus ſuppoſed in the firſt part, the ſecond will follow very agreeably, and all be capable of an exact harmony, by compounding of Matthew and Luke together thus; Jeſus walking by the ſea of Galilee, at his firſt coming thither, ſaw two brothers, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, caſting their net into the ſea, Mat. 4. 18. i.e. waſhing of it Lu. 5. 2. When he had ſtaid a while with them, he went on to another boat, and there he found other two brethren, James the ſon of Zebedee, and John his brother in a boat with Zebedee their father, who having newly waſhed, were now mending their nets v. 21. both theſe precedent to, and ſo reconcileable with the ſubſequent paſſages mentioned Lu. 5. 2. He ſaw two ſhips ſtanding, or abiding ἐπὶ τῆς λίμνης by the lake, i.e. at the ſhore, and the fiſhermen having gone out of them had waſhed their nets. And then (upon the peoples preſſing about him to hear, Lu. 5. 1.) followes that paſſage (not at all related by S. Matthew or S. Mark) that he went into one of the ſhips or boats, that of Peter v. 3. and having, contrary to Peter's intention, perſwaded him to lanch out and let down the net εἰς ἄγραν, to trie what he could catch, he there wrought that miracle, which had like to have drowned the boat, and occaſioned the calling in of James & John to their relief, and gave them all an aſtoniſhing evidence of his power. Hereupon to remove their feares, Chriſt ſaith to Simon here in the end of v. 10. Feare not, henceforth thou ſhalt catch men, At which time, I ſuppoſe, he called, not him onely, but all the other three, that had their parts in this miracle; This Matthew ſets down firſt of Peter and Andrew v. 19. to whom he ſaith, Follow me, and I will make you fiſhers of men, and immediatly they followed him v. 20. and then of the other two v. 22. who alſo left their nets and boat and father, and followed him; which act of their ready following, S. Luke ſets down agreeably, though more diſtinctly v. 11. when they had brought their boats to land, they left all, and followed him; i.e. when the two paire of fiſhermen, with their two boats, ſo laden that they were afraid they would ſink, had brought them ſafe to ſhore, and had this farther evidence of Chriſt's power in delivering them from that danger, being all called, they all obeyed his call, left their trade and goods, and attended him as diſciples ever after. And whereas of his calling the ſons of Zebedee, S. Mark interpoſes, εὐθέως] he ſaw them mending their nets, and ſtraightway he called them, Mar. 1. 19, 20. which ſeems to place no ſpace, or interval betwixt his coming to their boat, and his calling them, That may eaſily be anſwer'd by obſerving, 1. that the ward [εὐθέως] preſently, is not alwaies taken in that nice ſenſe, to ſignifie immediately, but often is taken in a latitude, and includes a greater interval, then here is ſuppoſed to have been, and 2ly that it is not unlikely, that here ſhould be an ὑστέρωτον in the period, wch will thus be cleared in conſtruction, he ſtraightway called them, and they left their father,] i.e. aſſoon as he called them, they immediately left, for ſo 'tis read in S. Matthew, He call'd thē, And they immediatly left the boat &c.

Βάλλουσι ἀμφίβληστρον εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν

Εὐθέως

Αὐτῶν their, or of them] cannot relate to thoſe, which went next before, the Publicans, and other gueſts at the feaſt; For if γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν their Scribes] were ſome of them, they muſt murmure againſt themſelves. Another way there is to render theſe words, by joyning αὐτῶν to ἐγόγγυζον, murmured,] thus, the Scribes murmured at them, i.e. at Chriſt and thoſe that were with him. In this way of interpreting it there will be two difficulties, 1. that γογγύζω murmuring ſhould be joyned with a genitive caſe, but that may be ſalved, by ſaying that χν is underſtood, as when Mat. 10. 1. δύναμις πνευμάτων power of ſpirits, is power againſt, or over ſpirits, and Lu. 6. 7. κατηγορίαν αὐτῶν an accuſation of, i.e againſt him. The 2d is that πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς ordinarily rendred [againſt his diſciples] is immediately joyned with [ἐγόγγυζον, murmured,] which if it ſtand ſo, αὐτῶν] againſt them, cannot be joyned with it alſo. The only way to ſalve that, is by altering the ordinary punctation, and reading πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς to his diſciples, joyning it to λέγοντες ſaying] thus, ἐγόγγυζον οἱ γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς λέγοντες, The Scribes and Phariſees murmured at them, ſaying to his diſciples, But there doth not appear any neceſſity of this, there being yet a third interpretation, which is preſs't with no inconvenience, viz: by rendring γραμματεῖς αὐτῶν] the Scribes of them, i.e. the Lawyers &c. of, or among the Jews, inhabitants of that place, which were then preſent, and ſo the Phariſees alſo, as many of that ſect, as were there preſent at that time.

CHAP. VI.

Paraphraſe.

* ſecond prime ſabbath

1. AND it came to paſſe on the * ſecond [a] ſabbath after the firſt, that he went through the corn fields, and his diſciples plucked the eares of corn and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.]

1. In the morning of the day of Pentecoſt falling on a ſabbath day, by which conjunction that day became an high ſabbath, Chriſt paſſed through the corn-fields which were now full ripe (this feaſt of Pentecoſt being called the feaſt of harveſt Exod.23.16.) and his diſciples (ſee Mat.12. a.) pluckt the eares of corn and eat of it. a.

2. And certain of the Phariſees ſaid unto them, Why doe ye that which is not lawfull to doe on the ſabbath daies?]

2. And the Phariſees queſtion'd them, ſaying, Why doe you eat before the publick ſervice, which is not to be done on ſabbath daies, eſpecially on ſuch daies as this, the feaſt of Pentecoſt? See note on Mat.12. a.

3. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Have ye not read ſo much as this, what David did when himſelf was an hungred, and they which were with him?

4. How he went into the houſe of God, and did take and eat the ſhew-bread, and gave alſo to them that were with him, which it is not lawfull to eate, but for the prieſts alone.]

3,4. And Jeſus anſwered for the diſciples, by putting them in mind, what David did in the like caſe, that of hunger, tranſgreſſing the law of holy things, which is in like manner appliable to ſuch tranſgreſſions as theſe on the ſabbath daies.

5. And he ſaid unto them, that, The ſon of man is Lord alſo of the ſabbath. See Mat.12. a.

6. And it came to paſſe alſo on another ſabbath, that he entred into the ſynagogue, and taught, and there was a man whoſe right hand was withered.

7. And the Scribes and Phariſees [watched him, whether he would heale on the ſabbath day,] that they might find an accuſation againſt him.

7. obſerved him inſidiouſly, and at laſt asked him whether the working a cure on the ſabbath day were lawfull or no? Mat.12.10.

9. Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, I will ask you one thing, Is it lawfull on the ſabbath daies to doe good, or to doe evil; to ſave life, or to deſtroy it?]

9. And therefore ſaid, He that doth not an act of charity when there is need of it, and he can doe it, doth commit ſinne, and he that then doth not cure, deſtroies; I ſhall therefore ask you this queſtion, Which of theſe is the fitteſt employment for a ſabbath day, to cure, or kill?

10. And looking round about upon them all, he ſaid unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand; and he did ſo, and his hand was reſtored whole as the other.

11. And they were filled with [madneſſe, and communed one with another] what they might doe to Jeſus.

18. And they [that were vexed with unclean ſpirits,] and they were healed.

18. that being poſſeſt by the devils were brought into any diſeaſe by them,

19. And the whole multitude ſought to touch him, [for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.]

19. becauſe by virtue of any bare touch of his, cures were conveighed to all that needed them.

20. And he lifted up his eyes on his diſciples, and ſaid, Bleſſed [d are yee poor, for yours is the kingdome of God.]

* pit? Gibbar;

40. every right true follower of Chriſt will be content to ſuffer what his maſter ſuffers before him, Mat. 16. 25. and that portion he muſt look for.

40. The diſciple is not above his maſter, but [every one that is perfect ſhall be as his Maſter.]

41. ſmall thin ſhiver of wood

41. And why beholdeſt thou the * mote] that is in thy brothers eye, but perceiveſt not the beam that is in thine own eye?

* ſhiver. ſee Mat. 7. a.

Mat. 7. 4.

42. Either how canſt thou ſay to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thy ſelf beholdeſt not the beam that is in thine thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, caſt out firſt the beam that is in thine own eye, and then ſhalt thou ſee clearly to pull out the mote that is in thy brothers eye.

43. For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit, neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.] 43. For 'tis not thy ſupercilious finding fault, or judging of others, that will ever denominate thee good, unleſſe thine own heart, and practiſes be accordingly.

44. For every tree is known by his own fruit,] for of thorns men doe not gather figs, nor of a bramble-buſh gather they grapes. 44. For every tree is diſcerned to be good by bringing forth that fruit which is proper to it, good of the kind.

45. A good man out of the good treaſure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good:] and an evil man out of the evil treaſure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is evil. For of the abundance of the heart his mouth ſpeaketh. 45. Every man hath a treaſury or repoſitory within him, from whence all his actions are ſent forth, he that hath an honeſt heart, a repoſitory of good purpoſes and reſolutions, on all occaſions brings forth from thence good actions.

46. And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and doe not the things which I ſay?] 46. 'Tis to little purpoſe for you to profeſſe Chriſtianity, to expect any good by that profeſſion, unleſſe your actions are ſutable to my commands.

47. Whoſoever cometh to me, and heares my ſayings, and doth them, I will ſhew you to whom he is like.

48. He is like a man which built an houſe and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock, and when the flood aroſe, the ſtream beat vehemently upon that houſe, and could not ſhake it, for it was founded upon a rock.] 47, 48. Every diſciple of mine that obeyes my doctrine, is to be compared to a builder, which in laying his foundation, digged till he came to a firm rock, or hard ſtone, and laid his foundation upon that, and he had the benefit of it, no violence of wind, or flood (parallel to which are the moſt boyſterous temptations of the world) could ſhake his building, Mat. 7. 26.

49. But he which heareth and doth not,] is like a man that without a foundation built an houſe upon the earth, againſt which the ſtream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell, and the ruine of that houſe was great. 49. But he that ſinketh not downe my precepts into his heart,

Notes on Chap. VI.

2. δευτεροπρωτου Σαββατου

This phraſe δευτεροπρωτου Σαββατου] hath been matter of trouble to interpreters. The moſt probable conjecture concerning it is that of the learned H. Grotius, which I ſhall thus explain and confirm. When any of the ſolemn yearly feaſts fell on the Sabbath day, that Sabbath had a ſpeciall extraordinary reſpect attributed to it, and was called ſometimes μεγα σαββατον, a great Sabbath, and μεγαλη ημερα του Σαββατου a great day of Sabbath, Jo. 19. 31. Now three of theſe feaſts there were, the Paſſover, Pentecoſt, and the feaſt of Tabernacles. Of theſe feaſts ſome dayes there were, dayes of holy aſſemblies, מקרא wherein the aſſemblies were called together, as the firſt day of unleavened bread, Lev. 23. 7. and the ſeventh day of it, v. 8. the day of Pentecoſt, Lev. 23. 21. the firſt of the feaſt of Tabernacles, Lev. 23. 35. and the eighth, v. 36. And theſe being dayes of reſt (as 'tis appointed in every of thoſe places) were a kind of Sabbaths, and diſtinguiſht from the other dayes of the feaſt, and therefore called ημερα μεγαλη, the great day, Iſ. 1. 13. and ημερα μεγαλη της εορτης, the great day of the feaſt, Jo. 7. 37. And accordingly Tertullian cont. Marcion. l. 5. ſpeaking of the obſervation of dayes, mentions jejunia & dies magnos, Faſts and great dayes. But when any of theſe great dayes fell on the Sabbath too, then that was not only a great day, but a great Sabbath. Now this great Sabbath was called alſo πρωτον σαββατον, a prime or firſt Sabbath (as πρωτον and μεγα are all one) and conſequently three of theſe prime or great or firſt Sabbaths there were, 1. When the Paſſover, i. e. either of the great dayes of that Feaſt, but eſpecially the firſt, fell on a Sabbath, and 2ly, when the day of Pentecoſt, and 3ly, when the great day of the feaſt of Tabernacles fell on a Sabbath day, and theſe prime or great Sabbaths were thus diſtinguiſht one from another, The firſt of them call πρωτοπρωτον σαββατον the firſt prime Sabbath, i. e. when the firſt day of the feaſt of Paſſover fell upon a Sabbath day. The ſecond of them δευτεροπρωτον σαββατον, the ſecond prime Sabbath, i. e. the day of Pentecoſt falling on a Sabbath. The third of them τριτοπρωτον Σαββατον, the third prime Sabbath, i. e. the great day of the feaſt of Tabernacles falling on a Sabbath, of which Joſephus ſaith, that 'tis then μαλιστα σεμνυνομενον σαββατον, a Sabbath moſt adored or reverenced. By all this appears, that by this phraſe [εν σαββατῳ δευτεροπρωτῳ] is meant [on the day of Pentecoſt falling on a Sabbath] at that time. That δευτεροπρωτῳ ſhould be all one, as if it had been δευτερον πρωτῳ, appears to be according to analogy, by the like uſe of δευτεροδευτερῳ, uſed frequently by Joſephus (not as 'tis conceived, for the tithe of tithes payed by the Levites to the Prieſts, but the ſecond tithing which was ſold, and the price carried up to Jeruſalem, and ſpent in feſtivity there, Tob. 1. 7.) which in Tobit is called δευτερα δεκατη in two words, the ſecond tithing.

b. Προσευχη

Προσευχη ſignifies an oratory, a place where men are wont to pray, and ſo ſeems to be uſed in ſome places of the Scripture, eſpecially in Saint Lukes writings. So Acts 16. 13. ου ενομιζετο προσευχη ειναι, the Syriack read, ubi conſpiciebatur, בית צלותא, where a houſe of prayer was ſeen, a praying place by a river ſide, as here on a mountain, ſuch an one there was in Miſpah, 1 Mac. 3. 46. where upon occaſion of the victory gotten by Joſhua in that place, Joſ. 11. 3. 8. they were wont to meet to pray, and to deliberate on any great affair, and there was an altar built by Joſhua, and בית תחנולה an houſe of prayer, or בית מקורש לתחנולה an houſe conſecrate for prayers, which prayers, and conſecration, being both made unto God, it is very agreeable, that thoſe places ſo conſecrated crated to him, ſhould be called, as here, προσευχαὶ Θεοῦ, Oratories or praying houſes of God. Of theſe προσευχαὶ we find frequent mention in Joſephus in his own life, the people convened in a προσευχὴ, as they call it, a houſe of prayer, ample and capacious of great multitudes; and ſpeaking of Tiberias, I found the people convened in a προσευχὴ, and Epiphan. t. 2. l. 3. c. 80. There were ancient places of prayer both among the Jewes, without the city, and among the Samaritans, as we find, ſaith he, in the Acts of the Apoſtles. Such a place there is in Sichem, which is now called Neapolis, without the city in a plain region. And ſome ſuch place it may ſeem to be, wherein Jeſus continued all night, in this verſe.

c. Ἀπόστολοι. The title [Ἀπόστολοι Apoſtles] which is here by Chriſt ſaid to be given to the Twelve, is a name of power, and dignity, and authority in the Church, and how it doth ſignify ſo, will deſerve to be explained. That the Government of the Church of God was now ſetled on the ſon of man upon earth, i. e. upon Chriſt incarnate, had been foretold, Iſ. 9. 6. the Government ſhall be upon his ſhoulders, and Iſ. 61. 1. the ſpirit of the Lord God is upon me, becauſe the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings, &c. he hath ſent me to bind up, &c. to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, &c. (ſee Lu. 4. 18. 21.) In which place, as the Anointing, and the Spirit of the Lord being upon him, ſo the ſending] is the ſetling the Government upon him. And the ſending is a ſolemn word, noting a Diploma, or Commiſſion ſealed to him, (as it were, by God in heaven) by the Spirits deſcending on him, Mat. 3. 17. and that ſupplyed the place of the ſolemn unction (the ceremony of advancing to any office, which is therefore paraphraſed by the Chaldee by רבא exaltation) which was now out of faſhion under the ſecond Temple, and was to be ſupplied by Gods teſtimony from heaven, as to Chriſt it was, and is accordingly ſtyled Gods anointing him with the holy Ghoſt, Acts 10. 38. and ſimply Gods anointing, Acts 4. 27. Hence is it that Chriſt is ſaid to be ſent by his Father, Joh. 20. 21. to have power on earth to forgive ſins, Mat. 9. 6. to have all power in heaven and earth delivered to him, Mat. 28. 18. to be the teacher, and Lord of his Church, or Diſciples, Ioh. 13. 1. and as the High Prieſt of our profeſſion, ſo Ἀπόστολος, the Apoſtle, Heb. 3. 1. in the ſame ſenſe as the Great Paſtor of his ſheep, Heb. 13. 20. and the only (as Paſtor, ſo) Biſhop of our ſoules, 1 Pet. 2. 25. from whence ſaith Origen on Mat. 24. Propriè Epiſcopus Dominus Ieſus eſt, The Lord Jeſus is properly a Biſhop. Now what was thus conferred on Chriſt, was alſo perſonally exerciſed by him, upon earth, whiles he remained here, he preached the Goſpel, inſtituted rites in his Church to continue for ever, called diſciples, gave them commands, uſed their miniſtery, deſigned ſome to certain offices, ſent out ſeventy Lu. 10. 1. as Heralds, before his face, gave them power to cure diſeaſes, v. 9. and ſo committed to them ſome, though but a temporary office, or miſſion, which ceaſed at their return to him, v. 17. On others he reſolved to inſtate a larger and more durable power, to ſend them, as his Father had ſent him, to make them his ſucceſſors on earth, but this he did not at this time. He ſent them indeed (the twelve peculiarly) Mat. 10. 5. and that with no ſmall power; power to caſt out unclean ſpirits, v. 1. and to preach, v. 7. and that was the ſumme of this Miſſion, v. 8. Preach, cure, cleanſe, raiſe, caſt out devils, freely ye have received, freely give, diſpenſe the powers liberally to the advantage of others, which are ſo freely beſtowed on you. Proportionably to this, and that other of the ſeventy, Lu. 10. it is to be remembred that among the Jewes, all ſorts of Meſſengers are called שלוחים Ἀπόστολοι. So Abijah, 1 Kings 14. 6. is called ἀγγελὸς Ἀπόστολος, i. e. שלוח an harſh Apoſtle or meſſenger of ill news, ſo the twelve ſpyes, Num. 13. were ſaid ἀποστελλεσθαι to be ſent to explore the land, (and were as it were a ſampler of the twelve that here Chriſt ſends out on the like account) and in the Old Teſtament the word is no otherwiſe uſed; Among the Talmudiſts 'tis uſed of them that were by the Rulers of the Synagogues ſent out to receive the tenths, and dues that belonged to the Synagogues, ſuch as Philo calls ἱερέμπτους τῶν χρημάτων, ſent for the monies of the Temple, leg. ad Caium, and by the Emperour * Auguſtus, ἀποδόχους receivers, (and in like manner the meſſengers of the Church that carryed their liberality, or letters congratulatory from one to another, are by Ignatius called θεοδρόμοι and θεοπρεσβύται, the divine Carriers, or Embaſſadors) and ſo in the Theodoſian Codex tit. de Judæis, Apoſtoli are thoſe that were ſent by the Patriarch at a ſet time to require the gold, and ſilver due to them. Of theſe it is obſervable, that when they were thus imployed though not on any very high imployments, and but for a ſhort time, they yet were furniſht with letters of proxy, or attourney, that what they did, might be done in the names and perſons of thoſe, from whom they were ſent, and from thence the axiom is known among the Jewes, that every mans Apoſtle is as himſelfe, to which Chriſt ſeems to referre, Mat. 10. 14. He that receiveth you, receiveth me, &c. So when Saul was ſent by the Jewiſh Sanhedrim to Damaſcus, Acts 9. he had the letters of the High Prieſt with him, v. 2. And hitherto there is nothing diſcernible in this word [Apoſtle] that hath any denotation of dignity or government that muſt be fetcht from Joh. 20. 21. where Chriſt ſends his diſciples as his Father had ſent him, ſends them ſolemnly, and with commiſſion, in that notion of ſending, wherein the Procurator, or Proconſul, is ſent to his Province, or wherein Moſes is ſent to the Iſraelites in Egypt, (ſend by whom thou wilt ſend, ſaith Moſes) or wherein Kings, and Judges, and Saviours are every where in the Old Teſtament ſaid to be ſent, when they are by God advanced to any Government. Thus muſt Chriſt mean of himſelf, that he was ſent by his father (ſee Mat. 10. 40. & 15. 24. & Ioh. 3. 24. & 5. 38. & 6. 57. & 17. 3.) and conſequently thus muſt it be underſtood, that they are ſent by Chriſt, and ſo Ioh. 17. 18. As thou haſt ſent me into the world, I alſo have ſent them (without referring to the ordinary שלוחים of the Iews, the meſſengers of the Patriarchs) and ſo as in the earthly Kingdom, the ἡγεμόνες Rulers, or Procurators (ſuch was Pilat in Judæa) which are next the Regal authority, are ſaid to be πεμπόμενοι ſent, 1 Pet. 2. 14. ſo the Apoſtles of Chriſt are ſent alſo in Chriſts ſpiritual Kingdom, ſent, not before his face, as Miniſters, Diſciples, the Seventy, Lu. 10. 1. and generally meſſengers are ſaid to be ſent, but but ſent, as his ſucceſſors and Heires on earth, endued with that power by commiſſion from him, which he here executed. And this is the meaning of the word here, which ſeems not as yet to be beſtowed on them by Chriſt, but being after really inſtated on them, 'tis here, and c. 17. 5. & 22. 14. occaſionally mentioned, and ſo Mat. 10. 2. by way of ἐπίνοιαν or anticipation (as the name Peter is, Mat. 4. 18.) the title that belonged to them at the writing of this. Thus when we read that the Father gave judgement to the Son, Ioh. 5. 22. we read alſo in effect that the Sonne gives judgement to the Apoſtles, Mat. 19. 28. Lu. 22. 30. 2 Cor. 10. 6. when the Father gives the Sonne power to forgive ſinnes upon earth, Mat. 10. 6. the Sonne gives power to the Apoſtles to remit ſin on earth alſo, Ioh. 20. 23. As the Father gave the keyes to the Son, Iſ. 22. 22. Rev. 3. 7. ſo the Son gave the keyes to the Apoſtles, Mat. 16. 19. As the Father gave the Son to ſit on his Throne, ſo the Son gave the Apoſtles to ſit with him on Thrones, Mat. 19. 28. Lu. 22. 30. As the the Father gave the Son to be the foundation or corner ſtone of the Church, Mat. 21. 42. ſo the Son gave the Apoſtles to be foundations upon a foundation, Eph. 2. 20. the foundation of Apoſtles, Chriſt being the chief corner ſtone, And ſo as the Father ſent the Son, Ioh. 5. 24. & 17, 18. ſo the Son ſent the Apoſtles, Ioh. 20. 21. And from the dignity of this office it is, that the very Angel, Rev. 19. 20. (whoſe name hath no more in it, then Ἄγγελος hath, both ſignifying meſſengers, or legates) profeſſes himſelfe to be but a fellow-ſervant of Iohn, and his Brethren, that have the teſtimony of Ieſus, i. e. of Apoſtles and Apoſtolick men, The teſtification of the reſurrection of Chriſt and the Chriſtian faith, to which the Apoſtles were ſent by Chriſt, being, as 'tis there ſaid, the ſpirit of prophecy, the moſt honourable office, that any mortal can be deſigned to by Chriſt, and there put in compariſon with that joyfull newes brought them by that Angel, of the Emperours giving up their names unto Chriſt. See more of this word note on Io. 20. a. & Ro. 16. b. & 2 Cor. 5. b.

d. That the beatitudes here repeated are the ſame, which are mentioned Mat. 5. there is little cauſe of doubting, though whether they were but once delivered only in the Sermon in the Mount, or whether again repeated in ſome other Sermon to other auditors, it is uncertain. That there is ſome variety in the words, as alſo ſome other places, ſome light differences between this and the other Goſpels, ſeems to be cauſed by S. Lukes writing his Goſpel by ſhort notes, which he had received from thoſe, which were preſent, being not an eye-witneſs or ear-witneſs himſelf, (ſee chap. 1. 3. and note on the title of Saint Matthew's Goſpel.) From whence it follows that theſe words in S. Luke are to be interpreted according to the importance of thoſe in S. Matthew, who ſets them down more fully. And accordingly by the poor] here, muſt be underſtood the poor in ſpirit there, by the hungry here, thoſe that hunger and thirſt after righteouſneſs there, as the words of an Epitome are to be interpreted according to the ſenſe of the entire copy, before it was thus contracted.

e. That the word ἀφορίζειν to ſeparate] denotes the firſt ſort of excommunication among the Jewes, there is no doubt, That they call'd נדוי Remotion, or ſeparation to the diſtance of four paces, for thirty daies, and that (though not totally yet) in that degree, from civil, and domeſtick, and ſacred commerce, there being a gate into the Temple, call'd the Gate of mourners, by which theſe were to enter, to diſcriminate them from other men. And that Hebrew word cannot be more literally rendred in Greek, then by ἀφορισμὸς. This did lay a reproach on him that was under it, and therefore that which is here added of evil Nown reproach you, may perhaps be but an appendix, or conſequent of that, But then the ἐκβάλλειν τὸ ὄνομα ὑμῶν ὡς πονηρὸν, to caſt out your name as evil] ſeems to referre to an higher degree that of חרם or anathema, For there is an Hebraiſm in that phraſe, The word ὄνομα name ſignifies no more then perſon (ſo many ὀνόματα names Act. 1. 15. is ſo many men) ὄνομα ὑμῶν your perſons, you, and πονηρὸν] is ſcandalous, offenſive, abominable, as נאץ is by the Septuagint ſometimes rendred ἀτιμάζειν being aſhamed, ſometimes βδελύσσω to abominate, ſometimes πονηρὸς εἶναι, to be evil or wicked Gen. 34. 24. Eſdr. 4. 12. and ſo to caſt out your names as evil] will ſignifie to caſt out as wicked, ſhamefull, abominable perſons, a denotation of the חרם, which was the total caſting out, and that with reproaches, curſes, & execrations added to it, ſuch as in Moſes are denounced againſt the greater malefactors, See more of this matter, note Iob. 9. b.

Ἐκβαλλειν τὸ ὄνομα ὑμῶν ὡς πονηρὸν, to caſt out your name as evil.

What the word ἀπαίτειν] here ſignifies, will be worth the enquiry, For if it ſignifie to require or demand, or aske again, the Prohibition will be ſomewhat ſtrange, and not ſo agreeable either to the context, or to the duty of Liberality here preſcribed, that any thing but neceſſity ſhould incline us to pitch on that interpretation. For if the [ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντός σου τὰ σὰ, from him that taketh thy goods] be ſo interpreted, as to underſtand his forcible, or involuntary depriving thee, it will then be a meanes to offer up the Chriſtian to the violence of every unjuſt perſon, and oblige him never to make uſe of Chriſtian judicatures, or arbitrations (which appear not to be forbidden the Chriſtian 1 Cor. 6. 4. 7.) to gain his own again, nay not ſo much as to challenge, or make claim to it, when he finds it in anothers hands, Which beſides that it is not agreeable to any other precept of the Goſpel, is not at all pertinent to the buſineſſe of liberality, that uſhers in, and of charity, that immediately attends theſe words. Or if the ἄρων τὰ σὰ, he that taketh thy goods] be (as no doubt it ought) interpreted of borrowing, or receiving by way of lone, then the not-demanding, or asking them again, makes that lone all one with a gift, and ſo the ſame that had before been ſaid, only an addition of a fraud in him that borroweth, and payeth not again. The ſurer way then of underſtanding theſe words aright, which are a double rule for our charity, regulating both our gifts and our lones (both ſpecial charities, and diſtinctly mentioned in the Scripture, Pſ. 112. 5. the good man is mercifull, and lendeth, and Pſ. 37. 26. the righteous is ever mercifull and lendeth, and Eccluſ. 29. 1. he that is mercifull will lend to his neighbour) will be to obſerve the force of the ἀπαίτειν among the Greek Tranſlators of the Old Teſtament, particularly in the book of Nehemiah, where it frequently occurres for exacting of uſury, and where the Hebrew נשה נשה uſuram exigentes]

Ἄρων τὰ σὰ.

f. Ἀπαίτειν.

gentes] is rendred simply by ἀναστῆσαι to exalt, without any substantive added to it, and so the Greek noun ἀναίτους] exacting, signifies there the requiring of use. So 2 Mac. 4. 27. that which is rendred [required it] most probably signifies the receiving use, the period being best rendred thus, As for the mony, &c. he put it not into any good course, but Sostratus took the use of it, for unto him belonged the managing of the monies, According to which notion the Translation here will be very agreeable, and the sense commodious. Ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴροντος from him that receiveth (not ἁρπάζοντος taketh by force, but as ἄρειν is all one with λαμβάνειν to take or receive) by way of loane, τὰ σὰ thy goods, μὴ ἀπαίτει require no usury of him, lend freely to the poor borrower, without taking, or requiring use of him, which being here a precept of charity and mercy from the rich to the poor, may not so be interpreted as to bind the poor to do the same to the rich, or any to any but the poor, as indeed the every one that asketh] to whom we are commanded to give, is not to be extended to the covetous, craving rich, but to the distressed destitute poor man, and obligeth him that is able, not who is not able to give.

g. Ἀπελπίζειν

The word ἀπελπίζειν] compared with ἀπολαβεῖν] going before ver. 34. may seem to signifie proportionably to that, hoping for a returne of kindness from him to whom kindness hath been shewed, and so, as ἀπέχειν v. 24. signifies no more then ἔχειν ἀπό, to receive, So by analogie might ἀπελπίζειν be ἐλπίζειν ἀπό, to hope from. But the truth is, there is not in the bible any such notion of the word ἀπελπίζω, but the word constantly signifies to distrust, or despaire; So Esth. 14. 19. Judith 9. 12. Isa. 29. 19. ἀπελπισμένοι forlorne persons, in a desperate condition. So also Eccles. 22. 22. μὴ ἀπελπίσῃς, feare not, and ch. 27. 21. ἀπέλπιστον, is without hope, and 2 Mac. 9. 18. ἀπελπίσας despairing, and in all the bible in no other sense, but that of distrust or despaire. And this will very well agree with the context also, thus, The heathens give and lend to other men, knowing that they may want themselves, and so designing their present act of charity, with reflexion on themselves, that they to whom they lend or give, may doe as much for them at another time, but the Christian is to doe his acts of charity without any such purpose, or designe of receiving any retribution from man, and yet need not distrust, or doubt, or be discouraged in his work. For though he lose that present advantage, yet God, who is the great rewarder, ἀνταποδότης, the God of recompence or retributions (to which the next words referre, your reward shall be plentifull, and so v. 38. δοθήσεται, it shall be given unto you) will not see him a loser by it, he may be as considerat (through the blessing of God which is promised to an almes-giver) that he shall be never the worse for any thing he thus gives or lends, as if he had in his view a present retribution from him to whom he hath given or lent. To this sense perfectly agreeable is that Apostolicall saying of Barnabas in his Epistle, p. 251. μὴ διστάσῃς δοῦναι, οὐδὲ δίδοὺς γογγύσῃς, πάντι αἰτοῦντί σε δίδου, doubt not to give, neither murmure when thou givest, give to every one that asketh thee, where the διστάζειν] before giving, and the γογγύζειν] after, doubting and murmuring] make up the full notion of ἀπελπίζειν] distrusting or despairing here, and seem to be set by him, as his way of rendring this speech of Christ's.

It being acknowledged, that ἐκχύνομαι] signifies being poured out, 'twill follow that ὑπερεκχύνομαι must, by analogie with other words, signifie abundantly poured out. So we may measure it by ὑπερπίπτω, and ὑπερπερισσεύω, and ὑπεραυξάνω, and many more in the New Testament, and generally the word [ὑπερ] in composition, is an αὐξητικὸν, to encrease, and augment the signification, and so must be understood in this place. To poure out] being a note of plenty, and this, of being more then poured out] of very great abundance.

CHAP. VII.

1. NOW when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entred into Capernaum.

2. And a certain Centurions servant who was dear unto him, was sick and ready to die.

3. And when he heard of Jesus he [a] sent unto him [the Elders of] the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4. And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, that He was worthy for whom he should doe this.

5. For, said they, he is, though a Roman

5. For he loveth our nation, and] he hath built us a synagogue. commander, a great lover of the nation and religion of the Jewes, and hath expresst that by an act of speciall piety and favour to us,

6. Then Jesus went with them, and when he was now not farre from the house, the Centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thy self, for I am not worthy, that thou shouldst enter under my roof.

7. but in stead of thy trouble of comming, give but thy command by word of mouth, and I make no doubt but that will cure my servant.

7. Wherefore neither thought I my self worthy to come unto thee, [but * say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.]

* Speak thou by word, εἰπὲ λόγῳ.

8. though I am but a subordinate commander, yet my commands are obeyed by all under me, though given by word of mouth, without my own presence to see them executed.

8. For [I also am a man set under authority, having under me souldiers, and I say unto one, Goe, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Doe this, and he doth it.]

6. This heathen officer hath exercised a greater act of beleif, or faith in my power, then any Jew yet hath done.

9. When Jesus heard these things he marvailed at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, [I have not found so great faith, no not in Israel.]

10. And

10. And they that were ſent returning to the houſe, found the ſervant whole, that had been ſick.

11. And it came to paſſe the day after, that he went into a city called Naim, and many of his diſciples went with him, and much people.

12. Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold there was a dead man carried out, the only ſon of his mother, [and ſhe was a widow, and much people of the city was with her.] 12. and ſhe being a widow, and by this loſſe of her only ſon left deſolate, all the neighbourhood were come to her, to lament and mourn with her, and to attend the funerall.

13. And when the Lord ſaw her, he had compaſſion on her, and ſaid unto her, Weep not.

14. And he came and touched the biere (and they that bare him ſtood ſtill) and he ſaid, Young man, I ſay unto thee, Ariſe.

15. And he that was dead ſate up, and [began to ſpeak,] and he delivered him to his mother. 15. ſpake, and ſo evidenced himſelf to be revived,

16. And there came a feare on all, and they glorified God, ſaying,] That a great prophet is riſen up among us, and that God had viſited his people. 16. And they were all aſtoniſhed at this ſight of a wonderfull work of Gods, and as it ſtruck them with awe and dread at his preſence, ſo did they acknowledge with thankſgiving to God.

17. And this rumour of him went forth through all Judæa, and throughout [all the * region round about.] 17. All Galilee, ſee note on Mat. 4. e.

18. And the diſciples of John ſhewed him of all theſe things.

19. And John calling unto him two of his diſciples ſent them to Jeſus, ſaying, Art thou [he that ſhould come,] or look we for another? 19. the Meſſias expected, (ſee note on Mat. 11. a.)

20. When the men were come unto him, they ſaid, John Baptiſt hath ſent us unto thee, ſaying, Art thou he that ſhould come, or look we for another?

21. And in that ſame houre he cured many of their infirmities, and plagues, and of evil ſpirits, and unto many that were blind he gave ſight.

22. Then Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto them, Goe your way and tell John what things ye have ſeen and heard, how that the blind ſee, the lame walk, the lepers are cleanſed, the deaf heare, to the poor [the Goſpel is preached.] See Mat. 11. b.

* ſcandalized about, or offended at me, σκανδαλισθῆ ἐν ἐμοί

23. And bleſſed is he whoſoever ſhall not be * offended in me. See Mat. 11. c.

24. And when the meſſengers of John were departed, he began to ſpeak unto the people concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderneſſe for to ſee? a reed ſhaken with the wind? Mat. 11. 7.

25. But what went ye out for to ſee? A man cloathed in ſoft rayment? Behold, they which are gorgeouſly apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings courts.

26. But what went ye out for to ſee? a prophet? yea, I ſay unto you, and much more then a prophet.

27. This is he of whom it is written, Behold I ſend my meſſenger before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee. Mal. 3. 1.

28. For I ſay unto you, among thoſe that are born of women, there is not a greater prophet then John the Baptiſt, but [he that is leaſt in the kingdome of God is greater then he.] 28. any diſciple of mine, the meaneſt or leaſt of them, Mat. 11. 11. is deſigned to a more honourable office then he.

29. And all the people that heard him, and the Publicanes, juſtified God, being baptized with the baptiſme of John.] 29. And when this John preached, none but the meaner people, and Publicans and the like received Gods meſſage by him, or expreſt their thankfulneſſe to God (for this mercy, proclaimed by him as a forerunner of Chriſt, viz: pardon upon repentance) and they came in cheerfully to his baptiſme, See Mat. 11. 12.

But the Phariſees and Doctors of the law, the great and the learned men, they would not repent or make themſelves capable of that mercy, but rejected him, (and now reject me,) and that proffer of mercy tendred to them.

31. And the Lord ſaid, Whereunto then ſhall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?] 31. Whereupon Chriſt delivered this parable unto them, thereby to expreſſe moſt lively the Jewes of that age.

ſhe ſtanding behind him, let fall drops of tears upon his feet, effects of ſorrow and love, and ſtooping down wiped his feet (after that new kind of waſhing them) with no other towell, then that of her own haire, then fell down, and kiſſed his feet, and poured the ointment upon them, (a feſtivall ceremony, and an expreſſion in her of great kindneſſe.)

39. Now when the Phariſee, which had bidden him, ſaw it, he ſpake within himſelf, ſaying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known, who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him, for ſhe is a ſinner.

Notes on Chap. VI.

a. A ſeeming difference there is in the ſetting down this relation of the Centurion here from what we find Mat. 8. 5. There the Centurion is ſaid to come unto him, beſeeching him, and ſaying, v. 6. and anſwering v. 8. Here he ſent unto him the Elders of the Jewes, and they beſought him, and when Jeſus was not far from his houſe, v. 6. he ſent friends to him, ſaying, and part of his ſpeech is unreconcileable with his having come unto him himſelf [wherefore neither thought I my ſelf worthy to come unto thee] v. 7. rendring a reaſon, why he had not come in perſon to him. This ſeeming difficulty may be anſwered by proportion with that known ſaying of Ariſtotle, ἃ διὰ τῶν φίλων δυνατὰ ἡμῖν δυνατὰ ἐστι, thoſe things that are poſſible by our friends, are poſſible to us, which ſuppoſes that thoſe things which we do by others, we are our ſelves thought to do, and ſo what the Centurion did and ſpake here by the Elders of the Jewes, ſent on purpoſe by him, v. 3. and διὰ φίλων, by his friends, ſent again by him, v. 6. he may be truly ſaid by Saint Matthew to have done, and ſpoken himſelf, Eſpecially when (the matter of the ſtory being directly all one in both relations) the Jewes have a ſaying, that removes all difficulty, Apoſtolus cujuſque eſt ut quiſque, every mans proxy, or ſolemn meſſenger is as himſelf, in (wch notion Chriſt ſpake, when he ſaid, He that receiveth me, receiveth him that ſent me, Mat. 10. 40. and conſequently what is done by a proxy, is done by himſelfe. Thus is Chriſt ſaid to have preach't peace to the Epheſians, Eph. 2. 17. which perſonally he did not, but by the Apoſtles, & repentance to the old world, 1 Pet. 3. 19. which he did by Noah, ſo Iames and Iohn are ſaid to come unto Chriſt, and petition him, Mar. 10 35. which Mat. 20. 20. their Mother is ſaid to do for them. Which notwithſtanding Saint Luke willing to adde one evidence more of the Centurion's humility, from the reaſon of his not going perſonally to Chriſt, chooſes rather to ſet it down exactly, as it was in each circumſtance, then onely in brief, yet without all diminution of the matter, as Saint Matthew had done.

b ἁμαρτωλὸς] Ἥτις ἦν ἁμαρτωλὸς which was a ſinner] here applyed to the woman, may be taken in the notion wherein we find ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἐξ ἐθνῶν, Gal. 2. 15. ſinners of the Gentiles, and to ſignify no more then a Gentile woman. Thus the word ſeemed to ſignify c. 6. 32. and 34. where it is ſaid that ſinners love thoſe that love them, i. e. aliens from the law of God or Chriſt (Amicos diligere omnium eſt, ſaith Tertullian, 'tis common to all men to love friends) for which S. Matthew ſets Publicans c. 5. 46. who, we know, are oft joyned with ſinners, and for their converſation with the heathen (from the neceſſity of their office) are lookt upon as a kind of heathens, whether they were ſuch or no, and were moſt of them Gentiles, as 'tis probable, their office being an employment under the Romans, to bring in taxes to them. But 'tis alſo true that Publicans & harlots are put together, Mat. 21. 31. and that ſeems to refer to the baſeneſs and unworthineſs of thoſe two * infamous callings, and then ἁμαρτωλὸς ſinner, as it is of affinity of ſignification with theſe, may perhaps ſignify one that had been a whore, and that is very reconcileable with the former conjecture, that vice or trade of proſtitute whores being among the Gentiles ſo ordinary; And ſo this woman, if ſhe were a whore, was either a Gentile alſo, or becauſe guilty of that gentile ſin, called by this common name of Gentiles, ἁμαρτωλὸς a ſinner. That this woman, whoſoever ſhe was, was not Mary Magdalen, is probable firſt by the no-argument on that ſide, but only the mention of the name of Mary in S. John, c. 12. 3. which preſently ſhall appear to be Martha's and Lazarus's Siſter, and that another ſtory. Secondly, by the words in the chapter here following, c. 8. 2. where when it is ſaid that Mary Magdalen was with Chriſt, ſhe is deſcribed by another character, taken from that remarkable mercy wrought on her by Chriſt, that ſhee had had ſeven devils caſt out of her, the very mark which is again given her, Mar. 16. 9. when 'tis ſaid that Chriſt firſt appeared to her, and no other mention is made of her in any of the Goſpels, but only of her watching where Chriſt was laid after his crucifixion, and her going to the Sepulcher, &c. Chriſts firſt appearing to her, and her witneſſing his reſurrection. Beſides Mary Magdalen, 'tis evident there was another Mary, the ſiſter of Martha and Lazarus, Ioh. 12. and ſhe brought a pound of ſpikenard, and anointed the feet of Ieſus, and wiped his feet with her hair, as is evident by comparing that paſſage, Ioh. 12. 3. with Ioh. 11. 2. where 'tis ſet down of her punctually by way of anticipation, It was Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whoſe brother Lazarus was ſick. And this Mary was not ſhe in this chapter of S. Luke neither. For that ſiſter of Lazarus ſo beloved of Chriſt, will be much injured in her ſtory, if ſhe be made an ἁμαρτωλὸς, whether a whore or Gentile. The ſtory of Mary in S. Iohn is indeed all one with that in Mat. 26. 6. and Mar. 14. 3. in the houſe of Simon the leper. As appears, 1. By the mention of Bethany, where it was, in all three Goſpels, and that the town of that Mary and Lazarus, who are therefore both of them ſaid to be at the feaſt, Mary as a wayter, Lazarus lying at meat with them, Ioh. 12. 2. And ſo 2ly. By the mention of thoſe two ſpeeches of Chriſt on that occaſion, firſt that what was done by her, was for his embalming, and 2ly. that whereever the Goſpel was preached, this fact of that womans ſhould be preached alſo, the former mentioned in all three, (and ſo likewiſe Iudas's murmuring) the latter in two of the Goſpels. But none of all theſe circumſtances belong here to this ſtory in S. Luke. But on the contrary it was in one of the Phariſees houſes, not in Simon the lepers, nor at all, that we have any reaſon to gueſs, in Bethany. And the Phariſee objected againſt Chriſt for this, not Iudas, or one of the Diſciples, and the objection was not at the unneceſſary expenſe, as there, but that Chriſt would let a ſinner be ſo kind to him, if he knew it, or if he did not, that he was no Prophet. And then the diſcourſe between Chriſt and Simon, occaſioned by this fact of the ſinner woman in Luke (about the creditor and his debtors, and the application of it to the exceſſe of this womans love above his, cauſed by the mercy of having many ſinnes forgiven, which ſhe had received) is far diſtant from that in the other Goſpels of anointing him for his burial, by way of embalming, as it were, which alſo conteins another circumſtance in it, that that of Maries was immediately before his death, Iudas going out immediately upon it to betray him, Mar. 14. 10. Mat. 16. 14. and ſo likewiſe in S. Iohn his death followes ſoon after, but this paſſage in S. Luke hath nothing to do with his death, and is ſet down on another occaſion here by S. Luke (whenſoever it was acted, as Luke indeed obſerves not the order of ſtory in all his relations) viz. to ſhew that which Chriſt was upon in the former paſſage, that thoſe which had not lived the beſt lives formerly, were more ready to receive the mercies offered by Chriſt then the Phariſees, &c. that had a better opinion of themſelves. All the affinity between theſe ſtories is that of the Alabaſter or cruiſe of ointment powred upon him; but when that is known to be the ordinary name of a veſſell, that was uſed to that purpoſe (ſee note on Mat. 26. b.) and that it was very ordinary at Feaſts to uſe ointment to powre on them, and perfume them (ſee note on Mat. 26. c.) this will be but a poor evidence to prove theſe ſtories to be all one, becauſe many ſeverall feaſts there might be, and were, and this civility uſed in all or many of theſe. And although in one particular wherein the Story in Iohn differs from the ſame in Matthew and Mark, this in Luke agrees with that in Iohn (which may perſwade ſome that 'tis the ſame ſtory at leaſt, which Luke and Iohn ſet down) as that Iohn mentions not the powring out the ointment on the head (as Matthew and Mark do) but only on the feet, which they do not (in both which Luke agrees with him) yet will not this be of any force againſt the former arguments, eſpecially when 'tis remembred (what is peculiarly obſerved of S. John's Goſpel, written after and as a ſupplement of the others) that John finding the mention of the anointing Chriſts head by Mary in the two Goſpels, did not need mention it again, but thought it neceſſary to adde all the reſt, which they had not mentioned, of anointing his feet and wiping them with the haires of her head, which as it is certain that it was done by Mary, becauſe S. Iohn affirms it, ſo might it alſo at another ther time be done by another woman, and no wonder at all be in it, nor matter of objection againſt what we have ſaid of theſe being diverſe ſtories. Nay one obſervable difference there is in this very thing, wherein theſe two Evangeliſts thus ſeem to agree. For S. Iohn ſaith cleerly that Mary anointed his feet with the ſpikenard, Ioh. 12. 3. mentioning no teares, nor any thing but the ointment. the odour of which ſo filled the houſe: but this ſinner woman in Luke, though ſhe brought into the houſe with her her veſſell of oyntment, yet in another kind of addreſſe (and that which more became her that remembred her former heathen, or ſinfull courſe,) ſhe firſt ſtood by his feet behind him weeping, and began to bedew his feet with teares, then wiped off the teares with the haires of her head, and yet farther kiſſed his feet (all which we find not in S. John) and then anointed his feet with the oyntment, which is the only circumſtance wherein they agree, and ſo it cannot be thought argumentative againſt ſo much to the contrary. And if it be farther granted that this Phariſees name was Simon alſo, but yet was another perſon from Simon the leper (as 'tis ſure enough Simon was a very ordinary name at that time) I cannot foreſee any the leaſt probability againſt the truth of what hath been here obſerved.

* See note on Mat. 9.

c. Ὕδωρ ἐπὶ τοὺς πόδας. That it was the faſhion of thoſe countries in their entertainments to waſh their gueſts feet before meals, is frequently mentioned in the Old Teſtament. And the ſame was of Cuſtome alſo among the Grecians in their more ſplendid extraordinary feaſts, as we find in Athenæus, l. 14. συνιόντων εἰς τὸ δεῖπνον, &c. when they come together to dinner, τοῖς εἰσιοῦσι παρεῖχοντο πολύτιμα ὄντα δι' ἀρωμάτων, they bring out to the gueſts baths for their feet of wine and ſpices.

d. Ὅτι That [ὅτι] ſignifies [therefore] and not, [for] in this place is apparent not only by the clear importance of the parable precedent, where he that had the greater debt forgiven is ſuppoſed to have greater love and kindneſs to the Creditour, and not therefore forgiven, becauſe he had that love and kindneſs, but alſo by the ſignification of the Hebrew כי which is promiſcuouſly taken for ὅτι or διότι, for, or therefore, and ſo (by an obſervation before mentioned, note on Mar. 14. e.) according to the practiſe of theſe writers, one of theſe Greek words may be taken for the other, [ὅτι for] uſed, when the ſenſe bears [διότι therefore] And ſo Mar. 9. 28. the ſame [ὅτι] clearly ſignifies [διὰ τί, for what cauſe] or why? Interrogatively. And ſo, I conceive, on the other ſide, Ro. 5. 12. διὰ τοῦτο is ſet when the ſenſe carries it ὅτι, not therefore, but for, that verſe being the proof of the former, not proved by it, and ſo Heb. 11. 23. διότι therefore] is uſed for ὅτι for, or becauſe; Moſes was hidden by his Parents, διότι becauſe he was a comely child, ſo Jam. 4. 3. διότι κακῶς αἰτεῖσθε becauſe ye aske amiſs, ſo the Hebrew לכן alſo ſignifies both quia and ideo, and Eccluſ. 31. 15. is rendred διὰ τοῦτο wherefore, when it ſhould be ὅτι for, and 1 Pet. 1. 24. διότι wherefore is put for ὅτι for. But as a more direct example of ὅτι wherefore, I ſuppoſe one place in S. John to be worth obſerving. Joh. 14. 17. where Chriſt having upon condition of their loving and obeying him, promiſed the Comforter or Paraclete to the diſciples, v. 15, 16. that he might abide with them for ever, he ſaith of him, that worldly men cannot receive him, becauſe they neither ſee nor know him, but, ſaith he, ye know him, ὅτι παρ' ὑμῖν μένει, καὶ ἐν ὑμῖν ἔσται, which in all reaſon is to be ſo rendred, that it may be the effect or conſequent, not as the cauſe or antecedent of the former, as the coming and abiding of the Paraclete was before mentioned as the conſequent and reward of their loving and obeying, and not as the cauſe of that. And then the ὅτι muſt bear the ſame ſenſe exactly, which here we affixe to it, therefore, or for this cauſe (as if it were διότι or διὰ τοῦτο,) he remaineth with you, and ſhall be in, or among you.

CHAP. VIII.

1. the doctrine of Chriſtianity, and the reformation, wch God now expected and required to be wrought among this people, or elſe he would ſend judgments on them.

1. AND it came to paſſe afterward, that he went throughout every city and village preaching and ſhewing the glad tidings of [the kingdome of God,] and the twelve were with him.

2. ſeven devils had been caſt out,

2. And certain women which had been healed of evil ſpirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom [went ſeven devils,]

3. had ſupplied him with neceſſaries out of their own poſſeſſions.

n. 3. And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herods ſteward, and Suſanna, and many others, which [ⁿ miniſtred unto him of their ſubſtance.]

4. And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he ſpake by a parable.

See Mat. 13. 3. 5. A ſower went out to ſow his ſeed, and as he ſowed ſome fell by the way ſide, and it was trodden down, and the fowles of the ayre devoured it.

6. And ſome fell upon a rock, and aſſoon as it was ſprung up, it withered away, becauſe it lacked moiſture.

7. And ſome fell among thorns, and the thorns ſprang up with it, and choaked it.

8. And ſome fell on good ground, and ſprang up, and bare fruit an hundred fold. And when he ſaid theſe things, he cried, He that hath eares to hear, let him hear.

9. What is the meaning of this parable?

9. And his diſciples asked him, ſaying, [What might this parable be?]

10. Chriſtian doctrine, but to others I ſpeak in parables, that that prophecy of Iſaias might be fulfilled on them, which ſaid, Hearing ye ſhall hear and not underſtand, and

10. And he ſaid, Unto you it is given to know the myſteries of [the kingdome of God, but to others in parables, that ſeeing they might not ſee, and hearing they might not underſtand.]

ſeeing

ſeeing ye ſhall ſee and not perceive, God denying them thoſe more clear means, and allowing them none but parables, as a puniſhment of their former obduration againſt his means. See Mat. 13. 14.

11. Now the parable is this, The ſeed is the word of God.

12. Thoſe by the way ſide are they that hear, then cometh the devil and taketh away the word out of their hearts, leſt they ſhould beleive and be ſaved.] 12. They that receive the word, parallel to the ſeed ſown by the path or way, are thoſe hearers which receive it ſo little way into their hearts, that the devil comes preſently and picks it up, as birds doe corn, and ſo they are never the better for it.

13. They on the rock are they which when they hear, receive the word with joy, and theſe have no root, which for a while beleive, and in time of temptation fall away. See Mat. 13. 20.

14. And that which fell among thorns are they which when they have heard, goe forth, and [are choaked with cares, and riches, and pleaſures of this life, and bring no [b] fruit to perfection.] 14. are choaked (ſee note on Mar. 2. 2.) by the deceitfulneſſe of riches, and pleaſures, and the cares of this world, and doe not perſevere till time of bringing forth ripe fruit, i.e. till harveſt, fall off after ſome few Chriſtian performances. b.

15. But that on the good ground are they which in an honeſt and good heart, having heard the word keep it, and [bring forth fruit with * patience.] * perſeverance compare. 15. continue in all Chriſtian practiſe, & never fall off again.

16. No man when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a veſſel, or putteth it under a bed, but ſetteth it on a candleſtick, that they which enter in may ſee the light.

17. For nothing is ſecret that ſhall not be made manifeſt, neither any thing hid, that ſhall not be known and come abroad.] 17. For 'tis not Gods will that any talent ſhould be laid up uſeleſſe and unprofitable. Mat. 10. 26. Mar. 4. 22.

18. Take heed therefore, how ye hear: for whoſoever hath, to him ſhall be given, and whoſoever hath not, from him ſhall be taken, even that which he ſeemeth to have.] 18. See therefore that you receive profit by what you hear:

For to him that emploies his preſent ſtock, ſhall more be given, But from him which doth not ſo, even that which hath formerly been given him, ſhall be taken away again. Mat 13. 12.

19. Then came to him his mother and his [brethren,] and could not come at him for the preaſe. 19. Kindred neer unto him, Mat. 12. 46.

20. And it was told him by certain which ſaid, Thy mother and thy brethren ſtand without deſiring to ſee thee.

21. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, My mother and my brethren are theſe, which hear the word of God and doe it. Mat. 12. 50.

22. Now it came to paſſe on a certain day, that he went into a ſhip with his diſciples, and he ſaid unto them, Let us goe over unto the other ſide of the lake, and they lanched forth. Mat. 8. 23.

23. But as they ſailed he fell aſleep, and there came down a ſtorm of wind on the [c] lake, and [they were filled with water,] and were in jeopardy. 23. their boat was filled with water, c.

24. And they came to him and awoke him, ſaying, Maſter, Maſter, we periſh. Then he aroſe and [rebuked the wind and the raging of the water, and] they ceaſed, and there was a calme. 24. commanded the wind to ceaſe, and the waves of the ſea not to move ſo turbulently, and accordingly

25. And he ſaid unto them, Where is your faith? And they being afraid wondred, ſaying one to another, What manner of man is this? for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26. And they arrived at the countrey of the Gadarens, which is over againſt Galilee. See Mat. 8. 28.

27. And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and ware no clothes neither abode in any houſe but in the tombes.

28. When he ſaw Jeſus, he cried out and fell down before him, and with a loud voice ſaid, What have I to do with thee, Jeſus thou ſon of God moſt high? I beſeech thee [torment me not.] 28. let me alone to continue where I am, and doe not before my time caſt me into the place of torments, the pit of hell, v. 31. See Mar. 5. note b.

29. (For he had commanded the unclean ſpirit to come out of the man; for oftentimes [it had caught him, and] he was kept bound with chaines and with fetters, and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderneſſe.) 29. the devil poſſeſt him with a kind of raving fit, which made him very unruly, and thereupon

30. And Jeſus asked him, ſaying, What is thy name? And he ſaid, Legion, becauſe many devils were entred into him. Mar. 5. 9.

31. And they beſought him that he would not [command them to goe out into the [d] deep.] 31. caſt them into the pit of hell. d.

32. And there was there a herd of many ſwine feeding on the mountains, and they beſought him that he would ſuffer them to enter into them: [and he ſuffered them.] 32. And to ſhew the people the deſtructive power of this now come to them, if they would receive and beleive in Chriſt, he did permit (or not reſtrain) them to doe what they ſo much deſired, to enter into the ſwine. See Mar. 5. 13.

33. Then went the devils out of the man, and entred into the ſwine, and the herd ran violently down a ſteep place into the lake, and were choaked.

34. villages in the countrey.

34. When they that fed them, ſaw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city and in the [countrey.]

35. Then they went out to ſee what was done, and came to Jeſus, and found the man out of whom the devils were departed, ſitting at the feet of Jeſus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36. They alſo which ſaw it told them by what means he that was poſſeſſed of the devils, was healed.

37. Then the whole multitude of the countrey of the Gadarens round about, beſought him to depart from them; for they were taken with great feare; and he went up into the ſhip, and returned back again.

38. be one of his conſtant attendants, or diſciples,

38. Now the man, out of whom the devils were departed, beſought him, that he might [be with him,] but Jeſus ſent him away, ſaying,

39. Return to thine owne houſe, and ſhew how great things God hath done for thee. And he went his way, and publiſhed throughout the whole city, how great things Jeſus had done unto him.

40. the people of the place were very much joyed at his coming,

40. And it came to paſſe, that when Jeſus was returned, [the people gladly received him,] for they were all waiting for him.

See note on Mar. 5. 2.

41. And behold there came a man named Jairus, and he was [a ruler of the ſynagogue,] and he fell down at Jeſus feet, and beſought him that he would come into his houſe,

42. ſhe was by him left ready to die, but by this time that he came to Chriſt, actually dead, Mat. 9. 18. though that was not certainly known by him, till v. 49.

42. For he had one onely daughter about twelve yeares of age, and [ſhe * lay a dying.] But as he went, the people thronged him.

* was dead, deliberate

† a flux, ſee Mar. 5. note b.

43. And a woman having † an iſſue of blood twelve yeares, which had ſpent all her living upon Phyſitians, neither could be healed of any,

44. Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment, and immediately her iſſue of blood ſtanched.

45. And Jeſus ſaid, Who touched me? When all denied, Peter and they that were with him, ſaid, Maſter, the multitude throng thee and preaſe thee, and ſayeſt thou, Who touched me?

46. know ſome cure hath been wrought by the touching of me.

46. And Jeſus ſaid, Somebody hath touched me, for I [perceive that virtue is gone out of me.]

47. And when the woman ſaw that ſhe was not hid, ſhe came trembling, and falling down before him, ſhe declared unto him before all the people, for what cauſe ſhe had touched him, and how ſhe was healed immediately.

48. And he ſaid unto her, Daughter be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole, goe in peace.

49. from the houſe of Jairus (ver. 41.) which brought him word that his daughter was dead, and therefore he ſhould not put Chriſt to the trouble to come down to work a cure, when ſhe was already dead.

49. While he yet ſpake there cometh one [from the ruler of the ſynagogues houſe, ſaying to him, Thy daughter is dead, trouble not the Maſter.]

50. But when Jeſus heard it, he anſwered him, ſaying, Fear not, beleive only, and ſhe ſhall be made whole.

51,52. And coming into the houſe where there was already a great company of neighbours gathered together, weeping and bewailing the deceaſed, he ſuffered none of thoſe that came with him to goe in, ſave Peter &c. And ſeeing the company within lamenting her death, he comforted them, ſaying,

51. And when he came into the houſe, he ſuffered no man to goe in, ſave Peter and James and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

52. And all wept and bewailed her, but he ſaid, Weep not, [ſhe is not dead, but ſleepeth.]

53. And they laughed him to ſcorn, knowing that ſhe was dead.

54. all thoſe that were there lamenting,

54. And he put [them all] out, and took her by the hand, and called, ſaying, Maid, ariſe.

55. that they might perceive that ſhe was really revived, and not only in appearance, and withall to refreſh her, he commanded them that were in the houſe to ſet ſome food before her.

55. And her ſpirit came again, and ſhe aroſe ſtraightway, and [he commanded to give her meat.]

56. And her parents were aſtoniſhed, but he charged them, that they ſhould tell no man what was done.

The

2. Διακονῶ

The true notion of the word [διακονῶν] so often used in the Scripture will be worth considering a while, for the right understanding of all places where 'tis used. And 1. it is sufficiently known to belong unto and to be frequently taken in generall for any kind of service, or ministery. Such was that of disciples, who waited, attended on the prophets, did their servile offices (see *Mat.*3. g.) and accordingly [διάκονος] is taken for such a disciple, Joh. 12.26. compared with Lu. 6.40. *Mat.*10.25. But omitting this ordinary notion, the best rise will be by considering the word [διάκονοι, and διακονῶν] as it referres to that one particular office of servants, that of waiting at feasts. Thus Lucian in his Cronosol: among the leges Convivales mentions this, Οἱ διάκονοι μὴτε χάριν μηδεμίαν μηδὲν, Let the waiters doe nothing out of favour or partiality to any: where διάκονοι, are those that in feasts distribute the μοῖραι, or portions to each guests, as it follows there, μηδὲ τῷ μὲν ὑμοῖραι, τῷ δὲ ἡ γνάθος σύδε, ἀλλ' ἰσότιμα δεῖ πᾶσιν, not to one a larger or better, to another a meaner or lesser piece, but equality in all. For this we find among those rites or customes of feasts, that the διάκονοι distributed the portions, first to the master of the feast, and then to the guests, each of them in order, either according to the direction of the ἀρχιθίκλινος, or the orderer of the feast, or as they pleased themselves, when he did not direct, only according to that rule of equality, that they should not τῷ μὲν μεγάλα, τῷ δὲ κομιδῇ μικρὰ διανεμόντες, give one a great, another a very little portion. This we find in Lucian, both in his Cronosol: and Epist: Saturn: and speaking of unjust officers, he saith, ἰσομοιρεῖ σύδε οἰκέτης διανέμων τῷ μὲν ἡμίσειαν τὴν ὑὸς κεφαλὴν, τὸν δὲ τῇ κεφαλῇ, τοῖς δ' ἄλλοις ὀστᾶ φέρει ὀλίγα ἐφεστηλυμένα, in the division of a swine the servant gives his master half of it, with the head, and to the rest a few bones, Agreeable to this custome of the διάκονοι giving to every man his portion, is that of our Saviour, *Lu.*12.37. speaking of a master that entertains his servants, ἀναπεσεῖται καὶ παρελθὼν διακονήσει, he shall gird himself like a servant, and make them lie down, and passing from one to another shall distribute to every man his portion, a parallel to which we have in * Lucian, ὅταν πλούσιος οἰκέτης ὑποδεχῆται διακονῶν, καὶ οἱ φίλοι σὺν αὐτῷ, when a rich man entertains his servants, and ministers to them, he and his friends with him. This, as was even now intimated, belonged primarily to the ἀρχιθίκλινος, or οἰκονόμος προφῶν, the governour, or orderer of the feast, and thus we read of Christ, when he entertained the multitudes, he acted the part of the ἀρχιθίκλινος, and εὐχαριστήσας ἔδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τοῖς ὄχλοις, when he had given thanks he gave to his disciples, as the œconomus to the waiters, and they to the multitudes, to every man single his portion. So that still the office of the διάκονος is to distribute the μοῖραι or μερίδες, though the œconomus break, or divide them. So that that saying of Christ *Mat.*20.28. and, in the same words almost, *Mar.*10.45. may justly be understood of this custome, and this use of the word, διακονῆσαι, Ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἦλθε διακονηθῆναι, ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι, The sonne of man came not that others might minister to him, or distribute favours, or shew kindnesses to him, but he to distribute to them, and as it follows, δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλῶν to distribute that great gift among his disciples and all mankind, his life for the redemption of the world. Neither is this interpretation resisted or made lesse probable by that which went before, οὐκ ἔσται δὲ &c. but it shall not be so among you, but he that will become great among you, let him be your minister, and he that will be first, let him be your servant, as if the words belonged only to the humility required by Christ of Christian Governours, for there be two things there spoken of by Christ, concerning the Heathen Rulers, (to which the Christian are opposed) one that they doe κατακυριεύειν, use their servants, as Lords, and owners of them, as of a possession (as servants were reckoned by them among their κτήματα, their wealth, or riches) and so reap fruit and profit by their labours, Which * Xenophon calls ὠφελεῖσθαι ὑπ' αὐτῶν, to be profited by them, the 2d that they doe κατεξουσιάζειν, exercise despoticall power over them, To which two Christ here opposes these two other duties of a Christian governour in his Church, 1. that he shall be beneficiall or profitable to those that are under him, 2ly. that he shall be humble toward them, and the first of these is here meant by διάκονον γενέσθαι, being a minister, as the 2d by δοῦλον γενέσθαι, being a servant, and therefore Christ returns and speaks farther to that, The son of man came not διακονηθῆναι to be ministred unto, but διακονῆσαι to minister, and what that is, he farther expresses, καὶ δοῦναι, and to give his life &c: From this festivall custome set down in all the parts, *Joh.*2.9. (where there is beside the νυμφίος or master of the feast, ἀρχιθίκλινος the divider of the meats and wine, and again the διάκονοι ver.5. which distribute, and carry it, being divided, to each guest) we may clearly fetch the office of the first deacons in the Church, who were to distribute to the poor, as every one had need, under the Apostles, as the œconomi, or chief dispensers, and to take off that toyle from them, and so in like manner at the administration of the Eucharist to be ministerial to the προεστὼς the Bishop, or Præfect, and distribute that wine and bread which he had consecrated. See * *Justin Martyr: Apol:*2. But to the former of these, that of distributing to the poor, the word διακονία, ministring, in Scripture peculiarly belongs, and so still makes good that notion which we now take it in. So Act. 11.29. εἰς διακονίαν πέμψαι, to send some relief to be distributed to them that want, and *Act.*12.25. and 2 Cor. 8.4. κοινωνία καὶ διακονία εἰς τοὺς ἁγίους, the liberality of distribution to the saints, So 1 Pet. 4. 10. where speaking of hospitality, he bids them διακονῆσαι dispense, or distribute, i. e. give, and again v. 12. εἴ τις διακονεῖ if any man exercise liberality to the poor; So the διακονία τραπεζῶν *Act.*6. the daily distribution to the poor widowes, or, as the 16. Canon of the Council in Trullo interprets the place, ἐν αἷς αἱ χρείαι τροφῶν διακρίνονται, the dispensing of necessaries at their tables, and therefore Zonaras on that Canon explains it, by οἰκονόμοι τροφῶν, dispensers of meat, (meaning, I suppose, under the chief œconomus or steward) rather the distributers of it. Thus in * Julian, speaking of the Galileans, as he styles the Christians, you shall find,

* Cronosol:

* Præf: in Xen: Cast:

* p. 97.

* Fragment: p. 552.

find, ſaith he, ἢ λειτουργίαν παρ' ἀνδράσιν ἀγάπαις, καὶ ξενοδοχίαις, καὶ διακονίαις πανηγύρεσιν, their feaſts of love and entertainments, and diſtribution at tables, by which, ſaith he, they allured many to their religion. So in Procopius's ſcholia on 1 Sam. 9. there is mention ἀποστόλων διακονούντων, which ſure is ill rendred Apoſtolorum miniſtrantium, of the Apoſtles that miniſtred, and ſhould be rendred in the paſſive ſenſe, adminiſtratione or liberalitate aliorum utentium, they that were miniſtred to, for ſo he adds out of S. Paul δὶς εἰς τὴν χρείαν μοι ἐπέμψατε, you ſent twice to my wants. I ſhall need to adde no more to this, but only that what ſome did διακονεῖν, diſtribute or diſpenſe only as inſtruments or officers or miniſters of others liberality, that alſo ſome did out of their own eſtates, and ſo here theſe women did ἐκ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐταῖς out of their own goods. So, I ſuppoſe, Oneſiphorus 2 Tim. 1.18. So *Phœbe Rom.*16.1. διάκονον ἐκκλησίας τῆς ἐν Κεγχρεαῖς, the miniſter of the Church in Cenchrea, who is therefore called προστάτις (or προστάτης) πολλῶν, i.e. προξένον (ξένους ὑπολαμβάνον, ἄγων τοὺς ξένους ὑποδεχόμενον, ſaith Heſychius) an entertainer, and ſuccourer of many, and of Paul himſelf, and ſhe and ſuch as ſhe were the ἀδελφαὶ, ſiſters or Chriſtian women, that accompanied the Apoſtles in their travails, and provided for them, that they might preach, and not be put to earne their livings with their hands, 1 Cor. 9. 5. Of the word διάκονος, ſee note on *Phil.*1. c.

b. τελεσφορεῖν

The word τελεσφορεῖν] here is beſt explained by Heſychius τὸ ἄγειν τοὺς καιροὺς, ἢ τελείους ἀνευ φθορᾶς, to bring forth fruits in the ſeaſon, or perfect fruits. Phavorinus ἐντελῶς ἄγειν, to bring forth perfectly. Joſephus uſes it of women, that goe their full time, that doe not miſcarry, or bring forth abortives, and ſo here belongs to that corn, that proſpers, and thrives, and comes on well, and continues till harveſt, and miſcarries not by any defect in the ſoyle, or other ill accident.

c. Λίμνη

That which is here truly called λίμνη] (for ſo it was, the lake (and not the ſea) of Geneſareth, c.5.1.) is called θάλασσα, *the ſea, Mat.*8.24. and θάλασσα τῆς Γαλιλαίας, *the ſea of Galilee, Mat.*4. 18. and *Joh.*6.1. θάλασσα τῆς Γαλιλαίας τῆς Τιβεριάδος, and c.21. 1. θάλασσα τῆς Τιβεριάδος, the ſea of Tiberias. And all this, not becauſe it was a ſea, but becauſe of the ambiguity of the Hebrew ים, which, as it ſignifies the ſea, ſo alſo any lake or confluence of waters, and is uſed for that great veſſel in the Temple, 1 *Kin.*7.23. which being of ſuch a largeneſſe (30 cubits round, and 5 cubits high, and containing 2000 baths) was a kind of lake, and is there ſo called, a molten lake, the Hebrew ים being there uſed, and by us rendred ſea, but would be more properly lake. And ſo likewiſe the word θάλασσα in the other Goſpels, would be better, according to the ſenſe, rendred lake alſo, the lake of Galilee, and Tiberias. See Lyra on *Gen.*1.10.

d. ἄβυσσος

That ἄβυσσος] ſhould here ſignifie the pit of hell, the place created for the devil and his angels, whereſoever it is ſituate, may be gueſt by the nature of the word, which ſignifies bottomleſſe, and from the uſe of it, in ſome other places of the New Teſtament, as *Revel.*9. 1,2. and 11.7. and 17.8. and 20. 1,3. where there is mention of chaines, as there is of tartarum, 2 Pet. 2.4. And ſo alſo the context here inclines it, for the firſt requeſt of the devil to Chriſt was, v. 28. I beſeech thee torment me not, and in the other *Goſpel, Mat.*8.29. Art thou come to torment me before my time? expreſſing the devils fear that by this coming of Chriſt he ſhould preſently be caſt into his chains of hell (ſee note on *Mar.*5. b.) and confined to thoſe torments, which he thought belong'd not to him till the day of judgment, and the next was in plain words, not to ſend him into hell, or the pit.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. IX.

1. And to qualify them for their office, he gave them power to caſt out devils out of thoſe that were poſſeſt with them.

1. THen he called his twelve diſciples together, [and gave them power and authority over all devils,] and to cure diſeaſes.

2. And he ſent them to preach the Kingdom of God, and to heal the ſick.

3. Make no proviſion for your journey, nor take with you ſo much as a ſtaffe to guard you by the way, ſee Mat.10. e.

3. And he ſaid unto them, [Take nothing for your journey, neither ſtaves] nor ſcrip, neither bread, neither money, neither have two coats apiece.

4. as long as you remain in that city, Mat. 10. 11.

4. And whatſoever houſe ye enter into, there abide [and thence depart.]

5. by that means to teſtify to them and others, that ye have been with them, and have not been received, but unworthily rejected by them, and accordingly to expreſſe to them, what is likely to befall them, Mat.10. 14.

5. And whoſoever will not receive you, when ye go out from that city, ſhake off the very duſt from your feet [for a teſtimony againſt them.]

6. And they departed and went through the townes preaching the Goſpel, and healing every where.

7. Chriſt, and he did not know what to think, becauſe ſome ſaid, that it was John Baptiſt, riſen from the dead, who having been killed by him, he feared he would now work ſome eminent revenge on him for it.

7. Now Herod the Tetrarch heard of all that was done by [him, and he was perplexed, becauſe that it was ſaid of ſome, that John was riſen from the dead.]

8. And of ſome, that Elias had appeared, and of others, that one of the old Prophets was riſen again.

9. And Herod ſaid, John have I beheaded, but who is this of whom I hear ſuch things? and he deſired to ſee him.

10. within the territory of Bethſaida.

10. And the Apoſtles when they were returned, told him all that they had done, and he took them, and went aſide privately into a deſert place, [belonging to the city called Bethſaida.]

11. And

11. And the people when they knew it followed him, and he received them, and [ſpake unto them of the kingdom of God] and healed them that had need of healing.

11. preached the Goſpel to them,

12. And when the day began to weare away, then came the twelve and ſaid unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the countrey and townes round about, and [† a lodge] and get victuals, for we are here in a deſert place.

13. But he ſaid unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they ſaid. We have no more then five loaves and two fiſhes, [except we ſhould go and buy meat for all this people.]

13. and cannot give them entertainment, unleſſe we ſhould goe and buy, and that muſt be a large proportion to feed all this people.

14. For they were about five thouſand men. And he ſaid to his diſciples, Make them ſit down [by fifties in a company.]

14. See note on Mar. 6. d. and Mat. 8. g.

15. And they did ſo, and made them all ſit down.

16. Then he took the five loaves and the two fiſhes, and looking up to heaven, he bleſſed them, and brake, and gave to the diſciples [to ſet before the multitude.]

16. that they might diſtribute to the multitude a portion for every one. Mat. 14. 19.

17. And they did eat, and were all filled, and there was taken up of fragments that remained to them twelve baskets.

18. And it came to paſſe, as he was * alone praying, his diſciples were with him, and he asked them ſaying, Whom ſay † the people that I am?

* praying by himſelf, his diſciples came to him, συνησαν αυτῳ, συνησαν αυτῷ. † or, men, for the Kings MS. reads ἀνθρωποι.

Mat. 17. f.

30. And behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moſes and Elias,

Like the whiteneſs of a flaſh of lightning.

31. Who appeared in glory, and ſpake of his [b] † deceaſe, which he ſhould accompliſh at Jeruſalem.]

† departure, b

31. Which appearing as Angels are wont, in a glorious condition, ſpake of his going out of this world (ſee note on Joh. 13. a. and 2 Pet. 1. c.) as of Moſes out of Egypt to a Canaan, by this means delivering his faithfull people, but withall deſtroying them that beleived not, Jude 5. Of all which, and the ſeverall branches and conſequents of it Jeruſalem was ſhortly to be the ſcene, and firſt of his crucifixion there.

32. But Peter and they that were with him, were heavy with ſleep, and when they were awake they ſaw his glory, and the two men which ſtood with him.

33. And it came to paſſe, as they departed from him,] Peter ſaid unto Jeſus, Maſter, it is good for us to be here, and let us make three Tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moſes, and one for Elias, not knowing what he ſaid.

33. And as Moſes and Elias were parting from Chriſt, Mat. 17. 4.

34. While he thus ſpake, there came a cloud, and overſhadowed them, [and they feared, as they entred into the cloud.]

34. and they were amazed with fear, as the cloud came ſo neer to them.

35. And there came a voyce out of the cloud ſaying, This is my beloved Son, hear him.

36. And

36. Moſes and Elias were departed from Jeſus. And Chriſt commanded them to tell no man what they ſaw, till after his riſing from the dead, Mat. 17. 9. and they obeyed his command and did accordingly.

36. † And when the voyce was paſt, [Jeſus was found alone, and they kept it cloſe, and told no man in thoſe dayes any of thoſe things which they had ſeen.]

† And as the voice was, or was heard, Καὶ ἐν τῷ γενέσθαι τὴν φωνήν,

37. And it came to paſſe, that on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

Mat. 17. 15.

38. And behold, a man of the company cryed out, ſaying, Maſter, I beſeech thee, look upon my ſon, for he is my only child.

39. a ſore affection ſeiſeth upon him at certain times of the moon, and makes him cry out, and it cauſeth ſuch a boyling and agitation within (ſee note on Mat. 9. c.) that he foames at mouth, and it never departeth from him without great pain and agony, this coming to himſelf again (though when it firſt takes him, it makes him ſenſeleſſe, Mar. 9, 25. able neither to ſpeak nor hear) is joyned with an horrible torment, and many grievous bruiſes remain afterward. See note on Mat. 17. c.

39. And lo [a ſpirit taketh him, and he ſuddenly cryeth out, and * it teareth him, that he foameth again, and bruiſing him hardly, departeth from him.]

* ſhakes, tumultuates, boyles within him with foaming, and hardly, or with difficulty departeth from him, bruiſing him, συσπαράσσει αὐτὸν μετὰ ἀφροῦ, καὶ μόγις ἀποχωρεῖ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ συντρίβον αὐτόν.

40. And I earneſtly intreated thy diſciples, that went about doing miracles, v. 6. to cure him of this Epilepſy, and they were not able.

40. And I beſought thy diſciples to caſt him out, and they could not.]

41. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid, O faithleſſe and perverſe generation, how long ſhall I be with you and ſuffer you?] Bring thy ſon hither.

41. And Jeſus ſaid to his diſciples, What an act of perverſe infidelity, not of weakneſſe, is this in you? will my preſence, ſo long, and the power given you by me, v. 1. work no better effects upon you? you will make your ſelves unworthy of ſuch favours by your not making uſe of them, ſee Mat. 17. 21. & Mar. 9. 28. Having thus reprehended his diſciples, he ſaid to the man,

42. And as he was yet a coming [the devil threw him down and tare him: and Jeſus rebuked the unclean ſpirit, and healed the child] and delivered him again to his father.

42. he fell into a fit of that diſeaſe, which by the power of the devill was brought upon him, and fell down, and after his manner it made an horrible agitation or tumult within him, and Jeſus caſt out the devill, and freed the man from the diſeaſe,

43. And they were alll amazed at the mighty power of God, but while they wondred every one at all things which Jeſus did, he ſaid unto his diſciples,

44. Let theſe ſayings ſink down into your eares, for the ſon of man ſhall be delivered into the hands of men.]

44. Mark what I ſay unto you, It is this, I ſhall ſhortly be put to death, by the Jews and Romans, and ſhall ſuddenly riſe again, Mat. 17. 23.

45. But they underſtood not [this ſaying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not, and they feared to ask him that ſaying.]

45. what he meant by thoſe words, and though they thought much upon it, yet could not they imagine what it meant, and yet they durſt not aske him the meaning.

46. Then there aroſe a reaſoning among them, which of them ſhould be greateſt.]

46. but by occaſion of them, thinking Chriſts kingdom ſhould ſhortly begin, they fell into a diſpute among themſelves, who of them ſhould have the higheſt dignity at this revelation of Chriſts kingdom.

47. And Jeſus perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and ſet him by him,]

47. And Chriſt either being asked by ſome of them, Mat. 18. 1. or elſe of his own accord, diſcerning by his divine knowledge the debate they were engaged in (though now they were aſhamed that he ſhould know it, Mar. 9. 33, 34.) and being willing to cure this vain ambition in them, took a little child, and ſet him in the next place to himſelfe,

48. And ſaith unto them, Whoſoever ſhall receive this child in my name, receiveth me, and whoſoever ſhall receive me, receiveth him that ſent me, for he that is leaſt among you all, the ſame ſhall be great.]

48. And ſaid unto them, The dignity that from me or in my kingdom accreueth unto any, belongs to ſuch as theſe, the humbleſt and meekeſt, The dignity which from my Father is communicated to me, and from me to others, is the portion of the meekeſt. See Mat. 18. 4.

49. And John anſwered and ſaid, Maſter, we ſaw one caſting out devils in thy name, and we forbad him, becauſe he followeth not with us.

50. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Forbid him not, [for he that is not againſt us, is for us.]

50. for though he keep not company with us, yet if he do it in my name, he is one that beleives in me, and not to be forbidden, See Mar. 9. 39. & Mat. 12. 30.

51. And it came to paſſe [when the time was come that he ſhould be c received up, he ſtedfaſtly ſet his face to go to Jeruſalem,]

c. 51. when the time was come (ſee Acts 2. 2.) when he was to be crucified, not being terrified with that danger, he reſolved firmely to goe up to Jeruſalem.

52. And ſent [meſſengers before his face,] and they went and entred into a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him.

52. ſome of his diſciples before, as harbingers (which was part of the diſciples office.)

53. And they did not receive him, becauſe his face was, as though he would go to Jeruſalem.]

53. And the Samaritans would not give him reception, becauſe he appeared to them to be a going to Jeruſalem, and they never do ſo, but worſhip in mount Gerizim, Joh. 4. 20. and ſo ſeparate from all thoſe that think Jeruſalem the only place of worſhip.

54. And when his diſciples James and John ſaw this, they ſaid, Lord, wilt thou thou that we command fire to come down from heaven and conſume them, even as Elias did?

55. But he turned and rebuked them, and ſaid, [Ye know not what manner [d] ſpirit ye are of.] 55. The Chriſtians ſpirit, the œconomy, or courſe preſcribed them, differs much from that of a Prophet in the Old Teſtament, moved by zeale againſt the enemies of God, The courſe which you muſt take with ſuch, is that of ſweetneſs and perſuaſiveneſs, and this propoſall of yours is very contrary to that. d

56. For the ſon of man is not come to deſtroy mens lives, but to ſave them. And they went to another village.] 56. For I came not to kill any, but to preſerve and reſcue from death, and from all that is ill, And all the revenge that Chriſt thought fit to act upon them, was to leave them, and go to another village.

57. And it came to paſſe, that as they went in the way, a certain man ſaid unto him, Lord I will follow thee, whitherſoever thou goeſt.

58. And Jeſus ſaid unto him [The Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have neſts, but the ſon of man hath not where to lay his head.] 58. you had beſt to conſider what you do, for doing ſo will be far from advancing any temporall intereſt of yours, Mat. 8. 20.

59. And he ſaid unto another, Follow me. But he ſaid, Lord ſuffer me firſt to go and bury my father.] 59. And there was another diſciple of his, who had already undertaken his ſervice, and attended on him, Mat. 18. 21. who came unto him, and ſaid, Sir before I betake my ſelf wholly to attendance on thee, ſpare me ſo long, till I have buried my father, either now newly dead (of which the newes is now come to me) or very old, whom I would attend while he lives, and give him that civility of buriall, and then come and follow thee. (Theophylact.)

60. Jeſus ſaid unto him, Let the dead bury their dead, but go thou, and preach the kingdom of God.] 60. But Jeſus replyed unto him, The Nazarite, Num. 6. 7. being conſecrated to God, was not to pollute himſelfe with his dead father, but leave that work of burying him to others, and ſo the Prieſt alſo, and therefore thou that haſt, by the tender of thine attendance, conſecrated thy ſelfe to me, muſt referre that office of burying thy father to others, that have not undertaken that attendance, and ſet preſently about thy taſk of preaching the Goſpel. See note on Mat. 8. 22.

61. And another alſo ſaid, Lord I will follow thee, but let me firſt go bid them farewell that are at home at my houſe.

62. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.] 62. He that holds the plough muſt have his eye diligently faſtned upon that; and if he be apt often to look back, he will be unfit for that employment: ſo thou when thou haſt undertaken my ſervice, muſt follow it, with the ſame diligence, and if thou haſt any thoughts of what thou haſt left at home, thou wilt never be fit for a diſciple of mine.

Notes on Chap. IX.

2. Καλιλεῦσι] Καλιλεῦσι properly ſignifies among mariners κάλαιξιν ἀπὸ πλαγιᾶς εἰς τὸ λιμένα, to come back and retire from the ſea to the haven, and from thence 'tis applied to travailers, that betake themſelves to their inne, which is therefore called κάλαμα, becauſe the man and the beaſt there layed down his lading, and ſo 'tis generally to refreſh ones ſelf, ἀναπαύσαι, ἀναχωρῆσαι, ſaith Phavorinus out of Heſychius.

Ἔξοδον] That Chriſt's Ἔξοδον] here ſignifies his death, and going out of this world, will be acknowledged 1. by the uſe of a parallel phraſe to this ſenſe Joh. 13. 1. where his death is call'd μετάβασις ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου a paſſing out of this world, typified there by the Paſch in the beginning of the verſe, and that we know was inſtituted as a commemoration of the Exodus, or going out of Ægypt, 2ly. by S. Peters uſing it of himſelf 2 Pet. 1. 15. to ſignifie his departure, before expreſt by the laying down his tabernacle, v. 13. But that it is here alſo, in a more ſolemn ſenſe, of ſomewhat a greater latitude, may appear by this, that the Ἔξοδον of Chriſt is here ſaid to be the ſubject of the diſcourſe betwixt Elias and Moſes, and Chriſt, upon mount Tabor. And what the matter of that diſcourſe was, hath been ſet down at large, from ſufficient evidences, note on Mat. 17. 2. viz: the coming of the Great and terrible day of the Lord, Malac: 4. 5. before which Elias was firſt to come. Which being there ſufficiently manifeſt, and explained to denote the approaching deſtruction of the obſtinate, unbeleiving Jewes, may farther be cleared by another place, wherein 'tis mention'd what the ſubject of this diſcourſe was, that of S. Peter, that was preſent at this viſion, 2 Pet. 1. 16. where he affirms, that at his being on the mount Tabor with Chriſt, he had a revelation concerning (that which was the matter of that whole Epiſtle of his) the power and coming of Jeſus Chriſt (which what it ſignifies in divers places of the New Teſtament, viz: a middle ſecond coming of Chriſt upon the Jewes, hath been ſhewn at large, note on Mat. 24. b.) And ſo again 1 Pet. 5. 1. when he ſaith he was a witneſs of Chriſts ſufferings, and a partaker of the glory which ſhould be revealed, that latter ſeems to referre to his preſence at the tranſfiguration, where this glory that was to follow Chriſts ſufferings was repreſented to him and two other diſciples. To which purpoſe 'tis alſo obſervable in what ſenſe we find the word Ἔξοδος uſed Heb. 11. 22. and in the title of the ſecond book of Moſes, to denote the departure of the Iſraelites out of Ægypt to Canaan, And accordingly in S. Judes Epiſtle (which is but the Epitome of, and parallel to that 2d of S. Peter) where S. Peter ſaith, 2 Pet. 1. 15, 16. I will endevour to put you in mind of theſe things, i. e. of this power and coming of our Lord which he had made known to them,] he hath theſe words v 9. I would put you in mind, that the Lord having delivered the people of Iſrael out of the land of Ægypt, deſtroyed thoſe that did not beleive. Which referring to that Ἔξοδος, Moſes's bringing the Iſraelites out of Ægypt, ſuppoſes that to be an image or reſemblance of that coming of Chriſt, i. e. of what Christ ſhould now doe within a while, viz: that being gone out of the world, and by that means of his death, having brought his people out of their captivity, he ſhould not only overwhelm his enemies the Jewes, like Pharaoh, and the Ægyptians, but withall deſtroy the wicked impure, Gnoſtick Chriſtians, like the diſobedient Iſraelites in the wilderneſſe. And that this (as it may properly be contain'd under the word ἔξοδος, ſo) was the thing that Saint Luke meant here by it, may probably appear 1. by the agreeableneſs of it, and by the Evangeliſts referring it (it came to paſſe, ſaith he, after theſe words about 8 daies, that Jeſus took Peter and John &c.v.28.) to the diſcourſe immediately præcedent (for the expreſſing of which, as by an Embleme, the tranſfiguration ſeems to have been deſigned) which is all to that purpoſe of preſerving the beleivers, that take up Chriſt's croſſe, and deſtroying all ſuch, who (as the Gnoſticks afterward, and thoſe that were corrupted by them) ſhould be moſt carefull to preſerve their lives; 2ly. by the mention of Jeruſalem, where all this was to be fulfill'd, firſt Chriſt to die there, then all theſe glorious works of God to be ſhewn upon that people, in deſtroying the unbeleivers, and the ἀντιθετικοὺς, the diſobedient provokers, *Heb.*3.12. 16.18. among them, and preſerving the ſincere, pure, perſevering, faithfull Chriſtians in the midſt of that deſtruction. Theſe arguments doe not pretend to demonſtrate, but have been added, ex abundanti, to that one ground, laid *Mat.*17. (note a.) only as probabilities concurring with that, which is there evidenced.

Chriſt

c. Ἀνάλημψις] here applied to Chriſt may poſſibly belong to his aſſumption up to heaven out of this world, which then might be ſaid to draw neer: but 'tis ſomewhat more probable that it ſhould ſignifie his crucifixion, which was to be at Jeruſalem, toward which place he is here ſaid to goe, becauſe his time was come. And to this the expreſſion agrees, which is uſed by Chriſt, Joh. 12. 32. ἐὰν ὑψωθῶ, if I be lifted up, which the text ſaith was a teſtification of the kind of his death, i.e. of his crucifixion, and indeed the Syriack word for the Croſſe, being זקיפא from זקף to erect or lift up (noting the tignum or palus which was in ſublime erectus) to be crucified] in the Syriack expreſſion will be to be exalted or lifted up.

d. Πνεῦμα The word πνεῦμα Spirit is very diverſely taken in the New Teſtament, 1. ſometimes (with the addition of Θεοῦ or Χριστοῦ God or Chriſt, or ἅγιον holy, and ſometimes without it) for the eternall Spirit of God, the holy Ghoſt, the third perſon in the ſacred Trinity, *Mat.*28.19. into which we are baptized. And from thence 2dly. for the graces and gifts of that Spirit, whether thoſe that are of uſe to all ſorts of men, as the Spirit of ſupplication, Zach. 12.10. i.e. zelous ardent prayer, and accordingly Προσεύχεσθαι ἐν πνεύματι we read of praying ἐν πνεύματι, *Epheſ.*6.18. in or with the Spirit, and Jude 20. with the addition of ἁγίῳ, in, or with the holy Spirit, praying as thoſe doe that are by the Spirit of God enabled or raiſed to perform this duty with ſome ardency. So Epheſ. 5.19. being filled with the Spirit (in oppoſition to being drunk with wine) is expreſſed by ſpeaking in Pſalmes, and hymnes, and ſpirituall ſongs, in or with the heart, zealouſly and cordially. Or whether thoſe which belong not to all, but onely to thoſe which are thus to be qualified for any office, whether Regal, or Prophetick, or Evangelical. So the Spirit of prophecy Act. 2. 18. and the double portion of Elias's Spirit, i.e. the right (as of primogeniture) of ſucceeding him in his prophetick office. So 1 Cor. 14. 12. ζηλωταὶ πνευμάτων, zealous of Spirits, i. e. of thoſe gifts of tongues &c. that were given the Apoſtles for the planting of the Goſpel. So v.2. he that ſpeaks with tongues, πνεύματι λαλεῖ μυστήρια, ſpeaks in an hidden, unintelligible manner by that gift of tongues (ſee v.19. and 23.) for no man heares, i. e. underſtands him, and in the ſame ſenſe v.14. my Spirit i.e. my gift of tongues, prayeth, I make uſe of that gift, which no body but my ſelf underſtands &c. 3dly. 'Tis taken for an Angel, whether good or bad; good, *Revel.*1.4. bad, Mar. 1.23. 5.2. an unclean, i.e. diabolical, or evil ſpirit, as appeareth v 9. From the ambiguity of which it is that πνευματικοὶ 1 Cor. 12. 1. is taken in the latitude both for thoſe that are acted with an evil, and which are inſpired with a good Spirit, the Spirit of God, which is looked on as a fountain of all ſupernatural revelations, 1 Cor. 2. 12. and oppoſed there to the ſpirit of the world, that which the world knowes or can reveal to us, (ſee note on *Rom.*9.2.) To this, I ſuppoſe, muſt be reduced another notion not farre diſtant, wherein the word [Spirits] ſignifies teachers, pretenders to inſpiration from God, whether truly or falſly, ſo 1 Joh. 4.1. Believe not every ſpirit, but trie the ſpirits, whether they be of God, Give not heed to every teacher, but examine all ſuch pretenders, whether they be truly of God, or no; for, as it follows, many falſe prophets have gone out into the world, where thoſe falſe prophets are one ſeet of thoſe ſpirits which muſt be examined, So v.2 by this ye know the ſpirit of God, i.e. a truly inſpired teacher ſent by God, Every ſpirit which confeſſes Jeſus Chriſt which is come in the fleſh, is from God, And v. 3. Every ſpirit which confeſſeth not &c. (the ſpirit again is the teacher, for to him onely it belongeth to confeſſe or not confeſſe.) And this is that of Antichriſt (the Antichriſtian teachers) which cometh and now is in the world, which cannot be affirmed again but of a perſon; Which is yet more manifeſt v.5. They are from the world (ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου in the maſculine) therefore they ſpeak from the world, and the world heareth them, You are from God, he that knoweth God heareth you; Where the ſpirits before, are now deſcribed as teachers, worldly or divine, and again expreſſed in the end of ver.6. by the Spirit of truth, and the ſpirit of errour, either orthodox, or erroneous, ſeducing teachers, the latter of which are diſtinctly called πλάνοι deceivers or impoſtors, 2 *Joh.*7. and thoſe with the ſame character affixt to them that belonged to the ſpirits which were not of God, 1 Joh. 4.3. From whence it will be moſt reaſonable to interpret the πνεύματα πλάνα ſeducing ſpirits 1 *Tim.*4.1 of perſons alſo, though the doctrines of devils] that are joyned with them, would incline to interpret them of doctrines taught by ſuch. 4thly. Tis taken ſometimes for an apparition, the ſhape or ſeeming of a body, without any real corporeity in it. So *Lu.*24. 37,39. ἐδόκουν πνεῦμα θεωρεῖν, they thought they ſaw a ſpirit, for which Mat. 14.26. and *Mar.*6.49. φάντασμα a phantaſme is uſed. 5ly. It is taken for the ſpirit of man, the ſupreme diviner faculty, oppoſed opposed to the body or flesh, Gal. 5. 17. 1 Thess. 5. 23. and set higher then ψυχὴ, the soule, common to man with other sensitive creatures. So 1 Cor. 2. 11. the spirit of a man that is in him, to which it belongeth to search to the secrets and bottome of him. So 1 Pet. 3. 19. πνεύμασι ἐν φυλακῇ are the spirits and soules of men, of the meaning of which place, (see note on 1 Pet. 3. e.) So Joh. 6. 63. the spirit that enliveneth is the soule that animates the body (as Jam. 2. 26.) And from thence in the end of that verse (where he saith that the words which he spake unto them were spirit and life) the meaning must be, that Christ spake not of a carnal, grosse, but an immaterial, spiritual eating, i.e. receiving and laying up his doctrine in their hearts and soules, and amending their lives by it, (which is also the true, durable, profitable eating, farre beyond the corporeal, external, as Christ and his doctrine are the true Manna v. 55.) so Joh. 4. 23. the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit, i.e. the service and worship of God now under the Gospel, shall not consist in the external legal performances, but extend to the heart and soule, those duties of real purity and piety, which were typified by those legal shadowes; So when the Spirit signifies the Gospel, as that is opposed to the Law under the title of the flesh, Gal. 3. 3. and in many other places, this is taken by analogie from that acception of the spirit for the soule, as that is the principle of life, and that an inward principle. These are the more obvious acceptions of the word, which belong to most of the places where the word is used, and in most of them the context will readily determine to which. In some few other places it is used in a different sense, and notes 6^thly. a way of dispensation or œconomy, a disposition or course of things, as when the law is called the spirit of bondage, Rom. 8. 15. i. e. the way of dealing with men as with servants (as it was with the Jewes) and on the other side the spirit of Adoption, the more ingenuous way of dealing, as with sons, now under the Gospel. And so here, when they would, as Elias had done, have called for fire on the Samaritans, Christ tells them they know not of what spirit they are, i.e. they considered not under what dispensation they were, Christ came to save &c. the course or way of proceedings which the Gospel brought in, or was meant to teach men, was very distant from that which had been observable in Elias under the Old Testament, and consequently they must not doe, as Elias had done. Christ came to infuse and teach by his example and sermons an higher charity (even to enemies and rejecters of Christ himself) then was thought necessary before: They that rejected, and scoffed at a prophet then, the prophet had commission to destroy them, and accordingly without farther admonitions calls for fire from heaven to devoure them presently: But they that refuse and crucifie Christ, are by him prayed for, and are by his command yet farther to be preached to, and, if possible, brought to repentance; and according to this example, so are all Christians to conform themselves, and if they doe, then are they said to be of Christ's, and not of Elias's kind of spirit, of the Evangelical dispensation or œconomy. So 1 Pet. 4. 14. If ye be reproached for the name of Christ &c. the Spirit of God, i.e. the same way of œconomy which was used toward Christ incarnate, resteth on you, is used among you; 7^thly. It signifies affection, temper, disposition of any (which is a sense lightly varied from the former) so Lu. 1. 17. the spirit of Elias is that temper, affection, zeale that was observable in Elias. So 1 Joh. 3. 24. By this we know that God abideth in us, by the spirit that he hath given us, i. e. by our having the same temper, the same affection, which is so observable in God, i. e. that of charity to our brethren, v. 23. That this is the meaning appears by comparing it with ch. 4. 12, 13. If we love one another God abideth in us &c. by this we know that we abide in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his spirit. So Rom. 8. 9. Ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, i.e. (in the former notion of the spirit for that inward purity and obedience required under the Gospel) ye must live pure, spiritual lives (without which there is no pleasing God v. 8.) if so be the spirit of God dwelleth in you, i.e. if the sacred Evangelical temper of which we have the precepts and pattern in Christ, continue among you, But if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, i.e. if that temper so observable in Christ be not at all discernible in you, ye are none of his, ye cannot pretend to be Christians, or expect to enjoy the priviledges of such, & v. 11. If the spirit of him that raised up Jesus dwell in you, i.e. if that divine Godlike temper be constantly in you, he that raised up Jesus from the dead, i. e. God, will also quicken your mortal bodies, give even these mortal bodies of yours a joyfull resurrection, by his spirit dwelling in you, i. e. by the power of that same Spirit that raised Christ, if ye be now animated and quickened by that, if that divine temper of his continue in you. So v. 14. being led by the Spirit] is living according to the pattern set before us by Christ. And so the spirit of feare, and of power, and love &c. 2 Tim. 1. 7. are those affections of feare on one side, cowardise and timidity, and of courage and constancy and adherence to Christ (such as was exemplified to us in Christ, in declaring and asserting his Fathers will) on the other side. In the Old Testament 'tis farther used, sometimes for skill and abilities, Exod. 28. 3. the Spirit of wisdome to make Aaron garments, and Exod. 31. 2. Bezaleel is filled with the Spirit of God in wisdome, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship. Sometimes for zeale, as 1 Sam. 11. 6. where the Spirit of God came upon Saul, and his anger was kindled greatly. Sometimes for a Commission to an office or employment, as Judg. 3. 10. the Spirit of God came upon Othniel, i. e. he received mission from God, and he judged Israel. So upon Gedeon ch. 6. 34. and on Jephta ch. 11. 29. and on Samson ch. 13. 25. but this still joyned with extraordinary abilities for the discharge of the office, and with particular incitations to some extraordinary things, which might testifie to men this their Commission from God, or to themselves, that they are thus designed and qualified for it. As appears by Samson c. 14. 6. where the Spirit of the Lord coming mightily upon him, denotes the strength which God gave him to kill the Lyon, and that an essay of what he should be able to doe to the Philistines v. 19. Thus Num. 11. 17. when God takes of the spirit which is upon Moses, and puts it upon the Seventy, 'tis apparent that that the Spirit there ſignifies the Commiſſion or authority that Moſes had to govern the people, together with abilities to diſcharge it (ſee Deut. 34. 9.) which is there communicated by God to the Seventy, as it follows, and they ſhall bear the burthen of the people with thee, i. e. take part of the burthen of ruling them. So v. 25. The Lord took of the Spirit that was upon him, and gave it unto the Seventy, and when the Spirit reſted upon them they prophecied &c. i. e. ſome gifts extraordinary attended this commiſſion, partly to ſignifie that they were thus ſet apart and endowed with authority by God, and partly to fit them for the diſcharge of their office conferred on them; So v. 26. the Spirit's reſting on Eldad and Medad, was God's conferring this authority on them, to which were joyned alſo thoſe gifts of the Spirit, and they prophecied alſo, and ſo ver. 29. Would God all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his Spirit upon them, i. e. communicate that power to them which he had given to Moſes, and qualifie them with extraordinary gifts accordingly. So at the making of Saul King, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall come upon thee, 1 Sam. 10. 6. ſome extraordinary change wrought on him, by which his commiſſion was evidenced to himſelf and others, and ſo ver. 10. And proportionably in the New Teſtament, Chriſt's prophetick commiſſion was thus conferr'd on him, The Spirit of God deſcending like a dove, and lighting or reſting on him, and (above what had before been done to any) a voice from heaven proclaiming this Commiſſion to be given to him from his Father, and this, from Iſa. 61. 1. is called the Spirit of the Lord being upon him, and that explained by his being anointed to preach, Lu. 4. 18. and by the Spirit of wiſdome &c. Iſa. 11. 2, 3. which ſignifies a commiſſion and all other extraordinary gifts and powers conferred upon him, and is called his being anointed with the holy Ghoſt and with power. And ſo of his Apoſtles Act. 2. 4. their being fill'd with the holy Ghoſt, is their being endow'd with commiſſion from heaven for that ſacred function, and accordingly they ſpeak with tongues (as the Seventy and Saul, after the Spirit's coming on them, prophecied) as the Spirit gave them utterance, and this as the completion of that promiſe of Chriſt that they ſhould be endued with power from on high, Lu. 24. 49. or receive δύναμιν ἐξ ὕψους the power of the holy Ghoſt coming upon them. And ſo ever after, the ordaining of a Biſhop in the Church was expreſſed by his receiving the holy Ghoſt. Other uſes there are of the word Spirit, which will be diſcernible by the Context, and be reducible to one or more of theſe, but are too long to be more particularly ſet down here.

CHAP. X.

1. beſide the twelve Apoſtles, choſe ſeventy others to be to him as diſciples were wont to be to Prophets, i. e. to go on his errands, as he ſhould appoint them, which they did by turns, two at once, as harbingers proclaiming his approach in every city, whither he meant to come.

1. After theſe things the Lord [appointed other * ſeventy alſo, and ſent them two and two before his face, into every city and place, whither he himſelfe would come.]

* the ancient Greek and Latin MS. reads 72. LXXII. ſeventy two, and ſo v. 17.

2. The province is large, and there be many that are ready to receive the Goſpel, when it ſhall be preached to them, It is needfull therefore to pray to God to incline mens hearts to undertake this office of going and revealing it to them, for as yet there are very few for ſo great a task.

2. Therefore ſaid he unto them, [The harveſt truly is great, but the labourers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the harveſt, that he would ſend forth labourers into his harveſt.]

3. But when ye go, ye muſt expect to meet with dangers, and ill receptions.

3. Go your wayes, [behold, I ſend you forth as lambes among wolves.]

4. Yet let not that deterre you, or put you upon making proviſions before-hand for your journey, And as you go, ſpend no time in civilities with any, Intend and mind that one buſineſs you go about.

4. Carry neither purſe, nor ſcrip, nor ſhoes, and ſalute no man by the way.]

5. And into whatſoever houſe ye enter, firſt ſay, Peace be to this houſe.

6. any, to whom peace properly belongs, any pious perſon, called by an Hebraiſm the ſonne of peace, (as the wicked Apoſtate traytor is the ſonne of perdition, Joh. 17. 12.) any pliable perſon, capable of the bleſſing of the Goſpel, dwell there,

6. And if [the ſonne of peace be there] your peace ſhall reſt upon it, if not, it ſhall turn to you again.

7. Remove not out of one houſe to go to another in the ſame city.

7. And in the ſame houſe remain eating and drinking ſuch things as they give, for the labourer is worthy of his hire. [Go not from houſe to houſe.]

8. receive without any ſcruple the entertainment, which they offer you.

8. And into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you, [eat ſuch things as are ſet before you.]

9. See Mat. 3. note o.

9. And heal the ſick that are therein, and ſay unto them, [The kingdome of God is come nigh † unto you.]

† upon is'

10. But into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the ſtreets of the ſame, and ſay,

11. as a teſtimony of your obſtinacy, and uſage of us, (Mat. 10. 14. & Luke 9. 5.) and as a token to aſſure you that your deſtruction is very neer falling on you.

11. Even the very duſt of your city which cleaveth on us we do wipe off [againſt you, * notwithſtanding be ye ſure of this, that the kingdome of God is come nigh † unto you.]

* further-more also † upon is'

12. when that judgment comes. v. 14.

12. But I ſay unto you, that it ſhall be more tolerable [in that day] for Sodome, then for that city.

13. Woe

13. Woe unto thee, Chorazin, woe unto thee, Bethsaida; for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon, which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, sitting in sack-cloth and ashes.]

13. Woe unto you, ye cities of Jewry, among whom so many miracles have been shewn to work faith in you, and so to bring you to repentance, and all in vain: Had the like been done in heathen cities neer you, they in all likelihood would have been wrought on by them.

14. But it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgement then for you.]

14. And accordingly their portion in the vengeance approaching, shall be more supportable then yours.

15. And thou Capernaum which art exalted to heaven, shalt be thrust down to *[hell.]

* Hades

15. destruction and desolation, See Mat. 11. 23.

16. He that heareth you heareth me, and he that despiseth you, despiseth me, and he that despiseth me, despiseth him that sent me.]

16. The not hearkning to your preaching, the despising of these warnings of yours is the despising of me, that have sent you, and so of God that sent me, and hath destin'd this only means to avert his judgements from the world, and shall accordingly bring all vengeance upon the Jewes on their refusall.

17. And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.]

17. And when the seventy returned, they came to Christ and told him with great joy, that although it was not part of their commission, v. 9. yet they having used his name (in Acts 19. 13.) against devils, it thrived with them, the devils were subject to do what they bid them.

18. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.]

18. And he said to them, Wonder not at that, for it is determined that within a while the Prince of devils shall be dethroned, and fall from his great unlimited power in the world, as lightning when it flasheth and vanisheth, doth, i. e. come to nothing, never recollect again.

19. Behold, I give unto you power to tread on Serpents and Scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy, and nothing shall by any means hurt you.]

19. I bestow upon you a power to cast out devils, and to be above any harm that any the most noxious creature which the devill may use as his instrument, can do unto you.

20. Notwithstanding in this rejoyce not, that the spirits are subject unto you, but rather rejoyce, because [your names are written in heaven.]

20. you are children and heirs of God, set in that right way, in which as many of you as shall continue, shall inherit eternall life, See note on Phil. 4. 3. and Rev. 3. 5.

21. In that hour Jesus rejoyced in spirit and said, I thank thee O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes, [even so Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight.]

Mat. 11. 25.

21. this is an act of thine infinite wisdom, and mercy, and condescension to the weakness of men, mixt with all justice toward the proud contemners.

22. All things are delivered to me of my Father,] and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father, and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him.

22. I come not in mine own, but my Fathers name, all my power is delivered to me by him, and so my doctrine also,

23. And he turned him unto his disciples and said privately, [Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see.]

23. It is an incomparable felicity you are now partakers of.

24. For I tell you that many Prophets and Kings have desired to see those things which yee see, and have not seen them, and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

Mat. 13. 17.

25. And behold, a certain Lawyer stood up and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternall life?

25. 26. a student of the Law, came to try what his judgement was about the Law, or rule of life, and asked him what was necessary to be observed to the attaining that eternall life, which Christ promised, And he answered him, The very same which in the Law of Moses is set down, as the main substantiall part of the Law, which he therefore bid him recite unto him.

26. And he said unto him, what is written in the Law? How readest thou?]

27. And he answering said,] Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thy selfe.

27. And he recited out of Deut. 6. 5. the known summary of the Law,

28. And he said unto him, Thou hast answered well, [this do, and thou shalt live.]

28. the due performance of this is all that I now require of thee to salvation.

29. But he willing to justify himself said unto Jesus, And who is my neighbour?]

29. But he willing to set out his own perfections, and being confident of his having performed the first part, the duties toward God, by the exact observance of the ceremonics of the Law, made no question concerning that, but for the second, the love of the neighbour, he proposed that other question, who are contained under that title of neighbour.

30. And Jesus answering said,] A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among theeves, which stripped him of his raiment and wounded him, and departed, leaving him halfe dead.

30. This question Jesus thought best to answer by a parable, saying,

31. And * by chance there came down a certain Priest that way, and when he saw him he passed by on the other side.]

* Or, upon occasion.

31. And a certain Priest without any knowledge of what had happened, at the same time went that way, and saw him, and would take no pity on him.

32. coming thither in his passage, staid so long as to see what condition he was in, and having done left him without any compassion.

32. And likewise a Levite, [when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.]

33. But though the Priest & the Levite, which were his countrey-men, or fellow-Jewes, were not so compassionate, yet a Samaritan, which was not so, being of an Assyrian extraction, (see Joh. 4. 20.) and one whose religion separated him from the Jewes (Joh. 4. 9. and Lu. 9. 53.) was not so hardhearted, but assoon as he saw him, he had compassion on him,

33. But a certain Samaritane, as he journied, came where he was, and when]

34. washed his wounds, applied healing things to them, and then bound them up cleanly, as surgeons are wont,

34. And went to him, and [bound up his wounds, pouring in oyle and wine,] and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an Inne, and took care of him.

See note on Mat. 9. h.

35. And on the morrow when he departed, he [took out] two pence, and gave them to the host, and said unto him, Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee.

36. Which now of these three, thinkest thou was neighbour unto him, that fell among theeves?

37. Take that for an answer to thy question, Who is thy neighbour, v. 29. For every person that is in want of thy relief, although he be to thee as a Jew to a Samaritan, upon terms of absolute separation and hostility toward thee, must be looked on by thee, as the object of thy compassion and mercy, and of any charity of thine, of which he is capable, Mat. 5. 43, 44.

37. And he said, He that shewed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, [Goe and doe thou likewise.]

38. Now it came to passe as they went, that he entred into a certain village, and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house.

39. behaved her self as a disciple, never parted from him, but attended diligently to all that was delivered by him.

39. And she had a sister called Mary, which also [sate at Jesus feet, and heard his word.]

40. wholly taken up about making provision for (& distributing to) the guests, (see note on c. 8. a.) and she came to Christ, and desired him to bid her sister Mary to joyne with her to make provision for the company, which was too much for her to doe alone.

b. 40. But Martha was [cumbred about much serving] and came unto him, and said, Lord dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she [b] help me.]

41. thou takest a great deal of unnecessary, though not culpable pains (as in all worldly businesse there is a great deal more sollicitude then is necessary,)

41. And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, [thou art carefull and troubled about many things,]

42. But the one only thing which is absolutely necessary, the hearing my word in order to the keeping it, the receiving advantage by my coming to thy house, is much a more acceptable thing to me, then the entertaining me with so much diligence, and the advantage of this will continue to Mary to all æternity.

42. But one thing is needfull, and Mary hath chosen * that good part, which shall not be taken from her.]

* the good portion τὴν ἀγαθὴν μερίδα,

Notes on Chap. X:

a Συγκυρία

The word Συγκυρία signifies literally concurrence, when two things fall out together, Συγκυρῶ (it should be Συγκυρέω) Συγκυρία, saith Hesychius, and Συγκύρημα, Συγκύρημα (not with any respect to τύχη fortuna, but from συγχάνω sum, the word signifying [being] and no more) so places that lie together, are called Συγκυρῶντα, Num. 21. 25. and 35. 3. and Deut. 2. 37. according to the notion of the simple κυρῶ, συγχάνω, saith Hesychius, and κυρῶ, ὑπάρχω, and κυρία, ἡ καθ' ἑαυτὸν ὑπάρχουσα δύναμις. And then the rendring will be most exactly thus, And the same time it fell out that a certain priest came down that way; But in Hippocrates it is used frequently to signifie any occasion of doing any thing, l. de Medi: vet: δι' ὑδρωὼ ἢ δι' ἄλλω τινα Συγκυρίω, for pleasure, or for any other occasion, or concurrent thing, that being at the same time, is the occasion of any thing. And then it may be rendred [upon occasion] i. e. having some businesse that occasion'd his going by at that time.

b. Ἀντιλαμβανεσθαι

The word ἀντιλαμβανεσθαι] especially with a genitive of the person joyn'd with it, signifies to succour or relieve any in distresse, so Lu. 1. 54. ἀντελάβετο Ἰσραὴλ, he hath relieved Israel, a work of Ἔλεος mercy, as it follows, and a filling them with good things, when they were hungry v. 43. So ἀντιλαμβάνεσθε ἀσθενούντων, Act. 20. 35. to relieve the poor, and, as it there follows, to give to them. So ἀντιλήψεις 1 Cor. 12. 28. the office of relieving the poor, see note e. on that chap: From hence 'tis discernible, what is the full importance of ἵνα συναντιλάβηταί μοι] here; Christ was received & entertained in the house of Martha and Mary, Martha made provision for him, and all that were with him, this is called πολλὴ διακονία, a great deal of work in providing for them all, at the beginning of the verse, hereupon she complains to Christ that Mary by hearkning to him left her διακονεῖν μόνην, to minister to them, or provide for them alone, without any body else, and thereupon desires him to bid her bear her company, in making provision for them, the ἀντιλαμβάνεσθε, as διακονεῖν, noting the making this provision, and the σὺν added to it, the joyning with her, or bearing her company, contrary to the μόνην] her doing it alone, præcedent. Thus Rom. 8. 26. συναντιλαμβάνεται δὲ τῇ ἀσθενείᾳ ἡμῶν, is to joyne in relieving our necessities. We have no meanes but prayer to God to relieve our selves in any distresse, But then again, we know not what is absolutely best for us, nor consequently to pray as

as we ought, therefore when we want and pray for ought, the Spirit of Christ joyneth with us in relieving us, i. e. in interceding for us, that what is absolutely best may be granted us, joines with us in prayer; and so in relieving us by praying silently for us, and asking those things, which Christ knows us to stand most in need of, when we doe not.

CHAP. XI.

Paraphrase.

1. AND it came to passe that as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.]

1. And upon occasion of his frequent retiring to prayer, at a time when he was upon that performance, his disciples took into consideration, how needfull it was for them to be directed in a right performance of that duty, and thereupon, at his coming out to them, one of them besought him to give them a form of prayer, which they might constantly use, as John Baptist had given to his disciples.

2. And he said unto them, When ye pray, say,] Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name, Thy kingdome come, Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth.

2. And upon that demand of his (being another time, and upon another occasion from that in the Sermon on the Mount, Mat. 6. 9.) Christ said to his disciples, Whensoever ye pray solemnly, omit not to use this form of words,

3. Give us day by day our daily bread.

See Mat. 6. 11.

4. And forgive us our sins, for we also forgive every one that [is [a] indebted to us,] And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.

4. hath done us any injury. a.

5. And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall goe unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves,

6. For a friend of mine [in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him.]

6. travailing by this way is come to my house, and I have nothing to entertain him.

7. And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not, [b] the dore is now shut, and [my children are with me] in bed, I cannot rise and give thee.

7. both I and my children which might deliver it to thee are b.

8. I say unto you [though he will not rise and give him becaus he is his friend, yet becaus of his * importunity he will] rise, and give him as many as he needs.

* shamelessnesse desiders

8. if respect of friendship will not work upon him, yet his coming without bashfulnesse at such a time of night, which is an argument of his reall want, and of his confidence in him to whom he comes, will certainly make him

9. And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.]

9. And the same effect, let me tell you, will your constancy and earnestnesse in prayer to God have upon him.

10. For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened.]

10. For no child or friend of God's ever misseth to receive from him what he thus asketh.

11. If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent?

12. Or if he shall ask an egge, will he offer him a scorpion?

13. If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly father give the holy Spirit to them that ask him?]

11, 12, 13. There is no feare that God should deny such petitions, or give his children any hurtfull thing, when they ask that which is good for them. And though many things which men aske be not such, yet his Spirit, and the assistances of that, are so certainly so, that they will never be denied to them that aske them of the Father.

14. And he was casting out a devil [and it was dumb, and it came to passe that when the devil was gone out, the dumb spake] and the people wondred.

14. and the disease which that devil inflicted on the man, deprived him of speech, and he cast out the devil, and restored the man to his speech again,

15. But some of them said, He casteth out devils through Beelzebub the chief of the devils.]

15. But some perswaded themselves v. 17. that all his power was from Beelzebub, Mat. 9. 34. and 12. 24. and that he having power of all inferior devils, enabled him to cast them out.

16. And others tempting him, sought of him a signe from heaven.]

16. Others, to make triall of his power, desired him to shew them some miracles or tokens of Gods sending him, some voice from heaven, or the like.

17. But he knowing their thoughts, said unto them,] Every kingdome divided against it self is brought to desolation, and an house divided against an house falleth.

17. To the former of them, those that thought he used the devils power to cast out devils, he used these arguments of conviction (and to the latter his answer is set down Mat. 12. 39. and here ver. 29. &c.)

18. If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdome stand?] becaus ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

18. If there be a division among the evil spirits, and one devill set himself against another, their kingdome cannot long endure, For though tis possible for the advancing of the devils kingdome, one instrument of his may undoe that which another hath done, which is not a division, but a politick union and conjunction in the same project, yet for one to oppose, and violently to eject the other (see Mar. 1. 25.) and to doe his utmost to cast him and his kingdome out of the world, this is a division, which cannot be imagined among those that are of a conspiracy, but only betwixt enemies bent to ruine one another. Mat. 12. 27. g.

19. that which is done by them before your eyes will be an argument of conviction againſt you.

19. And if I by Beelzebub caſt out devils, by whom doe your ſons caſt them out? therefore [ſhall they be your judges.]

20. But if by the power (& ſpirit Mat. 12. 28.) of God it be that I caſt out devils, then as the miracles of Moſes conſeſt by the Magicians to be done by the finger of God, Exod. 8. 19. were a certain teſtimony that he was ſent by God to redeem the people out of their bondage, So is this a certain argument, that I am now ſent by God to redeem you, if you will beleive on me.

20. But if I with the finger of God caſt out devils, no doubt the kingdome of God is come upon you.]

21. The devil will not be caſt out of his poſſeſſions unleſſe ſome perſon arm'd by the power of God, ſuperiour to what the devil is poſſeſt with, come and conquer him.

21. When a ſtrong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace.]

22. And therefore my caſting out devils is an argument that I come with that power, greater then any the devil hath, and conquer and diſarme him, and give all that follow me the benefits of that victory to be diſtributed among them.

22. But when a ſtronger then he ſhall come upon him and overcome him, he taketh from him * all his armour wherein he truſted, and divideth his ſpoiles.]

* his complete armour, τὴν πανοπλίαν αὐτοῦ

23. Tis proverbially ſaid, He that is &c. and therefore he that doth not aſſiſt, but caſt out Satan, muſt be reſolved to be an enemy of his, and not to operate by power from him. See Mat. 12. 30. and Mar. 9. 40.

23. He that is not with me, is againſt me; and he that gathereth not with me ſcattereth.]

24. But to you that have received ſuch miracles of mercy (particularly that of caſting out devils) and made no uſe of them, I ſhall adde this parable, When &c. ſee Mat. 12. 43.

24. When the unclean ſpirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through drie places, ſeeking reſt, and finding none, he ſaith, I will return unto my houſe whence I came out.]

25. And when he cometh, he findeth it ſwept and garniſhed.

26. Then goeth he and taketh to him ſeven other ſpirits more wicked then himſelf, and they enter in, and dwell there, and the laſt ſtate of that man is worſe then the firſt.

27. And about this time his mother and brethren came to ſpeak with him, and one came and told him ſo, Mat. 12. 47. and upon mention of his mother, a woman there preſent ſaid aloud,

27. And it came to paſſe as he ſpake theſe things, a certain woman of the company lift up her voice and ſaid unto him,] Bleſſed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou haſt ſucked.

28. But he ſaid, Whoſoever ſhall hear and obey the word of God, is to me as dear as mother or brethren, Mat. 12. 49, 50. and indeed that bleſſedneſſe of being an obedient faithfull ſervant of God, is farre greater then this other of having been the perſon of whoſe womb Chriſt is born, abſtracted or ſeparated from this other of having undertaken the obedience of God.

28. But he ſaid, Yea rather, bleſſed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it.]

Mat. 12. 39.

29. And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to ſay, This is an evil generation, they ſeek a ſigne, and there ſhall no ſigne be given it, but the ſigne of Jonas the prophet.

30. For as Jonas preaching in the ſtreets of Nineve, being accompanied with the miracle of having been three daies in the whales belly, and then being caſt up on the ſhore alive, was an aſſurance to them, that without repentance they ſhould ſpeedily be deſtroyed, So ſhall the preaching of Chriſt to the men of this age, accompanied with his death and reſurrection after three daies, be a certain forerunner of deſtruction to them that beleive not.

30. For as Jonas was a ſigne to the Ninevites, ſo ſhall alſo the ſon of man be to this generation.]

31. here is more of wiſdome, heavenly divine doctrine, then ever was in all Solomons words, or writings, Mat. 12. 42.

31. The queen of the ſouth ſhall riſe up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and ſhall condemn them: for ſhe came from the uttermoſt parts of the earth to hear the wiſdome of Solomon, and behold, [* a greater then Solomon is here.]

* more πλεῖον

32. here is more powerfull preaching, denuntiation of ſeverer judgments, then thoſe that Jonah denounced againſt Nineve.

32. The men of Nineve ſhall riſe up in the judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it, for they repented at the preaching of Jonas, and behold, [* a greater then Jonas is here.]

* more πλεῖον

33. To that purpoſe of v. 28. that they only are bleſs'd who not only heare but obſerve Gods commands, belongs that known ſpeech of Chriſt delivered at another time alſo, Mat. 5. 15. and Lu. 8. 16. No man &c.

33. No man] when he hath lighted a candle putteth it in a ſecret place, neither under a buſhel, but on a candleſtick, that they which come in, may ſee the light.

34. And to the ſame purpoſe may be applied that other, uſed alſo by Chriſt in the ſame ſermon on the mount, (ſee note on Mat. 6. 22. k.) that the heart being once truly warmed with Chriſtian virtues will fill the whole body with charitable and Chriſtian actions.

34. The light of the body is the eye, therefore when thine eye is ſingle, thy whole body alſo is full of light, but when thine eye is evil, thy body alſo is full of darkneſſe.]

35. Take care therefore that the Chriſtian precepts and graces afforded thee be not accompanied with an unchriſtian life.

35. Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkneſſe.]

36. If

36. If thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole ſhall be full of light, as when * the bright ſhining of a candle doth give thee light.]

* a candle by bright ſhining enlighteth thee, ὁ λαμπὸς τῆς ἀστραπῆς φωτίζει σε.

36. If therefore the Chriſtian doctrine have taken full poſſeſſion of thee, and no faculty or affection be left out from being wrought upon by it, then ſure the actions will be moſt illuſtriouſly ſo, and the whole life of ſuch an one be as a room with a blazing torch or candle in it, enlightned in every corner, without any intermiſſions or mixture of unchriſtian actions.

37. And as he ſpake, a certain Phariſee beſought him to dine with him, and he went in, and ſat down to meat.

38. And [when the Phariſee ſaw it, he marvailed that he had not firſt waſhed before dinner.]

38. the Phariſee wondred to ſee him lie downe to dinner without waſhing firſt, See Mar. 7. 3. notes a. and b.

39. And the Lord ſaid unto him, [Now doe ye Phariſees make clean the outſide of the cup and platter, but your inward part is full of * ravening and wickedneſſe.]

* violence, and villany, ἁρπαγῆς καὶ πονηρίας. See 1 Cor. 5. h.

39. Ye hypocriticall Phariſees waſh your ſelves, as if a man ſhould waſh his veſſels, the outſide of them only, leaving the inſides of them full of all filthineſſe, for thus doe ye waſh your bodies, leaving your ſoules full of all uncleanneſſe.

40. Ye fooles, did not he that made that which is without, make that which is within alſo?

40. This is an extreme folly, for if your outward waſhings were in obedience to God, you would cleanſe the inſides, your hearts and ſoules alſo, as well as your bodies.

* according to your ability give almes

41. But rather * c give almes of ſuch things as you have, and behold, all things are d clean unto you.]

41. The beſt way of purifying your ſelves, eſtates, meats, and drinks, &c. from all pollution cleaving to them, is (in ſtead of that which you Phariſees attempt by waſhing your hands, your veſſels &c.) by works of mercy and liberall almes-gifts. c. d.

* pay tithes of δεκατοῦτε

42. But woe unto you Phariſees, for ye * tithe mint and [rue, and all manner of herbs, and paſſe over judgment and the love of God: theſe ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.]

42. aniſe, and cummin, Mat. 23. 23. and ſo alſo of rue and every the meaneſt herb that growes in your garden, And omit the principall duties both to God and man. Theſe are the principall main duties God requires of you, though thoſe other lower performances ought not to be omitted, of paying tithes exactly according to the law and cuſtome among you.

43. Woe unto you Phariſees, for ye love the uppermoſt ſeats in the [ſynagogues,] and greetings in the markets.

17. Conſiſtories, Mat. 23. 6.

44. Woe unto you Scribes and Phariſees, hypocrites, for ye are as graves [which appear not, and the men that walk over them, are not aware of them.]

44. whoſe inward parts, which are unclean, are not ſeen, and they which ſee the ſpecious outſides of them, know not what is within, viz: bones of dead men and putrefaction.

45. Then anſwered one of the [Lawyers, and ſaid unto him, Maſter, thus ſaying thou reproacheſt us alſo.]

45. Doctors of the Law, members of the Sanhedrin, or Conſiſtories, and ſaith unto him, This ſpeech of thine ſeems to reflect on us, and the gravity that belongs to our places and perſons, and is a reproach to us.

46. And he ſaid, [Woe unto you alſo, ye lawyers: for ye lade men with burthens grievous to be born, and ye your ſelves touch not the burthens with one of your fingers.]

46. And ye certainly are not free, Ye are they, which lay heavy tasks on others, and think not your ſelves obliged to perform or undergoe any part of them.

* that ὅτι

47. Woe unto you, * for ye c build the ſepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

47, 48. Woe be to you, for that hypocriſie of yours, in appearing to bear ſuch reſpect, as to rebuild the tombs of thoſe prophets, whom your fathers killed; you your ſelves having as bloody thoughts againſt thoſe that are now ſent to you, and being ready to fill up their meaſure of bloodguiltineſſe, Mat. 23. 32. By your adorning their ſepulchres, ye bear witneſſe that your fathers kill'd the prophets, and at the ſame time ye are well pleaſed with their works, i. e. delight in, and meditate the like, and though ye ſay Mat. 23. 30. that if you had lived in their daies, ye would not have put the prophets to death, yet by your preſent actions of perſecuting me, and thirſting after my blood, ye ſhew that ſuch pretenſions are but hypocriſie in you. e.

† Thus yee beare witneſſe, and conſent, or are well pleaſed with the deeds, Ἄρα μαρτυρεῖτε, καὶ συνευδοκεῖτε τοῖς ἔργοις

48. † Truly ye bear witneſſe that ye allow the deeds of your fathers, * for they indeed killed them, and ye build their ſepulchres.]

* that ye τοὺς

49. And ſo clearly you are the people of whom God hath prophecied, that they will kill and perſecute thoſe whom he ſends to them, for this was begun by your fathers and continued in you, and is like to be perfected by you.

50. That the blood of all the prophets which was ſhed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation,]

50. And this is likely to be the effect of it, the Jewes of this age ſhall undergoe the ſevereſt vengeance that all the murthering of Gods prophets can bring on a rebellious people,

51. From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which periſhed betwixt the altar and the Temple, Verily I ſay unto you, it ſhall be required of this generation.

51. See Mat. 23. g.

52. Woe unto you lawyers, for ye [have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entred not in your ſelves, and them that were entring in, ye hindred.]

52. have robb'd the people of that underſtanding of Scripture, which might make them embrace the Goſpel now preacht to them: ye will not receive the faith your ſelves, and thoſe which are inclinable to receive it, ye hinder as much as you can.

53. And as he ſaid theſe things unto them, the Scribes and Phariſees began to [urge him vehemently, and to * f provoke him to ſpeak of many things,

54. Laying wait for him, and ſeeking to catch ſomething out of his mouth, that they might accuſe him.]

* poſe him concerning many things.

Notes on Chap. XI.

a. Ὀφείλει

The word [ὀφείλω to owe,] is here to be taken in a notion peculiar to the Syriack language (wherein Chriſt certainly ſpake) which neither the Greek, nor Latine, nor Hebrew had made uſe of; For he that ſinnes or offends either againſt God or man is in Syriack ſaid חַיָּב a debter, and ſo חוֹבָא, debitum, a debt, i.e. peccatum, a ſinne, So Exod. 32. This people חַטָּאָה חַטָּאתָא have ſinned a ſinne, the Targum read חַב חוֹבְתָא hath ought a debt, So Lev. 4. If a prieſt &c. יְחוֹטֵי ſhall ſinne, The Targum reads, יְחוֹב, ſhall owe, So Lu. 13. 4. of thoſe on whom the tower fell, doe you think, ſaith Chriſt, that theſe were ὀφειλέτας debters, i. e. offenders beyond all? And proportionably to this, to pardon] is by them expreſt by שְׁבַק, to remit, and here is rendred ἀφίεναι, to releaſe or abſolve.

b. ἡ θύρα κεκλεισται

The Romans were wont to expreſſe the firſt part of the night, the cloſe of the evening, by primâ face, candle-lightning. A later part, other nations expreſt by ſhutting up the dores, called in Greek κλεισίθυρον, which time was wont, by a kind of bell-man, to be cried about the ſtreets. Thus Joſ. 25. About the time of ſhutting the gate, where the Greek reads, ὥσὰ ἡ πυλὴ ἐκλείσθη, when the gate was ſhut, Thus in this place [the dore is ſhut] is meant, as an expreſſion of the lateneſs of the time of night, and is expreſt v. 5. by μεσονυκτίου at midnight.

c. τὰ ἐνόντα

The phraſe τὰ ἐνόντα] ſignifies [according to ability.] So when Epictetus appoints to abſtain from oathes ἐκ τῶ ἐνόντων, as farre as we are able, and in Gemiſthus Pletho, περὶ ἀρετῆ: p. 57. Ζὼν εὐτελείᾳ ἐκ τῶ ἐνόντων φιλοκαλῶν, ſpeaking of him, who of that which he hath, exerciſes liberality without any great expenſe. This is expreſt in Tob: by ἐκ τῶ ὑπαρχόντων σοι πάσῃ ἐλεημοσύνῃ, give alms of what thou haſt, and ſo Lu. 8. 3. & 12 33. and ſo ſaith Heſychius, ἐνὸν ἐνυπάρχον, ἢ δυνατὸν ᾖ, that which a man hath in his power, and Phavorinus to the ſame purpoſe, δυνατὸν, ἐνδεχόμενον, ἐνυπάρχον, and 'tis anſwerable to that of Deut. 16. 10. which we read, according as the Lord thy God hath bleſſed thee.

d. πάντα καθαρὰ

The Arabick word for almes, Zacat, hath a double notion, ſay they, either of encreaſing, or cleanſing, the firſt, 'quia erogatio ejus conciliat benedictionem opibus, becauſe the giving almes obtains a bleſſing on the wealth, and ſo encreaſeth it, the ſecond, quod opes ab inquinamento & animum ab avaritiæ ſordibus purgat, becauſe it purgeth the riches from the pollution and filthineſſe that adheres to them, and the mind from the ſullages of covetouſneſſe, according to that of Mat. 6. If the eye be ſingle, i.e. where the virtue of liberality is in the heart, the whole body is full of light, i.e. of all Chriſtian virtues, contrary to the vices pointed at by the darkneſs, that followes. In reference to this notion of the word in the Syriack, and Arabick, this ſeems to be here ſpoken by our Saviour, Give almes, which comes from a word that ſignifies to cleanſe, and all ſhall be clean to you, your wealth ſhall be purg'd and bleſſed, and your mind cleanſed alſo.

The meaning of this paſſage being thus rendred, [Woe unto you, that ye build the ſepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers kill'd them] will ſoon appear, if it be obſerved 1. that the woes here ſo oft denounced in this, and other places againſt the Phariſees, were for ſeverall acts of hypocriſie in them. Now hypocriſie, or perſonation, being the outward appearance, the diſguiſe, or ſpecious attire, of an action, that is here ſet down by it ſelf, the vice that was diſguiſed, and endevoured to be conceal'd under it, being not here named, but by their preſent actions (perſecuting Chriſt) viſible, and notorious, and withall intimated by S. Matthew, ch. 23. 32. as if he had ſaid, Your building, and adorning the ſepulchres of the old prophets, which your fathers kill'd, is in you a ſolemn perſonation, or hypocriſie, acting the parts of very pious men, that bear much reverence to them, (and ſuch is your ſpeech, Mat. 23. 30. that if ye had lived in your fathers daies, ye would not have had any hand in the killing the prophets.) 2ly, by obſerving the [καὶ, and] between the [μαρτυρεῖτε, ye bear witneſſe] and the [συνευδοκεῖτε, ye have a complacency with the deeds of your fathers] for that [And] conjoins two different things affirm'd of them by our Saviour, which are ordinarily confounded, Firſt ye bear witneſs to the works of your fathers, ye teſtifie to all men that your fathers kill'd the prophets that were ſent to them, and 2ly, ye like well, approve of their deeds, (not that by their building their tombs they expreſt that approbation, but that otherwiſe that was evidently ſeen) and though to diſguiſe this, ye adorne their ſepulchres, yet ye doe really the ſame things that ye profeſſe to condemn, and ſo are hypocrites in ſo doing: wch is more diſtinctly ſet down by Matthew, when he adds in a prophetick ſtyle πληρώσατε fill ye up the meaſure of your fathers, noting their fathers ſins, that they diſclaim, to be of the ſame kind, but of an inferior degree to thoſe, wch they are now ready to practiſe, and ſo to bring upon them thoſe woes, that utter exciſion, which had not befall'n their fathers. 3ly, by taking in into this period, that which both here, and in S. Matthew, is at the cloſe of it, I will ſend them Prophets and Apoſtles, and ſome of them they will ſlay and perſecute, to evidence them the generation of thoſe Vipers, whoſe practiſes they profeſt to diſlike, but doe really imitate, which is the thing, wherein their hypocriſie conſiſted, and upon which the judgment of hell came upon them.

c. Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν ὅτι οἰκοδομεῖτε

Μαρτυρεῖτε ἄρα συνευδοκεῖτε

f. Ἀποστοματίζειν

Ἀποστοματίζειν] in ordinary Greek is to recite without book, as a ſcholar doth a leſſon, ἀπὸ μνήμης λέγειν, ſaith Suidas, and Phavorinus, And accordingly the place in Heſychius muſt be corrected, in ſtead of ἀποστομίζειν, ἀποστοματίζειν. But here by an Hebraiſme of uſing the active voice in the ſenſe of the Hebrew * Hiphil, it ſignifies to make recite, and belongs to the Maſter, or him that hears the other ſay his leſſon. So ſaith Suidas, the word is uſed ὅταν διδάσκαλος παιδὶ ἢ παῖς λέγειν ἄλλα ἀπὸ στόματος, when

* ſee more on Mat. 14. c.

when a master bids a boy say or recite; and Hesychius ἀπὸ μιᾶς ἕξιν λέγειν to require one to say by heart, as Julius Pollux of the passive, ἀπαιτεῖσθαι, ἐρωτᾶσθαι τὰ μαθήματα, to be asked or required an account of what he hath learnt. Agreeably to this did they here aske Christ questions, and pose him, to hear what he could or would say.

CHAP. XII.

Paraphrase.

1. IN the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trod one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples [first of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisie.]

1. Of all other dangers take special heed of the Pharisees, see Mat. 10. 17. (& Sadducees Mat. 16. 6.)

whose doctrine, expresst by leaven Mat. 16. 12. is full of hypocrisie, puffes them up into a great opinion of their own sanctity, and hath an influence, like leaven, to the sowring of all their actions, and accordingly these men, though they make a great shew of piety, and may be apt to deceive you, and make you expect good from them, yet will they of all others be readiest to betray you, Mat. 16. 17. &c.

2. For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed, neither hid, that shall not be known.

3. Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkenesse, shall be heard in the light: and that which ye have spoken in the eare in closets, shall be proclaimed upon the house tops.]

2, 3. This I say not, that you should so beware, as to be afraid of them, or conceale any part of your message, I onely foretell you your danger, that you may prudently combate with it, proclaim publickly to their faces whatsoever you have been taught by me, and not only secretly and whisperingly, but publickly and confidently beat down this hypocrisie and false doctrines of theirs (that that is the meaning of v. 2, 3. appears by comparing them with Mat. 10. 27. and Mar. 4. 22.)

4. And I say unto you, my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can doe.

5. But I will forewarne you whom you shall feare, Fear him, which after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell, yea, I say unto you, Feare him.]

4, 5. And let me tell you, as one friend would doe another, that which is most for his interest, that these Pharisees at the utmost can but kill the body, and when that is done, there is an end of their malice, and therefore tis much wiser to fear displeasing of God (as you will doe, if for fear of men ye omit to discharge your duty) who as he will cast both body and soule into hell upon disobedience and disloyalty to his commands, so can, if he please, and will, if he see it best for you, preserve you in the midst of the greatest dangers.

6. Are not five sparrowes sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?]

6. This is a work of that providence of his, that attendeth and watcheth over the smallest things in the world, the vilest sparrow or bird of the ayre, in every motion of it, is within the reach of Gods care.

7. But even the very haires of your head are all numbred, feare not therefore, ye are of more value then many sparrows.]

7. And agreeably to that particular providence of his, which extendeth to every event, you may resolve of your selves, that God hath a most particular providence over all that belongs to his servants. This will fortifie you against all fear, whatsoever your dangers are, For sure there is more value set on you, and care taken for your preservation, then there is over all the sparrowes that are in the world.

8. But I say unto you, Whosoever shall confesse me before men, him also shall the son of man confesse before the Angels of God.]

8. And this encouragement you have, that your fearlesse confession of Christ and his truth shall be rewarded with his owning you in the day of judgment (which sure is more to your advantage then any thing you can acquire by compliance with the world.)

9. But he that denieth me before men, shall be denied before the Angels of God.]

9. Whereas the contrary feare, or cowardise, or falling off from your duty, shall cause Christ to disclaim you, when you have most need of him.

10. And whosoever shall speak a word against the son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but unto him that blasphemeth against the holy Ghost it shall not be forgiven.]

10. Here are added by Saint Luke words spoken by Christ on another occasion, Mat. 12. 32. and seem to be applied by him to the aggravation of the sinne of the Pharisees, on occasion of whom this whole passage from v. 1. was delivered, That they that by the meanesse of Christs humane appearance are tempted to deny him to be the Messias, and doe accordingly oppose him, may have some place for pardon, and be in some degree excusable, but they that attribute his works of power, (his miracles done visibly by the finger of God) to the working of the devil in him, there is no place of excuse and mercy for them, if they doe not, upon the resurrection of Christ, and the Apostles preaching it to them, return and repent, and effectually receive Christ.

11. And when they bring you unto the synagogues,] and unto Magistrates and powers, take ye no thought how or what things ye shall answer, or what ye shall say,

11. This being said of them, as in a parenthesis, he returns to other passages of that speech of Christ's Mat. 19. 19. when they bring you before Consistories (see note on Mat. 6. d. Jam. 2. b.)

12. For the holy Ghost shall teach you in the same houre what ye ought to say.]

12. See Mar. 13. 11.

13. And one of the company said unto him, [Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me.]

13. Sir, there is a controversie between my brother and me, about the dividing our patrimony, I desire to avoid the delaies of a suite at law, and to doe, as it is ordinary, referre it to arbitration, and who so fit as you our Master, to conclude it between us your disciples and followers?

14. And

14. But he (knowing what had hapned to Moſes, when he would have made peace among the Jewes, Exod. 2. 14. Who made thee a Prince or a Judge over us?) anſwers him in the ſame words, wherein the Greek rendred the Hebrew there, i. e. I will not be liable to ſuch objections from men, as were then ungratefully made againſt Moſes, I will not meddle with your matters of intereſt, wherein he that is not awarded what he deſires, will think himſelf unjuſtly dealt with.

14. And he ſaid unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?]

15. All that I ſhall ſay to you is, That the deſire of wealth, the labour to encreaſe your own by leſſening another mans poſſeſſions, the not being contented with what you have, is a ſinne of great danger, diligently to be avoided, and indeed that which doth no man any good, For though poſſeſſions are uſefull to ſuſtain life, yet no man is able to prolong his life, or to make it any thing more happy or comfortable to him, by poſſeſſing more then he needs or uſes, i. e. by any ſuperfluity of wealth. The only way to be the better for the wealth of the world, is to diſpoſe, and diſtribute it to the ſervice of God, and benefit and comfort of others, ver. 21.

15. And he ſaid unto them, Take heed and beware of covetouſneſſe, for [a] mans life conſiſteth not in the abundance of the things which he poſſeſſeth.]

[a] 'tis not in any mans having ſuperfluous, that his life from his poſſeſſions conſiſts, οὐκ ἐν τῷ περισσεύειν τινὶ ἡ ζωὴ αὐτῷ ἐστὶν ἀπὸ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐτῷ.

16. To which purpoſe Chriſt ſpake and applied the parable following,

16. And he ſpake a parable unto them, ſaying,] The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully.

17. And he contrived and caſt within himſelf in his thoughts, what he ſhould doe with all that plenty which was ſo much greater then his barns could hold.

17. And he thought within himſelf, ſaying, What ſhall I doe, becauſe I have no room where to beſtow my fruits?]

18,19. And his reſolution was, that he would pull down his barns, and build bigger, and lay up all in them (never thinking of giving others any of that which he knew not what to doe with) and then he ſhould be an happy man, have wealth enough for many years plentifull voluptuous living.

18. And he ſaid, This I will doe, I will pull down my barns and build greater, and there will I beſtow all my fruits and my goods.

19. And I will ſay to my ſoul, Soule, thou haſt much goods laid up for many years, take thine eaſe, eat, drink, and be merry.]

20. But God ſaid unto him, Thou fool, this night * thy ſoule ſhall be required of thee: then whoſe ſhall thoſe things be which thou haſt provided?

* doe they require thy ſoule from thee. See note on c. 16. b.

21. This is directly the caſe of any man that makes no uſe of his encreaſe and plenty, ſave only to poſſeſſe it, and provide for himſelf by it, never thinking of employing that, which he hath to ſpare, to the relieving the poor, or otherwiſe to the ſervice of God.

21. So is he that layeth up treaſure for himſelf, and is not rich towards God.]

22. To which purpoſe of truſting Gods providence, in oppoſition to covetouſneſſe, is that which Chriſt ſaid at another time, Mat. 6. 25.

22. And he ſaid unto his diſciples, Therefore I ſay unto you,] take no thought for your life, what ye ſhall eat; neither for the body, what ye ſhall put on.

23. The life is more then meat, and the body is more then rayment.

24. Conſider the ravens, for they neither ſow nor reap, which neither have ſtore-houſe nor barn, and God feedeth them: how much more are ye better then the fowles?

25. And which of you with taking thought can adde to his * ſtature one cubit?

* age. See Mat. 6. note m.

26. other things, which are greater & ſo in proportion harder then thoſe, and depend as little on your ſollicitude?

26. If ye then be not able to doe that thing which is leaſt, why take ye thought for [the reſt?]

27. Conſider the lilies how they grow, they toyle not, they ſpin not: and yet I ſay unto you, that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of theſe.

28. the flowers, ſee note on Mat. 6. o.

28. If then God ſo clothe [the graſſe] which is to day in the field, and to morrow is caſt into the oven, how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?

29. and be not diſturb'd with thoughts & anxiety, Mat. 6. 31.

a.

29. And ſeek not ye what ye ſhall eat, or what ye ſhall drink, [neither be ye [a] of doubtfull mind.]

30. For all theſe things doe the nations of the world ſeek after: and your Father knoweth that you have need of theſe things.

31. But rather ſeek ye the kingdome of God, and all theſe things ſhall be added unto you.

32. Entertain no ſollicitudes for ſuch things as theſe, for your Father which deſtin'd you to an everlaſting kingdome, will not faile to allow you your portion here of thoſe things that are uſefull for you.

32. Fear not little flock, for it is your Fathers good pleaſure to give you the kingdome.]

Mat. 6. 19.

33. Sell that ye have and give almes, provide your ſelves bags, that wax not old, a treaſure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth.

34. For where your treaſure is, there will your heart be alſo.

35. Be ye as ſervants attending their maſters buſineſs, ready whenſoever he commands them any thing, or hath any buſineſs for them.

b.

35. Let your loynes be [b] girded about, and your lights burning.]

36. Like the attendants on a bridegroom, (who when-

36. And ye your ſelves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he will return from the wedding, that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.]

ſoever

ſoever he comes from the marriage-feaſt to the chamber, comes haſtily, and is the patient of any delaies) alwaies ready to anſwer at the firſt knock.

37. Bleſſed are thoſe ſervants, whom the Lord when he cometh ſhall find watching. Verily I ſay unto you, that he ſhall gird himſelf, and make them ſit down to meat, and will come forth and ſerve them.

37,38. As in that caſe tis a great happineſſe for a ſervant to be found ready, becauſe by that meanes he [illegible] attend his

* or, in the 3d watch, & when he comes, find-for the Kgs MS. τρίτῃ ἔλθῃ καὶ εὑρήσει, ἢ ἐὰν ἐν τῇ δευτέρᾳ ἔλθῃ καὶ οὕτως εὑρήσει

38. And if he ſhall come in the ſecond watch, or * come in the third watch, and find them ſo, bleſſed are thoſe ſervants.]

Maſter (whereas, if at that minute he be out of the way, he utterly loſes him) and, as a reward of that diligence, the bridegroom will entertain his ſervants, ſet them down, and wait upon them himſelf, ſo is it a bleſſed thing to be found employed as Chriſt would have us, whenſoever he comes to call on us, and in order to that, to be alwaies ready, not to fall off from him in the leaſt manner.

39. And this know, that if the good man of the houſe had known what houre the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have ſuffered his houſe to be broken through.]

39. And as Chriſt's coming will be to the rewarding of all faithfull ſervants, perſevering belcivers, ſo will it be to deſtroy all lethargick ſtupid impenitents, who by their own negligence lie open to all that vengeance that thus lights on them.

40. Be ye therefore ready alſo, for the ſon of man cometh at an houre, that ye think not.]

40. And therefore to avoid that danger alſo, it concerns all to be perpetually upon their guard, becauſe this coming of Chriſt to viſit and puniſh is like to be ſuddain, but the time uncertain, See Mat. 24. 43.

41. Then Peter ſaid unto him, Lord ſpeakeſt thou this parable [to us, or even to all ?]

41. peculiarly to us thy conſtant attendants, or to all Chriſtians ?

42. And the Lord ſaid, [Who then is that faithfull and wiſe ſteward, whom his Lord ſhall make ruler over his houſhold, to give them their portion of meat in due ſeaſon ?

43. Bleſſed is that ſervant whom his Lord when he cometh, ſhall find ſo doing.]

42,43. The parable doth in ſeverall degrees belong to every Chriſtian, who hath ſome truſt commited to him by Chriſt, and muſt be very carefull to diſcharge it, (ſee Mat. 24. 45.) to you as ſtewards here, to all Chriſtians, as ſervants, v. 43. and no mans truſt is ſo mean, that diligence in it ſhall not be rewardable. But to them again with ſome difference, as they have received more or leſſe of divine revelation, immediately, or mediately, v. 47.

44. Of a truth I ſay unto you, that he will make him ruler of all that he hath.]

44. And be he never ſo meanly imployed, God will reward his truſtineſſe and diligence with committing to him the greateſt truſts, ſee Mat. 24. 47. the greateſt office of dignity in the Church.

45. But and if that ſervant ſay in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming, [and ſhall begin to beat the men-ſervants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken,]

45. And upon that conſideration abuſe that truſt and power reposed in him as a ſteward, deal injuriouſly with thoſe who are under his rule, and ſpend his maſters goods rioutouſly, and luxuriouſly,

46. The Lord of that ſervant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an houre when he is not ware, and will cut him in ſunder, and appoint him his portion [with the unbeleivers.]

46. with the untruſty falſe ſtewards, the unbeleiving Jews, which have not reform'd upon all Chriſt's preaching unto them.

47. And that ſervant which knew his Lords will, and prepared not himſelf, neither did according to his will, ſhall be beaten with many ſtripes.

48. But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of ſtripes, ſhall be beaten with few ſtripes, for unto whomſoever much is given, of him ſhall be much required, and to whom men have committed much, of him they will aske the more.]

47,48. According to the degree of knowledge w^ch God hath afforded, ſo ſhall their crimes receive aggravation of guilt, and encreaſe of puniſhment. And the more light and grace he beſtowes on any, the greater, and the more Chriſtian performances will he require of them.

* doe I deſire ? That it were already kindled.

49. I am come to ſend fire on the earth, and ᶜ what * will I, if it be already kindled ?]

49. It is to be expected as a conſequent of my coming into the world, that perſecution ſhould attend, Mat. 10. 34. and this will be a means of exploring and trying who are faithfull, and who are not, And therefore I am ſo farre from wiſhing this otherwiſe, that I rather deſire that it were already kindled or begun. c.

* preſſed Conſtraint

50. But I have a baptiſme to be baptized with, and how am I * ſtraitned till it be accompliſhed ?]

50. But I am to bear the firſt part of it, to be immerſt in afflictions, Mat. 20. 22. Till this come to be accompliſht upon me, I am in ſome ſtraights, terrified like a woman with child with the apprehenſion of the pangs approaching, Mat. 26. 39. but very willing to be delivered to doe and ſuffer that, whereunto I was ſent.

51. Suppoſe ye that I came to give peace on earth ? I tell you nay, but rather diviſions.

52. For from henceforth there ſhall be five in one houſe divided, three againſt two, and two againſt three.

53. The father ſhall be divided againſt the ſon, and the ſon againſt the father, and the mother againſt the daughter, and the daughter againſt the mother, the mother-in-law againſt the daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law againſt her mother-in-law.

51, 52, 53. Soon after my departing great diviſions and feudes will break out concerning me, the whole land ſhall be divided into factions, and civil broyls, Mat. 10. 34. and 24. 7.

54. And

54. Many ways you have of preſaging what weather it will be, which ſeldome fail you, as when

54. And he ſaid alſo to the people, [When] yee ſee a cloud riſe out of the weſt, ſtraightway ye ſay, there cometh a ſhowre, and ſo it is.

55. And when ye ſee the ſouth wind blow, ye ſay, there will be heat, and it cometh to paſſe.

56. Yee that can judge by ſight of the skyes and the winds, what will befall, Why ſhould ye not have as great ſagacity to diſcern and preſage the judgements that are near approaching towards this nation, if they doe not ſuddainly repent and receive Chriſt?

56. Ye hypocrites, yee can diſcern the face of the sky and of the earth, but how is it, that ye doe not diſcern this * time?] * ſeaſon καιρὸν

57, 58. And why doe you not (without need of looking upon the skyes for the preſage) by the ſame rational way of judging, in which you proceed in other matters, uſe the ſame prudence in divine matters of danger, which you doe in humane worldly contentions? and ſo when you ſee an action coming againſt you, wherein you are ſure to be caſt, ſet preſently to reconcile the adverſary, to make your peace and eſcape the danger? (to which purpoſe was this which Chriſt ſaid at another time, Mat. 5. 25.)

59. I tell thee, thou ſhalt not depart thence till thou haſt payd the very laſt mite.

Notes on Chap. XII.

2. Μετεωρίζεται.

Μετεωρίζεται] ſignifies primarily and literally to be carried up high in the aire, as clouds or birds flying there; which becauſe they have no firme foundation there, but are toſt and driven about uncertainly, hence it ſignifies firſt ῥιμφίζειν vagari, in Stephanus's Gloſſary; to thinke of this and that without any conſiſtence of minde, μετεωρος ὁ μὴ σταθερὸς τὸν νοῦν, he that hath no fixtneſſe of minde; and ſo intention of thoughts in prayer, is ἀμετεωρίστον ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ, and on the other ſide in * S. Baſils aſcetick rules, μετεωρισμὸς ἄκαιρος importune wandering of thoughts in prayer, (proceeding from former company and unprofitable diſcourſe) ἀπερριμένος ἔστω, is forbidden, and ſo ἀκρόασις ἀμετεώριστος, in Nyſſen, is attention of hearing. Secondly, the word ſignifies to hang, as the clouds do in the ayre, † in an impatient ſuſpenſe or anxiety, as in † Lucians Icaromenip. μετεωρος ὑπὸ τῶν λόγων] is explained by ἐκ τῶν ἄνω ἀπεῤῥιμμένος and κεχηνὼς, one that had his eares gaping, as it were, impatient and very deſirous to hear the end of the ſtory. So in Philo leg. ad Caium, πᾶσα ἡ πόλις μετεώρους, ἀκοῆς δηλοῦσα βεβαίους, all the city was in an anxious ſuſpenſe, thirſting after ſome better news. So Eccluſ. 26. 12. μετεωρισμοὶ ὀφθαλμῶν] ſeems to ſignifie the ſuſpence, anxious, earneſt gazing of the eyes, ſuch as there is ſet as a Character of a libidinous perſon, and ſo it ſeems the phraſe is uſed among the Hebrews. For ſo in the Jeruſalem Targum on Gen. 49. 22. Oculos ſuſpendere, et unam earum intueri, to hang the eyes, &c. is ſet to ſignifie an amorous or luſtfull look upon a woman. From hence again 'tis clearly, to be in doubt, and uncertainty of reſolution, as in Agathias l. 2. ſpeaking of the cities of Italy, they were, ſaith he, μετέωροι καὶ διάδηλοι doubtfull and ambiguous, ἐφ' ὁπότερα χωρήσουσιν ἀμφιγνοοῦντα not knowing to which part they ſhould betake themſelves, in the ſame manner, as ἀίρειν ψυχὴν, to lift up the mind, is to keep in ſuſpenſe Joh. 10. 24. Thus it ſeems to ſignifie in this place, where, as a piece of ὀλιγοπιστία, littleneſſe of faith, if not infidelity, is forbidden this doubtfull anxiety and ſolicitude concerning Gods Providence, this uncertainty of minde, betwixt hope and fear; μέριμνα, ſollicitude, being put by S. Matthew in ſtead of it in the place particularly parallel to this verſe, c. 6. 31. and ſo expreſt in the former part of this chapter, v. 22. and 25. Thus doth pendere, to hang, ordinarily ſignifie in Latine, and ἄνω κρεμᾶσθαι to be above in Demoſthenes de coron: the very paraphraſe of this word, μετεωρίζεται, in the native ſignification of it.

† t. 1. p. 677.

Beſide the generall uſe of girding for putting on clothes, frequent in theſe bookes, as Joh. 21. 7. διεζώσατο ἐπενδύτην he girt on his upper garment, and v. 18. thou didſt gird thy ſelf, i. e. dreſſe or clothe thy ſelf at thine own will (and from hence, in a ſenſe ſomewhat varied, in the end of the ſame verſe, another ſhall gird thee, i. e. bind thee as a priſoner or captive, as I conceive it alſo is Job 12. 18. where girding] is ſet oppoſite to looſing of bonds) three ſorts of men there are in theſe bookes which are proverbially ſaid to be girt, 1. The Jewiſh Prieſts, Levit. 16. 4. who had a linen girdle and the high Prieſt one embroiderd with gold, &c. Exod. 3 . 5. after whoſe example the ſon of man is brought in Revel. 1. 13. ἐνδεδυμένος ποδήρη, καὶ περιεζωσμένος πρὸς τοῖς μαστοῖς ζώνην χρυσῆν, clothed in a long garment, and girt about the breaſts with a golden girdle, and ſo the ſeven Angels Revel. 15. 6. Secondly, Souldiers whoſe military girdle was ſo ſpeciall a part of their armour, that in Homer ζώνη ſignifies the whole military ὁπλισμὸς armature, and ζώννυσθαι to be girt is ὁπλίζεσθαι to be armed, ſaith Euſtathius in Iliad: β, and λ, and Suidas in like manner, that ζώννυσθαι to be girt is καθοπλίζεσθαι to be armed. Hence is it that diſcincti ungirt ſignifies the unarmed, and 2 King. 3. 21. where we read as many as were able to put on armour, the Greek literally from the Hebrew hath it, περιεζωσμένοι ζώνην, girt with a girdle. So 1 King. 20. 11. the girt and ungirt are the armed and unarmed (though I know not by what miſtake the Greek hath κυρτὸς and ὀρθὸς) and to this ſort, the military girdle or belt, belongs that place of Epheſ. 6. 14. having your loines girt, Where the truth, i. e. Orthodox profeſſion of the Goſpel, in oppoſition to hæreticall doctrines, and practiſes is deſigned to be this girdle, which keeps all their armour cloſe about them. Thirdly, ſervants or waiters, who ſerve at tables, who having their clothes, after the Eaſterne manner, looſe, and

b. Παρεζωσμένος.

and long, and flying about, found it neceſſary to gird themſelves, that they might doe ſervice the more readily; So in Horace ——— Succinctus curſitat hoſpes,

Continuátq; dapes, nec non vernaliter ipſis
Fungitur officiis ——— of a Maſter waiting at his table, as a ſervant. So in Propertius the officers at ſacred feaſts, ſuccincti pope, ſo when Job 12. 18. the Greek reads fitly out of the Hebrew μεζώσατο ζώνη ἰσχύος αὐτῶν, God bound their loines about with a girdle, * Olympiodorus expounds it, μετεσκεύασεν αὐτοὺς εἰς διακόνους, he turnes them into ſervants. And ſo here in this place, let your loins be girt, being here an expreſſion of thoſe that expect the commands of their Maſter (as alſo that of their lampes burning, if you compare it with Mat. 25. 7.) and ſo v. 37. when he ſaith of the maſter, that he will gird himſelf and waite upon them. So Luke 17. 8. when the maſter ſaith to the ſervant, περιζωσάμενος διακόνει μοι, gird thy ſelf and miniſter to me. And ſo Joh. 13. 4. Chriſt when he went to waſh the diſciples feet, i. e. to perform that ſervants office, λαβὼν λέντιον διέζωσεν ἑαυτὸν, he took a linen cloth, and girded himſelf, that ſo he might ſhew that he came οὐ διακονηθῆναι, ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι, not to be miniſtred unto, but to miniſter, Mat. 26. 28. And that 'tis ſo in this place alſo appears both by the mention of their Lord, whom they waite for, v. 36. and the μακάριοι οἱ δοῦλοι, happy are thoſe watching ſervants, v. 37.

* Cæm. p. 255.

c. 22. The particle [εἰ] which is ordinarily rendred if, is oft an optative, or expreſſion of wiſh or deſire. So c. 19. 42. εἰ ἔγνως [if thou kneweſt] for [O that thou kneweſt] ſo c. 22. 42. εἰ βούλει, if thou wilt, for, O that thou wouldeſt. So Num. 22. 29. Joſ. 7. 7. Job 16. 14. and ſo in Moſes's ſpeech to God, Lord if thou wilt forgive them. And this moſt clearly from the various uſe of the Hebrew לוּא or לוּ, which ſignifies both ſi and utinam, if, and would to God. And thus may it be here, εἰ ἤδη ἀνήφθη, O that it were already kindled, and then the latter part will be an anſwer to the queſtion propoſed in the former, thus, τί θέλω; what doe I deſire? Beyond all things that it were already kindled. Another way of rendring the words will bear, what doe I deſire if it were already kindled? i. e. I deſire no more but this: Or again by rendring the τί, as if it were πῶς, how doe I deſire that it were already kindled? But as all theſe come to the ſame ſenſe, ſo the former ſeems the more eaſie and naturall. As for the fire here, although that may ſignifie only a purgative fire, and intimate Chriſt's deſire of purifying the world from the droſſe of ſinne, for which he came, Tit. 2. 14. and to referre to the coming of the holy Ghoſt, who appeared in fire, Acts 2. yet it rather ſeems to be reſtrained by the context to the fire of perſecution, all one with diviſion v. 51. which though it cauſe ſome ſmart, yet it hath very uſefull qualities, as that of exploring or trying, in which reſpect 'tis ſaid 1 Cor. 11. 19. there muſt be diviſions among you, that they that are approved (tryed, and found right in this fire) may be made manifeſt among you. And that this ſhould be conſequent to Chriſt's coming, ſee v. 52. &c. and Lu. 2. 35. that of trying Heb. 4. 12. Lu. 2. 35. who are faithfull adherents to him, who not. Which is the ſpeciall work of fire, and the effect of perſecution for Chriſts ſake.

CHAP. XIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. THere were preſent at that ſeaſon ſome that told him of the [Galileans, whoſe bloud Pilate had mingled with their ſacrifices.] 1. Galileans, a faction of Judas Gaulonita, which taught doctrines contrary to ſubjection to the Roman Empire, whom, it is thought, Pilate ſet upon and killed when they were offering ſacrifice, and powred out their bloud, as the bloud of beaſts was poured out in the ſacrifices.

2. And Jeſus anſwering ſaid unto them, Suppoſe yee that theſe Galileans were ſinners above all the Galileans, becauſe they ſuffered ſuch things?

3. I tell yee, nay, but except yee repent, [yee ſhall all likewiſe periſh.] 3. As they periſhed at the day of Paſcha at their ſacrifice, ſo ſhall a multitude of you on that very day (ſee Joſephus of the Jewiſh war: l. 6. c. 11. and l. 7. c. 17. and Euſeb. Eccl. Hiſt. l. 3. c. 5.) in the Temple be ſlaughtered like ſheep, and that for the ſame cauſe, a ſedition raiſed in the city.

4. Or thoſe eighteen, on whom the tower in Siloe fell, and ſlew them, think ye that they were ſinners above all men that dwelt in Jeruſalem?

5. I tell you, nay, but except ye repent, ye ſhall all [likewiſe periſh.] 5. periſh in the ruines of the whole city, as they of that tower.

6. He ſpake alſo this parable,] A certain man had a figtree planted in his vineyard, and he came and ſought fruit thereon, and found none. 6. And he ſpake a parable to them, of which this is the plain meaning, This people hath long been unprofitable, made no returns to all Gods husbandry beſtowed upon them, and yet God hath given them ſpace to repent, and ſent his ſon to dreſſe and manure them, and if this doe not work upon them, there is nothing to be expected, but deſtruction and exciſion. The parable was this. A certain man, &c.

7. Then ſaid he unto the dreſſer of his vineyard, Behold, theſe three years I come ſeeking fruit on this figtree, and finde none: Cut it down, why cumbreth it the ground?

8. And he anſwering, ſaid unto him, Lord, let it alone this year alſo, till I ſhall dig about it, and dung it.

9. And if it bear fruit, well:] and if not, then after that thou ſhalt cut it down. 9. And perhaps it will bear fruit, or, make this experiment, whether it will bear fruit or no:

10. And he was teaching in one of the ſynagogues on the Sabbath.

11. And

11. ſore diſeaſe inflicted on her by the devil, v. 16. for the ſpace of eighteen years, and ſhe did ſo extremely ſtoop, that ſhe could hardly ſee the heavens.

11. And behold, there was a woman which had a [ſpirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wiſe lift up her ſelf.]

12. thy diſeaſe.

12. And when Jeſus ſaw her, he called her unto him, and ſaid unto her, Woman thou art looſed from [thine infirmity.]

13. And he laid his hands on her, and immediately ſhe was made ſtreight, and glorified God.

14. the head of the Conſiſtory being angry that Jeſus did cures on the ſabbath, gave command to the multitude, ſaying, There are ſix daies in the compaſſe of which men ought to doe all the work, which they doe in the week;

14. And [the Ruler of the ſynagogue anſwered with indignation, becauſe that Jeſus had healed on the ſabbath day, and ſaid unto the people, There are ſix daies in which men ought to work;] in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the ſabbath day.

15. The Lord then anſwered him and ſaid, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the ſabbath day looſe his oxe or his aſſe from the * ſtall, and lead him away to watering?

* ſtable, See c. 2. note c. b

16. on whom Satan hath inflicted a ſore diſeaſe, of 18 yeares duration, be cured of this diſeaſe

16. And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, [whom Satan hath bound, lo, theſe eighteen years, be looſed from this bond] on the ſabbath day?

17. And when he had ſaid theſe things, all his adverſaries were aſhamed, and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18. Then ſaid he, Unto what is the kingdome of God like? and whereunto ſhall I reſemble it?

Mat. 13. 31.

19. It is like a grain of muſtard-ſeed, which a man took and caſt into his garden, and it grew, and waxed [a] a great tree, and the fowles of the aire lodged in the branches of it.

a.

20. And again he ſaid, Whereunto ſhall I liken the kingdome of God?

Mat. 13. 33.

21. It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three meaſures of meale, till the whole was leavened.

22. And he went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jeruſalem.

23. Is the doctrine of the Goſpel likely to be received by the generality of men, or only by a few diſciples, of us? And the reply that Chriſt made to this queſtion, was to adviſe him, and all others

23. Then ſaid one unto him, Lord, [are there few that * ſhall [b] be ſaved? And he ſaid unto them,] b.

* eſcape?

24. That they ſhould not be led away with the example of the many, that neglected the preſent opportunity, and after would not find admiſſion, when they ſhould deſire it, either into the Church here, or the kingdome of God at the day of doom, That the Goſpel ſhould at length be removed from the obſtinate Jewes, and conſequently heaven alſo.

24. Strive to enter at the ſtraight gate, for many, I ſay unto you, will ſeek to enter in, and ſhall not be able.]

25, 26, 27. That a great deal of timely care and induſtry and contention was required to get the end of our Chriſtian faith & hope, and that a little formall ſeeking of him, & deſiring the reward upon no farther pretences, then that the Goſpel hath been preached among them, that they have eat and drunk in Chriſts preſence, nay that they have by him been enabled to work miracles, Mat. 7. 22. &c. would not ſerve the turn, without a carefull and due performance of all that Chriſt requires of us. As for others, be their pretenſes and confidences never ſo great, they ſhall at the day of judgment be utterly rejected, and their wicked doings rewarded with everlaſting fire.

25. When once the Maſter of the houſe is riſen up, and hath ſhut to the dore, and ye begin to ſtand without, and to knock at the dore, ſaying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he ſhall anſwer and ſay unto you, I know you not whence you are.

26. Then ſhall ye begin to ſay, We have eaten and drunk in thy preſence, and thou haſt taught in our ſtreets.

27. But he ſhall ſay, I tell you, I know you not whence you are, depart from me all ye workers of iniquity.]

28. And then what a reſtleſs torment will it be to you, to ſee the fathers of the old world, that never ſaw or heard Chriſt preach among them, as you confeſſe you have, received by God into his kingdome, and you rejected? Mat. 8. 11, 12.

28. There ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth, when ye ſhall ſee Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdome of God, and you your ſelves thruſt out.]

29. And though but few Jewes ſhould receive the faith, yet diſciples ſhall come in to Chriſt from all the quarters of the world, and by him in the Church be received and entertained, as at a feaſt (which is ſome farther anſwer to the queſtion v. 23.) and ſo conſequently bear the Patriarchs company in heaven.

29. And they ſhall come from the eaſt, and from the weſt, and from the north, and from the ſouth, and ſhall ſit down in the kingdome of God.]

30. And they that are now afarre off, the Gentiles, ſhall be admitted to his favour, while the preſent Jewes through their obduration ſhall be caſt out, v. 28.

30. And behold there are laſt which ſhall be firſt, and there are firſt which ſhall be laſt.]

32. And

32. And he ſaid unto them, Goe ye, and tell that fox, Behold, I caſt out devils, and I doe cures to day, and to morrow, and the third day I ſhall be perfected.]

32. And Chriſt (according to his prophetick office, which gave prophets authority to reprehend all, were they never ſo great in this world, and their commiſſion to the execution of that office made them ſuperiour to all to whom they were ſent, Jer. 1. 8, 19, 20.) anſwered them, ſaying, Goe tell that great artificer, or ſubtile diſguiſed perſon, Herod, that I attend the decree of my Father, and in the mean time perform the office for which I was ſent, not fearing what he can doe unto me. Behold, I caſt out devils, cure diſeaſes for a while at preſent; and after a while when my courſe is finiſhed, I am to ſuffer death.

33. Nevertheleſſe * I [c] muſt walk to day, and to morrow, and the day following, for it cannot be that a prophet periſh out of Jeruſalem.]

33. In the meane time I muſt doe what I doe, and then goe and ſuffer at Jeruſalem, being deſigned by my Father firſt to doe theſe works, and then to die there, that being the place, where all people have been wont to be put to death, at the councell of the great Sanhedrim, and where, though capitall judgments are now taken from the Jewes, yet the prophets are to be tried. c.

34. O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem, which killeſt the prophets, and ſtoneſt them that are ſent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, as * an hen doth gather her brood under her [d] wings, and ye would not!

Notes on Chap. XIII.

a. Κόκκῳ σινάπεως

That a muſtard-ſeed grows into a tree, is affirmed Mat. 13. 32. and thereupon it is there ſaid that it is μεῖζον λαχάνων not the greateſt of herbs, or things that grow of ſeeds, but (as μεῖζον imports) greater then ſuch, and therefore it follows there, that it becometh a tree, and here that tree a great one, δένδρον μέγα. This is not to be meaſured by what we ſee of this ſeed among us, but by conſidering the Hebrew ſoyle and clime, of which this is ordinarily affirmed among their authors, In the Babyloniſh Talmud, Ketubc fol. 3. there is mention of three boughes of חרדל, or muſtard, one of which being broken off from the reſt yeilded nine Kabs of ſeed, and the wood thereof was ſufficient to cover a little houſe. So in the Jeruſalem Talmud, Peah c. 7. there is mention of a bough which yeilded three Kabs of that ſeed. And again in the ſame place, of a ſtemme or bough of Muſtard, which Simon the ſon of Chalaphta had in his garden, into which he could climb up as into a figtree. And therefore agreeably to this it is that our Saviour here ſpeaks ſo great things of it. And whereas it is ſaid Mat. 13. 32. that it is the leaſt of all ſeeds, although among us, ſome other ſeeds may be found leſſe then that, as Rue, and Poppy, yet it is not neceſſary it ſhould be ſo there. However it is apparent that the ſmalneſſe of it was Proverbial among them, and is therefore mention'd by Maimonides More Neb: P. 1. C. 56. and ſet oppoſite to the Firmament, the one as an inſtance of the ſmalleſt, the other of the greateſt magnitude.

b. σώζεσθαι

What is the notion of [σώζεσθαι] in the New Teſtament hath already been touched on, note on Mat. 1. c. f. ſee Mat. 19. 6. And for a fuller declaring of it, it will not be amiſſe firſt to obſerve it in the Old Teſtament, there the Hebrew reciprocall הִמָּלֵט and הִנָּצֵל, ſaving, or delivering himſelf, from מָלַט, and נָצַל, are ordinarily rendred σώζεσθαι, and ῥύεσθαι to be ſaved, or delivered, and ordinarily ſignifie elabi or evadere, to evade, or eſcape. So Gen. 19. 9. οὐ δύναμαι ζωθῆναι εἰς τὸ ὄρος, I cannot eſcape to the mountain, in the ſame ſenſe, that φεύγειν εἰς τὰ ὄρη, flying to the mountains Mat. 24. 16. So Gen. 19. 22. מָהַר חִמָּלֵט שָׁמָּה, the Septuag: reads, σπεῦσον τοῦ ζωθῆναι ἐκεῖ, make haſt to eſcape thither, where to eſcape is to get out of the reach of Sodome, the place which was then to be deſtroyed, and to flee as to a ſanctuary, to that other city. So 1 Sam. 19. 12. וַיָּנָס וַיִּמָּלֵט וַיֵּלַךְ וַיִּמָּלֵט, he departed and fled and eſcaped, So Joel 2. 32. whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord, יִמָּלֵט ſhall eſcape, or σωθήσεται, ſhall be ſaved, in that ſenſe, Rom. 10. 13. So Iſa. 45. 20. where Symmachus reads, οἱ διαπεφευγότες τῶν ἐθνῶν, they that eſcape of the nations, the Septuagint reads οἱ σεσωσμένοι τῶν ἐθνῶν, the ſaved of the nations, So Iſa. 49. 6. the preſerved of Iſrael, and Eccluſ. 39. 9. ὁ σωζόμενος, he that eſcapes or is ſaved, So of the ſick man, Joh. 11. 12. If he ſleep, σωθήσεται he will eſcape, and Act. 27. 20, 21. σωθῆναι ἐλπὶς ἦν πᾶσα we cannot eſcape the ſhipwrack, ſo twas ſhew'd to ſignifie Mat. 24. 22. εἰ μὴ ἐκολοβώθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι ἐκεῖναι οὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σὰρξ, the tribulation was ſo great, that if it had not been ſhortned by God, no Jew had eſcaped, but for the ſake of τῶν ἐκλεκτῶν (which (as it was ſhew'd there) denotes the remnant which by Gods promiſe was to be preſerved, and which is all one with σωζόμενοι) the daies were promiſed to be ſhortned. So διασώζεσθαι is uſed Act. 28. 1. and is ordinarily rendred, eſcaped. This being premiſed of the prime importance of the word, the next thing obſervable will be, what hath formerly been mention'd, that in the Prophets there is frequent mention of a remnant, κατάλειμμα, that ſhould by the mercy of God be reſcued out of the common calamity, the fatall πολιορκία of the Jewes, that was now at hand; Theſe are ſometimes call'd, the eſcaping (evaſio,) of the houſe of Iſrael or Judah, or, the eſcaping that remaineth, or, the remnant that is eſcaped, Iſa. 37. 31, 32. In which place he that ſhall weigh it, or compare the tranſlation of the vulgar Latine, with Forerius's new one, out of the Hebrew, will find that the reliquiæ de Hieroſolymis, the remnant of Jeruſalem, & ſalvatio (i. e. the σωζόμενοι) de monte Sion, they that are ſaved, or, eſcape of mount Sion, are all one with evaſio quæ derelicta eſt, the eſcaping which is left, i. e. they that eſcape, when others periſh; See Nehem. 1. 2. & 3. where he asks περὶ Ἰουδαίων οἱ περιλελειμμένοι, of the ſaved that are left. So that σωζόμενοι is æquipollent to the Hebrew שְׂרִיד, reſiduus, remnant, which therefore is rendred by it, Jer. 42. 17. and 44. 14. and in other places (parallel to which we read, κατάλειμμα σωζόμενον, a remainder that eſcapeth, in Julian, *p. 6. lian, * Or: 1.) and once by πυρφόρῳ (not, as the printed copies read it πυροφόρῳ) Obad: 18. which signifies, ſaith Heſychius, ὁ μόνον διασωθεὶς ἐκ πολέμου, him that eſcapes alone in warre, (the πυρφόρῳ being a † Vates, which before the firſt colours carries a firebrand, when the armies are to meet and fight, and hath the priviledge of a legate or herald not to be hurt or * violated) From this acception of the word Σωζόμενοι, the ſaved, for that remnant which ſhould eſcape of the Jewes out of the common deſtruction and ſlaughter that fell upon that people, call'd ἔλλειπτοι ſometimes (and therefore, ſaith Theophylact, ἔλλειπτοι and Σωζόμενοι are all one) ſometimes καταξιωθέντες ἐκφυγεῖν *Lu.*21.36. they that have the honour or favour to eſcape, another acception there is of it for thoſe, which ſhould beleive in Chriſt, receive and embrace him at his coming, and, having done ſo, adhere, and cleave faſt unto him. So when *Iſa.*10.22. it is prophecied that the remnant of Iſrael ſhall return, the Apoſtle, Rom. 9. 27. applies that place (literally ſpoken of the return from the Babyloniſh captivity) by way of accommodation to their receiving the faith of Chriſt, τὸ κατάλειμμα Σωθήσεται, a remnant ſhall eſcape out of that Epidemicall unbeleif, and receive Chriſt. Thus Procopius underſtood that [Σωθήσεται] peculiarly of beleiving in Chriſt, in Iſ: p. 576. ἰσοῦται τὸ κατάλειμμα, ἤτοι ἀπαρχὴ τῶν Σωζομένων οἱ μαθηταί, the firſt fruits of that remnant that eſcaped, was the diſciples of our Saviour. So Lu. 19. 9. the σωτηρία that was come to Zacchæus at that time, was repentance, converſion, the οἶκος τοῦ ἀπολωλότος, the recovering the ſinner, or the publican to repentance, ver. 10. So 1 Cor. 7. 16. the beleiving wifes ſaving her huſband, is converting him to the faith, And Rom. 11. 14. provoking and ſaving the Jewes, is by emulation bringing them to repent and receive the Faith. And ſo the Σωζόμενοι here ſhall be thoſe, eſpecially the Jewes, that beleived in Chriſt and adhered to him, according to the importance of that, Act. 11. 17. ὅπως ἐπιζητήσωσιν οἱ κατάλοιποι τῶν ἀνθρώπων τὸν Κύριον, that the remnant of men (i. e. of the Jews, oppoſed to the Gentiles after mentioned) might ſeek the Lord. To this purpoſe it is that Ignatius in his Epiſtle to Polycarp bids him πάντας ἐλεεῖν ἵνα σωθῶσιν) exhort all that they eſcape, * On Iſai: p. 683. i. e. repent and accept the faith, and that * Procopius makes δύο πάγματα σωζομένων two ranks of theſe eſcapers, the Jewes that expected the Meſſias, and the Church of the Gentiles, the latter of which having called τὸ ἐξ ἐθνῶν Σωζόμενον πλῆθος, the multitude of them that eſcape of the Gentiles, he ſtraight interprets by ἐθνῶν Συνδρομὴν κεκλημένων Χριστιανῶν, the running together of the nations called Chriſtians. And then the clear meaning of this uncertain man's queſtion will be this, Whether this doctrine or faith of Chriſt ſo contrary to the humour and paſſions of the world, ſhould be able to propagate it ſelf, and prove ſo ſucceſsfull, as to be received by many, or whether it ſhould be contained, and incloſed within a narrow pale, that ſo he might either reſiſt Chriſt with the many, or have the honour of being one of the few ſingular perſons that received him. And accordingly Chriſt's anſwer is to put him on that narrow path that leadeth to life, that the few were likely to find, the way of infidelity being ſo broad, and beaten, though it led to abſolute deſtruction. By this explication of this place will appear alſo what is meant by the ſame word, Act. 2. 47. where 'tis ſaid that the Lord προσετίθει τοὺς Σωζομένους καθ' ἡμέραν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ, i. e. by the grace and power of God, there came daily many new converts, penitent, reformed Chriſtians unto the Church. The riſe of that interpretation in that place will be beſt taken from the admonition of S. Peter, ver. 40. of that chap: in theſe words, σώθητε ἀπὸ τῆς γενεᾶς τῆς σκολιᾶς ταύτης, be ye ſaved from this crooked generation, where the importance of the σώζεσθε is clearly, getting out, eſcaping, flying from that great pertinacy, and obduration of that age againſt all the miracles of Chriſt and his Apoſtles, crucifying him, and reſiſting all the powerfull methods of his workings, i. e. not being ſaved eternally (for that would not be matter of exhortation) unleſſe as that is a certain conſequent of repentance and beleif in Chriſt, but retracting the vitious courſe, that they and others went on in, the μιαιφονίαν v. 8. Repent. For when S. Peter had ſaid Repent, 'tis added, that in many other words he admoniſhed them, ſaying, σώθητε, be ſaved or eſcape &c, which is an affirmation, that [to repent] is the ſame thing, which in other, and more words is [to be ſaved, or eſcape from that perverſe generation] as in Simplicius σωτηρίας ἀρχὴν ἴσχοντες, having the beginning of being ſaved, is ſet to expound a former phraſe, οἱ ἀρχόμενοι παιδεύεσθαι, they that begin to be inſtructed. And therefore when it followes that they that willingly received the word, i. e. that admonition of his, were baptized, and that there were 3000 that day added to the Church, that certainly is an explication of this phraſe προσετίθει Σωζομένους, he added the ſaved, or reformed Chriſtians. So that that which was done in ſuch a meaſure one day, ver. 41. is ſaid farther to be done every day, ver. 47. in ſome meaſure, and the ἀσμένως ἀποδεξάμενοι τὸν λόγον they that willingly entertained the word] there, is but a paraphraſe of Σωζομένους the ſaved here, which being in the preſent and not future tenſe, muſt needs belong to the preſent condition of men, i. e. ſuch penitent forſakers of the wicked perverſe age, σωζόμενοι ἐκ γενεᾶς σκολιᾶς there, ſaved out of the crooked generation, and in a parallel phraſe, ἀποφυγόντες τὰ μιάσματα τοῦ κόσμου, they that fled from the pollutions of the world 2 *Pet.*2.20. by which Chriſtians are there expreſt. In this ſenſe we have the word uſed obſervably by Procopius on *Iſa.*26. σωζομένων ἤτοι τῶν ἐθνῶν Ἰουδαῖοι πυκτῷ καμάτῳ ζῆλῳ πυρίκαυστοι ἠνέσθαι μᾶλλον ὤφελον, ἢ τοῦτο βλέπειν Σωζόμενα. When the Gentiles came in to Chriſt (not when they were ſaved or come to heaven, for the Jewes could not ſee that, but) when they forſook their idolatry, and imbraced the Chriſtian faith, and ſo eſcaped out of that perverſe generation, the Jewes were inflamed with envy, and would rather have endured any puniſhment, then to ſee the Gentiles thus reform, and reproach to them their infidelity and impenitence. Thus alſo will the word be explained, 1 Cor. 1. 18. and 2 Cor. 2, 15. where σωζόμενοι, the ſaved, are beleivers, they that embrace the Goſpel and are oppoſed to ἀπολλύμενοι, they that periſh, as to the contrary, thoſe that beleiv'd not, both there, and 2. Cor. 4. 3. where he ſaith his Goſpel is hid to them, i. e. to thoſe which heard, but beleived it not, ἄπιστοι unbeleivers, v. 4. unleſſe perhaps perhaps ἀπολλύμενοι may be thought a higher degree of the ſame thing, to wit thoſe that for their unbeleiſe are deſerted by God, and ſo blinded, that they cannot ſee, and then proportionably to that, σῳζόμενοι may be thoſe penitent beleivers, endued with a higher degree of grace from heaven. But that ἀπολλύμενοι ſignifies no more then the unbeleiving Jews, that continued in their unbeleiſe (and ſo by proportion, σῳζόμενοι the contrary) may farther appear by an ancient place in * Clemens, where εὐχόμενοι περὶ τῶν ἀπολλυμένων, praying for thoſe that periſh (not for them that are already deſtroyed) notes the prayers in the Eaſter week, which were offered to God by the Chriſtian Church for the Jews, as appears by the beginning of the 14. chap. δεῖ πενθεῖν ὑμᾶς ἀνὼν &c. ὅτι οὐ πεπιστεύκασιν, We ought to mourn for them, becauſe they have not beleived. All that I ſhall adde to this is but the opinion of a learned man Joh. Curterius, the tranſlator of Procopius on Iſaiah, who meeting oft in that Author with the word σῳζόμενοι, thoſe that are ſaved, hath ſometimes been forced to render it, quibus ſalutis cura eſt, they that have care of ſalvation, the matter not bearing any interpretation which had nearer reference to ſalvation, or decree of ſalvation, then that expreſſion of his would bear. Out of all that hath been ſaid of this word, the notion of σῳζόμενοι will ſufficiently be cleared in all the places of the New Teſtament, and for the notion of the verbe σῴζειν we have ſaid enough already to give direction for the underſtanding it, where ever 'tis to be met with, not always for eternall ſalvation, but oft for other kindes of eſcaping, and deliverances out of diſeaſes every where almoſt in the Goſpels, out of other dangers, ὡς διὰ πυρός, 1 Cor. 3.15. as one that eſcapes out of the fire (ζημιωθεὶς loſing much in his paſſage, but himſelf eſcaping) δι' ὕδατος 1 Pet. 3.20. either through or from the water, and μόλις σῳζόμενοι ſcarcely eſcape, 1 Pet. 4.18. and ἐν φόβῳ σῴζειν, Jude 23. reſcue in fear or in time of danger, ſnatching them out of the fire. All which we ſhall referre to their ſeverall places, ſee note on Rom. 10. a. and 13. b.

* Clem. l. 3. c. 12.

p. 58.

That there is in this verſe an ellipſis or defect, there is little doubt, & what it is will be beſt judg'd by comparing it with the former verſe, or with Joh. 5.17. In the former verſe he tells Herod that for a time he is about the buſineſſe of his miracles, curing diſeaſes and caſting out devils, and it ſhall not be in his power to hinder him; though he threaten or deſigne to kill him, v. 31. he ſhould not be able to doe it, but ſhortly indeed he ſhould have made an end of his buſineſſe, and then he ſhould be put to death. The time of his doing miracles, &c. he there calls to day and to morrow, as the time of his being put to death, the third day; and ſo in this verſe he gives him a reaſon why he ſhould not fear his threates, nor goe out of the way, which he was adviſed to v. 31. becauſe, ſaith he, δεῖ με σήμερον καὶ αὔριον; There is a neceſſity in reſpect of Gods decree, that to day and to morrow, i. e. for that ſpace before mentioned, I ſhould cure &c. or, as it is Joh. 5. 17. ἐργάζεσθαι work. and then indeed it is as neceſſary τῇ ἐχομένῃ the third day, or, the day immediately following or adjoyning (ſee note on Mar. 1. b.) or after my work is done, πορεύεσθαι to goe, either in that ſenſe, wherein that word is taken, c. 22. 22. i. e. to be put to death (and ſo 'twill be all one with τελειοῦσθαι which is to be martyr'd, as we have τελείωσις ἀθλητοῦ in Nyſſen, and other Chriſtian writers, or elſe πορεύεσθαι to goe from thence (as he was adviſed to doe v. 31.) up to Jeruſalem, that being the place, where the judgement of the great Sanhedrim was, where (and no where elſe) the caſes of Prophets, which were accuſed of any great crime, were to be tryed, (ſee Cunæus de Repub. Hebr. l. 1. c. 12.) whereupon it followes immediately, O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem!

CHAP. XIV.

Paraphraſe.

2.

1. AND it came to paſſe as he went into the houſe of one of the * chief Phariſees to eat bread on the ſabbath day, † that they watched him.] 1. And being upon an invitation perſwaded to goe on a Sabbath day, and dine with one of the Phariſees of great quality, a Ruler, or member of one of their Conſiſtories, they themſelves that had thus invited him, did inſidiouſly and treacherouſly watch and obſerve what he would doe, on purpoſe to take advantage againſt him, (A thing contrary to all lawes of hoſpitality.)

* Rulers which were Phariſees † even they were watching him, ἢ διὰνὺ ἦσαν παρατηροῦμενοι αὐτὸν,

2. And behold, there was a certain man before him, which had the dropſie.

3. And Jeſus [anſwering, ſpake unto the Lawyers and Phariſees, ſaying, Is it lawfull to heale on the ſabbath day?] 3. by way of prevention asked a queſtion of the Doctors of the law and Phariſees that were preſent, ſaying, Is the working of a cure on a ſick man a thing forbidden, and ſo unlawfull to be done, upon a ſabbath day?

4. And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him goe.

5. And he ſaid unto them,

5. And he anſwered them, ſaying,] Which of you ſhall have an aſſe or an oxe fallen into a pit, and will not ſtraightway pull him out on the ſabbath day?

6. And they could not anſwer him again to theſe things.

7, 8, 9, 10. And being at this feaſt he obſerved how deſirous thoſe perſons (Doctors of the law, and Phariſees &c.) were, every of them to take place or have the precedence at the feaſt, and thereupon knowing their inclinations he ſpake this parable to them, which imported how much more honourable it is for a man to ſet himſelf below, then above his place, and how certain a way that is to get him honour.

7. And he put forth a parable to thoſe which were bidden, when he marked how they choſe out the chief rooms, ſaying unto them,

8. When thou art bidden of any man to * a wedding, ſit not down in the higheſt room, leſt a more honourable man then thou be bidden of him.

9. And he that bad thee and him come and ſay to thee, Give this man place, and thou begin with ſhame to take the loweſt room.

10. But when thou art bidden go and ſit down in the loweſt room, that when he that bad thee cometh, he may ſay unto thee, Friend, go up higher, then ſhalt thou have * worſhip in the preſence of them that ſit at meat with thee.]

11. For humility is the oncly thing that is valued, or commended, or thought fit to be rewarded either by God or man.

11. For whoſoever exalteth himſelf ſhall be abaſed, and he that humbleth himſelf ſhall be exalted.]

12. Let not thy intertainments be of thoſe which can, or are likely to entertain thee again, or to whom thou haſt obligations of affinity, &c. for this is but a worthleſſe way of hoſpitality, in which there is nothing commendable or thank-worthy.

12. Then ſaid he alſo to him that bad him, [When thou makeſt a dinner or a ſupper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinſmen, nor thy rich neighbours, leſt they alſo bid thee again, and a recompenſe be made thee.]

13, 14. The only commendable way, and that which it will be reaſonable for God to reward is, the entertaining of thoſe that want, and who are not likely to make thee any return, for this God will be thy debter, and pay thee at the day of judgment, and there can be no ſuch advantage to thee as that.

13. But when thou makeſt a feaſt, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blinde,

14. And thou ſhalt be bleſſed, for they cannot recompenſe thee, for thou ſhalt be recompenſed at the reſurrection of the juſt.]

15. Upon this occaſion one repeated that known ſaying among the Rabbines, Bleſſed, &c. i. e. 'tis certainly a much happyer thing to be feaſted by God in his kingdome, then by any man on earth, and therefore that is moſt true which was ſaid v. 14. that tis more advantageous to any man to entertain the poor then any elſe.

15. And when one of them that ſate at meat with him heard theſe things, he ſaid unto him, Bleſſed is he that ſhall eat bread in the kingdome of God.]

16, 17, 18, &c. To this Chriſt replied by a parable intimating the truth of what that perſon laſt had ſaid, but withall, telling them that this celeſtiall feaſt, everlaſting reward was that, that they had oft been invited to, and the generality of the Jewes neglected to make uſe of the invitation, preferring their own deſignes of worldly advantages before it, thereby provoking God extremely. And therefore the heathen & ſinners and meane perſons of the world were fain to be taken in, nay importunately woo'd to come to that feaſt, in ſtead of them; and thoſe that were the principally deſigned gueſts, to be utterly rejected.

16. Then ſaid he unto him, A certain man made a great ſupper, and bad many,

17. And * ſent his ſervant at ſupper time to ſay to them that were bidden, Come, for all things are now ready.

b. 18. And they all * [b] with one conſent began to make excuſe: The firſt ſaid unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I muſt needs goe and ſee it, I pray thee have me excuſed.

* preſently

19. And another ſaid I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I goe to prove them, I pray thee have me excuſed.

20. And another ſaid, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21. So that ſervant came and ſhewed his Lord theſe things. Then the Maſter of the houſe being angry, ſaid to his ſervants, Go out quickly into the ſtreets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt and the blind.

22. And the ſervant ſaid, Lord it is done, as thou haſt commanded, and yet there is room.

23. And the Lord ſaid unto the ſervant, Goe out into the high-waies and hedges, and compell them to come in, that my houſe may be filled.

24. For I ſay unto you, that none of thoſe men that were bidden, ſhall taſt of my ſupper.]

25. And there went great multitudes with him, and he turned, and ſaid unto them,

26. If any man come to me and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and ſiſters, yea, and his own life alſo, he cannot be my diſciple.]

26. If any man offer to undertake my diſcipleſhip, and doth not preferre me before all others that are neereſt to him, yea and before his own life too, Mat. 10. 37. he is not for my turn; And my ſervice being ſo ſure to bring perſecutions along with it, will not be for his.

27. And whoſoever doth not come to me with a preparation of mind to ſuffer any thing rather then part with me, is not fit for the turn.

27. And whoſoever doth not bear his croſſe and come after me, cannot be my diſciple.]

28. For

28. For which of you intending to build a tower, ſitteth not down firſt, and counteth the coſt, whether he have ſufficient to finiſh it?

29. Leſt haply after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finiſh it, all that behold it, begin to mock him,

30. Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finiſh.]

28, 29, 30. For as he that ſets on building, and hath not a ſtock to hold out, leaves his work imperfect, and becomes ridiculous.

31. Or what king going to make warre againſt another king, ſitteth not down firſt and conſulteth, whether he be able with ten thouſand to meet him that cometh againſt him with twenty thouſand?

32. Or elſe, while the other is yet a great way off, he ſendeth an embaſſage, and deſireth conditions of peace.]

31, 32. Or as he that deſignes a battail or a warre, and is not provided with all neceſſaries to goe thorough with it, had better never engage, or being engaged ſhould preſently think of treating and compounding the matter.

33. So likewiſe whoſoever he be of you, that forſaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my diſciple.]

33. So he that undertakes to be a Chriſtian, muſt reſolve to renounce all that is moſt precious to him in this world, or elſe he will not be able to hold out, and ſo had better never pretend to that profeſſion.

Notes on Chap. XIV.

2. What is meant by Rulers ſimply, Rulers of the people, and Rulers of the ſynagogues, hath been formerly ſhewed, note on Mar. 5. 2. and on Mat. 9. f. viz: that the Rulers ſimply, were the Judges in their leſſer Conſiſtories, in particular cities, or, when the context belonging to Jeruſalem ſo enforceth it, thoſe of the great Sanhedrim at Jeruſalem. Now the Phariſees which are ſo oft mentioned in the Goſpel, were a particular ſect in their religion, αἵρεσις, ſaith S. Paul, who was one of them, and that an improvement of the חסידים or Haſidai (as they were ἐκτενεζηλωκὼς τῷ νόμῳ 1 Mac. 2. 42. thoſe that voluntarily performed ſome things, which the Law required not, and were contrary to the Karai or Scripturarii, who were for that only which was commanded by law) forming thoſe things into doctrines or precepts, and obliging all to the performance of them, which the Aſidai performed as free-will offerings, and ſo divided themſelves from the reſt of the profane world (which did not as they did) nay from the Aſidei themſelves (who performed as much as they, but did not think themſelves or others obliged by law to doe ſo,) & therefore were call'd פרושים Phariſees, ἀφωρισμένοι ſeparate or divided from other men, and by S. Paul ἀκριβεστάτη αἵρεσις, a ſect that required the moſt exact performances of any. By this it appears that theſe were not any order or ſort of men ſetled by law, which had ἄρχοντες or rulers over them, but only a ſect, of which ſome of all orders of men were, & indeed a prevailing ſect, taken up by moſt of the chief men of the nation, the Elders in the great councel or Sanhedrim in Jeruſalem, and the Rulers in the Conſiſtories in other cities, which therefore are call'd ἄρχοντες Φαρισαίων Rulers, and thoſe rulers Phariſees, one of whom is here ſpoken of and ſtyled τὶς τῶν ἀρχόντων τῶν Φαρισαίων, one of the rulers that were Phariſees.

Ἀρχόντων τῶν Φαρισαίων

Φαρισαίων

Ἀπὸ μιᾶς] is all one with the Syriack adverb מחדא ן answering the Greek [ἀπὸ from] and חדא being of the feminine numeral which is μιᾶς one. And there is little queſtion but S. Luke ſo rendred that Syriack word. Now מחדא clearly ſignifies בבחשא, ſubito presently, and ſo בּ חדא, (which is all one literally with this phraſe) and conſequently 'tis beſt rendred [preſently.] See our Learned M^r Fuller in his Miſcellanies.

b. Ἀπὸ μιᾶς

The meaning of εἰς γῆν here will be gueſt, firſt by that ſaying of Mat. 5. 13. You are the ſalt of the earth, i. e. the perſons by whom the whole world of men muſt be ſeaſoned, and ארע, by the uſe of the word ארעא] the earth, or the land ordinarily for the men, the inhabitants of the earth, as 1 Sam. 27. 9. Νικᾷ τὴν γῆν, ſmiting the earth, and the like very often. From whence 'tis eaſie to conclude, that for the ſalt to be uſefull, or fit εἰς γῆν, for the earth, is to be proper for the uſe of men, and if by its ilneſſe it ceaſe to be ſo, 'tis of all other things the moſt unprofitable, for whereas other things being not fit for men, may yet be fit for the dunghill, ſalt by its naturall impropriety is debarr'd even from that moſt inferior degree of profitableneſſe.

CHAP. XV.

Paraphraſe.

1. THEN drew neer unto him all the Publicans and [ſinners] for to heare him.

1. heathens in great multitudes

2. And the Phariſees and Scribes murmured, ſaying, This man * receiveth ſinners, and eateth with them.

* admitteth προσδέχεται

3. And he ſpake this parable unto them, ſaying,

4. What man of you having an hundred ſheep, if he loſe one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderneſſe, and goe after that which is loſt untill he find it?

Mat. 18. 12.

5. And when he hath found it, he [layeth it on his ſhoulders] rejoycing.

5. he brings it home with great care, and ſome pains to him, yet

6. And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, ſaying unto them, Rejoice with me, for I have found my ſheep which was loſt.

7. God in the sight of his angels shall rejoice, (and expresse that joy) at the returning and repenting and change of one heathen or sinfull Atheisticall liver, more then at the daily virtuous performances of those, which have never been ingaged in a vicious course, and so though they have, and want sorrow (and wishing it were otherwise) for their frequent slips and failings and infirmities, and withall a diligence, and vigilance, and greater industry and study for the future to grow in piety, and strength of grace, yet having always continued in a virtuous course, these need not that change of mind, which belongs to others, and is properly called by that title of Repentance.

7. I say unto you, that likewise [joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more then over ninety and nine just persons, which need no [a] repentance.]

8. Either what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it?

9. And when she hath found it, she calls her friends, and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me, for I have found the piece which I had lost.

10. After the same proportion it is that God expresseth joy in the sight of his Angels upon the reducing of one indulgent sinner to good life.

10. Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the Angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.]

11. To which purpose he made use of this other parable by way of story,

11. And he said,] A certain man had two sonnes.

12. And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his * living.

* estate or substance.

13. And not many daies after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a farre countrey, and there † wasted his substance with riotous living.

† spent, scattered, διεσκόρπισεν.

14. And when he had spent all, there * arose a mighty famine in that land, and he began to be in want.

* was strong,

15. And being in that distress he pinnd himself upon one of the inhabitants of that region, being content to be entertain'd by him upon any conditions, never so hard, and he hired him, and set him to feed his swine in the fields, allowing him little food, but what was allow'd the swine.

15. And he went and † joyned himself to a citizen of that countrey, and he sent him into the fields to feed swine.]

† fastned himself, ἐκολλήθη

b. 16. And he would have been glad to have fill'd his belly with Ægyptian figs, a course unwholsome fruit, that swine fed on among them, and he could not get enough of them.

16. And he would fain have filled his belly with the * [b] husks that the swine did eat, and no man gave unto him.]

* fruit of the Carobe tree

17. And meditating with himself he remembred the plenty that his fathers servants had, (or, being reduced to some sense and consideration by this distresse, he thus said within himself) The meanest of a multitude of my fathers servants feed very plentifully, and I am ready to starve for want of the meanest food.

17. And * when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my fathers have bread enough, and to spare, and I perish with hunger?]

* or, he came and said to himself, see note on Mar. 2. a.

18. I will arise and goe to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee,

19. And am no more worthy to be called thy son, Make me as one of thy hired servants.

20. And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, & fell on his neck & kissed him.

21. And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

22. Use him with all the expressions of respect and kindnesse which are possible, bring the best garment that is in the wardrobe,

22. But the father said to his servants, [Bring forth the best robe] and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand, and shooes on his feet.

23. And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it, and let us eat and be merry.

c. 24. For this return of a prodigall, so desperately lost, I look upon, as if he were risen from the dead, because

24. For this my son was [c] dead, and is alive again:] he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

25. Now that son of his that had always continued with him, and followed his businesse and observed him diligently, (parallel to whom is the just person that never run the prodigals course, and so needs no repentance)

25. Now his elder son] was in the field, and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard musick and dancing.

26. And he called one of the servants, and asked what these things meant.

27. to celebrate his safe returne with a time of feasting

27. And he said unto him, Thy brother is come, and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, [because he hath received him safe and sound.]

28. And he was angry, and would not goe in, therefore came his father out and intreated him.

29. And he answering said to his father, Loe, these many years I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment, and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends.

30. spent all that portion which thou gavest him

30. But assoon as this thy son was come, which hath [devoured thy living] with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

31. And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine.

32. But for the return of this thy brother from that riotous course which is as wonderfull a work, and as considerable a blessing, as if he had been raised from the dead, it is all reason that we should expresse an extraordinary joy, in an extraordinary manner.

32. * It was meet that we should make merry and be glad, for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was lost, and is found.]

* But it &c. Ἔπρεπε δὲ κ.τ.λ.

The

a. Μετανοίας χρόνος ἀλλ' ἰχνῶν. The difference of μετάνοια change of mind from λύπη grief or sorrow for sinne, or dislike of what a man hath done, is sufficiently known, and as it hath place in many other passages, so eminently in this. For as he that lives a Godly life, may and doth often fall into such sinnes as deserve his sorrow and displeasure at himself, and so cannot be said not to want that sorrow, so it is certain that that man continuing all his life so, without any eminent fall into wilfull sinne, may be said not to need that μετάνοια that change, which here is spoken of, and is required to the bringing home of a lost sheep, a prodigall to his fathers house. So he that was washt already, had no need, saith Christ, save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit, Joh. 13. 10.

b. Κεράτια which are here set down as the food of swine, are the fruit of the Carobe, or arbor Ceratonia (which the Syriack translation reads accordingly חרובא) mentioned by Dioscorides l. 1. and Galen l. 7. de Simpl: Med: fac: who calls the tree it self κερατωνία, and that, saith Hesychius, is an Ægyptian fig, Κερατωνία συκῆ Αἰγύπτου. This fruit Gorrhæus thus describes, that 'tis of the length of a mans finger, forked, about the breadth of a thumb, very sweet, but hard of concoction, and of an ill juice, which is agreeable to what is affirm'd of it by Pliny, l. 15. c. 24. who adds that the rind of it is the part that is eaten, and thereupon c. 28. In siliquis quod manditur, quid nisi lignum est? that part of it which is eaten is the wood. Whence it is that Siliqua the Latine word for that fruit, comes also to signifie the husk or rind of any kind of fruit, which is the reason, I suppose, why the word is ordinarily rendred husks, though the Latine siliqua doe not alwaies signifie so. Of this fruit Dioscorides saith, that χλωρὰ λαμβανόμενα, κακοστόμαχα πνιγώδη, καὶ κοιλίας διαλυτικά. If they be taken green, they are very ill for the stomach, and are apt to breed loosnes, ξηρανθέντα δὲ ἴσην κοιλίαν, ἐναντιοχυτικὰ ὄντα καὶ διουρητικά, being dried they are medicinall for a loosnesse and are diuretical. The use of them green was probably that, which belongs to this place, where the swine are said to feed on them, as they are wont to be allowed to doe on those other fruits, which were good for nothing else. This fruit, saith Pliny, was ordinary among the Ægyptians, agreeing therein with Hesychius, to which perhaps that part of the parable referres v. 13. where the prodigall is said ἀποδημῆσαι μακρὰν εἰς χώραν, to have travailed afarre off to a region, though it be not named; For that it cannot referre to some countrey in Judæa may seem, both because there is no mention of that fruit in Judæa, and because feeding of swine was against the laws of the Jewes (for as to that mention of heards of swine among the Gadarens, all that can be concluded thence is this, that Gentiles then inhabited there, and so Josephus distinctly numbers Gadara among the ἑλληνίδας πόλεις which Pompey took away from the Jewes) and thirdly because 'tis said that ἀπεδήμησεν μακρὰν, he travailed a great way off. l. 15. c. 28. Μακρὰν ἀπὸ χώρας.

c. Νεκρὸς dead may be learn't from hence, to signifie one that is desperately engaged in a wicked course. Thus those that were carried into captivity, and despair'd of returne, are call'd dead bones, Ezec: 37. 3. and the reducing of them, is said to be the bringing them out of their graves, v. 12. So the state of Abrahams body, and Sarahs womb, in respect of having hopes of a posterity is call'd deadnesse, Rom. 4. 19. noting desperation of children, and no more; So the state of unchristian living, is call'd death 1 Joh. 3. 14. And they that lived in a Gentile course, are said to be dead in trespasses and sinnes, Ephes. 2. 1. (see Rom. 4. 17.) and all this no otherwise, then according to the ordinary notion of Pythagoras, who for any that had forsaken his school, i. e. refused to live according to his rules of Philosophy, had a κενοτάφιον, an empty coffin set in his place, to signifie him to be morally dead. Accordingly reformation, or recovery to good life, is call'd a rising from the dead, reviving, being quickned, passing to life, in these and other places, and signifies no more by all these expressions, but only repentance from dead works, or renovation. Νεκρὸς

CHAP. XVI.

Paraphrase.

1. AND he said unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man which had a steward, and the same was accused unto him that he had [wasted his goods.]

1. unthriftily lavishe out that estate, which was entrusted to him to manage, and improve.

2. And he called him and said unto him, How is it, that I heare this of thee? Give an account of thy stewardship, for thou mayst be no longer steward.

3. Then the steward said within himself, What shall I doe? for my Lord taketh away from me the stewardship, [I cannot dig, to beg I am ashamed.]

3. Having not been brought up to it, I am not able to earn my living by my labour, and so there is no way of subsistence imaginable for me, but to beg, and that is a shame for me.

4. I am resolved what to doe, that when I am put out of my stewardship, [they may receive me into their houses.]

4. I may be entertained by my masters debtors.

5. So he called every one of his Lords debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my Lord?

6. And he said, An hundred [measures of oyle,] And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty.

6. bathes (vessels containing neer 10. gallons a piece) of oyl.

7. Then said he to another, And how much owest thou? And he said, an hundred measures of wheat, And he said unto him, Take thy bill and write fourscore.

whom theſe fading things, the riches of this world, were intruſted: For worldly men are more provident and dextrous to make proviſion for themſelves for the time to come, for the remainder of their life, then pious men are to provide for their eternall futurity.

9. Accordingly I adviſe you to make proviſion for your ſelves, by ſo uſing the fading wealth which is intruſted to you here, that when theſe tranſitory comforts forſake you, you may be received into heaven.

11. If therefore you have not made that uſe you ought of the fading riches of this world, who will intruſt to you that which is more precious?

26. But beſide, there is an irreverſible decree paſs'd upon you, and all ſuch, and 'tis not poſſible for all the Saints in heaven to yeild, or obtain any releaſe for you, or for you to get releaſe one minute out of that ſtate.

26. And beſides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, ſo that they which would paſſe from hence to you, cannot, neither can they paſſe to us that would come from thence.]

27. Then he ſaid, I pray thee therefore, Father, that thou wouldſt ſend him to my fathers houſe,

28. For

28. For I have five brethren, that he may [teſtifie] unto them, leſt they alſo come into this place of torment.

28. give an account of my condition, and, with it, ſome ſeaſonable needfull exhortation

29. Abraham ſaith unto him; They have Moſes and the Prophets, let them hear them.

30. And he ſaid, Nay, father Abraham, [but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.]

30. Though they are not moved with the hearing Gods law, and denunciation of the Prophets, being ſo familiar with them, yet a meſſenger from the dead, which ſhall teſtifie his own ſight or knowledge, may probably work upon them to beleive what he ſaith, and to be warned and reformed by it.

31. And he ſaid unto him, If they hear not Moſes and the Prophets, neither will they be perſwaded though one roſe from the dead.]

31. But Abraham anſwered him with a quite contrary affirmation, That they which by the knowledge of their duty, delivered by Moſes and the denunciations of the Prophets, are not wrought on, or brought to obedience or amendment of life, would not in any probability be wrought on by a narration of one that came to them from the dead, There being more reaſon to perſwade any rationall man, that the Scriptures are true, and worth our heeding, or (that being ſuppoſed as among the Jews it was) that upon that one motive delivered in them, he ſhould reform and amend his life, then there would be to truſt or beleive him that ſhould bring a meſſage from the dead to any man on the earth, and to forſake an habit of ſinne upon that motive.

Notes on Chap. XVI.

2. Ἀδικία

What is meant by ἀδικία unrighteouſneſſe] in the 8. v. may be conjectured by the uſe of the ſame word v. 9. and the meaning of both, I conceive it to be fetch't from ſome obſervations in the Hebrew tongue, as firſt that δίκαιος juſt, and ἀληθὴς true are taken in the ſame ſenſe by the ſacred writers (and therefore Heſychius explains ἀληθὴς true diſtinctly by δίκαιος juſt) that אֱמֶת is rendred by the Septuagint δικαιοσύνη juſtice, Gen. 24. 49. and Iſa. 38. 19. and conſequently that ἄδικος unjuſt and ἀληθινὸς true, are directly oppoſite one to another. Thus they are ſet in this place v. 11. (and Joh. 7. 18. ἀληθὴς is expreſt by οὐκ ἔστιν ἀδικία ἐν αὐτῷ there is no unrighteouſneſſe, i. e. falſeneſſe in him) and therefore muſt be reſolved to ſignifie (both of them) in a notion wherein they are thus contrary one to another. And ſo indeed ἄδικον unjuſt, and δόλιον deceitfull, appear to be all one by comparing Mal. 2. 6. ἀδικία οὐχ ηὑρέθη iniquity was not found in his lips, with 1 Pet. 2. 22. οὐχ ηὑρέθη δόλος guile was not found in his lips. In this notion δικαίως ſeems to be uſed, 1 Cor. 15. 34. ἐκνήψατε δικαίως, awake truly, or perfectly (in oppoſition to hypocriticall unſincere reformation, explained by the not-ſinning that followes. Now what is meant by ἀληθινὸν μαμωνᾶ v. 11. is cleare, that true, perfect, valuable, durable riches, which is infinitely to be preferred before all the riches of this world (as ἀληθὴς βρῶσις, truly food Joh. 6. 55. is ſuch food as will make him immortall that feeds on it, in oppoſition to the manna, which they that fed on, dyed) i. e. either the reward and bliſſe in heaven only, or grace here (as preparative to that) together with that hereafter. Conſequently μαμωνᾶ ἄδικον oppoſite to that muſt ſignifie this inferiour, vain, ſuperfluous (as Phavorinus tooke it, μαμωνᾶς, ὁ ἄδικος ἢ ὑπὲρ χρείαν πᾶσος) tranſitory, falſe wealth, ſo unvaluable in compariſon of that other. Called by the Rabbins (juſt in that ſtyle) ממון שקר the vain or falſe mammon, which they joyne with הון לעולם the riches of this world, which is ſo ſcandalouſly vain and falſe and unfit to be truſted on, that הון the Plenty or riches of this world (which is oft by the Targum rendred ממון mamon) is Prov. 10. 2. by them rendred שקרא a lye. And then the ſame, no doubt, is the meaning of that other phraſe, varyed from this only in the form, by a moſt ordinary Hebraiſme, μαμωνᾶ ἀδικίας mammon of injuſtice, or falſeneſſe, and an example of it we have (from whence the phraſe ſeems to be tranſcribed) in the Targum alſo, Iſa. 33. 15. he ſeparates himſelf מממון רשקר from the mammon of iniquity, or the falſe riches, and ממון דשקר the mammon of falſeneſſe, Ezech. 22. 27. Having found now the meaning of ἄδικον, and ἀδικία, v. 11. and 9. it will not be hard to reſolve what is the meaning of the οἰκονόμου ἀδικίας ſteward of falſeneſſe alſo, either ſo as may be proportionable to this notion of it, maintained throughout this parable, for thoſe tranſitory falſe riches, called by the Targum (as was ſaid) שקרא, falſeneſſe, i. e. ἀδικία, and then it will ſignifie the diſpenſer of this inconſtant, tranſitory, falſe riches of this world. Or elſe as it muſt, by that ordinary Hebraiſme, ſignifie οἰκονόμου ἀδίκου, a falſe unjuſt ſteward, as κριτὴς ἀδικίας, an unjuſt Judge c. 18. 6. but ſo, not as to commend his falſeneſſe, but only his prudence, in making uſe of that wealth, which was put into his hands (be that called τὰ ὑπάρχοντα v. 1. or ἀδικία here, or μαμωνᾶ ἀδικίας v. 9. or ἄδικον v. 11.) ſo, as might give him a ſubſiſtence after, when his office was taken from him, and ſo the οἰκονόμος ἀδίκου the ſteward of falſeneſſe, i. e. the falſe ſteward, will be as perfectly all one with υἱοὶ τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, the children of this world, i. e. worldly men, following in this verſe, as the ממון שקר or דשקר; the falſe riches or the riches of falſeneſſe, with the הון לעולם, the wealth of this world, or worldly wealth, as even now was ſaid. As for the mention of ἄδικον unjuſt, in the ſecond part or application of the parable v. 10. which is there oppoſed to πιστὸς faithfull, that doth not refer to the deceitfulneſſe of the ſteward in the parable in cheating his maſter, but to the rich man, in the counterpart, his not making uſe of thoſe poſſeſſions, intruſted to him, to that advantage of his own ſoul to which they might have been improved. In which reſpect, he that doth like the ſteward in the parable, makes ſuch prudent proviſion for himſelf, is not ἄδικος falſe, but πιστὸς faithfull, making a gainfull uſe of that which was committed to his truſt, which is there called being faithfull in a little, and is the very Chriſtian virtue commended to us in that parable, the making us friends with our riches;

Ἀλλότριον θέσεις

Μαμωνᾶ ἀδίκου

Οἰκονόμος ἀδίκιας.

so that ἄδικος there also signifies false, viz. to that trust put into their hands, in not making what advantage they might of it. And lastly for that passage v. 12. εἰ ἐν ἀλλοτρίῳ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε, if you have not been faithfull in that τὸ is anothers, it is not so to be taken as if the rich mans gaining by the trust committed to him, after the manner of the deceitfull steward, were thereby accused, for on the other side the thing found fault with in the parable, in the 12. v. is the not doing that which the false deceitfull steward did, and was commended for, v. 18. i. e. the not making such an use of that transitory wealth (that passes from one owner to another) at that time put into his hands, as might help him to reception and entertainment, when he was out of his service. For (to conclude this matter) it must be observed, that every rich man is in respect of God, as a steward to his Master, appointed to be a dispenser of that wealth put into his hands by God, which may therefore be here called ἀλλότριον anothers, not so much his who possesseth it, as God's whose steward he is, or theirs to whom it is to be dispensed. And then as in Aristotle's Rhetor: l. 2. c. 23. 'tis mentioned as a law of Theodectes, τοῖς κακῶς ἐπιμεληθεῖσι τῶν ἀλλοτρίων ἵππων ἢ παρθένων τὰς ἰδίας, that to them that did not take good care of other mens horses they did not deliver their own, so is it here, and only one difference there is between him, and a steward among men. He hath liberty to use the wealth put into his hands so, as may be most (not only for his Masters, but also) for his own advantage, viz. to his endlesse reward in heaven, which though it were an injustice and falsnesse in a servant here on earth who is altogether to consider his Masters profit, not his own, and so was injustice in this steward here, in the first part of the parable, yet it is duty, and that which by the will and command of God we are obliged to in the execution of that stewards office; which the rich man holds under God, and is the only thing commended to us in this parable, and is so farre from denominating him, that makes that advantage of the treasure intrusted to him, an unjust or unrighteous steward in the application, that it denominates him πιστὸς faithfull in the latter part of the parable, and him only ἄδικος false, that doth it not.

b. δέξωνται The word δέξωνται] here is taken impersonally, as it were, not denoting the persons, that should receive them, whether God, or Angels, or good works themselves (though 'tis true that Christ who accounts what is done to our poor brethren, done unto him, will so receive and reward the mercifull) but, after the manner of the Scripture speaking, to signifie no more, then [you shall be received] i. e. that these works of charity shall (through God's acceptance and promise to reward them) prepare, as it were, a place in heaven for you, & ye shall, when your riches faile, be received into everlasting habitations. This I suppose is the meaning of that place in *Eccl*us. c. 16. 14. Πᾶσα ἐλεημοσύνη (not in the dative but the nominative case) ποιήσει τόπον, every work of mercy shall make or prepare a place, to wit, in heaven for thee, and so the place will be intelligible, which otherwise will not, and the consequents will be naturall, καὶ ἕκαστος κατὰ τὰ ἔργα αὐτοῦ εὑρήσει, every man shall finde according to his works. Many examples of this phrase, δέξωνται ὑμᾶς, for [you shall be received] will be obvious to any in the reading of the Scriptures. So 2 Sam. 21. 8. the five sonnes of Michal, not which she i. e. Michal bare, but which were born to Adriel the son of Barzillai, for 'tis clear they were not Michals but Merabs children. So 2 Sam. 24. 1. the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and he moved, i. e. (not God moved, for twas Satan, 1 Chro. 21. 1. but) David was moved against them, &c. And so Castellio happily renders it eo impulsus est David, &c. so in this Gospel c. 6. 38. we read δώσουσιν they shall give in the latter part of the verse, for that which was δοθήσεται it shall be given, in the beginning. So Lu. 23. 31. εἰ ἐν τῷ ὑγρῷ ξύλῳ ταῦτα ποιοῦσιν, if they doe such things, i. e. if such things be done (i. e. such judgements fall) on the green tree. So Rev. 16. 15. καὶ βλέπουσι τὴν ἀσχημοσύνην αὐτοῦ, and they see his uncomelinesse, i. e. his uncomelinesse be seen, So Lu. 12. 20. this night ἀπαιτοῦσι, they require thy soul, i. e. thy soul is required from thee. So Mat. 19. 5. εἶπεν] is not he, viz. i. e. God said, but it was said by Adam, or rather by the historian, as his conclusion from thence, Gen. 2. 24.

What is meant by [ἐν ἀλλοτρίῳ] was before touched (note a.) I shall only adde to the explication of it a passage of an ancient writer, the author of the Ecclesiasticall Hierarchy c. 3. making a difference and opposition between the τὰ ὄντως ὄντα, καὶ ἀθανάτως κειμένα, καὶ ἀιωνίως ἡδέα, on the one side, the things that have a true being, are possest immortally, and are eternally sweet; And on the other side, τὸ ἀβέβαιον ἐν τοῖς ἀλλοτρίοις καὶ ἔξω ἀλλὰ δυκτῶν ἐνυπάρξαν, the unstable pleasure which consists in things that are other folkes, and which is not really, but only in appearance. On which 'tis Maximus's Scholion, Ἀλλότρια, saith he, are τὰ κατὰ κόσμον ὡς ὑπὸ τινὸς ἰδίως ἀλλὰ ἐξ ἄλλων εἰς ἄλλους μεταπίπτοντα. The things that are other mens, signifie the things of this world, which are not properly any particular mans propriety but passe from one man to another. And this truly seems the most proper notion of ἀλλότριον here, those things that are not properly our own, in respect of the weak tenure we have in them, they passing from us, or we from them so ordinarily; and so the ἀλλότριον here will be more fully agreeable, and parallel to the ἄδικον μαμωνᾶ false mammon, as we even now explained it, and τὸ ὑμέτερον that which is yours indeed (your propriety, peculiar, that shall never be removed from you) will be all one with ἀληθινὸς πλοῦτος, the true riches.

That this is not a story but a parable, may appear by Gemara Babyb. ad Cod: Berachoth, where thus much of it is set down, that a King made סעודה גדולה a great feast, and invited all the strangers, and there came עני אחד, one poor man and stood at his gates, and said unto them, Give me פרוסה אחד one bit or portion (almost the Latine, pars) and they considered him not, and he said, My Lord the King, of all the great feast thou hast made, is it hard in thine eyes to give me פת אחד ביניהם, one bit or fragment among them. And the title of this passage there is משל למלך בשר ודם A parable of a King of flesh and blood.

CHAP. XVII.

Paraphraſe.

* Randals Confutation

1. THEN ſaid he unto his diſciples, [It is impoſſible but that * offences will come,] but woe unto him through whom they come.

1. It is not to be imagined that God ſhould ſo think fit to interpoſe his power perpetually as to hinder or not permit falſe doctrines and ſchiſmes, and other the like means of hindring or diſcouraging men in their Chriſtian courſe to come into the world (Mat. 18.7.) to draw men from the Chriſtian doctrine of truth and charity.

* ſcandalize Cassandery

2. It were better for him that a milſtone were hanged about his neck, and he caſt into the ſea, then that he ſhould [* offend one of theſe little ones.]

2. diſcourage or drive off one Chriſtian to unchriſtian life.

3. Take heed to your ſelves, If thy brother treſpaſſe againſt thee, rebuke him, and if he repent, forgive him.

4. And if he treſpaſſe againſt thee ſeven times in a day, and ſeven times in a day turn again to thee, ſaying, I repent, thou ſhalt forgive him.]

3, 4. Be ye carefull that ye be not guilty of any degree of this; But on the other ſide after the example of Chriſt (mentioned in this matter, Mat. 18. 11, 12.) doe the utmoſt in your power to reduce any Chriſtian that offendeth, though it be by injuring thee, In which caſe thou art to be ſo farre from being angry with him, or deſigning revenge, that thou muſt, beſide pardoning him upon his reformation, how often ſo ever he offend thee, uſe all probable means to bring him to repentance.

5. And the Apoſtles ſaid unto the Lord, Increaſe our faith.]

5. Upon another occaſion (moſt probably that Mat. 17. 20. where in the diſcourſe between his diſciples and him, he taxeth their unbeleif) he was intreated by ſome of the diſciples, (who were not able to caſt out a devil, or cure the young man of the Epilepſy, Mat. 17. 16.) that he would give them more of this gift of miracles, that they might be able to doe all, to which they were by his deſignation ſent, but were not able to doe them, for want of ſome higher degree of this miraculous faith, then as yet they had attained to.

6. And the Lord ſaid, If ye had faith as a grain of muſtard-ſeed, ye might ſay unto this ſycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the ſea, and it ſhould obey you.]

6. And he ſaid unto them, If you had but the leaſt degree of true faith, you ſhould by my power be enabled to work any the greateſt miracle, remove mountains, Mat. 17. 20. make trees grow in the ſea, &c. But what I mean by this true faith I will expreſſe to you by a parable, or ſimilitude.

7. But which of you having a ſervant plowing, or feeding cattel, will ſay unto him by and by, when he is come from the field; Goe and ſit down to meat?

8. And will not rather ſay unto him, Make ready wherewith I may ſup, and gird thy ſelf and ſerve me, till I have eaten and drunken, and afterward thou ſhalt eat and drink?

9. Doth he thank that ſervant, becauſe he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10. So likewiſe ye, when ye have done all thoſe things which are commanded you, ſay, We are [a] unprofitable ſervants: we have done that which was our duty to doe.]

7, 8, 9, 10. As it is with an hired ſervant, tis not ſufficient for him to doe that one buſineſſe, for which he was hired, but other cõmon offices there are, which belong indifferently to all ſervants, as waiting at table, &c. and when he hath done his other works in the field, for which he was hired, as ploughing, &c. he muſt firſt ſet cheerfully to the other offices, before he think he have done his duty, or expect to receive his ordinary food, his daily wages, ſo muſt ye (whoſe task it is to cure diſeaſes, caſt out devils) doe all thoſe things with all fidelity which are means to that end; or never think you have performed your duty. When confidence of my power, and uſing the mention of my name, will not caſt out devils, then ſolemn prayer is your duty to be ſuperadded to that, and when that, and prayer alone will not doe, you muſt adde faſting alſo, Mat. 17. 21. and not think that 'tis free for you to doe, or not to doe this (and that if you doe it, 'tis eminent virtue in you) but you muſt look upon it as neceſſary duty, which when you have done, you have done no more then was commanded you, and was ſtrictly required of you to doe. This is the beſt anſwer which is likely to be given to your requeſt of having your faith encreaſed. Doe not you neglect the means, and you ſhall be able to doe what miracles you will, But as long as you think your partiall obedience will ſerve the turn, and will not take the pains to faſt and pray, to caſt out a devil, and the like, this is an infidelity in you, Mat. 17. 17, 20. which will diſable you from doing thoſe miracles, which otherwiſe you would eaſily be able to doe.

11. And it came to paſſe, as he went to Jeruſalem, that he paſſed through the midſt of Samaria and Galilee.

12. And as he entred into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers [which ſtood afarre off.]

12. who being unclean by their leproſie, and ſo to be ſeparated from ſociety, durſt not come neer unto him.

13. And they lifted up their voices,] and ſaid, Jeſus Maſter, have mercy on us.

13. And being farre from him, they cried aloud to him,

14. And when he ſaw them, he ſaid unto them, [Goe ſhew your ſelves unto the prieſts. And it came to paſſe, that as they went, they were cleanſed.]

14. You ſhall be healed, and therefore goe and ſhew your ſelves to the prieſt, which by the law you are required to doe, when the cure is wrought, that he may pronounce you clean, Doe you goe immediately to the prieſt, and before you come thither, you ſhall be cured. And accordingly it fell out, as they were on their way, they were healed.

15. And one of them when he ſaw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God,

16. And [fell down on his face at his feet,] giving him thanks: And he was a Samaritane.

16. now came neer unto him, being cured of his unclean diſeaſe, which before made him ſtand afarre off, and fell down before him on his face,

17. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid, Were there not ten cleanſed, but where are the nine?

18. There

18. No one hath return'd to acknowledge the mercy, ſave this one, who is a Gentile, or no Jew, (for ſo are the Samaritans accounted by the Jewes)

18. There are not found that returned to give glory to God, ſave this ſtranger.]

19. And he ſaid unto him, Ariſe, goe thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole.

20, 21. When that kingdome of God, which John Baptiſt and he had preached ſo often, ſhould come, he ſaid, It comes not in any ſplendid manner as you expect, with a pompous ſolemne court along with it, for men to gaze and look upon it, and ſay, Loe here it comes, as it is wont to be with ordinary courts of kings, when they remove. For indeed it is already among you, the Goſpel preacht, which is the ſcepter of this kingdome, and all other parts are but attendants of that, See Mat. 3. c.

20. And when he was demanded of the Phariſees, [When the kingdome of God ſhould come, he anſwered them and ſaid, The kingdome of God cometh not with obſervation.

21. Neither ſhall they ſay, Loe here, or loe there, for behold the kingdome of God is within you.]

22. And turning to his diſciples, he tells them of theſe Phariſees, and other the like contemners of his preaching, that they that now deſpiſe this ſcepter of the kingdome, receive not the Goſpel, there ſhall come out againſt them that iron rod, deſtruction for this great ſinne, and then 'twill be too late for them to wiſh for theſe daies of mercy, which now they deſpiſe, and make no uſe of.

22. And he ſaid unto his diſciples, The daies will come, when ye ſhall deſire to ſee one of the daies of the ſon of man, and ye ſhall not ſee it.]

23. Then many ſhall put you in hopes of a deliverer, pretend that there is a Meſſias in this or that place, but doe not you follow nor heed any ſuch report, nor look for any ſuch deliverer. See Mat. 24. 25.

23. And they ſhall ſay to you, See here, or ſee there, goe not after them nor follow them.]

24. For a deſtruction ſhall come like lightning, quick and fearfull, upon the Jewes from the Romans in this day of Chriſt's vengeance upon his enemies. See note on Heb. 10. a.

24. For as the lightning that lighteth out of one part under heaven, ſhineth unto the other part under heaven, ſo ſhall alſo the ſon of man be in his day.]

25. But this ſhall not be till after Chriſt's being rejected and crucified by the Jewes.

25. But firſt muſt he ſuffer many things, and be rejected of this generation]

26, 27. And as it was in the old world, when for the great provocations thereof, God was pleaſed to ſend the flood upon it, without any viſible change, or omen, or præſignification of the particular time, Mat. 24. 36. (only Noah preaching repentance to them, and they not hearkning to him, and then his building an ark, and going into it with his family) no man expecting it, the flood came and ſwept away all but thoſe in the ark, ſo ſhall it be, when Chriſt comes to work his revenge upon his crucifiers, when they expect it not at all, as ſoon as ever a courſe is taken for preſerving the faithfull from the deſtruction (ſee note on Mat. 24. 9. and Rev. 7. 3.) the vengeance ſhall light upon the reſt, and deſtroy all that are left in Jeruſalem. And that is all the foreknowledge of the time you ſhall have in anſwer to your queſtion, ver. 20.

26. And as it was in the daies of Noe, ſo ſhall it be alſo in the daies of the ſon of man.

27. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, untill the day that Noe entred into the ark, and the flood came, and devoured them all.]

28, 29, 30. And as when the ſins of Sodome were filled up, and their crie was gone up to heaven, and God determined to deſtroy them, The people went on in their ordinary courſe, doing all things according to their wont, and then on that very day when Lot went out of Sodome, the fire and brimſtone fell on that city; So as ſoon as the faithfull penitent Chriſtians depart out of Jeruſalem, that fatall day ſhall come upon the reſt, that day, I ſay, wherein Chriſt ſhall reveal himſelf by his judgments on his enemies and crucifiers, (ſee note on Heb. 10. a.)

28. Likewiſe alſo as it was in the daies of Lot, they did eat, they drank, they bought, they ſold, they planted, they builded.

29. But the ſame day that Lot went out of Sodome, it rained fire and brimſtone from heaven, and deſtroyed them all.

30. Even thus ſhall it be in the day when the ſon of man is revealed.

31. When thus you ſee judgment break out, let every man then that is in Judæa, make all poſſible ſpeed to get out of it, as Lot and his family did out of Sodome.

31. In that day he that ſhall be upon the houſe top, and his ſtuffe in the houſe, let him not come down to take it away, and he that is in the field, let him likewiſe not return back.]

32. And the leaſt delay or ſtop in the courſe, all inclinations of kindneſſe to the ſinnes or company of that place, may be as fatall to any, as 'twas to Lot's wife, who looking back became a pillar of ſalt, Gen. 19. 26.

32. Remember Lot's wife.]

33. He that ſhall take any unchriſtian courſe of compliance (as the Gnoſtick Chriſtians did afterwards with the Jewes, to eſcape their perſecutions) be undoubtedly ſhall periſh in it, and he that being a diſciple of mine, ſhall for the teſtimony of my truth cheerfully and courageouſly venture death, is the only perſon that ſhall eſcape this judgment, (See note on 1 Pet. 1. c.)

33. Whoſoever ſhall ſeek to ſave his life, ſhall loſe it, and whoſoever ſhall loſe his life ſhall [b] preſerve it.]

b.

34. Then ſhall it not be in the power of any worldly providence to work any deliverance for any, but as in Sodome an Angel came and took Lot by the hand and led him out, preſerved him, when many others wer left behind, ſo ſhall it be now, Thoſe whom God will thus pleaſe to ſeale Rev. 7. 3. and preſerve, the beleivers and conſtant profeſſors, thoſe ſhall be delivered and none elſe.

34. I tell you, In that night there ſhall be two men in one bed, the one ſhall be taken and the other left.]

35. Two women ſhall be grinding together, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.

36. Two

36. Two men ſhall be in the field, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.

37. And they [anſwered and ſaid unto him, Where Lord?] And he ſaid unto them, Whereſoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together. 37. ſaid, If we may not know the time when, yet Lord, where ſhall theſe eminent judgments ſhew themſelves? See note on Mat. 24. m.

Notes on Chap. XVII.

2. ἄχρηος What is meant by ἀχρεῖος δοῦλος, unprofitable ſervant, will be matter of ſome queſtion, becauſe of the ſomewhat diſtant character ſet upon it, Mat. 25.30. There he is to be caſt into utter darkneſs, his unprofitableneſſe is a damning ſinne, expreſſed alſo by wickedneſſe and ſlothfulneſſe, but here they that have done all that is commanded (which ſure is not a ſtate of ſo much danger) muſt yet call themſelves unprofitable ſervants, becauſe they have done no more then ſo, have done nothing for which they ſhould be thanked or rewarded above ordinary, v.9. To this 'twere anſwer ſufficient, to ſay, that the ſame word is often uſed in ſeverall notions, ſometimes in a ſtricter (for barely not-profitable,) ὑπερβάλλωσ ſometimes in a larger ſenſe. Thus ἀχρεῖος might ſeem to be uſed Pſal. 14. 3. and from thence Rom. 3.12.(ſee note on Rom. 1. g.) for all kind of impiety (as ἄνομος is ſometimes he that lives not exactly according to law, ſometimes the moſt wicked, lawleſs perſon)but that word in that place muſt be underſtood according to the notion of the Hebrew there, which ſignifies putrid, or ſtinking, which is therefore uſeleſſe, good for nothing,as rotten, Eph. 4.29. is oppoſed to good for uſe. Beſide this therefore, there may be yet a farther account given of the word in that of Mat. 25. thus, The phraſe ἀχρεῖος δοῦλος ſignifies a ſervant that brings in no profit to his Maſter, Now according as the office or employment of this ſervant is, ſo this will have more or leſſe of guilt in it, he whoſe office or ſervice conſiſts in trafficking for his Maſter, to whom 'tis under precept (as it was in that ſervant, Mat. 25. he had been commanded by his Maſter to trade with his talent, *Lu.*19.13. and from thence an obligation lay upon him, he ought to have put the money to the exchangers, *Mat.*25.27.) his not bringing in profit is downright diſobedience, and accordingly as he is call'd unprofitable in one place, v. 30. ſo he is formerly by the ſame Evangeliſt ſtyled wicked and ſlothfull, v.27.which he could not have been, if he had done all that was required of him. And ſo though a bare unprofitableneſſe founded in a performance of all that was commanded (as here it was) bring not utter darkneſſe upon the ſervant, but only deprive him of thanks, or reward above wages, v. 9. yet when that unprofitableneſſe is inſeparable from direct breach of precept, as there it appears to be, there it moſt juſtly brings that ſevere ſentence upon the unprofitable. This difference then (which is but extrinſecall, and accidental to the nature of the word) being acknowledged, and ſo giving the account, why the unprofitable in one place ſhould be under a greater guilt, then in the other, in all other reſpects the notion will be the ſame in both places. There 'tis ſet to ſignifie him, who had brought in no profit to his Maſter, made not uſe of his abilities, v.15. to improve the talent committed to him. And agreeably ſo it muſt ſignifie here. For two ſorts of ſervices are here taken notice of, One that which is the particular task for which he is hired, as ploughing, feeding cattel, v.7. another, which though it be not named or ſpecified to him, or indented for at his entring into the ſervice, yet belongs to every one, what office ſoever he is in, (as he is a ſervant) viz: bringing in meat, waiting upon his maſter at table, v. 8. This Ariſtotle in his Politicks names among the ἐγκύκλια διακονήματα, thoſe ſervices that belong to every ſervant (as the ἐγκύκλια μαθήματα are Grammar, Muſick Exerciſes, which belong to all young men, whatſoever faculty they apply themſelves to.) Parallel to this, what ſervices are of this kind, though they be not ſpecified, or indented for by name, they are yet in all reaſon, and by obligation of obedience and ſervice to his Maſter, to be performed by him, and he that neglects or refuſes to perform them, doth not perform the duty of a ſervant, and for ſuch neglect deſerves ſtripes, where the maſter hath that power over ſervants (as in Chriſts ſpeeches he is ſuppoſed to have, he ſhall be beaten with many or with few ſtripes] which may be the reaſon that among the Jewes there is no law given for the obedience of ſervants to Maſters, becauſe the Maſters could by puniſhments enforce that themſelves.) But then when all this is performed, this is little for the commendation of a ſervant, neither thanks, nor reward extraordinary are due to him for this. It muſt be remembred, what Seneca hath obſerved, that the ſervant is humilis amicus, a lower ſort of friend, that is to tend and conſider his Maſters good, and to contrive what may moſt tend to it, and perform it upon occaſions, Exiguum eſt ad legem bonum eſſe, ſaith he, It is a petty ſmall thing to doe no more then he is commanded to doe, that is the meaning of [τὰ διατεταγμένα, and τὰ ὀφειλόμενα ποιῆσαι] here, doing what is commanded, nothing but ſtrict duty, what he is obliged to, as a ſervant. The profitable or uſefull ſervant doth more then ſo, whatever he ſees will tend to his Maſters advantage, he doth it of his own accord, and he that doth not, though he have broken no precept, is yet to acknowledge himſelf unprofitable. And this notion of the unprofitable ſervant belongs fitly to this place, where. I ſuppoſe, Chriſt ſpeaketh of the unfaithfulneſſe of the diſciples, who contented themſelves with calling the name of Jeſus over the Epileptick, and when that would not doe, did not proceed to faſting and praying (which means would have enabled them to cure him) and now come and deſire Chriſt to encreaſe their faith, v.5. i. e. their power of working miracles, when (as he tells them) if they would doe their duty in all parts, as becomes ſervants to doe, i.e. faſt and pray, when need required, uſe the proper and neceſſary means toward the end, they would be able to doe what miracle they pleaſed. And this is but duty, ſaith Chriſt, the doing of it they muſt not look on, as ſupererogating virtue, but as that to which they are ſtrictly obliged, and which, though it be not commanded to all, yet being ing a means neceſſary to an end, is, by interpretation, commanded to all them to whom that end is commanded, and ſo to them who were commanded to cure diſeaſes &c. *Mat.*10.8. For 'tis ordinarily ſaid that there are two ſorts of neceſſaries, 1. thoſe things that are ſo neceſſitate præcepti, by neceſſity of precept, or becauſe they are commanded: 2. others neceſſitate medii, neceſſary as means, without which I cannot doe that ſervice, which is required of me; And ſo was this of faſting and praying to the caſting out of ſome devils (the Apoſtles task at that time, part of their office) and as they that doe not this, faile much of their duty, and have no reaſon to expect that God will ſupply them, enable them farther to doe that work without uſe of that means, ſo they that doe it, have little reaſon to expect any thanks for it, which is the adæquate importance of this place.

b. * See Theophylatt: Simeons: ζωογονῆν Zωογονῆν the word here uſed hath a ſpeciall ſignificancy in * Greek authors, oppoſite to ἀποκτεῖναι: As the latter belongs to thoſe creatures, which bring forth egges firſt, and then, after ſome time, living creatures, ſo the former belongs to all other creatures, which bring forth alive at firſt. And this might have not only a commodious, but elegant ſenſe in this place, thus, that they that die and loſe their lives for Chriſt's ſake, ſhall immediately, without any intervall of the ψυχοπαννυχία ſleeping of the ſoule, in death, bring forth a new life unto all æternity. But perhaps it may be unfit to affix this critical notion of the word in humane writers to this of S. Luke, and if we judge by the uſe of the word in the Greek of the Old Teſtament, which hath a greater concent and ſympathy with the writers of the New Teſtament, then any other ſort of books, ζωογονῆν will ſignifie no more then σῴζειν to ſave or preſerve, for ſo it is uſed Exod. 1. 17. 18. 22. And then the meaning of the verſe will be, that he that ſhall uſe any crafty means of policy at that time to ſave his life, it ſhall probably prove unſucceſsfull to him, when he that intruſts himſelf and his life to Gods providence and direction, and ſo doth endanger the loſing of it, ſhall be more likely to ſave it, then any other.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XVIII.

1. to be conſtant and diligent in the a. performance of the duty of prayer, not only in reſpect of God, to whom it is a duty, but in reſpect of themſelves, whoſe petitions are by aſſiduity moſt likely to be obtained,

1. AND he ſpake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought [alwaies to pray and not * to a faint,] * be ſlothfull,

2. an unjuſt and harſh judge, which neither was moved with conſcience of duty to God, nor remorſe, or compaſſion to any.

2. Saying, There was in a city [a judge, which feared not God, neither regarded man.]

3. Doe me juſtice againſt

4. delayed to doe it.

3. And there was a widow in that city, and ſhe came unto him, ſaying, [Avenge me of] my adverſary.

4. And he [would not for a while.] But afterward he ſaid within himſelf, Though I feare not God, nor regard man,

5. leſt her coming ſo continually for juſtice be a reproach to me, and a teſtimony before others of my injuſtice to her, and ſo be matter of ſhame to me, if I deny her; or, leſt at laſt ſhe fall a reproaching me, caſting contumelious words upon me. b.

5. Yet becauſe this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, [leſt * by her continuall coming ſhe b weary me.] * coming to me, at the laſt ſhe reproach me.

6. And the Lord ſaid, Heare what the unjuſt judge ſaith.

7. doe juſtice for his elect whoſe conſtant prayers importune him to it, and ſhall he not doe it ſpeedily? c.

7. And ſhall not God [avenge his own elect, which crie day and night unto * him, c though he bear long with them?] * him? and is he ſlack toward them?

8 Yea certainly he will ſuddenly proceed againſt their perſecutors, and when he doth ſo, it will fall very heavy upon the Jewes: For when Chriſt comes to doe vengeance, there ſhall be very few Chriſtians to be found in Judæa (ſee note on Mat.24.b.) they that are converted of the Jewes, ſhall be gone out, and diſperſed among the Gentiles, See note on Mat.24. g.

8. I tell you that he will avenge them ſpeedily. Nevertheleſſe when the ſon of man cometh, ſhall he find faith * upon the earth?] * on the land? ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς

9. which had a great opinion of their own perfections, and ſo lookt on all others with ſcorn.

9. And he ſpake this parable unto certain, which [truſted in themſelves that they were righteous, and deſpiſed others.]

10. In the Temple there are two courts, one for the Jewes, the other for the Gentile-proſelytes that lived among them, (ſee note on Epheſ.2.a.) and to thoſe two went up, to the firſt a Phariſee, to the ſecond a Publican, to pray.

10. Two men went up into the Temple to pray, the one a Phariſee, and the other a Publican.]

11. And no perſon being preſent to either but God, to overhear them, the Phariſees words were theſe,

11. The Phariſee ſtood and prayed thus with himſelf,] God, I thank thee that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjuſt, adulterers, or even as this Publican.

12. I faſt every munday and thurſday, the ſecond and fift daies of every week, on which we are wont to hear the Law read in our Synagogues, and I pay tithes of herbs and every thing which others make doubt (it being not determined by law) whether they are to be paid or no.

12. I faſt twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I poſſeſſe.]

13. being in the court of the Gentiles, was in a ſad humble penſive guiſe, and by his geſture and action expreſt a wonderfull great contrition and indignation againſt himſelf for what he had done, and uſed this affectionate form of confeſſion, and deprecation,

13. And the Publican [ſtanding afarre off, would not lift up ſo much as his eyes to heaven, but ſmote upon his breaſt,] ſaying, God be mercifull to me a ſinner.

14. I

14. I tell you, [This man went down to his houſe juſtified, rather then the other; For] every one that exalteth himſelf ſhall be abaſed, and he that humbleth himſelf ſhall be exalted.

14. This mans meanand lowly opinion of himſelf, was more acceptable in the ſight of God, together with his confeſſion and contrition, then all the Phariſees good actions, his exact faſting, and paying of tithes, being accompanied with that high and arrogant opinion of himſelf; For &c. Mat. 23. 12.

15. And they brought unto him alſo infants, that he would touch them; But when the diſciples ſaw it, they rebuked [them.]

15. thoſe that brought them, Mar. 10. 13.

16. But Jeſus called them unto him, and ſaid, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for [of ſuch is the kingdome of God.]

16. theſe are of that temper of humility and meekneſſe, which is ſo neceſſary an ingredient in a Chriſtian, Mar. 10. 14.

17. Verily I ſay unto you, [Whoſoever ſhall not receive the kingdome of God as a little child, ſhall in no wiſe enter therein.]

17. There is no admiſſion or reception to Chriſtianity for any but ſuch.

18. And a certain ruler asked him, ſaying, Good maſter, what ſhall I doe to inherit eternall life?

Mat. 19. 20. Mar. 10. 17.

19. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Why calleſt thou me good? none is good ſave one, that is, God.

Mar. 10. 18.

20. Thou knoweſt the commandements, Doe not commit adultery, Doe not kill, Doe not ſteal, Doe not bear falſe witneſſe, Honour thy father and thy mother.

21. And he ſaid, All theſe have I kept from my youth up.

22. Now when Jeſus heard theſe things, he ſaid unto him, Yet lackeſt thou one thing, ſell all that thou haſt and diſtribute to the poor, and thou ſhalt have treaſure in heaven, and come, follow me.

Mar. 10. 21.

23. And when he heard this, he was very ſorrowfull, for he was very rich.

24. And when Jeſus ſaw that he was very ſorrowfull, he ſaid, How hardly ſhall they that have riches [enter into the kingdome of God?]

24. follow me, and become Chriſtians, and attain everlaſting felicity?

25. For it is eaſier for a camel to goe through a needles eye, then for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of God.]

25. There is nothing of more difficulty imaginable.

26. And they that heard it, ſaid, [Who then can be ſaved?]

26. Who is able to receive this ſevere doctrine, to be a Chriſtian, and attain bliſſe upon theſe terms, to enter on this ſtrict courſe, to be a ſubject of Chriſts, who requires ſuch tasks of his diſciples?

27. And he ſaid,] The things which are impoſſible with men, are poſſible with God.

27. But he ſaid &c. See Mat. 19. 26.

28. Then Peter ſaid, Loe we have left all and followed thee.

29. And he ſaid unto them, There is no man that hath left houſe, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children for the kingdome of Gods ſake,

Mat. 19. 29.

30. Who ſhall not receive [manifold more in this preſent time,] and in the world to come life everlaſting.

30. a moſt plentifull return of advantages (as rich as any the moſt fruitfull ſeaſon produceth) in this world, abſtracted from thoſe which he ſhall receive hereafter in heaven.

31. Then he took unto him the twelve, and ſaid unto them, Behold, we goe up to Jeruſalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the ſon of man ſhall be accompliſhed.

Mat. 20. 18.

32. For he ſhall be deliver'd unto the Gentiles, and ſhall be mocked, and ſpightfully intreated and ſpit on.

33. And they ſhall ſcourge him and put him to death, and the third day he ſhall riſe again.

34. And they underſtood none of theſe things, and this ſaying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were ſpoken.]

34. And they did not in any manner underſtand what he meant by thoſe words.

35. And it came to paſſe, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, [a certain blind man,] ſat by the way ſide begging.

35. two blind men, Mat. 20. 3.

36. And hearing the multitude paſſe by, he asked what it meant.

37. And they told him that Jeſus of Nazareth paſſeth by.

38. And he cried, ſaying, Jeſus thou ſon of David, have mercy on me.

39. And they which went * before rebuked him, that he ſhould] hold his peace; but he cried ſo much the more, Thou ſon of David have mercy on me.

* or, by the Kings MS. reads suppoſe.

39. And the multitude that went along or attended him, chid him, and bid him

40. And Jeſus ſtood and commanded him to be brought unto him; and when he was come neer, he asked him,

41. Saying, What wilt thou that I ſhall doe unto thee? And he ſaid, Lord that I may receive my ſight.

* made thee whole, Ciruſi Cs.

42. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, [Receive thy ſight, thy faith hath * ſaved thee.]

42. thy faith expreſt v. 41. is rewarded by this cure, thy ſight ſhall be reſtored to thee by this word of mine.

43. And immediately he received his ſight, and followed him, glorifying God, and all the people, when they ſaw it, gave praiſe unto God.

a. Ἐκκακεῖν] Μὴ ἐκκακεῖν here, is to be explained by Heſychius and Phavorinus, who have jointly, the one out of the other, theſe words, ἐκκακῶμεν (not as the printed copies of both authors corruptly read it, ἐχμακῶμεν, ἐκκδιῶμεν, but, as 'tis clear it muſt be mended) ἀμελῶμεν, ἀκκδιῶμεν, by which 'tis clear, that the word ſignifies negligence or careleſneſs. The other rendrings of the word by non defatigari and non deficere, ſeem to be grounded on a conjecture that the reading ſhould be ἐκκμῶμεν, whereas the Manuſcripts agree in this other reading, and the importance of the parable is very well ſatisfied with it, which is to ſtirre us up to diligence and importunity in prayer, πρὸς τὸ πάντοτε, to pray at all times, anſwerable to which is ἐπιμένειν εἰς τέλος in the parable v. 5. i. e. coming perpetually, conſtantly (according to the importance of the Hebrew נצח ſee note b.) and therefore the Syriack here reads, coming at all times, i.e. never to omit the conſtant, frequent, ſet houres of performing this duty. So likewiſe 2 Cor. 4. 1. Having this miniſtry, this office intruſted to us, οὐκ ἐκκακοῦμεν, we are not ſlothfull or negligent in it; So Gal. 6. 9. When we are a doing good, μὴ ἐκκακῶμεν, let us not be ſlothfull, but as men that have a ſure reward in their eye. &c. And in the ſame matter 2 Theſſ. 3. 13. μὴ ἐκκακήσητε καλοποιοῦντες, be ye not negligent in doing good, onely it is to be obſerved, that as κακὸς in Greek ſignifying ſometimes an idle, ſluggiſh, baſe perſon, (and ſo ignavus, a ſlothfull perſon, in Latine) is alſo a fearfull, puſillanimous, cowardly perſon, ſo ἐκκακεῖν in ſome places being, by the context concerning afflictions, determin'd to it, ſignifies to be diſcouraged, to play the coward. So 2 Cor. 4. 16. when, upon the conſideration of the afflictions which attend the preaching of the Goſpel, he yet reſolves that the gain, which they are to receive by it, is more then the loſſe of life it ſelf to him, and thereupon, contrary to all diſcouragements οὐκ ἐκκακοῦμεν, we are not afraid or diſcouraged, for if our outward man be deſtroyed, if we ſhould ſuffer any affliction even to death it ſelf, yet &c. So Epheſ. 3. 13. Wherefore I beſeech you μὴ ἐκκακεῖν ἐν ταῖς θλίψεσί μου ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν, not to be diſcouraged, or afraid, or diſheartened in your Chriſtian courſe, on occaſion of my afflictions ſuffered for you, for this (viz: that I ſuffer for you) is your glory, matter of incitement, not of diſcouragement to you. And theſe are all the places, where the word is uſed in the New Teſtament.

b. Ὑπωπιάζῃ] The word ὑπωπιάζειν is twice uſed in the New Teſtament, here and 1 Cor. 9. 27. It is an agoniſticall word in the firſt uſe of it, belonging to the πυκτὴ or cuffers, which was one of the Gracian exerciſes, or to the πανκρατιαστὴ, which was a mixt exerciſe, made up of cuffing and wreſtling together, and is the thing referr'd to, in that place to the Corinthians, among whom the Iſthmii agones (one of the four ſorts of them in Greece) were celebrated. Now the word coming not from ὑπὸ and πέζω (as, againſt all analogie, ſome would have it) but from ὑπωπιον, and that from ὑπὸ and ὤψ, a lividneſs or blewneſs under the eyes, or on the face, and that ſuch, as is cauſed by blowes, ſignifies diſtinctly to ſtrike in the face, with the fiſt, or with caſtus, which they uſed in their hands, to cuffe with, and ſo as the word δαλαζονεῖν to get the adverſary under him, belongs there to wreſtling, ſo this ὑπωπιάζειν to cuffing, and both together make up the πανκρατιον (the exercciſe ſo called from πᾶν and κράτος as requiring all ſtrength, to the uſing of it) which, ſaith * S^t Chryſoſtome, the Apoſtle reſerres to there. From this agoniſticall uſe of the word ὑπωπιον, and ὑπωπιάζειν, another there is, which is gotten into common uſe for reprbaching or putting any man to ſhame, that blewneſs under the eyes, or on the face being a viſible mark of being beaten; And thus as the Latine ſuggillatio, ſo this Greek word is uſed among the Latines, Conſulatus Auli, ſaith Cicero, non tam Conſulatus eſt, quàm Magni noſtri hypopion, His Conſulſhip is a meer contumely or reproach to Pompey who made him Conſul. So in Nilus ἀνεκδ. Narr. 6. ſpeaking of the valiant expreſſions of a gallant woman, he ſaith ταῦτα δὲ ἐδέξατο ὑπώπια, that he received them as contumelies & upbraidings of his own impatience. And thus the word is to be taken in this place, either, Leſt her continuall coming ſhame me, or, Leſt ſhe coming ſo oft, at laſt let looſe her tongue to contumelies and railings at me. But the former is the moſt proper ſenſe, moſt agreeable to the acception of εἰς τέλος in the ſacred dialect (being the Greek of נצח, which Pſ. 4. 1. & 13. 1. and 75. 5. and 103. 9. is rendred εἰς τὸ τέλος, and ſignifies that thoſe Pſalmes were not for any peculiar, but continuall uſe, and ſo 1 Theſ. 2. 16. ſignifies long duration or continuance, and is ordinarily rendred for-ever) and anſwerable exactly to the deſigne of the parable, ſet down v. 1. that we ought to pray πάντοτε, and that by doing ſo, we ſhould make God aſhamed (as it were) to deny or caſt off our importunity. Hence it is that the fathers in their prayers and ſpeeches to God, uſe the phraſe, ὑπωπιῶ σε, I put thee to ſhame, to wit, by continuall importuning. Σὲ ὑπωπιῶ ὁ μόνος ἀγαθὸς, in S^t Baſils Liturgie, I put thee to ſhame, thou that art the only good, So in the Pſaltery of the Greeks, in which there are ſo many prayers mixt, Οἶδα σὲ, Κύριε, εἰ μὴ ὑπωπιῶ ἀπὸ τῆς ἰδίας ἀγαθότητός σου, οὐκ ἔλαιος &c. Unleſſe, O Lord, thy goodneſs put thee to ſhame, i.e. extorted this from thee; Which expreſſion of theirs, as it referres without all doubt to this of S^t Luke, and is but another way of paraphraſing Gods being wrought on by way of importunity, ſo it is a clear evidence of the truth of what hath been ſaid, of the notion and importance of this word [ὑπωπιάζω] in this place.

c. Μακροθυμεῖ ἐπ' αὐτοῖς

The meaning of μακροθυμεῖν ἐπ' αὐτοῖς here is beſt found by comparing the verſe with Eccluſ. 35. 19. where ſpeaking of God, Ποιῶν κρίσιν, ſaith he, καὶ ὁ μὲ δυνατὸς, ὡς ὁ μὲ μακροθυμῶν ἐπ' αὐτοῖς ὁ χρόνος, The mighty one will execute judgment, and will not delay, nor be ſlack toward them. So μακροθυμία, patience, or long ſufferance ſignifies ſlackneſs in puniſhment, or deferring of it. And ſo that verſe there, is but a paraphraſe of this, The difference is 1. that this is by way of interrogation, which, we know, ſerves only to increaſe the force of the affirmation, and 2. that μακροθυμῶν in the cloſe is in the participle, which, though it be eaſily ſupplied with the verb ἐστὶ, ordinarily underſtood, yet in very ancient copies, as that moſt ancient one in the Kings Library, and ſo in that which S^t Chryſoſtome and the ancient Tranſlator, and alſo the Syriack

* ὁ γὰρ ἀγωνιστὴς ὑπωπιάζει τὸν ἀντίπαλον, &c.

Syriack and Arabick made uſe of, it is read μακροθυμεῖ; And ſo the ſenſe is complete —Doth he delay? or, Is he ſlack toward them? or in doing juſtice to them? Certainly he ſhall not. The occaſion of Chriſt's ſaying this in this place, may ſeem to be, to take off the great ſtumbling block from the diſciples, or converted Jewes, who as yet ſaw nothing but afflictions toward themſelves and Chriſt, were perſecuted for Chriſtianity, whereas the Jewes that held out againſt Chriſt, continued proſperous in it; To theſe our Saviour both here, and ch. 21. 28. gives aſſurance that an heavy vengeance ſhall light upon this nation, that it ſhall be utterly laid waſt, that the Jewiſh religion (which, as long as it laſted, ſeemed a great prejudice againſt the faith and doctrine of Chriſt) ſhall be deſtroyed, that the perſecuted beleivers ſhall be delivered, and that this ſhould ſuddenly come to paſſe, within the age of ſome that then lived, Mat. 16. 28. Mat. 26. 64. and Joh. 21. 22. To the ſame purpoſe it is, that the Apoſtles in their Epiſtles, when they ſpeak to theſe converted Jewes, ſcattered abroad upon the perſecution in Judea, doe very frequently mention the ſuddenneſs and certainty of this vengeance on the Jewes, and deſtruction of their Temple and worſhip, as an argument of great force to keep thoſe converts in their faith, who, as long as the Temple ſtood, and the ſacrifice continued, were oft tempted to doubt, which was the truer religion, the Chriſtian, or that of the Jews. So we find S. Paul preſſing it Rom. 13. 11. knowing ὁ καιρὸν, this great ſeaſon, this famous time foretold of, wherein they were to be reſcued from their perſecutors, and to their Corneia (the ſame that was mention'd Mat. 10. 22. ſee note f.) neerer then when they firſt beleived, or were converted to the faith. And again ἡμὲρα ἤγγικε, this day was nigh at hand, and therefore they ſhould keep cloſe to all Chriſtian practiſe; ſo Jam. 5. having denounced the woes then neer approaching upon the Apoſtatizing Gnoſticks (who to preſerve their worldly tranquillity, complied with the Jewes, and joyned with them in perſecuting the Orthodox Chriſtians) v. 1. &c. and the cries of the oppreſſed and perſecuted (that is of the ἐκλεκτοὶ βοῶντες the elect crying here) v. 4. he then comforts the beleivers v. 7. by this argument, v. 8. that this παρουσία τῦ Κυρίυ ἤγγικε this coming of the Lord (the very ſame that is here v. 8.) was now cloſe at hand, and that explained by [ὁ κριτὴς πρὸ τῶν θυρῶν ἕστηκεν, the judge ſtanding at the dore] which ſhews that he will ἐκδικῆσαι ἐν τάχει, as it is in this verſe, avenge the ſufferers, the beleivers ſpeedily. The ſame argument is preſſed by S. Peter (who, as S. James, c. 1. 1. wrote to thoſe of the diſperſion, i. e. to the converted Jewes ſcattered in other nations, upon their being perſecuted out of Judea.) 1 Pet. 4. 7. The end of all things (i. e. of the Jewiſh ſacrifices, and all their legal ceremonies, and the temple, and people) is at hand, though Mat. 24. 6. it was ſaid, that it is not yet. So 1 Joh. 2. 18. It is the laſt houre, and therefore it follows, that as you have heard, Mat. 24. 5. that many counterfeit Chriſts ſhould come (before that finall deſtruction of Jeruſalem) ſo, ſaith he, 'tis now, by which we know 'tis the laſt hour. So Heb. 10. 25. when men were ſo ſcandalized at the prevailing of the unbeleivers, and perſecuting of the Chriſtian faith, that they neglected their aſſembling together, gave off their publick meetings, he then rouzeth them to ſtirre up one another to the carefull performance of that neglected duty, by their ſeeing ἐγγίζον τὴν ἡμέραν, that this day of vengeance (ſo called Lu. 21. 22.) upon that nation and people) was now very neer at hand. All which, if (when 'tis then ſaid to approach, and to be at the dore) it belonged to the day of judgment, (now, after ſo many hundred years, not yet come) what a μακροθυμία were this? what a delaying of his coming, and conſequently what an objection againſt the truth of Chriſtian religion? As Mahomet having promiſed after his death he would preſently return to life again, and having not perform'd his promiſe in a thouſand yeares, is by us juſtly condemned for an impoſtor, ſee Mat. 24. 34.

CHAP. XIX.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND Jeſus entred, and paſſed through Jericho.

2. And, behold, there was a man named Zacchæus, which was the chief among the Publicans, and he was rich.

3. And he ſought to ſee Jeſus who he was,] and could not for the preaſe, becauſe he was little of ſtature.

3. And he was very deſirous to ſee the perſon of Jeſus, having no farther deſigne, or thought at the preſent, but that, ver. 4.

4. And he ran before, and climbed up into a ſycomore tree to ſee him, for he was to paſſe that way.

5. And when Jeſus came to the place, he looked up, and ſaw him, and ſaid unto him, Zacchæus, make haſte and come down, for to day [I muſt abide at thy houſe.]

5. I mean to be entertained by thee.

6. And he made haſte and came down, and * received him joyfully.

* entertain'd him rejoicing, ὑπεδέξατο χαίρων

7. And when they ſaw it, they all murmured, ſaying, That he was gone to be [gueſt with a man, that is a ſinner.]

7. entertained in an heathen's, or, Publican's houſe.

8. And Zacchæus ſtood and ſaid unto the Lord, Behold Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have * taken any thing from any man by falſe accuſation, I reſtore him fourfold.]

* wronged any man,

8. And whileſt Chriſt was there, Zacchæus made this ſpeech unto him, Sir, half my wealth I beſtow upon the poor, and whomſoever I have defrauded (ſee note on c. 3. c.) or, as a Publican, exacted more from them, then was due, I will, according to the law for theeves, make a fourfold reſtitution.

9. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, This day is ſalvation come to this houſe, for ſo much as he alſo is the ſon of Abraham.]

9. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, This day repentance, repentance, and ſo the Goſpel, and the mercies of the Goſpel are come home to Zaccheus, as being a beleiver, and ſo one (though a Publican) to whom the promiſes, made to the ſeed of Abraham, doe belong.

10. His being an heathen or Publican, or a ſinner in his former life, doth not render him uncapable of receiving benefit from me, but contrariwiſe gives him a capacity of it, upon his repentance, For this was the end of my coming to reduce ſinners to repentance, and to obtain mercy for ſuch, Mat. 18. 11.

10. For the ſon of man is come to ſeek and to ſave that which was loſt.]

11,12. And at this time, or not long after, being now not farre from Jeruſalem, the chief city of the Jewes, and ſo the palace or royall city, and upon occaſion of their thinking, that he would ſhortly take upon him a regall authority, (chap. 17. 20.) and that that would be at Jeruſalem, he ſpake this parable unto them, A certain man born heir to a kingdome, took a great journey to take poſſeſſion of it (hereby intimating of himſelf, that he was to ſuffer, and riſe, and goe to heaven, ſo to be inſtalled in his kingdome) and then to return again in an eminent manner to ſhew himſelf among his countrey-men, where he was born, and over whom he was to reign.

11. And as they heard theſe things, he added, and ſpake a parable, becauſe he was nigh to Jeruſalem, and becauſe they thought that the kingdome of God ſhould immediately appear.

12. He ſaid therefore, * A certain noble man went into a farre countrey to receive for himſelf a kingdome, and to return.]

* a certain man of high birth, ἐυγενὴς τις ἄνθρωπος

13. And having ſeveral ſervants, he gave each of them a ſtock of mony to traffick with in his abſence, commanding them to improve it to his beſt advantage, that he might receive the benefit of it when he returned, (noting that the Apoſtles were after his departure to preach to the Jewes, gain as many of them, as they could, goe through all their cities, before Chriſt ſhould thus come, and ſhew himſelf in that regall illuſtrious manner upon them, and ſo likewiſe that all other inferior Chriſtians were, and are to imploy their diligence and induſtry, according to their talents, to bring in ſome encreaſe unto God.)

13. And he called his ten ſervants, and delivered them ten pounds, and ſaid unto them, Occupy untill I come.]

14. But thoſe his countrey-men, over whom he was to reign, and was now only gone to be inſtalled or inthroned in his right, ſet themſelves contumaciouſly againſt him, and diſclaimed having him for their king, (noting the Jewes ſtanding out againſt the faith, as 'twas after his reſurrection preacht to them by the Apoſtles, ſee note on Mat. 24. b.)

14. But his citizens hated him, and ſent a meſſenger after him, ſaying, We will not have this man to reign over us.]

15. And when he came back again, after his inſtalment, to exerciſe his regall office among them, he firſt examined his ſervants what increaſe they had made, (noting the fruit that had come in, the harveſt or number of converts by the preaching of the Apoſtles over all Jewry.)

15. And it came to paſſe, that when he was returned, having received the kingdome, then he commanded theſe ſervants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.]

16. Then came the firſt, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17. improved theſe earthly commodities (ſee Lu. 16. 10.) thou ſhalt be more highly preferr'd, (noting the reward of the Apoſtles labour in preaching the Goſpel, 1. governing in the Churches, which they had planted, then reigning with Chriſt, enjoying an higher degree of glory, as they had laboured more abundantly.)

17. And he ſaid unto him, Well, thou good ſervant, becauſe thou haſt [been faithfull in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.]

18, 19. And the ſecond having imploy'd his time well, but not ſo well, was alſo rewarded proportionably.

18. And the ſecond came, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19. And he ſaid likewiſe unto him, Be thou alſo over five cities.]

20, 21. But a third out of a pretence of extraordinary fear of diſpleaſing, inſtead of imploying laid up his talent, (made no kind of uſe of the abilities that God had given him, lay idle, without ever endevouring to doe any thing that might bring in any glory to God.) And his ſloth, being the chief cauſe of his doing thus, made him (either really, or, to excuſe his ſloth, pretendedly) look upon it as a piece of auſterity and rigidneſſe in the Maſter (in Chriſt) to exact any fruit, any increaſe of his talents.

20. And another came, ſaying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21. For I feared thee, becauſe thou art an auſtere man, thou takeſt up that thou laidſt not down, and reapeſt that thou didſt not ſow.]

22. But this was farre from an excuſe of his unprofitableneſſe, 'twas rather an aggravation of it, and an acknowledgment, that would bear witneſſe againſt him, and condemn him, make his ſlothfulneſſe and unprofitableneſſe appear to be a ſinne againſt conſcience in him.

22. And he ſaith unto him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked ſervant, thou kneweſt that I was an auſtere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping what I did not ſow.]

23. For upon this acknowledgment, ſaith the Maſter, what poſſible reaſon can be given, why thou ſhouldſt not put my money into a bank amongſt the merchants, that it might have yeilded me ſome encreaſe at my return?

23. Wherefore then gaveſt thou not my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with uſury?]

24. The more unprofitable this man hath been, the fitter 'twill be to encreaſe the reward of him that hath been diligent, and ſucceſsfull.

24. And he ſaid unto them that ſtood by, [Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.]

25,26. And though that was conceived unequall by ſome, becauſe he had ſuch plenty already, yet the King adhered to his ſentence, upon this ground of his dealing with his ſervants by way of diſtributive juſtice, which conſiſts not in giving to all equall portions, but moſt to them that have done him moſt diligent, faithfull ſervice, and mulcting and puniſhing the unfaithfull, and idle perſon.

25. And they ſaid unto him, Lord he hath ten pounds.

26. For I ſay unto you, Unto every one that hath, ſhall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath ſhall be taken away from him.]

27. But

27. But thoſe mine enemies, that would not that I ſhould reign over them, bring hither, and ſlay them before me.]

27. But thoſe country-men of his (thoſe king by right he was) which, when he was gone to be installed in the kingdome, ſent him that contumacious anſwer, v. 14. (noting the Jewes that would not ſubmit to him upon the Apoſtles preaching the Goſpel after the reſurrection) being now inſtated in his throne, he preſently commanded to be put to the ſword, executed as ſo many rebels. (The fate that ſoon befell the Jewes, after his inauguration in his kingdome, i. e. his going to heaven.)

28. And when he had thus ſpoken, he went before, aſcending up to Jeruſalem.

29. And it came to paſſe, when he was come nigh to Bethphage, and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he ſent two diſciples, Mat. 21. 1.

30. Saying, Goe ye into the village over againſt you, in which at your entring ye ſhall find [a colt tied, whereon yet never man ſate, looſe him] and bring him hither.

30. an aſſe tied, and a foal with her, which was not yet backt, take the foal]

31. And if any man ask you, Why doe ye looſe him? Thus ye ſhall ſay unto him, Becauſe the Lord hath need of him.

32. And they that were ſent, went their way, and found even as he had ſaid unto them.

33. And as they were looſing the colt, the owners thereof ſaid unto them, Why looſe ye the colt?

34. And they ſaid, The Lord hath need of him.

35. And they brought him to Jeſus. And they caſt their garments upon the colt, and ſet Jeſus thereon. Mat. 21. 9.

36. And as he went, they ſpread their clothes in the way.

37. And when he was come nigh, even now at the deſcent of the mount of Olives, [the whole multitude of the diſciples] began to rejoice and praiſe God with a loud voice, for all the mighty works that they had ſeen,

37. all his followers that beleived and attended him

* Bleſſed in the name of the Lord be the king that cometh, Εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος βασιλεὺς ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου.

38. Saying, [* Bleſſed be the king that cometh in the name of the Lord, peace in heaven and glory in the higheſt.]

38. Hoſanna, or Save now (Mat. 21. 2.) we acknowledge thee to be our king ſo long expected, the Meſſias, (ſee note on Mat. 21. 2. and Mat. 21. 9.) God in heaven ſend all proſperity on this thy kingdome, And the loudeſt Hoſannaes or acclamations or confeſſions of his regality be made unto thee.

39. And ſome of the Phariſees from among the multitude ſaid unto him, Maſter, rebuke thy diſciples.

40. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, [I tell you, that if theſe ſhould hold their peace, the ſtones would immediately cry out.]

40. The thing is moſt true which they ſay, and if they ſhould join with you to ſmother it, it would by ſome other the unlikelieſt wales be proclaimed in deſpight of you.

41. And when he was come neer, he beheld the city, and wept over it:

42. Saying, [if thou hadſt known, even thou at leaſt in this thy day, the things which belong to thy peace, but now they are hidden from thine eyes]

41. O that thou alſo wouldſt (ſee c. 12. note c.) yet conſider and lay to heart, before it is too late, even in this critical time, what concerns thy future tranquillity and proſperity ſo much, But thou doſt not at all conſider it.

43. For the daies ſhall come upon thee, that thine enemies ſhall [a] caſt a trench about thee, and compaſſe thee round, and keep thee in on every ſide,

43, 44. And now what remains? why that within a while the Romans ſhould beſiege thee cloſe, and famiſh thee, and take

* daſh thee againſt the ground, ἐδαφιοῦσί σε.

44. And ſhall * lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and they ſhall not leave in thee one ſtone upon another, becauſe thou knoweſt not the time of thy viſitation.]

the city, and deſtroy all that are in it, and demoliſh the Temple utterly (ſee note on Mat. 24. a.) and all this by way of puniſhment for thy not conſidering what Chriſt hath by way of meſſage from God revealed to thee, i. e. for thy not repenting upon all his calls.

45. And he went into the Temple, and began to caſt out them that ſold therein, and them that bought, Mat. 21. 12.

46. Saying unto them, It is written, My houſe is the houſe of prayer, but ye have made it a den of theeves.

47. And he taught daily in the Temple. But [the chief prieſts and ſcribes, and the * chief of the people ſought to deſtroy him.]

47. The Sanhedrim ſat in conſultation how they might put him to death.

* rulers, ſee note on Joh. 1. c.

48. And could not find what they might doe, for all the people * were very attentive to hear him.]

48. And they could not reſolve on any ſafe courſe, becauſe the people were generally ſo affected to him.

* as they heard him, took his part, ἐξεπιμάτο αὐτοῦ ἀκούων. See note on Mat. 22. f.

Paraphraſe.

CHAP. XX.

1. he went into the Temple, and as he expounded the leſſon, came upon him with the elders,]

1. AND it came to paſſe that on one of thoſe daies, [as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the Goſpel, the chief prieſts and the ſcribes and on occaſion of that made known the Goſpel to the people (ſee Mat. 9. note l.) the Sanhedrim came to him,

Mat. 21. 23.

2. And ſpake unto him, ſaying, Tell us, By what authority doeſt thou theſe things? or who is he that gave thee this authority?

3. And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, I will alſo ask you one thing, and anſwer me.

See note on Mat. 21. c.

4. The Baptiſme of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5. And they reaſoned with themſelves, ſaying, If we ſhall ſay, From heaven, he will ſay, Why then beleived ye him not?

6. But and if we ſay, Of men, all the people will ſtone us: for they be perſwaded that John was a prophet.

7. And they anſwered, that they could not tell whence it was.

8. And Jeſus ſaid unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I doe theſe things.

9. And after a parable delivered by him, and ſet down, Mat. 21. 21. he added this other, Mat. 21. 28.

9. Then began he to ſpeak to the people this parable, A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen, and went into a farre countrey for a long time.]

A certain man that had a family, planted a vineyard, and did all that was neceſſary to that turn, fenced it with a good ſtrong mound, hewed a trough to preſſe the grapes in, and built a lodge for the keeper of it, and then let it out to farmers at a rent, and himſelf travailed for a time, (noting the care and proviſion God had made for the Church of the Jewes, Iſa. 5. which made him a ſtrange return for all this, killed his prophets, (which called for fruits of good life from them,) and at laſt his ſon Chriſt Jeſus himſelf.)

10. pay him that rent, which his vineyard was to yeild him,

10. And at the ſeaſon he ſent a ſervant to the husbandmen, that they ſhould [give him of the fruit of the vineyard,] but the husbandmen beat him, and ſent him away empty.

11. And again he ſent another ſervant, and they beat him alſo, and intreated him ſhamefully, and ſent him away empty.

12. And again he ſent the third, and they wounded him alſo, and caſt him out.

13. Then ſaid the Lord of the vineyard, What ſhall I doe? I will ſend my beloved ſon, it may be they will reverence him when they ſee him.

14. and ſeiſe on his inheritance, as our own, of which we have already the poſſeſſion, Mat. 21. 38.

14 But when the husbandmen ſaw him, they reaſoned among themſelves, ſaying, This is the heire, come, let us kill him, [that the inheritance may be ours.]

15. So they caſt him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What therefore ſhall the Lord of the vineyard doe unto them?

16. They of the Sanhedrim anſwered with joynt conſent, Mat. 21. 41. He will (as tis in any reaſon to be expected) come and deſtroy thoſe husbandmen, and diſpoſe the vineyard into other hands. Which when Chriſt, from their own confeſſion had taken for a granted truth, and Mat. 21. 43. brought home and applied to them, as a prediction of what was in any reaſon to befall them (ſee v. 19.) they then expreſt a great averſation or diſlike of it.

16. He ſhall come and deſtroy theſe husbandmen, and ſhall give the vineyard to others. And when they heard it, they ſaid, God forbid.]

17. And he beheld them, and ſaid, What is this therefore that is written, The ſtone which the builders rejected, the ſame is become the head of the corner?

Mat. 21. 42.

18. Whoſoever ſhall fall upon that ſtone ſhall be broken, but on whomſoever it ſhall fall, it will * grinde him to powder.

* daſh him to pieces, λικμήσει αὐτὸν, Mat. 21. 5.

19. And the chief prieſts and the ſcribes the ſame houre ſought to lay hands on him, and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had ſpoken this parable againſt them.

20. And the Phariſees ſent ſome of their diſciples, and ſome of thoſe that adhered to Herod, Mat. 22. 16. to entrap and enſnare him, to which end they put on the diſguiſe of upright conſcientious men, that earneſtly deſired to be inſtructed in a ſcruple of every daies practiſe, about paying tribute, meaning by his anſwer to take advantage, and, if he ſaid any thing againſt Cæſar's right, as they ſuppoſed he would, then to accuſe and implead him before the Procurator of the Romans.

20. And they watched him, and ſent forth ſpies, which ſhould feign themſelves juſt men, that they might take hold of his words, that ſo they might deliver him unto the power, and authority of the Governour.]

21. And they asked him, ſaying, Maſter, we know that thou ſayeſt and teacheſt rightly, neither accepteſt thou the perſon of any, but teacheſt the way of God truly.

22. Is it lawfull for us to give tribute unto Cæſar, or no?

23. Why doe ye deſire and endevour to inſnare me?

23. But he perceived their craftineſſe, and ſaid unto them, [Why tempt ye me?]

24. Shew

24. Shew me a peny, whoſe image and ſuperſcription hath it? They anſwered and ſaid, Cæſar's. See Mar. 12, 20. & note c.

25. And he ſaid unto them, Render therefore unto Cæſar the things which be Cæſar's, and unto God the things which be God's.

26. And they could not take hold of his words before the people, and they marvailed at his anſwer and [held their peace.] 26. without any reply departed from him.

27. Then came to him certain of the Sadducees (which [a deny that there is any reſurrection]) and they asked him, 27. affirm that there is no future ſtate of men after this life) 27

28. Saying, Maſter, Moſes wrote unto us, If [any mans brother] die having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother ſhould take his wife, and raiſe up ſeed unto his brother. 28. any man that hath brethren, Mat. 22. 24.

29. There were therefore ſeven brethren, and the firſt took a wife and died without children.

30. And the ſecond took her to wife, and he died childleſſe.

31. And the third took her, and in like manner the ſeven alſo. And they left no children and died.

32. Laſt of all the woman died alſo.

33. Therefore in the reſurrection, whoſe wife of them is ſhe? for ſeven had her to wife.

34. And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage.

35. But they which ſhall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and [the reſurrection from the dead,] neither marry, nor are given in marriage. 35. that future ſtate,

36. Neither can they die any more, for they are equall unto the Angels, and are the children of God, [being the children of the reſurrection.] 36. being made partakers of that future eternall eſtate.

37. Now that the dead are raiſed, even Moſes ſhewed at the buſh,] when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob. 37. But as for the main point disputed between you Jewes, that there is another life after this, your own Moſes will inſtruct you, in thoſe words which he delivered at the buſh, Exod. 3. 6. (ſee note on Mat. 22. d.)

38. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living, [for all live unto him.] 38. For thoſe that are departed out of this world, have another life, the ſoules of the juſt are already in the hands of God, and their bodies ſure to be raiſed up, and united to them by the power of God.

39. Then certain of the Scribes anſwering ſaid, Maſter, thou haſt well ſaid.

40. And after that they durſt not ask him any queſtions at all.

41. And he ſaith unto them, How ſay they that Chriſt is David's ſon?] 41. And after ſome few things, Mat. 22. 35, the Phariſees being come about him, he propoſed a queſtion to them, Mar. 22. 41. what they thought of the Meſſias, whoſe ſon he was; and upon their anſwering, that he was David's, he again asked, how that could be?

42. And] David himſelf ſaith in the book of Pſalms, The Lord ſaid to my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 42. When

43. Till I make thine enemies thy footſtool.

44. David therefore calleth him Lord, how is he then his ſon?

45. Then in the audience of all the people, he ſaid unto his diſciples,

46. Beware of the Scribes, which deſire to walk in long robes, and love greetings in the markets, and the higheſt ſeats in the ſynagogues, and the chief rooms at feaſts. Mat. 23. 1, 7.

47. Which devour widowes houſes, and for a ſhew make long prayers:] the ſame ſhall receive greater damnation. 47. They are perſons of great coveteouſneſſe and cruelty, oppreſſors of the poor and helpleſſe, without any mercy, and that they may hold up their reputation, which is neceſſary to enable them to doe ſo ſecurely, they pretend great devotion, and pray a great while.

Notes on Chap. XX.

2. ἀντιλέγειν The Hebrew ריב ſignifies both μάχεσθαι to contend, and ἀντιλέγειν to contradict, and agreeably to the latitude of the Hebrew the Greek ἀντιλέγειν is here uſed for [to contend.]

5. And as ſome ſpake of the Temple, how it was adorned with goodly ſtones, and [gifts, he ſaid,]

6. As for all theſe things that make now ſuch a magnificent ſhew, Mat. 24. 2. within few yeares they ſhall be utterly deſtroyed and demoliſhed, ſee note on Mar. 24. a.

6. As for theſe things which ye behold, the daies will come, in which there ſhall not be left one ſtone upon another, that ſhall not be thrown down.]

7. When ſhall this deſtruction of the Temple be, and with it of the Jewiſh ſtate? and what prognoſticks of it will be diſcernible?

7. And they asked him, ſaying, Maſter, but [when ſhall theſe things be? and what ſigne will there be when theſe things ſhall come to paſſe?]

8. One prognoſtick, or forerunner of that deſtruction ſhall be, that many deceivers ſhall ariſe among you, each pretending to be the Meſſias, and that he will ſoon deliver you.

8. And he ſaid, Take heed that ye be not deceived, for [many ſhall come in my name, ſaying, * I am Chriſt, and the time draweth neer,] goe ye not therefore after them.

* I am he, and the ſeaſon, ἐγώ εἰμι, καὶ ὁ καιρὸς

9. Another forerunner is that great commotions and tumults there ſhall be in Judæa, before the Romans come to deſtroy them utterly, ſee note on Mat. 24. d.

9. But when ye ſhall hear of warres and commotions, be not terrified: for theſe things muſt firſt come to paſſe, but the end is not by and by.]

10. They ſhall riſe up and ſlaughter one another, Mat. 24. e. Revel. 6. 12, 13, 14.

10. Then ſaid he unto them, [* Nation ſhall riſe againſt nation, and kingdome againſt kingdome,]

* The nation ſhall be raiſed againſt the nation, & the kingdom againſt the kingdom, ἐγερθήσεται ἔθνος ἐπὶ ἔθνος, καὶ βασιλεία ἐπὶ βασιλείαν,

Mat. 24. 7.

11. And great earthquakes ſhall be in divers places, and famines, and peſtilences, and fearfull ſights, and great ſignes ſhall there be from heaven.

12. But firſt they ſhall fall foule on the preachers of the Goſpel, and all pure ſincere Chriſtians, and bring you before the Jewiſh Conſiſtories, and Roman Governors for the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, Revel. 6. 11. and Mat. 24. 9.

12. But before † all theſe they ſhall lay their hands on you, delivering you up to the ſynagogues and into priſons, being brought before kings and rulers for my names ſake.]

† all theſe things, τούτων πάντων,

13. And this bringing of you before the Gentile powers ſhall be a means of divulging the Goſpel to them. See Mar. 13. 9.

13. And it ſhall turn to you for a teſtimony.]

14. In this caſe remember what was formerly ſaid to you, Mat. 10. 19. and 30. and belonged peculiarly to this point of time now ſpoken of,

14. Settle it therefore in your hearts] not to meditate before what ye ſhall anſwer.

15. For I will furniſh you with thoſe anſwers, and that conviction to all your adverſaries, that they

15. For I will give you a mouth and wiſdome, which all your adverſaries] ſhall not be able to gainſay or reſiſt.

16. And ye ſhall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinſfolks, and friends, and ſome of you ſhall they cauſe to be put to death.

17. And ye ſhall be hated of all men for my names ſake.

18. But whatſoever befall you, treachery, perſecution, death it ſelf, v. 16. 17. be confident of this, that it ſhall not tend to the leaſt diſadvantage, but rather to the greateſt gain to you.

18. But there ſhall not an haire of your head periſh.]

19. And though ſome few of you ſhall ſuffer death in this cauſe, and ſo be eternally crown'd by ſuffering, yet this let me tell you, even for this life, that if ye endure with conſtancy, and perſevere, and fall not off from your profeſſion, that ſhall of all others be the moſt probable way of eſcaping, or obtaining delivérance from this ſweeping deſtruction, Mat. 10. 39. Mar. 13. 13.

19. In your patience poſſeſſe ye your ſouls.]

20, 21, 22, 23. But when you ſee Jeruſalem beſieged by the Romans (Mat. 24. 15. note f.) then reſolve the deſtruction of the city is neer, and accordingly all that are in it, let them flie out of Judæa, and thoſe that are in the confines or regions about Judæa, let them take care not to come into it, but (ſee Revel. 6. 16.) look on it as a place moſt ſadly to be deſtroyed, on which all the dolefull prophecies are now to be fulfilled, which have been prophecied againſt Judæa.

20. And when yee ſhall ſee Jeruſalem compaſſed with armies, then know that the deſolation thereof is nigh.

21. Then let them which are in Judæa, flee to the mountains, and let them which are in the midſt of it, depart out, and let not them that are in the countreys enter thereinto.

22. For theſe be the daies of vengeance, that all things which are written, may be fulfilled.

23. But woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give ſuck in thoſe daies, for there ſhall be great diſtreſſe in the land, and wrath upon this people.]

24. conquer'd by the Romans, Revel. 11. 2. And while this is a doing in Judæa, the Goſpel ſhall be preached over the Gentile world, Mat. 24. 14. ſee Rom. 11. 25. and being by them received, ſome effect that ſhall have among the Jewes, by way of emulation Rom. 11. 11. 13. moving them to receive the faith alſo, and by their doing ſo, Jeruſalem ſhall again be inhabited by Jewiſh (as well as Gentile) Chriſtians: ſee note on Revel. 11. d.

24. And they ſhall fall by the edge of the ſword, and ſhall be led away captive into all nations, and Jeruſalem ſhall be [trodden down of the Gentiles, untill the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.]

25. And many prodigies ſhall be ſeen in the heavens (ſee note on Rev. 6. f.) very frightfull to all, and there ſhall be a terrible diſtreſſe upon all the ſeverall parts of Palæſtine, preſſing them that they ſhall not know what to doe, to ſtay or to forſake their countrey, ſee Rev. 6. 15, 16.

25. And there ſhall be ſignes in the ſun, and in the moon, and in the ſtarres, and upon the * earth diſtreſſe of nations with perplexity, the ſea and the waves roaring.]

* land, γῆς,

26. Men

26. Mens hearts failing them through fear, and for looking after thoſe things which are coming on the * earth; For the powers of heaven ſhall be ſhaken.] 26. All men expecting upon the land of Judæa judgments (ſee note on ch. 2. a.) even an utter deſtruction of the Temple, and nation, religion, and people.

* world, οἰκουμένης

27. And then ſhall they ſee the ſon of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.] 27. Thus ſhall Chriſt's regall office, in puniſhing and avenging the perſecutors of him and his diſciples, be moſt gloriouſly revealed, ſee Mat.13.26.

28. And when theſe things begin to come to paſſe, then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh.] 28. And when ye ſee theſe things thus come to paſſe, then let all true Chriſtians, Apoſtles, and others that have ſo long been perſecuted by the Jewes, look up and hold up their heads with cheerfulneſſe, as knowing that to them redemption approacheth, and deliverance from the dangers which encompaſſe them, ſee Act.3. a. and Rom.13. b. and Rom.8. l.

29. And he ſpake to them a parable, Behold the fig-tree and all the trees,

30. When they now [ſhoot forth] ye ſee and know of your own ſelves, that ſummer is now nigh at hand, 30. put forth leaves, Mat.24.32. and Mar. 13.28.

31. So likewiſe ye, when ye ſee theſe things come to paſſe, know ye that [the kingdome of God is nigh at hand.] 31. that formidable exerciſe of Chriſt's regall power, beginning in the vengeance on the Jewes his crucifyers and perſecutors of the Apoſtles and pure beleivers, is now neer approaching for your deliverance, ſee note on Mat. 24. b.

32. Verily I ſay unto you, This generation ſhall not paſſe away, till all be fulfilled.] 32. And indeed within a matter of 40 years all this ſhall moſt ſadly come to paſſe, ſee Mat.24. 34. &c.

33. Heaven and earth ſhall paſſe away, but my words ſhall not paſſe away.] 33. And there is no kind of doubt of the completion of it.

34. And take heed to your ſelves, leſt at any time your hearts be overcharged with ſurfeiting and drunkenneſſe, and cares of this life, and ſo that day come upon you unawares.] 34. But doe ye take heed that ye indulge not to any kind of luxury or exceſſe, Mat.24. 49. which may make you unfit for watchfulneſſe (ſee Rom. 13. 13.) and the ſame care you are to take that worldly ſolliciſitude, fear of loſſes, and conſequently of want doe not enſnare you to the denying of Chriſt, or falling away from him, (Mat. 13. 22.) and ſo that day of vengeance on the enemies of Chriſt come ſuddenly, and involve you with the impenitent Jewes.

35. For as a ſnare ſhall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole * earth.] 35. For very ſuddenly and unexpectedly ſhall this deſtruction come upon all Judæa, ch.17.20. Mat.24.50.

* land γῆς

36. Watch ye therefore and pray alwaies, that ye may be accounted worthy to eſcape all theſe things that ſhall come to paſſe, and to ſtand before the ſon of man.] 36. Be ye therefore perpetually upon your guard, and be conſtant in prayer to God, that he will vouchſafe you to be of the number of that remnant, to whom the promiſe of eſcaping all this calamity is made (Mat.10. note f.) that when Chriſt ſhall thus come in vengeance againſt the nation, ye may meet him with cheerfulneſſe and confidence, and not fear any ill from him, but rather appear victorious with him, in this deſtruction of yours, as well as his enemies.

37. And in the day time he was teaching in the Temple, and at night he went out, and abode] in the mount that is called the mount of Olives. 37. And as he exhorted them to diligence and prayer, ſo gave he them example, buſying himſelf in Gods ſervice all the day, and at night ſpending much time in prayer.

38. And all the people came early in the morning to him in the Temple for to heare him.

Notes on Chap. XXI.

a. δῶρα

The Hebrew קָרְבָּן ſignifies both a gift, and the treaſury into which the gifts were caſt, and ſo the Greek δῶρα gifts here is uſed for γαζοφυλάκιον v.1. and ſo *Mar.*12.41.

b. Αἰχμαλωτισθήσονται εἰς πάντα ἔθνη.

The number of thoſe that in the ſiege of Jeruſalem by Titus died by ſword and famine, is ſaid to be eleven millions by Euſebius Hiſt: l.3. c.7. out of Joſephus. Then when the city was taken the handſomeſt, ſaith he, were reſerved for triumph, the reſt, ſaith he, that were above 17 yeares of age were ſent bound to Ægypt to be ſlaves there, others diſperſed in the Provinces to be torn aſunder with wild beaſts, thoſe under 17 ſold to merchants of all countreys. And of all theſe the number was 97000.

c. Καιροὶ ἐθνῶν

What is the meaning of [ἄχρις πληρωθῶσιν καιροὶ ἐθνῶν, till the ſeaſons or times of the Gentiles be fulfill'd] may be gueſt partly by the importance of the word καιροὶ ſeaſons, partly of the πληρωθῶσιν fulfill'd, partly of the ἄχρις untill. The word καιροὶ vulgarly ſignifies a ſeaſon, a time deſigned and appointed, (according to the notion of the Hebrew word) or elſe expected, and looked for, And in both reſpects belongs fitly to the preaching the Goſpel to the Gentiles, that being a thing, that God had ſo long determined, and ſo oft foretold, and which though the Gentiles foreſaw not, yet is ſaid to be expected by them, (becauſe all they could deſire or expect was really ſumm'd up in this) not only in that prediction of Jacob, where Chriſt is ſtyled the expectation of the Gentiles, but in S. Paul's diſcourſe of it *Rom.*8.19. where the earneſt expectation of the creature, i. e. the Gentile world (ſee *Rom.*8.note d.) is faſten'd upon this. Then for the [πληρωθῶσι] joyned to theſe [καιροὶ ἐθνῶν] that ſure will bear ſome proportion with, if it be not parallel to *Rom.*11.25. where the phraſe is very like this here, ἄχρις οὗ τὸ πλήρωμα τῶν ἐθνῶν εἰσέλθῃ, untill the time that the fulneſs of the Gentiles enter. That is there explain'd to ſignifie the multitude of Gentiles receiving the faith, coming into the Church, and ſo πλήρωμα fulneſs, v.12. (ſee Rom. 11. note d.) and proportionably to that, their ſeaſons being fulfill'd] will be the preaching that Goſpel to them, which

which they ſhall thus receive, and which was ſo deſigned, and expected for them, Now for the ἄχρι untill] where it is ſaid, Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down of the Gentiles, untill theſe ſeaſons of the Gentiles be fulfill'd, the explaining of that, will be the farther clearing of the whole matter. The treading down of Jeruſalem by the Gentiles is not particularly their victory over it by Titus, but their conſequent poſſeſſing of it, even till Adrian's re-building a part of it, and calling it by his own name, Ælia, and inhabiting it with Gentiles, which ſeems to be deſcribed Rev. 11.2. by the outer court of the Temple being given to the Gentiles, and ſo caſt out of the meaſuring. Upon the doing of this it follow'd, that as all the Jewes (remaining ſuch, in oppoſition to the Chriſtians) were utterly baniſht the city, and a ſwines head ſet at the Gates, to baniſh even their eyes from it, ſo the beleiving, Chriſtian Jewes returned thither again from their diſperſions, and inhabited it again, and joyn'd, and made one Congregation, one Church with the Gentiles, which had there by that time received the faith alſo, and till then continued a diſtinct Church from the Jewes; ſee Revel. 11. note d. By which it appears how punctually this prediction, in our notion, was fulfill'd, that Jeruſalem ſhould be inhabited by the Gentiles, all the Jewes in a manner excluded, till the time that the Goſpel had been freely preacht unto the Gentiles, & by them, in ſome eminent manner, been receiv'd, and then it ſhould be re-inhabited with Jews again, viz. the Chriſtian Jewes, who being wrought on by emulation of the Gentiles, were now many of them brought to receive the faith, ſee Rom. 11.11,13.

The τὰ ἔθνη nations] here are the ſeverall parts or tetrarchies of Paleſtine, ſo divided by the Romans, ſee Lu. 3.1. each of them called τὸ ἔθνος nation, and all together τὰ ἔθνη nations, ſee note on Mat. 24. e. and Rev. 11. f. For to the Jewes ſure it is that there the diſtreſſe and conſternation belongs, not to the Gentiles, ſee note on Rev. 6. f. d. τὰ ἔθνη

That by the word θάλασσα ſea] may be meant Galilee, ſee note on Rev. 7. b. and of that people particularly Joſephus tells us, that Veſpaſian being ſent by Nero into Paleſtine, did ſubdue the Galileans, the moſt valiant, powerful and beſt fortified nation of all Paleſtine, killing above an hundred thouſand, and carrying captive above fourty thouſand Jewes in that expedition. Where we ſee that Galilee owns the name ἔθνος, and that there were divers ἔθνη nations in Paleſtine, of which Galilee is by Joſephus ſaid to be the moſt valiant. See Baronius An: Ch: 39. Neronis. 13. But it is as probable, that as tis ordinary in theſe books to expreſs the whole by enumeration of the parts, and ſo the whole world by the mention of heaven, and earth, and ſea (ſee note on 2 Pet. 3. b.) ſo here the univerſall deſtructions of the Jewes may be deſcribed by all theſe. e. θάλασσα

CHAP. XXII.

1. Now the feaſt of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Paſſeover.]

1. NOW the feaſt of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Paſſeover.]

drew nigh, which conſiſts of ſeven daies, and a day of preparation to them, wherein alſo no leavened bread is uſed, and that is the feaſt of the Paſſover, Mar. 14. c.

2. And the Sanhedrim of the Jewes were deſirous to find out ſome ſafe way of apprehending and putting him to death, Mar. 14. 1. for they durſt not doe it with any great noiſe, for fear of the people.]

2. And the chief prieſts and ſcribes ſought how they might kill him, for they feared the people.]

3,4. And Judas one of his twelve conſtant attendants, being a covetous perſon, and in the diſcharge of his office (of keeping the bagge, of relieving the poor) deceitfull and theeving, Joh. 12.6. and to that ſinne of ſacriledge adding that of hypocriſie, in pretending great care of the poor Joh. 12. 5. whom he thus robb'd, and upon Chriſt's admoniſhing him mildly of it, Mat. 26.10. Mar. 14.6. Joh. 12.7. yet, it ſeems, not reforming, but incenſed againſt his Maſter, the Devil or his own covetous heart by the devils ſuggeſtion, put him upon this project of gain to make ſome advantage by delivering Chriſt into the hands of the Jewes, Joh. 13. 2. And upon his conſenting to this ſuggeſtion, the Devil was permitted by God, to have this power over him, to enter into him, Joh. 13.2. and doing ſo, he incited him to make a bargain with the Rulers of the Sanhedrim, and their miniſters or officers (ſee note f.) to deliver up Jeſus unto them (as after Chriſt's talking with him, and telling him diſtinctly of it, and the ſinne and danger attending it Mar. 14.21. and his not yet relenting, 'tis again ſaid that with the ſop the devil entred into him, Joh. 13.27. hurrying him to the ſpeedy execution of it.)

3. Then entred Satan into Judas ſurnamed Iſcariot, being of the number of the twelve,

4. And he went his way, and communed with the chief prieſts and captains, how he might betray him unto them.]

5. And they gladly embraced the treaty, and ſtruck a bargain with him, that he ſhould have thirty ſhekels to deliver him up without much noiſe, Mat. 26. 4. and 15.

5. And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money.]

a. b. 6. And although this were as low and vile a ſumme, as could be, the price of a ſlave Exod. 21. 32. (ſee Zach. 11.13.) yet Judas thanked them heartily for the offer, being very covetous, and ſo very glad of the opportunity of getting money, and from thenceforth he watched a fit ſeaſon wherein to doe it, without any noiſe or ſtirre about it, ſee Mat. 26.4. Mar. 14.1.

6. And he * [a] promiſed, and ſought opportunity to betray him unto them, † in the [b] abſence of the multitude.]

* thanked them. † without a tumult.

7. And the paſchal day was now come, wherein they eat no leaven in their bread, and in which the lamb was to be killed and eaten, ſee note on Mar. 14. c.

7. Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the paſſover muſt be killed.]

8. unleavened bread and bitter herbs, the memoriall of the deliverance out of Ægypt, ſee note on Mar. 14. c.

8. And he ſent Peter and John, ſaying, Goe and prepare us the [Paſſover] that we may eat.

9. And

9. And they ſaid unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare?
10. And he ſaid unto them, Behold, when ye are entred into the city, there ſhall a man meet you bearing a pitcher of water, follow him into the houſe where he entreth in,
11. And ye ſhall ſay unto the good man of the houſe, The maſter ſaith unto thee, Where is the gueſt-chamber, where I ſhall eat the paſſover with my diſciples?
12. And he ſhall ſhew you a large upper roome furniſhed, there make ready.
13. And they went and found as he had ſaid unto them, and they made ready the [paſſover.] See ver. 8.
14. And when the houre was come, he ſate down, and the twelve Apoſtles with him.
15. And he ſaid unto them, With deſire I have deſired to eat this paſſover with you before I ſuffer.
16. For I ſay unto you, I will not any more [eat thereof,] untill it be fulfilled in the kingdome of God. 16. celebrate this feaſt with you (ſee note on Mat. 26. c.)
17. And he took the cup and gave thanks, and ſaid, Take this, and divide it among your ſelves.
18. For I ſay unto you, [I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, untill the kingdome of God ſhall come.] 18. I ſhall no more drink with you after this feſtivall manner, celebrate no more paſchal commemorations before my departure out of this world, our next feſtivity muſt be kept in heaven.
19. And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, ſaying, This is my body, which is given for you, [this doe in * remembrance of me.] 19. doe you to others as I have done now to you, take, bleſſe, break, and give the bread to all that joyn with you in theſe holy ſervices, and when you doe ſo, doe it in commemoration of me.
* commemoration δεῖγμα
20. Likewiſe alſo the cup after ſupper, ſaying, This cup is the New * Teſtament in my blood, which is ſhed for you.] 20. In like manner after they had done eating, he took the cup of charity, uſuall among the Jewes, and ſaid, This cup is at this time to you the ſealing of a New Covenant (ſee note on the title of theſe books) in my blood, which ſhall ſhortly be ſhed for you, as this is now poured out.
* Covenant διαθήκη
21. But behold, the hand of him that * betrayeth me, is with me on the table.
* delivereth me up, παραδιδόντος με
22. And truly the ſon of man [goeth, as it was determined, but woe unto that man, by whom he is betrayed.] 22. is to be put to death (ſee note on ch. 13. b.) as God hath decreed it ſhould be (Act. 2. 23. and 4. 28. and note b.) but woe to him that hath any hand in that execution.
23. And they began to enquire among themſelves, which of them it was, that * ſhould doe this thing.
* was about to doe, μέλλων πράσσειν
24. And there was alſo a ſtrife among them, which of them ſhould be accounted the greateſt.] 24. Somtime before this (to wit, before his departing from Jericho, Mat. 20. 25. 29. nay before he came thither, Mar. 10. 42. 46.) there had been a contention among the diſciples (occaſioned by the requeſt of Zebedee's wife for her two ſons, Mat. 20. 20.) which of them ſhould be lookt on, as the worthieſt, and ſo be preferr'd before the reſt.
25. And he ſaid unto them, The Kings of the Gentiles exerciſe Lordſhip over them, and [they that exerciſe authority upon them are called c benefactors.] 25. their Princes, ſtyled their Benefactors, exerciſe authority over them. c.
26. But ye ſhall not be ſo, but he that is greateſt among you, let him be as the d younger, and he that is chief, as he that doth ſerve.] 26. But among you it muſt be otherwiſe, the ruler muſt be as the private man, or the ſervant of all others, over whom he is placed. d.
27. For whether is greater, he that ſitteth at meat, or he that ſerveth? Is not he that ſitteth at meat? But I am among you as [he that ſerveth.] 27. one that attendeth and waiteth on you, and provideth neceſſaries for you, and not as one that receiveth ſuch obſervances or advantages from you, as I might expect to doe.
28. Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations.] 28. Ye have follow'd me as diſciples, Mat. 19. 28. and been hitherto conſtant to me in all the afflictions, and perſecutions that have befallen me.
* bequeath διατίθεμαι
29. And I * appoint unto you a kingdome, as my Father hath appointed unto me, See Mat. 19. 28.

31. And the Lord ſaid, Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath deſired to have you, that he may ſift you as wheat.] 31. And at this point of time, the ſtory whereof is here in relating v. 20. (not at the time of that other paſſage ver. 24.) Chriſt addreſt his ſpeech particularly to Peter, ſaying, As for you, Simon, I tell you, that either upon ſome ſinne committed by thee, giving Satan ſome ſuch right of claim, (poſſibly ſomewhat done criminouſly by him in that contention of the diſciples, mention'd tion'd v.24. the indignation of the ten againſt the two, Mat. 20. 24.) or elſe ſuggeſting ſomewhat againſt thy ſincerity, as againſt Job's, Job 1. 9. Satan hath accuſed you before God, and required that he may have the ſhaking of you, liberty to doe his worſt to drive you from the faith of Chriſt.

32. But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not; and when thou art converted, ſtrengthen thy brethren.]

32. This is granted to him, and your danger thereupon is great, but I have prayed for thee, that thou be not conquer'd by him and his terrors, ſo farre as utterly to forſake the faith, and for any ſinnes that in this combat thou proveſt guilty of, let this uſe be made of them, when by repentance thou art recovered out of them, that thou be the more carefull to confirm and ſtrengthen others, that they fall not in like manner, See note on 1 Cor. 5. c.

33. And he ſaid unto him, Lord I am ready to goe with thee both into priſon, and to death.

34. And he ſaid, I tell thee, Peter, [the cock ſhall not crow this day, before that] thou ſhalt thrice deny that thou knoweſt me.

34. Before the ſecond crowing of the cock this night, Mat. 26. 34.

35. And he ſaid unto them, When I ſent you without purſe, and ſcrip, and ſhooes, lacked ye any thing? And they ſaid, Nothing.]

35. Formerly I ſent you out without any proviſion, and yet ye wanted nothing.

36. Then ſaid he unto them, But now he that hath a purſe let him take it, and likewiſe his ſcrip, and he that hath no ſword let him ſell his garment and buy one.]

36. But now ſome diſtreſſes ye are like to meet with, in like manner as ye will firſt ſee them fall moſt ſharply upon me.

37. For I ſay unto you, that * this that is written muſt yet be accompliſhed in me, And he was reckoned among the tranſgreſſours: For the things concerning me have an end.]

37. For now according to the prophecie Iſa. 53. 12. paſt on the Meſſias, I muſt be put to death as a malefactor, For all that is foretold of me ſhall now ſuddenly be accompliſhed.

* now this which hath been written muſt be fulfill'd on me, to wit, and he.— τὸ καὶ μετὰ ἀνόμων ἐλογίσθη· καὶ γὰρ τὰ περὶ ἐμοῦ τέλος ἔχει, τὸ καὶ.

38. And they ſaid, Lord, here are two ſwords: and he ſaid unto them, It is enough.]

38. But they thinking that according to the literall ſound of his words he had really called for a ſword, whereas he only expreſt so them by that figure the diſtreſſes that were now approaching them, told him they had two ſwords among them, But he gave them by a ſhort reply to underſtand, that he did not really mean that they ſhould goe and provide them ſwords, but only that great dangers were now approaching them.

39. And he came out, and went as he was wont to the mount of Olives,] and his diſciples alſo followed him.

39. And he, according to his wont, went out to the mount to pray.

40. And when he was at the place, he ſaid unto them, [Pray that ye enter not into temptation.]

43. And an Angel was ſent from heaven to repreſent ſuch conſiderations to him, of the advantages and benefits of his death, as might make him bear it cheerfully.

44. And being in an agony he prayed more earneſtly, and his ſweat was as it were great ᵉ drops of blood falling down to the ground.]

e. 44. After that being in ſuch a commotion of mind, which ſignifies an apprehenſion of extreme danger, without any trembling at it, or endevour to avoid or eſcape it, he prayed more vehemently, and fell proſtrate upon his face, Mat. 14. 35. ſaying the ſame words, and more to the ſame purpoſe, and he ſwet (as men in agonies are wont) great glutinous drops like thoſe of blood when it drops on the ground.

46. And ſaid unto them, Why ſleep ye? Riſe and pray, leſt ye enter into temptation.

47. And while he yet ſpake, behold, a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew neer unto Jeſus to kiſſe him.

48. But Jeſus ſaid unto him, Judas, [* betrayeſt thou the ſon of man with a kiſſe?]

50. And one of them ſmote the ſervant of the high prieſt, and cut off his right eare.]

50. And S. Peter in the heat of zeal, without Chriſt's permiſſion, and againſt the precepts which he had alwaies taught them, drew a ſword, and cut off the right eare of Malchus, a ſervant of the high prieſt's.

51. And

51. And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, Suffer ye thus farre. And he touched his eare and healed him.] 51. And Jeſus reproving Peter for ſo doing, Mat.26.52. ſpake to thoſe that came to apprehend him, to let him alone but ſo long, as to reſtore the man his eare, and upon a touch he was cured.

52. Then Jeſus ſaid unto the chief prieſts and f captains of the people, and the elders which were come to him, Be ye come out as againſt a thief with ſwords and ſtaves? f.

53. When I was daily with you in the Temple, ye ſtretched forth no hands againſt me, but [this is your houre, and the power of darkneſs.] 53. this is the time wherein the devil and you are permitted to work your wills upon me.

54. Then took they him and led him, and brought him into the [high prieſt's houſe,] And Peter followed afarre off. 54. houſe of Caiaphas the high prieſt of that year, where the Sanhedrim was aſſembled, Mat.26.57.

55. And when they had kindled a fire in the midſt of the hall, and were ſet down together, Peter ſat down amongſt them.

56. But a certain maid beheld him as he ſat by the fire, and earneſtly looked upon him, and ſaid, This man was alſo with him.

Mar.14.17.) affirmed confidently that he was certainly one of his company, for, ſaid they, his ſpeech diſcovers him to be a Galilean, Mat. 26.73. &c.

60. And Peter ſaid, Man, I know not what thou ſayeſt.] And immediately while he yet ſpake, the cock crew. 60. But he ſaid (with addition of oaths and imprecations, Mat. 26.74.) I am not what thou affirmeſt me to be.

61. And the Lord turned and looked upon Peter, and Peter remembred the word of the Lord, how he had ſaid unto him, Before the cock crow thou ſhalt deny me thrice.

62. And Peter went out and wept bitterly.

63. And [the men that held Jeſus mocked him] and ſmote him. 63. while Peter was in the hall of the high prieſt Mat. 26.58. and 69. (before the latter part of the precedent ſtory of S. Peter) the ſouldiers that were ſet to guard Jeſus, Mat.26.67. ſpit in his face.

71. And they ſaid, What need we any farther witneſſe? For we our ſelves have heard of his own mouth.] 71. This they concluded to be a blaſphemous ſpeech, and ſo that he was guilty of death by his own confeſſion, in taking upon him to be the Meſſias.

Notes on Chap. XXII.

2. ἐξομολόγησις

What ἐξομολόγησις ſignifies here, will be more eaſily determined, when 'tis reſolved that as among Grammarians, ſo in the reſt of the places in the New Teſtament, it clearly denotes one of theſe two things, either confeſſion of ſinne, or giving of thanks, both being the importance of the Hebrew הוֹדָיָה in hiphil from יָדָה. Thus ſaith Phavorinus, ἐξομολόγησις ἡ τῶν ἰδίων πταισμάτων μετ' ἐυχαριστίας τῶν ἐυεργεσιῶν ἀπαίτησις, it is a thankfull acknowledgement or enumeration of benefits, καὶ ἡ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν πεπραγμένων παρ' ἑαυτοῦ ἐξαγόρευσις, and the guilty mans acknowledgement of what he hath done amiſſe, which is vulgarly known by the title of ἐξομολόγησις, and again, ἐξομολογοῦμαι, ἐυχαριστῶ, it ſignifies to give thankes. In the ſenſe of confeſſing of Faults, 'tis to be found Mat. 3.6. Mar. 1.5. Acts 19.18. James 5.16. In that of praiſing or giving thankes, Mat. 11.25. (the very place cited by Phaverinus ἐξομολογοῦμαί σοι πάτερ, I thanke thee O father) Lu. 10.21. Rom. 14. 11.15.9. Phil. 2. 11. Rev. 3.5. And in no one place is it taken for promising (the meaning of ὁμολογεῖν in Greek Authors, and especially in the institutions of Theophilus, προμίτλις, προμίτλω, τῆλ' ὄξιν, ὁμολογεῖς, ὁμολογῶ) or of any thing of that nature. And then the choise will be very easie, which of these two senses we shall thinke fit to apply to this place, that of confessing being very aliene and unfit for the turne, and the Arabick interpreter pointing us to this of giving thankes, which being an expression of joy, is oft taken for joy it selfe, and so is fit for this turn, the covetous purse-bearer being very well pleased with such a bargain.

b. Ὄχλος here signifies a tumult, after the manner of the Hebrews, who use הָמוֹן (literally a multitude) for a tumult or noyse also. See Forerius on Isaiah p. 197.

Ὄχλος

c. The Hebrew word נָדִיב, which they use for a Prince, and is by the Septuagint rendred βασιλεὺς, ἄρχων, γενναῖος, doth primarily signifie liberall, magnificent, benefactor, and so, as in the choosing of Princes in Aristotle, Pol. l. 3. Ἢ ἐξ ἀπὸ ἐνεργεσίας κατέστησαν τοὺς βασιλεῖς, they made them Kings, that had been their benefactors, so in the deduction of the word also, Princes are here called ἐνεργέται benefactors, and so Job 21.28. where the Hebrew reads נדיב munificus, beneficus, the Greek reads ἄρχων, and the Targum אַרכוֹנֵי (the Greek ἄρχων got in amongst them) a Prince, and so it signifies there. For this S. Matthew, in his account of the same speech of Christ's, uses οἱ μεγάλοι the great ones, and [καλοῦνται are called] being ordinarily set to signifie no more then εἰσὶ are, the words here [ἐξουσάζοντες αὐτῶν, they that have authority over them ἐνεργέται καλοῦνται are called benefactors] is directly to the same sense, parallel with οἱ μεγάλοι ἐξουσάζουσιν αὐτῶν, the great ones have authority over them, so as in the sense, ἐνεργέται benefactors shall be the subject of the proposition, and ἐξουσάζοντες they that exercise authority, the predicate, thus, Their Princes called benefactors exercise authority over them.

ἐνεργέται

d. As they that were Rulers among the Jewes, or judges in their Sanhedrin, were called Elders, so others, their officers especially that attended them, are commonly styled by way of distinction from them, νεώτεροι the younger. And proportionably in the Church, as πρεσβύτεροι are they that preside and governe in it, called here μείζονες greater, superior to others, so they that are under them, are here called νεώτεροι (see Acts 5.6. and so 1 Tim. 5.1. Tit. 2.6.) and in other places, ἰδιῶται, 1 Cor. 14. 23, 24. and Acts 4.13. and ἐν τάξει ἰδιωτῶν, or ἀναπληροῦντες τόπον τῶν ἰδιωτῶν 1 Cor. 14.16. they that are in the place, and condition of ordinary men or idiotes.

Νεώτεροι

e. That Christ swet drops of blond is not affirmed in this place, but onely that he swet drops of sweat, of a strange thickenesse or viscousnesse, and consequently as big as the drops, wherein blond is wont to fall upon the ground. So saith Justin Martyr, Theophylact, and Euthymius; and 'tis * Aristotle's observation of the ἀγωνιῶντες, men in an agony, ὅτι μάλιστα ἱδρῶσι. that they sweat extremely. But that the sweat should so farre exceed the proportion of sweat, as the drops wherein blond uses to fall are above the drops, wherein sweat is wont, this was the strange thing, and the expression of the heavinesse of this agony, which is here mentioned. See Photius Epist. 138. Of the like use of ὥσει, as, ὡσεὶ or like as, see note on Mat. 3.1.

* Problem. Sect. 2. περὶ ἱδρῶ.

f. Στρατηγοὶ ἱερῦ, captains of the Temple] here mentioned (and στρατηγοὶ captaines v. 4) and in two other places of this Author, Acts 4.1. and Acts 5.24. in the singular number, στρατηγὸς τῦ ἱερῦ, signifie no more then the captains of a band, or captains of more bands of Roman souldiers, set at the porches of the Temple, to guard and keep peace, that there might be no sedition raised in the city at the assembling of the Jews at the Temple, Thus saith Josephus Ἀλωσ. l. 5. c. 15. was there a guard placed in the tower called Antonia, which was thence fetcht out at feast days, to be a guard or φύλαξ to the Temple, (and therefore Chrysostome renders it clearly the captain of the souldiers of the Temple) for so, saith the same Josephus Ἀρχαιολ: l. 8. c. 4 at that time when the people came to their feasts, especially at the Passover, there being danger of tumults, Cumanus set τῶν στρατιωτῶν μίαν τάξιν, a band of souldiers, with their armes, to stand ἐπὶ τῶν ἱερῶν στοῶν, in the porches of the Temple. These souldiers are mentioned Mat. 26. 47. for those that are there called a great multitude with swords and staves, are the ἁμαρτωλοὶ foretold by Christ, v. 45. the sinners, i. e. Gentiles; and Joh. 18. 3. ἡ σπεῖρα a band of souldiers, and here στρατηγοὶ τῦ ἱερῦ, i. e. the Commanders with their τάξεις bands of souldiers with them, and accordingly χιλιάρχες τῆς σπείρης the Colonel of this band Acts 21.31. is sure the στρατηγὸς commander, or captain here, and that tower of Antonia the παρεμβολὴ, or Castle v. 34. whither he commanded Paul to be brought to safe custody. Such also (saith Nicephorus l. 1. c. 32. and before him Chrysostome and Theophylact) was the κυστωδία the watch or guard, Mat. 27. 65. which being set by the Romans to keep all quiet, was offered by Pilate to the Jews to watch the grave of Jesus, that none might steal him away, and make that matter of a new stirre among them. For that these were not Jews, appears sufficiently by their watching on the Sabbath day, which especially at the time of the Passover the Jews durst not to have done. This guard of the Romans, and care of theirs to prevent seditions among the Jews, seems to have taken its rise from the former care and practise of the Jews in defending themselves from the Idumeans, 1 Mac. 4.60, 61. for there Judas Maccabaus having built high walls and strong towers about mount Sion, lest the Gentiles should tread it down, as they had done before, they set there a garison to keep it, and fortified Bethsura to preserve it. And the Commander of the Garison was most probably he, whom Josephus calls by this style of στρατηγὸς ναῦ, or ἱερῦ then, the captain of the Sanctuary or Temple. But now the case being altered, and the Roman Conquerours taking the same care, and keeping the like guards against the uproares and tumults of the Jews, as the Jews did formerly against the Idumeans, 'tis to be supposed, that the στρατηγὸς τῦ ἱερῦ at this time was a Roman not Jewish Commander, though yet in Josephus speaking of those times we have Ananus and Eleazar

This uſage of Chriſt here referres to that ſport ſo ordinary among children, called μυῖνδα, in which it is the manner firſt to blindfold, which is v. 64. ἀπαλλύειν, then to ſtrike him, δίρειν, v. 63. and πύσσειν v. 64. then to aske him who ſtruck him, which is ἀπροσλᾶν v. 64. and not to let him goe, till he named the man aright, who had ſtroke him. CHAP. XXIII.

Paraphraſe.

1. AND [the whole multitude of them] aroſe and led him to Pilate. 1. the whole company of the Sanhedrin by the vote of the major part, not of all, v. 51.

2. And they began to accuſe him, ſaying, [We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cæſar, ſaying that he himſelf is Chriſt a King. 2. We found him drawing away the nation from the religion of their anceſtors, and alſo forbidding to pay Cæſar the Roman Emperour his dues (ſee note on Mar. 12. a. and Mat. 22. b.) taking upon him to be our long expected Meſſias, and ſo conſequently our King.

3. And Pilate asked him, ſaying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he anſwered him and ſaid, [Thou ſayeſt it.] 3. I am ſo.

4. Then ſaid Pilate to the chiefe Prieſts and to the people, I find no fault in this man.

5. And they were the more fierce, ſaying, He [ſtirreth up the people, teaching] throughout all Jury beginning from Galilee to this place. 5. teacheth ſeditious doctrine, and hath done ſo

And diſcerning that his dwelling and abode was in Galilee which belonged to Herods government, and ſuppoſing Herod by his knowledge in the Jewiſh religion, to be fitter for the cognizance of this caſe, he remitted the hearing of it to Herod, who was perſonally at Jeruſalem at that time (ſee note on Lu. 1. l.) on occaſion of the feaſt.

8. And when Herod ſaw Jeſus, he was exceeding glad, for he was deſirous to ſee him of a long ſeaſon, becauſe he had heard many things of him, and he hoped to have ſeen ſome miracle done by him.

41. And

41. And we indeed juſtly, for we receive the due reward of our deeds, but this man hath done nothing amiſſe.] 41. And beſides this we are indeed guilty, but he a moſt innocent perſon, which came to doe good to this people, and is uſed thus ill by them.

42. And he ſaid unto Jeſus, Lord remember me, when thou comeſt into thy kingdome.

43. And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Verily I ſay unto thee, [To day ſhalt thou be with me in paradiſe.] 43. Immediately after thy death, thou ſhalt goe to a place of bliſſe, and there abide with me, a member of that my kingdome which thou askeſt for.

44. And it was about the ſixth houre, and there was a darkneſſe over all the earth untill the ninth houre.] 44. And it was nigh twelve of clock, ſee Mat. 15. 25. and there was an eclipſe of the ſun, and a palpable darkneſſe on all the land of Judea untill three afternoon.

45. And the Sun was darkned, and the [d] veile of the Temple was rent in the midſt. Mat. 27. 51. d.

46. And when Jeſus had cryed with a loud voyce, he ſaid, Father into thy hands I commend my ſpirit: and having ſaid thus, he gave up the ghoſt.

47. Now when the Centurion ſaw what was done, he [glorified God, ſaying, Certainly this was a righteous man.] 47. confeſſed it, an evidence of Gods interpoſing his power, and thence concluded that he was an innocent perſon.

48. And all the people that came together to that ſight, beholding the things which were done, ſmote their breaſts and returned.] 48. And all the multitudes there preſent, had remorſe at what was done.

49. And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, ſtood afarre off, beholding theſe things.

50. And behold there was a man named Joſeph, [a Counſellour, and he was a good man and a juſt.] 50. One of the Sanhedrim, both an upright and a mercifull man, who looked for the coming of the Meſſias v. 51. and Mar. 14. 43. and accordingly embraced Chriſt, and was a diſciple of his, Mat. 27. 57. but not avowedly, but ſecretly, for fear of danger from the Jews, Joh. 19. 38.

51. (The ſame had not conſented to the counſell and deed of them) he was of Arimathæa a city of the Jews (who alſo himſelf waited for the kingdome of God.)

52. This man] went unto Pilate, and begged the body of Jeſus. 52. Hee upon this occaſion took confidence Mat. 15. 43. although he had been before fearfull, and

53. And he took it down and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a ſepulchre that was hewn in ſtone, wherein never man before was laid.

54. And that day was the preparation, and the Sabbath * drew on.] 54. The day whereon all this was done was the eve both of the feaſt of unleavened bread, and of the Sabbath alſo, and now the Sabbath day (beginning at evening, at ſun ſet, when the ſtars and moon begin to ſhine) was ready at hand, or the ſtars began to ſhine, and ſo the Sabbath to begin.

* ſhone ἐπέφωσκε

55. And the women alſo, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the ſepulchre, and how his body was laid.

56. And they returned and prepared ſpices and ointments, and reſted on the Sabbath day, according to the [commandment.] 56. Moſaicall law of doing no work on the Sabbath.

Notes on Chap. XXIII.

a. The Hebrew צבא ſignifies three things 1. Militare, to warre, 2. concurrere and congregari, to aſſemble, 3. miniſtrare, to miniſter. The firſt notion is very frequent, the ſecond, Exod. 38. 8. (where yet the Septuagint read ὑπνοῦντων, for צבא it ſeems reading צום jejunavit) and 1 Sam. 2. 21. and the third is ordinary alſo (and from thence Timothy called καλὸς στρατιώτης a good ſouldier, i. e. miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt) Hence it is that among thoſe Greek writers, which follow the Hebrew idiome the word στρατία, στρατιὰ and στράτευμα, is uſed for every one of theſe three, For the firſt ordinarily and primarily; For the ſecond, when we meet with στρατιὰ οὐρανοῦ πᾶσα, which we render exercitus, and hoſt of heaven, but ſignifies univerſus cœli comitatus, the whole company of heaven, whether the many ſtars or many Angels there, And in the third ſenſe we have here στρατιώτας for officers, and ſervants or attendants, and ſo the Syriack tranſlation renders it, and gives us authority to doe the like, though otherwiſe it might be rendred more vulgarly, either his company, or his ſouldiers about him. Στρατιώτας

Παιδεῦσαι ſignifies ordinarily to ſcourge, or chaſtiſe, as παῖδες children or ſervants are wont to be uſed, when they have offended, ſo Heb. 12. 6. παιδεία chaſtening] is expounded by μαστιγοῖ ſcourging. And in ſtead of it here, the other Evangeliſts Mat. 27. 26. Mar. 15. 15. have φραγελλώσας, φραγελλῶσι from the Latine flagellum, a whip, and S. John c. 19. 1. ἐμαστίγωσεν, ſcourging. Now to what the infliction of this ſort of puniſhment on Chriſt belonged, is matter of queſtion, that which is ordinarily ſaid is, that flagellation was among the Romans a ſolemn preparative to crucifixion; So Livy of the ſervants l. 34. Multi occiſi, multi capti, alii verberati crucibus affixi, they were ſcourged and crucified, And in Valerius Max. l. 1 c. 7. Servum verberibus multatum ſub furca ad ſupplicium egit, having ſcourged his ſervant under the croſſe he had him to puniſhment, i. e. crucified him. So Antigonus the King of the Jews was firſt whipt, then beheaded b. Παιδεῦσαι headed with an axe, ſaith. Dio. l. 49. and ſo 'tis ſaid of Alexander, in Qu. Curtius l. 8. verberibus affectos ſub ipſis radicibus petræ crucibus juſſit affigi, he appointed them to be ſcourged and crucified, and Joſephus of the Jews ἀλών. l. 5. c. 32. μαστιγούμενοι καὶ προσβασανιζόμενοι τὸν δεδεγμένον πᾶσαν ἀτιμίαν ἀνεσταυροῦντο, they were ſcourged, and reproachfully handled and then crucified, and Philo ſpeaking of the Jews of Alexandria crucified by Flaccus, addes, μετὰ τὸ ἀνοσίως ἐν τῷ θεάτρῳ, that this was done after they had been reproachfully handled, i. e. ſcourged in the theatre; and ſo this was part of the horrendum carmen, the ſolemn form of ſentence, verbera intra aut extra pomœrium, Arbori infelici ſuſpendito, ſcourge him, and then hang him on the tree. But this is not the notion that here we muſt have of the ſcourging of Chriſt, For then it muſt be part of his ſentence of death, which by Joh. 19. it appears, it was not, for there 'tis ſaid that Pilate took him and ſcourged him, v. 1. whereas he was not as yet condemned to death, nay ver. 6. Pilate refuſes to condemn him to death, profeſſing that he finds not any capital crime brought againſt him; then examines him farther, v. 9. then ſeeks to releaſe him, v. 12. and coming again to the judgement ſeat, v. 13. at length he delivered him to be crucified, v. 16. This is ſo evident by that Evangeliſt, that the learned H. Grotius applies this ſcourging to that other ordinary uſe of it for examination, ſuch as Act. 22. 24. is μάστιξιν ἐξετάζεσθαι, being examined with ſtripes, and in Cicero, virgam in tormento eſſe magis quàm ſupplicio, that the rod is for a torture, rather then a puniſhment. But there is no ground for this conjecture from any circumſtance in any of the Goſpells, nor reaſon to adhere to it, without ſome teſtimony, upon a bare poſſibility of it, eſpecially when the mention of it in this fourth Goſpell ſuggeſts another notion of it, which will reconcile all the difficulty, and it ſelf be ſubject to none, viz. that Pilate willing to deliver Jeſus from capital ſentence, appointed this of ſcourging to be inflicted on him. For that Pilate did not believe Chriſt guilty of any capital crime it is evident, and conſequently not fit to be crucified, ſo likewiſe that beſides his own conſcience, his wives dream did make him very unwilling to pronounce that ſentence of death on him, but very induſtrious to find ſome pretence of releaſing him, and that finally 'twas onely the importunity of the Jews, to which he ſacrificed him; And here it is plain that he propoſes to the Jews the ſcourging of him, as a lighter puniſhment proportionable to his crimes, and then that he may releaſe him. So we finde in the Epit. of Livy Dec. 5. l. 6. of Matienus a ſervant, ſub furcâ diu virgis cæſus erat, & ſeſtertio væniit, he was ſcourged, and then ſold: and ſo 'twas ordinary to bind to a pillar, or poſt, and ſcourge men, περιδεθεὶς κίονι πολλὰς ἔλαβε πληγάς, in Artemidorus ὀνειρ.: being bound to a pillar he received many ſtripes. From hence therefore 'tis evident, that the notion of his ſcourging was that of a lighter puniſhment, to releaſe him from a greater, (and that, as John ſets it, inflicted on him, before the ſentence of death was pronounced againſt him) though when that was done, he was fain to gratifie them by delivering him up to their fury to be crucified alſo. And ſo the place both in Matthew & Mark may well be rendred Mat. 27. 26. τότε Ἰησοῦν φραγελλώσας, παρέδωκεν ἵνα σταυρωθῇ, having ſcourged Jeſus, i. e. formerly having done ſo, he proceeded farther, and delivered him to be crucified, and ſo in Mark c. 15. 15. παρέδωκε τὸν Ἰησοῦν, φραγελλώσας, ἵνα σταυρωθῇ, He delivered Jeſus having ſcourged him, (having done ſo, before he thus delivered him) to be crucified. And this ſort of ſcourging was a puniſhment uſual among the Jews for offences not capital, ſee note on 2 Cor. 11. b. A fourth ſort of ſcourging there was, for capital crimes, whipping to death, with the head faſtned to the furca, which Suetonius in Nerone calls ſupplicium more majorum, the old Roman puniſhment. But this cannot belong to this place.

These Malefactors crucified with Jeſus were thieves and murtherers, and authours of an uproar in the city, which is an evidence among others formerly mentioned, (ſee note on Mat. 27. d. and on Mar. 15. a.) of Chriſts death being after the Roman not Jewiſh manner. For the Jewiſh cuſtome was never to put to death two malefactors on the ſame day, unleſſe it were for the ſame crime, ſo ſaith Maimonides Sanhed. c. 14. They never condemn more then one in a day, but one to day, another to morrow, unleſſe they be both guilty of the ſame tranſgreſſion, and deſerve one death. And that Chriſt was not pretended to be put to death for that crime of the other two, is clear by his inſcription, which ſaith it was for pretending to be King.

c. ληστῶν καὶ στασιαστῶν ἄνευ

That which is here ſaid of the veile of the Temple, that ἐκ δὲ μέσου, muſt be ſo rendred, that μέσου may be taken adverbially for in the middle, ſo as to be anſwerable to εἰς τὰ δύο into two parts in Matthew and Mark. Now what veile of the Temple this was is the only thing that will need to be here determined, for of this it is certain that there were two veiles or high walls (intimated by the mention of the ſecond veile, v. 3.) the one that covered or encloſed the Sanctuary from the eyes and approach of the people, who were permitted to goe no farther then the court of the Jews, and only the Prieſts admitted into the Sanctuary. For thus the manner was, the θυμιατήριον, or altar of incenſe was within the Sanctuary, and thither the Prieſts went daily and offered incenſe, the people mean while ſtaying without, and praying every one privately by himſelf, (the thing noted by the ſilence in heaven for halfe an hour, Rev. 8. 1.) And thoſe prayers of the people for ſupply of their ſeverall wants were thus offered up by the Prieſt with that incenſe of his that went up to heaven (ſee c. 1. 10. d.) But the people themſelves ſtaid without, and might not enter or look in there, that veile, or wall, or ſcreen made a full ſeparation of one from the other. And as the Sanctuary was encloſed or ſeparated from the court, ſo was the Holy of Holies encloſed from the Sanctuary, and thither none entred but the high prieſt once a year, and ſo there was a ſecond veile. That this is here meant, is no way ſpecified, or deducible from any circumſtances of the ſtory in any of the Goſpels, yet may be thought moſt probable from one intimation of the author to the Hebrews, c. 10. 20. where our way to heaven is ſaid to be conſecrated by Chriſt by the veile, that is his fleſh. There as the veile is made a type of Chriſts fleſh, and being ſo, the rending of the veile will be a fit ſolemnity of the piercing and crucifying Chriſts fleſh, ſo that veile is clearly the ſecond veile, entring into the ἅγια the holies, v. 19. i. e. the holy of holies, as appears by c. 9. 8. and 12. And if that were here meant, then the ſignificancy is not only the approaching deſtruction of all the Jewiſh rites, but alſo that that unapproachable place, a type of heaven, was now laid open to all true Chriſtians, and that in the mean time there is liberty to approach unto God in prayer allowed to them; and again that Chriſt not now once a year, as the high prieſt, but once, for ever, there to continue, entred into the holy of holies, i. e. beyond the Sanctuary, the common place of all the Prieſts (and ſo the type of heaven, where all the Angels and Saints are) even into the inmoſt adytum at the right hand of God, farre above all Angels, &c. a place of preeminence peculiar to him.

CHAP. XXIV.

Paraphraſe.

1. NOW upon the firſt day of the week, very early in the morning, [they] came unto the ſepulchre, bringing the ſpices, which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

1. Mary Magdalen &c. Mat. 27. 1. and here v. 10.

2. And they found the ſtone rolled away from the ſepulchre.

3. And they entred in, and found not the body of the Lord Jeſus.

4. And it came to paſſe, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold two men ſtood by them in ſhining garments.

5. And as they were afraid, [and bowed down their faces to the earth, they ſaid unto them, Why ſeek yee the living among the dead?]

5. And did obeyſance to them, they asked them, ſaying, Do you ſearch in a tombe or grave for one that is riſen from the dead?

6. He is not here, but is riſen; Remember how he ſpake unto you when he was yet in Galilee,

Mat. 17. 23.

7. Saying, The ſon of man muſt be [delivered into the hands of ſinfull men,] and be crucified, and the third day riſe again.

7. put to death by the heathens, Romans

8. And they remembred his words.

9. And returned from the ſepulchre, and told all theſe things unto the eleven and to all [the reſt.]

9. the other diſciples of Chriſt, which were not of that number.

10. It was Mary Magdalen, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told theſe things unto the Apoſtles.

11. And their words ſeemed to them as idle tales, and they beleived them not.

12. Then aroſe Peter, and ran unto the ſepulchre, and ſtooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themſelves, [and * departed, wondring in himſelf at that which was come to paſſe.]

* or, departed to his own abode, wondring at that

12. and returned to the place, from whence he came, and where he abode, being much amazed to ſee the body gone out of the grave. See note on Joh. 20. 2.

13. And behold, two of them went that ſame day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jeruſalem about threeſcore furlongs.

Mar. 16. 12.

14. And they talked together of all theſe things which had happened.

15. And it came to paſſe that while they communed together, and reaſoned, Jeſus himſelf [drew near and went with them.]

15. joyned himſelf to their company.

16. But their eyes were held, that they ſhould not know him.]

16. And at firſt through Gods will ſo diſpoſing it, they diſcerned not that it was Jeſus.

17. And he ſaid unto them, What manner of communications are theſe that ye have one to another, as ye walke, and are ſad?

18. And the one of them, whoſe name was [a] Cleophas, anſwering ſaid unto him, Art thou onely a ſtranger in Jeruſalem, and haſt not known the things, [that are come to paſſe there in theſe days?]

18. that are notoriouſly come to paſſe there, and talkt of by all at this time?

19. And he ſaid unto them, What things? And they ſaid unto him, Concerning Jeſus of Nazareth, which was a Prophet, mighty [in deed and word before God] and all the people.

19. in miracles and in doctrine approved by God.

20. And how the chief prieſts and our rulers delivered him [to be condemned to death, and] have crucified him.

20. to the Roman procurator, accuſed him and required him to be put death, and accordingly at laſt they

21. But we truſted that it had been he, which ſhould have redeemed Iſrael. And beſide all this, to day is the third day ſince theſe things were done.]

21. But we were full of hope that hee had been the Meſſias ſo long expected by us. And this being the third day ſince his crucifixion,

22. Yea and certain women alſo of our company made us aſtoniſhed, which were early at the ſepulchre,]

22. ſome women that were followers of him together with us, and that were this morning at the monument, wherein he was laid, came and told us wonderfull things,

23. And

23. And when they found not his body, they came, ſaying that they had alſo ſeen a viſion of Angels, which ſaid that he was alive.]

23. How that they found not his body there, but met with Angels which told them, that he was riſen from the dead.

24. And certain of them which were with us] went to the ſepulchre, and found it even ſo as the women had ſaid, but him they ſaw not.

24. And ſome of the twelve diſciples, Peter and John,

25. Then he ſaid unto them, O fools, and ſlow of heart, to beleive all that the prophets have ſpoken.

26. Ought not Chriſt to have ſuffered theſe things, and to enter into his glory?]

26. Is it not by thoſe prophets foretold to be decreed by God, that the Meſſias ſhould be deſpiſed by men and ſlaughtered by them, Iſa. 53. 8. before he ſhould enter on his kingdome?

27. And beginning at Moſes, and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the ſcriptures the things concerning himſelf.

28. And they drew nigh unto the village whither they went, and he made as though he would have gone farther.

29. But they conſtrained him, ſaying, Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is farre ſpent, and he went in to tarry with them.

30. And it came to paſſe, as he ſate at meat with them, he [took bread, and bleſſed it, and brake, and gave to them.]

30. after the manner of the maſter of the family bleſſed the meat, and carved, and diſtributed it to them.

31. And their eyes were opened, and they knew him, and he vaniſhed out of their ſights.]

31. Which occaſioned (ſee v. 35.) their firſt ſuſpicion that it was Chriſt, And preſently they diſcern'd that it was very he, And he immediately diſappeared, in what manner or by what means it is not known.

32. And they ſaid one to another, [Did not our heart burn within us while] he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the ſcriptures?

32. Was there not an unuſuall warmth of affections and paſſion upon us all the time that

33. And they roſe up the ſame houre, and returned to Jeruſalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that [were with them,]

33. uſed to aſſociate with them,

34. Saying,] The Lord is riſen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

34. And aſſoon as they came, told them, ſaying, See 1 Cor. 15. 5.

35. And they told what things were done in the way, and how [he was known of them in breaking of bread.]

35. by his bleſſing and carving the meat ver. 30. they came to diſcern him to be Chriſt, not knowing it a long time.

36. And as they thus ſpake, Jeſus himſelf ſtood in the midſt of them, and ſaith unto them, Peace be unto you.

37. But they were terrified and affrighted, and ſuppoſed that they had ſeen a ſpirit.]

37. And they were in a terrible fright, thinking it had been a viſion of ſome ſpirit, without any reall body joyned unto it.

38. And he ſaid unto them, Why are ye troubled, and why doe [thoughts ariſe in your hearts?]

38. yee doubt or ſuſpect me to be a ſpirit without a body?

39. Behold my hands and my feet, that [it is I my ſelf:] handle me and ſee, for a ſpirit hath not fleſh and bones, as ye ſee me have.

39. it is very I, body and ſoul together:

40. And when he had thus ſpoken, he [ſhewed them his hands and his feet.]

40. gave them leave to ſee, and feel the prints of the nails in his hands and feet.

41. And while they yet beleived not for joy, and wondred, He ſaid unto them, Have ye here any meat?]

41. And the greater and more tranſporting their joy was, the leſſe confident were they of the truth of it, and therefore to confirm them in the certain beleif of it, he called for ſome meat.

42. And they gave him a piece of a broiled fiſh, and of an honey comb.

43. And he took it, and did eat before them.

44. And he ſaid unto them, [These are the words which I ſaid unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things muſt be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moſes, and in the prophets, and in the Pſalms concerning me.]

44. What you now ſee I did foretel when I was among you, before my crucifixion, and is agreeable to all the ſeverall images and predictions of me in all the books of God, which were of neceſſity to be fulfilled.

45. Then opened he their underſtanding, that they might underſtand the ſcriptures.]

45. Then by the ſpeciall operation of his ſpirit, he gave them the underſtanding of the Scriptures, in thoſe things eſpecially, which concerned the Meſſias.

46. And ſaid unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Chriſt to ſuffer, and to riſe from the dead the third day.

47. And that repentance and remiſſion of ſinnes ſhould be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jeruſalem.

48. And ye are witneſſes of theſe things.]

46, 47, 48. The ſumme of which he declared to be this, that the Meſſias was thus to be put to death, and riſe again, and that his Apoſtles, the witneſſes thereof, ſhould after his reſurrection preach repentance, and upon that, remiſſion of ſinnes, to Jeruſalem, and through all Judæa, firſt, and then to all the nations of the world.

49. And

59. And behold, I ſend the promiſe of my Father upon you, but tarry ye in the city of Jeruſalem, untill ye be indued with power from on High.] 49. To which end he promiſed immediately to ſend them the holy Spirit (promiſed by God the Father) to deſcend from heaven upon every one of them, and ſo to inſtall them to ſucceed him in his office, till which time he commanded them all to ſtay, and not to ſtirre out of Jeruſalem.

50. And he led them out as farre as to Bethany, and he lift up his hands, and bleſſed them.

51. And it came to paſſe, while he bleſſed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. Act. 1. 9.

52. And they worſhipped him, and returned to Jeruſalem with great joy.

53. And they were [continually in the Temple,] praiſing and bleſſing God. Amen. 53. conſtantly at the times of devotion (ſee note on Act. 1. c.) in ſome of the chambers of the Temple,

CHAP. I.

Paraphraſe.

1. IN the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God.

1,2. In the beginning of the world before all time, before any thing was created, the ſon of God had a ſubſiſtence, and that ſubſiſtence with his Father of whom he was begotten from all eternity, and was himſelf eternall God, and being by his Father in his eternall purpoſe deſign'd to be the Meſſias, who was among the Jewes known by the title of the Word of God, (ſee note on Lu. 1. b.) he is here fitly expreſt by that title, The word.

2. The ſame was in the beginning with God.]

3. All things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made.]

3. This eternall word of God I mean by which all things were at firſt created.

4. In him was life, and the life was the light of men.]

4. He brought with him that doctrine which is worthily called life c.6.63. and 12.50. becauſe it leads to holy life here, ſuch as God will be ſure to accept of through Chriſt, and to reward eternally (whereas the law was the bringing in of death) ſee c.10.10. and this vivificall doctrine was the means deſigned by God to lead and enlighten all mankind, eſpecially the Jewes, to tell them their duty, and therefore is called the light of life, c.8.12.

* received, or, apprehended, καταλαμβάνω.

5. And the light ſhineth in darkneſſe, and the darkneſſe * comprehended it not.]

5. Though through the darkneſſe of mens hearts, the greateſt part of the Jewes themſelves had no fruit or benefit by it.

6. There was a man ſent from God,] whoſe name was John.

6. There came a man with commiſſion from God to preach repentance to the Jewes, † teſtimony μαρτυρία

7. The ſame came for a † witneſſe to bear witneſſe of the light, that all men through him might beleive.]

7. He was by God ſent on purpoſe to teſtifie that Chriſt was the Meſſias, the true teacher ſent from heaven, that ſo by that teſtimony of his, all men might beleive on him.

8. He was not that light, but was ſent to] bear witneſſe of that light.

8. This John was not the Meſſias, but the whole end of his miſſion into the world was to * which coming into the world enlightneth every man,

9. That was the true light * which lighteth every man [a] that cometh into the world.]

9. That word which now I ſpeak of, i.e. Chriſt, is that true light, eminently that, which light is defined to be, able to refreſh and warm the coldeſt, and to enlighten the darkeſt heart, And he, as the ſun after a long darkneſſe of night, is now riſen in our hemiſphere (ſee v.10. and c.9.5. and 12.46.) and being manifeſted to the world, ſhineth forth to every man therein. a.

10. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.]

10. This word was from the beginning in the world, in ſo eminent a manner, that indeed the world was made by him, but the generality of men did not take notice of him.

11. He came unto his own, and his own received him not.]

11. And therefore there being one peculiar nation, the Jewes, which were more fully then all the world beſides, inſtructed in this truth, he at laſt came to this people, was pleaſed to be born and live, and doe miracles among them, and theſe, that were his own people, did not entertain him as ſent from God, but rejected and put him to death.

12. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the ſons of God, even to them that beleive on his name,]

12. But all that received, i.e. beleived on him, were by him advanced to be the adopted ſons of God.

13. Which were born not of [b] blood, nor of the will of the fleſh, nor of the will of man, but of God.]

13. To wit, thoſe which live according to the will of God, and neither the naturall nor carnall, nor bare morall principle. b.

†or, had his tabernacle * from, παρὰ

14. And the word was made fleſh, and [c] † dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten * of the Father) full of grace and truth.]

14. And this eternall word was born in humane fleſh, aſſumed our nature, and in that fleſh of ours, as in a tabernacle, appeared among us moſt gloriouſly, in ſuch a manner as was not competible to any but the one eternall ſon of God. And whereas the former tabernacle, wherein God was pleaſed to dwell, had in it the law, that miniſtration only of death, 2 Cor. 3. 7. precepts of exact obedience, he now in the tabernacle of his fleſh by his incarnation and paſſion &c. is all full of grace, i.e. exceeding mercy: and whereas the whole buſineſſe of that tabernacle was nothing but ſhadowes, he hath brought the ſubſtance and truth with him, which was meant by all thoſe ſhadowes, the inward purity ſhadowed by the legall precepts of circumciſion, &c. and ſpirituall and eternall promiſes, in ſtead of thoſe carnall or temporall, ſee v.17. c.

* This was he, Τοῦτ' ἦν

15. John bare witneſſe of him, and cried, ſaying, * This is he of whom I ſpake, He that cometh after me, is preferred before me, for he [d] was before me.]

15. John the Baptiſt teſtified and proclaimed concerning him, ſaying, He that followes me, whoſe forerunner I am, hath been, and muſt alwaies be preferred infinitely before me, For although he appears after me among you in reſpect of his birth and entring on his office, yet he had a being long before me, And this was moſt truly ſaid of the Baptiſt; For he was before the creation of the world v.1, 3. Col.1.17. d.

16. And being full of all graces, excellencies, perfections, he hath communicated them to us in that degree, as is neceſſary for us, and in proportion to his abundant charity and goodneſſe toward us, we Chriſtians which are his body, or fellow-members of his humane nature, receive grace and mercy flowing from him to us, (ſee ver. 14. and note on 1 Pet. 3. d. and Act. 2. e.)

16. And of his fulneſſe have we all received, and grace for grace.]

17. For though the Law were given by Moſes from God long agoe, yet the Goſpel, called Grace v. 14. (ſee note on Heb. 13. b.) as it is oppoſed to the ſeverity and rigour of the law; and truth, as oppoſite to the ſhadowes and ceremonies of the law, was to be brought in by Jeſus Chriſt.

17. For the law was given by Moſes, but grace and truth came by Jeſus Chriſt.]

18. God is invisible, and not approachable by us, and ſo his will, and the knowledge of his attributes cannot be conveighed to us but by ſome interceſſor, and of this ſort none can be comparable to Chriſt Jeſus, who is next unto the Father and moſt dearly beloved by him, and knowes moſt of his mind (ſee note on Mat. 8. g.) and his end of coming into the world was to declare this unto us.

18. No man hath ſeen God at any time; The only begotten ſon, which is in the boſome of the Father he hath declared him.]

19,20. Now when the Jewes ſent meſſengers to John Baptiſt as he was preaching and baptizing, to know who he was, this was conſtantly his anſwer, that he was not the Meſſias prophecied of, and ſo long expected by them.

19. And this is the record of John, when the Jewes ſent Prieſts and Levites from Jeruſalem to ask him, Who art thou?

20. And he confeſſed and denied not, but confeſſed, I am not the Chriſt.]

21. No nor Elias, no nor the prophet prophecied of, Deut. 18. 15. whom the Jewes expected before Elias, as him before the Meſſias.

21. And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he ſaith, I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he anſwered, No.]

22. Then ſaid they unto him, What art thou? that we may give an anſwer to them that ſent us. What ſayeſt thou of thy ſelf?

23. he that was prophecied of by Eſaias in thoſe words, Iſa. 40. 3. (ſee Mat. 3. 3.) The voice of one &c.

23. He ſaid, I am [the voice of one crying in the wilderneſſe, Make ſtreight the way of the Lord, as ſaid the prophet Eſaias.]

24. And they which were ſent were of the Phariſees.

25. Why then doſt thou receive diſciples and proſelytes, or followers, and that after the ſolemn manner of receiving proſelytes, by way of baptiſme, or waſhing,

25. And they asked him and ſaid unto him, [Why baptizeſt thou then,] if thou be not that Chriſt, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

26. was not long ſince among you, one of whom you took no notice, i.e. Chriſt: ſee note d.

26. John anſwered them, ſaying, I baptize you with water, but * there [ſtandeth one among you, whom ye know not,]

* in the midſt of you ſtood one whom yee knew not. μέσος ὑμῶν ἕστηκεν.

27. whoſe diſciple I am not worthy to be: ſee Mat. 3. g.

27. He it is, who coming after me, is preferred before me, [whoſe ſhooes latchet I am not worthy to unlooſe †.]

† He ſhall baptize you with the holy Ghoſt, & with fire. So antient copies adde here, Ἐκείνου δεῖ &c.

28. Theſe things were done in * Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

* Bethany, for the antient MS. in the King's Library reads Βηθανίᾳ, and ſo ſome others,

29. The day after the return of the Phariſees, John ſeeing Jeſus coming to him, ſaid, Behold the perſon ſent from God, as a lamb prepared for the ſlaughter, (in whom are ſumm'd up and completed all the typicall Moſaicall preſcriptions of lambs to be ſacrificed, either in their daily ſacrifices, or at the paſſover) who ſhall thereby obtain pardon from God, for that ſinne, that all the world is engaged in, on condition they now reform at his coming.

e.

29. [c] The next day John ſeeth Jeſus coming unto him, and ſaith, Behold the lamb of God which taketh away the ſinne of the world.]

30. See v. 15. note c.

30. This is he of whom I ſaid, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me, for he was before me.]

31. And though I was not able to diſcriminate him from others, yet a little before his baptiſme it was revealed to me (as appears Mat. 3. 14.) and at his baptiſme by the deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon him Mat. 3. 16. I was clearly told it, that he was the Meſſias which was to come into the world; And the grand deſigne of my coming and gathering diſciples was by that means to make this people take notice of, and receive Chriſt.

31. And I knew him not; but that he ſhould be made manifeſt to Iſrael, therefore am I come baptizing with water.]

See note on Mat. 3. d.

32. And John bare record, ſaying, I ſaw the Spirit deſcending * from heaven [like a dove,] and it abode upon him.

* as a dove out of heaven, and he ἀπὸ οὐρανοῦ περιστερὰν καὶ ἔμεινεν, ἐπ' αὐτόν

33. Untill then I knew not which was he, only this ſigne was given me, that on whomſoever I ſaw the Spirit deſcend, that was the Meſſias, who in the receiving of his proſelytes doth not only uſe the known ceremony of water, but moreover ſends down the Spirit on them, (ſee note on Act. 1. a.)

33. And I knew him not: but he that ſent me to baptize with water, the ſame ſaid unto me, Upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit deſcending and remaining upon him, the ſame is he which baptizeth with the holy Ghoſt.]

34. By which premiſes it follows, that my teſtimony of Chriſt that he is the ſon of God, is no more then what I ſaw with mine eyes, and heard diſtinctly affirmed from heaven, theſe words being delivered by voice from heaven at that time of the holy Ghoſt's deſcending on him, This is my beloved ſon &c. Mat. 3. 17.

34. And I ſaw and bare record that this is the Son of God.]

35. The next day again after this (ſee note d.) John having two of his diſciples with him,

35. Again the next day after, John ſtood and two of his diſciples,]

36. As Jeſus paſſed along, John, by his eye faſtned on him, demonſtrating, whom he meant, ſaid again the ſame words that before, ver. 29. in the hearing of thoſe two diſciples of his, Behold &c.

36. And looking upon Jeſus as he walked, he ſaith, Behold the Lamb of God.]

37. And

37. And the two diſciples heard him ſpeak, and they followed Jeſus.]

37. Hereupon thoſe two diſciples hearing him give that teſtimony of Jeſus, parted from him and followed Jeſus.

38. Then Jeſus turned and ſaw them following, and ſaith unto them, [What ſeek ye?] They ſaid unto him, Rabbi, (which is to ſay, being interpreted, Maſter) where dwelleſt thou?

38. what would ye have?

39. He ſaith unto them, Come and ſee. They came and ſaw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day, for it was about [the tenth houre.]

39. foure in the afternoon.

* had heard from John, and ἀκούσαντων παρὰ Ἰωάννου ἢ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ:

40. One of the two which * heard John ſpeak and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.]

40. One of the two that heard thoſe words of John concerning Jeſus, and which thereupon followed Jeſus v.37. was that Andrew which was brother to Simon after ſurnamed Peter. (And the other moſt probably John, the writer of this Goſpel, who uſeth not to name himſelf, when the ſtory would direct to it.)

41. He firſt findeth his own brother Simon, and ſaith unto him, We have found the Meſſias, which is, being interpreted, the * Chriſt.]

Andrew was the firſt that revealed this to his brother Simon, ſaying, We have met and talked with the Meſſias, or, as in Greek he is called, the Chriſt, i.e. Gods anointed ſent by him with ſpeciall Commiſſion from heaven, whom we have long expected as the Redeemer of Iſrael.

42. And he [f brought him] to Jeſus: And when Jeſus beheld him, he ſaid, Thou art Simon the ſon of * Jona, thou ſhalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a ſtone.

* John, (ſee Luk. 3. 30.) for other antient copies read Ἰωάννου

42. And Andrew conducted Simon; ſee Mat. 16. f. f.

43. The day following, Jeſus would goe forth] into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and ſaith unto him, Follow me.

43. The next day after that mention'd ver. 35. (ſee note d.) Jeſus was paſſing

44. Now Philip was of Bethſaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

45. Philip findeth Nathaneel, and ſaith unto him, We have found [him of whom Moſes in the law, and the prophets did write, Jeſus of Nazareth, the ſon of Joſeph.]

45. the Meſſias to come, foretold by Moſes, and the prophets, a man like one of us, by name Jeſus, the ſon of Joſeph, that dwells at Nazareth in Galilee.

46. And Nathaneel ſaid unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip ſaith unto him, Come and ſee.]

46. Nathaneel argued againſt this from a known obſervation among the Jewes, that Nazareth being in Galilee, and Galilee, as they conceived, looked on by God as a mean deſpicable place, out of which, ſay they c.8.52. never any prophet aroſe, it was incredible that any one born in Nazareth ſhould be the Meſſias. To this deceivable arguing Philip gives no other anſwer then this, that if he would goe to him, and ſee and hear him, he would ſoon be of another mind.

47. Jeſus ſaw Nathaneel coming to him, and ſaith of him, Behold an Iſraelite indeed, in whom is no guile.]

47. As Nathaneel made his approach to Jeſus, aſſoon as he was within diſtance of hearing him, Jeſus ſaid, Lo here is a man which is truly an Iſraelite, a man of that ſimplicity and integrity that is much valued with God, of that temper deſcribed in Jacob, Gen. 25. 27.

48. Nathaneel ſaid unto him, Whence knoweſt thou me? Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou waſt under the fig-tree, I ſaw thee.

49. Nathaneel anſwered and ſaith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the ſon of God, thou art the [King of Iſrael.]

49. promiſed Meſſias deſcribed to us as a King.

50. Jeſus anſwered and ſaith unto him, Becauſe I ſaid unto thee, I ſaw thee under the fig-tree, beleiveſt thou? thou ſhalt ſee greater things then theſe.

51. And he ſaith unto him, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, [* Hereafter ye ſhall ſee heaven open, and the Angels of God aſcending and deſcending upon the ſon of man.]

51. Ere long (ſee note on Mat. 23. i.) ye ſhall ſee the heaven opened to receive me up thither, and the holy Angels of God viſibly appearing to you and attending on me, Act. 1. 9, 10. after the manner that in the viſion they once appeared unto Jacob.

Notes on Chap. 1.

3. Ἐρχόμενον εἰς τὸν κόσμον,

That ἐρχόμενον here may be the nominative caſe in the neuter gender, and ſo agree with [ὃ which] as well as the accuſative Maſculine, and ſo agree with [πάντα ἄνθρωπον every man] is evident. And that it is ſo, may appear by the title, by which Chriſt (that is meant by the light, which is the antecedent to [ὃ which]) is ſo frequently expreſt in Scripture, that of [he that cometh] or cometh into the world. Of the title ὁ ἐρχόμενος, ſee Mat. 11. note a. And for this encreaſe of it, ἐρχόμενος εἰς τὸν κόσμον, coming into the world, ſee Joh. 12. 46. I came a light into the world, directly parallel with this here. Only here it is to be obſerved, that this coming into the world, doth not referre to Chriſts birth in the world, but to the manifeſtation of him to the world, his entring on his office of preaching the will of God to them, So as his coming may be all one with his being ſent, i.e. his Commiſſion from God to declare his will unto the world, as Joh. 8. 42. I came not of my ſelf but he ſent me. So c. 18. 37. For this was I born, and for this I came into the world, where as coming into the world] differs from birth, ſo it is in the next words ſpecified, what it peculiarly belongs to, I came into the world that I may bear witneſſe to the truth. Thus it is uſed in the other word [ſent] of the Apoſtles, where it cannot poſſibly be underſtood of their birth, Joh. 17. 18. As thou haſt ſent me into the world, ſo alſo have I ſent them into the world. So 1 Tim. 1. 15. Jeſus Chriſt came into the world, & here Ioh 11. 27. I beleive that thou art Chriſt the ſon of God. ὁ εἰς τὸν κόσμον ἐρχόμενος that cometh into the world, which was certainly deſigned by Martha as an expreſſion of her beleif that he was the Meſſias.

Ἀνίστημι μι

b. Γεννᾶσθαι ἐκ Θεοῦ

To be born of any thing ſignifies to receive his beginning or principle of life and motion from any thing: and ſo here to be born of God] is to have received ſome ſpeciall influence from him, and proportionably to be a ſon of God is that ſtate which is anſwerable to ſuch a principle, a life proportionable to ſuch a beginning, that higher pitch of Chriſtian living now under the Goſpel. And in oppoſition to that, 1. thoſe that are born of blood (which is the livelyeſt expreſſion of our corrupt birth, or naturall eſtate) are thoſe that live the ἀνθρώπου καὶ πρώτην βίον, that natural, heathen, firſt life, ſaith Clemens Alexandrinus, the life of the natural man: 2. thoſe that are born of the will of the fleſh, are carnal men, thoſe that follow their own vicious carnal will; and 3. thoſe that are born of the will of man (though literally that may note thoſe that are adopted by man, yet) by way of accommodation, and ſo as may be agreeable to the former phraſes, they ſeem to be thoſe, that by the influences of that higher rational principle, live according to the rules of rational nature, i. e. of unregenerate morality, to which the rules of Chriſt's law, ſuperadding much of light and perfection, the beleivers and receivers of Chriſt, are here defined to be thoſe, that live according to thoſe rules, that higher principle, (and ſo are ſaid to be born of God) and not according to any of theſe lower ſtates.

c. Ἔκλυσεν

What is meant by Gods being ſaid to be preſent or to appear] in the Old Teſtament, hath been expreſt Mat. 3. k. to wit that the Angels, which are the courtiers of heaven doe appear (as they are wont to doe) in ſome ſhining glorious manner. This is wont by the Hebrews to be called שְׁכִינָה, the habitation, or preſence of God, and in Greek δόξα glory, and ἐπιφάνεια appearing. So Num. 16. 10. the glory of the Lord appeared, and v. 42. the clond covered, and the glory appeared. And God ſpeaks from thence. So when the glory is ſaid to be departed from Iſrael 1 Sam 4. 21. 'tis clear that by glory is meant the preſence of God, which was ſignified by the Ark, and ſo in many other places, ſee note on 1 Pet. 4. c. and 2 Pet. 1. 3. and 17. Rom. 9. b. So Rev. 21. when it had been ſaid of the New Jeruſalem that 'twas σκηνὴ the Tabernacle of God with us, v. 3. that being repeated again v. 11. is ſaid in theſe words, ἔχουσα δόξαν τοῦ Θεοῦ, having the glory of God. See Rev. 21. 23. alſo. And becauſe this appearance of God in the fleſh was the moſt viſible, permanent, and ſo remarkable appearance, wherein he ever exhibited himſelf among us, therefore it is that here 'tis expreſt (as it were by the Schechina) by ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, he had his Tabernacle pitcht among us (the Greek σκηνόω coming immediately from the Hebrew שכן and differing from it only by the Greek termination) agreeable to that prophecy of Noah, Gen. 9. 27. in the Targums underſtanding of it, that God ſhould dwell in the tents of Sem, i. e. ſaith that Chaldee Paraphraſt, that his Schechina ſhould inhabit in the tabernacle of Sem. The ſame is expreſt here again by δόξα in the other part of the verſe, the glory (and ſo moſt probably, 1 Pet. 4. 14. and Joh. 12. 4.) which is the other expreſſion of the preſence of the divine majeſty, and accordingly Procopius on Iſa. c. 40. interprets δόξαν κυρίου, τὸν υἱὸν, the glory of the Lord to be the ſon, who, ſaith he, is above all creatures, of the ſame divinity with the father, but eſpecially being man is capable of this title, Σωματουργῶν ἀεὶ καὶ τὴν κλῆσιν μεταποιῶν τῷ ῥήματι, γενόμενος πᾶσι σωτήριος, &c. always working miracles, and transforming the creature by his word, and bringing ſalvation to all at this his appearance, Tit. 2. 11. For though this incarnation of Chriſt was the greateſt humbling of him, yet was it nevertheleſſe the greateſt manifeſtation of his glory, never ſo much of the divine power and glory was ſeen upon the earth, as in this. Thus Joh. 2. 11. Chriſt's working miracles is ſaid to be the means of manifeſting his glory, i. e. of evidencing the inhabitation of the Godhead in them.

d. Πρωτος

What is the notion of the word [πρῶτος firſt] in the New Teſtament, may here be fitly defined. 1. It ſignifies in many places (being ſpoken of a perſon or perſons, eſpecially when it hath a genitive caſe annext to it) a ruler or principal perſon. So Mar. 6. 21. Πρώτοις τῆς Γαλιλαίας the principal men of Galilee. So Lu. 19. 47. πρῶτοι τοῦ λαοῦ, the Rulers or Elders of the people. So Acts 13. 50. πρῶτοι τῆς πόλεως, the governours of the city. So Acts 28. 7. πρῶτος τῆς νήσου the ruler of the Iſland, and v. 17. πρῶτοι τῶν Ἰουδαίων, the rulers of the Jews, i. e. of their conſiſtory, which they then had at Rome. In this ſenſe the phraſe [πρῶτός μου] cannot be taken here, ſo as to be rendred [my Lord, my Prince, or my Captain] for that is certainly the meaning of the phraſe precedent [ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονεν] he was preferred before me] as will appear by v. 27. compared with Mat. 3. 11. Mar. 1. 7. Lu. 3. 16. There by the mention of the ſhoos, &c. 'tis plain, that thoſe foure places are parallel, and that which is ἔμπροσθέν μου γέγονεν, was preferred before me] in this, is by all the other Evangeliſts rendred ἰσχυρότερός μου ἐστὶν, is ſtronger then I. And therefore S. Chryſoſtome here interprets ἔμπροσθέν μου, before me, by λαμπρότερος, ἀνωτέρω, more excellent, more honourable. From this clear notion of [ἔμπροσθεν] precedent, for priority of dignity, will depend the juſt notion of πρῶτός μου, annext thereto by the cauſal [ὅτι for] as the proof of the former, and ſo ſomewhat different from it, or elſe it would be the proving of idem per idem, the ſame by it's ſelf. Thence it followes, that ἔμπροσθεν] noting Chriſt's dignity above Johns, πρῶτός μου, muſt not be rendred in that ſenſe, and ſo it remains, that it be referred to priority of time, ὅτι πρῶτός μου ἦν, for (although he was born after me, and not yet entred on his office, yet) he was before me, he had a being long, even infinitely before me. The onely exception againſt this rendring of [πρῶτος] is that the word is of the ſuperlative degree, not of the comparative. But that is eaſily anſwered, by remembring, that in the New Teſtament the degrees of compariſon are promiſcuouſly uſed, one taken for another, and that on occaſion of the Hebrew idiome, which hath not thoſe degrees of compariſon, which other languages have. Thus is [μία one] uſed for πρώτη firſt Lu. 24. 1. and Mic. others the like. And thus is πρῶτος firſt in the ſuperlative uſed for the comparative [πρότερος former] ſo 'tis evidently in this Goſpel, c. 15. 18. ὑμῶν πρῶτον ἐμίσησεν, the world hated me before you, c. 20. 8. ὁ ἐλθὼν πρῶτος he that came firſt, ſignifies him that came before Peter v. 3. and ſo is taken for the comparative πρότερος. And ſo when Chriſt is called the πρωτότοκος πάσης κτίσεως, Col. 1. 15. literally the firſt born of all the creation, it muſt be

be interpreted, as it is in the Nicene Creed, according to this notion of πρῶτοι, begotten of his father before the whole creation, or, as it followes v. 17. πρὸ πάντων, he is before all things. Thus is the word used sometimes in humane Greek authors also, as b Ὅτι πρώτην Δαρεῖον in * Aristophanes, before Darius: and that it must be so here appears by the conjunction of μοῦ to it, which (as by being in the genitive case, it is fit to be joyned with a word of the comparative degree, so) by being of a single person, uncapable of distribution or plurality, cannot belong to a superlative.

c. Ἡ ἐπαύριον signifies here the day immediately
d Ἐπαύριον following, not (according to the latitude of the Hebrew מָחָר) the morrow, i. e. any part of the following time: For thus I conceive, the whole series and course of this story in S. John is to be made up, As in the other Evangelists Mat. 3. 11. Mar. 1. 7. Lu. 3. 16. the testimonies of John Baptist concerning Christ are set down, before Christ was particularly made known unto him, So now, the Spirit having visibly descended on him at his baptisme (as the same Evangelists agree in relating) this Evangelist farther mentions John Baptist's subsequent testimonies of him, founded in that demonstration of the Spirit then descending on him. Such is that mention'd ver. 15. where the Baptist saith, This was he that I spake of, This person on whom the Spirit so visibly descended after my baptizing of him, was he to whom my former obscurer testimonies belonged, And this seems to have been delivered by the Baptist at the time of Christ's absence in the wilderness 40 daies, (set down by the other Evangelists) and so all that second testimony, (mention'd v. 19. &c. to v. 28.) where of him he saith ver. 26. μέσος ὑμῶν ἕστηκεν, ὃν ὑμεῖς οὐκ οἴδατε, there stood among you one whom ye knew not, referring again to that time of Christ's being baptiz'd of John, At wch time he saw (i. e. I conceive, John Baptist saw) the Spirit descend upon him, Mat. 3. 16. and so again Mar. 1. 10. εὐθὺς ἀναβαίνων, John coming out of the water with him, from baptizing him, saw the heavens opened &c. noting this descent of the Spirit upon him to have been particularly seen by this Baptist, by which he was enabled thus to testifie of him. This second testimony of John's was caused by the Jewes sending to him from Jerusalem, to know whether John were the Messias or no, and this still in the time of Christ's absence, and then tis added τῇ ἐπαύριον, the day after the return of those messengers, the day after this testimony, and answer of his to the Jewes, Jesus came back from the desert to Jordan, where John was, and there John sees him, v. 29. and testifies again of him at large, v. 35. And the next day after this is the beginning of a new account, v. 35. and again τῇ ἐπαύριον v. 44. the next day is the second day of that new account, and then 'tis added distinctly, τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τρίτῃ, c. 2. 1. on the third day.

f. What is here said of Andrew's and Peter's coming to Christ was sometime before their forsaking their trades, and following him in the other Gospels, For here the next day after Christ's returning from the wilderness to Jordan, John Baptist is standing still ver. 35. and two disciples with him, One of them was Andrew v. 40. John seeing Christ points to him in their hearing, and by so doing doth in a manner put them off from continuing with him, and fastens them on Christ, saying, Behold the Lamb of God, &c. v. 36. Andrew and the other (who very probably was John the writer of this Gospel, who therefore names the circumstances of the time of Day, ver. 40. and the very words that past so punctually, but, after his manner in other places, conceals his name) goe presently to Christ and ask him where he abides, follow him thither, spend some time with him that evening; soon after that Andrew reveals this to Simon, and both of them together goe to Christ, v. 42. Assoon as Christ saw them, he told Simon, that his name was Simon, and that he was the son of Jona or John, and that his name should be changed into a Syriack word, that signified a stone, i. e. Κηφᾶς, or Πέτρος in Greek, noting that he should be built upon (or added to) Christ, superstructed on that great corner stone (in this building, the Church, which was now to be erected,) and in his choosing and sending out Apostles should be the first, πρῶτος Σίμων Mat. 10. 2. Now of these three, Andrew and that other πρῶτος disciple (probably John) and Peter, none did immediately joyne themselves to Christ, so as to accompany him as yet, but of this sort, the first that we find, is Philip, v. 44. whom Christ calls (in his journey to Galilee) to follow or goe along with him (and therefore the πρωτοκλησία the priviledge of their first call belongs to him) He doth so, and then goes a little way off to Nathanael, and brings him to Christ, v. 43. and he is received by Christ to be a disciple also (whether chosen after to be one of the Apostles under the name of Bartholomew, who Βαρθολ. is mostly, and, in the Gospels, constantly joyned to μαθητ. Philip, and may be but the expression of Nathanael, by signifying him the son of Tholomee, as Simon is called Bar i. e. son of Jonah, or John, it is not certain, though that he was so, 'tis very probable by Joh. 21. 22. where Nathanael of Cana in Galilee is named with the rest of the disciples, who who were all Apostles.) After this Christ goes into Cana of Galilee to the marriage there, c. 2. he and his disciples with him v. 2. which notes that he had such constant followers; Then he and his disciples went to Capernaum, thence to Jerusalem at the Passover, v. 13. and there cast out the buyers and sellers out of the Temple. Then after the discourse with Nicodemus c. 3. Jesus and his disciples went into Judea, and continued there and baptized v. 22. (i. e. his disciples baptized, though he did not, ch. 4. 2. which signifies sure that he now had disciples) at which time 'tis said that John baptized in Ænon, v. 23. and some farther time it was before John was put in prison, for after this, 'tis said, as yet he was not, c. 3. 14. But when John was imprisoned, Mat. 4. 12. Mar. 1. 14. then again a second time Jesus goes into Galilee, Lu. 4. 14. and Joh. 4. 3. and there within a while walking by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew a fishing (as yet living in their vocation) Mat. 4. 18. Mar. 1. 16. and upon the great draught of fish, Peter at that time was so astonied, and Christ so revealed himself to them, that they all, Peter, Andrew, James, and John, left all and followed him; But this clearly after all that was related in the three first, and part of the 4th chap: of this Gospel. By this ordering and marshalling the Evangelists in this particular, as the perplexities of the story will be a little cleared, so 'twill also appear, what ground there is for the asserting the πρωτοκλισία or privilege of the first call to belong to S. Peter. All that can be said of him in that particular is his coming to Christ with Andrew, when Christ told him his name should be changed into Cephas, &c. But at that time Christ bad him not follow him, and after that 'tis clear he parted from him, and followed his trade some time, till Christ's second coming into Galilee, and till after John's imprisonment, and if that which Christ then said to him (joyned with his coming to, but not staying with him) should be thought sufficient to date his calling from thence, yet then are Andrew and that other disciple (most probably S. John the writer of this Gospel, who had the honour of the πρωτοκλισία, the uppermost place next Christ at meals, lay with his head at Christ's bosome, see note on Mat. 8. g.) in all reason to be resolved on, as the πρωτοκλησίας the first call'd, having gone to Christ's abode, and continued that evening with him, c. 1. 40. But if this be not sufficient to settle the πρωτοκλισία in either of these, because they and S. Peter return'd to their trades till after John's imprisonment, then sure must it be placed somewhere else, for 'tis clear Christ had disciples before that, who baptized many, and 'tis clear of Philip that he followed Christ, as his inseparable attendant, and there is little reason to doubt it of Nathanael, and so in no respect can it be setled in S. Peter, who (yet farther) when he did forsake all and follow Christ, had three more, Andrew and James and John which accompanied him in so doing.

CHAP. II.

1. AND the third day there was a * marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there.

* marriage-feast, γάμος.

2. And both Jesus † was called and his disciples to the marriage.

† and his disciples were invited to the feast, ἐκλήθη δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸν γάμον.

3. mention'd the want of wine to Christ as an occasion and season of revealing his power, by shewing a miracle to all there present in supplying them.

3. And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus [saith unto him, They want wine.]

2. 4. But Christ repressed her, saying,

4. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, [a] what have I to doe with thee? mine hour is not yet come.]

that this matter of his office to which he was sent by God, was a thing, wherein she, though his earthly parent, was not to interpose; Farther telling her, that 'twas not yet seasonable for him to shew forth his power unto all, intimating his purpose that he would doe it more privately then by her words she appeared to designe it.

5. Whereupon, that none but the waiters might take notice of it (who knowing the wine was all spent, could not choose but know if any supply were made) she bids them be obedient to him, and without any noise, doe what he should bid them.

5. His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, doe it.]

6. And there were there six vessels of stone, cisterns of a competent bignesse, out of which they were wont to draw water for every mans use; These were set there to wash in, after the manner of the Jewes, who constantly wash before meals. See note on Mar. 7. a.

6. And there were set there six * waterpots of stone, after the manner of the † purifying of the Jewes, containing two or three firkins a piece.]

* cisterns, ὑδρίαι
† cleansing, or, washing, καθαρισμὸν

7. Jesus saith unto them, Fill the water-pots with water. And they filled them up to the brimme.

8. And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the Governour of the feast. And they bare it.

9. When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was (but the servants that drew the water, knew) the Governour of the feast called the bridegroom,

10. It is the manner of men at feasts, to bring their guests the stronger, richer wines at the beginning, then that which is not so rich, but thou hast reserved the richest piece till the latter end of the feast.

10. And saith unto him, [Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine, and when men have well drunk, then that which is * worse: but thou hast kept the good wine untill now.]

* smaller, ἐλάσσω

11. gave evidence of the presence of his divinity (see note on c. 1. b.) and accordingly his disciples beleived on him, as the son of God.

11. This * beginning [of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and [manifested forth his glory, and his disciples beleived on him.]

* Jesus made the beginning of his miracles, ἐποίησεν τὴν ἀρχὴν τῶν σημείων ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

12. After this he went down to Capernaum, he and his mother, and his brethren, and his disciples, and they continued there not many daies.

13. And the Jewes Passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem,

14. that set up a trade to sell sacrifices to them that came thither from farre, and that returned money by way of exchange, (see note on Mat. 21. b.)

14. And found in the Temple those [that sold oxen, and sheep, and doves, and the † changers of money sitting.]

† exchangers, κερματισταὶ

15. And using no other weapon but only a whip of little cords, which he found there; he drave them all out of the Temple, no man making any resistance, (in like manner as he after did again Mat. 21. 12.)

15. And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the Temple,] and the sheep and the oxen, and poured out the * changers money, and overthrew their tables.

* money-merchants, κολλυβιστῶν, see note on Mat. 21. b.

16. the Temple, set apart for Gods peculiar presence and service, a shop of trade to buy and sell in it.

16. And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence, make not [my Fathers house, an house of merchandise.]

17. interpreted that act of his, as an act of zeal, by which some malefactors were punished in the very fact, without legall processe and condemnation among the

the Jewes, and to that purpoſe call'd to mind that of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 69.9. The zeal of thy houſe hath fed or gnawed upon me, and the reproaches of them that reproached thee, are fallen upon me, i.e. I am as tender of any diſhonour done to thy houſe or thee, as if it were done to my ſelf, ſee Rom. 15. 3. and ſo am ſtirr'd up with zeal to vindicate it.

18. Then anſwered the Jewes and ſaid unto him, What ſigne ſheweſt thou, * that ὅτι us, * ſeeing that thou doſt theſe things?] 18. Hereupon the Jewes came and queſtion'd him, ſaying, What commiſſion doſt thou bring? what evidence of thy coming from God, or, what miracles miracles doſt thou doe, by which it may appear to us that thou art inveſted with ſuch authority, as theſe acts of thine pretend to?

19. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, Deſtroy this temple, and in three daies I will raiſe it up.] 19. Jeſus ſaid unto them, The ſigne that is to be ſhewn to you is this, that when you have put me to death, I now tell you, that I ſhall within three daies riſe again, ſee Mat. 12. 39.

20. Then ſaid the Jewes, Fourty and ſix years was this Temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three daies?] 20. This being ſaid by him in a paraboliſcall manner, calling his body, this temple; and the putting him to death, the deſtroying of this temple; and his reſurrection, the rearing it again; they miſtook his meaning, and thought he had ſpoken of the Temple of Jeruſalem (and laid it up as an accuſation againſt him, Mat. 26. 61.) and argued againſt it, as an impoſſible thing for him to doe that in ſo ſmall a time.

21. But he ſpake of the Temple of his body.] 21. But the truth was, he ſpake of his body's being kill'd, and riſing again the third day, which after the manner of prophets he thus expreſt, and mentioned this as the miracle by which his doctrine was to be confirm'd.

22. When therefore he was riſen from the dead, his diſciples remembred that he had ſaid this unto them, and they beleived the Scripture, and the word which Jeſus had ſaid. 22. This ſpeech of his the diſciples called to mind after his reſurrection, and upon that, added to many other completions of his own predictions, and the predictions of Scripture concerning him, they beleived thoſe prophecies as fulfilled in him, and beleived his own words as agreeable thereto, and ſo reſolved that he was the Meſſias.

23. Now when he was in Jeruſalem at the Paſſover, on the feaſt day, many beleived in his name, when they ſaw the miracles which he did.] 23. Many others did ſo alſo at Jeruſalem when he came thither, and acknowledged the power by which he acted to be divine, being convinced thereof by the miracles which he did there at the time of the feaſt of the Paſſover and unleavened bread.

24. But Jeſus did not commit himſelf unto them, becauſe he knew * all men.
25. And needed not that any ſhould teſtifie of man, for he knew what was in man.] 24, 25. But Jeſus knowing the ſecrets of mens hearts, and wanting no information concerning any man, (being able to dive into the inſide of a man, into his very thoughts) conſequently diſcerned what kind of beleif this was in theſe men, how unlikely to bear any ſtreſſe, to hold out in time of temptation, and his time of ſuffering being not yet come, he would not venture himſelf to the hazard of their unconſtancy, and therefore did not ſo freely converſe, as to abide and eat and drink with them.

* all things, or, every man, for ſome ancient copies read πάντα ἄνθρωπον

Notes on Chap. II.

2. Τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί

'Tis not eaſie to reſolve what is the importance of this ſpeech of Chriſt to his mother, τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί; What have I to do with thee? yet by the next verſe, which tells us what Mary did upon it, (viz: ſpake to the attendants, that they ſhould doe whatſoever Chriſt bad them) 'tis clear that ſhe did not conclude from his ſpeech, that he would not make uſe of his power to help them to wine, but directly the contrary, that ſhe beleived that he would, And 'tis clear by ver. 7. that Chriſt immediately goes about it, bids them fill the water-pots of water, and immediately turns it into wine. By this 'tis manifeſt that the meaning of Chriſt's ſpeech muſt not be, that his time of working miracles was not yet come, but either that it was not yet the fitteſt point of time to doe this particular miracle, but 'twould be more fit, becauſe more beneficiall, when the wine was quite ſpent, or elſe that 'twas not yet his time to doe his miracles ſo openly and publickly, as Mary ſeemed to beleive (and his kindred after inſiſt on, c. 7. 4.) but Chriſt frequently provides againſt, (for what reaſons, ſee Mat. 8. b.) To this latter the circumſtances of the Context conſidered all together doe moſt encline, And accordingly the reſult is, that though he meant to work this miracle, yet he would doe it more privately, ſo as it ſhould appear to none of the Gheſts, or to the Bridegroom, or to the Ruler of the feaſt, but only to the waiters and his own diſciples and mother, that came along with him. This is manifeſt by the event, for ver. 9. the ἀρχιτρίκλινος the manager or orderer of the feaſt knew it not, but only they that drew the water, i.e. the waiters, nor is there any farther publick notice taken of the miracle, but only that the Evangeliſt mentions it, as a beginning or præludium of his Σημεῖα, ſignes, or wonders, ver. 11. by which by little and little he made himſelf known to the world, and manifeſted his glory, i. e. made it appear that the Godhead dwelt in him, but this not to all, but his diſciples, of whom peculiarly 'tis added, that they beleived on him. As for that form of ſpeech [τί ἐμοὶ καὶ σοί] it is only a form of repreſſing (as much as ἔα let alone, with which tis joyned Mar. 1. 24.) and ſo is uſed 2 Sam. 19. 22. Mat 8. 29. Mar. 5. 7. Lu. 8. 28. to expreſſe diſlike to the propoſall, in the firſt, In the reſt, to deſire him to let them alone, not to meddle with them. And accordingly it here ſignifies Chriſt's diſlike of Mary's propoſall, which was (without any care of ſecrecie) publickly to ſupply them with wine, now it was wanting. Which manner of doing it Chriſt diſlikes, and gives his reaſon for it, οὔπω ἥκει, 'twas not yet fit to doe his miracles ſo publickly. The truth of this interpretation, by which 'tis granted, that Chriſt did not ſay, that it was not his ſeaſon to doe the miracle

miracle (but only not to doe it ſo publickly) is ſo convincing, that Gregory Nyſſene, rather then he would grant the meaning of it to be, that his time of doing any miracle was not yet come, thought himſelf obliged to read the latter part of the verſe by way of interrogation alſo, Is not my houre yet come? and to interpret it thus, Am not I yet of age to be maſter of my own actions? wilt thou rule me now at this age ſtill? But there is no need of this altering the punctation, Juſtin Martyr, or the Author of the Quæſt: and Anſw: ad Ortho: would have it rendred thus literally [What is it to me and thee? i.e. the care of providing wine belongs not to thee and me, p.136. But the firſt interpretation is moſt ſatisfactory, and beyond exception.

CHAP. III.

1. one of the Jewiſh Sanhedrim.

1. THere was a man of the Phariſees named Nicodemus, [a Ruler of the Jewes.]

2. Who durſt not be ſeen or known to come to Jeſus, and therefore did it by night, c. 7. 50. and 19.9. and ſaid unto him, Maſter we are convinced that thou art ſent by God to teach and inſtruct us in his way, for this thy miracles teſtifie, which could not be done without God's ſpeciall hand, and would never be allowed by God to confirm falſities.

2. The ſame came to Jeſus by night, and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou * art a teacher come from God, for no man can doe theſe miracles that thou doeſt, except God be with him.]

* come frō God a teacher, ἀπὸ θεοῦ διδάσκαλος but ἐλήλυθας is added

3. Jeſus willing to undeceive him, and that he might not flatter himſelf, that the acknowledging of him to be the Meſſias, or ſent from God would be ſufficient, without the undertaking his ſervice, owning and confeſſing of him (in deſpight of all fear of men) without being his proſelyte, and forſaking his former courſe, tells him poſitively, that unleſſe he would be born again, which is a phraſe to denote a proſelyte of Chriſt, and when occaſion required, forſake all for Chriſt's ſake, even his former courſe of life, and dignity in the Jewiſh ſtate, (contrary to his coming to him by night, and acknowledging him ſecretly) he ſhould not ſee the kingdome of God, be a Chriſtian here (which is a priviledge of a greater height, then that of being a Jew, or a member of their Sanhedrim) or a Saint hereafter.

3. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the kingdome of God.]

4. Nicodemus attending only to the literall ſound, not ſenſe of Chriſt's words, asks how a man of full years can again be born.

4. Nicodemus ſaith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the ſecond time into his mothers womb and be born?]

2. 5. Jeſus anſwers him, Except a man be received as a proſelyte, and that not of an ordinary ſort, ſuch as are among you Jewes, but a Chriſtian proſelyte, ſuch as are received by Baptiſme in the Chriſtian Church, ſo as to undertake the law of Chriſt, and renounce his former (whether heathen, or) Jewiſh courſe, the firſt expreſt by being waſht in water, the ceremony of the Jewes proſelytiſme, (now alſo made uſe of by Chriſt) by which a man was ſaid by the Jewes to be new born, and accordingly ſo here in an high degree; the ſecond by being born of the Spirit, entring on a new pure ſpirituall life, and not only paſſing under thoſe externall waſhings (agreeable unto which it was, that Chriſt's diſciples were admitted not only by water, as John's, and the Jewes proſelytes were, but by the holy Ghoſt's deſcending upon them, ſee note on Act. 1. a.) he cannot enter &c.

5. Jeſus anſwered, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, Except a man be [a] born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdome of God.]

6. The actions of a naturall man, which hath none of this new Chriſtian birth, that hath not thus given himſelf up to a Chriſtian life, will be but naturall actions, at leaſt but externall purifications, reſtraints of ſinne in the outward part. But the actions of a ſpirituall perſon, thus born anew from that higher principle, a proſelyte of Chriſt's, they will be ſpirituall, purifications of the very ſpirit.

6. That which is born of the fleſh, is fleſh; and that which is born of the ſpirit, is ſpirit.]

7. And therefore you are not to wonder that I tell you of the neceſſity of this new birth, undertaking this new courſe, and forſaking the former, nor to think there is nothing in it, becauſe 'tis not viſible to your eyes, Many things have great force in them, whoſe beginnings are not viſible to the eye, or at all known by men.

7. Marvail not that I ſaid unto thee, Ye muſt be born again.]

8. As for example; the wind w^ch^, though no body knows from what part preciſely it comes, what beginning it hath, and how produced, and when it riſeth (again,) what becomes of it when it ceaſeth, yet hath moſt diſcernible effects, comes with a great force and noiſe (which is evidence enough, that there is ſuch a thing) is heard by all men: And ſo is it in this matter, He that is born anew, that undertakes to be a proſelyte of Chriſt, he by the Spirit of God, and thoſe influences that are conveyed to him from Chriſt, is able to doe wonderfull things, is diſcernibly another kind of man then he was before, and ſo his new birth is, and muſt be ſeen by the fruits and growth &c. and ſo be diſcernible to himſelf and others, though the beginnings or courſe, or means of conveighing this unto him be undiſcernible, ſee Mar. 4. 26.

8. The wind bloweth where it liſteth, and thou heareſt the ſound thereof, but canſt not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth. So is every one that is born of the Spirit.]

9. Nicodemus ſtill continued ignorant of the meaning and poſſibility of the truth of what Chriſt ſaid, and therefore ſtill queſtion'd how this could be?

9. Nicodemus anſwered and ſaid unto him, How can theſe things be?]

10. To which Jeſus anſwered, This that I ſay of new birth in baptiſme, being not only agreeable to, but perfectly a piece of your doctrine about proſelytes, tis ſtrange that thou being a learned Jew, a Phariſee, and Maſter in Iſrael, ſhouldſt not underſtand it: ſee Mat. 3. a. and Joh. 13. b.

10. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Art thou a maſter of Iſrael, and knoweſt not theſe things?]

11. The things that thou ſo wondreſt at, and wilt not beleive, I have perfect knowledge of, and aſſure you of the truth of them, but the Jewes will not beleive me.

11. Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, [We ſpeak that we doe know, and teſtifie that we have ſeen, and ye receive not our teſtimony.]

12. If

12. If I have told you earthly things, and ye beleive not, how ſhall you beleive, if I tell you of heavenly things?] 12. Your not beleiving or underſtanding (v. 9.) thoſe things that are ordinary in the Jewiſh law, (ſee v. 31.) is an argument, that things of an higher nature will not be received by you.

13. And no man hath aſcended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the ſon of man which is in heaven.] 13. As if I ſhall tell you that I am to aſcend up to heaven, and from thence demonſtrate to you that I came down from heaven, and am the very Meſſias, the eternall ſon of God, that am now a man.

14. And as Moſes lifted up the ſerpent in the wilderneſs, even ſo muſt the ſon of man be lifted up, 14,15. And again that I am to be lifted up on the Croſſe, and thereby to fulfill what was typified by Moſes's lifting up the brazen ſerpent,

15. That whoſoever beleiveth in him ſhould not periſh, but have everlaſting life.] and that this is the way, by which I mean to bring all that beleive in me to everlaſting life, as all that looked on the brazen ſerpent were cured of whatſoever diſeaſes.

16. For God ſo loved the world, that he gave his only begotten ſon, that whoſoever beleiveth on him, ſhould not periſh, but have everlaſting life.] 16. For herein hath God's unſpeakable love been expreſt to all mankind, that he hath ſent his eternall ſon to aſſume our nature, and to teach and give examples of holy life, and at laſt to die for them, and riſe again, and aſcend to heaven, all on this one deſigne, that every perſon in the world, that ſhall receive and obey him, ſhall be reſcued from eternall death, and then made partaker of eternall life.

17. For God ſent not his ſon into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be ſaved.] 17. For this my miſſion from God my Father was deſigned all in mercy and charity, not to puniſh or condemn any man, but on purpoſe that all men might be reſcued from puniſhment.

18. He that beleiveth on him is not condemned, but he that beleiveth not is condemn'd already, becauſe he hath not beleived in the name of the only begotten ſon of God.] 18. He that receiveth and obeyeth me, is by me ſecured, that he ſhall eſcape all puniſhment, only he that rejecteth me is certainly condemned, (by the purport of that very covenant, of which mercy to beleivers is the principall part, all others being abſolutely excluded) for that great ſinne of refuſing of Chriſt now ſent to him, as having not embraced that only remedy, the only ſon of God now offered to him.

19. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkneſſe, rather then light, becauſe their deeds were evil.] 19. And this is it that will aggravate your ſinne and puniſhment, that when God made ſuch proviſion for you, when Chriſt came to enlighten and take men off from all their former evil courſes, they were ſo beſotted to their own ſinfull waies, that they choſe rather to continue in them, then to be reformed and purified by Chriſt, or but ſo much as to be taught their duty by him.

20. For every one that doth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, leſt his deeds ſhould be reproved. 20. But as he that fears coming into the light, 'tis certain he hath ſomewhat to conceal, and that he hath not a mind to part with it, So the refuſing to come and be inſtructed in the knowledge of his duty by me, is an evidence that that man is a wicked man, and means to continue ſo, who cannot venture his actions in the light, for fear they be found faulty, and he engaged to reform them.

21. But he that doth the truth, cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifeſt, * that they are wrought in God.] * becauſe 21. Whereas he that lives a juſtifyable life, or reſolves to amend what is amiſſe, will be glad of a director, will come cheerfully, to be put in the way of ſtricteſt duty, and venture to have his actions judg'd of, whether they be right or no, which is an argument that what he doth he doth in the fear of God, and with a good conſcience.

22. After theſe things came Jeſus and his diſciples into the land of Judæa, and there he tarried with them, [and baptized.] 22. and receiving thoſe that believed on him, baptized them.

* were many waters ſeveral there 23. And John alſo was baptizing in Ænon neer to Salem, [becauſe there * was much water there, and they came and were baptized.] 23. a place choſen by him as commodious to that purpoſe by reaſon of the pooles of water, and thither the people came, and were baptized of him there.

24. For John was not yet caſt into priſon.

† diſpute * a Iew, ſo the Kg. MS. and others read, περὶ Ἰουδαίων. So the Syriack, Chryſoſtome, Theophylact, Nonnus, and all the copies of Paris but one, ſaith Lucas Brugenſis. 25. Then there aroſe a † queſtion between ſome of John's diſciples, and * the Jewes about [purifying.] 25. his receiving of proſelytes, and uſing the ceremony of baptiſme, on which occaſion mention was made of Chriſt's uſing the ſame ceremony.

26. And they came unto John, and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, He that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou bareſt witneſſe, behold, the ſame baptizeth, and all men come unto him.] 26. Hereupon they come and tell John, that Chriſt (deſcribing him to him) receiveth proſelytes with this ceremony, and there is great recourſe to him.

27. John anſwered and ſaid, [A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.] 27. I can doe no more then I have commiſſion from God to doe, and that commiſſion doth not equall me to him.

28. Ye your ſelves bear me witneſſe that I ſaid, I am not the Chriſt, but that I am ſent before him.] 28. And therefore you cannot but remember that I alwaies ſaid of my ſelf, that I am not the Meſſias, but only his harbinger.

29. He that [b] hath the bride is the bridegroom, but the friend of the bridegroom which ſtandeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly, becauſe of the bridegrooms voice, This my joy therefore is fulfilled.] 29. When the bridegroom hath the bride in ſecret conferrence, b.

to conſummate the marriage, and the friend of the bridegroom hearkens at the dore, to hear whether all ſucceed well or no, if the bridegroom ſignifie (by ſome form of ſpeech, that was uſuall to that purpoſe) that all ſucceeds proſperouſly, then that friend rejoices exceedingly, and thus is it with me in my attendance on Chriſt at this time.

30. And of him I ſhall farther foretell you, that he ſhall increaſe daily in ſplendor and fame, and I proportionably decreaſe. 30. He muſt increaſe, but I muſt decreaſe.]

31. And it is all reaſon that it ſhould be ſo. For he cometh from heaven, and ſo muſt needs be ſuperiour to all ſuch as I, who am an earthly man, having my originall from the earth, made up or compounded of earth, and therefore what I ſay or doe, is but of an earthy, but what he, of a much higher originall, my baptizing is but like the reſt of your Jewiſh baptiſmes (ſee v. 22.) only with water, but his with the holy Ghoſt alſo. 31. He that cometh from above is above all, he that is of the earth is earthly, and ſpeaketh of the earth, he that cometh from heaven is above all.]

32. And the thing which he teacheth he knows to be true, having received it from his Father, but the multitude of men in the world receive not his teſtimony, beleive not that he is ſent from God. 32. And what he hath ſeen and heard, that he teſtifieth, and no man receiveth his teſtimony.]

33. He that doth receive it doth in effect no more but bear witneſſe unto, and acknowledge the veracity of God himſelf, it being as impoſſible that one, ſo ſent from God as Chriſt, ſhould lie, as that God ſhould lie himſelf. 33. He that hath received his teſtimony, hath ſet to his ſeale, that God is true.]

34. The former prophets had the Spirit in a limited meaſure beſtowed on them by God, to goe on ſuch or ſuch an errand, on which God ſent them, and 'tis therefore [Thus ſaith the Lord] to all their prophecies, but on Chriſt the Spirit deſcended once for all, and commanded beleif of all that he ſhould ſay. 34. For he whom God hath ſent, ſpeaketh the words of God, for God giveth not the Spirit by meaſure unto him.]

35. Chriſt is the welbeloved of his Father, and by him God hath revealed to us all things fit to reveal, ſee Mat. 3 17. And therefore 35. The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.]

36. Whoſoever gives up his faith and obedience to him is in a courſe which will bring him to all felicity eternally, and on the contrary he that ſtands out contumaciouſly againſt his doctrine, continues immutably and inevitably under the wrath of God, due to him both for his former ſins, and this addition of his ſtanding out againſt this powerfull method of Gods for the recalling him. 36. Whoſoever gives up his faith and obedience not the Son, ſhall not ſee life, but the wrath of God abideth on him.]

Notes on Chap. III.

a. Γαμῆ ἐξ ἐθνῶν. Προσήλυτοι. Λούτρον παλιγγενεσίας.

The nature of Proſelytes among the Jewes, and the difference of them hath been ſpoken of (note on *Mat.*23.d.) and alſo the manner of initiating them by waſhing or baptiſme (note on *Mat.*3.a.) as alſo their putting off all their former relations of kindred, and conſanguinity, and ſo being as it were new born (note on *Mat.*19.28. d.) From hence it is that at the receiving of Chriſtian religion, which is the nobler proſelytiſme, and hath in the ceremony of initiation, not only the waſhing in water, but alſo the baptiſme of the Spirit too, that is, the communication of that Spirit of Chriſt in ſome meaſure, that deſcended on the Apoſtles, Act. 2. a man is here ſaid by Chriſt to be born anew of water and the holy Ghoſt; And when Nicodemus a learned Jew, and a Maſter among them, ſeems to be ignorant, and wonders how this can be, and asks this groſſe queſtion to that firſt part of it, how one that is of age can be born again, Chriſt wonders at him v.10. intimating that this is the very doctrine of proſelytiſme, which no knowing Jew can be ignorant of, to wit, that he is to be waſht and circumciſed, and being ſo, is by the Jewes counted as one recens natus, new born, brought forth by another mother, ſo that he who was kin to him before, is now no longer kin to him. This λοῦτρον παλιγγενεσίας waſhing of regeneration, *Tit.*3.5. is in effect a being new born, and he that ſo follows Chriſt in this regeneration or new birth, *Mat.*19.28. (if that be the right punctation) he leaves brothers and ſiſters, father and mother, wife and children, v.29. and *Mar.*10.29. and *Lu.*18.29. And to the ſame purpoſe belongs that which follows v.11, 12. intimating that ſpeech of Chriſt, which Nicodemus ſo little underſtood, of being born anew of water, to have been a thing ordinarily ſeen and known among the Jews, ἐπίγειον, an ordinary, inferior earthly thing, in compariſon with the ἐπουράνια thoſe higher celeſtial doctrines (ſo much more contrary to the Jewiſh cuſtoms and laws) that ſhould be revealed, and to the baptizing with the holy Ghoſt, of which alſo he here ſpeaks, referring ſtill to this cuſtome of Proſelytes among the Jewes, which is here accommodated to the receiving of Chriſtian religion, entring into his diſcipleſhip. Βαπτισμοι βαπτισται.

Among the Jewes in their rites of eſponſalls, there is frequent mention of חופה, a place where, under a covering, it was uſuall for the bridegroom to diſcourſe familiarly but privately with his ſpouſe, whereby their affections might be more knit one to another (in order to marriage) which were not ſuppoſed to be ſo, till the bridegroom came cheerfully out of that Chuppah. To this doth David referre Pſal. 19. 5. ſpeaking of the Sun, which as a bridegroom comes forth rejoicing מחופתו from the Chuppah. This cuſtome is now ſtill obſerved among the Jewes (as in Germany 'tis affirmed) either before the ſynagogue in a ſquare place covered over, or, where there is no ſynagogue, they throw a garment over the bridegroom and the bride, and that ſerves the turn. See Paulus Fagius Exeg: in Gen. 4. Whilſt now the bridegroom thus talks with the bride, the bridegrooms friends, that is the μεσύμφοι or pronubi (as in Talmud tit: Sanhedrin, ſpeaking of friends, the example of ſuch there mention'd, is זה שושבינו as the μεσύμφοι) uſe to ſtand at the dore (agreeable to which is that of Julius Pollux, καλεῖται τις τῶν νυμφίου φίλων θυρωρὸς, one of the bridegrooms friends is called the dore-keeper, ἢ θυρεὶς ἑστηκὼς, he that ſtands at the dore, &c.) and hearken whether all doe ſucceed well or no, and when they hear Νυμφίου φίλοι hear the voice of joy, which is an intimation from the bridegroom, that all is well, (which Nonnus calls, ἥδιστα φωνὴ, i.e. a familiar language, some form of kindneſſe or familiarity) then they rejoice, and ſo celebrate this news, See Elias Levita in Tiſhbi, in the word פָּשַׁט. Of theſe παράνυμφοι or pronubi, it is farther obſervable out of the Greek Liturgies (in the Euchologe, ἀναλαβὲ τὸν στέφανόν:) that they are uſed as Mediatours between the bridegroom and his bride, and help to make the league between them, (and therefore in the office of marriage, ſpeaking of one of thoſe ἀναδόντα τὰ δακτυλίδια, he takes the man's ring, and gives it to the woman, and the woman's in like manner to the man, and the title that is there beſtowed on him, is ὁ σύνδεσμος. and otherwhere (by a corrupt barbarous word fetcht from the Latine compar) κουμπάρος, as here, the friend of the bridegroom, and Mat. 9. ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ νυμφῶνος, an officer uſed in thoſe eſpouſalls, and defined by Simeon Theſſalonicenſis to be ὁ τῆς παρθενίας καὶ ὁμονοίας ἐπίτροπος, the undertaker for chaſtity and kindneſſe betwixt the couple, καὶ διδάσκαλος τῆς ὁμοφροσύνης, καὶ ἀγάπης συζυγίας ἡνιόχος, one that inſtructs them in the marriage-duties of love and concord, and is as it were the Suſceptor in marriage, as the Godfather is in baptiſme, and ſo publickly promiſes for the bridegroom before the Church. This νυμφῶνος

CHAP. IV.

Paraphraſe.

1. When therefore [the Lord knew how the Phariſees had heard that Jeſus made and baptized more diſciples] then John,

1. Chriſt knew that the Phariſees heard of his receiving more proſelytes by that ceremony of baptiſme or waſhing,

2. Though Jeſus himſelf baptized not, but his diſciples,

3. He left Judæa] and departed again into Galilee.

3. Conſidering the danger that this might bring upon him from the Sanhedrim of the Jewes, it being not yet the fit ſeaſon for him to leave the world, till he had farther diſſeminated his doctrine, he left Judæa for a time.

4. And he muſt needs goe through Samaria.]

4. And Samaria was in his way.

5. Then cometh he to a city of Samaria which is called Sychar, neer to the parcell of ground that Jacob gave to his ſon Joſeph.

6. Now Jacob's well was there, Jeſus therefore being wearied with his journey, ſate thus on the well: and it was about [the ſixt houre.]

6. twelve of the clock mid-day.

7. There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water, Jeſus ſaith unto her, Give me to drink.

8. For his diſciples were gone away unto the city to buy meat.

9. Then ſaith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou being a Jew, askeſt drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? For the Jewes have no [dealings] with the Samaritanes.

9. commerce or communication of familiarity

10. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, If thou kneweſt [the gift of God, and who it is that ſaith unto thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldſt have asked of him, and he would have given thee [a] living water.]

10. what a mercy and bounty of God is now deſigned thee, 2.

and who it is that made that requeſt to thee, on purpoſe that thou mighteſt be partaker of a farre greater gift, thou wouldſt not have ſtartled at this requeſt, but have made advantage of it to ask, and he would certainly have given thee that fountain-water, of a divine ſpeciall quality, which would have yeilded thee eternall life.

11. The woman ſaith unto him, Sir, thou haſt nothing to draw with, and the well is deep, from whence then haſt thou that living water?

12. Art thou greater then [our father Jacob,] which gave us the well, and drank thereof himſelf, and his children, and his cattel?

12. Jacob, from whom we Samaritans profeſſe to receive our religion (and therefore refuſe to goe up to Jeruſalem, which Moſes, later then he, commanded.)

13. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, Whoſoever drinketh of this water, ſhall thirſt again,

13. It is the nature of this ordinary water to quench thirſt for a ſmall time, but then conſtantly that thirſt within a ſmall time returns again, and ſo there is continuall need of ſupply.

14. But whoſoever drinketh of the water that I ſhall give him, ſhall never thirſt, but the water that I ſhall give him, ſhall be in him a well of water ſpringing up into everlaſting life.

14. But that which I mean by water, and which upon thy hare petition I am ready to give thee, v. 10. will ſo refreſh, that he ſhall never thirſt again, that drinketh of it, It ſhall be within himſelf a perpetually flowing fountain, that of its own accord ſhall yeild him daily refreſhment here, and never ceaſe, till it end in everlaſting life, and bliſſe.

15. The woman] ſaith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirſt not, neither come hither to draw.

15. As yet the woman underſtood not his meaning, but applying it groſly to corporall thirſt, the 16. Jeſus] ſaith unto her, Goe call thy husband, and come hither.

16. And therefore to work more ſenſe in her, Jeſus meaning to give her knowledge in ſome degree that he was the Meſsias, by diſcovering ſome acts and evidences of his omniſcience,

17. The woman anſwered and ſaid, I have no husband. Jeſus ſaid unto her, Thou haſt well ſaid, I have no husband.

18. For thou haſt had five husbands, and he whom thou now haſt, is not thine husband, in that ſaidſt thou truly.

19. The woman ſaith unto him, Sir, I perceive [thou art a prophet.]

19. thou canſt reveal the ſecrets of ones life, haſt prophetick knowledge, If ſo, then I pray tell me, or ſatisfie me in this difficulty.

20. Our

20. Jacob and the Patriarchs before the law (whoſe ſucceſſors the Samaritanes pretended to be, and ſo pleaded a greater antiquity for their ſchiſme, then the Jewes had for their true worſhip, but this falſly, being indeed Aſſyrians, tranſplanted by Salmaneſer into the cities of Samaria, when the tribe of Ephraim, and the reſt of the kingdome of Iſrael, which inhabited there, were by him carried into Aſſyria, 2 Kin. 17. 24.) worſhipped in mount Ephraim at Shiloh, in the countrey of Samaria, where antiently the tabernacle, and the ark of God were, long before the building of the temple at Jeruſalem; And yet ye Jewes ſay that 'tis not lawfull to perform the ſolemn worſhip of God in any place but Ieruſalem.

20. Our Fathers worſhipped in this mountain, and ye ſay, that in Jeruſalem is the place where men ought to worſhip.]

21. the worſhip of God ſhall be ſo farre from being confined to this place, that it ſhall not be confined to Ieruſalem it ſelf, nay a deſolation ſhall ſhortly overwhelm both.

21. Jeſus ſaith unto her, Woman, beleive me, the houre cometh, when [ye ſhall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jeruſalem worſhip the Father.]

22. Ye worſhip the God of the land, 2 Kin. 17. 26. without any knowledge who that is, and your own Gods with him, We Iewes worſhip the eternall God of heaven, who hath revealed himſelf to us, For the ſpeciall revelations of God, beyond that which other nations enjoy, belong to the Iewes, and ſo all manner of advantages toward our eternall good.

22. Ye worſhip * ye know not what, we know what we worſhip, for ſalvation is of the Jewes.

* that which ye doe not know, wee worſhip that which we know, ὃ οὐκ οἴδατε, ἡμεῖς προσκυνοῦμεν ὃ οἴδαμεν.

23. But now the time of Reformation approacheth, & God will be worſhipped and obeyed neither in the Judaicall rites (which are oft called carnall, and conſiſted in externall performances) nor according to the Samaritane falſe worſhip, who worſhipt their own idols together with God, 2 Kin. 17. but in a pure ſpirituall manner extending to the very heart, and ſuch as was typified by thoſe ſhadows, and the ſon of God now comes to draw all men to this way of worſhip, to the Chriſtian from the Judaicall or Samaritane way. See note on Lu. 9. d.

23. But the houre cometh and now is, when the true worſhippers ſhall worſhip the Father in ſpirit and in truth. For the Father ſeeketh † ſuch to worſhip him.]

† ſuch worſhippers of him, τοιούτους προσκυνητὰς αὐτοῦ.

24. is eſpecially delighted with the Chriſtian worſhip, which is taught to joyn the ſoul with the externall performances, and to worſhip the true God now revealed by Chriſt, after that manner, wherein Chriſt reveals him.

24. God is a Spirit, and [they that worſhip him, muſt worſhip him in ſpirit and in truth.]

25. This reformation thou talkeſt of, we know ſhall be wrought when the Meſſias or Chriſt comes, and him we doe expect.

25. The woman ſaith unto him, [I know that Meſſias cometh, which is called Chriſt, when he is come, he will tell us all things.]

26. I am that Meſſias.

26. Jeſus ſaith unto her, [I that ſpeak unto thee am he.]

27. As he ſaid this, the diſciples came back from the city, v. 8. and thought it ſtrange that he ſhould thus diſcourſe with this woman, yet no man was ſo curious as to ask him the reaſon, or require of him an account of this action.

27. And upon this came his diſciples, and marvailed that he talked with the woman, yet no man ſaid, What ſeekeſt thou, or, Why talkeſt thou with her?

28. The woman then left her water-pot, and went away into the city, and ſaith to the men,

29. many things of my life, which were ſo ſecret, that it is not imaginable how he ſhould know them, were he not the Meſſias.

29. Come ſee a man which told me [all things that ever I did: Is not this the Chriſt?]

30. the people of Sychar

b.

30. Then [they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31. In the mean while his diſciples [b] prayed him, ſaying, Maſter, eat.

32. I have ſomewhat to doe more valuable to me, then eating.

32. But he ſaid unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.]

33. Therefore ſaid the diſciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

34. My doing the office for which I was ſent, is as pleaſant and more neceſſary to me, then meat or drink.

34. Jeſus ſaith unto them, [My meat is to doe the will of him that ſent me, and to finiſh his work.]

35. 'Tis not with my harveſt as 'tis with that in the fields, four months yet to that time, Conſider and ye ſhall ſee the great inclinations and forwardneſſe of men to receive the Goſpel, if it may be preached unto them.

35. * Say not ye, There are four months, and then cometh harveſt? Behold I ſay unto you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, for they are white already to harveſt.]

* Doe ye not ſay that it is yet foure months and harveſt comes? ἐκ ὑμεῖς λέγετε, ὅτι ἔτι τετράμηνός ἐστι, καὶ ὁ θερισμὸς ἔρχεται;

36. And they that will but goe out, and preach to them, ſhall receive reward for their pains, and by converting others advantage themſelves eternally, and come to reap the fruits of all that ſeed, that the prophets &c. from all time have ſowed.

36. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternall, that both he that ſoweth, and he that reapeth, may rejoice together.]

37. So that to this may the proverb be applied, One ſoweth &c. i. e. the prophets ſowed this ſeed of the Goſpel, in foretelling Chriſt's coming, and the Apoſtles they reap the harveſt of converts to him.

37. † And herein is that ſaying true, One ſoweth and another reapeth.]

† For in this the ſaying is true that, ὁ γὰρ τούτῳ ὁ λόγος ἐστὶν ἀληθινός, ὅτι

38. The prophets have ſo prepar'd mens hearts to receive the Goſpel, that there needs very little pains of yours, you may at firſt preaching of the Goſpel reap a whole harveſt of proſelytes.

38. I have ſent you to reap that whereon ye beſtowed no labour, other men laboured, and ye are entred into their labours.]

39. He told me the ſecrets of my life, which he being a ſtranger could not know, if he were a meer man.

39. And many of the Samaritanes of that city beleived on him, for the ſaying of the woman which teſtified, [He told me all that ever I did.]

40. So

40. So when the Samaritanes were come unto him, they besought him that he would tarry with them, [and he abode there two daies.]

40. And though Mat.10.5. he forbad his disciples at that time to goe into any city of the Samaritanes, (that they might make the Jewes see they were his peculiar care at that time) yet to shew that the Gospel was not their enclosure, he now himself staies with the Samaritans two daies, and preacheth the Gospel to them.

* beleived on him. So the Syr: and many copies add

41. And many more * beleived [because of his own words.]

41. upon what they heard from him themselves.

42. And said unto the woman, Now we beleive, not because of thy saying, for we have heard him our selves, and know that this is indeed the [Christ, the Saviour of the world.]

42. Messias that was to come to redeem the world.

43. Now after two daies he departed thence, and [went into Galilee.

44. For Jesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his owne countrey.]

43,44. went to Galilee, avoiding or passing another way, not by Nazareth, the place of his education, because, according to the proverb, he expected no reception there, he went another way, not by the lake of Genesareth, but by Thabor and Carmel toward Cana, where he had wrought his first miracle.

45. Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast, for they also went unto the feast.]

45. And upon this second coming of his among the Galileans, they having, since he was there last, seen what miracles he had done at Jerusalem, at the feast of the passover, c.2.14. they thereupon gave him a very kind reception (and after the cure of the courtiers son which follows here, teaching publickly in the Synagogues of Galilee, he was glorified of all, Lu. 4. 15.)

47. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judæa into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son, for he was at the point of death.

48. Then said Jesus unto him, [Except ye see signes and wonders, ye will not beleive.]

48. I perceive there is need of doing miracles among you, to work faith in you, This weakness therefore of yours I will indulge to.

49. The noble man saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50. Jesus saith unto him, Goe thy way, thy son [liveth.] And the man beleived the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and went his way.

50. is recovered, see v.52, and 53.

51. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son [liveth.]

51. is recovered.

52. Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend, and they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh houre the feaver left him.

53. So the father knew that it was at the same hour in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth, and himself beleived and his whole house.

* second miracle did Iesus again ἐκ δευτέρου ἐποίησεν ἰησοῦς

54. This * is again the second miracle that Jesus [did,] when he was come out of Judæa into Galilee.

Notes on Chap. IV.

2. Ζῶν ὕδωρ

The Hebrewes expresse a fountaine of water springing or bubling up continually, by the phrase מַיִם חַיִּים Gen. 29. 19. living waters, and the Greek render that either literally by τὸ ζῶν ὕδωρ living water, or else by ἅλλόμενον ὕδωρ, springing or leaping water, that springing of waters out of the earth, being a kind of imitation or resemblance of life. This fountain or spring-water being of all other the pureſt, is here set to denote that great mercy and grace of God in the hands or disposall of Christ c.3.35. that δωρεὰν Θεοῦ v.10. gift of God, which he had to give her back again by way of reward for any kindnesse of her's to him. And thus Christ himself was promised in the Old Testament to be given in the notion of a fountain Isa. 12.3. Psal. 68.26.

Ἅλλόμενον ὕδωρ

b. Ἠρώτων

The Hebrew שָׁאַל signifies two things, to question, and to request, or pray. And the Greek translators use one of these for the other, Psal. 122.6. in stead of [Pray for the peace &c.] [ἐρωτήσατε τὰ πρὸς εἰρήνην] enquire or aske after &c. So here ἠρώτων μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, the disciples asked; for [they intreated, desired,] and v.40. the Samaritanes ἠρώτων αὐτὸν μεῖναι &c. asked, i.e. besought him to stay. So Mat. 15.23. Ἠρώτων λέγοντες, ἀπόλυσον they (not asked, but) besought him, saying, dismisse her, or doe what she desires of thee (as appears by Christ's answer rendring a reason why he did it not presently, v.24. 26.) So Act. 13.36. ἠρώτων ἐξελθεῖν desired them to goe out, and c.23.20. ἐρωτῆσαί σε to desire thee, and 2 Thess. 2. 1. ἐρωτῶμεν ὑμᾶς ἀδελφοί we beseech you brethren. So Joh. 17.9. οὐ περὶ κόσμου ἐρωτῶ, I pray not for the world, and ver.15. οὐκ ἐρωτῶ I pray not, and v.20. So c.16.26. οὐ λέγω, that I will pray, though v.30. it be used in the other sense, for asking questions.
